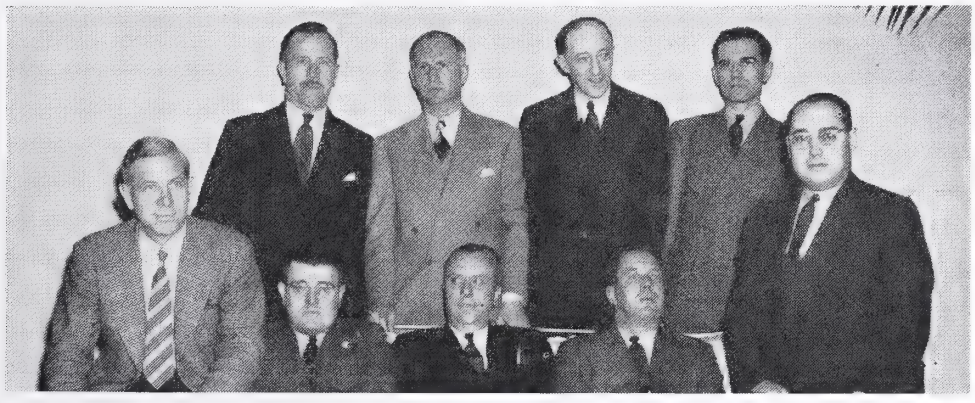
TORONTO—General satisfaction has been expressed over the reaching of an accord in the industry in Canada, providing for a reorganization of clearance and priority regulations in all parts of the Dominion. One of the surprises in the development was that, after all the arguing of the past year or two, the pill seemed to be so easy to take when the remedy was applied—and the aforesaid pill had not been coated with sugar either. A portion of the resolution of the National Clearance Committee, proposed by Louis Rosenfeld, covers the situation very neatly in the following:

"Whereas this body and all members thereof recognize that great benefits are to be obtained for all by the attainment of goodwill, harmony and uniform conditions for the carrying on of the motion picture industry in Canada;

"Be it therefore resolved that a National Clearance Board be set up for the purpose of establishing a fair deal for all parties in the matter of priority and clearance, and according to the rules hereunder set out;

"Be it further resolved that all parties hereinbefore mentioned agree to uphold faithfully and impartially the aims and purposes of the National Clearance Board."

The body referred to is the Motion Picture Section of the Toronto Board of Trade, the members of which are as follows: N. A. Taylor, representing the Independent Theatres Ass'n of Ontario, president; E. H. Wells, secretary, Canadian Film Boards of Trade; N. L. Nathanson, president, and J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of Famous Players Canadian Corp.; J. J. Allen, Jules Allen, Herb Allen and Louis Rosenfeld, Columbia Pictures and Premier Theatres; Col. John A. Cooper, president, Motion Picture Distributors of Canada; Frank O'Bryne, Associated Screen News; Henry L. Nathanson, Regal Films; Sam Bloom and Sam Fine and B&F Theatres; M. A. Milligan, Paramount Film Service; Wolfe Cohen, Warner Bros.; R. W. Bolstad, T. J. Bragg, Ben Geldsaler and Clarence Robson of Famous Players Canadian Corp.; H. Freedman, independent exhibitor; A. W. Perry, Empire-Universal Films; Harry Firestone, independent exhibitor; O. Hanson, Hanson Theatres Corp.; L. M. Devaney, RKO Distributing Corp., and Harry Alexander, president of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario. This roster covers all branches of the industry and their support of the resolution was unanimous.



To Frame Clearance

The regulations provide that the National Clearance Board may by unanimous consent establish local boards in each of the six distributing centers in Canada and general clearance rules for the guidance of all boards are to be framed without delay by the National Board which is authorized to submit the code to each of the organizations and groups represented on the national commission for approval. Any amendments are to be submitted in the same way.

The national board is not empowered to draw up specific schedules of clearance and these are to be prepared and maintained under the direction of the respective local boards. Any request for a change in a schedule by an individual distributor or theatre owner must be made in writing to the district clearance board with an accompanying fee of $5 for each application, which is to be dealt with by a majority vote of the district members present at a hearing. In the event of a tie vote, an umpire is to be appointed under the rules of arbitration as specified in the Canadian License Agreement. A copy of all decisions is to be filed with the National clearance board, whose decision will be final in the case of a written appeal.

The final clause of the adopted agreement depicts the spirit of the new deal:

"The parties to this agreement recognize that the chief objects to be attained are good will, harmony and uniform conditions for the carrying on of the motion picture business and they all pledge their cooperation to make these boards of permanent value to all exhibitors and distributors, and that all individuals pledge themselves to cooperate with the National Clearance Board to the fullest extent and, under no circumstances, to enter into any side agreements or understandings, written or verbal, which will contravene the rules or rulings of the National Clearance Board, or the spirit of the rulings made thereby."

Loan Out Hayward

HOLLYWOOD—Louis Hayward has been loaned by Edward Small to RKO Radio to appear in two films.

TORONTO

EXECUTIVES of Canadian film distributing companies and chains, many of whom have personally known him over a period of years, extend to Maurice D. "Red" Kann, editor-in-chief of BOXOFFICE, their best wishes on the occasion of his recent marriage, coupled with the sincere desire that Mr. and Mrs. Kann will enjoy complete happiness in all the days to come.

Some concern was felt in Toronto theatre circles over the safety of Fred Trebilcock, manager of the Uptown, when news was received of the severe earthquake at Lima, Peru, where he has been having a holiday visit . . . Paul Martin, member of the Canadian House of Commons, officiated at the opening of the Park Theatre, a new house of Paramount Windsor Theatres, Ltd., at Windsor, of which Simon Meretsky is managing director. A number of film exchange officials in Toronto made the trip for the event which included a sumptuous party at Hotel Norton Palmer following the presentation of "Little Old New York" and "Two Thoroughbreds." Art Ducharme is manager of the theatre.

Frank Meyers, former Ontario branch manager of RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada, has been appointed chief booker of the Exhibitors Booking Ass'n by N. A. Taylor, general manager. The EBA is a cooperative booking and buying organization of independent exhibitors in Ontario.

Wedding Bells: Sam Collis, proprietor of the Regent at Caledonia, Ont., has taken unto himself a wife, as announced on posters which friends devised in connection with a rousing stag party at Hamilton. Guston Allen of Premier Theatres, Toronto, was married on Sunday, May 26, the bride being a Detroit girl.

Theatre changes: Lou Rosefield, recently with Colonial Pictures, Ltd., Toronto, has leased the Queen's at Hespeler, Ont., which has 503 seats, the former owner, John Wigle, having retired. W. G. Fraser has resigned as manager of the Holland at Bradford, Ont., which seats 357 persons, the management having been taken over by J. S. Smith, owner. Incidentally, the wife of Rosefield operates a theatre at Galt, not far from Hespeler.

Charlie Mavety's film delivery trucks, which operate over a wide expanse in Ontario on daily schedules, have been fitted with large signs of circus type which advertise the Circle M Ranch at Kleinburg, Ont., Mavety's dude farm which has a distinctive western atmosphere with its cowboys, horses and corral.

Manager Bill Brady was host at the Madison, Toronto, for a cooking school at the theatre under the auspices of the Toronto Community Newspapers, through which considerable display advertising was secured in a special tieup.

Among trade visitors: Gary Hogarth, proprietor of the Roxy at Kingsville, had not been in town for some weeks; Abe Rappaport made the rounds quickly for his Hollywood at Campbellford because he was preparing for the big rush at his summer hotel; Ambrose Nolan made his second trip this year from Aylmer, on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River, where he has the Pic and also engages in politics; Mrs. H. J. Sutherland was doing the booking for the five theatres in western Ontario comprising the Sutherland group and then returned to St. Marys, while Bob Stevens was down from northern Ontario where he has several houses. Miss Jane Edmonds made the trip from Lindsay where she owns the Kent and where the summer business has started to pick up nicely.

Al Sedgwick, manager of the Belsize, Toronto, beat the gun with his beauty contest, other features of this type for the summer not having been announced, and the result has been a rush of entries and oceans of publicity in daily and weekly papers. The preliminary heat of the contest was conducted on the Belsize stage, May 27; further eliminations are taking place June 3 and the finals June 10, the winner to be entered in the beauty parade at the Police Games in July.

A visitor in Toronto from Hollywood, where he has worked since 1925, was G. Ernest Palmer, director of photography for 20th Century-Fox, accompanied by his wife. They spent some days with their daughter, Mrs. James McFarlane. Before going to the coast, Palmer was a cameraman in England and that was where he met Mrs. Palmer.

The death has occurred at Toronto of Dr. G. B. Smith, once physician and a "second father" to Mary Pickford. The screen actress wired a message of sympathy from Hollywood. Although her real name was Gladys Smith, Mary was not related to the doctor.

Tom Daley, manager of the big Imperial has revived his weekly revivals, playing an old feature late on the opening night of a new picture. The revival the other night was "Second Fiddle."

A Rainy Victoria Day Helps Out Theatres

TORONTO—One of the wettest holidays on record in the Toronto district was Victoria Day, May 24, when rain persisted throughout practically the whole 24 hours. Normally, the day is the first big occasion of the picnic season and there is plenteous use of fireworks in honor of Queen Victoria but outdoor activities were cancelled by the wholesale. The theatres reaped the benefit, thus upsetting the tradition that patronage is just so-so on "the 24th."

Employes of chain headoffices and film exchanges who had counted on a big day of golf, tennis, and outings were doomed to disappointment but the managers of theatres, who had to work anyway, were delighted with the break. Many of the office employes had the opportunity for an extended trip from the night of May 23 until the following Monday morning, May 27, because of the policy of closing the offices all day Saturday during the summer months.

New High for 16mm Films in Ontario

TORONTO—The number of 16mm films released in Ontario during the 12 months ending March 31 rose to a new high of 526.

Included in the number approved during the latest period were 58 which had French dialogue and other foreign language films comprised five Hungarian, one Polish, one Russian and one Chinese. All of these, with the exception of the prints from France, were released prior to the outbreak of hostilities and no more from Europe wil be passed for showing in Ontario until further notice because of possible subversive propaganda, excepting the French pictures.

Expansion in the use of 16mm films is shown in the fact that only 111 of the narrow pictures were released in Ontario four years ago, compared with 526 in the last year.

Recognition to Plottels In Drive for Depinet

NEW YORK—Winning branches and their managers in the short subject division of the Ned Depinet Drive are listed in order of their standing by Drive Captain Herb MacIntyre.

Disney Cartoons: James F. Sharkey, Detroit; Jack C. Osserman, Chicago; Frank L. McNamee, Philadelphia; H. M. Lyons, Atlanta; H. H. Greenblatt, Pittsburgh, and G. William Wolf, San Francisco. Leslie L. Plottel, St. John, and Mark Plottel, Toronto, led the Canadian division.

One and two-reelers, including Pathe News: Charles Boasberg, Buffalo; H. H. Greenblatt, Pittsburgh; Sol M. Sachs, Dallas; G. William Wolf, San Francisco; R. J. Folliard, Washington, and Bob S. Wolff, New York.

Five managers and 15 salesmen shared in cash prizes for "Information Please" division: Charles Boasberg, Frank L. McNamee, R. J. Folliard, and Harry E. Kahn, Washington; P. M. Baker, New Orleans, and Sol Sachs. The salesmen are: Francis C. Ross, Boston; L. S. Gruenberg, St. Louis; Ely J. Epstein and Samuel Lefko, Philadelphia; M. J. Kassel, Joe Cozzi and Sam Gorelick, Chicago; Albert L. Kolitz, Cincinnati; J. P. Rubenstein and J. F. Samuels, Los Angeles; John G. Chinell, Buffalo; Arthur Goldsmith, Cleveland, and J. E. Loeffler and W. C. Winters, Minneapolis.

Greyhound Racing Twice Weekly Set in Toronto

TORONTO—Greyhound racing has been revived in Ontario for the season under the auspices of an incorporated association. Commencing this week, meets are scheduled for every Monday and Friday evenings at the Ulster Stadium, the races being held under floodlights. The dog sport is gradually taking hold in Ontario to form another type of competition for the theatres.

Retitle "Privates' Lives" "Letter From Aldershot"

TORONTO—The National Film Board excised the glamour from the second of the war film series by changing the title just before its release to theatres across Canada. Originally, the picture was known as "Privates' Lives" but, apparently, there was too much oomph to this caption because it became "A Letter From Aldershot"—which almost put it into the mystery class.

The film, which is a part of the "Canada Carries On" series, has been released through Columbia. It deals with the training of Canadian troops in England. The first release was "Atlantic Patrol" which gave an insight into the naval service.

"Beast of Berlin" Ready For Release in Canada

TORONTO—"Hitler—Beast of Berlin" has at last been announced for release in Canada—with the Second Great War a matter of history for the past nine months. The film, based on the story "The Goose Step," is ready for immediate release, according to Harry J. Allen, general manager of Grand National Films, Ltd., which has the exclusive distributing rights for the Dominion.

Allen is also releasing "Song of the Road," a British feature featuring Sir Harry Lauder, Scottish comedian who is once more entertaining the troops in the British Isles.

Exports to U. K. Dive

MONTREAL—Exports of films from Canada to the United Kingdom fell from $218,000 in April, 1939, to $58,000 in April this year, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, announced.

: PARAMOUNTIES :

LOS ANGELES—When Morris Milligan, Canada's general manager, for Paramount, was interviewed over the air during the convention by Nils T. Granlund at the Florentine Gardens, no one was more surprised than Harry Feldman, owner of Toronto's Cartier, Canada and Victoria, visiting Hollywood, who happened to hear Milligan over the hotel radio.

Montreal's branch manager, Manny Brown, told the story about his early days in vaudeville, when he lectured as "Professor Emanuel A. Brown, world traveler."

Thomas F. Dowbiggin, Montreal salesman, joined Paramount in 1922 and has been a 100 Per Cent member five times. He is known throughout the company as the oka cheese specialist, knowing just where to get the choice stuff in his territory.

Jack Hunter's wisecracks rated him along with Manny Brown as the convention's leading wits.

"Cut-throat" Tactics Reach a Serious Stage in Toronto

TORONTO—"Cut-throat" competition has reached a serious stage among the theatres in a section of Toronto and the situation has aroused the attention of leaders of the industry with the result that drastic action has been threatened unless the exhibitors show an inclination to pursue a normal policy.

Giveaways are being offered without the requirement of a service charge, admission prices have been slashed, there has been a generous use of passes while other inducements for patronage have been extended to the point that everybody concerned is facing a losing game.

Upwards of 15 theatres are involved in the "free-for-all" in a district that takes in Dundas Street, Spadina Avenue and College Street. Units of minor chains and both organized and unaffiliated independent houses have been divulging in the price war.

It is understood a conference has been called for a heart-to-heart discussion with a view to the setting of reasonable limits for concessions; otherwise it is believed serious losses will be encountered. There has been no suggestion of cancellation of film rental contracts, it is understood, but a number of exchanges are taking a serious view of the situation because of a possibility that the price war may spread.

MONTREAL

FILMROW Bowling League banquet at the Tio Toc cabaret was marked by an unusual feature—the presentation to Mark Plottel, local manager of RKO, of a club bag from his confreres in other Filmrow offices and a cigarette lighter and cigarette case from his staff. The occasion was Plottel's departure for Toronto where he now is manager in succession to J. F. Meyers, who resigned. Tom Dowbiggin acted as M. C.

Hatton F. Taylor has arrived at Filmrow from Calgary to take over the management of the Montreal office of RKO in succession to Plottel . . . New York attracted two local theatre managers who are now on holiday and who met there. They are Morris Davis of the Belmont and Eugene Lefebvre of the Francais. William Hodgson, assistant manager of the Belmont, is pinch-hitting for Davis, and Maurice Phaneuf, assistant manager of the Francais is filling the managerial role for Lefebvre.

Premier Angus MacDonald of Nova Scotia has turned down a petition of the Allied Exhibitors of the province seeking repeal of the film regulatory measure known as Bill 92 which was passed a year ago on their request but never made operative. The Premier described the exhibitors' change of front as "frivolous."

An Associated Screen News camera crew headed by Norman Hull, is shooting Niagara Peninsula in color in preparation for a forthcoming picture—Britain's exhibit at New York World's Fair will include a film replica of the fight on the River Plata which preceded the sinking of the German battleship, Graf Spee.

Frank Warnicker, manager of the Strand, underwent a minor operation at the Royal Victoria Hospital . . . Montreal children are being admitted to see "Pinocchio" at the Imperial . . . Sir Harry Lauder staged a series of concerts at Aldershot for the Canadian First Division. The show was given free to soldiers as a result of the purchase of all seats by the Canadian Legion Auxiliary Services.

"A Letter From Aldershot" is the second of a series of films produced by the department of public information in conjunction with the national film board, showing activities of Canada's war forces. It is being shown at the Palace.

Projectionists in local theatres frequently have nervous moments when one copy of a picture has to be divided between two theatres in opposite ends of the city. The responsibility is on the projectionist to keep the show going if the film arrives late, and as he has sometimes made cuts in a short in order to keep the time schedule, an embarrasing situation is produced if the main film arrives late. In one such case the projectionist had to run at the end of a picture a reel he had originally omitted.

Captain Douglas Dowling, who for some years sold motion picture apparatus here for a Chicago firm, is now a cable censor in Montreal . . . Captain Ernest H. Bradley, author of "The Understudy," a film scenario, now is running it serially in The Rally, organ of the Canadian troops overseas which he edits.

"The Warning," a British film made under government supervision, now showing at Loew's, pictures an attack by Nazi raiders and its repulse. The scene is laid in Nottingham, and is an impressive lesson in the need of air defenses. For the Canadian presentation, Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, Minister of Defense, is pictured delivering a short address at the end of the film.

Exciting war news brought hourly on the radio is blamed by theatre managers for recent falling off in attendance. Weather is also a factor, particularly since daylight saving gives long pleasant evenings that invite to the outdoors.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Norrish acted as hosts at the annual staff party held in Associated Screen News studios in Montreal. Members of the staff enacted an old-time melodrama, evoking vociferous applause as the curtain fell on "another successful ASN production."

WINNIPEG

WHILE eastern showmen have been having their hands full with complications of one kind or another, bans on juvenile admission or cut-rate encyclopedia selling, the situation here is a very quiet one. Nevertheless, while they have escaped these scourges of the industry, exhibitors here are none too happy about the outlook. They are face to face with a bugbear of another kind and one far more difficult to combat—a sharp falling off at boxoffices, generally attributed to the war situation and the depressing news coming in from the front. With tension at a high peak, the public, it seems, can not be interested in motion pictures. With this there is also the fact that unsettled conditions are not making for a tendency to fork out for amusements; the trend, rather, is to conserve money for the future.

Residents of the prairies who were not able to see the King and Queen a year ago are now to get the opportunity to see a complete motion picture of the royal tour across Canada. The film will be shown at a number of Manitoba and Saskatchewan points in the next few weeks, with more showings scheduled through the coming months. The film will be distributed by Columbia Pictures of Canada, who will donate their share of the take to the Red Cross.

Among the downtown shows the Capitol and Lyceum ran midnight shows on Thursday preceding the holiday. A number of second run houses instituted the same practice.

The Shrine Circus, which was here a full week, and a two-day stand by Mart Kenney and his band, did not help show business at all during the past week.

E. A. Zorn, FP district supervisor, and Don Gauld, formerly manager of the Metropolitan, left for Toronto to attend the district managers' meeting.

Dividend on Preferred By Hamilton United

TORONTO—Hamilton United Theatres, Ltd., a subsidiary of Famous Players Canadian Corp., has announced a dividend of 1½ per cent on the preferred shares payable at the end of June, the statement being issued by N. G. Barrow, secretary-treasurer.

This disbursement follows the declaration of a dividend on the preferred stock of Confederation Amusements, Ltd., and on the common of United Amusement Corp., indicating a business-as-usual spirit.

"Shepherd" to Hathaway

HOLLYWOOD—Henry Hathaway will direct "The Shepherd of the Hills" for Paramount. The Technicolor production will co-star Betty Field and Robert Preston. Stuart Walker will produce.

: How They Sell 'Em :

For his current showing of "Buck Benny Rides Again" at the Capitol, Harold Bishop was able to secure a tieup which included every grocery in the city. Tying in with the makers of Jello, Bishop got streamers up all over town.

VANCOUVER

THE TIME is now definitely set for the closing of the Dominion to refloor it, reseat and recarpet. At the conclusion of the show on Saturday, June 1, all the seats will be removed, and the existing floor torn out; from then on until June 15 three shifts of workmen will carry the work through. Charlie Doctor, manager, looks forward to having the most comfortable and best equipped house in the West.

Several projectionists went down to White Rock last Sunday to see how the theatre being built for Guy Graham is coming along, and they all congratulated him on its plan and exterior appearance. Guy was the union's secretary for quite some time.

W. P. Nichols (Nick) is back in charge of his Royal . . . Quagliotti Romano now daily visits his Colonial and each visit is longer than the last as his health steadily improves.

With Bill Henscher, Paramount, and Bill Jones, RKO, away in the east attending conventions, and Larry Bearg and Frank Gow at the F-P meeting in Toronto, there appears to be a gap in the gallery of familiars, accentuated by the frequent short absences of Charles Ramage who is covering his territory on the promotion detail of "Gone With the Wind" for Regal.

The latest old time theatre to be surrendered to the wreckers is the Empress which will be replaced by a chain store. While never a competitor in motion-pictures, the Empress has for many years been used by stock companies and traveling stars for stage presentation.

Columbia

Mr. Smith Goes to Washington

Played this one too late. Good picture. Nothing but comments, why don't Capra give us more like this? Business good. We have to give Columbia credit for producing a good one. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair, warm. Admission: 25-10. Town and rural patronage. Population: 670. Capacity: 408.—Jack Story, Mary Agnes, Jamestown, Ky.

Man They Could Not Hang, The

Here is one exhibitor who wished he had been hung. Absolute flop with us. Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

U-Boat 29

I can say nothing good for this picture, poor story, acting below par, it got nothing but complaints. Leave this picture off your date book. Picture was as empty as the house, a swell money loser. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Town and rural patronage. Population: 670. Capacity: 408.—Jack Story, Mary Agnes, Jamestown, Ky.

Fighting 69th

The best yet in war pictures. Put Cagney and O'Brien in them and they click in these parts. Best weekend business since "Roaring Twenties." Everybody enjoyed it. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Balalaika

Excellent musical, but doesn't seem to go over in a small town. Nelson Eddy best yet and a pleasing and beautiful Ilona Massey. Frank Morgan and Charlie Ruggles well liked. Good story, beautiful settings, but too much singing in foreign tongue. Business: Zero, partly due to this being our first Sun.-Mon. show since January 1. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—John Grabenstein, Liberty, Eustis, Neb.

Congo Maisie

Played on Bank Night. Fair business. Fair picture. Not as good as "Maisie." Could be played on weekend fairly well. Wednesday. Weather: Rain. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Congo Maisie

A nice program picture. Pleasing but very light. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 15-10. Rural and general patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 400.—M. B. Hasty, Joy, Dardanelle, Ariz.

Judge Hardy and Son

Mickey is still my favorite drawing star. Good picture. That southern lass sure tried to smear the drawl of the south. Good business, that's what counts. Sun., Mon. Weather: OK. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Northwest Passage

An excellent Technicolor picture that didn't do as well at the boxoffice as I had anticipated. The head-eating sequence was rather gruesome and would have been much better omitted. Fri., Sat., Sun. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage.—Walter J. Buchholtz, New Haven, New Haven, Mo.

Secret of Dr. Kildare

We believe this to be the best of the "Kildare" series, thus far. Our patrons talked much about it and they like Lionel Barrymore and Lew Ayres. Business was fair. Thurs., Fri., Sat. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—John Grabenstein, Liberty, Eustis, Neb.

Shining Hour, The

Not good fan fare for small town. The only thing that saved it for us was our beauty fashion parade. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Shop Around the Corner

This is one of those far fetched "Lonely Hearts Club" stories. The customers took it with a pinch of salt and let it go at that. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 15-10. Rural and general patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 400.—M. B. Hasty, Joy, Dardanelle, Ariz.

Strange Cargo

A good action picture with enough of the sinister and the unusual to give it appeal. Devil's Island has a certain negative glamour in the popular imagination anyway and a well selected cast helps to make the turnstiles click. Some of the scenes lack reality, but let that pass. Sun., Mon., Tues. Population: 1,250. Capacity: 400.—R. Evans, Melodian, Cheney, Wash.

Young Tom Edison

This was a very fine picture which was well received by the people and did above average business at the boxoffice. Virginia Weidler added decidedly to the picture. More shows like this and we could discontinue double bills. Sun., Mon., Tues. Population: 1,250. Capacity: 400.—R. Evans, Melodian, Cheney, Wash.

Paramount

Law of the Pampas

I have seen worse pictures, but at the present I can't remember where. Saturday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 15-10. Rural and general patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 400.—M. B. Hasty, Joy, Dardanelle, Ariz.

Light That Failed, The

Paramount sure fell down on this one. It's a shame that such sure-fire story material should be so wasted in its transition to the screen. Audience: Just sat there and acted bored. Went out yawning. Boxoffice: No good.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Remember the Night

A nice little show that held to our usual gross for preferred playing time. The allocation was too high, but they don't make enough good ones, so they use some of the small ones to fill out Sun., Mon. Weather: Clear. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Remember the Night

Here is one that is pure entertainment. Hope Paramount keeps up the good work. It's full of subtle stuff. Audience: Enjoyed it tremendously. Boxoffice: About average.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Road to Singapore

Here is another one of those pure entertainment hits. Not much sense to the story and you couldn't believe a bit of it but good entertainment just the same. Audience: Liked it. Boxoffice: Considerably above average.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Sidewalks of London

Quite a few came to see Vivien Leigh the first night but they didn't think much of the picture and business was off next night. Only the intelligentsia really appreciate Laughton and there's only a handful of them. Fri., Sat. Population: 1,250. Capacity: 400.—R. Evans, Melodian, Cheney, Wash.

Union Pacific

Although old, we enjoyed good biz. Mon., Tues. Weather: Rain. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Republic

Forged Passport

Suitable for double bills on weekend. We did well with a western. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cool. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Main Street Lawyer

A rather colorless production that was really not a bad show; just one that no one got very excited about either way. Very few came to see it, although many patrons have a good opinion of Ellis as an actor. Wed., Thurs. Population: 1,250. Capacity: 400.—R. Evans, Melodian, Cheney, Wash.

Rovin' Tumbleweeds

Frog has as many fans as Gene here. They say Gene is too "polished." As long as they're together everything is dandy. Good business, good picture. Fri., Sat. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

RKO Radio

Marshal of Mesa City

This is without a doubt the best western George O'Brien has ever made. Saturday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 15-10. Rural and general patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 400.—M. B. Hasty, Joy, Dardanelle, Ariz.

United Artists

Cowboy and the Lady

This was too old and I was afraid. It really hit the spot. Drew the western fans with its name and they all liked it. Good comedy all the way. Wednesday. Weather: OK. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Lion Has Wings

The worst fraud that has been perpetrated on the exhibitor in many a year. The picture is pure propaganda and has no entertainment or interest value. Only the most genteel and lady-like failed to mention their displeasure as they left. Frankly it was awful. Thurs., Fri., Sat. Population: 1,250. Capacity: 400.—R. Evans, Melodian, Cheney, Wash.

Universal

It's a Date

A picture that will please any type of audience 100 per cent. It deserves your best playdate. Thurs., Fri. Weather: Cloudy and cool. Admission: 15-10. Rural and general patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 400.—M. B. Hasty, Joy, Dardanelle, Ariz.

My Little Chickadee

A nice little comedy with average attendance. Thursday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 15-10. Rural and general patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 400.—M. B. Hasty, Joy, Dardanelle, Ariz.

Warner Bros.

Pride of the Blue Grass

Swell little picture. Played on Bank Night. Fair business. Wednesday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

As glittering and glamorous as the period in which she reigned is the celluloid story of the colorful woman who dominated the American theatre during the closing decades of the last century. Reflecting in every detail the meticulous care and unstinting budget which were invested in its making, this is a stimulating, impressive, dramatic and tuneful feature, whose myriad entertainment assets completely overshadow the liberties taken with biographical accuracies. Producer Gene Markey hand-picked his cast with an eye to talent and boxoffice magnitude, with particularly outstanding performances registered by Alice Faye, in the title role, Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold and Helen Westley. Irving Cummings' direction is a flawless example of this reliable pilot's steady-handed work, bringing forth the utmost in dramatic power from every situation.

Nick Carter has developed into quite a smoothie since the dim, distant days when he was wont to hide behind a million geographies. But in the transition he has lost nothing of the universal appeal he possesses for thrill seekers of all ages. Thus his second film adventure in the current series can be catalogued as a very worthwhile adventure melodrama. There is nothing of the nickel paper-back atmosphere in the production qualities of the feature. It is substantially mounted, delineated by a group of established players, written and directed with an experienced and practical eye toward the boxoffice. Walter Pidgeon is breezily convincing as the fictional super sleuth, who, in this chapter, devotes his attentions to breaking up a Central American sabotage and insurance racket. Directed by Jacques Tourneur.

Walter Pidgeon, Donald Meek, Joseph Schildkraut, Florence Rice, Nat Pendleton, John Carroll, Steffi Duna.

Whatever else may be said for this, there is certainly no lack of action or dearth of those tried and true elements which have always drawn in the kid trade before; and, consequently, may be expected to exert the same appeal again and again. It is noisy, not too original, but is frequently funny in an obvious manner and can be relied upon to stand up for its own rights in the program division. Some of the original "Dead End Kids" have been blended in with the "Little Tough Guys," but both groups are rapidly attaining maturity and for this reason probably are reaching the end of their vogue as rambunctious juveniles. Wasted in an inconsequential role that could easily have been handled by the most unassuming stock player, Nan Grey shows up well in the faint romantic element. Joe May directed.

"Brother Orchid" is the kind of entertainment that will leave audiences with an inner feeling of having seen a great artist in a great role in a great production. Edward G. Robinson is back in the rackets. But before he is through he has taken the robes of a religious order that grows flowers. It is mostly on the light side but at times travels in reverse from the ridiculous to the sublime. It is the story of a racketeer who is looking for "class." He fails to find it in Europe. Only after he is taken for a ride by his successor does he find what he has been looking for, much simpler and not immediately apparent. The tale is well rounded, written with clever imagination. The ticket dispenser is due for a workout. Lloyd Bacon directed.

Edward G. Robinson, Ann Sothern, Humphrey Bogart, Donald Crisp, Allen Jenkins, Ralph Bellamy.

When "Safari" is in the field it is an interesting departure from the average production, due to its African locale. When it attempts to be drama it is too talkative, a little false and not quite up to snuff. Performances are first rate from such worthies as Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks jr. and Lynne Overman. The latter has the humorous role of a Scotsman given to trading and philosophizing. Miss Carroll pops into M'pala on Tullio Carminati's yacht. She falls for Fairbanks on a game hunting trip into the interior. Carminati does not like it at all and sets out to prove it. Following a mishap with a lion, Miss Carroll thinks she has the real thing in Fairbanks who, in his recuperative state, is brought around to give up his single blessedness for domesticity. At best it is fair. Edward H. Griffith directed.

At any time and under any circumstances this story of the indomitable bravery of nurses behind the front-line trenches, their hopes, fears and romantic entanglements, would command attention as a strong contender for substantial patronage and enthusiastic audience reception. Given the additional impetus of current world affairs, it is highly improbable that the picture can miss the hit class, particularly if treated to the intensive merchandising indicated by its inherent entertainment qualities. The story is wisely constructed and phenomenally prophetic in its timeliness; the cast—with Elsie Janis, Wendy Barrie and Patric Knowles very impressive in the top lines—is excellent; and production and direction, contributed by Sol C. Siegel and John H. Auer respectively, are definitely of big league calibre.

Paramount (3940) 82 Minutes Rel. July 5, '40

A soundly conceived and executed example of the tear-jerking technique, this should score solidly in those situations where audiences demand huge chunks of heartbreak and despair in their entertainment diet. Perhaps its most noticeable weakness is the almost complete lack of alleviating touches of humor which would have widened its appeal for every type of theatregoer. Akim Tamiroff, dominating the cast, presents a superlative character study in the role of a man whom the fates battered about unrelentingly, while Gladys George, as his wife, also turns in a well-shaded performance. Considering the minor key in which he was forced to work, Director Louis King managed his assignment well. The picture is, of course, a re-make of one of the later silents in which Emil Jannings was starred.

20th Century-Fox (049) 67 Minutes Rel. June 28, '40

Another chapter in the adventures of the mythical border-Robin Hood, this fails to take advantage of the possibilities afforded by its budget and cast, summing up as a very ordinary western which can hope for enthusiasm from only the more rabid action fans. The story is, definitely on the stereotyped side and attempts to incorporate so many sagebrush cliches that at times it approaches burlesquing the time-honored hoss opera. Indeed, with each succeeding picture since Cesar Romero was handed the title role, the series is veering further away from the splendid entertainment the "Cisco Kid" films yielded with Warner Baxter as the bandit. This time Romero exposes a corrupt judge, who has designs on a widow's ranch because it controls the water supply. H. Bruce Humberstone's direction lacks smoothness and timing.

Dealing as it does with the Fifth Column, as employed by the Germans in the current European fracas, this one is red hot for the live exhibitor who will push it. Made in England, there is a patina of authenticity in the backgrounds, and the work of Edmund Gwenn, Paul von Hernried, Mary Maguire and Geoffrey Toone adds much to the reality of the incidents. Von Hernried employs the brother of Miss Maguire in order to be around her. She falls in love with him and, despite his foreign background, he edges his way into the home. Later he installs a high-powered radio there under the pretense he is doing it for the boy's sake. Contact with German headquarters are made, and the parachutists and bombers get to work in a drive on England. The last two reels are full of excitement. Albert De Courville directed.

Mad Men of Europe A Espionage Drama

SELLING ANGLES: "You're Not So Tough"

The "Dead End Kids" should rate marquee attention. Point out in advertising and exploitation that the picture somewhat resembles "The Grapes of Wrath" in theme. The regeneration motif in which the kids are brought around to a respect for law and justice suggests special showings for civic leaders, jurists, the mayor and other civic notables. Make over lobby and theatre front to resemble a shanty-town. Stage a contest to find the "toughest kid in town."

CATCHLINES:

Wise in the Ways of the Hobo Trail . . . These Kids Thought the World Owed Them a Living . . . And Tried to Collect the Easy Way.

The "Dead End Kids" Are Here Again . . . Hard-Boiled . . . With Hearts as Soft as Mush.

SELLING ANGLES: "Women in War"

Don't fail to cash in on the timeliness of this offering in view of current widespread interest in developments abroad. Elsie Janis, well-known entertainer during the last war, should be given the marquee credits along with Wendy Barrie and Patric Knowles. Dress usherettes as Red Cross nurses and impart a "front-lines" atmosphere to the lobby by piling up sand bags, guns, etc. Build up eye-catching lobby easels and mailing pieces through the use of newspaper headline blowups reporting current war developments.

CATCHLINES:

Unsung Heroines in a World Gone Mad . . . They Turn Cowardice Into Courage . . . Despair Into Hope.

Torn From the World's Searing Headlines . . . The Story of Women Who Stand Shoulder to Shoulder with Their Men . . . In a Battle Against Despair.

SELLING ANGLES: "Mad Men of Europe"

The rightful title for the picture should have been "The Fifth Column," but because of a play by the same name that could not be done. However, the exhibitor who boasts about his showmanship now has a chance to show his wares. The headlines daily scream about some of the incidents which are shown in this picture. Tie-ups with local radio stations after news broadcasts on the international situation, ballyhoo trucks blaring the headlines and plugging the playdate, cards at newsstands and recruiting offices should be arranged.

CATCHLINES:

See the Fifth Column in Operation . . . This Will Open the Eyes of Every American.

Should America Prepare for War? See This Picture and Decide for Yourself.

SELLING ANGLES: "Phantom Raiders"

Prepare a large compo-board facsimile of one of the early "Nick Carter" pulp thrillers to be mounted above the marquee or as the lobby center-piece. Conduct a search for old "Nick Carter" novels and offer prizes and free admission to patrons who lend you one or more for lobby display. Give the marquee credits to Walter Pidgeon, and have the house artist design a layout of famous screen sleuths—Charlie Chan, Philo Vance and the like—with Nick Carter dominating the display.

CATCHLINES:

A Hidden Menace Endangering America . . . Uncovered by Nick Carter . . . The Greatest Man-Hunter of 'Em All.

Nerveless Nick Carter . . . Favorite of American Thrill Fiction . . . In Another Spine-Tingling Adventure.

SELLING ANGLES: "Safari"

A film set in an African locale calls for dressing the theatre attendants in khaki shorts, with helmets and the like. It will be easy to tie in with stores handling women's wear. Miss Carroll wears a half dozen different fashions in slack suits that will carry on where they left off last summer. There are effective stills from the story to attract interest. Exploitation of the leads is important. There is special art for Overman in the nature of caricatures. The women's angle should be played up thoroughly. A little effort should do the trick adequately.

CATCHLINES:

In the Heart of the Jungle She Found Her Heart's Desire.

A Thrilling Love Team in the Year's Great Jungle Thriller.

SELLING ANGLES: "Lucky Cisco Kid"

Plug the "lucky" phrase in the title by announcing that "The 'Lucky Cisco Kid' will bring you luck" on the outside of mailing pieces, with astrological horoscopes on the inside. Send a "Cisco Kid" in colorful caballero costume around town on horseback. Stills of Cesar Romero with his guitar can be planted in display windows of music stores. Tack up posters proclaiming that the "Lucky Cisco Kid" is "wanted."

CATCHLINES:

It's Bad News for Bad Men . . . As the Rogue of the Rio Grande Sweeps Recklessly Into Danger.

Friend of the Friendless . . . Whom Women Adored and Bad Men Feared . . . That's the Rollicking Rogue of the Rio Grande.

SELLING ANGLES: "Lillian Russell"

Sell Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda and Edward Arnold as the cast headliners. For street ballyhoo, dress a boy and girl in "Gay Nineties" attire and parade them around town on a tandem bicycle. Strive for the 1890 atmosphere in lobby decorations. Many "then and now" displays are suggested, with furniture, male and female fashions, hats, automobiles, etc., with various local dealers. Dress usherettes in big, plumed hats and gowns of the Lillian Russell period. See exchange for commercial tieups available.

CATCHLINES:

Lillian Russell . . . Loved by All Men . . . Envied by All Women . . . The American Theatre's Most Fascinating Figure.

The Stirring Story of the Fabulous Beauty Who Had Broadway at Her Feet for Three Generations.

SELLING ANGLES: "Brother Orchid"

Coming closely after "Dr. Ehrlich" this one will be quite an agreeable surprise. Audiences will have to be led up to it gradually, or they may fall right into the "Little Caesar" mood. It is Robinson's picture, but much credit goes to the backfield performers. The yarn is based on a "Collier's" short story by William Connell. The flower angle is worth looking into. Go to town with it in any event; it's big time entertainment for big time money.

CATCHLINES:

He Laughed, Loved and Searched His Way Across the World . . . Only to Find What He Wanted Was Nearby.

You've Had "Little Caesar" Now You'll Have "Little Johnny" Sarto, Class Hunter Extraordinary . . . He's Edward G. Robinson in an Outstanding Performance.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Way of All Flesh"

Give Akim Tamiroff an exploitation buildup in the starring role, hailing him in advertising and lobby easels as the screen's greatest character player. Hold a special matinee performance at special rates for the feminine trade for whom the picture will probably exert a greater appeal than for the men. Conduct a contest in which patrons review the picture, with prizes going to the best amateur criticism, which might be used in the newspaper advertising campaign.

"Riders of Pasco Basin," for the most part, is too talky. This is probably due to the ramifications of the story which tells of the attempted swindle of the ranchers of the locality by a loan shark. It seems he has an irrigation project which he is promoting among the gullible folk. That is, until Johnny Mack Brown begins to interfere with his scheming. Peaceful argument on the part of Brown fails to convince the settlers of the dirty deal they are heading into so he organizes a vigilante group to forestall activity on the part of the crooks. Much happens along murder, shooting and fighting lines, together with plenty of riding before Brown catches up to and corrals the escaping master minds responsible for the trouble. It's adequate western fare, but not quite true to tradition. Directed by Ray Taylor.

Jack Randall barges in and buys a piece of ranch land backed up against a mountain range on the border, a piece of property nobody seems to want and which is the gateway to flooding of Mexican cattle duty free into the U. S. His presence not being wanted by the illegal traffickers, thus sets the stage for this short story. It's not too active for a western, and could have done with more goings-on at the hands of Tom Gibson, the author, and Raymond K. Johnson, the director. Louise Stanley, real life frau of Randall, is his leading lady, with Frank La Rue and Glenn Strange most active sideman. Mistake to let Strange sing with his hawg-calling baritone, but it's supposed to be funny anyway. Fate seems fixed at moderation, both as kid and adult action pleaser.

Here is a satisfactory bundle of action entertainment that also has to its credit a good production background. Although none of the performances rise above the necessary level of conviction to put the story over with some semblance of realism, they do fill the bill. In this police drama, the audience will learn much of what goes on behind the closed doors of law and order from training school to uniform. Basically it concerns a young man, son of an inspector who is killed after he unearths evidence that will convict a gang of racketeers. The young man, seeking his father's murderers, gets into hot water with the authorities, his girl and his friends. But eventually he gets around to his purpose. It all works out in good style. Bill Elliott, up to now only a fair action house draw, should by this picture become more important as a box-office personality. The picture will take selling, because Elliott has amassed only fair popularity so far, hence it is to the interest of the exhibitor, Elliott, and both their futures, to get as many people in to see his latest effort with an eye to establishing him. He's a two-gun slinger, drafted by his state's governor, and he establishes an arm of the law by setting up a staff of rangers recruited from the gunmen in the state prison, payoff for their services to be their complete pardon. Possibilities of such a script were good, and both Director Joseph H. Lewis and Writer Charles Francis Royal made the most of it. Action is maintained throughout the picture, and it appears to have possibilities for better than average business if worked on.

James Newill, screen hero of the Laurie Yorke Erskine stories about Renfrew, the mountie, takes another northwest adventure in stride and streamlined crooks into the bastille in this picture. A scientist has perfected a power radio beam, which is able to nullify the mechanics of an airplane engine, and he's grabbed by an organized crime ring to prey on shipments of gold by air. Newill, with his mountie pal, Dave O'Brien, indulge in a fairly thrilling hunt, which is climaxed by Newill risking himself as a target to spot the destroying beam. Louise Stanley, the girl; Ted Adams, one of the principal crooks, and Dwight Frye, handler of the beam, make most of the things happen. Choice spotting will be the weekends, aim being for youthful consumption. Music is incidental, although Newill has fair pipes. Directed by Ralph Staub.

James Newill, Dave O'Brien, Louise Stanley, Ted Adams, Snub Pollard, Dwight Frye.

The talents of a Hitchcock would make "Hidden Menace" show up in black in the account books. As it is a fairly good story idea is treated with little imagination, is poorly performed by rather well-known players and the photography evidences need of an exposure meter. This is a story of love, hate and drama occurring among people who make up in Europe what is called variety. Here it is vaudeville and its requiem has been sung. The general trend of the story deals with the love of a magician, Otto Kruger, for a dancer, Gertrude Michael. The dancer loves an acrobat, John Clements. To thwart their love, Kruger uses a machine that renders a tightrope invisible just when the acrobat is about to risk his neck. Eventually, he is found out and the tangled romance is culminated.

Otto Kruger, Gertrude Michael, John Clements, Patrick Barr, Barbara Blair.

Five years ago Gaumont British produced and released this film as "Born for Glory." It details the personnel and ships of the English Navy and has for a story one which follows the usual service-patriotism pattern. The alert exhibitor will see it as an opportunity to draw patrons in by pointing up current news. The scenario offers a seaman who, single-handedly, brings about the demise of a German warship after he has been taken prisoner. There is plenty of seagoing action, but the one note that strikes the loudest, and with most effect, is that of man's inhumanity to man—clearly indicated when the hero shoots down a German sailor who had befriended him on shore. Obviously intended as propaganda, the production seems to defeat its purpose.

Betty Balfour, John Mills, Barry Mackay, Jimmy Hanley, Howard Marion-Crawford.

Apparently there is a dearth of new angles to prison film plots, so the producers of this item have rehashed a standard set of events and dished them out under the title of "Men Without Souls." For story it has John Litel, a new chaplain who comes to the prison to find conditions there quite justifiable for Barton MacLane's actions along riot lines. Then comes Glenn Ford who is jailed on a scheme of his own. He wants to avenge the killing of his father, a renegade banker, by a cruel guard. Ford is framed for the murder of the guard in question. He is tried and duly sentenced. Awaiting execution, Ford is saved by another attempted break by MacLane who confesses to the murder as he lies dying. All in all it's familiar, poorly acted and just a programmer.

John Litel, Barton MacLane, Rochelle Hudson, Don Beddoe, Cy Kendall.

This is early vintage Herbert Wilcox. Its chief players are Tullio Carminati and Lilli Palmer. The story is set in 1914 and concerns an Italian officer who marries an Austrian girl. Comes war, and the girl is outlawed by the people in her husband's town. Her brother appears as a spy and is killed. She runs away. Years later the officer, singing in night spots, meets his estranged wife and they reconciliate. At its best, it is pretty meagre stuff, poorly performed and seldom capable of holding interest. The supporting cast makes the action outlandish due to the prevalence of English diction from theatrical Austrians, Italians and Africans. The musical content is chiefly made up of Strauss waltzes and continental ditties d'amour.

Tullio Carminati, Lilli Palmer, John Garrick, Alice O'Day.

SELLING ANGLES: "I Take This Oath"

A lively campaign on police work and methods should accompany this one. Contact local authorities for their opinions on the general theme of the film. Plug the Irish sentimentality of the story in prepared releases to newspapers. Arrange to have handbills inserted in detective story magazines at the newsstands. A good arrangement of posters and stills in the lobby and in various neighborhood stores should prove attractive. Tie in with a shooting gallery—the film has a marksmanship angle.

CATCHLINES:

They Killed His Father . . . And He Had to Join the Force to Catch Them.

He Lost His Father, His Girl and Almost His Life When He Started to Get a Line on a Gang of Racketeers.

SELLING ANGLES: "Hidden Menace"

Where this one is played, the exhibitor might concentrate on garnering the first day business and then using his own judgment dependent upon audience reaction. For exploitation gags he could promote an amateur sleight-of-hand and magician contest. Emphasize in publicity the apparatus that causes the tightrope to disappear at the psychological moment. It's a phoney, of course, but will probably make good pseudo scientific copy. The film is an English production.

CATCHLINES:

He Couldn't Have Her So He Decided Nobody Else Would Get Her.

Life and Love in the Theatre World . . . With Death the Reward for Love.

SELLING ANGLES: "Suicide Legion"

If he has to play this one the exhibitor should employ the opportunity offered by the present state of international affairs. It is an airplane film for a brief period. Dig up that dummy plane from the cellar and tie it on the roof of the marquee. Have the propeller spinning. Blow up the attractive stills of Miss Palmer and an unidentified dancer, who gives out rather well. Get the music stores to plug Carminati records along with posters. Dress the doorman as an aviator. Made in England.

CATCHLINES:

Jack Randall is the best for marquee and ad faith as the lure for boxoffice, and outside of his record, the film has no hope of magnetism. Dusting off the usual western picture whoop-te-do for the lobby, offering a candy prize for early arrivals, and otherwise giving the flicker a shot in the arm, will bring the gate out average or better. By no means book it at any other time than the weekend, even if summer is coming on. Saturday spenders are best bets for it.

CATCHLINES:

Smugglers and Jack Randall, Unlike Oil and Water, Mix—and Plenty!

SELLING ANGLES: "Sky Bandits"

Renfrew series is pretty well established now, this being around the dozen mark for the mountie scampers in the north woods, so selling on the marquee and in the ads should emphasize Renfrew rather than any of the principals to generate most money effect at the boxoffice. Anything which may be dreamed up in the way of lobby novelties to attract youngsters will be found important to this film's success. Ads should recall to memory of potential patronage, the previous interesting adventures of Renfrew, planting the idea that a miss is a loss.

CATCHLINES:

Renfrew, Target and Bait in the Trap for Scientifically Armed Crime Ring, Has His Toughest Case!

SELLING ANGLES: "Men Without Souls"

The exhibitor will have to utilize the tried and tested methods of exploitation along penal film lines to put this one over with his patrons. Attempt to plant the prepared pressbook stories along with the theatre's advertising. Plug it as an expose of prison life, conditions and inmates. Post the lobby with action stills. Where there is unlimited telephone service have the operator call a list of patrons and deliver a spiel on the film. Get the local paper to assign a man to ask questions along Inquiring Reporter lines about the social acceptance of ex-convicts.

CATCHLINES:

Men Without Hope Battling a Man Without Fear.

SELLING ANGLES: "Riders of Pasco Basin"

For this one, look into the Johnny Mack Brown file and dig up the various exploitation aids which include a cartoon coloring contest for one shot insertion in newspapers; an action display showing Brown on a rearing horse, lifesize; stagecoach street ballyhoo; the reliable membership among youngsters in the Johnny Mack Brown Club; a letter throwaway. Also feature Bob Baker. Autographed photos of Baker and Brown will help.

CATCHLINES:

Battling Buddies . . . They Love the Same Girl . . . But They Unite When Trouble Comes.

SELLING ANGLES: "Man From Tumbleweeds"

Elliott, after lackadaisical start in westerns, finally appears to have the makings of a frontier hero for series pictures. He brings an unusual personality to the screen, having been formerly on some of the major lots in sophisticated roles. His histrionic knowledge, polished manner, and general delivery make him different in western ranks. Besides making much of him as a suddenly blooming western hope in ads and on marquee, every trick of the crowd-luring game should be tried to get him a major audience. He appeals to both kids and grown-ups, so one should not be passed up at the expense of the other.

CATCHLINES:

Wild Bill Saunders . . . He Blazed a Trail of Safety on the Frontier, Marked by Outlaw Dead.

There is a wealth of material on the British Navy in newspaper files and magazines that could profitably be dug up to aid in putting this one over. The title has little relation to the content. John Mills appeared in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips." That has potentialities. Consult the "Life" magazine story on the British Navy for exploitation tips, blowups and the like. Also bring up from the cellar the standard props that usually go with a maritime production but this time emphasize the martial note.

Advises Keeping Cool For Summer Business

CHICAGO—Exhibitors planning summer campaigns to attract patrons into cool theatres might listen to what Charles H. Ryan, who edits the Warner Exploitation Bulletin, has to say about it.

"Don't sell yourself the idea that the public does not want pictures in the summer . . . that's all bosh! Big business is done by the movies at summer resorts and generally these resorts are in small towns where theatres are usually small and stuffy.

"Keep your cashier cool. Use a small electric fan in the boxoffice to have her appear comfortable, for she is the first person your patrons meet. If she is cool she will help sell your cool theatre. Keep a few cut flowers in a vase in the cashier's booth and about the foyer and mezzanine. These can be promoted free of charge.

"Promote ferns, etc., to be used as hanging pieces from your canopy if this is at all feasible. They should be watered daily.

"Don't use 'hot' colors on your lobby cards. Avoid red shades, orange, etc. Don't forget green is the coolest of all colors, with blue the runnerup."

Co-op Ads for "Path"

HARTFORD—Co-op ads featured the campaign to sell "Primrose Path" here and in Meriden. Here Assistant Manager Sidney Kleper of the Palace tied up with a hairdresser on an ad, and in Meriden, William Scanlon, assistant manager, promoted a beauty shop co-op ad and a four-day classified contest in the Journal.

Display Scenes From New Films

HARTFORD—Manager Jack A. Simons, Loew-Poli, has installed a new lobby display at the theatre which shows scenes from forthcoming films.

Imprints Ads to Tell of Color

Des Moines—A suggestion exhibitors in small towns may find profitable to duplicate in marketing color pictures is made by Frank Rubel, formerly vice-president of Pioneer Theatre Corp., in the current issue of "News and Views," Technicolor publication.

Says Rubel: "In our regular newspaper ad we leave a space for the words 'In Technicolor.' As the papers come off the press, these words are stamped in by hand in red or any other color. This is a very simple operation for newspapers of less than 10,000 circulation."

Rubel reveals that advertising the color in so embellished films, always has enabled the theatres to "cash in."

NUGGETS

A RECENT charity ball held at the YWCA in Lexington, Ky., promoted by Wally Allen at Schine's Kentucky Theatre for the "Gone With the Wind" showing, and an impersonation contest of stars of the film aroused unusual interest, getting page one space in the daily papers. Confederate uniforms borrowed from the University of Kentucky were worn by the ushers.

To promote "Strange Cargo," Harold Sachse, manager of the Kiva at Slater, Mo., put out a Santa Claus on the street carrying a sign, "I have returned to Slater to see 'Strange Cargo' at the Kiva Theatre, Sunday and Monday."

Warner's Sheboygan in Sheboygan, Wis., promoted a full page cooperative newspaper advertisement to advertise "My Favorite Wife." Each of the eight merchants' advertisements contained one or more words with letters omitted. When found, they spelled the title of the flicker and the best 25 answers received free ducats to the Sheboygan.

For "It's a Date," William Wagner of the Booth at Independence, Kas., distributed 500 mimeographed throwaways inviting local high school girls to bring dates to see the picture after 8:30 the last night of the engagement. If the girl bought the tickets, her date was admitted free. The throwaways noted that it was Leap Year.

Civic, Patriotic Groups Aid 'Florian' in Reading

READING, PA.—Leading civic and patriotic organizations and school authorities cooperated with George Peters, manager of Loew's Colonial, in an effective campaign on "Florian."

A special screening was arranged for the review committee of the Reading motion picture forum, representing 85 affiliated women's clubs. The committee later sent out cards to the membership recommending the picture. Also attending were representatives of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, as well as heads of local camera clubs. The latter made pictures during the showing and the best shots were used in a lobby display.

Copies of the novel on which the picture is based were offered as prizes in an essay contest on the reign of Emperor Franz Joseph. A giant walking book, seven feet high, using two ushers inside, was sent through the main streets. Two different three-sheets were used as front and back covers of the book.

A classified ad contest offering prizes to readers of a local paper who could write the word "Florian" the most times on a postcard drew a surprising response. The winner wrote "Florian" more than 2,400 times on one side of a regular U. S. postcard.

Dog Revue Draws

PARSONS, KAS.—David Dallas presented a Canine Sports Revue in connection with a Tiny Tot Revue, with exceptional results. Knowing how highly most people regard their dogs, Dallas secured ten ladies who wore evening gowns to lead their dogs across the stage.

PRELUDE TO OVERSEATING?

JOHN LASTRUN takes his typewriter in hand again. This time, it's the Neely bill, by its own or any other name, that poses a problem. He has the floor now:

"While my own concern is primarily with the effect on me of a government victory in the anti-trust suit, a friend of mine who operates all three theatres in a suburban town, seems more concerned with the effects of the Neely bill, or bills like it on his operation.

"He seems to be satisfied with his present situation, which he is running profitably. To operate his three theatres, he requires almost all the major product produced and a good deal of the independent product. He recently asked me my opinion on what the Neely bill would do to his situation. He was concerned with the possibility of competition coming into his town if a Neely bill made product available to all comers.

"Right now, his three theatres have a ratio of one seat to eight people. He claims that this ratio is pretty close to the border line of overseating, according to the national average. Now, if a Neely bill permits other exhibitors to come into his town to compete with him for product, he contends that a situation of overseating will result, in consequence of which no one could possibly run the theatres profitably.

"I told him that I did not believe that it was the purpose of the Neely bill to encourage undisciplined competition, but it is his contention that, while the bill may not contemplate that, it would appear to be an inevitable result. I transmit this point of view to you because it is a new one on me and I am sure that there is more than one exhibitor in this country in this same position who would like an answer. Perhaps, there is some one among your readers who can put my friend's worries to rest, or perhaps his contention is a sound one and has probably pointed up a glaring hole in this impending legislation, or future bills like it."

Calling Abram F. Myers. And all other comers, for that matter.

INDUSTRY'S HISTORICAL BACKGROUND BARED AS ANTI-TRUST TRIAL ENTERS SECOND WEEK

Elmer Pearson, Former Pathe President, Is Initial Witness

By BILL ORNSTEIN

NEW YORK—As the all-industry suit enters its second week Monday, following opening statements by Thurman Arnold and Paul Williams, for the government, and Thomas D. Thacher, John W. Davis, Ralph S. Harris, William J. Donovan, Edward C. Raftery, Monroe Goldwater, Louis D. Frohlich and Joseph M. Proskauer, for the defense, Elmer Pearson, former president of Pathe prior to Joseph P. Kennedy's entrance into the picture, appeared as first government witness.

Pearson's testimony, along with that of George K. Spoor of Chicago, W. W. Hodkinson, I. E. Chadwick and T. L. Tally, the latter three from the coast, is for the purpose of giving Judge H. W. Goddard a general picture of the historical background of the industry. After these, and other witnesses who may be called on the same subject, conclude their testimony, the government intends to use the depositions of Adolph Zukor, Barney Balaban and several other leaders who have appeared for pre-trial examinations. Richard A. Rowland will not be called, it is learned.

Three Way Examinations

The examinations will be split three ways with Williams, Robert L. Wright and James V. Hayes handling interrogations for the government. Cross examination will be conducted by principal defense counsel, particularly where testimony bears on individual companies.

Among first exhibitor witnesses will be the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh group subpoenaed. According to government sources no lineup has yet been set. Meanwhile James Malloy of the department of justice has taken over the bulk of William P. Farnsworth's former duties, the latter having returned to private practice.

Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, may be called by the government to discuss hearings several years ago before the federal trade commission which he headed. While Williams intimidated this may be done, he has not given definite assurance of such a move. It is a foregone conclusion Col. H. A. Cole will be brought on from Dallas since he is one of the important complainants.

Declaring the Sherman Act was intended to prevent domination of any industry to such an extent that precluded competition and free enterprise among buyer and seller, Arnold charged the majors with exercising their "enormous power" but whether the power is exercised with humanitarian purpose or not, the power is there. If exercised, he added, it con-

Re-Birth of Anti-Trust Laws Here

New York—"The anti-trust law today is having a rebirth, a regeneration," Thurman Arnold stated in his opening remarks. "There is, for the first time in the history of the United States, a consistent public prosecution policy rather than 50 years of scattered precedents under a private prosecution policy.

"In those 50 years of scattered precedents, vacillating from one type of prosecution to another, they have created a certain thought around a purpose and intent of the anti-trust law, which I think justifies me in re-examining the general purpose of this suit.

"Everybody is asking why is the government prosecuting the movies at this point, and the impression might be gathered we had selected the movies out of some mere whim or caprice as a part of a general movement to free the channels of trade between the states. In addition to that, I think at the beginning of every case there is required a re-examination of the Sherman Act itself, because the Sherman Act is a different type of legislation than almost any law which we have on our books. It is not subject to narrow rules of construction. Indeed, as Justice Hughes has pointed out, it is subject to the type of interpretation that the constitutional provision is subject to and Justice Brandeis has referred to the act as a charter of economic freedom and the important attitude to take in the interpreting of the Sherman Act is to have clearly its purpose in mind.

"I think it may be aptly referred to as our economic common law—a general principle of industrial democracy which was passed to prevent the growing organization of the machine age from destroying industrial democracy and it was passed on the theory that political democracies die when industrial democracy dies."

After the First Round—

Time out for lunch as attorneys for both sides take advantage of the short recess. The top picture shows a group of defense counsel strolling through the park which runs through Foley Square. Left to right, Alvin J. Van Bergh of Proskauer, Rose & Paskus; Louis Phillips of Paramount's home office staff; John F. Caskey of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, and Robert W. Perkins, general counsel for Warner.

The bottom picture shows a government trio, namely James V. Hayes, Thurman Arnold and Paul Williams, as they exited from the federal court building.

LAST-MINUTE ATTEMPT TO SETTLE INDUSTRY SUIT FAILS IN CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON

Arnold Divorcement Stand Dashes Accord Hopes On Eve of Trial

WASHINGTON—A last minute attempt by Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's; George J. Schaefer, head of RKO, and Joseph Hazen, aide of Harry M. Warner, to effect a settlement of the all-industry suit failed four days before it started in New York.

The three industry leaders spent Decoration Day here conferring with Thurman Arnold, assistant to the attorney general, having been invited by a mutual friend.

It is understood from authoritative sources that Arnold insisted on going ahead with the suit and trying the issue of divorcement, although he is said to have informed the visiting group the trade practice plan developed by the department of commerce is "good and probably more than the government would get in a consent decree."

Griffith Counsel at the Industry Trial Opening

NEW YORK—Among first out-of-town counsel to visit the local anti-trust court proceedings were former Judge J. B. Dudley and his associate, Henry Griffin. Both are retained by the Griffith Brothers to defend the government anti-trust proceedings pending in Oklahoma City against the independent circuit.

Incidentally, major counsel has taken offices on the fourth floor at 346 Broadway, the old New York Life Insurance Bldg. This is a few blocks from the court house and serves as headquarters during the litigation.

"It's All Wet," Say Defendant Counsel

New York—Before trial got under way, Robert W. Perkins, Warner's chief counsel, sauntered over to the large map prepared by the justice department indicating the locations of producer-exhibitor defendants' theatre interests. Although the map measures something like five by seven feet, the thick concentration of defendants' theatres in certain areas apparently made it necessary to indicate holdings where there was more open space on the map.

Hence, the entire Philadelphia area where Warner is predominant is sketched slightly off the edge of the land area. In fact, it is well out into the Atlantic Ocean. When Perkins saw this he observed: "That's all right with us. Look at B&K. They're out in the middle of Lake Michigan."

Power Held by Majors Creates Supply Control, Says Arnold

stitutes a vertical type of control, the result of which is "enormous waste."

The mere existence of the power, Arnold continued, creates a control of supply so that a theatre is not free to buy from an alternative source.

Two points of view will probably be set forth during the trial, the assistant to the attorney general stated; that is the industry will say it is being disturbed in "perilous times," thereby curtailing profits, and that trade associations will be more concerned with seeing the industry receive the major share of the consumer dollar.

The government "is naturally opposed to the interests of any particular group," he went on to say. "The chief concern, as exemplified in the provisions of the anti-trust laws is the freedom of new enterprise coming in, the distribution to the consumer and the opportunity for an elastic form of business enterprise" that would act as "the great balance for an entire economy" representative of industry and consumer interests.

Continuing, "I would be the last to say the anti-trust laws fill the whole picture, but this much has come out, I think: In the last eight years the broad delegation of power authorizing the industry to act in general and according to its best interests in determining what is necessary" for its own benefits has been "completely unconstitutional."

Cites Congressional Power

The legislature alone has the power to raise groups to such levels on which they may compete, he said. "The legislature has the power to depart from the Sherman Act on the theory the Act continues to be our economic law," he said.

Combinations can be justified, he went on, if they will rehabilitate an industry and are necessary for financial ease, or even solace, of the particular groups within the industry. But the Madison oil case is the "best example," he said, that there was no justification for a combination on the ground the industry had been rehabilitated.

The legislature, in a particular sense, could step in and relieve any particular industry from the imposition of the effects of our broad common law—the anti-trust law. "In other words," Arnold declared, "I wish the court would look at the anti-trust law in this way: as a law which prevents private seizure of industrial power.

"The danger in this country is the private seizure of industrial power; it is subject to no checks and balances, subject to no election every four years. It is subject to no criticism and no attack because no one even knows about it. It is the private seizure of industrial power that we have in the motion picture case."

He then talked about the depression and the admitted laxity for enforcing anti-trust laws then. He added the Sherman Act is "the only guarantee for industrial democracy." That the government is charged with the responsibility of freeing the market in all industries, particularly where low income groups are affected, concluded his 60-minute talk.

Williams took three and a half hours for a review of the industry from peep shows to present day operations by major circuits. He charged defendants with controlling the channels which reach the markets, and controlling these the majors have the power to keep out competitors, which he claimed they do.

Block booking, priority and preferences, clearance and zoning, selectivity of product and major circuit acquisitions which he held afforded a division of the country into several groups highlighted his opening. He also touched on the development of First National and its franchise holders as a forerunner to Paramount's theatre invasion in the south, New England, Detroit and Ohio.

Entire circuits were allegedly gobbled up in the acquisition process, Williams intimated, Paramount not being satisfied to take individual theatres.

Pointing to a huge map in the court room, the prosecutor said according to the defendants' answers to the government interrogatories, Paramount was interested in 1,239 theatres in 41 states which amounted to 44.1 per cent of all affiliated theatres; Loew's had 139 theatres or 4.9 per cent; RKO, 122 theatres or 7.7 per cent; War-

Proskauer Gets In A Little By-Play

New York—In his opening statement for the government, Thurman Arnold got into the cartel system as practiced in Germany which, he said, was responsible for the rise of Hitler. Former Judge Thomas D. Thacher became annoyed with the analogy being made and asked the court to stop it.

Whereupon, former Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, who is known for his quick wit, arose to the occasion, to remark:

"I don't think Judge Thacher should take away the only strength the government has in its case."

Even presiding Judge Goddard joined in the laughter.

Notes to You from Red Kann

JACK TARVER, editor of the "Democrat," a perfectly sound name for a paper published in Toombs County, Ga., must have a sense of humor. He demonstrates it, insofar as this department is concerned, with and by his view of a film answering to the title of "Gone With the Wind."

Fun in this:

"There was a land of cotton fields and cavaliers called The Old South. A land of Lords and their Ladies, of Master and of Slaves. Look not for them hereabouts for they are no longer to be found. Male and Female, Black and White, Youth and Aged, they are all down to the picture show, seeing 'Gone With the Wind.'

"Katherine Scarlett O'Hara was our Shero. A winsome wench with a figger like a marble statue and a head as hard.

"Paw Was Thar"

"Gerald O'Hara was her pa. By nature, he was most animal like. Proud as a peacock, he roared like a lion and rode like a dog and pony show. After Sherman came he was crazy as a bedbug.

"Anyhow, Scarlett was in love with Ashley Wilkes, who was in love with his cousin, Melanie, who was in love with Ashley, and so they were married. (Ashley and Melanie, in case you're getting confused).

"This irritated Scarlett no end and so, in quick succession she married for spite and cash respectively, a couple of fellers whose names we didn't get. But then, neither did Scarlett for long.

"The other major characters were Rhett Butler, Belle Watling and a colored lady exactly like the one on the flapjack box. Rhett, who was somehow strangely reminiscent of Clark Gable, was a cross between Jesse James and Little Boy Blue.

"Uncle Lum considered playing Rhett, but turned it down when he found there wasn't anything but mint in the mint juleps.

"If Rhett had joined the Lost Cause in the second reel instead of after intermission, the Confederacy would have won the war.

"Belle Great Gal"

"And Belle. You'd have loved Belle. Everybody did. During the siege of Atlanta, only three places were running—Belle's place, Prissy's nose and the laundry that kept Rhett's white suits snow white.

"Melanie's baby arrived about the same time Sherman did. Both were equally welcome to Scarlett. It was, so far as our painstaking research has revealed, the first baby ever born in Technicolor.

"Anyway the South lost the war again in the picture. (What would yo' expect with a lot of Yankee producers?) and Scarlett married Rhett to get even with him. Their married life was just like setting in hell's fire and listening to the heavenly choir.

"Finally, after Melanie died, Scarlett realized that she didn't love Ashley, but Rhett. Scarlett was as changeable as a baby's underwear.

"However, Rhett had enough of her foolishness and when she told him, he says, 'Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn.'

"Neither, by this time, did the audience. They were glad to see the end, their own having become numbed and somewhat harder than a landlady's stare."

Always Something

One reason why production costs continue to soar toward the clouds, if they haven't entered the stratosphere by this time:

Wigs cost more. An RKO studio expert says so. Toupees once cost $90. Now it's $150. That, he supplies, is because most wigs used to be made in Czechoslovakia, currently an outpost for Hitler, and because professional hair growers are scarce since war broke out.

In other words, Hollywood continues to find all the answers.

Q. and A.

From Doris Blake's Love Answers in the New York "Daily News:"

"Dear Miss Blake: Should I allow a boy whom I like very much and have known quite a long time to put his arm around me in the movies? E.F.L."

The only objection we have is that it is considered bad form, as is any public exhibition of affection.

It's bad form all right, but it keeps those back seats in theatres around the country pretty well filled.

Come Again, Please?

Cleffer note from the Hollywood news columns in BOXOFFICE:

"Gone With the Wind" Policy for Warner Acer

NEW YORK—Gradwell L. Sears, sales manager for Warner, has set a "Gone With the Wind" policy for "All This and Heaven, Too." The first roadshow engagement at $2.20 top will open June 13 at Carthay Circle, Hollywood. Two special dates have been slated for the Earle, Philadelphia, opening June 14, and the Strand, Hartford, June 18.

The film will play a maximum of four and minimum of two performances a day with admissions scaled from 55 cents to 75 cents matinees and $1.10 evenings. W. G. Van Schmus has booked it into the Music Hall, the date undecided. Approximately $250,000 will be spent for advertising, it is stated.

Eastern Meet First Of Two for Warner

Contends He Overpaid Federal Income Tax

HOLLYWOOD—In a statement issued following his indictment by a New York federal grand jury on income tax charges, Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox, asserted he was confident that "when all the facts are finally determined full vindication will result."

His complete statement reads:

"Income tax problems are always complex and subject to dispute. The charges made against me are grossly unfair.

"Two of the best auditing firms in New York, Boyce, Hughes and Farrell, and Webster, Horne and Blanchard, after a recent audit, have advised me that for the years in question I have overpaid rather than underpaid my taxes. Mr. Hughes is the former president of the American Society of Certified Public Accountants and Mr. Webster is the chairman of the board of examiners of the New York state certified public accountants.

"The claim that I made a false statement to a government agent about another person's tax is not true.

"I am confident that when all the facts are finally determined full vindication will result."

Owen UA District Head; Dave Prince to RKO

NEW YORK — Harry L. Gold, UA vice-president and eastern sales manager, has appointed Hugh Owen district manager for the southern district to succeed Dave Prince, who resigned to become southeastern district manager for RKO. Owen has been Dallas branch manager.

"The way in which audiences receive 'Four Sons' is something I have never seen in 23 years of show business. It wrings their hearts with the force of its drama—men and women alike! Particularly the women . . . it's a picture they'll virtually rush their men to see!"

18 COLUMBIA TOP BRACKETERS AT PERCENTAGE DEALS TO BE DICTATED BY LOCAL SITUATIONS

In Groups of Two, Six And Ten, Montague Tells Meeting

CHICAGO—Columbia will have 18 top-bracket pictures to be offered in groups of two, six and ten at three different percentage arrangements, each to be worked out individually in local situations, Abe Montague, general sales manager, told the first of two regional sales meetings here at the Blackstone Hotel. The western field force attended the current meeting. Eastern branches convene Tuesday in Atlantic City.

The usual division formula applies to the other product, with one group of 12 and another group of 14, in addition to the 16 westerns and the short subjects announced in this issue.

Keynote by Jack Cohn

Jack Cohn, vice-president, opened the convention with a "heart-to-heart" talk with the sales representatives, telling them that the "film industry must remain sane in the face of the world's madness. We must learn to face the facts. We cannot ignore the events abroad. We must all learn that in these trying times we must stick to our job—that of making, selling, and exhibiting motion pictures—because that helps keep us sane in a world gone mad.

"Blondie" Continues

The "Blondie" series will continue on a more elaborate scale and the studio will offer in addition two other series built around popular characters, such as "Tillie the Toiler," adapted from the cartoon strip, and "Ellery Queen," based on the radio, book and magazine stories.

Among stars and featured players who will appear are Cary Grant, Jean Arthur, Irene Dunne, Loretta Young, Brian Aherne, Joan Bennett, Constance Bennett, Melvyn Douglas, Virginia Bruce, William Holden, Joe E. Brown, Rita Hayworth, Warren William, Boris Karloff, Peter Lorre, Joan Blondell, Randolph Scott, Jack Holt, Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms, Danny Mummert, Edith Fellows, Rochelle Hudson, Iris Meredith, Don Beddoe, Bruce Bennett, Stanley Brown, Richard Fiske, Glenn Ford, Eddie Laughton, Evelyn Young, John Tyrrell, Evelyn Keyes, Charles Starrett, Bill Elliott, Buck Jones, Sons of the Pioneers, Three Stooges, Charley Chase, Buster Keaton and Andy Clyde.

Among the producer-directors, associate producers and directors are Wesley Ruggles, George Stevens, John Stahl, Alexander Hall, Charles Vidor, John Brahm, Frank R. Strayer, Sidney Salkow, Nick Grinde, Del Lord, Jules White, William Perlberg, Samuel Bischoff, B. B. Kahane, Charles R. Rogers, Larry Darmour, B. P. Schulberg, Robert Sparks, Irving Briskin, Irving Starr, Ralph Cohn, Wallace MacDonald, Jack Pier, Leon Barsha, Hugh McCollum and Ralph Staub.

The 26 two-reelers consist of eight "Three Stooges" comedies and 18 All-Star Comedies featuring Charley Chase, Andy Clyde and Buster Keaton. The one-reelers are: 16 Color Rhapsodies in Technicolor; eight Columbia Phantasies cartoons; 12 Screen Snapshots; six "How's Your I. Q.?;" six Washington Parades; 12 World of Sports; six The New York Parade; 10 Columbia Tours; 10 Cinescopes and 10 Community Sings. In addition the company will continue to offer "Columbia Happy Hour Entertainments," a juvenile film service. The four serials are "White Eagle," "The Iron Claw," "The Return of the Spider" and "The Adventures of Daniel Boone."

The Lineup

Titles, casts and directors, as announced, are:

A Wesley Ruggles production.

"Royal Mail," starring Cary Grant.

"The First Woman Doctor," a John M. Stahl production, starring Loretta Young. Adapted to the screen by Lloyd C. Douglas and will be directed by Stahl.

"A Story of Old New Orleans," starring Jean Arthur. Louis Bromfield is writing the story. George Stevens will produce and direct.

"The Valorous Years," from the novel by A. J. Cronin. To be produced and directed by Wesley Ruggles.

"There They Go Again," presenting Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell.

"Jane Addams of Hull House," starring Irene Dunne.

"Legacy," from the novel by Charles Bonner, a story of a father's hopes and dreams for his five sons in a changing world.

"Our Wife," from the play by Lillian Day and Lyon Mearson, starring Jean Arthur and Melvyn Douglas. To be adapted by Sidney Buchman.

"The Vigilantes," with an all-star cast headed by William Holden, Virginia Bruce, Rita Hayworth and Warren William.

"This Thing Called Love," starring Loretta Young.

"And Now Goodbye," from the novel by James Hilton. To star Brian Aherne. Charles Vidor will direct.

"Three Girls About Town," starring Joan Bennett, Virginia Bruce and Constance Bennett.

"Senate Page Boys," by Lewis R. Foster.

"Bedtime Story," starring Melvyn Douglas and Constance Bennett and directed by Alexander Hall.

"We Dare Not Love," starring Brian Aherne and Joan Bennett and directed by Charles Vidor.

"Canal Zone," a drama of the Panama Canal.

New Cartoon Strip Series

"Tillie the Toiler," a new series of two pictures based on the famous cartoon strip.

"Ellery Queens," a new series of four pictures based on mystery adventures.

Three "Blondies" with Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake and Larry Simms.

Two starring Boris Karloff, one of which is "The Devil Said No."

"I Joined the Bund," an expose of a subversive organization.

"Chain Gang," a drama of a hunted man who battled a living death.

"The New Frontier," a drama of Amercia's empire in the north.

"Women Under 21," a story of youth in search of romance.

"Ocean Gold," a story of romance and adventure.

Two Jack Holt productions, as yet unnamed.

Eight Charles Starrett westerns—"West to Oregon," "Tombstone Trail," "Montana Pioneers," "Over the Great Divide," "The Cimarron Trail," "Carson City Bandit," "Westward Ho for Idaho," and "Outlaws of the Panhandle."

Eight Bill Elliott westerns—"Bad Man From Bisbee," "Beyond the Sacramento," "Wild Bill Hits the Trail," "Frontier Trouble Shooter," "North From the Lone Star," "The Tucson Wildcat," "Prairie Schooners" and "Across the Sierras."

Columbia Resources Into New Lineup to Offset War Loss

CHICAGO—All the company's resources are going into its new season's lineup in order to offset loss in volume caused by the war, Abe Montague, general sales manager, told the Columbia sales delegates meeting at the annual convention at the Hotel Blackstone.

Columbia intends to play a dominant role in the distribution world still available, Montague said. The future of the industry depends as much on the exhibitor as on the producer, the Columbia executive stated. He then added:

"With Columbia determined to put all its resources into its 1940-41 program, exhibitors in the United States must be made to realize the problem of production and distribution really is an exhibitor's problem as well. Without cooperation of the exhibitors, today representing 65 per cent of available distribution world, the battle for this needed increase in revenue would be a losing cause, regardless of resources and efforts of the producer.

JACK WARNER
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS

DEAR JACK: THANKS VERY MUCH FOR THE PRIVILEGE OF SEEING "ALL THIS AND HEAVEN TOO". WITHOUT MINCING WORDS I WANT TO GO ON RECORD THAT IT IS WITHOUT QUESTION ONE OF THE FINEST PICTURES I HAVE EVER SEEN. I HAVE NEVER BEEN MORE DEEPLY MOVED THAN BY THIS ALL-ABSORBING AND BEAUTIFUL LOVE STORY WHICH IS ENACTED SUPERBLY BY BETTE DAVIS AND CHARLES BOYER. IT IS A STORY THAT IN MY OPINION WILL APPEAL TO EVERY MAN AND WOMAN IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE AND IN THE LANGUAGE OF SHOWMEN IT IS A NATURAL, NOT ONLY BECAUSE IT IS BASED ON RACHEL FIELD'S BEST-SELLER, BUT BECAUSE YOU HAVE GIVEN IT SUCH BEAUTIFUL PRODUCTION. AN ATTRACTION OF THIS SORT CERTAINLY DESERVES SPECIAL TREATMENT AND DEFINITELY SHOULD BE ROAD-SHOWED EVERYWHERE. I AM VERY HAPPY TO HAVE THE PRIVILEGE OF THE WORLD PREMIERE AT OUR CARTHAY CIRCLE THEATRE. KINDEST REGARDS.

CHARLES P. SKOURAS

It is important to note that, with full exhibitor approbation, Warner Bros. will release

Industry Background Occupies Trial Start

ner, 507 theatres or 18 per cent; National Theatres had 517 units or 18.4 per cent.

Williams named most of the circuits acquired by the majors in recent years and stressed two New York individual theatre situations, one on Broadway and one in Brooklyn. He pointed to the Criterion on Broadway as being unable to secure first run major product until B. S. Moss made an operating deal with Loew's. Then, without naming the Patio in Brooklyn, he discussed the trouble which has been related in detail in the government's answers to the consolidated distributor interrogatories.

In his opening, Thacher declared the whole system and development of the industry has been the result of competition and not of conspiracy or monopoly. He referred to the U. S. Steel case where the Supreme Court held the company obtained a dominant position by competitive conditions, which was a natural result, and which was not a violation of the anti-trust laws.

Cites Competitive Efforts

"The competitive efforts of each distributor," he said, "is to supply the demand of licensing its pictures to each of the 17,000 theatres which has a weekly audience of 85,000,000 and for what prices each theatre will pay." He added grosses in foreign theatres annually totaled $100,000,000.

Each distributor is confronted with strenuous competition from other distributors, he contended. He said the average cost for exhibition is approximately $25 a day, and in many theatres this figure is as low as $10. In larger cities, first run fees range from $5,000 a week to $25,000, and more where the picture is unusual.

"The government is under a complete misconception on what this business is about," Thacher asserted. It is purely theatrical. It depends on public taste and fancy. It is a fancy business. Taste changes more rapidly than ladies' hats. There is no more speculative business than the motion picture.

Into Production

He then went into production, the copyright situation and competitive circumstances surrounding purchases of literary material. After which he narrowed the subject down to Paramount's own statistics on production, the cost of prints, black and white and color, and the open market for independent producers with ability and finances.

He cited David O. Selznick as an example of an independent producer who made the two outstanding hits of the year, "Gone With the Wind," which is being released through M-G-M, and "Rebecca," which UA is handling currently.

On talent loans, Thacher said "The government has alleged we have formulated a system of lending stars, sets and properties. This is entirely without foundation."

He and other defense counsel spent the balance of the week outlining what they intended to prove after the government completes its case. Each and every one denied a conspiracy or monopoly exists among them and generally touched upon the same highlights given by Thacher. With the exception of Columbia, United Artists and Universal, whose counsel held they could not be put in the same category with the theatre owning defendants, the lawyers stressed the competitive situations in the purchase and operation of theatres as well as other phases of the industry.

Integration Not Unlawful, Is Defense Theory of Majors

NEW YORK—The theory which defendants in the government suit expect to support by proof in seeking vindication is that integration is not unlawful, per se, and disintegration will tend directly to monopolization of exhibition by restoring conditions which existed before the process of inter-relations of production, distribution and exhibition began.

That such an approach will form the first line of defense was tipped off by former Judge Thomas D. Thacher, counsel for Paramount, in the opening presentation of his client's position in respect to the government's charges.

Contrary to the justice department's allegations of monopoly and restraint of trade, Thacher took the view existing methods of integration have brought into the market superior product, healthy and highly competitive units and to exclude such competition "on the complaint of other exhibitors would in itself restrain trade and violate" the Sherman Act.

In denying there are any agreements, combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade, as charged, Thacher observed: "The decree sought in this case would greatly prejudice public interest, for certainly in no case which has ever been presented under this (Sherman) act could it be said that the public has been so well served by such highly competitive efforts of those engaged in it."

Rivalry Breeds "Excellence"

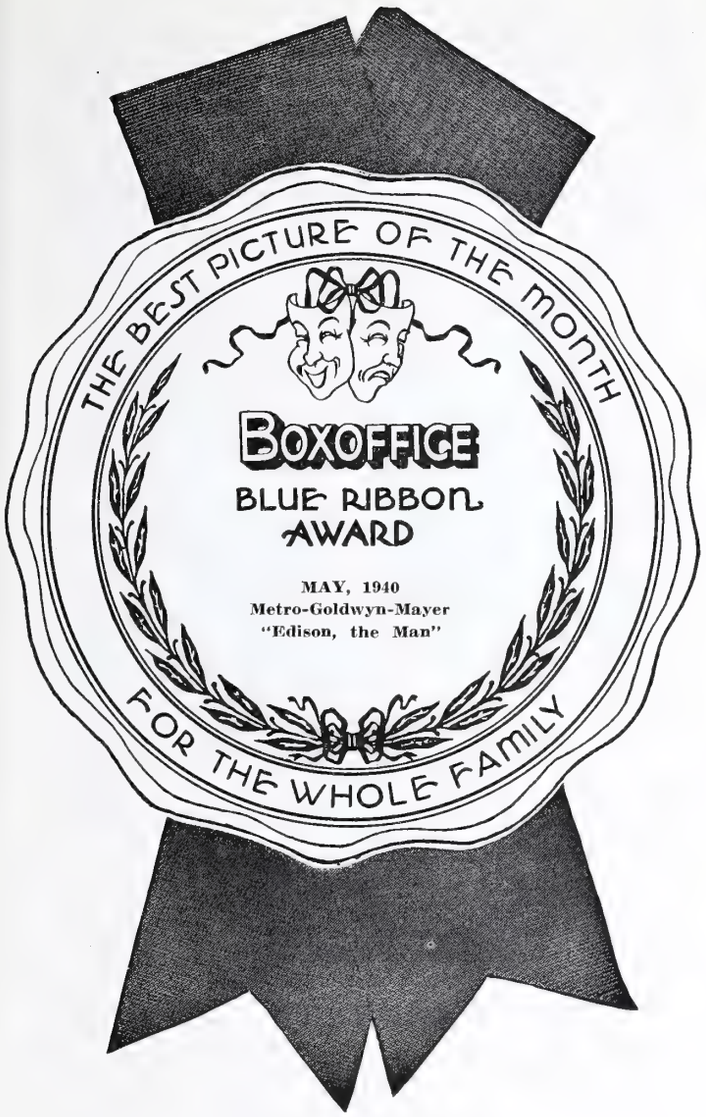
In the course of his remarks, which consumed more than four and a half hours, Thacher strove to establish that individual initiative and intense competition on part of the defendants were responsible for the high state of excellence attained in all industry branches. He traced Paramount's history from the days of the peep show to the present. He went out of his way to do this for the court's benefit, he said, because in the presentation of the government's case the previous day, prosecutor Paul Williams displayed a "complete misconception of what the business is all about."

Thacher took exception to constant "characterizations" by government counsel of the defendants as "they," as if "they acted as a unit or group." Nothing could be "more false," he said. "The effort in the government suit is to restrain freedom of trade and this itself is restraint."

In expressing the belief the very basis of the suit was "concocted to solve all individual situations" where discrimination is alleged "at one time," Thacher declared: "The very purpose and effort of this litigation is wrong. Here is where we have a fundamental disagreement with the government. You cannot generalize. There are so many elements, indeed, that business judgment, at best" is difficult.

"We submit," he continued, "that in the absence of agreement or conspiracy, the existence of which we deny, it is not the function of the court under any law in these United States to determine whether or not any exhibition contract discriminates fairly or unfairly in granting exclusive exhibition rights to one exhibitor as against another."

Paramount has $72,000,000 invested in 1,233 theatres in about 40 states, he said. Of these, there are only 400 where the company's interest exceeds 50 per cent control. "Paramount's revenue in the operation of theatres in which it is interested is quite as important, and I dare say, much more important in certain years than its net revenue from production and distribution. This is a dynamic business fact of more significance than any other inference that can be drawn from charts and government speculation."



"Chain no Stepchild"

The company's theatre organization, he said, is not "to be viewed as a stepchild, or as the government views it, as an instrument of monopoly. It is an honest-to-goodness business responsibility of tremendous importance . . . and is the concern of those responsible to so operate and manage these theatres they will render in their individual communities the highest form of public entertainment in competition with other theatres. Here again, in this suit, the government has never mentioned the public interest. It predicates this litigation upon theatres that meet that competition and upon that interest alone."

Thacher spent considerable time tracing the part Adolph Zukor played in formation of the company and its predecessors. From the beginning of the industry, based on Zukor's experience, "the tendency to develop chain theatres" was prevalent. And despite what Thacher termed the monopolies of the Motion Picture Patents Co. and First National, Zukor "broke" them through personal initiative and enterprise. This came about largely through theatre acquisitions, which the attorney asserted were "vitally and essentially necessary . . . not to monopolize the business but to prevent monopolies by others."

Thacher denied circuits divide the country between them in acquisition of theatres and in agreement not to build against each other. He conceded certain areas are primarily served by one of the defendant producer-exhibitors, but this came about as a result of competition for chains under prior ownership and unsuccessful bidders among the majors looked elsewhere for theatre outlets.

He made it plain to the court the findings of fact in actions brought by the Federal Trade Commission against Famous Players in 1926 and the Quittner case against the MPPDA and eight majors in 1939, both of which were dismissed, would play a vital part in defense of the current litigation.

This Award is given each month to the film receiving the highest number of votes by the members of the National Screen Council, whose selection is governed by outstanding merit and suitability of the film to whole-family entertainment. Members of the Council include over 200 motion picture editors of leading newspapers throughout the country, motion picture reviewing committee of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, and state motion picture chairmen of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Edison, the Man" Is May Blue Ribbon Award Winner

"Edison, the Man," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sequel to the film, "Young Tom Edison," has been selected by the National Screen Council as the outstanding picture released in May and winner of the BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award for that month.

"Edison, the Man" was produced by John W. Considine jr., who also produced "Young Tom Edison," which film won the Blue Ribbon Award badge of merit for March. Clarence Brown directed "Edison, the Man," while Spencer Tracy, cast in the starring role of Thomas Alva Edison, is supported by Rita Johnson, who plays the part of his wife and heads the supporting cast including Lynne Overman, Charles Coburn and Gene Lockhart. Spencer Tracy has won previous Awards for his performance in "San Francisco," which won the June, 1936, Award; "Captains Courageous" (June, 1937); "Boys Town" (Sept., 1938), and "Stanley and Livingstone" (Aug., 1939). Lynne Overman received a previous Blue Ribbon plaque for his performance in "Union Pacific" (May, 1939), and likewise Charles Coburn for his role as Lord Tyce in "Stanley and Livingstone."

A New Strategy in Theatre Formation

Time was when first-run picture theatres were planned largely, if not entirely, for a show-off and smaller houses weren't planned at all; but merely thrown together as a common shelter for the less demanding patrons of their day, when nothing seemed to matter much except a picture on the screen. Between these two persistent extremes and barely before it was too late came a new kind of theatre, a friendly, sociable, serviceable type of house in which people could relax completely and comfortably enjoy a reasonable amount of entertainment . . . For this new strategy in theatre construction and furnishing, the industry should be grateful to its architects. Their handiwork is helping to restore the movie-going habit by recruiting new patronage to the boxoffices of both new and modernized moving picture theatres. Their motive is House Appeal . . . . Theirs is a technique of thoroughness in theatre planning and thrift in the application of modern materials . . . . The Modern Theatre Planning Institute was formed to act in collaboration with leading theatre architects as a clearing house for ideas, inspiration and information on thoroughness and thrift in theatre construction and outfitting . . . . Among the major appointments of the new strategy is Decorative Arts, a simpler and more satisfying form of theatre embellishment that serves to set and sustain the mood for entertainment in the modern theatre. Our editors and collaborators are now at work preparing another interesting issue on modern theatre planning and appointments in which modern decorative arts and appliances will constitute the predominant theme. Again we can promise you ample reward for your reading time. Remember

HOUSE COMMITTEE RE-DRAFTING NEELY BILL; MAY ELIMINATE BLOCK BOOKING PROHIBITION

Synopsis Clause Seen Due for Revamping; No Time Limit

WASHINGTON—Determined to end, if possible, the many-year controversy over the selling practices of the major film companies, the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce will turn the Neely bill over to a subcommittee for redrafting in an effort to reach a compromise which will satisfy the public groups and independent exhibitors with a minimum of disturbance to the industry.

The action of the committee was authorized the day following the conclusion of the 17-day hearing, at a meeting at which the problem was briefly reviewed.

Suggestions that the measure be tabled did not meet with general acceptance because of the fear that if the bill was killed the committee next year would have again to go through the same grueling procedure, and the conclusion was reached that, if possible, the issue should be finally decided at this session.

At the same time, committee members are said to have been convinced that the bill, as passed by the Senate, was an unworkable piece of legislation.

Present Bill "Unworkable"

As a result of the discussion, the committee authorized Chairman Clarence F. Lea of California to appoint a subcommittee to make "such further study as may be necessary" and to report to the full committee at an "early date," but no time limit was set on its deliberations.

While the committee formally announced only that a subcommittee would study the measure, it was learned that the group will seek to rewrite the bill in such a way as to meet the main demands of all interests and that an effort will be made to pass the amended measure before adjournment.

It is understood the redrafted bill will eliminate the Neely prohibition against block booking on the ground, first, that that matter is now before the courts and will be judicially determined and, secondly, that the remainder of the bill will be so written as to make it unnecessary.

The major feature of the new measure, it was said, will be a provision that any exhibitor may cancel any picture because of moral, racial or religious undesirability, which also may provide for a general cancellation privilege.

The synopsis provision will either be dropped or replaced by a more flexible requirement under which producers will be required to identify the films they offer and, possibly, to furnish a general outline of the story.

Members of the committee believe that a cancellation-for-cause provision will meet the desires of the public groups.

Independent exhibitors are said to have evinced their satisfaction with any sort of legislation which will give them a cancellation privilege, and to have suggested a 10-15-20 per cent provision, on the ground that with adequate cancellation there can be no compulsory block booking.

The companies, it is hoped, will find the new bill no impediment to the continued operation along present lines.

The major drawback to final adoption of the measure this year was said to lie in the Senate, which might be unwilling to accept any great departure from the drastic provisions of the bill.

Proponents of the bill lost ground rapidly at the final session of the hearings through their failure to answer satisfactorily questions designed to explore the possibilities of solving the problems of the film industry by less drastic methods.

Neither Miss Katherine Lyford of the Motion Picture Research Council nor Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, who, with Mrs. Mary T. Bannerman of the National PTA, proffered rebuttal testimony, were able to convince members of the committee of the adequacy or responsiveness of their answers to questions.

The necessity for all members of the committee except Chairman Lea to be on the floor of the House prevented extensive examination of Myers, but Miss Lyford was grilled at length, her evasiveness alienating

Four-Way Slap at Neely Bill In Schaefer Memorandum

WASHINGTON—The memorandum filed by George J. Schaefer, president of RKO, against the Neely bill in its 16th day of hearings before the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce opposed the measure on four points. He contended it is:

1. Untimely, "because it would add vastly to the burdens of an industry gravely affected by the war and reeling from terrific blows received in the loss of important foreign markets."

2. Unnecessary, "because the public interest would not be affected by this bill. Whatever trade grievances are still to be settled in the industry—and there is much to be done—the record proves from the standpoint of public interest that more and more good pictures, fine pictures and even great pictures, are being produced and exhibited year after year, and that the moral tone of the screen has never been higher."

3. Unworkable, "in the sense that various sections of this bill would bring about chaos in the industry and substitute litigation for any possible arbitration or conciliation in the trade relation between buyer and seller."

4. Un-American in principle, "for it is clear that it would bring about pressure group censorship against the screen and give unfair advantage to the buyer as against the seller of film entertainment."

Supporting data for each of the four points constructed a memorandum of 34 pages, considerable detail on industry practices designed to bolster the arguments and citations of individual records apparently intended to impeach the testimony of certain Neely bill proponents.

"I have sought the best legal advice I could obtain but I found none that could guide me through the mazes of this bill," Schaefer's statement read. "They are as obscure as a black cat in a dark room on a dark night, when the cat isn't there. For the fact is that wholesale selling would be destroyed in the industry, unless the distributor desired to remain in constant jeopardy. The ambiguity, the vagueness, the uncertainty of these provisions (relating to single and group selling terms) would make it impossible for any distributor to know definitely whether any sort of discount or special price for quantity purchases would be in violation of the law."

On the un-American count, Schaefer indicted the bill "because censorship smells no better when it is called 'community selection.' At best, I hold, this bill would lead to a vicious and irresponsible form of local censorship—irresponsible because it would have no legal basis. This would stop in its tracks the artistic progress of the screen.

"At worst, it would lead to a plague of local censorship bills, because of the impracticability of community selection, which would work directly into the hands of the pressure group interests. In these days of Fifth Columns and Sixth Columns not all groups might be as honest or disinterested as I am willing to grant are some of those who have testified in favor of this bill. Honest but misled."

The RKO head contended further that "the whole idea of community selection, in which self-constituted groups apparently would do the selecting, would reverse the philosophy of unity and freedom by which our country has become great. It would substitute private pressure for public good."

Schaefer argued that the bill would create "little fuehrers in every community in the United States to tell the public what it could or could not see on the screen."

Neely Proponents Lose Ground Under Barrage of Questions

much of the sympathy which previous testimony had aroused and finally goading Representative Brown of Ohio into vocal exhibition of his exasperation.

"I am just as much interested in clean pictures as you are," he reminded the witness, "but I am trying to find some sensible, practical way of solving this problem."

Even the usually mild tempered Representative Patrick of Alabama, whose habit of propounding lengthy, involved and wandering questions, in which he and everybody else got lost, had aroused considerable amusement during the hearings, lost patience when Miss Lyford started looking over a magazine while he was asking a question and his "If you please, Ma'am" pleas for an answer got him no satisfaction.

With the witnesses refusing to give a "yes or no" answer, members of the committee got no definite response to questions such as those asked by Representative Brown as to whether passage of the bill would eliminate immoral pictures, Representative Youngdahl's suggestion that closer cooperation between the community and the exhibitor might bring about reform or Representative Hinshaw's request for specific information as to whether an exhibitor had ever been denied the right to cancel under the moral clause.

Miss Lyford told Congressman Brown that the bill would "eliminate the necessity of people seeing immoral pictures that do not want to see them," eliciting from the Congressman the observation that "I would like to believe that," and informed Youngdahl that cooperation would be good if the exhibitor were freed from block booking and could respond to community suggestions. She begged off from Representative Hinshaw's question on the ground that Myers would answer it in his testimony.

Not Civic Group Aim

She told Congressman Brown that a law providing for cancellation of pictures on moral, religious or racial grounds would not meet the aims of the public groups without the synopsis provision, but Myers, answering the same question, admitted it would help, although he contended the exhibitor should still have the right of selection.

Myers told Hinshaw that there had been no cases of refusal of rejections on moral grounds in the past five or six years simply because the majors had produced no pictures raising that question. However, he said, the current season has seen the release of several objectionable films, making the bill more necessary than ever before in case the companies refuse to accept rejections.

Myers approached the witness table armed with a 55-page statement and 18 exhibits. He had hardly started on the reading of his statement, however, when all except the chairman left for the House and after reading on a few minutes longer expressed pity for the patient but interested committee head and said he would put the full statement in the record so that the hearing might be concluded.

In his statement, the Allied official summarized the arguments for and against the bill and endeavored to show how all objections of opponents were unfounded or raised as a screen for their unwillingness to forego any of their present advantages.

He went over the testimony of practically every opposition witness, charging most of the exhibitors with more or less tenuous relations with the distributors and attacking the credibility of company officials.

He pointed out that this is the fourth hearing on block booking legislation, at all of which the same arguments have been made by substantially the same witnesses.

"After so many rehearsals by the same cast, and after so much propagandizing, it is not remarkable that so many of the arguments have degenerated into slogans to be uttered and repeated without much regard for their underlying significance," he commented.

Terms Cancellation Valueless

Myers contended that the cancellation privilege is valueless to the independent exhibitor and was adopted by the companies merely for use as an argument that with it there could be no compulsory block booking.

He declared that the arguments of company officials that they could not comply with the synopsis requirements was fallacious and that there were no unbearable burdens in the synopsis provision, the penalties of which, he contended, would be invoked only if a producer refused to furnish a synopsis or knowingly made any false statement therein.

Discussing objectionable pictures, he asserted that the films that have caused the most trouble are those "that have been derived from unwholesome books or plays," and held that "the public groups are best qualified to say of what advantage the bill will be to them in adapting film

Rental Hike Pleas An Allied Topic

Chicago—Organization of opposition to demands by distributors for additional domestic rentals to offset losses in the European market is expected to be a major Allied topic when the Allied national convenes at the Morrison Hotel here June 19.

Allied leaders have protested statements by producer and distributor executives asking longer runs and additional film rental money on the ground that film company income has been decreased sharply by the war.

It is learned that present plans anticipate this subject will occupy the opening day of the convention as a closed session.

IA Re-elects Browne And Other Officers

LOUISVILLE — Unanimous re-election of George E. Browne as head of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, and with him the slate of incumbent officers was voted by the assembled delegates at the 35th biennial IA convention at its Thursday session.

Returned to office with Browne are Harland Holmden of Cleveland, who from third vice-president becomes first, replacing the resigned John P. Nick of St. Louis; William Covert, Toronto, second vice-president; Richard F. Walsh, third; Floyd M. Billingsley, fourth; James J. Brennan, fifth; Roger M. Kennedy, sixth; and Felix Snow of Kansas City, seventh. Louis Krouse of Philadelphia was returned as general secretary-treasurer.

The convention closed Thursday after turning down, at least temporarily, a proposal that the organization take on a group insurance plan presented by the Union Labor Life Insurance Co. This provoked the liveliest session of the convention.

Thurman Arnold Lashed At Louisville Conclave

LOUISVILLE—Thurman Arnold, administration trust-buster who currently is prosecuting the all-industry suit in New York, came in for attack at the IATSE convention here as "a college professor who never tried an anti-trust case in his life" and "who came along in 1939 and tried to destroy organized labor."

The attack was launched by Joseph A. Padway, AFL general counsel, who said Arnold had held that jurisdictional strikes were illegal, adding that "the ignorance of the anti-trust division is colossal."

entertainment to community needs."

Although he contended that none of the grave disadvantages outlined by opponents would be suffered by independent exhibitors, Myers admitted that one of the witnesses opposing the bill was an Allied member operating under a franchise. Such witnesses, he said, are trying to perpetuate their local monopolies and, he conceded, might be adversely affected by the legislation.

"The policy of the association I represent is free and open competition," he explained. "That policy has been endorsed by the members at every board meeting and convention. But exhibitors cannot eat their cake and have it too. If free and open competition is desirable in production and distribution, it also is sound policy for exhibition. On this the overwhelming majority of Allied members have spoken."

Defends Constitutionality

Acting on a suggestion by Representative Wolverton of New Jersey last week that he would like to hear argument on the constitutionality of the proposed law, Myers devoted considerable attention to that phase of the question, contending that the Neely measure does not go beyond the point reached in other regulatory acts and expressing confidence that the courts would sustain it.

"I entertain no doubt concerning the constitutionality of the measure as a civil statute," he said. The only doubt raised concerns its validity as a penal statute and, he held, if its penal provisions are annulled, the act would not be impaired as a civil law.

Under any circumstances, he added, "I am confident that the attorney general will invoke the civil rather than the criminal remedy provided by the bill."

Austin Keough Testifies

At the final session for the opposition, Austin C. Keough, vice-president and general counsel of Paramount Pictures, impugning the testimony of proponent witnesses, suggested that the committee would have received more accurate information and a better picture of the situation had witnesses been sworn, and asserted that those who spoke for the independent exhibitors on questions of production would not have been accepted as "competent" witnesses in the New York trial which opened that day.

Keough attacked the attempted use by the proponents of the allegations in the all-industry suit as "proof" of the distributors' malpractices, charged that the department of justice had tried its case "in the newspapers" by releasing statements, sometimes inaccurate, about the suit, and expressed the hope that the New York trial "will put an end to the gossip and misrepresentation that has so long been indulged in."

Flatly contradicting many of the charges made by Allied and public group witnesses, he denied that chains, whether affiliated or not, are relieved of any of the requirements imposed upon independent exhibitors and asserted that in many instances the latter have a greater right of selectivity than do the affiliated houses.

Asserting there is nothing illegal or morally wrong with block booking, he declared that if an exhibitor is asked to take a high percentage of a company's output it is because if he doesn't a competitor will. "It all depends on local conditions," he contended.

The witness testified that the distributors who fix the minimum admission to be charged by exhibitors do so to protect their goodwill, and pointed out that Congress, in adopting the Miller-Tydings act, permitted a producer or distributor to fix resale prices on his commodities in states having fair-trade laws.

388 to 414 Films Promised by 10 Companies for 1940-41

NEW YORK—With Warner, last of the companies to hold its annual sales sessions and announce its new lineup, promises by the eight majors and two independents for 1940-41 indicate from 388 to 414 features, 98 westerns, 580 shorts and 12 serials. This compares with announcements by the same companies for the 1939-40 season of 398 to 418 features, 90 westerns, 589 shorts and the same amount of serials.

Although the new programs show from six to 12 features less than the current season, there are eight more westerns in view and nine less in the shorts division.

There is some question of all companies going through with releases contemplated for the current season. It is stated Paramount will deliver six less than originally announced. Some other distributors are said to be considering carrying over several pictures to next season's lineup.

Some sales executives, discussing new lineups announced, are inclined to believe the threat of the Neely Bill being passed by Congress, the all-industry suit and the loss of 30 to 40 per cent of foreign revenue because of the European crisis is bound to be reflected in the delivery of new pictures.

The tendency, according to one source, is to concentrate on as many "A" films as possible in the hope of getting all of the negative costs out of domestic sales. There is no room for "B" pictures, the sales executive states, because the drop in foreign returns does not make this type of film profitable any longer. Only the bigger pictures from which larger returns can result from this market are the answer to the present-day problem, the source believes.

Each of the companies in convention has stressed this angle, but whether their hopes will be manifested by production departments is something the next 12 months will tell. The indication is to make fewer and more expensive pictures.

If the various studios fulfill promises of increasing budgets and turning out less "B" pictures double features will vanish in due time, it is held.

There are executives who assert it is more likely all of the 98 westerns will be produced and delivered as promised, but insofar as the total number of other features are concerned considerable doubt is expressed whether the minimum of 388 will be made.

In addition to the status quo on serials, M-G-M, RKO, 20th-Fox and Universal will continue newsreels at the rate of two issues a week.

Sees "Blackmail" Club In Neely Measure

with such prices, he argued that "the right of the producer or distributor of a copyrighted article not sold but merely licensed, to fix the price at which the sublicensee may permit the public to enjoy the use of the copyrighted article, has never come under the condemnation of the Sherman Act."

Making a final analysis of the bill, Keough admitted there is nothing in it to forbid a distributor to sell blocks, but contended that the synopsis provision would make the selling of pictures other than singly too highly hazardous for the producers to take a chance of incurring the penalties of the measure.

He told the committee no synopsis could be provided before the picture was ready for distribution, and declared that even then the writing of one would be risky. He cited the synopsis of "Primrose Path," which Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, wrote after seeing the picture. Keough said he did not agree with Myers' synopsis, and pointed out that if the Allied representative had been a distributor and he an exhibitor such a disagreement might lead to a lawsuit under the bill.

Attacking the motives of the proponents, the Paramount official characterized the legislation as a possible opportunity for blackmail. He referred in this connection to the testimony of Henry R. Atkinson of Boston, one of the writers of the measure, who predicted that there would be few suits on "borderline" cases, because the companies would make adjustments rather than fight such cases.

Scores "Expense" Angle

"That tells the story," Keough declared. "The distributor will not get his contract performed and will not sue because it is too much trouble or too expensive, but will make adjustments. These, of course, will be dollars and cents adjustments. What an instrument for polite blackmail.

"So, as Mr. Freeman told you, if we have to make pictures under this bill, in self-defense we will have to complete them before we sell them. That is not impossible but it is highly impracticable.

"The cost of producing and marketing will go up and the exhibitor will not know from week to week what merchandise he will have in his theatre. Perhaps small, irresponsible producers and distributors will take this risk. I cannot imagine the responsible ones doing so. Under my advice my company would not."

Similarly, he said, the differential provisions of the pricing section would be impossible of conformity. No matter what discount was made for the purchase of pictures in blocks, an exhibitor failing to get as great a return as he expected would cry that he had been "coerced" into taking films he did not want.

Although he has been practicing law since 1914 and has had much experience with contracts, he told the committee "I could not tell the Paramount sales managers what they could do and could not do to avoid violating this session."

No Dull Moments in "Ghost Breakers"

Hollywood—There is never a dull moment in Paramount's "The Ghost Breakers."

When the customers aren't shivering, they'll be roaring, and between chills and laughs they are sure to have the time of their lives seeing this smart-cracking, fast moving, interest commanding comedy-mystery.

The screenplay is a masterpiece of brittle dialogue and priceless gag situations. The production is solidly mounted and it is played with a delightful tongue-in-cheek interpretation by an excellent cast topped by Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard. And George Marshall's able direction knits the various threads of the Arthur Hornblow jr. production into a piece of topnotch entertainment.—SPEAR.

Trendle Sues in a Move To Operate in Detroit

NEW YORK—George W. Trendle has filed suit in federal court against Paramount and John H. King, known as John Kunsky, seeking elimination of an agreement he signed with Kunsky in 1929 when their theatre interests in Detroit were sold to Paramount. At the time he and Kunsky agreed not to re-enter the theatre business for 50 years, within a 150 mile radius of Detroit.

Trendle now seeks to open theatres in Detroit, and Paramount is holding him to the agreement. He seeks two things: Either nullification of the agreement on the ground it imposes an unreasonable restraint on interstate trade, or for the court to set non-competitive territorial limits as to each Paramount theatre, so that he can operate, but not in competition with Paramount. Kunsky is named as a defendant, although no relief is sought against him because he refuses to join as a plaintiff.

Columbia European Staff Holding On

NEW YORK—Columbia's European staff, although under great handicaps, continues to function, according to Jack Segal, assistant to Foreign Manager J. A. McConville. Segal recently returned from a six-month trip abroad.

He reports some revenue is coming from the Balkans, that Turkey and Syria are reflecting a healthy business at the box-office, and business has started again in Finland. A reason for the betterment in Turkey and Syria is the presence of French troops, Segal said.

Columbia, by purchasing a Spanish-made picture for Latin American distribution, has received a permit to distribute ten pictures in Spain, Segal revealed. He said Spain is another situation where business is good in local currency but the companies are prohibited from withdrawing any of the revenue.

While in France, Segal opened branches in Lyon and Bordeaux. The French picture, "Untel Pere et Fils," which Columbia produced jointly with Transcontinental Films, will arrive here shortly. It is a story of three generations of a French family at war and features Raimu, Louis Jouvet and Michel Morgan. Julien Duvivier directed.

He said until he left three weeks ago there were still about eight French studios in production. Columbia has another picture in production in England, Segal stated, and from latest advices work is going on.

Baxter and Ratoff Signed For Columbia's "Legacy"

HOLLYWOOD—Warner Baxter will star in and Gregory Ratoff will direct "Legacy" for Columbia under an arrangement completed by Robert Sherwood, who will produce. Financing and releasing contracts between Sherwood and Columbia were handled for Sherwood by William B. Jaffe, New York attorney, who is a pioneer in independent production.

INDUSTRY SUIT HALTED; CONSENT DECREE CONFERENCE IN PROGRESS

New York—A halt to the industry suit came Friday just as the government prepared to examine its first witness with counsel for both sides conferring with commerce department representatives here from Washington to draft a consent decree based on proposals submitted by the commerce department to the department of justice several weeks ago and rejected by the latter.

The elimination of block booking provided in the proposals and the theatre divorcement issue maintain their status quo, it is reported, while the decree will be given a test trial.

The sessions to fully formulate the decree continued over the weekend with court hearings postponed until Wednesday. The understanding is that week-to-week adjournments will be made until the final decree is agreed upon. Allied, it is reported, will be given the opportunity of expressing its stand upon the settlement plan. The decree is expected to be signed in the next 30 days.

A dissonant note in the proceedings was struck when counsel for United Artists, Universal and Columbia—companies not called into the sudden conference as heretofore—expressed irritation over the discourtesy.

If the theatre-owning majors sign, the three other companies named will demand going ahead unless the government dismisses the suit against them as non-parties to the decree.

The swift eventuality has still left vague which side started the latest negotiations, each claiming the other did. One major attorney stated, "You can be sure that if the decree is signed it will be equivalent to victory for the defendants."

Loew May Cut Its Own Clearance

NEW YORK—Talk, purely informal in nature so far, has been going on between interests involved to the effect Loew's may cut down the amount of clearance between runs in its own theatres in an effort to speed up availabilities for subsequent independent theatres.

The circuit's stagger system has been a source of complaint from independents for years, but the contention of Loew executives is that the circuit pays enormous prices for film which entitles it to the clearance it enjoys. In comparison, it is pointed out, subsequents following RKO get availabilities seven days after this circuit is through with pictures. A day-and-date policy prevails in the majority of the RKO houses.

Hence, it is explained, where Loew and RKO have splits, the independent exhibitor following these circuits will get a quicker release after RKO than after Loew.

Although some interests who have heard of the talks going on are pessimistic over the outcome, any change in Loew clearances between its own theatres would be welcome, it is stated.

"U" Sees Self-Sufficiency Achieved by September

NEW YORK—By September, 1940, Universal will have achieved self sufficiency, it is stated in a second quarterly report which shows a net profit of $920,370 comparing with $581,587 for the similar quarter last year. The difference between the two quarters is $348,783 to the good this year.

Earnings for the first half of the current fiscal year amounted to $1,381,002 compared to $581,587 for the indentical period last year. The company's financial position continues to improve with a net reduction of $1,381,745 in bank loans and an increase of $1,163,257 in net working capital. As a result of uncertainties caused by foreign developments, the management has increased the amortization reserve of $5,000 to $8,000 a week retroactive to the beginning of the current fiscal year.

Skouras Warns Industry to Snap Out of Its "Lethargy"

By DAVE GOLDING

NEW YORK—In a sharp warning addressed to the industry, Spyros Skouras, head of National Theatres, urged that something be done about the state of "lethargy and apathy" into which it has fallen or "in a year about half of us will be out of jobs."

Speaking at an AMPA luncheon, Skouras stated every company faces the prospect of going into the red in another year with 75 per cent of the foreign markets gone.

As a remedy to make this market self-sustaining, Skouras advocated increased admission rentals. He pointed out in 1925 to 1927 approximately 2,500 theatres charged over 50 cents admission. Today, said Skouras, approximately 140 theatres charge over 40 cents.

"If those 2,500 first-run theatres which, according to L. Jack Schlaifer (UA's western sales manager) represent about 70 per cent of the film rentals, would raise admissions 25 per cent we would make up losses suffered abroad," he claimed.

Skouras also said he thought a committee composed of advertising and publicity heads could get together once monthly to discuss jointly the industry's problems and suggest means of combating them.

"Cutting budgets, reducing salaries and discharging employes is not the solution," Skouras maintained. "Let us be an industry and not small people."

Criticizing "fifth columnists" within the industry, Skouras declared what "we suffer from most today is lack of confidence." He urged closer cooperation among all branches and less destructive criticism.

"Let us not behave like members of the English parliament during the Chamberlain regime," was the way he described the present muddling of some critics.

In describing another industry ailment, the double bill, Skouras said he abhorred the present system of double bills and giveaways. Yet the exhibitor is forced to resort to giveaways in addition to presenting two features. "What can he do?" Skouras asked, "when the studios do not supply enough meritorious attractions to keep the place filled with patrons. That is why the exhibitor looks for other inducements."

New York has not furnished any encouragement to Hollywood because of European losses and litigation, he added. Continuing, Skouras declared stage shows would eliminate duals and giveaways and described how headliners in 1925 asked $2,500; today top talent asks about $7,500. "Stage shows have eliminated themselves by high expenditures," he explained.

Burden of Proof on Gov't, Says Defense

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—As major attorneys completed the first phase in the trial of the government suit it became increasingly apparent with the conclusion of their opening statements on the issues involved that the department of justice will have a difficult time proving its case against Columbia, UA and Universal, at least.

As a result of a direct question put to Paul Williams, prosecutor, by Judge Goddard opinion among defense attorneys veers to the belief that theatre divorcement will be the principal issue. And as long as the three smaller defendants do not operate or hold interests in theatres it may be their anticipated moves for dismissal may be successful.

Defines a Limit

After Louis D. Frohlich, representing Columbia, concluded his remarks Judge Goddard asked Williams if the government takes the position it is right for the defendants to produce and distribute but are to be denied the privilege of acquiring theatres. Williams said the government takes the position "the very limit would be to exhibit solely his own product," because the exhibition of other majors' product tends to monopoly.

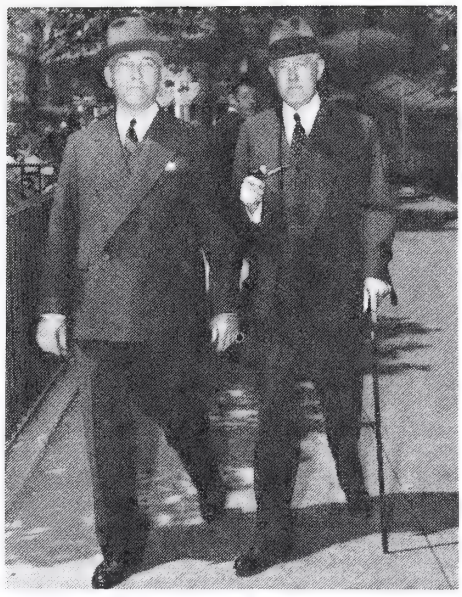
The court repeated the question and added, "Does it violate the law if he allows others to exhibit?" Williams answered saying that as soon as producers go into competition with their own customers without equal bargaining rights to independents, thus establishing a system of preferential rights, it is tantamount to inequality.

Nothing more was said about this in court, but in private discussion defense counsel displayed confidence Judge Goddard has, in a short time, hit upon the complexity of what the government is aiming at in its action.

Cites "Independence"

John W. Davis, representing Loew's, based his opening almost solely on what he termed the "independence" his client has shown in all branches of industry activity from a "humble" beginning to the present. As did his colleagues, Davis stressed the competition that exists and has always existed between the defendants in refutation of the government's charges of combinations and monopolies. In fact, he said, as contrasted to other defendants who were originally producers and then integrated with exhibition, Loew's "sole conduct" in 1919 was exhibition, and that it started production "for purely defensive reasons." In fact, he added, the acquisition of Metro Pictures Corp. was not a success until it later merged with Samuel Goldwyn. And the subsequent acquisition of about 150 theatres, of which 73 are in the metropolitan area, was motivated by a purely commercial consideration.

In the course of his historical recitation, Davis took exception to the government's charges of waste that attend integration by citing the fact that although it cost Loew's an average of $146,000 to produce a picture in 1924, and this rose to an average of $865,000 in 1939, it is "not wasteful" from a corporation point of view in consideration of an average net profit of $9,000,000 over the past few years.



The noted attorney took a swipe at the government's contention that to break up the companies would insure the return of equality when he cited an increase in M-G-M's accounts from 7,142 in the 1931-32 season to 11,193 for the current year. "It is a curious conspiracy," was his icy observation, "that should find one defendant an unquestioned success and an alleged co-conspirator finds the road rough and rocky."

Davis issued flat denials of exclusion, priority and preferential treatment to defendants, monopolization of star talents and asserted that in every situation out-of-town, 16 altogether, where Loew has theatres, other defendants also operate. The latter remark was to refute allegations the majors divided the country among them.

Cannot Assume "Conspiracy"

He asked the court not to assume there is a false and foul conspiracy afoot because of complaints over trade practices, which he termed a "natural growth of the industry—many are an economic necessity." Many trade practices, he added, are in existence because "experience proved it was the way to carry on the business . . . The mere coincidence of conduct is not enough . . . Monopolies cannot be proven by totaling each individual company's business for an artificial aggregate; by the addition of independent enterprise . . . The integration of business enterprise cannot be a violation of art.

"The Sherman act does not say 'so much business, no more; such and such a business, no other," he said. "The responsibility of each defendant for its own actions is separate, not joined."

Time Off—

As they stroll back from lunch through Foley Square Park, Ralph S. Harris of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey and John W. Davis of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed are caught by BOXOFFICE cameraman. This was between the opening day sessions.

Capacity to Produce Held Not a Monopoly

NEW YORK—The fact that eight separate and distinct companies may have the capacity to monopolize production does not condemn them of violating the anti-trust laws, in the opinion of Ralph S. Harris, representing 20th Century-Fox and National Theatres in the government suit.

From the outset of his opening, Harris sought to establish the government could not prove monopoly in the shoe industry, for example, by the simple expedient of naming as defendants in an anti-trust suit enough shoe manufacturing companies whose production would constitute a large percentage of the country's output, and alleging simply that they had the capacity to monopolize and thus must be held guilty.

Denies Circuit "Accord"

Harris stressed the fact the original Fox company has been an integrated organization from its inception, although the government seeks to charge the present management with alleged abuses antedating by many years the time when they took office. "Certainly," he observed, "there can be no contention this so-called integration came about as the result of any combination, conspiracy or confederation. Rather, it resulted from that essential and normal relationship which existed and still exists between the three branches of the industry."

Insofar as 20th-Fox is concerned, he expressed surprise that the government "insists" in naming National, in which the former owns but 42 per cent stock. Of the government charge that producer-exhibitor defendants, as part of the conspiracy, do not invade the territory which another operates, Harris said: "This charge is as untrue as it is naive." Theatre acquisitions, he added, "came about not by agreement, not by division of territory, but because in the first instance, in a period of unlimited, untrammeled, open competition, one or another of these defendants happened to be a successful bidder against his competitors for the particular circuit."

94 Per Cent From Majors

Harris saw nothing "strange or unusual or illegal" about the government charge that about 94 per cent of films shown in National's first run houses from 1934 to 1937 came from the majors. "The government itself alleges these eight companies produce the best pictures and are in a position to furnish a constant supply of product." He characterized as "absurd and fantastic" the allegation inferred by Paul Williams the majors limit, by agreement, the number of outstanding pictures produced each year.

Answering the allegation film rentals charged exhibitors are "unconscionable and discriminatory," Harris observed: "Those harsh adjectives involve a presumption that there is some standard of fairness in film rental. This does not exist in fact or in law. Film rental is purely a matter of negotiation. It just happens in this case that the government has adopted the buyer complex."

Frohlich Claims Government Seeks to Create a Monopoly

NEW YORK—Columbia is "the little fellow that has come along over the years, held its head up and survived," declared Louis D. Frohlich, its counsel in the government suit. Expanding on this premise, he added: "Success should not be held a violation of the Sherman Act. It would be a calamity to the country at large to throw the industry back to the old days."

The attorney castigated government efforts to abolish block booking. By so doing, large companies with ample financial resources would have no difficulty in following such a course, if it became law, "and do it profitably," but Columbia "and all other small and independent producers and distributors would go out of business. The government wants to create a monopoly and help those on top. Block booking is a healthy and necessary thing; it was demanded by exhibitors from the very first days."

Frohlich told of hardships encountered by the Cohn Brothers in building up their business. During every phase of operations, he said, their efforts were illustrative of independent ability, ingenuity and enterprise and was without taint of combination or conspiracy with other defendants. That the company maintains a spirit of independence is reflected, he argued, in the 90 films of independent producers released in the past ten years. He denied Columbia is a major producer "in any sense of the word." If it is a defendant on the theory it is a major, is Columbia to be penalized by the government for its production or distribution? he asked. The company has no theatres.

If, as the government alleges, there is conspiracy among the defendants to control production facilities—such as exchanging talent and technicians—he was at a loss to reconcile the incident here related:

Two years ago the company paid $200,000 for the rights of "You Can't Take It With You." There was "fierce and ruinous competition" for the property. "Imagine," he said sharply, "eight conspirators, tied together, permitting a playwright to obtain from them $200,000. That was a condition of art—not monopoly." He also cited the fact that in the five years before the suit was filed Columbia loaned 35 players and eight technicians to major producers, but loaned 52 players and eight technicians to independent producers.

Frohlich scored another point when he declared Columbia, in many instances, sells away from affiliated exhibitors, in denying there is a monopoly in exhibition between the defendants. "If such a monopoly existed," he asserted, "Columbia, as a party to that monopoly, would never have been permitted to sell away from affiliated theatres."

2 Lawyers Waive Opening Talks

New York—Of all defense counsel, only two waived openings in the all-industry suit. They are Col. William (Wild Bill) Donovan, representing RKO, who told the court he could add little to what other attorneys had said, and Jerome Strumpf, representing KAO, who made a short statement to the effect the company is a separate entity from RKO.

Waive Disqualification Rights Against Goddard

NEW YORK—Although Judge Goddard's wife owns the real estate on which the Trenton, Lynchburg, Va., stands, both the government and all distributors waived their rights to disqualify the judge. J. B. Trent, who opened the 1,100-seat theatre in 1911 and operated until 1930, had complained about Paramount coming into the town and allegedly taking all major product except Warner, a letter from the former exhibitor and introduced into the record, said in part "if ever there was a holdup game it exists in the film business."

After entering the town with a new theatre, Paramount subsequently took over the four other theatres, according to the Trent letter. The exhibitor made a deal with Warner to operate the house and Warner later turned it over to Paramount, Trent stated.

Attorneys for both sides had waived disqualification in chambers some weeks ago, but the new development of Trent being a complainant to the government came up after the private session and had to be disposed of before the all-industry suit started.

Harry Hummel to "U"

NEW YORK—Harry Hummel, former New Jersey manager for Warner, has joined the Big U Exchange as salesman for that territory. Phil Winnick, New Jersey salesman, is now a booker, and Sam (Bob) Finkel, booker, has resigned.

Raftery Raps Myers As Clique Leader

NEW YORK—Abram F. Myers "has been the active head of the cliques against the best interests of this industry," declared Edward C. Raftery, counsel for UA and Universal, in laying the government's antitrust suit against the majors on the doorstep of the Allied leader. In his opening before Judge Goddard, Raftery sought to prove his point when he declared Myers had been in the employ of the government and in charge of the Federal Trade Commission hearings seeking to alleviate trade practice complaints in 1927 and immediately stepped over to the other side by taking a post as general counsel for Allied. The FTC post paid $7,500 a year, Raftery asserted, whereas Allied is reputedly paying $52,000 annually.

Speaking for Universal, the attorney declared it has no theatres and no affiliation with other defendants in production or distribution. The company is mentioned so infrequently in the government's petition, he said, he debated making an opening or asking a dismissal. As to the charge Universal is a "reluctant participant" in alleged conspiracy, Raftery declared the company has more selective contracts with independent exhibitors than with affiliated theatres.

In respect to UA, the company's history disproves every government charge of independence in production, he said. As for distribution, UA does not engage in block booking, seeks the highest terms and when these are not forthcoming it has repeatedly hired high school auditoriums and rented vacant lots to show its product solely to maintain its independence. The period referred to was before sound. In selling its product, to refute conspiracy with the other defendants, UA "sells where we can get the most money."

The same minority groups that have incited the government suit, he said, are the same ones that were never willing to assume risks in exhibition, fought UA's selling methods and are responsible for the present methods of block booking and percentage deals.

Sherman Couldn't Pass on This Act

New York—John W. Davis, representing Loew, was reciting for the court's benefit the early beginnings of the late Marcus Loew. At all times he sought to stress the independent endeavor of Loew as contrasted to charges of combinations and conspiracies. During his recital, however, he admitted Loew and Adolph Zukor were partners for a short time.

Less the court get an impression this affiliation had any bearing on the present status of the two companies—Loew and Paramount—Davis observed: "They parted to take separate paths after a short time. However, the son of Loew married the daughter of Zukor, but this is not a circumstance of which the Sherman Act takes any note."

The Name Sounded Familiar to Judge

New York—The Cohn brothers had a tough time getting where they are, Louis D. Frohlich, representing the company, was telling Judge Henry W. Goddard. With the advent of sound in 1928, which "changed the industry from a business to art in mass production," the brothers were faced with "sink or swim," he said. So they sought a large sum of cash to open a system of exchanges.

In magnificent tones of understatement, Frohlich looked up at the bench and said: "They secured $1,500,000 to open these exchanges. They got the money from Goddard & Co. They were reputable bankers." The judge led the largest round of laughs heard in the court since the trial opened.

Proskauer Challenges Charge of Monopoly

NEW YORK—With all the court generalship at his command, Joseph M. Proskauer, representing Warner in the government suit, tossed challenges left and right at the prosecution in defiance of its allegations of monopoly, combinations and conspiracy in this "highfalutin' term the government calls vertical integration."

The former judge lost no time getting on the record his opinion Warner theatre acquisitions were "born in trade warfare, having no more to do with carving up the country than with the composition of the moon." His client either "had to enter the theatre business or retire to a subordinate position." This, he contended, was due to the advent of sound, which the Warners themselves pioneered, because they were forced with getting back, through exhibition of sound pictures, the money they expended in its experimentation.

He scoffed at the charge Warner is part of a monopoly in production, stating it produced but 60 of the 554 pictures released in 1936-37. "And it must be a shock to the court," he boomed, "that the five majors released only 274 of the 604 pictures produced that year, 51 of which were made for them by independent producers." The potential competition in the industry "prevents a monopoly in production—there is no such power—it could not be."

"Not Based on Others"

Offering a maze of statistics, Proskauer put on the record respective percentages of business done between the Warner distributing arm and affiliated circuits, as well as their product bought by the Warner circuit to demonstrate "there is no backscratching." His client's selling, he said, "is on a basis of prices and conditions wholly irrespective of what we buy from other producers."

He challenged the government to show the "slightest relationship through which conspiracy could be inferred through purchases, sales or any variations in our business dealings with any one company. You cannot spell out of purchase and sale any pattern which gives basis for suggestion that there is an agreement we buy or sell depending on what the other defendants buy from or sell to us."

The "chief sufferers," should the government prevail in its suit, "would not only be the defendants but the complainants," Proskauer said. This is his theory: Producers, if divested of their theatres with at least a partial rental guarantee of their production investment gone, could not afford to produce $2,000,000 pictures. They would be up against a monopoly when they went into small situations to sell their product because, for example, the two exhibitors in those situations would "stand together" and say: "'We won't pay your price'." The only defense to this, Proskauer added, is for the producer to have the "potential power—not an aggregation—to say: 'If you won't pay me a reasonable price for my product I'll build a theatre.' If you take this power away," he told the court, "you will find a deterioration of product."

Harry Warner Warns Of Internal Foes

Hollywood—Emphasizing "the necessity for loyalty to the United States," Harry M. Warner delivered at an all-industry mass meeting of 6,000 here, a spirited plea for the organization of industry forces to battle subversive internal elements.

He told his listeners they must drop religious prejudices and unite for America's security, warning that such action must be taken "before the United States goes the way of Norway, Denmark," etc. He declared his studio wants no Nazis or Communists in its employ and urged his workers to watch for and report all "enemies" to him or the federal bureau of investigation.

Chase Agent Denies Knowing Conspiracy

NEW YORK—Bertram Shipman, representing Chase National Bank, a defendant in the government suit "because it owns 52 per cent stock in National Theatres," told Judge Henry W. Goddard in his opening statement that neither he nor his client knew of any alleged conspiracy by which Chase could be connected with the action and therefore denies any knowledge of conspiracy, combination or agreement with other defendants.

Louis D. Frohlich, representing Columbia, made an informal motion for dismissal of his client as a defendant on the ground allegations in the suit infer they are a "continuing conspiracy." He referred to the government action against Interstate in Texas, which resulted in a victory for the plaintiff. Frohlich made the point that the same charges in the Interstate case are present in this suit and "they cannot be split up." Judge Goddard denied the motion but said he would entertain another if presented in a formal manner.

Joseph M. Proskauer, for Warner, joined in similar motions made by attorneys for 20th Century-Fox, to dismiss as defendants Harry, Jack and Albert Warner, Herman Starr, Sam Morris, Stanleigh Friedman, Robert L. Perkins, Joseph L. Bernhard, Gradwell Sears, Waddell Catchings, Charles Guggenheim, Morris Wolf, S. Charles Einfeld and W. Sewart McDonald on the ground the petition fails to state a cause of action. Counsel for UA, Universal and Columbia also asked like dismissals. Decision was reserved.

Suit Involving Sound Recording Is Filed

NEW YORK—Most important court news of the week was a federal action by Photometric Product Co. against Warner Bros., Albert A. Radtke, Radtke Patents Corp., and Leonard Day. It involves a patent called "Method for and Means of Optically Recording and Reproducing Sound," and the entire sound recording of the industry is involved.

The plaintiff is an assignee of American Development and Operating Co., for whom Radtke worked in 1916, after agreeing to turn over any developments to his employer. When American went into receivership, Radtke formed his own company, patented his improvements, and, according to the complaint, conspired with Warner and Day, an attorney, to deprive the plaintiff of the patent. It is stated Erpi, Western Electric, United Research Corp., International Projector Corp., De Vry Corp., Douglas Leigh Corp., and RCA are all paying royalties for the use of the patents. An injunction, accounting, damages, and turning back of the patents are sought.

William Mancuso, distributor, filed an action against Harry Schlitt, Sam Bram, Herman Robbins, Charles Casanave, Advertising Accessories, American Display Corp., Exhibitors Poster and Supply Co., National Screen, National Screen Accessories, National Screen Announcements, and National Screen Co., charging breach of contract and monopoly.

Mancuso, who was in the employ of Exhibitors from 1933 to March, 1940, claims it sold out to the defendants without giving him a chance to purchase, as his contract provided. Secondly, he claims the other defendants, by virtue of allegedly controlling RKO, Paramount, Columbia, Universal, and M-G-M trailers, prevented him from going into business, as exhibitors were forced to purchase from the defendants, rather than lose the majors' product. Damages of $250,000 are sought.

IA Tackles Sound Technicians Issue

LOUISVILLE—A move to clarify jurisdictional classifications for sound technicians by constitutional amendment led a list of resolutions adopted by the IATSE at its 35th biennial convention here this week. Other resolutions called for the chartering of the locals of motion picture cameramen, for the issuance of a full charter to costumers, grips and affiliated craftsmen such as property men, drapers and shift riggers, studio laborers, makeup artists, hair stylists and makeup women.

A unanimous action that followed one endorsing President George I. Browne and the present slate of officers, expressed belief in the honesty and integrity of William Bioff and reiterated a contention that he was the victim of persecution. J. W. Buzzell of the Los Angeles central labor council gave credit to Bioff not only for improving conditions among IA members, but among all other unions on the coast. Buzzell, incidentally, was unanimously nominated to succeed himself as executive secretary of the council. Election of new officers is scheduled for June 17.

White-Collar Jurisdictional Battle Lines Closer

The lines of battle between the Screen Office Employes Guild and the American Federation of Office Employes for jurisdiction over studio white-collar workers have been drawn closer with the SOEG's decision to affiliate with the Hollywood Guild Council, thus gaining the support of the Screen Writers Guild, publicists, readers and set designers. It has already filed a National Labor Relations Board petition claiming a majority with 1,700 members. In a recent meeting at which Donald Ogden Stewart was chief speaker, the SOEG decided to cut its minimum monthly dues to 50 cents. Meantime, the AFOE, which is seeking a closed shop at Central Casting, received a reply from producers declaring they will open negotiations when the organization has established that it has been designated as sole bargaining agent—indicating a long battle is in prospect.

Date for the first meeting between negotiators for the SWG and producers is expected to be set shortly as the result of a huddle between Leonard Janofsky, SWG counsel, and M. B. Silberberg, producer representative. SWG is seeking a closed-shop agreement.

The war and its possible effects on Hollywood labor were discussed at a Hollywood Guild Council meeting over which Dore Schary, of the SWG, presided. Herbert Sorrell of the painters and Attorney George Bodle were the chief speakers.

Report on Extras

The new board of directors of the Screen Directors Guild met to readjust the personnel of several committees. Directorate also heard a report by George Stevens and Edward Sutherland, its delegates to the Congressional hearings on the Neely bill.

A complete report of problems confronting extras has been compiled by the Screen Actors Guild's standing committee and submitted to SAG executives for scrutiny. It is expected the report will be turned over to producers early in July, at which time negotiations for general reclassification of extra players will be launched.

SMPFE Meets June 6

Society of Motion Picture Film Editors was scheduled to hold its annual election of officers June 6. The organization recently decided to drop negotiations for a new contract with producers temporarily owing to generally unsettled conditions because of the war.

To contemplate expansion of its organization into a national body, the Screen Publicists Guild planned a general meeting. It has already secured a tentative pledge of affiliation from the Screen Publicists Advertising Guild in New York.

Believe Law and Collins May Go East for Big Trade Suit

All data, records and correspondence relative to the government's pending criminal conspiracy suit against Fox West Coast and nine major distributors have been turned over to Thomas L. Clark, new head of the department of justice's west coast probing staff, by Albert Law and Harold Collins, veteran deputies here, they have disclosed. By this action they indicated, but refused to confirm, that they may be called to New York on a moment's notice to participate in the anti-trust suit against the major companies which opened there June 3, and on which case Law and Collins have been compiling data relevant to production for the past several months.

It was Law, joined later by Collins, who conducted an exhaustive probe into the books and records of FWC and nearly every major distributor, garnering data which was used by the government when it filed its criminal contempt action.

Operatives here have intimated, however, that no further action on the FWC front may be expected until the eastern anti-trust suit has been disposed of—which may be a matter of two to three years. Spokesmen for Clark declared, on his arrival from Washington, that his stay may be only a temporary one.

Major Production Makes Comeback; 49 in Work

Production has stepped up again after one setback, the total in work now standing at 49.

Columbia is filming seven, including "The March of Crime" and "The Pinto Kid," new starts. Metro unleashed a barrage by gunning four—"The Bad Man From Wyoming," "Dulcy," "Flight Command" and "Golden Fleecing." It has seven in production. Monogram broke a period of inactivity by launching "Kid Reporters."

Two Have Six Each

Paramount boosted its total to six with the start of "Cherokee Strip." Filming an equal number is RKO Radio, where "Laddie" and "Stranger on the Third Floor" got under way. Republic rolled "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot" and "The Ranger and the Lady," at the same time completing "Scatterbrain" to emerge with a four-picture total.

Twentieth Century-Fox held to a six-picture pace, starting "The Great Profile" and sending "The Bride Wore Crutches" into the cutting room. "Margie" went into work at Universal, where four are being filmed. United Artists' total dropped to two with completion of Walter Wanger's "Foreign Correspondent."

New "Tugboat Annie"

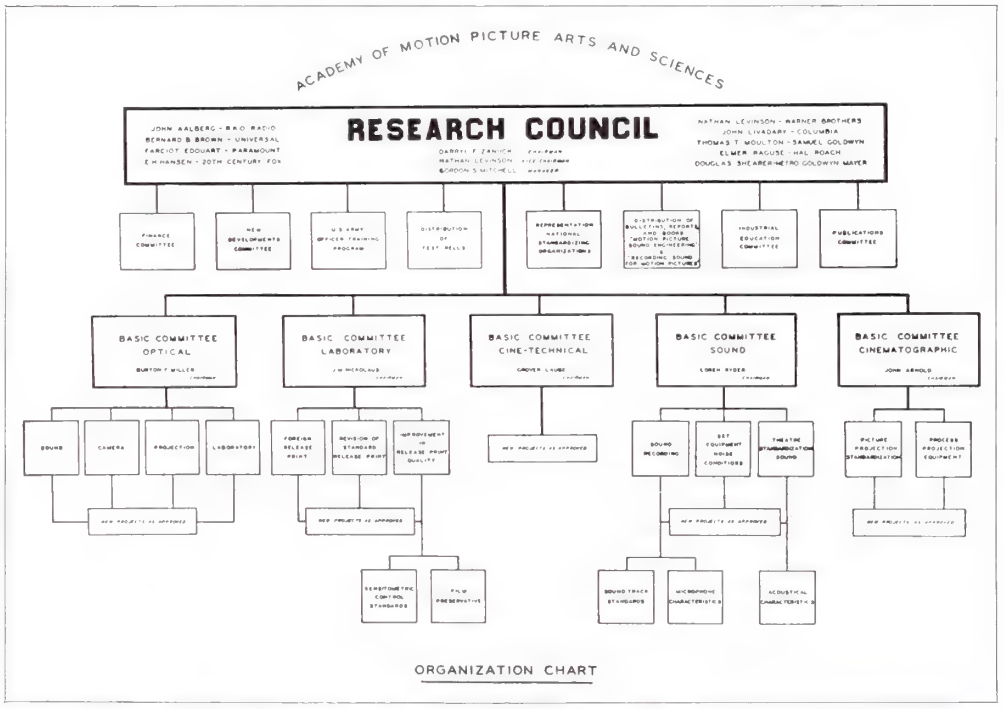
Warner has signed Marjorie Rambeau for the title role in "Tugboat Annie Sails Again," based on the stories by Norman Reilly Raine. Production starts June 17.

Loosening of Economy Grip Brings Relief

Temporarily, the epidemic of jitters which hit Hollywood when the increasingly grave foreign situation ushered in a wave of retrenchment and personnel pruning such as has not been seen since war was declared last September, seems to have subsided, with the sheathing of the head-chopping axes—at least for the time being.

Official stand to be taken by one studio in view of current conditions both domestically and abroad was expected to be outlined in detail at a mass meeting of Warner studio personnel scheduled for June 5 at 8:30 p. m., at which Harry Warner was to be chief speaker. It was anticipated he would outline the necessity for general curtailment of operating expense and would disclose the company's attitude toward personnel reduction. Meeting was to be open to the press.

Wholesale payroll purges so far have been confined to Metro and 20th Century-Fox, where a total of more than 400 workers—several in higher executive brackets—have been released. Coincident with the Westwood studio order, which cut deepest into white-collar and technical ranks, Gene Markey, associate producer; Henry Duffy and Henry Lehrman, production aides to Darryl Zanuck; and Phillip Moore of the casting office, all checked off the lot. Quitting the publicity department, Phil Gersdorf joined the Lou Irwin agency.



Other routine personnel changes centered at Paramount. Roy Burns, business manager of Harold Hurley's production unit, left with the official dissolution of Hurley's organization. Les Nettenstrom, assistant to John Zinn, casting department business manager, resigned. Walter B. Cokell, company treasurer, transferred back to the New York office after more than two years at the studio. A. C. Martin and Charles Boren will function as his local representatives.

In the studio exploitation department, permanent posts in the field have been assigned Bill Landsburg, going to Kansas City; Jack Dailey, to Denver, and Carl Krueger, to Chicago, in line with Robert Gillham's convention announcement that direct plugging in contact with district managers and exhibitors is to be emphasized during the 1940-41 season. Handling the Pacific Coast territory, and working out of the studio, will be Ralph Ravenscroft.

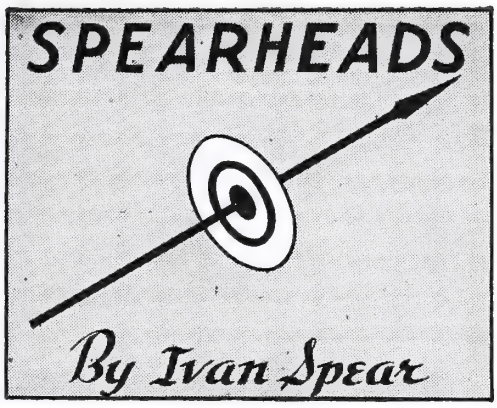
UA Product Parleys Occupy Greenthal

Planning to spend about three weeks conferring with various United Artists producers, looking at completed product and parleying with them concerning their film-making plans for the future, Monroe Greenthal, UA exploitation director, has checked in from New York. Preliminary plans for advertising-publicity campaigns on Walter Wanger's "Foreign Correspondent," Argosy's "The Long Voyage Home," Edward Small's "Pago Pago" and Hal Roach's "Turnabout" will occupy most of his time.

Samuel Goldwyn has returned to Hollywood after a month's stay in the east, during which he attended the UA convention and discussed release plans for "The Westerner" with UA homeoffice executives. While in New York he also opened a new barrage against double-features by successfully urging Dr. George Gallup to conduct a nation-wide poll. Also checking in was Sol Lesser, who appeared at the UA sales huddle and attended the "Our Town" world premiere in Boston. Lesser immediately went into conference with Ernst Lubitsch to select the vehicle which Lubitsch will make as his initialer for Lesser's company.

Expected in was David O. Selznick, who has been in the east for several weeks, and who has indicated his production setup will remain in idleness until fall.



President Nate Blumberg of Universal has returned here to headquarter at the Universal City plant for the summer. He was accompanied by Matty Fox, his executive assistant, who plans to return to New York shortly for an extended stay, and by Jules Levey, of Mayflower Productions, which has a Universal release for its output.

Paramount washed up the last vestiges of its recent national sales gathering here with the departure of Neil Agnew, C. M. Reagan, Robert Gillham, Al Wilkie, Alec Moss, Arthur L. Pratchett and George Fraser, homeoffice and sales executives, for New York. Y. Frank Freeman has returned to the studio after appearing before a Congressional committee holding hearings on the Neely Bill in Washington, D. C. Harold Hurley, who left Paramount after 17 years with the studio, has checked out for New York to line up an independent production deal.

Assigns Ketti Frings

Producer Jack Moss has assigned Ketti Frings to script "The End of the World," from a story by Vina Delmar, to fulfill her one-picture writing commitment at Paramount.

WAS IT all a part of the publicity stunt or did Carole Landis really stamp her size 4-B and abort Frank Seltzer's plan to sloganize her?

Western billboards assail the touring eye with a message on behalf of Tilton Oil., to wit: "Changes Ping to Purr." Which made the Seltzer invitation a bit confusing—and certainly unoriginal—in the first place; that invitation which stated, "You are cordially invited to attend a reception to Miss Carole Landis (star of Hal Roach's 'Turnabout'), America's selection for the title of 'The Ping Girl—Because She Makes You Purr'."

Next step in the publicity comedy of errors was an advertisement in local tradepapers, addressed to "the working press of Los Angeles," ostensibly inserted and paid for by Miss Landis, which blazoned the ultimatum that she "was never consulted about the scheme, nor do I approve, merit or desire the appellation they would like to inflict upon me. For these reasons I feel this explanation is due you because I will not be present at my own reception to ping, purr or even coo."

And so the "working press"—alias the hungry press—is divided in its opinion as to who double-crossed whom and who gets the rap for the loss of the free cocktails and groceries which developed into a mirage when the party was cancelled.

Let it be hoped that one benefit—in addition to the publicity for "Turnabout"—will be a termination, for the time being at least, of publicists' urge toward sloganizing motion picture personalities, especially through the application to them of established commercial catchlines, and vice versa, as typified by the Ann Sheridan-Signal Gasoline "Oomph" tieup.

But, if it must continue, here are a few which might fit:

"Eventually, Why Not Now?"—Orson Welles.

"The Ham What Am."—Victor McLaglen.

"No Squat, No Squint, No Stoop."—Oliver Hardy.

"Hasn't Scratched Yet."—Charles R. Rogers.

"Ask the Man Who Owns One."—Gene Markey.

"99.44% Pure."—Joseph I. Breen.

"Good 'Til the Last Drop."—Howard Hughes.

Universal discloses it is negotiating with one Leslie Kardos, foreign megger, on a one-picture deal. Kardos hails from Budapest.

BALLYHOODLUMS: The moss-covered crack about the world beating a path to the door of the man who builds a better mousetrap than his neighbor is strangely illustrated in the current experience of an ex-publicity man, which at the same time projects a characteristic commentary on Hollywood biggies. Jerry Olenick was a freelance press agent. None too brilliant in the gentle art of blurb, as practiced by the catch-as-catch-can connivers into whose midsts he had precipitated himself, he was nonetheless a plugger. But for all his willingness and hard work, the going was very tough, largely because he found it virtually impossible to offer his services to anyone on studio payrolls for more than a paltry pittance. He had as much chance of interviewing the topnotch producers, directors, writers and others whom he wanted to serve, as a Bronx fish-peddler trying to sell his wares to Hitler. Finally succumbing to the closed-door policy and with a disgusted "Ah, nuts," he quit the publicity business. Assuming "Robert Brent" as a nom de plume, he became a publisher, his literary efforts taking form in a race tip sheet, alluringly and atmospherically called The Bluegrass News. Regardless of his source of information or inspiration, Olenick started picking 'em—but good. Fourteen out of 16 winners in one day brought him quick fame; a ten-out-of-twelve day was accepted as a matter of course. And now the brass hats who wouldn't give him the remotest tumble as a press agent are subscribing to his "publication," paying for it with alacrity and cheer, and are keeping his telephone working overtime with fraternal calls seeking his last-minute dope. A list of his subscribers would startle even blase Hollywood . . . Lou (Silent) Smith finally wakes up and sends out a publicity release from his sequestered lair on the Columbia lot, which is something of a step forward, even though the offering is a verbatim reproduction of a story broadcast by John Peere Miles two weeks earlier.

Rambling, Raucous, Rankling and Reissue

Only because of the impressiveness of its budget, cast and productional staff—and certainly not for its entertainment qualities—Metro's "Susan and God" demands first attention among the six rather unimportant features comprising the week's preview program. This screen version of Rachel Crothers' stage play will probably account for itself with reasonable satisfaction in its big-city first-runs because of the patronage that may be expected from among real and pseudo sophisticates. Thereafter, however, its fate is problematical. True, it has an important cast; but the screenplay by Anita Loos is tedious, lethargic in movement and considerably over-dialogued. Another possible hurdle which may block its acclaim by the rank-and-file, particularly among the devout, is the flippancy with which religion, and the subject of faith in the Deity, is treated. It is entirely conceivable that this factor may be rather widely resented, with a resultant dearth of ticket-buyers. Hunt Stromberg produced it opulently, of course, and George Cukor's direction is in tune with the subject matter.

Thus Paramount's "Safari" wins a somewhat hollow victory as the best of the aggregation. The studio-created African backgrounds are impressively authentic, the cast is strong and the direction by Edward H. Griffith is as restrained as the melodramatic story line permitted. In the action sequences Delmer Daves' script is first-rate, bogging down only when it attempts to go dramatic; probably because the original by Paul Hervey Fox was largely on the hokum side. Regardless of its faults, Producer Anthony Veiller can take credit for a piece of entertainment that will add up as satisfactory for the main offering on any program.

Block Lashes Neely Synopsis Clause

WASHINGTON—Screen writers in Hollywood are opposed to monopolistic practices in the film industry but consider the synopsis provisions of the Neely bill a species of censorship, Ralph Block of the Screen Writers Guild told the Neely bill committee at the hearing here.

Exhibiting resentment over the "holier than thou" attitude of some of the organization representatives, Block told the committee, "I must confess I am a little exhausted by these repeated intimations that virtue and lofty standards of morality are held sacred only within the homes of the persons who wish this legislation and in the placid cloisters of the exhibitors who are asking for this bill."

"Underlying this bill is the argument that a kind of organized public pressure can be set up by interested or prejudiced groups to which the exhibitor will be responsible," he said.

Seen as Censorial

"I know a considerable number of exhibitors—I number them among my friends and I have respect for them. But as a class they are no better and no worse than any other general class of purveyors to the public, and I see nothing in the national picture which warrants holding up their taste, education and general critical level as superior to that of the unorganized public as a whole."

Denominating the synopsis provision as the "offspring of every outmoded blue law," Block told the committee it would be impossible to conform to it because no two people view the same occurrence or picture in exactly the same way.

Questioned by Representatives Patrick, McGranery and Wolverton as to the possibility of writing a synopsis, he admitted one might be prepared after a picture was completed, but contended that, while the companies might seek to employ the best writers available to make them, they "won't stay employed" because they will not be willing to place themselves in jeopardy.

Holds Synopsis Workable

He told the committee that a synopsis of a Deanna Durbin picture with a final script of 140 to 150 pages would require "around 70, 80 or 90 pages." One might possibly be written in 50 pages, he added, but there would be a grave chance that something had been omitted which would subject it to attack as not being true and accurate.

Representative Wolverton contended that a synopsis is workable, pointing out the majority of court decisions are preceded by a syllabus of their contents, but Block pointed out that the courts are dealing with matters of logic and not with such intangible things as attitudes and expressions, which are important in pictures.

Failing in his effort to convince the witness, Wolverton said that, in any event, the synopsis and the moral standard were not the most important facets of the bill, but that block booking was and that the whole measure undoubtedly involved questions of constitutionality which, he commented, had not been touched upon by either side in the controversy.

Representative Bulwinkle of North Carolina also minimized the possibilities of legislating morals, and told his fellow members that he had received letters from various organizations holding that passage of the measure would "absolutely clean up the morals of the country." So far as propaganda went, he added, one side was as bad as the other.

Cromwell Accepts an Honor—

Fingering the golden key emblematic of the honor, Director John Cromwell accepts the congratulations of Donald Duke, president of the University of Southern California chapter of Delta Kappa Alpha, national honorary cinema fraternity, upon Cromwell's election to the organization. He is the first film director to be initiated, having been chosen as the result of a lecture and film-making demonstration which he presented for U. S. C. motion picture students, following which he was appointed a special lecturer.

Don Ameche Represents Screen Actors Guild

With the appearance of Don Ameche to voice the opposition of the Screen Actors Guild to the synopsis provision, members of the committee took advantage of an opportunity to probe Hollywood propaganda.

Under intensive questioning, Ameche admitted that he did not know whether he had written a letter against the bill, sent to Representative Brown of Ohio over his signature, or whether it had been handed to him merely for signature by somebody else.

"Sometime ago I received a letter about the bill over your signature," the Congressman opened. "Did you write that letter?"

"I can't remember."

"Who gave you my name? I have heard of you but you never heard of me."

"I still do not know."

Congressman Brown pointed out that he also had received letters opposing the bill, signed by Mickey Rooney and Shirley Temple.

"How did it happen that all these letters came in at the same time?" he asked. "I noticed in these letters a number of you movie stars had exactly the same thought and expressed it many times in exactly the same words."

Questioned by Representative McGranery of Pennsylvania, Ameche admitted that he was not an officer of the guild and explained he had been instructed to come to Washington by an officer whose title he could not remember. He said also that no general meeting of the membership had been held on the subject but that the opposition appearance had been planned by the executive committee.

Apparently uncoached and unfamiliar with the bill, the star said that the actors believed it would be impossible to provide the synopsis demanded but admitted that they have very little connection with the measure.

Releasing the actor, the committee heard representatives of the Screen Directors Guild, also opposed to the synopsis provision. Albert E. Sutherland and George Stevens, the latter a director in the association, explained that the bill would tie directors down to continuities and make impossible the free development of the story. The best pictures, they said, are those where the director is not tied down to a script but left free to develop the yarn as appears best during the filming.

Independent exhibitors began their opposition to the bill with the appearance of R. H. Poole of Los Angeles, executive secretary of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners. Not himself engaged in exhibition, Poole's statement was a more or less general discussion of the possible effects of the bill, one of which, he feared, would be "carpetbaggers" stepping into important situations with new theatres when pictures went on the auction block as a result of the restrictions.

Under the bill, he said, his people fear they will lose their run positions, which he explained are considered very valuable.

Denying that block booking is a handicap upon the independent exhibitor, Henry Reeve of Menard, Tex., told the committee that, as the owner of the only theatre in the county seat of a county 1,600 square miles in area, he has never been forced to play any picture unsuitable for his community.

Reeve declared that relations between exhibitors and distributors are improving steadily and explained that the difficulty of the former is not so much the "bad" pictures as "too many small ones which are not good boxoffice attractions."

"Big Bonanza" Wayne's Next

Next starring vehicle at Republic for John Wayne will be "Big Bonanza," a story of the Comstock lode by Peter B. Kyne. Sol C. Siegel will handle production reins.

Harry Warner Warns Of Internal Foes

Emphasizing "the necessity for loyalty to the United States," Harry M. Warner delivered at an all-industry mass meeting of 6,000 here, a spirited plea for the organization of industry forces to battle subversive internal elements.

He told his listeners they must drop religious prejudices and unite for America's security, warning that such action must be taken "before the United States goes the way of Norway, Denmark," etc. He declared his studio wants no Nazis or Communists in its employ and urged his workers to watch for and report all "enemies" to him or the federal bureau of investigation.

Studios Brace for A Tourist Horde

With Southern California expecting one of the biggest tourist seasons in history, largely because of the European War, the deluge of visiting firemen which every summer gives studio publicity staffs their biggest annual headache, this year threatens to develop into the most gargantuan pain in the neck of all time, as far as Hollywood's film factories are concerned. The southland is preparing for an onslaught of literally thousands more vacationers who, in more peaceful times, would hit the high seas to disport themselves in foreign playgrounds now either barred or highly dangerous.

This heavy influx naturally means a substantial increase in the percentage of requests and demands for trips through motion picture plants—usually considered the high spot of the entire holiday. How to cope with these sightseers—always a weighty problem because of the enormous loss of time and money their entertainment entails—thus is assuming an even more serious aspect as the summer season approaches.

Some studios—notably M-G-M—are arbitrarily dodging the issue with strict "no visitors under any circumstances" regulations. RKO Radio and Columbia will entertain exhibitors, but turn thumbs down on tourists bearing "letters of introduction" from their hometown showmen and the common variety of would-be gate crashers. M-G-M will allow no one inside its portals except those of the most extreme importance in business and civic fields. These rules have been in force for several seasons past, and there is no indication a change is contemplated.

Twentieth Century-Fox and Paramount, which for some time have been operating daily rubberneck tours, intend to continue the practice. On the Fox lot the idea of running two tours each day is now under consideration as a means of partially absorbing the expected increase in visitors. Paramount, however, does not plan to increase its accommodations and both studios will cut the list of "must" visitors to the bone.

Warner will endeavor to maintain an "open door" policy for bonafide exhibitors and civic notables, which spokesmen declare has been extremely successful as a good-will builder in the past. However, the Burbank plant, in keeping with plans now being laid at other studios, will not countenance the issuing of passes and courtesies to those whom it considers have no valid claim thereto—which means that the great mass of sightseers will remain outside the studio's gates.

Rush Production on Pictures Dealing With European War

With several such vehicles either already in release or due to be distributed shortly, the major studios are rushing camera and preparatory work on a number of features which are based, either directly or through inference, on the current European War, with present indications that such titles will swell to more than a dozen during the course of the summer.

Already hitting the nation's screens are Warner's reissue of "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," boasting a new ending bringing the story up through Hitler's invasion of the Low Countries; Universal's "Ski Patrol," obviously based upon the Russo-Finnish conflict, and Republic's "Women in War," which names no names, but obliquely concerns the present conflict. Twentieth Century-Fox's "Four Sons" will be given national distribution June 14.

Presently being rushed through the production mill are Warner's "Secret Army," dealing with Fifth Column activities in Holland, directed by Kurt Bernhardt; M-G-M's "Escape" and "The Mortal Storm," both anti-Nazi subjects, and 20th Century-Fox's "I Married a Nazi."

Added to Republic's 1940-41 lineup is "Golden Wings," a biography of the late Gen. William Mitchell, who advocated a strong aviation corps as a factor in this country's defense and was courtmartialed for his utterances. Columbia is preparing "Blitzkrieg." Twentieth Century-Fox recently purchased "We Who Gave," by Esther Washburn, a story of a woman whose husband is a war casualty. Warner is preparing two subjects based upon the first World War—"The Amazing Story of Sergeant York" and "The Lost Battalion." On Paramount's schedule is "The Polonaise," dealing with the siege and capture of Poland.

In the general production vein, most studios are keeping up the rapid pace which has characterized them during the past two months. Republic will have completed its 1939-40 slate of 52 features and four serials by the end of June, with only three more to be made. Of these, "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot" and "The Ranger and the Lady" are now in work, with "Everybody's Happy" to roll June 10. On that date, the first of the 1940-41 quota, "Oklahoma Outlaws," also gets the gun.

For Columbia, Producer Charles R. Rogers has revamped his schedule and will launch "Senate Page Boys" within a few days, ahead of "Jane Addams and Hull House." The studio will roll "The First Woman Doctor," with John M. Stahl directing, in July. Metro lists three to start before July 1—"Philadelphia Story," "I Married an Angel" and "The Yearling." For United Artists, Edward Small is scheduled to launch "Son of Monte Cristo" about June 10. It will be his fourth on a seven-picture program. Frank Capra will gun "The Life of John Doe," with Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck, July 8 for Warner release.

Monogram Puts Nineteen On Production Slate

Emphasizing his belief that the domestic market is headed for boom time business, W. Ray Johnston, Monogram president, points out that his company, far from considering production curtailment, is swinging into full action.

Seven features have been given starting dates in June; five in July; four in August, and three in September and October, not including two Tex Ritters and the Fred Scott series of westerns.

Majors Begin Shooting Football Sagas Early

As per the yearly custom, Hollywood's picture-makers have set the calendar ahead fully four months and the shadows of spiralling footballs are already in evidence at a number of the major studios—where, under summery skies, preparations are being made to film the annual crop of do-or-die-for-dear-old-Rutgers sagas of the gridiron for release during the height of the pigskin season.

From present aspects, exhibitors and the public may expect somewhat of an increase in the number of football epics over the 1939-40 season, with schedules already listing five of them. Taking no chances of a slipup, Warner now has one safely tucked under its belt and awaiting release as one of the specials on its new program —"The Story of Knute Rockne," with Pat O'Brien in the title role. Now in preparation at the Burbank plant is "For the Rich, They Sing," a collegiate musical in which football plays an important part.

Paramount's entry has been yclept "Touchdown!" and will be produced by Anthony Veiller from an original screenplay by Robert Pirosh. Wayne Morris has been borrowed from Warner for the leading role. In the forefront on RKO Radio's 1940-41 schedule is "Too Many Girls," from the Broadway musical hit, to be produced and directed by George Abbott, with cameras rolling about June 15. Gridiron antics comprise an important adjunct to the motivation.

"Yesterday's Heroes" is listed for early production at 20th Century-Fox. It was written by William Brent, studio sound man, and published in a national magazine, whereupon Brent was promoted to the scenario staff to adapt it to the screen.

"All This" Premiere Now Set for Carthay Circle

Cancelling previous plans to debut the feature in the Warner Beverly Hills Theatre, June 11, arrangements have been made whereby Warner's "All This and Heaven, Too," starring Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, will be given its world premiere at the Carthay Circle, June 13. It begins a two-a-day run the following day, supplanting "Gone With the Wind" as the Los Angeles area's sole roadshow attraction. Premiere is being planned on a lavish, top hats and ermine scale, for which the usual coterie of floodlights, celebrities and autograph-seekers will be on hand.

An unbroken string of premieres of forthcoming product throughout the country is on schedule throughout the summer. Paramount will debut "Untamed," featuring Dorothy Lamour, in Seattle, June 13, to be followed the next day by showings in Portland and Spokane. In either July or August, 20th Century-Fox will premiere "Maryland" in Baltimore, with state and civic officials cooperating. September will see the Frank Lloyd production for Columbia, "The Howards of Virginia," making its bow in Richmond. Present plans are for Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount production, "North West Mounted Police," debuting in Ottawa, Canada, on Thanksgiving Day.

The Marathon Street studio's Bob Hope-Paulette Goddard comedy, "The Ghost Breakers," was given its world premiere at the Michigan in Detroit, June 7, with Hope and his radio troupe—including Jerry Colonna and Brenda and Cobina—making stage appearances. The screening was preceded by a press party in a "haunted" house located in Detroit after a city-wide "search" by Paramount exploiteers.

A Routine Session Held By Producers' Ass'n

Highlighted by the announcement a date for resumption of negotiations with the Conference of Studio Unions would be set by the end of the week, a routine meeting was held by members of the Producers' Ass'n, June 4, with President Y. Frank Freeman as chairman. Members also disclosed they had dispatched a reply to the American Federation of Office Employes, which is seeking a closed shop at Central Casting, and discussed the rapidly-shifting foreign outlook, as well as other current industry problems.

Tom Pettey, who resigned June 1 as public relations director for the Hays office, planed to New York to confer with executives of PM, new newspaper, concerning his post as Hollywood film-radio correspondent. Also heading east was Pat Casey, Hays office labor contact, who planned to stop off in Louisville for the IATSE international convention.

Howard Philbrick, Central Casting general manager, scheduled meetings with studio comptrollers to work out an accurate method of determining extras' yearly earnings. He also announced he will rigidly enforce the "no relatives" rule at Central, under which any employes who are found to have relatives working as extras will be summarily dismissed.

theme, the story carries surprisingly little emotional lift. The Sol Wurtzel production was directed by Irving Pichel. John Howard Lawson and Samuel G. Engel did the screenplay from a story by Basil King.

Above the ordinary classification, belying its budget, Monogram's "On the Spot," is a gangster murder mystery yarn that packs a goodly quota of laughs, a brisk screenplay and a thoroughly acceptable cast. Joseph West and Dorothy Reid tailored the script from West's original. Howard Bretherton held to a steady pace in his direction, working under the supervision of Associate Producer Grant Withers.

The undisputed weakie of the sextet, Universal's "Love, Honor and Oh Baby," fails to achieve any degree of success as either comedy or melodrama—which elements it feebly attempts to combine. It is woefully unfunny and laden with enough cliches for three pictures. Given lackadaisical direction by Charles Lamont, and a feeble screenplay by Clarence Upson Young, its boxoffice potentialities hover somewhere around zero. Elizabeth Troy wrote what was alleged to be the original story.

The sixth member—showing of which can hardly be considered a preview—was Warner's "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," currently being intensively ballyhooed as a timely reissue, with considerable of the exploitation concentrating on its new ending. The new ending, which boils down to a few sequences of flag-waving and the insertion of recent newsreel clips, is secondary to the timeliness with which the feature has been endowed through widespread interest in the activities of subversive elements in America. Always an engrossing, substantially produced, directed and enacted feature, "Nazi Spy," when seen for the second time, stirs a better-than-ever reaction which mingles with the feeling that it was made and released a year too soon. As a reissue, it should be a profitable exhibition bet.

When the customers aren't shivering, they'll be roaring, and between chills and laughs they are sure to have the time of their lives seeing this smart-cracking, fast moving, interest commanding comedy-mystery.

The screenplay is a masterpiece of brittle dialogue and priceless gag situations. The production is solidly mounted and it is played with a delightful tongue-in-cheek interpretation by an excellent cast topped by Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard. And George Marshall's able direction knits the various threads of the Arthur Hornblow jr. production into a piece of topnotch entertainment.—SPEAR.

Allied States on West Coast To Drive for New Members

LOS ANGELES—Despite rapid strides taken in recent months by the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz., particularly since its affiliation with the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners—in the foundation of which it was instrumental—the organization's dominance in this territory seems slated to be challenged by the local chapter of Allied States. Dormant for the past several months, Allied has swung into action again with the declaration it will soon launch an active campaign to augment its membership.

In the initial barrage in this membership drive, Allied used the ITO and the PCCITO as targets in a broadside appearing in a local trade publication, attacking the operations, policies and accomplishments of the two organizations. Addressing its message to "real independents," it assaulted the ITO for its campaign against the Neely bill, declaring those working against the measure are members of the "movie fifth column" sabotaging independent exhibitor interests. It charged the PCCITO is a "so-called 'independent' exhibitor association which handles its affairs via steam-roller tactics and star-chamber sessions" and obliquely hinted the ITO is one of a number of "stooge exhibitor organizations" set up by producers throughout the country.

The indictment, prepared by James C. Quinn, Allied secretary, asserted the recent PCCITO convention here was a "producers' sales meeting" and ridiculed the statement of William F. Rodgers, Metro sales manager, at the convention, that the principal source of support for the Neely Bill comes from those with no stake in the industry. Quinn declared local Allied members "would welcome the opportunity of matching their investment in this business against his (Rodgers') before any unbiased group."

Quinn also attacked the ITO and the PCCITO for its "conciliation" program, asserting that independents are not organized sufficiently to match the power of producers and distributors; indicated that such organization could come only through Allied, and said he hoped to bring the national Allied convention to Hollywood in 1941.

Beyond declaring the PCCITO "stands on its own merits and accomplishments," Robert H. Poole, executive director, has made no formal reply to the Allied assault. He indicated, however, that a retaliatory action is in the wind when he has received detailed instructions from the PCCITO trustees as to how to proceed.

The local Allied chapter constitutes an outgrowth of Quinn's American Federation of Theatre Owners. At the time the Allied charter was secured more than a year ago, Quinn unleashed his initial barrage against the ITO, asserting he would seek only "real independent showmen" for membership and indicting the ITO for its program of conciliation and harmony among unaffiliated showmen, circuit operators and distributors. Members at that time, in addition to Quinn, included Seth Perkins, Jules Wolf, Fred Hershorn, Lou Bard and B. J. Leavitt. Since then no information as to the growth of Allied membership has been released.

Coast Well Represented At IATSE Convention

Local B-18 of the theatrical employes union is represented by Al Maass of San Francisco and Bill Ring of Los Angeles. B-16 of the theatrical stagehands sent George Ward and Elmer Langmaid. Others from this territory are: J. Turturici, San Mateo; Ray Cayla, Santa Rosa; Al Daul, Oakland; Paul Artigues, Eureka; Charles Zielinski, Richmond; and Fred Mozart, Watsonville.

S' FRANCISCO

FANS wandering about the 1940 Exposition are showing much interest in the old films being shown in the Palace of Fine Arts. There is no admission charge, and the films are rare and scarce. Veteran film goers who remember when Bernhardt and Duse played for the screen, or who remember when Mary Pickford was "America's Sweetheart" and played in "The New York Hat" with Lionel Barrymore, are getting a nostalgic thrill from the ancient screen manners. The younger generation finds the films amusing in the great difference there is between the modern day pictures and the old favorites. There are several complete programs being offered on a two-a-day basis.

This was one of those quiet weeks on the Row with vacations and conventions taking many of the personnel from their desks. An out of town exhibitor was a rarity and as one person put it, "Everything is just too quiet on this western front" . . . Monogram is leading the coast in the "Spirit of Independence" playdate drive . . . Luise Rainer was an inconspicuous visitor doing the town and the Fair . . . The first annual Light Opera Festival resumed this week with "The Red Mill" after a week layoff . . . F. Herrick Herrick, who is doing quite well with his "Hollywood Stage 9," announced screen tests to anyone wishing them will be conducted at the Fair and anything showing promise will be forwarded to Hollywood for expert scrutiny.

Two houses had their premiere this week. Charlie Holtz opened his new Colonial in Sacramento with many Row luminaries in attendance and Leo Reese played host to approximately the same crowd at the opening of his Rio in Merced . . . The RKO gang arrived safely from their Chicago jaunt and all report a grand time . . . "Gone With the Wind" did not do the business anticipated and lasted only one week on its return to Market Street. The roadshow prices seem to be a bit steep for those who failed to see it when it ran here before . . . "Susan and God" was previewed for circuit heads by M-G-M.

Columbia gets credit for the neatest gag of the month. Doubling as a circulating library, the exchange is lending "I Married Adventure" (in book form) to any exhibitor who wishes to read it. The novel, a forthcoming Columbia release, is given out free of charge on a seven-day loan. The boys are reading it, too . . . Jack Ericson and Floyd Bernard, 20th-Fox salesmen, are back in town after a selling trip in the north . . . Pacific Premium has a nice new red truck for the purpose of handling all their premium orders. The Coliseum, class suburban theatre, is the latest to use Pacific's Book Night.

The air attendance for the first weekend in June surpassed the attendance for the same weekend of last year by nearly 100,000. Last June's first weekend drew 90,488 for the three days. This year, May 31, June 1-2, 190,186 clicked through the Island toll gates. The auto parking at the Fair more than doubled last year's first week figure and in other respects this year's version of the Fair is ahead of the one handed the public in 1939.

Joan Blondell makes her first stage appearance in over ten years when she opens at the Geary on June 10 in "Goodbye to Love." The play is billed as the first stop on a nation wide tour to end on Broadway . . . The Blumfeld Theatres announced a new house for Sacramento this week. It will be a 600 seater . . . Billy Hill is the new manager at the Orland in Orland . . . "My Son, My Son" appears on its way to equalling the run of "Rebecca." The former is in its third week and drawing capacity crowds . . . Edna Schefer, Warner contract clerk, is back from a trip to San Diego and Sequoia National Park.

Gerald Hardy flew into town from Fresno early this week and left many an envious person doing some wishful thinking. Hardy leaves this weekend for Chicago and Detroit. In the latter city he will pick up a new car and continue on to Washington and New York. At this point he will decide whether to go on to Miami or not but the return trip will be made through the Canadian Rockies. The boys all wished him a swell trip with plenty of longing in their voices.

Dan McLean is getting to be quite a sailor. The Embassy impresario finished sixth in the San Francisco to Stockton race . . . Susan Atkins is the new stenographer at 20th-Fox . . . "Lillian Russell" opened at the Fox on the sixth and is attracting much attention . . . Maurice Evans has extended his "Richard II" for an extra week in response to the public demand . . . Grace Moore, in "Louise," is playing a third week at the Clay. Miss Moore was to have appeared with the S. F. Symphony at the Fair this week but did not because of a cold. John Charles Thomas filled in at the opening concert of the symphony series.

On vacation: Les Smith, booker, and Irene Kerr, stenographer from M-G-M; Jean Compagno, RKO inspectress; Rita Berldo, contract clerk at Universal; Lorraine Coleman, 20th-Fox inspectress, and Maureen Stillian, Columbia inspectress . . . Lou Marks of the Rialto, Sacramento, was a booking visitor.

Plenty of activity at the Paramount exchange. Moving week with the entire staff picking up and moving three doors west into temporary quarters.

Fox West Coast Transfers Baetz to a New District

LOS ANGELES — Transferring from Fox West Coast's citrus district, where he was district manager for houses in Ontario, Pomona, Riverside, Redlands and San Bernardino, Hall Baetz has been named district manager for Montana, Idaho and Utah, headquartering in Salt Lake City. Switch is effective immediately.

No successor to Baetz in the citrus district will be named, the houses formerly under his supervision having been transferred to B. V. Sturdivant's district. As a result, three houses in the Highland Park territory, the Arroyo, Starland and Highland, have been taken from Sturdivant and handed over to Dick Dickson's No. 1 district.

DENVER

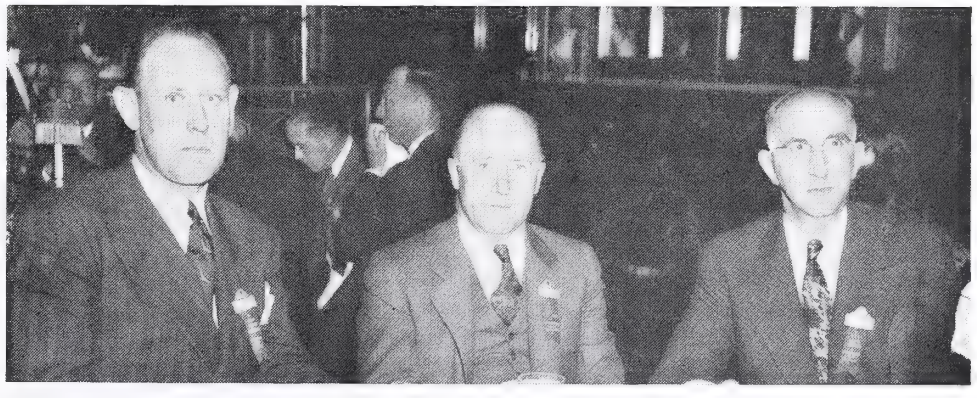
THE Rocky Mountain Screen Club held two parties at their club rooms the past week. The first was a "Gay 90's" affair, the second was a stag. The rooms were packed for the first with all in costume. At the stag, arrangements were completed for the Calcutta golf tournament to be held June 11 at Green Gables Country Club. The golfers were auctioned off with Lon T. Fidler bringing high money. Second and third places were copped by Rick Ricketson and William Agren. About $250 was realized in this manner. The tourney is being restricted to members.

Because of the drop in business the past three weeks, Gibralter Enterprises has closed three houses, and according to Fred Knill, if business continues to take a drop, more will be shuttered. Those closed include Oto, Scottsbluff, Neb.; Burro Alley, Santa Fe, N. M., and the Riviera, Gering, Neb. . . . Charles Gilmour, president of Gibralter Enterprises, is expected back soon from a vacation in California, part of which was spent undergoing treatment at Scripps Memorial Hospital at LaJolla.

Henry Le Clair, employed at the State, Denver, has accepted a position with Gibralter houses in New Mexico, and will work in Clayton and Springer as assistant manager in charge of advertising and exploitation . . . Tommy Tompkins, theatre man of Colorado Springs, has returned from a five-week vacation in Mineral Wells, Tex. . . . Connie Rose, Monogram salesman, left on a sales trip through New Mexico . . . R. D. Ervin of Kremmling was in town booking film and buying supplies . . . Gene Gerbase, manager of the Sheffield-Republic exchange, is back from San Francisco after attending the annual sales convention and conferring with J. T. Sheffield, owner of the Republic franchise in Denver, Salt Lake City, Portland and Seattle territories.

J. B. Melton, owner of the two Victory theatres, is back in Denver for an indefinite stay from his Florida plantation. He has taken his theatres out of the operating arrangement with Westland Theatres and will operate them himself . . . Ralph Hamilton is now managing the Santa Fe, having swapped jobs with Richard Dekker, who goes to the Gothic. The changes were made by C. U. Yaeger, owner of the houses . . . Herschell Wheeler, manager of the Black Hills Amusement Co. Pace at Gordon prior to its burning, has been sent to manage the Hot Springs at Hot Springs, S. D., where he succeeds Clinton Robbins, resigned . . . M. J. Yeoman, Universal auditor, is checking local accounts.

SALT LAKE



LOCAL THEATRE operators will now have the competition of out-of-door resorts in this territory, Memorial Day having marked the opening of such places of amusement . . . George White and his latest edition of the "Scandals" will appear at the local Utah, managed by Norman Sprowl. Several film personalities have been recruited for the stage show including Ben Blue, Ella Logan, Ann Miller and Collette Lyons . . . Joe Lawrence's Rialto has reverted to a first run policy.

Granted a week's permit to install a temporary platform for stage shows, the Star reopened after completion also of projection booth alterations and other safety work . . . The Roxy is still closed as a result of its recent fire.

E. M. Saunders, Metro western sales manager, and George Hickey, district manager, were visitors . . . Frank Murphy, in Salt Lake for several weeks as branch manager of Mercury, has been transferred to Denver. He is replaced here by A. G. Edwards, who comes on from Denver.

Herschel Stewart's office force at the local Fox West Coast branch is moving into the newly constructed Paramount exchange on Filmrow here. Which is also the case with Paramount's personnel, of course.

W. W. McKendrick, in charge of Monogram here, reports District Manager Lon T. Fidler underwent a tonsillotomy and had to postpone his trip here for a few days.

SEATTLE

BUSINESS in this territory was way off this week, not only in theatres but in all lines. Maybe it's the war scare . . . Memorial Day found a great many people traveling to Vancouver. Live-wire stores in that town are advertising their sales and bargains on Seattle radio stations . . . Bill Cooley, Venetian, took advantage of the holiday by having signs made and placed in all the stores in his neighborhood. They read, "This store closed all day Memorial Day. Going to the Venetian to see 'Little Old New York'" . . . General Film Attractions of Seattle and Feature Film exchange of Portland have changed hands. Jesse Jones and Eddie Hudson have sold their interests in the business to Ted Parker and associates. Parker announces all product on hand will be discarded and new productions will be the order of things. Jack Allender will still maintain the Seattle branch.

Bill Forman, general manager for Sterling Theatres, announces that Jack Shallow jr. is now managing the Winter Garden . . . Heaton Randall and his gang at National Theatre Supply now busy moving from First to Second Ave. . . . HOLLYWOOD—Metro has bought "30,000 Horses," by Robert Carson and Bartlett Cormack. Story deals with the purchase of airplanes by the Allies from the United States.

Poole, Bruen Return From Neely Hearings

LOS ANGELES—Both Robert Poole, executive secretary of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, and Hugh Bruen, PCCITO trustee and member of the board of directors, of the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz., have returned from Washington where they were sent as delegates by the two organizations to attend Congressional hearings anent the Neely bill. Both groups have adopted resolutions in opposition to its passage.

Bruen is expected to present a report on what occurred to the ITO directorate within a few days. Poole has already filed his report with the PCCITO's trustees and declared that he will make an announcement in regard to the trip in accordance with instructions which he momentarily expects to receive from the board of trustees. The two delegates were gone for nearly two weeks.

RKO Awards Gold Badges To Samuels, Whitehead

NEW YORK—J. F. Samuels and S. W. Whitehead, both of Los Angeles, were awarded gold badges at the annual RKO convention here for selling 100 per cent of their possibilities this past season.

Ned Depinet, RKO vice-president in charge of sales, also awarded sterling silver badges for selling 90 per cent or more of their possibilities, to Louis L. Goldsmith, Seattle; Joseph P. Rubenstein, Los Angeles, and Gene M. Engleman and S. S. McFadden, Portland, Ore.

With Seattle Bid

SEATTLE — Carbon Webber and O. R. McLain, delegates to the musicians' international convention in Indianapolis, have left for the east with Seattle's bid to hold the conclave here during June, 1941. Webber is business agent and McLain is president of the local union.

LOS ANGELES

GENE GERBASE, manager of Republic's Denver exchange, stopped in at the local office for a visit en route home after attending the company's regional meeting in San Francisco recently . . . Charles Emanuel, former independent distributor, and Lew Goldstein, of Astor Pictures, took their minds off the war situation by means of a friendly—more or less—game of pinochle.

To negotiate distribution contracts here, John Jenkins sr., distributor of Negro pictures in Atlanta and Dallas, is spending several days along the Row. He plans to visit San Francisco before returning to his southern headquarters. Jenkins is the father of the Johnny Jenkins, who whipped Lou Ambers to win the lightweight boxing crown . . . Booking visitors: Wade Loudermilk, who operates theatres in Buckeye and Glendale, Arizona; A. E. Rice, Admiral, Hollywood; Ben Aranda, Eureka, Brawley.

John Sonnenshine, son of Henry Sonnenshine of Premier Pictures, celebrated his 17th birthday June 1. His father, incidentally, has been horseback-riding to lose weight, with no noticeable results as yet . . . Republic booked its "Gangs of Chicago," featuring Lloyd Nolan, for a first-run in the Orpheum, downtown, opening June 5.

Henry Sonnenshine of Premier Pictures has checked out for New York on a business trip . . . Sam Milner and Foster Blake, Universal salesmen, pulled out for trips through their respective territories . . . Louis Huntington, brother of Tommy Huntington of the Seville, Chula Vista, in for bookings, pinch-hitting for his brother . . . Astor Pictures has changed the title of "Our Daily Bread," made by King Vidor several years ago and now being reissued, to "Hell's Crossroads."

Al O'Keefe, Universal's western district manager, pulled out for a jaunt around his Pacific Coast exchanges . . . George Alderman, general manager of Constance Bennett, Inc., the cosmetics giveaway firm, has returned from a trip to San Francisco, where he conferred with Howard Butler, his Bay City representative. Butler was formerly Monogram's branch manager there. Alderman reported that Harry Taylor, his sales manager and formerly a National Screen Service executive, has closed 47 deals for the company in Dallas —ten of them with the Griffith circuit, the balance with Interstate.

Eddie Collins, M-G-M clerk, is pinch-hitting for Gordon Wilson, booker, who is vacationing . . . E. C. Shriver, district manager, and Stan M. Periseau, district service supervisor at Altec, were in the territory . . . In New York for a ten-day business trip was Sam Blowitz of the Congress film exchange . . . Eddie Cooke, Universal office manager, is ill at home . . . Harry Stern, general manager of Film Alliance exchange, returned from a business trip which took him to San Francisco and other northern cities.

George Harter, who operates the Arvin here, came in to do some booking . . . Jack Berman, Eastland Theatres, was another visitor; ditto Mason Siler, Lido, Newport Beach; Fred Siegel, Palomar and Margo theatres, Oceanside, and Earl Strebe of Palm Springs . . . The RKO office and sales personnel has returned from the company's annual sales convention in New York . . . Attracting plenty of attention along the Row was Billy Sobelman, operator of the Victor, who appeared in rube costume and entertained—roughly speaking—his friends with his one-man band contraption.

Jack Jacobs and William Callahan, M-G-M salesmen, checked in from their respective vacations . . . Bulk of the exchanges observed the Memorial Day holiday . . . The Monogram exchange is being remodeled and renovated . . . Adele Walter, Monogram secretary, is back on the job after a two-week holiday in Portland.

Harry M. Humbert, manager of Filmrow's Bank of America branch, is expected to return to work in a week or so. He has been away for several months recuperating from a serious operation.

D. B. Lederman, general manager in the Philippines for 20th Century-Fox, here briefly, is continuing on to New York for conferences with homeoffice sales executives . . . Astor Pictures has acquired distribution rights in this territory to "Double Crime on the Maginot Line."

Under the supervision of Bill Kohler of Astor Pictures, "Vivere," Italian-language feature starring Tita Schipa, operatic tenor, is running at the Criterion . . . Mike Levinson, independent distributor now handling "White Zombie," pulled out for San Francisco on business.

Hi Peskay is handling key-center openings for Majestic's "Mill on the Floss" throughout the state . . . Harry Denny, Majestic salesman, meantime is covering the San Diego territory plugging the exchange's other releases.

The Paramount exchange was closed one day last week when funeral services were held for Carroll Peacock, branch manager . . . A dinner-dance has been scheduled by the Los Angeles Motion Picture Club for June 10 at Topsy's. Guy Gunderson is in charge of arrangements.

Booking visitors: Dave Rector, Ebell, Long Beach; Art La Shelle, Riviera and Avalon, Catalina Island; Al Galston, of the Marcal, Hawaii and Center; Irwin Kanowitz of the Union . . . Bessie Booth, of M-G-M's contract department, and Gordon Wilson, Metro booker, are both off on two-week vacations. Bessie has headed for Boulder City and Las Vegas, while Gordon has no definite plans.

In for a short stay at the local exchange is John Ash, auditor from the M-G-M homeoffice. His last stop was in Salt Lake City . . . Another Metro exchange visitor was Etta Sabaty of the contract department in the Cleveland office, who is on vacation. She formerly worked in the local office . . . Coast Pictures is reissuing the Producers Pictures release, "Goose Step," as "Hitler—Beast of Berlin."

Contract-Signing Time Troublous in Chicago

By B. O. TELLER

CHICAGO—While it is still much too early for the Chicago buying on a major scale, rumblings along Filmrow nevertheless presage a real tug-of-war when dickering between the exhibitors and the exchange men does get under way.

Of course, in many of the out-state spots the salesmen are making deals with the exhibitors, with percentage contracts by far in the majority. Most country deals usually are percentage deals and they are leaning more that way for the 1940-41 season than in the past.

In the Windy City itself, it is another proposition. Chicago has long been noted as one of the bulwarks of flat-percentage contracts, with only occasionally single-picture deals being for percentages. Metro broke this down, however, in its favor a few seasons back and since then generally has been getting four percentage pictures every year, with the result on flat figures.

For the 1940-41 season, all the branch managers are armed with home office instructions for upping deals wherever possible. This is due, of course, mainly to the loss of the foreign revenue of the companies, which they feel must be made up in the domestic market; and also because of the higher production costs on the west coast. And one way the branch managers have figured out for their salesmen to get more revenue is to seek at least a certain number of top-bracket pictures at percentages.

However, feelers in this direction have met with utter disregard from local exhibitors thus far. Many of them, questioned by BOXOFFICE but declining to be quoted, have said they will stick by their guns for flat-rental again in 1940-41.

Thus stands the picture; and again it is expected that both sides will make overtures and reject them until the last minute late in October or early November when general-release will make the first of the 1940-41 product available to the majority of Chicago houses.

To Entertain Allied Men

CHICAGO—Anticipating a large crowd of visiting Allied exhibitors during their convention here, Irving Mack of Filmack Trailer Co., announces extensive plans are being made to entertain and receive visitors and show them "what makes the wheels of Filmack go 'round."

Arbitration Proposal Will Get Attention at Allied Meet

CHICAGO—Open forum discussions on an Allied arbitration proposal to be presented to the distributors is expected to highlight the 11th annual Allied national convention, June 19 to 21, at the Morrison Hotel here, according to Jack Kirsch, president of Illinois Allied and general convention chairman.

"I am definitely in favor of arbitration and will bring this matter up before the convention for general open discussion," Kirsch said this week. His plan of arbitration would be for a five-man board in each exchange center, the members to be composed of one from an affiliated circuit, one representing the exchanges, two representing independent exhibitors, and one neutral member that would be satisfactory to both independents and affiliated circuits and exchanges.

Duals a Topic

Double features also will be up for considerable discussion at the convention. Kirsch has consistently opposed duals and he said that he expected the convention to pass a resolution attacking duals, and requesting the producers to do something about it.

The Neely bills on block-booking and divorcement will be among the other topics to be discussed.

About 1,000 Allied members, representing the 22 units of the national association are expected to be in attendance, headed by H. A. Cole, president, and Abram F. Myers, general counsel. Daily open sessions will be held every afternoon, from 2 to 5 o'clock, with directors' meetings scheduled in the mornings. A pre-convention directors' board meeting will be held Tuesday, June 18, also at the Morrison.

The registration fee of $10 per person will include dinner parties Wednesday night, June 19, at the Colony Club; Thursday night, June 20, at the Chez Paree, where Harry Richman is the headliner; and the annual banquet, Friday night, June 21, in the Terrace Room of the Morrison, preceded by a cocktail party Friday afternoon in the hotel. Dress will be informal or formal at all of the evening affairs.

Majors' Representatives

Special consideration is being given wives of delegates to the convention. They are invited to attend all evening functions, which will be covered by their registration fee, in addition to a tour of the city, and a luncheon and Keno party Friday afternoon, June 21, at the Palmer House. Souvenir gifts will be provided for all, as will admission badges for all the loop theatres.

Among the major company representatives expected to attend are Ned E. Depinet and H. M. Richey, RKO; Al Lichtman, William F. Rodgers and Jack Flynn, M-G-M; Jack Schlaifer, United Artists; William Gehring, 20th Century-Fox, and James R. Grainger, Republic. Numerous others have indicated they will attend if the all-industry suit in New York does not detain them.

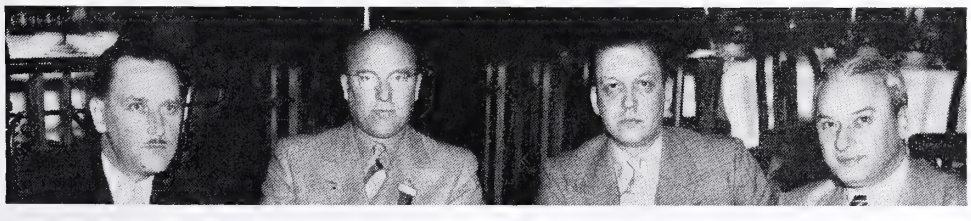
ITPA Move to Clarify Clearance Questions

MILWAUKEE—To clarify clearance questions which have arisen from time to time recently in several state situations, the ITPA has mailed to its members a general zoning and protection sheet based on a schedule adopted in 1933.

Information contained in this schedule is expected to assist in ironing out situations where exhibitors in some instances have played product not in adherence to the schedule, according to Harry Perlewitz, business manager for the association.

Exhibitors are also being urged to see to it that their new contracts contain clauses giving the admission prices charged by houses running the pictures ahead of them, so that they may have some recourse should such prior run theatres reduce their admissions after the subsequents had based their running policy on the prior run's policy.

Perlewitz reports the association has made excellent progress in its membership drive in the state, particularly in southern Wisconsin, where membership in the association among independents is practically 100 per cent.



Gruenberg and Spiers Get Gold Badges From Depinet

NEW YORK—L. S. Gruenberg of St. Louis and E. E. Spiers, Milwaukee, were awarded gold badges at the annual RKO convention here by Ned Depinet, vice-president in charge of sales, for selling 100 per cent of their possibilities this past season.

Receiving sterling silver badges for selling 90 per cent or more of their possibilities were Sam Gorelick of Chicago and M. A. Raymon, St. Louis.

Steel Employment Rise Aids Theatres Little

CHICAGO—Despite a war-boom in the steel district of Calumet, in nearby northern Indiana, theatre admissions have not gone up as expected, it is learned from the various circuits operating there, including Warner, B&K and Indiana-Illinois theatres.

Business is holding up well in those towns, including Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting, Gary, Indiana Harbor and Calumet City, but it has not come up to what had been expected. It is estimated that nearly $2,000,000 worth of construction work is in progress there and that numerous of the steel mills are operating to between 70 and 80 per cent of capacity, and with about 40,000 men employed. Despite this, many of them are seeking entertainment other than motion pictures, such as softball, bowling, golf, and other competitive sports.

Warner, however, has found that the introduction of name band acts on Sundays at their Paramount, Hammond, is resulting in SRO business. The inaugural band, Dick Jergens, broke the house attendance record with 8,365 paid admissions in the 1,900-seat theatre. Subsequent Sundays will find Henry Busse, Lawrence Welk, Mickey Isley with Eddie Chase of the local "Make-believe Ballroom" radio program, and Clyde McCoy doing one-day stands.

Employment, Payrolls Slide in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS—Comparison of April employment and payroll estimates in Indiana with those for March show mixed trends among the various industry groups, while figures for all manufacturing groups combined, reveal net losses for the fourth consecutive month. Both payrolls and employment, however, continue to show to good advantage when compared with conditions a year ago.

Estimates for April showed almost 22,500 more wage earners employed in manufacturing industries, and weekly payrolls more than $910,000 higher than at the same period in 1939. These amounts represent respective gains of 8.8 per cent and 14.2 per cent. Non-manufacturing groups showed increases of 3,000 wage earners and $141,000 in payrolls for percentage gains of 2 and 4.6, respectively, over a year ago.

Estimates showed 278,481 wage earners in Indiana manufacturing plants at mid-April with a weekly payroll of $7,322,541. These estimates were each 1.3 per cent under March figures. The net loss in factory employment for the month ending April 15 was approximately 3,700, and payrolls receded $93,000 per week during the same period.

Losses and gains were fairly evenly distributed among the 44 individual manufacturing industries studied. There were 21 employment and 20 payroll gains from March to April against 23 employment and 24 payroll losses. Greater part of the losses was concentrated in the durable goods manufacturing group. Employment decreases in automobiles, steel mills, railroad repair shops, and furniture plants when combined, accounted for 98 per cent of the total April loss in factory employment.

Combined estimates for the seven groups of non-manufacturing industries studied showed a loss of .2 per cent in employment and no change in payrolls from March to April. Employment in these groups at mid-April was estimated at 153,197, and payrolls at $3,202,936 weekly. Coal mining was the only non-manufacturing group studied which decreased both employment and payrolls from March to April.

Jolson Has Trouble Naming His Comedy

Chicago—For the fourth consecutive week, Al Jolson has changed the name of his new musical comedy coming into the Grand Opera House here July 7. This week's title was "Hold On to Your Hats."

Previous titles were "Silks and Satins," "Keep Punchin'," and "Silks and Saddles.

Hit Heffernan for Airing Problems of Industry

CHICAGO—Exhibitors and many distributor executives this week were deploring the utter frankness with which Harold Heffernan, Hollywood writer, discussed the industry's problems in one of his columns.

"What Heffernan wrote may be true," said one distributor head, "but that type of story belongs—if anywhere—in a trade paper and certainly not in the daily newspapers. Such inner problems of the steel or automotive industries would certainly not be similarly written.

"Its overseas market completely wiped out and so-called 'foreign' business returning a mere nine per cent (this from Latin nations), Hollywood was trembling today on the eve of a giant reorganization," wrote Heffernan.

"Industry leaders," he continued, "emerging from daily conferences, admit that shifts in the entire motion picture setup must be made as thoroughly and as quickly as possible.

"The shakeup, which will be felt not alone in Hollywood studios but in New York home offices, film exchanges and even in the 15,000 or more theatres now operating throughout the nation, must effect a general savings of approximately 35 per cent. And in actuality—not on paper."

There was more in a similar vein, but in brutal detail.

Near Red Cross Quota

CHICAGO—The amusement industry was expected to go over the top this week in its Red Cross war fund drive. Its quota was $10,000.

Niblo Finishes Script

HOLLYWOOD—Fred Niblo jr. has completed the script of "The Amazing Story of Sergeant York" for Producer Jesse Lasky. Warner will release.

Nice Weather Ruins Takes in Chicago

CHICAGO—With the first exceptionally nice weekend of the summer coming over Decoration Day, exhibitors suffered the biggest drop in attendance this season thus far. Even the loop houses were off considerably.

One house, however, going along at a steady pace in the loop is the Telenews, managed by Sylvan Goldfinger. Where patrons in most other theatres complain about too much war copy in newsreels, etc., there are enough patrons from Chicago's millions and regular transients in the loop to keep the house well occupied most of the time. The house features latest war films from all of the reels, with short subjects.

Anniversary Celebration Lined Up by Turrell

CHICAGO—Ted Turrell, manager of the Warner Beverly, has arranged several special events for the celebration of the fifth anniversary of the opening of the house this week. Among them:

Flowers to the first 100 women patrons attending on June 4, the actual anniversary date.

A large cake in the lobby, to be surrounded by star stills and wires from the stars appearing in the anniversary week pictures.

A congratulatory trailer to the Beverly from Bob Hope to be run the current week.

A parade of new cars from local neighborhood dealers is planned during the week.

All restaurants in the neighborhood will feature an "Anniversary Dinner a la Beverly."

Several Chicago Houses Sign for Broadcast

CHICAGO—The Mont Clare Theatre Corp. has renewed its radio advertising contract with Marian Whitney, commentator for "Whitney's Whispers on Hollywood" Tuesdays and Fridays regularly over WEDC.

George Gehring of the Rosewood began his first term with this program June 4.

In addition to regular "commercials," special contests and other publicity stunts will be aired. An exclusive Judy Garland contest conducted by Marian Whitney is in progress this week. Awards, which will consist of autographed inscribed portraits and a purse worn by Judy in "Babes in Arms," will be sent by the star to the winning contestants. Contest-arrangements were made by Bill Bishop, Metro's midwestern publicity man.

Columbia Gems

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—With the temperature hovering between 80 and 90 in summer's first Chicago blast, the Columbia conventioneers were certainly grateful to Bernie Zeeman, arrangements committee-in-one, for having the convention room at the Blackstone air-conditioned.

Bill Kahl, formerly with Warner, was among the new salesmen at the convention. He is now with the Chicago office handling Indiana and eastern Illinois.

Clarence Hill, St. Louis manager, with a new set of glasses he habitually forgot, always needed an interpreter for the menus at lunch and dinner . . . Jim Bradford, St. Louis' pride of the Ozarks, trying out a new set of "store-teeth," was continually being fed candy bars by his fellow-salesmen . . . Russell Mortensen, office manager, St. Louis, had a list of "do's" and "don'ts" presented to him by the missus before he left for the convention. So when everybody wanted lobster for dinner, Russ was different and wanted night clubs . . . Charlie Ferris was sporting that four-in-one suit of his. Right after Art LaPlante heard Jack Cohn's speech, he was for going back to St. Louis and getting those three unsold accounts "set straight" so they could take advantage of all "the wonderful things Columbia has for next season."

Jack Thomas, Chicago exploiteer, did a swell job of getting pictures for the trade papers, while Al Sherman was right on hand with every bit of information needed.

Every salesman received a complete packet on next season's lineup which included a product brochure, a pressbook on "Fight for Life" which Columbia will distribute, and special literature on "Royal Mail," "I Married Adventure," and "The Howards of Virginia."

Two trailers on forthcoming product were run off for the salesmen, including "Arizona" and "The Howards of Virginia."

Among Chicago exhibitors at the beefsteak party Tuesday night were: Sam Schoenstadt, Walter Immerman, John and Dave Balaban, Joe Stern, Julius Goodman, Jim Booth, Dave Wallerstein, Henry Stickelmaier, John Dromy, Abe and Joe Kaufman, Lou Reinheimer, Jack Rose, Al Raymer, Bill Hollander, Jack Kirsch, Jules Rubens, Nate Platt, Ed Mager, Alex Halperin, Frank Williams, Benny Lasker, Joe Koppel, Mort Goldman, Joe Weiss and Stanley Butte; George Kerasotes, Springfield; Sam Traynor, Princeton, Ill.; Roland Viner, Anderson circuit; Harold Fitzgerald and Eddie Alperson, Fox-Wisconsin, Milwaukee; and Henri Elman.

Max Weisfeldt, short subjects sales manager, stood up for every one of the state songs played.

Dick Sachsel did his usual "Nick Depopulos" stunt, which got a big laugh from the conventioneers.

Special Newspaper Edition Promotes "Movie Season"

KENOSHA, WIS.—E. R. Brennan, manager of Standard's Kenosha Theatre, promoted a "Greater Wisconsin Movie Season" special eight-page newspaper edition here which included personally autographed pictures from stars used in advertisements of merchants which appeared in the section.

The movement was given the endorsement of City Manager H. C. Laughlin and Harold Woodlief, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and the special section, in addition to carrying the stars pictures, had statements from Don Ameche, Pat O'Brien, Spencer Tracy, Fredric March, Dennis Morgan and John Litel, all of whom lived in Wisconsin at one time or another, and from Miriam Hopkins, who attended Kemper Hall in Kenosha at one time.

American Flag Displayed By Wisconsin Theatres

MILWAUKEE—Wisconsin theatres are cooperating in the widespread appeal to patriotism by display of the American flag and special ceremonies.

Acting on instructions from James E. Coston, Chicago, zone manager for Harry M. Warner, the Warner Bros., Warner-Saxe, Saxe, Standard and Rio-Appleton circuits, numbering some 40 houses in the state, are displaying the flag daily.

The Fox circuit, with 51 houses in Wisconsin and upper Michigan, will continue display of the flag, a practice initiated last year. In each of the theatres in these chains, the flag is displayed prominently in the lobby and is usually one of the first things which the theatregoer sees as he enters the house.

ST. LOUIS

HERMAN D. OLIAN, senior assistant to Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, announces he will seek nomination for the circuit court subject to the Democratic primaries. He has many friends in the local film colony. Charley Goldman of the Rivoli is his campaign manager.

Marcus Steinberg, 12-year-old son of Nat Steinberg of Republic Pictures, will swim this summer as a member of the Shaw team of Clayton, Mo. For the past two years he has been the junior champion in YMCA circles and second in the senior class, which embraces boys from 16 to 20 years of age.

Remodeling of the building housing Exhibitors Supply Co. will be completed in about two or three weeks . . . Sol J. Hankin, who has returned to St. Louis as a salesman for Universal under Harry Hynes, has been renewing his many acquaintances among exhibitors in St. Louis and in the nearby territory. Hankin at one time operated his own exchange here, Fine Arts Pictures.

'Smiley' Burnette Due for Series of Personal Turns

ST. LOUIS—"Smiley" Burnette, popular Republic western star, was due here June 7 for a week of personal appearances in this territory.

He has been booked for the Longwood and Shenandoah theatres here, the Ritz, Farmington, Mo.; Valley Park, Mo.; Plaza, Potosi, Mo.; Effingham, Effingham, Ill., and the Roxy, Shelbyville, Ill.

Burnette will be accompanied by the "Hillbilly Trio" who appear with him in the Gene Autrys for Republic.

From Shoe-Dog to Showman

ST. LOUIS—An ex-shoe-dog from Peoria, Ill., who turned his sales talents to show business with remarkable results, is currently presenting his "Hollywood Preview" promotion at various units of the St. Louis Amusement Co.

Already he has covered four of the company's string of 31 houses, and tentative plans call for the coverage of the entire circuit at the rate of six houses a month, after which he goes to Chicago to fill a contract with a circuit there.

Roger Gibbons, 27, who has put on over 300 of these "Hollywood Previews," mostly at neighborhood houses, has never been west of Keokuk.

His stunt is to go into the areas of a neighborhood theatre with six girls, his permanent staff, and solicit merchants for cooperation on the plan that calls for the discovery of doubles of big names in films and radio. When those most closely resembling Kay Kyser, Groucho Marx, Mae West, Hedy Lamarr, Ann Sheridan, Bing Crosby, etc., are contacted, they are quizzed on their singing and dancing talent.

Gibbons then begins rehearsals that last two weeks. In the meantime merchants have agreed to land evening gowns, soup and fish, jewelry, furs, etc., for participants in the preview. The theatre uses trailers in which the merchants' names are used, ups its advertising budget, and further ballys the big night with sound trucks, Neon lights, etc.

When the big night arrives, those who have survived the weeding out process are driven in shiny autos, promoted from a dealer, to the theatre which is dressed up with lights for the occasion. The neighborhood Mae West is escorted from a patrol wagon by phony cops, and the "Marx Bros." leap nimbly from a hook and ladder truck which comes clanging up to the theatre. Each is given a chance to thank the management over a mike. With a band furnished by the theatre management, the principals give two 40-minute stage shows with the flickers sandwiched between. The stunt usually fills the house for each of the two shows.

At the Washington in Granite City, Ill., Gibbons' glorified gimmick attracted 4,000, or five times the normal draw. Gibbons' contract requires the management of the theatre not to hike the price scale for the occasion.

CHICAGO

FREDDIE MINDLIN, publicity director for International Enterprises, has been named to the Allied convention publicity committee by Duke Hickey, chairman.

Clarence Hill, St. Louis Columbia branch manager, here for his company's convention, was telling everyone about the graduation from St. Louis University medical school this week of Anthony Kerasotes, son of Gus Kerasotes of the Kerasotes circuit, Springfield. He is now a full-fledged physician and surgeon.

A Chicago film leader whose name is among the 1940-41 "Who's Who in America" is Leo Spitz . . . B&K's Archie Herzoff was vacationing this week in the north.

Several B&K "graduates" were recent visitors at the offices, including Louis Lipstone, now Paramount musical director; Saul Bragin, formerly short subjects booker and now with Warner Theatres in Cleveland; Max Facter, now with Pioneer Theatres, Minneapolis, who returned to be engaged to Dorothy Pappaf; and Kenneth Fitzpatrick, now with Paramount on the west coast, who was a member of the circuit of Fitzpatrick & McElroy, later taken over by Great States.

Pence James is the new critic on the Chicago Daily News . . . Barney Balaban is one Chicagoan from the film industry listed among those in the 1940-41 edition of "Who's Who in America."

Sophie Tucker, currently at the Oriental, is working on her life story, "The Life of a Red Hot Mamma" . . . Al Dezel's "Fools of Desire" is currently at the Gem. Dezel returned this week from Detroit and St. Louis, where he set up several dates on this picture.

Sally Rand, who was at the B&K State-Lake this week, hosted a party for newspaper folk at the Sherman last week, with girls from her show as hostesses . . . Bill Bishop, M-G-M exploiteer, was vacationing this week in his home town of Oklahoma City. With him was Mrs. Bishop.

When Anna Neagle made that trip in an American Airlines plane over Chicago for the WGN broadcast tieup on "Irene," among those on the trip were Bob Hickey, RKO exploiteer here; Lou Alleman II, RKO New York publicist; Buel Patterson, American Airlines publicity director; Herbert Wilcox, Frank Schreiber of WGN, and Gene Rich of BOXOFFICE.

Pat O'Brien, Warner star, was here to take part in one of the weekly WGN "Pageant of America" broadcasts." He came in and went back on the Santa Fe Super-Chief.

In an effort to strengthen advance sales B&K is advertising its three-house subsequent run of "Gone With the Wind" for four-days instead of a week. Should sales perk up, the film will go a full week.

Deerfield Company Formed

DEERFIELD, ILL.—A charter to conduct theatrical enterprises has been issued by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes to Schaaf and Schur, Inc., 200 Ravine Drive, Deerfield.

Want No Grimness in Film Fare—Wilcox

CHICAGO—American film fans, harried enough by world events that are actually happening without looking for more realism in a make-believe world, are seeking light, musical entertainment. Thus, musical comedies will top all other forms of film production during 1940-41, in the opinion of English Producer Herbert Wilcox.

Wilcox was here with his protege and star, Anna Neagle, who made a two-day personal appearance at the Oriental, in connection with the Chicago opening there of RKO's "Irene," in which she is starred. She also appeared in a radio adaptation of the musical over WGN and 130 affiliated Mutual network radio stations, plugging the picture.

"I am certain that the country is looking for light, frothy film-fare," said Wilcox. "It has been proved to us in the personal appearance Miss Neagle has made everywhere with 'Irene.' Thus far we have hit 11 cities in our cross-country tour, and in every spot she has broken house records. We can tell by this effect around the country that people who pay to see their film entertainment are not in the market for serious subjects these days."

However, now that Miss Neagle is being established in this tour as a young, capable actress, RKO is going to release after "Irene," a film they have had in the cans here for over a year, "Queen of Destiny," in which the star appears as England's Queen Elizabeth, and which was the last film Wilcox produced in England.

"The way things are now back in Britain," said Wilcox, "it appears certain that we will not attempt production there for some time to come. So, the next two pictures scheduled for Miss Neagle—"No, No, Nanette" and "Sunny"—will both be made in Hollywood for RKO release."

Touring with Wilcox and Miss Neagle is Terry Turner of S. Barret McCormick's exploitation staff.

B&K Subsequent Runs Are Ready to Test "GWTW"

CHICAGO—Should the test runs of "Gone With the Wind" in three B&K suburban houses prove successful this weekend, a second batch of subsequents will run the picture starting June 21.

The runs this week began Friday at the Riviera, Tower and State, with B&K ad copy stressing that "you will see this great picture now near your home, exactly as presented in the loop!" All of the runs, of course, will keep the same price as the loop, 75 cents and $1.10.

Renew Keighley Pact

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has given William Keighley a new directorial pact. His current chore is "No Time for Comedy."

IN A tieup with station WEMP, Fox is broadcasting war news in the lobbies of its Strand, Wisconsin and Palace theatres in downtown Milwaukee . . . Alterations are underway at the Paramount exchange here at a cost of about $5,000 . . . Guan Mun-Tsing and Miss Tso Yie-Mien, Chinese motion picture director and actress, respectively, were local visitors.

Lawrence Kelly, manager of the Majestic, cooperated with the Cudahy junior chamber of commerce in its fingerprinting work in connection with Crime Prevention week . . . Lincoln at Kenosha is now offering patrons a choice between dinnerware or kitchenware giveaways on Thursdays and Fridays.

E. J. Weisfeldt's Riverside, which has had an admission policy of 25 cents to 1 p. m., 30 cents to 6 p. m. and 35 cents thereafter, except for name attractions when the ante was raised, has announced a summer policy of 25 cents until 5:30 p. m. and after that 30 cents for the balcony and 40 cents for the lower floor.

Life size pictures of Spencer Tracy dressed in academic cap and gown will decorate the mid-town section of Ripon June 10 when Tracy returns to his alma mater to receive the honorary degree of doctor of dramatic arts at Ripon College . . . Charles W. Trampe, local exhibitor and exchange man, is on a combination business and pleasure trip to the west coast.

Harry McDonald, manager of the Warner, was host at a midnight preview of "Our Town" to the national convention of Women's Clubs here. Among those attending was Mrs. A. L. Murray of Eau Claire, Wis., state motion picture chairman of the Federation of Women's Clubs. She is a member of the National Screen Council, which each month selects for BOXOFFICE the outstanding release to receive the Blue Ribbon Award.

Discussions on Police Circus Reported Held

ST. LOUIS—Although there has been no official announcements as yet, it is reported along Filmrow that the Board of Police Commissioners discussed with officials of the Police Relief Ass'n the complaints from rival motion picture theatre owners that the Fanchon & Marco-managed theatres were played too prominently in connection with the recent annual Police Circus at the Arena.

Principal cause for the "beefing" was the coupon arrangement through which persons providing the Fanchon & Marco interests with certain information about the Police Circus acts, etc., were given the opportunity to obtain a reduction in admission charges at Fanchon & Marco first run houses. Those reputedly informed say the commissioners have given assurances that "it won't happen again."

Fanchon & Marco provided the acts and managed the details of the successful circus, which set a new record for attendance and receipts, although the net dropped some $25,000 from last year.

Lovata Doubles Up

ST. LOUIS—Following the resignation of Tom Canavan, President Louis Lovata of Local B-1 (film exchange workers) is also acting business manager of the union. A permanent successor to Canavan, who resigned because of press of personal business affairs, will be elected at the next meeting of the union scheduled for June 22.

B&K Meets Situation

CHICAGO—Crack crowd-handling ushers of the B&K circuit have been shifted to the company's loop houses to remain there during the rest of the blasting beneath the loop streets for the Chicago subway.

The reason: To keep audiences from stampeding exits when subway dynamiting blasts go off during the day. The blasts resound through the houses and some patrons are given to rush for the nearest exits when this occurs.

A Father-and-Son Night To Promote "My Son"

ST. LOUIS—A special father-and-son night for members of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs was promoted by Jimmy Harris, publicity and advertising director of Loew's, for "My Son, My Son." He also "planted" the story, in serial form, in the Post-Dispatch, a week before the film's run began.

Harris and Manager Harold D. "Chick" Evens snared swell picture layouts in the Globe-Democrat and Star-Times and obtained window space in department stores. Orchestrations from the film were distributed to radio stations and bands in prominent niteries. Street bally consisted of a husky youth toting a 6 by 4-foot replica of the book through the downtown business district two days before opening and one day after the run began.

ST. LOUIS—Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, a central figure in the fight of Circuit Judge George Rowe in his contempt of court proceedings against the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, has eliminated himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for re-election. In his statement, he said he plans to resume his private law practice at the conclusion of his present tenure in office. This is his third term of four years. Prior to that he was on the circuit bench.

The Post-Dispatch severely criticized Judge Rowe and Miller for their handling of the case charging conspiracy to extort $10,000 from certain theatre owners in the fall of 1936 against John P. Nick, former international vice-president of the IATSE, and State Representative Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady.

Attend IA Conclave

ST. LOUIS—The St. Louis delegates to the annual IATSE convention, in Louisville, were: Harry Barco, president of Local 143; William Robinson, vice-president, and George Rafferty, past president.

Andrew Karzas Dies After Brief Illness in Chicago

CHICAGO—Andrew Karzas, 58, a pioneer Chicago exhibitor and later builder and managing director of the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms, died here last week after a brief illness.

Karzas and a partner, Nicholas Nomikos, built and sold four south side theatres —the Monogram, Deluxe, Drexel and Woodlawn.

B&K Purchases Howard From Lester Retchin

CHICAGO—B&K purchased the Howard this week from Lester Retchin, who has operated the house for many years. It is one of the most important subsequents on the north side and just a few doors from the B&K Norshore. Retchin will be retained, it is understood, as manager of the theatre.

Whiteway Installs 80-Foot Sign on the B&K Tivoli

CHICAGO—Whiteway Sign has completed installation of the new 80-foot vertical sign on the B&K Tivoli on the south side, the largest outlying house sign in the midwest. The letters are seven feet high, and contain almost 5,000 lamps. It has a complicated, animated flashing system.

Variety's National Leaders in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY—A special dinner meeting of the Variety Club was held Tuesday at which Chief Barker John Harris, Assistant Chief Barker, R. J. O'Donnell and Dough Guy Jim Balmer were guests of honor. The meeting was devoted to a discussion of club activities here and in other cities with suggestions made by Harris and O'Donnell as to how to extend the scope and service of Variety Club charities.

The local chapter determined upon a membership drive, plans to be worked out at a committee meeting next Monday. Tentatively it was decided to make a drive for more exhibitor members and to enlist exhibitor activity, in keeping with the example set by Commonwealth Theatres, headed by Clarence Schultz.

Harris, O'Donnell and Balmer came here from Oklahoma City where they presented that new chapter with its charter at inaugural ceremonies in the club's new quarters in the Black Hotel. From here the trio went to Detroit to make presentation of the 1939 Award for outstanding humanitarian work in which the Variety Club there excelled last year.

KANSAS CITY—Reaffirmation of Variety Club's first purpose, charity, was made at Variety Clubrooms here June 4 by John Harris, national president, Pittsburgh. Following a dinner attended by more than 50 members of the club, Harris spoke feelingly of the charitable work and plans of national Variety. He pointed out that in 1939, 21 clubs spent $365,000 for a wide variety of charitable purposes, and presented free performances to 200,000 children. In this work Kansas City's tent participated creditably, and will do more as time goes on, Harris predicted.

John Moffitt Will Script Autry Film for Republic

KANSAS CITY—John C. Moffitt, motion picture editor of the Kansas City Star, is on a two-months' leave of absence to do a writing chore for Republic Pictures. Moffitt has been engaged to do a script for a Gene Autry production. Bill Vaughn is handling Moffitt's work at the Star during his absence.

Nebraska's Attorney General Cracks Down on Cash Games

LINCOLN—Atty.-Gen. Walter Johnson is making a concerted drive "to give the show business back to showmen in Nebraska"—slapping court attack on any and all schemes, or games, "which have invaded theatres as a dodge to gain admissions by the appeal of chance, rather than the appeal of films."

In the last two weeks, Johnson has done three things:

1. Declared screeno-quiz a lottery and illegal, saying it presumes to arrive at the same goal as Bank Night through most of the processes, but by a more devious route.

2. Arrested Don Allen, Omaha theatre manager, and brought action to stop the use of Prosperity Clubs, as used by all Omaha theatres and others in the state.

3. Issued instructions to county attorneys to institute immediate action, when and if any game, or idea, is used, which seems to conflict with Nebraska's lottery laws.

Through four straight attorney general administrations in Nebraska now—C. A. Sorensen, Bill Wright, Dick Hunter, and now Johnson—theatre games have had an unhappy time.

Judicial Approval for Prosperity Club

OMAHA—Prosperity Club, giveaway plan sponsored by Omaha theatres, has been given judicial approval by Municipal Judge Lester Palmer.

Palmer refused to accept the contention of city attorneys that the weekly drawings as they are conducted constitute a violation of the lottery laws. He upheld the contention of the theatres' attorney that one element of a lottery, "consideration," is not a part of the plan.

The plan is as follows:

1. A person must register at any one of Omaha's 23 theatres on Wednesday, the day of the giveaway. No admission ticket is necessary in order to register.

2. The prize is $500, increasing $250 per week when not awarded.

3. The winner's name is drawn from a master list of all registrations. If he has not registered that Wednesday, he does not get the award and it is passed a week.

4. The winner need not be in the theatre to win.

City attorneys argued that under the Nebraska supreme court's ruling outlawing Bank Night in the state, increased business is a consideration enough to provide the necessary lottery element.

Judge Palmer said in his ruling, "Things in and of themselves must be real. To hold that the mere signing of a card would constitute consideration would be too great a stretch of the imagination."

In order to bring about a test case of the Prosperity Club in the local courts, Manager Don Allen of the Omaha Theatre, Tri-States house, submitted to arrest on a lottery charge. The complaint was dismissed, thereby giving the plan the green light.

Judge Palmer added that, in reality, Omaha theatres are merely making a donation to some person chosen by lot. He pointed out, without mentioning specific programs, that "similar donations are being made on national radio programs."

Proponents of the giveaway plan hope it will "catch on" soon to boost attendance receipts.

At the RKO Sales Meeting—

Northwest Indes Again Oppose % Films, Ask Lower Rentals

MINNEAPOLIS—Independent exhibitors of the territory have gone on record again against percentage pictures. At the same time they are demanding a 25 to 33 1/3 per cent reduction in film rentals.

Meeting here this week at Northwest Allied's call 72 of the independents, representing more than 100 theatres agreed to support a Northwest Allied buying organization, if necessary, in order to force the reduction which, it was declared, is essential if they are to remain in business.

Present and prospective boxoffice conditions make lower film costs imperative, according to the sense of the meeting.

Support for Allied

Expressing "absolute opposition" to percentage pictures, a resolution unanimously adopted asserted that "under no circumstances" will any percentage deals be made on the basis demanded by the various distributors. Northwest Allied board of directors was instructed to notify all independent theatre owners in the territory of the action.

The exhibitors emphatically made it plain that they will continue to support the Allied organization. They agreed they will do everything within their power to build it into the strongest body the territory ever has had. The hope was expressed every independent theatre owner in the territory will be enrolled by the end of the current season.

Prior to the meeting, there was some fear the organization would break up. A comparatively few of the leaders, who have been bearing the major share of the financial burden, were in a rebellious mood. They expressed themselves as tired of paying the costs while non-paying independents reaped the benefits. They also complained that proper support and cooperation have not been forthcoming in too many instances and that in numerous cases members would not abide by the organization's decrees. However, harmony was restored at the meeting this week.

Propose "Coalition"

One of the proposals was for a "coalition" government to represent the various "factions" among the independents. It is expected President W. A. Steffes, now on a sick leave, will step out on account of his ill health and that E. L. Peaslee, Stillwater, Minn., exhibitor, now vice-president, will be chosen in his place.

The Northwest board meeting this week, is expected to decide on an executive secretary who will be in active charge of the organization's activities. The name will be submitted to a convention to be called late this month or in early July for ratification. At the present time Charlie Weiner, former local Monogram branch manager and part owner, is believed to have the inside track for the position. Eph Rosen, long a film salesman in the territory, also has thrown his hat in the ring.

Stuart Palmer Scripting

HOLLYWOOD—Stuart Palmer is scripting "Belle of Atlanta" for Republic.

How Tom Edwards Sold The Two "Edisons"

Eldon, Mo.—Here's an idea that really worked for Tom Edwards of the Ozark here. He held back "Young Tom Edison" for seven weeks so he could play it just a week before he played "Edison, the Man." He advertised the pair as the "World's First Feature Serial," creating a lot of talk on both pictures. The same crowd that attended the first picture came back for the second. Word-of-mouth brought plenty more to the second. Other exhibitors can still use the idea.

Rebuilding the Liberty In Tune With Times

LINCOLN—Foresight of L. L. Dent in rebuilding the Liberty here is being saluted in the light of the alarming war developments.

The Liberty is being given a $70,000 fixing up, but only the theatre auditorium proper. The new theatre, fireproofed by a heavy firewall and completely modern, is being constructed within the old office building which is still standing and will be untouched.

Theatrerow onlookers figure it's the cleverest camouflage stunt in picture house building anywhere in the United States. Nobody would suspect from the antique exterior that the building housed the newest theatre on the street.

A Note for Theatremen in Better Business Bulletin

KANSAS CITY—Theatremen in this area will be interested in the following report contained in the Better Business Bulletin, Kansas City, published May 27:

"A man giving the name Gillett, driving a car with a California license, is reported to have taken $15 apiece from several merchants in a Kansas town who were to participate with the local theatre in a lottery stimulation plan.

"Merchants were to give numbered coupons to customers, and drawings would be held at the theatre awarding prizes to lucky coupon holders. Gillett did not return after he got the money, and the prizes and coupons were not delivered to the merchants. Please report to the bureau if this man comes to your attention."

Honor James Lewis

NEW YORK—For selling 90 per cent or more of his possibilities this past season, James Lewis, Kansas City, was awarded a sterling silver badge by Ned Depinet, RKO vice-president in charge of sales, at the company's annual convention here.

Avery on "Stuff of Heroes"

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has assigned Stephen Morehouse Avery to "Stuff of Heroes," from a story by Harold Titus.

Chain to Operate Two for Steffes

MINNEAPOLIS—As a result of a deal made with W. A. Steffes, who is compelled by illness to forego activities for the present, the Minnesota Amusement Co. will operate both the sure-seater World and the Alvin, owned by Steffes, for the next three years at least. In consequence of the deal, Steffes, who as Northwest Allied president and one-time national Allied States head, has fought producer-distributor ownership and operation of theatres bitterly hitherto, virtually becomes a partner of a producer-owned circuit in this situation, inasmuch as the Minnesota Amusement Co. is a Paramount subsidiary.

It was Steffes who virtually was instrumental in obtaining passage in North Dakota of the theatre divorcement law (later repealed), prohibiting producer-distributor ownership and operation of theatres. He also has battled hard for enactment of the Neely bill.

John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement president, announces the World will continue with its present policy of foreign and unusual films of the arty type. It also is expected the house will be used more than ever for extended first-runs downtown.

Hirsch Seeks One

Harry Hirsch, who long has operated stock and roadshow burlesque at the Gayety, is angling for the Alvin which has been dark much of the time during recent years. He would install a musical comedy revue-picture policy with continuous performances and a low admission scale.

The deal for the Minnesota Amusement Co. to take over the Palace in the loop from the Benz brothers still is hanging fire. If the deal goes through the Benzes would abandon their threatened law suit against Minnesota Amusement and major distributors, alleging a conspiracy in restraint of trade to deprive them of film product for their Palace and for the Minnesota Theatre which they operated recently.

The 4,000-seat Minnesota continues without a prospective tenant and the outlook for the big de luxe house is more uncertain than ever.

Improvements on Theatres Ahead in Kaycee Sector

KANSAS CITY—Remodeling and re-equipping of theatres continues in this area. L. J. Kimbriel of Oklahoma Theatre Supply Co. reports the sale of 408 new seats to J. S. Garrett for his new Garrett at West Plains, Mo., along with air conditioning equipment. The Marsh brothers installed new seats in the Coyote at Vermillion, S. D., which was scheduled for opening, June 5. The house seats 500. Kimbriel also sold 622 new seats, carpet, booth equipment, including projectors and sound, and lobby and office furniture, to Charles Gregg for his new Gregg at Caney, Kas. Gregg is using the Liberty during construction of the new de luxe house by Larry Larsen.

KAYCEE

F L. NORRIS of Warner Bros. is one of those who will play for the Cinema Club in their bloody battle, June 9 . . . O. K. Mason, who is plenty good with the fishing tackle as well as with a camera, spent the Memorial holiday weekend in the North Woods fishing . . . Miss Naomi Good, that good looking gal at Universal, has returned from a three-week vacation on the west coast. What a time, what a time!

On the Row were Louis Griefe, Windsor, Windsor, Mo. and James B. Russell, Strand, Lancaster, Mo. . . . The lads from Columbia left Monday for the midwestern sales convention in Chicago, June 4-8. Included in the list from here were Ben Marcus, branch manager; Charley Reynolds, Tom Baldwin, Herb Stulz, Bill Bradfield, and M. G. Shackelford, salesmen, and Zack Beiser, officer manager . . . Howard R. Wolfe jr. is the name of the assistant manager at the Benton, where Jimmy Chapman is head man.

The Plaza, Commonwealth house at Great Bend, Kas., is installing new RCA sound, as is the Fox Orpheum at Atchison, Kas. Don "Hifi" Davis made the sales. He also sold new sound to Victor Stark, who recently took over the Gossett at Colwater, Kas., from Paul Gossett. It has been renamed the Comanche . . . F. T. Murray, manager of branch operations for Universal, was in town . . . Lee Jones, ex-officio exhibitor, has taken to the woods along the Lake of the Ozarks.

Mildred O'Toole, sister of Margaret O'Toole at RKO, and Charlie Crawford, ad sales, 20th-Fox, were married June 8 and left for a two weeks' honeymoon to Mexico. The office presented the couple a toastmaster.

Tom Collins of the Kansas City Journal, after dinner (or after luncheon) speaker of renown—and a good friend of Variety Club—spoke at the Monday luncheon which was attended by over 90, including over 50 from Metro and 25 or 30 from Universal. Frank Hensler of Metro acted as emcee, while Jay Means gave, in his usual fine style, the "meaning of Variety."

Bob Withers, branch manager; C. M. Parkhurst and Bud Riley, salesmen, and John Scott, booker, left for the Republic convention in Chicago on Wednesday.

Visitors: Mrs. J. T. Ghosen, Sedalia, Mo.; F. L. Lisbona, Maitland, Mo.; Glen Newbold, Yates Center, Kas., and E. A. Peterson, Greenfield, Mo. . . . Cynthia Wildman, 9-year-old daughter of Truly Wildman, salesman for Metro, participated in the Conservatory of Music's dancing recital at Community Center, June 7.

BIG NEWS. Ed Young, who operates the Central, entered the Hall of Fame when, on the Stayton Meadows course, he did a hole-in-one—the 180-yard 16th. Which is a fine way to start off the second half of the year, it seems.

There were reports of a bear in the neighborhood up north where O. K. Mason of Commonwealth was fishing last week. Stepping out of his cabin one evening, Mason's foot struck something furry and alive. It was a bad moment, but the animal turned out to be a porcupine. Even so, the encounter was bad enough.

Sammy Sosna jr., son of Sam Sosna, who operates the Sosna, Manhattan, Kas., was one of the hits of the show at Variety Club luncheon last Monday when he presented a recitation. In town with Sam and Sam jr. was Louis Sosna of the Sosna, Moberly, Mo.

On the Row: Leland G. Lay, Ritz, Trenton, Mo.; Frank Anderson, Family, Kirksville, Mo.; Jerry Cushman, Rivoli, St. Joseph, Mo., F. L. Lowe, Sterling, Hays and other towns in Kansas . . . Vacations have set in at 20th-Fox: Reba Withers and Marge Redheffer, front office, have gone.

Minnesota Mayors Behind Dramatic Stock Project

MINNEAPOLIS—Mayors of 17 Minnesota towns are getting behind the project of Henry Adrian of Minneapolis for a statewide dramatic stock theatre. They will try to work up local interest and obtain subscribers in their communities. Mayor George E. Leach of Minneapolis brought the other 16 mayors together to cooperate in the project.

"Score" for Metro—

Eddie Green, salesman, Olive Bond and Mary Fitzpatrick, inspectresses, who have each completed 20 years of service for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. All are of the Kansas City branch, under the management of Frank Hensler.

Ben Achtenberg Dies

KANSAS CITY—Benjamin M. Achtenberg, 56, associated in the ownership of the Regent here, died May 31 of a heart attack. Achtenberg was an attorney.

DES MOINES

A SPECIAL news bulletin with black curly hair and very blue eyes for Harry Holdsberg: Constantia (Connie) Richards, formerly of the Tri-States accounting department, has sent an "Iowa Here I Come" warning from California . . . Connie will spend her vacation here, and if you're not in on the ground floor, Harry, we'll speak to Connie ourselves about it.

More him'n her stuff: Dropped in at Monogram and found Walt (late of the Monogram staff) doing the hunt-and-peck for O. P. Judd, who was off to Kaycee and Topeka for business, pleasure and a college reunion . . . We swiped three Monogram drinking cups for note-taking purposes and continued on our way, discovering that Universal's Joe Rogatnick gave up his search for a gal like Nan Grey when he met Evelyn Rosen, raven-haired beatitude working next door at Columbia.

If BOXOFFICE items seem scant this week, it's because we're all worn down with that three-day celebration of our birthday which started Friday when & Co. presented us with an extraspecial dictionary we'd been needing and an ultra-taylored slack suit we'd been wanting . . . we received everything from gardenias and roses to champagne and a singing (off-key) birthday greeting. It was all very lovely except that we now have to admit to being one year older.

Georgia Bricker and Hazel Dunn went to the dogs about a month ago, and we've just heard about it . . . Georgia has a new scottie, Mr. Binky, and Hazel went for a wire-haired whose name has been described to us as "sorta cute" but we can't find anybody who remembers what it is . . . but no matter how cute a purp is, Hazel, it won't do that fancy shrubbery Howard's putting out any good.

First they say Frank Gaskill went to Chicago, then they say he headed west with the Al Bairs. All we can say is that he's gone . . . Taking Al Bair's spot over at Republic is Bob from Film Transportation . . . Joe Foley, who used to check in and out of Universal, visited old pals along the Row last week . . . Another guest was Bill Mick who does business for the Jam Handy outfit out of Detroit.

Joe Garrison, Universal's district manager from New York, and Manager Seigel of Nebraska's Omaha were around to find out why Smilin' Lou Levy always is . . . News of A. Don Allen's arrest at the Omaha has the local talkie tycoons guessing that Don must no longer be the fast talker he was at the Des Moines here . . . Art Stolte and others in the Tri-States organization are maintaining a close watch on Allen's court test of the "Prosperity Club," which faces the label of just another "Bank Night" in some quarters.

Heading for Chicago's Blackstone Hotel and Columbia's convention Monday was a good share of the local exchange force including Mel Evidon, Bing Miller, Art Leak, Milt Goodman and Bert Thomas . . . Bert fooled us Friday and did some night work . . . We fooled him and got there before he got the lights turned out . . . Jack Frost, who's been covering a circuit for J. D. Peck, is back on the Row again. He's selling for Al Schuyler's National Theatre Supply since last Monday.

R. E. Hacker of Film Transportation was opening doors at Tenth and High to holler a hello to his pals . . . Sy Harlan observed the Row with Mrs. Sy . . . and the Row ever since has been observing Mrs. Sy is better looking than Sy has any right to . . . Chick (Romeo) Friedman's Advertising Accessories is now without the services of Glen Folsom, and vice versa, with Glen deciding to go back to the tea company.

Kennie Weldon and his Bibianne have a tougher time getting together since Kennie moved from Universal clear down to the Metro shipping room at Twelfth and Woodland . . . Collegiate Chuck Elder slipped downstairs from Advertising Accessories to land in Universal . . . Billy Olive, who used to show customers their way around the aisles of the Paramount is now learning his own way around at Advertising Accessories.

After looking for Jack Kennedy's Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in the telephone book and being referred to "Loew's, Inc.," and discovering Art Anderson's Warner Bros. listed as "Vitagraph," we'd given up any idea that Filmrow was phone-wise. But now comes Burton B. Jerrel's Iowa News Flashes. It's listed in the "I" section, of course . . . We weren't even surprised to find it under "Motion Picture Exchanges." But just in case you wouldn't look in one of those two spots, it's listed under "Motion Picture Libraries" and under "Motion Picture Producers," too. Naturally, just because it's the easiest number in the book to find, it'd be the one we'd learn (4-8433) and not have to look up.

Jerrel saved BOXOFFICE & Co. some conscience stricken moments by informing them via Uncle Sam (2c) and with true Harvard dignity that their over-proboscized profiles are not frightening little children in Iowa theatres . . . The Iowa News Flash shots at the Clinton country club were out of focus, a mishap which doesn't surprise us in the least, considering the rain and our unconsciously uncooperative maneuvering . . . And now we too can always say we landed on the cutting room floor.

Fella named Peitz in town from Kaycee checking on film publicity sources and talking about publishing a motion picture supplement for small papers in Mizzou . . . Filmrow must be hiding out in bomb shelters . . . Nary a one visible at Dave Fidler's Club 100 Friday night or Sunday night and Whataman McKeachney the only member spotted at Michael's Monday noon. . . . Emil Franke's confusing the public with such conflicting signs as "Torrid Zone" and "It's Cool Inside" at his Orpheum . . . Make up your mind, Emil.

Joe Deitch took the rap while secretary Dora Sanquist took a vacation just resting at home . . . Jimmy Grainger, Republic's biggie, was in town over last weekend . . . Evert Cummings of Omaha left last Saturday for a vacation and this reminds us that those weekly too-dos the Tri-States district managers Cummings, Stolte and Kinsky were to have had began and ended the same week . . . The S. A. Vogels went to Omaha over Memorial Day for the Ak-Sar-Ben races.

Doris Koeppel is just back from a week's vacation which she spent in the hospital with her husband, who was so inconsiderate as to break a leg at just that time . . . Tri-States is having rain trouble on the dates they set for the annual picnic . . . Frank Greenland is giving odds that Roosevelt didn't include his blue airplane in his estimate on the national defense . . . it's a very clever little job which sets on Frank's desk and never figures in any lighting but those involving the Greenland pipe (whew!).

Bill Dippert has been spring housecleaning the Universal poster room so don't misplace anything when you stop in there.

Weather Adds to Woes

MINNEAPOLIS — Extremely hot weather and much rainfall throughout the territory have been hurting theatre business during the past 10 days. The weather is aggravating a situation which has been made adverse by war developments, keeping many patrons away from the showhouses.

NEWS BRIEFS

IOWA

CRESCO—Jack Tuchek is remodeling a building next to a cafe he owns, for a theatre. The house will seat about 400 and is expected to be ready by July 1.

MISSOURI

BLAND—The Bland here has reopened.

CAPE GIRARDEAU—Ralph F. Popp and wife have acquired a lease on a building here which will be remodeled into a theatre.

JOPLIN—The New Joplin has been sold and may be converted into an apartment house.

WHEATON—Eldon Washeck and Donald Barnett, operators of the Cozy, have installed a new sound system.

OMAHA

MORRIS COHN, chief barker of the Omaha Variety Club, says the club's annual golf tourney will be held the last part of June. Glenn Rogers of Film Transport is the one-man committee handling arrangements . . . Ruth Kruger, Warner inspectress, is vacationing.

Flash! By the time this column becomes ink on paper, Bill Wink will be married and on his honeymoon. The wedding was to take place in Lincoln . . . Alice Neal, Warner's No. 1 booker, was to have a tooth pulled about the same time Bill got married . . . S. A. Madsen, the other Warner booker, had nothing to report.

Ted Mendenhall, Paramount boss, back from a business trip to the west coast. He says Kay Stewart, daughter of Exhibitor Toby Stewart of Shenandoah, Ia., has a swell big part in one of the new Paramount pictures . . . Frank Hannon's wife won the daily double at the local track for $86 and then collected a Bingo prize the same night for $300. What a day, says Mrs. Hannon!

Howard Jackson, operator at the Omaha and business agent for Local 343 IATSE, represented the local boys at the national convention in Louisville. Clyde Cooley, Fox screen room operator, represented the Council Bluffs stagehands . . . Lou Weiner has constructed a 40-foot addition to his theatre at Sioux City, Ia.

BOXOFFICE moved from one street, where Fred Miller, Fox ad sales manager, lived across the street, to another address, where Frank Pavelac, Brandeis operator, lives two doors away . . . Frank Van Husan is having the Western Theatre Supply repainted bright green and cream. It really hits you in the eyes.

Shep Owens, Benson operator, went to Waterloo, Ia., to represent Local 343, IATSE, at the Iowa Federation of Labor convention . . . R. L. McIntyre, Omaha operator, also went to Waterloo to represent the local at the Iowa state IATSE meeting . . . G. I. Barber and wife, new exhibitors at Homer, Neb., were in town one day and their town was flooded with six feet of water the next day.

O. W. Flint is the new owner and operator of the Vinton, suburban theatre in Omaha. He took over from Bill Jean . . . Oky Goodman, exhibitor at Villisca and Rockwell City, Ia., was a Filmrow visitor for the first time in many weeks . . . Also in town were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Craig, Pierce, Neb.

Morris Cohn also says Variety Club plans Film Nights every Saturday night during the summer. One exchange and its employes will be hosts to the rest of the club at a party and entertainment. June 22 will be Fox night, and June 29 will be Warner night, Morrie says. The affairs will be along the "open house" lines.

The RKO lads are back from their trip to New York. The lucky trippers were Manager Allen and Salesmen Smith and Stengel . . . Jack Riggs, Central City, Neb., on Davenport street.

LINCOLN

TOPIC of the week: The War! People it concerns most are Bill and Ed Matchullat, projectionists and first lieutenant and captain respectively, in the reserve; Don Monroe, who had enough military academy training to make him a possibility; and any, or all the ushers and front-of-the-house employes who are attending school and are registered in ROTC, either as basic, or advanced students. Most of them give odds on mobilization before another year.

Note to Elmer Tilton: That picture of yours, "Women in War," gives BOXOFFICE an idea. Maybe the army would fight harder to gain objectives if gals like Wendy Barrie and Mae Clarke were on the other side, rather than behind them . . . Wally Johnson is finding so many new customers in Exeter, and he had so few in Friend before his theatre there burned, he's thinking less and less about rebuilding for the few, and more and more about going after the new . . . Ed Vaughan hung one of those diamonds, the size of funeral tear, on his girl friend. If she gets away un-married, it'll be a wonder.

What marriage does to men: Mike Roth and Joe Jacobs, for instance. Neither one has been in Lincoln more than four hours since they were hitched . . . America is worried about the "fifth column," Winchell about the "filch columnists," and BOXOFFICE editors about "filth columns" which sometimes capsule near-dirties . . . Stanley Blackburn, just because Gracie Allen went through his town and he couldn't think of anything better, made her an honorary usherette. He never gave it a thought that Gracie might give the patron the flashlight and have him show her to his seat.

Humble opinion: That Academy Award short is a knockout, and Hattie McDaniel's acceptance speech could wring lacrymal response from a Sahara stone . . . G. L. Hooper, whose memory of experiences theatrically in Lincoln is none to pleasant, was up for a visit . . . First anybody thought about Mancel Lofgren being Scandinavian was when he started hissing the Nazis at Narvik in the newsreels.

Vinnie DiFiore, hearing of the Chicago girl who won $4,400 on an Omaha daily double, accountant-like, wondered if she kept books. Maybe not, but with luck like that, she could keep bookies in hot water.

War and rumors of war has done things on Theatrerow besides crimping business . . . For instance, Bob Huffman, hearing an army moves on its stomach, is preparing his for a lot of moving. Howard Federer aged four years, starting at 35 with an early morning news broadcast, and was telling everybody he was 39 by nightfall and four broadcasts later. Bob Livingston walks up and down the street carrying his false teeth in his hand.

Theatre Liability Claims Are Down

By AL WRAY

KANSAS CITY—According to exhibitors, fewer public liability claims are being made than during the depression. This they term natural, since bad times always increase the number of persons who will use a slight injury as the basis of obtaining substantial settlements, and of course always increase the number of doubtful claims or suits. In good times, damage suits for personal injuries fall off. Which means that insurance protection against such liability is needed most at a time when exhibitors can least afford it.

The number of claims and suits has declined pretty steadily since the depression because exhibitors and insurance companies have been fighting such claims and suits, as well as because economic conditions have improved. It has been pretty clearly demonstrated by the experience of insurance companies and theatres that the quickest way to stem such claims and suits is to resist them. Otherwise the theatre becomes payee for a lot of malingering and plain dishonesty on the part of persons who make a living out of having "accidents."

Experience of circuits in this respect is typical, and since they have so much more exposure than the single theatre, their experience is also rather indicative of the general situation as far as theatres are concerned. One large circuit reports liability claims have been reduced partly because it is fighting them. Such claims are more than three times as frequent in city operation as in outside metropolitan areas because there are always more lawyers in large centers who will "develop" such business.

Even though the frequency of such claims has been reduced somewhat since the depression, the most successful theatre operators regard public liability protection through insurance an absolute essential due to the ever-present hazard of catastrophic loss. This always exists wherever large crowds come together under one roof. The roof itself might fall (it has happened in this area); in case of a fire followed by a panic in which many persons are injured, the theatre would be faced with suits that would, unless it had adequate insurance protection, throw it into bankruptcy. In the modern theatre the catastrophic hazard is fairly remote, but it is never absent entirely.

Theatres with or without insurance should check claims immediately; this is the best defense against illegitimate claims. Where the theatre is insured, claims should be reported immediately; this enables the insurance companies to avoid excessive claims and those made by "professional claimants," which, in turn, makes for better insurance rates. Prompt attention to claims has done a good deal to stop spurious claimants.

One for the Epsteins

HOLLYWOOD—Julius and Phil Epstein are scripting "Honeymoon for Three" for Warner.

MINNEAPOLIS

FILMROW learned with regret Ben Martin, popular Ross Federal assistant branch manager, is leaving the local office. They're wishing him all the luck in the world in his new assignment and predicting that he'll continue forging to the front inasmuch as he apparently possesses those qualities which spell success . . . After 12 years in the M-G-M contract department, Dorothy Anderson is retiring to become a bride. She'll be Mrs. George Keppel.

The deepest sympathy of everybody connected with the industry is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kaplan, whose recently born baby girl passed away. It was their first child. Harold is the friendly, capable manager and part owner of the St. Louis Park Theatre . . . George Granstrom spent the weekend with President W. A. Steffes of Northwest Allied at the latter's northern Minnesota country estate. He reports Al is getting along nicely and is in good spirits.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included: E. H. Malone, Alma., Wis.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; Louis Handy, Preston, Minn.; Ray Hiller, Marshall, Minn.; Al Inman, Fairfax, Minn., and Tony Paulson, Clear Lake, Minn. . . . Charlie Weiner, who has taken leave of Monogram and is being considered for the post of executive manager of Northwest Allied, is visiting his parents in Boston.

Now that the "Days of 49" celebration is over at Norwood, Minn., Leo Molitor, the exhibitor there, has shaved off his Van Dyck and sideburns and looks like his own self . . . There's a reason why most of those northern Minnesota exhibitors are sticking close to home—the fishing season's on . . . The father of Morris Moorman, Monogram booker, passed away at his home at Glenwood, Minn. . . . Gene Thorpe, Warner booker, vacationing in northern Minnesota.

The result of the Memorial Day fishing trip of Kenny Adams, RKO head booker, was two strikes and no fish . . . C. K. Olson, Warner branch manager, calls attention to the fact his company is rereleasing "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" with the inclusion of some punch sequences which were omitted before "fifth column" activities became so much the topic of the day . . . While the gang's in New York attending the sales convention, the RKO office is being given a housecleaning.

While Warner Bros.' "All This, and Heaven Too" is being withdrawn from general release, it is not being pulled out of contracts, Branch Manager C. K. Olson points out. The uncut version, running two hours and 20 minutes, will be shown in first-run theatres for special engagements, he says . . . Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, visited the Omaha and Des Moines branches . . . Arthur Zuelch, M-G-M booker, paid a visit to his home in Detroit to attend a wedding.

Joe Podoloff, 20th-Fox branch manager, toured North Dakota situations . . . Those who might be interested in a film exchange golf tournament are requested to call on or write to Olivere LeMere, M-G-M booker . . . Helen Pauly, branch manager's secretary at Warner Bros., honeymooning. Her husband is Frank Adams, a school teacher. They were married last Monday . . . Sam Berger, Esquire manager, and Harry Dickerman, independent circuit owner, among those who donated blood for transfusions for Irving Gillman, Esquire and Crystal owner, who underwent an emergency major operation. Gillman was in a serious condition, but now is on the road to recovery.

Abe Kaplan, Twin City independent theatre owner, is redecorating and refurnishing his Oak Grove Hotel apartment . . . Doug Pratt, Columbia homeoffice auditor, a visitor . . . Jules Ruben of Great States' theatres, Chicago, spent the weekend here . . . Jack Kelley on hand to take over the northern Minnesota sales assignment for M-G-M. He was transferred here from Chicago . . . Frank Fisher here from Milwaukee to confer with Eddie Burke regarding the opening of an independent poster exchange . . . Eddie Ruben in Chicago to attend a friend's funeral.

Helen Johnson, the Welworth circuit gal, giving her services every Wednesday night to the Red Cross . . . The Pantages gang feted Viola Zilka and Virgil Ritchie, cashier and usher, who got married the other day. Talk about a theatrical romance! Phyllis Dulack, cute popcorn girl, steps up to the cashier spot at that house.

Nadine Rifkin, Ralph Green circuit office manager, winning prominence as Filmrow's champion girl swimmer. And what a pretty mermaid she is . . . Ted Gallenter reports many bookings of "Hell's Angeles." The Minnesota Amusement Co. has booked the film in several spots . . . "Nick" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, in Des Moines on a swing around his territory . . . Barry Burke deserts his vigilance over Minnesota Amusement Co. theatres long enough to take in an occasional baseball game.

Ben Spewak, theatrical financier, flew to Hollywood to visit his cousins, Sam and Bella Spewak, film writers. Ben was so enthusiastic over the air ride that he bought the plane and immediately started taking flying lessons . . . William (Bud) McInerney, press agent in charge of Welworth's central showhouses, looks pretty nifty in his new straw lid. Must have been listening to the fight broadcasts . . . Who are those two charming young ladies, well known to film folks, who are taking golf lessons and promise to be in the Patty Berg class before long? . . . Sam Berger, Esquire manager, has tied up with the Red Cross to sell "Women in War."

Friends of Bill Shartin, formerly here—his home town—and now Warner branch manager in Seattle, will entertain him when he steps off en route to the Warner confab in Chicago . . . Helen Hillman, the Edna Wallace Hopper of the local theatrical colony, has left the Harry Dickerman circuit to make her annual pilgrimage to California. Good luck, Helen . . . What local exhibitor who closely resembles Clark Gable in looks is getting up early these June mornings to practice golf? . . . Harold Lyons, 20th-Fox salesman, threatens to enjoin Warner Bros. from showing "The Story of Francis Drake," now in production. Lyons contends that the film's subject matter is damaging to him and other residents of the hotel of the same name here—home of many film folks.

George Johnson, old-time Red Wing, Minn., showman, is back from his Texas ranch for a summer at his Willmar, Minn., lake home . . . Ray Hurwitz, National Screen hustler, spent the weekend fishing —at the Recreation pond . . . Alexis "Kelly" Evidon, Warner advertising accessories manager, celebrated his 22nd wedding anniversary by getting "pixilated" three days before the event . . . Dorothy Paige, the young woman whom Max Facter, booker for the Pioneer circuit, will wed in Chicago June 22, has been prominent on the stage and numbers many acquaintances in show circles.

Durland Will Cover South Missouri for Universal

KANSAS CITY — Les Durland has been made a salesman at the local Universal exchange to cover south Missouri. Durland, a booker at the exchange for some months, formerly was branch manager for Monogram.

Isadore Daynosky, formerly manager of the Rivoli, St. Joseph, Mo., is new second booker at Universal under Ed Solig.

Summer Concert Season Is Cut in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS—Because of poor patronage, the summer season of pop concerts by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra has been cut short. The orchestra association withdrew from the project after the second week and the last three concerts were given by the musicians on a cooperative basis.

This was the third season of the pop concerts. They were a financial success in their other two seasons.

Orville Miller Selling For Columbia in DM

CHICAGO—Orville Miller, booker and office manager for Columbia in Des Moines, has been upped to salesman in that exchange, announced Rube Jackter, assistant sales manager.

New salesmen added include Fred Horn and Jack Tigue, Omaha; and M. Shackelford, Kansas City.

Scripting for Towne-Baker

HOLLYWOOD—William C. Thomas, formerly an associate producer at Paramount, is scripting "How to Meet a Man," a Gene Towne-Graham Baker production.

Buys Interest in Arcadia

ARCADIA, WIS.—Tony Paulson of Clear Lake, Minn., and Amery, Wis., has bought a partnership in the Vogue Theatre here.

....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

BOXOFFICE is wearing shoes again. The brogans were a surprise package on Memorial day, just two weeks after they were left in the corner of Room 202 . . . Equally surprising was the cardboard in which they were wrapped . . . Bold lettering announced vocational guidance classes under the chairmanship of Harold Barnes . . . If that isn't the fuehrer at the Capitol Theatre, Clinton has more H-Barneses than we know about.

News that Wes Mansfield of Tama has been along the Row reminds us that we forgot to tell you that we liked oatmeal cookies at his King's Tower so well on the way to Clinton that we stopped and got some more of them on the way back . . . which is the proof of the pudding (all right then, the cookie).

A busy week it was for Johnny Dostal and Bob Fulton in the Waterloo sector. The three-day convention of Iowa's Elks (including Johnny) was followed by a band festival and the state bar (law) association's meeting, bringing out-of-towners with biz to bid for.

It's easier for the customers to get into the Iris at Postville since Boss L. Palmer remodeled the entrance. And harder to get by without going in.

Elmer Burch, the Beaconsfield professor, has been doing a little research along the DM Row.

Ticket buyers can sit through more for their money at George Thacker's West Bend picture palace since he bolted in some new seats.

If the citizens congregate in front of R. F. Kehrberg's Iowa at Sheldon on a rainy day, it's to take advantage of that new canopy.

Northeastern Nebraska exhibitors were guests of the Norfolk, Neb., Chamber of Commerce at a screening session and luncheon there Thursday. They saw new Metro product at the Grand.

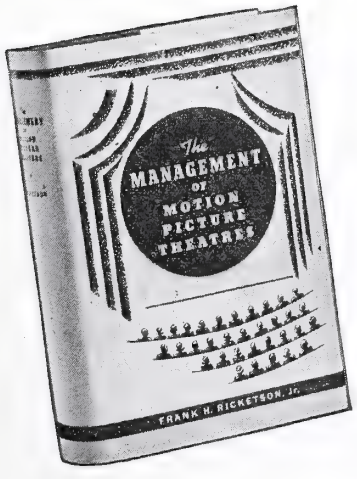
The luminous carpets in George Marsh's new Co-ed Theatre are the talk of the campus in college-town Vermillion, S. D.

It took the opening of the Horowitz-Kerr-Roskopf Odeon at Marshalltown, Ia., to reveal that Charlie Lorenz, the Omaha shipper, doesn't know whether he's coming or going. Charlie left Marshalltown in a rain and fog, after the Odeon celebration, allegedly bound for Omaha and duty. Not until he ran out of gas did he discover he was 50 miles closer to Illinois than when he left Marshalltown.

J. D. Peck was talking a bushel of business for his carload of circuits along the Row last week.

Circuit Operators Delbert and G. A. Sharpe of Algona were moseying along High street lining up a torch or two for their lamplight film league.

Unsolicited testimonial: "You certainly get your 16 cents worth there," commented the lady in the gingham dress to the world at large in front of Harry Hirchsteiner's Family Theatre last week. Said the marquee: "You're in the Army Now," "New Cockeyed World," "Also Jesse James."



If Don Olson's crystal ball was right, he should start picking the gum off the seats of Marshalltown's new Odeon about now.

Vaudeville fans who want a touch of nostalgia won't go wrong by contacting Lyle Talbot at the Iowa in Cedar Rapids. Talbot was a booker when vaudeville was in flower.

A Novel Lighting Touch

GARNER, IA.—When D. F. Gran redecorated his Avery Theatre here recently, among other improvements he had installed two 100-watt black light bulbs in the ceiling which are used as spotlights to illuminate painted scenic effects on the walls.

District Secretaries Returned to Office

LOUISVILLE—Meeting Friday, Saturday and ending Sunday night, June 2, district gatherings of the IATSE and MPMO of the United States and Canada, re-elected secretary-treasurers in all 14 districts, with the single exception of No. 9, where Roy M. Brewer replaces Clyde A. Weston. In the report below, districts are numbered from 1 to 15, the "unlucky 13" being non-existent:

District No. 1—Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, British Columbia. Re-elected O. M. Jacobson.

District No. 3—New England States: F. W. Newcomb.

District No. 5—Wyoming, Colorado: Jess G. Dauterman.

District No. 6—Texas: Eddie J. Miller.

District No. 7—Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina, Mississippi, Louisiana: R. E. Morris.

District No. 8—Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky: Arthur W. Lyday.

District No. 9—Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Kansas: Roy M. Brewer replaces Clyde A. Weston.

District No. 10—State of New York: Glenn H. Humphrey.

District No. 11—Ontario, Quebec, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick: Arthur Milligan.

District No. 12—Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta: J. Wright.

District No. 14—State of New Jersey: Thomas V. Green.

District No. 15—Oklahoma, Arkansas: William Rea.

Pittsburgh's Allied Men To Convention June 18

PITTSBURGH—Local delegates to the 11th annual Allied convention plan to leave by train on Tuesday, June 18. Fred J. Herrington, secretary of the AMPTO of W. Pa., stated this week several dozen independents have signified their intentions of attending and that the organization planned for a special car so that local area theatremen would be together. The convention will be held at the Morrison Hotel, Chicago, June 19-21.

Railroad fare as planned is $14.10 per person for the round trip and the return ticket is good for 20 days.

Two Close for Repairs

ZANESVILLE, OHIO — Two local theatres, operated by Zanesville Theatres, have closed for repairs and improvements. The Grand will be redecorated and new sound equipment and appointments will be made throughout. The Quimby will get new sound, seats and screen and also a general renovation.

IATSE Convention Delegates Return Browne to Helm

By A. JULES BENEDIC

LOUISVILLE — Unanimous re-election of George E. Browne as head of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, and with him the slate of incumbent officers was voted by the assembled delegates at the 35th biennial IA convention at its Thursday session. Returned to office with Browne are Harland Holmden of Cleveland, who from third vice-president becomes first, replacing the resigned John P. Nick of St. Louis; William Covert, Toronto, second vice-president; Richard F. Walsh, third; Floyd M. Billingsley, fourth; James J. Brennan, fifth; Roger M. Kennedy, sixth, and Felix Snow of Kansas City, seventh. Louis Krouse of Philadelphia was returned as general secretary-treasurer.

A unanimous action also expressed belief in the honesty and integrity of William Bioff, former west coast representative now under a six-month sentence in Chicago on an 18-year-old misdemeanor charge.

Attendance broke all records—900 delegates compared to a little more than 600 when the IA met here in 1934. In addition, a large number of member-visitors, their wives and families, are on hand. These, with tradesmen, put the attendance at between 1,500 and 2,000, although no active registration list is being kept, other than for the delegates.

Tuesday's session was devoted almost entirely to the reading of President Browne's report. Highlights of Browne's message follow:

An unequivocal defense of William Bioff, former West Coast representative:

> "It needs no great mental ability to discern what was back of all this persecution of this one man. When they have to go back 18 years to dig up an unsettled misdemeanor case in order to keep this leader of our studio members out of circulation . . . Again, Brother Bioff did the honorable thing (referring to his resignation as chairman of the studio committee) but it's gratifying to know the unions refused to accept, stating to the world that they wanted William Bioff to continue to represent them, even if he had to do it from his jail cell."

Browne barely touched upon the John P. Nick case in St. Louis. He told of Nick's resignation, Nick's illness, and said the withdrawal was accepted with extreme reluctance, and that "the vice-president had served on the general executive board since 1924, throughout that period having rendered faithful and capable service to the organization."

Browne hit back at Westbrook Pegler, IA critic, by inference only, when he said: "The victory (on the West Coast) had no sooner been announced than the unfriendly press and certain columnists started their work. One columnist went so far . . . to dig into ancient archives to publicly scandalize your representative."

Briefly he presented a statistical summary of the years between 1934 and 1940:

> In 1934, 698 local unions; 1940, 831.
> In 1934, 23,000 members; today, 43,437.
> Finances of $106,000 in 1934; increasing to nearly $350,000.

Matthew Woll, third vice-president of the AFL, featured speaker on Tuesday's program, pleaded for favorable consideration of the group insurance plan presented by the Union Labor Life Insurance Company. He struck at CIO with the statement that eventually the two big unions will merge, but "only when the rank and file of CIO realizes that its leaders are not sincere."

Additional greetings to the convention

IATSE Interludes

LOUISVILLE—Capitol City Supply Co., from Atlanta, held open house at The Kentucky, with Paul A. King and Oscar J. Howell in attendance.

Local No. 1, New York City, as usual, drew front seats, next to the rostrum.

News folk in attendance at the reporters' desk on opening day were Jack Gould, New York Times; Bill Moody and H. T. Hotopp, Louisville Times; Edgar Simon, UP, and Jules Benedic, Cleo Baker and Esther Adkins of BOXOFFICE.

Real strength of the convention was felt Sunday. By that time, hotel lobbies were full of milling delegates and visitors.

An interesting sidelight from the meeting of District No. 10: Sal J. Scoppa, business agent of Local 52, studio mechanics, New York City, said: "Mayor LaGuardia still is working to bring part of Hollywood to New York. Incidentally, Nelson Rockefeller is very much interested in the mayor's plans. The mayor accuses the newspapers of saying that he wants all of Hollywood, which isn't so; he only wants a slice. As a matter of fact, the unions would be satisfied to get only two per cent, which would give everybody a job."

That BOXOFFICE flash extra, giving sidelights on the first day's session, attracted big attention Tuesday morning in the convention hall.

W. E. Carrell of the Falls City Equipment Co., Louisville, milling among the delegates, opened his new four-story headquarters early in 1937. Then came the flood. Says Bill: "I'm prepared now. There are two boats ready for the waters right in my establishment at this moment." (We checked the story. It's true).

Highlighting early sessions were these undercurrents: Browne boosters by the hundreds. Pegler as popular as a German parachutist in the Lowlands.

IATSE Convention Partial to Browne

were brought by J. E. Scaff, of Local 18, Tobacco Workers' Union.

George M. Breslin, general counsel on the West Coast, amplified the president's report on the Bioff and other cases. He said that undisclosed factors on the West Coast, including some actors, are behind the IA opposition "with, of course, CIO in the background." He said Bioff's extradition on a common misdemeanor charge "is the most amazing thing in jurisprudence, and not a single other case parallels."

Keeping in tune with the times, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, highlighted Monday's opening session with an address bristling with patriotism and praise of the IATSE as "the greatest union in the constellation of 106 under the AFL banner."

Green, in fine fettle, rapped CIO and its chief organizer and said the million members lost to that organization had more than been made up in the ranks of AFL. He said centralized power and dictatorship were synonymous, and that the "rule of dictators is worse than the beasts of the jungle." Getting back to CIO, Green declared every effort had been made to bring about peace and harmony in a merger, but that CIO and its backers had refused every mediation proposal.

Stand Behind Roosevelt

With war shadows lengthening, the AFL prexy said labor stands behind Roosevelt's proposal to prepare America for defense against invasion, and delegates literally came to their feet when he ringingly declared that "next-door Canada, with thousands of our members, will be aided in event of invasion."

The 35th biennial international convention was opened by R. L. Hulett, secretary of Local 163, convention chairman, who introduced Canon L. W. Clarke of the Christ Church Cathedral for the invocation. Welcomes to Louisville were extended by Mayor Joseph D. Scholtz; J. T. Woodward, AFL; Alexander Jeffries, secretary, Kentucky Federation of Labor; H. F. Petty, president, Louisville Central Labor Union; Sam Friedman, manager of the Kentucky Hotel; J. M. Edmonson, president of the Tobacco Workers' Union, and Congressman William T. Schulte. Father Raymond Treece, of Cathedral of the Assumption, gave the benediction.

Congressman Schulte early rang the tocsin for Browne when he declared "your president has accomplished in the six years of his incumbency more than all other presidents together." The solon warned of activities of "'fifth columnists' in the ranks," particularly, he added, "on the west coast" and ended on the note of purging this element from IA's ranks.

Virtually every other welcoming speaker had a fling at Westbrook Pegler, whose attacks against IA have been particularly strenuous recently. Jeffries said he "had a carbon copy of his remarks for forwarding to the gentleman," while President Browne later cracked at the columnist with the statement: "We have been in Louisville three days now and nobody has had to evacuate the city."

One thousand delegates and visitors milled about the State Armory and were seated, impatiently awaiting the opening. At zero hour Green was escorted by Browne to the rostrum, the color scheme being further enhanced when a gigantic Neon sign of yellow, blue and green burst forth into "Locals 17 and 163 (the hosts) of IATSE welcome you all." The Louisville Musicians' Union played "Dixie" frequently, while Green was introduced to the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home."

There were entertainment features galore, while the grand ball was held Wednesday night. Boat rides, fish fries and two taxicab tours for the ladies in attendance were features. Virtually every business house had welcoming cards in windows. The program was reminiscent of that Variety affair in Dallas. It included a water color of Kentucky-bred horses, a pastoral ready for framing.

Metro Contract Rider Draws Wood Comment

COLUMBUS—P. J. Wood, secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, in a recent bulletin issued to members, comments as follows upon the rider to the 1939-40 M-G-M contract sent to exhibitors having signed these contracts providing for (1) eliminations as a matter of right, (2) exclusion for cause, and (3) preferred playing time:

"Last week, when Mr. William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of Metro, was testifying against the Neely bill, he was asked by the committee why he sent the rider out at this time and if his purpose was not to influence the committee in its consideration of the Neely bill. Mr. Rodgers denied this, but the fact that he sent it out at this time, after delaying so long, is significant.

"Whatever may be the reason for issuing it, we feel that it will be necessary for an exhibitor to execute the rider in order to get the benefit of the cancellation privilege and enjoy the other benefits announced by Metro at the beginning of the 1939-40 selling season."

Urged to Withhold Signing Contracts for New Season

COLUMBUS—Independent theatre owners are urged not to sign any contracts for the 1940-41 season until it is known what turn the European war will take. P. J. Wood, ITO secretary, in offering this advice to members of ITO of Ohio, explains his stand on the ground that contracts signed at this time, when distributors "seek to replace the loss of foreign revenue by increased rentals to American exhibitors," may prove ruinous if the situation abroad does not improve.

National Allied, Wood states, is making a comprehensive study of the situation and will release a report of its findings at the Chicago convention, June 19-21.

McGuire Asks Neely Bill Amendments

WASHINGTON—The House committee on interstate and foreign commerce, which is holding hearings on the Neely bill, has before it amendments suggested by Thomas McGuire, director of public relations for Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan, Detroit, that he believes will solve industry problems.

Contending that the Neely bill in its present form would ruin the independent exhibitor and tend to create a monopoly in the hands of the chains, McGuire proposed that Section 3 be eliminated in favor of a provision for "fair arbitration" of all disputes; that Section R be changed to provide for a mandatory 20 or 25 per cent cancellation, prohibition against forcing of shorts, newsreels, trailers and reissues, and prohibition against selective playing time on percentage films, score charges. He suggested a provision for identification of pictures by the naming of stars, featured players and names of popular or famous books rather than by a synopsis.

Analyzing the bill, McGuire testified it would bar producers from forcing blocks, but would not prevent an exhibitor's competitor from bidding his pictures away by buying the whole output at high prices. He pointed out that where the competitor was not successful in the bidding, neither would benefit and both would pay higher prices.

Adoption of the bill would throw the industry into confusion for three or four years, McGuire argued, contending this confusion would be confined to the independents because the affiliated theatres would not be affected by the measure.

The bill also would open the way for "racketeering" by promoters threatening to build new theatres and buy product away if they were not "bought out" or conversely, building theatres and forcing other exhibitors out of business.

McGuire admitted the companies would not willingly accept his proposals, but contended they would involve less government regulation than would the Neely statute. Under questioning, he asserted no exhibitor has to take a picture repugnant to his community, and defended block booking, holding that the producers should have a right to know in advance that they are going to have a certain amount of money coming in to allow them to lay out programs that will assure a continuous flow of product for the exhibitor.

Delegate From Massillon

MASSILLON, OHIO—Ira J. Deetz, secretary of Massillon Local 79, was the body's lone delegate to the annual IATSE convention held in Louisville.

Delegate From Canton

CANTON, OHIO—Charles (Chuck) Schumaker, business agent of Local 61, represented the group at the annual IATSE convention in Louisville. He is in charge back stage at the Palace here.

PITTSBURGH

THE two-minute Red Cross war relief trailer is being distributed here by the AMPTO of W. Pa. Titled "They Shall Not Perish," this subject is available gratis . . . Harris Silverberg, Detroit NSS manager, visited here over the weekend . . . Official census report shows that the little mining community of Export, where Mario Battiston operates the Ritz, has exactly the same population total in 1940 as it did in 1930—2,184 persons . . . Stage shows at the Stanley termed "vulgar" are being criticized in "letters to the editor" of the daily papers and by the reviewers themselves as well as by the Pittsburgh Catholic . . . Jack Rosenfeld was presented with a traveling bag at a dinner in his honor which marked his resignation from NSS-AA. He has joined Uncle Dave Rosenfeld's cleaning plant staff.

Gene Basle, young Washington, Pa., exhibitor, has joined the AMPTO . . . Thousands of people flocked to the East Liberty circus grounds Sunday for the setting up of the "greatest show on earth" and found Warner circuit representatives on hand passing out heralds advertising the attractions at the four East Liberty circuit houses . . . Lou Hanna, Republic booker, spent the holiday weekend at Milwaukee and was a visitor at the new exchange quarters of Republic there.

Dave Silverman, RKO exchange office manager for many years, was all set this week to assume duties as company sales representative, succeeding Ed Lebby. Nine out of ten Filmrowites had figured this promotion for Dave. Dave's manager, Herb Greenblatt, who copped several prizes for Disney cartoon and short subjects sales at the RKO convention, had a busy day Tuesday with Herbert Wilcox, producer and director of "Irene," and Anna Neagle, star of the photoplay, who made four appearances on the Stanley stage. Terry Turner, RKO exploitation manager, directed the personal appearances.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mikolowsky of Masontown will go to New York for the June 16 wedding of their son, George A. Mikolowsky, and Emma Parnell. Mrs. Mikolowsky recently returned from California where she visited another son who is an aviation mechanic . . . Irving Hanover, Columbia auditor, is on duty at the local branch exchange . . . Dorothy Jaravin of the Vitagraph exchange was vacationing this week . . . Harris circuit is observing its 35th anniversary . . . Some time ago we extended congratulations to a theatre manager who arranged for the sale of tickets and dismissal of high school for an afternoon when "GWTW" was on view, and we asked who could top the excellent promotion. Now comes the answer: Edgar E. Shaffer at Slippery Rock not only worked this stunt with the high school there but with the college as well.

AMPTO headquarters was busy with preparations for the national Allied convention, which will be held at Chicago June 19-21. Several dozen local delegates will attend . . . Jimmy Stewart, native of Indiana, Pa., is included in the 1940 roll of America's "Who's Who" . . . Al Selig, veteran exploitation man, set the stage here for the appearance of Anna Neagle and Herbert Wilcox . . . The M. N. Shapiros will entertain friends at their home in Melvin street Sunday evening, June 16, in honor of their daughters, Elaine Sybil, who will be confirmed that day, and Ruth Flora, who is graduating from Carnegie Tech. This is the Shapiros' biggest double feature.

Herb Shearer and his tonsils have parted . . . Columbia exchange is operating a free circulating library where you may borrow a copy of Osa Johnson's "I Married Adventure." (The book, not the film print) . . . Edward Pelger, former assistant manager at the Warner and at one time connected with Monarch exchange, died suddenly. He was a brother-in-law of George Tice, Columbia sales representative . . . Charles Mergen and Francis Seubert, Paramount bookers, joined with Dave Kimelman, manager, and Ed Stuve, Bob Caskey, Guy Peterson and George Elmo, salesmen, at a company regional meeting held Wednesday at the Neil House, Columbus, Ohio . . . Harry Seed was busy this week on plans for an eastern sales meeting of Warner Bros.

Licensed Nazi Films Arouse Citizenry in Pennsylvania

PITTSBURGH—Public protest regarding exhibition of foreign propaganda films and the vigilance of an aroused citizenship may spur the Pennsylvania board of censors into a tightening of requirements for issuance of approval seals, according to word from Harrisburg and Philadelphia.

Several weeks ago attempts to show Nazi films here at Moose Temple were blocked when veterans' groups complained such exhibitions were "inimical to American interests." A German group had contracted for this auditorium for ten meetings at which Nazi films were to be shown, but the management of Moose Temple was pressured into calling a halt. A Nazi propaganda film was booed loudly by a Clairton audience, and there have been reports of exhibitions of other German films in various parts of the local district.

Members of the state censor board admit at least five German films have censor seals and are being used at "private showings." Official reports on these subjects describe them as definite propaganda.

Mrs. Edna R. Carroll, chairman of the board, has stated at different times that the censors do not refuse seals to films because of military or political reasons. The Nazi films being exhibited in Pennsylvania and having the approval of the censors do not contain material dangerous to the United States, Mrs. Carroll states. With the pressure on, however, she says steps may be taken to scan films more closely for propaganda content. Major General Edward Martin, commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard, will be consulted for advice regarding such films in the future, it is understood.

Mrs. Carroll believes anti-Nazi pictures, most of which come from Hollywood, are much more propagandistic than the German films. Of the censor-approved Nazi pictures, she says:

"None contains any reference to Hitler or to any form of government as contrasted with any other form of government. They do not show any desire to change a form of government or to conquer the world. They show the people in their own armies as being happy and well fed and a comradeship between officers and men that we in this country have been led to believe does not exist."

Photoplays with war and military stories and dealing with "fifth column" activities, now current or announced for early showings at Pittsburgh theatres, include 20th-Fox's "Four Sons," which deals with the Nazi conquest of Czecho-Slovakia (Harris Alvin, starting June 13); reissue of Warner's "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," re-edited and brought up to date (at Warner's Ritz); Republic's "Women in War," drama of British nurses now on duty in France, to be released soon; "Bombs Over London," an English film, now at the Barry; "Mad Men of Europe," an English production released by Columbia (at the Senator); "That They May Live," a French production which has received one of the best critical reports in years (at the Art Cinema). "Lights Out in Europe," a documentary, is awaiting local release.

Farewell to Trade Made By Lebby and Lynch

PITTSBURGH—Farewell to the trade was said this week by Bob Lynch and Ed Lebby, veteran film sales representatives, who resigned to enter a private business. Both Lebby and Lynch have been named vice-presidents of the Keystone Crankshaft & Machine Tool Co., Erie, Pa. A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Pa., exhibitor, is treasurer of the crankshaft manufacturing company.

Lebby, who resigned his RKO sales post, had been a film salesman covering northwestern Pennsylvania for more than 25 years. Lynch had rounded out two dozen years at similar duties for Vitagraph.

400 Attend Variety Club Housewarming

CLEVELAND—More than 400 attended the formal housewarming of the newly enlarged and redecorated Variety Club last Saturday night. The arrival of each guest was announced by the playing of "God Bless America," a stunt instigated by Bert Stearn, United Artists, district manager and chairman for the evening.

Chief Barker Nat L. Lefton and Frank Drew were kept busy receiving congratulations upon their achievement.

Mrs. Frank Belles saw to it that the party didn't cost Frank a cent . . . Benton Lefton, son of the chief barker and his partner, made a thrilling dancing team . . . Bert Stearn, chairman of the evening, was the busiest man around . . . Duke Clark was consciously quiet all evening—probably remembering this was his last Cleveland Variety party before moving out to Los Angeles to become Paramount branch manager there . . . Frank Drew, the only man present in correct summer formal . . . I. J. and Mrs. Schmertz were busy accepting congratulations upon the recent arrival of their first grandchild . . . Did the huddle that the Lester Zuckers and the Meyer Fines were in have anything to do with a new Columbia contract for the Fine circuit?

Eddie Miller Walks In

Eddie Miller came in after the late Hippodrome show looking as fresh as if it were the start of the day . . . Nat Wolf, Charlie Albert and Lou Milder formed a group to applaud Bert Stearn for arranging everything so well . . . Mrs. Pat Stearn helped pass the appetizers . . . Flowers were sent by Mr. and Mrs. Dave Spizel and also by Sterling & Welsh Co., who also furnished the decorations.

Georgia Moffett was the second busiest person at the affair . . . M. B. Horwitz, Martin Printz and Henry Greenberger inspected the new card rooms and approved the arrangements . . . Frank Belles, Les Irwin and Al Gregg were official greeters for the visiting actors and actresses.

Mrs. Nat Lefton and Mrs. Frank Drew made a charming picture in the cocktail lounge . . . Eddie Bergman settling up with Georgia Moffett for the book of tickets he sold . . . Leroy Kendis and his bride making their social premiere after their recent wedding trip . . . Nan Blackstone of the Hollenden Vogue Room came to entertain, but remained until the wee small hours to be entertained.

The newly enlarged Variety Club has double its former space. The lounge has been entirely redecorated and card rooms are now separated from the lounge. The new cocktail bar has accommodations for 25 people. Indirect fluorescent lighting is used.

Cut Adult Price

AKRON—The Liberty here, de luxe second run, has slashed admission prices to 15 cents for adults anytime. Children's admission will remain at 10 cents for the summer. Previously adult admission was 25 cents.

Change Money Stolen From Police Cabinet

Zanesville, Ohio—Chief J. H. Kimberley reports the theft of $180 from a filing cabinet on the second floor of the police station. The money was the property of Zanesville Theatres, Inc., and was to have been used for change when the Weller Theatre opened for business the following morning.

Red, Flashing Signs Under Detroit Ban

DETROIT—All red signs and all flashing signs of any type must be removed if they are within 22 feet in height above the sidewalk level, according to a new city ordinance. The ordinance gives present owners two years to remove the flashing signs and three years to remove the red signs. The order was adopted in the interests of traffic safety, to avoid confusion with traffic signals.

The new order will apparently apply directly to theatre marquees, which have used a considerable amount of red, particularly in newer installations and neon tubing.

Berney Celebrates 36th Year as an Exhibitor

LEWISTOWN, PA.—Ike Berney celebrated his 36th anniversary as an exhibitor here last week and he will long remember the occasion. The anniversary attraction was Republic's "Dark Command," which was recorded as the 10,000th feature length film to be exhibited at the Pastime.

Originally a penny arcade, the Pastime was opened in 1904 by Berney in partnership with the Silverman Brothers, veteran Altoona exhibitors. Shortly thereafter, Berney acquired the business for himself and entered the film field as a nickelodeon operator. He has remained the proprietor-manager of the Pastime since.

Berney and his assistant manager, Percy Niemond, took advantage of the "Dark Command" playdates to stage a pretentious publicity campaign for the anniversary offering. A particularly fine promotion was a public endorsement of the policies of the Pastime by Lewistown business men who contributed two pages of advertising in the Sentinel. Among 31 advertisers were congratulations from Mary Check and Paul O. Klingler of the Rialto and Harold D. Cohen of the Embassy. Others included Outdoor Advertising Co., IATSE Local No. 636, and the Lewistown Musical Ass'n, Local No. 363, AFM.

Staying Open This Summer

ALLIANCE, OHIO—The Columbia, a Tri-Theatres house here, will not close during the summer months as has been the policy in recent years, according to Ray S. Wallace, managing director.

Shift Clark to L. A. As Paramount Head

CLEVELAND—M. R. (Duke) Clark, Paramount branch manager here for the past two years, leaves here the end of June to become Paramount branch manager in Los Angeles. His successor in Cleveland is George Elmo, promoted from the sales field in the Pittsburgh territory.

Elmo joined Paramount in June, 1929, as a traveling auditor and soon thereafter was added to the local branch's booking staff. For the past six years he has served as a sales representative, covering the main line, the Monongahela and Beaver Valleys. He is a three-time winner of the company's highest award, membership in the 100 Per Cent Club.

Clark came to Cleveland two years ago when Paramount closed its Columbus exchange where he had been branch manager since its opening in 1928. He was born in Orange, N. J., and was educated at the City College of New York and Columbia University. One of his earliest excursions into the business field was as buyer for the National Cloak and Suit Co. and the Montgomery Ward Co. For a short time he became affiliated with CCNY as instructor and athletic coach, but resigned to become one of the first exhibitors in New Jersey as owner of the Lyceum in Franklin Furnace in 1907-8.

In War Intelligence Service

The following year he was initiated into activities on the other side of the footlights as a member of the Thanhauser Studios in New Rochelle. Then followed an interlude with the war department, where he was a member of the intelligence service working in Russia, Siberia and other far eastern spots with the American and Czechoslovakian expeditionary forces. The Czechoslovakian government presented him with a plaque for services rendered the country.

Returning in 1921, he joined Paramount as film salesman in Columbus. With the exception of short excursions for Paramount as division campaign manager and special representative for Western Canada, he has been continuously with Paramount in the Ohio territory.

Two of his three sons are also members of the Paramount family, one as salesman out of Cincinnati, another as cashier in the Cleveland office.

Managerial Personnel Shifted by Nat Wolf

CLEVELAND—Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager, has made a shift of his managerial personnel in the territory.

Report New Censorship Ordinance for Detroit

Detroit—A new censorship ordinance whereby adult picture classification permits may be granted, is understood being planned for the auto city this fall. The new plan would enable the police censors to pass many pictures which would ordinarily be rejected, with an adult-only rating.

Said Sergt. Charles Snyder, police film censor, regarding the plan: "It would be welcomed, for there are many pictures suitable for adults that we would pass that are not now suitable under our present censorship ordinance."

Film-Flesh Programs Prove Paying Policy

DETROIT—Vaudeville, plus double bills, proved a paying policy at the Colonial, which dropped stage shows for the summer this week. Competition of outdoor engagements, making suitable talent hard to find, is said to be responsible for the discontinuance of vaudeville, which will be resumed on the same policy in the fall.

Faced with the perennial problem of finding suitable bookings for the house, in the center of a heavily competitive film booking situation, Ray Schreiber, operator, turned to stage shows last fall, using some of the biggest names in show business. Average talent bill has run from $2,500 to $3,000. Average weekly gross is reported around $6,000, running as high as $14,000 with a top attraction like Duke Ellington. With a quarter admission, this has meant a heavy attendance running as high as 9,000 a day in this 1,455-seat house.

Great Lakes Specializes In Neighborhood Tieups

DETROIT—Neighborhood tieups are being taken seriously by the Great Lakes Theatre, under the management of Hazen Funk, who is, incidentally, president of the Strathmoor Business Ass'n, a community organization. Through the association, a Beauty Contest now is being held.

Entries are invited to appear on specified nights on the stage of the theatre, which is a regular community center. About 75 girls of the neighborhood are entered in the event. The theatre is donating a prize in the form of a tour to the New York Fair. Other prizes also are listed. Publicity received in the community newspapers is generous.

Three Excellent Pictures Play Detroit First Runs

DETROIT—A sudden spurt of bookings has Excellent Pictures with films in three local first runs: "The Outsider" at the Fox, "Sky Devils" at the Adams, and "Ecstasy," back for a third engagement at the Cinema.

"Sky Devils" has also been booked for the entire Butterfield circuit of around 100 theatres, William Flemion, president of Excellent, said.

Shapiro and Fineman Have Seven Units

PITTSBURGH—The M. N. Shapiro-Archie Fineman circuit expanded to seven units as one theatre was acquired and another new unit was announced for immediate construction.

Acquired was the New Sheraden on Chartiers Ave., operated for a number of years by Charles Philbrook. The Shapiro-Fineman circuit stated that Philbrook would continue as manager during the summer.

Shapiro reported a lease had been taken on the Sherrod Temple, 2843 Chartiers Ave., and that plans have been prepared for converting the auditorium into a modern theatre. Some months ago the Alpine circuit had announced similar plans, which were dropped.

The new unnamed theatre in Sheraden will have a seating capacity of upwards of 1,000. The building will undergo extensive remodeling and it is expected that opening will be around the first of September.

Beaver County Rules Out Bank Night as Lottery

BEAVER, PA.—Bank Night has been banned in Beaver county on lottery charges by Judge Frank E. Reader. Although the State and Strand in Aliquippa didn't advertise it, J. C. Lund, manager, testified that free proxy cards could be obtained at the theatres which entitled the holder to participate in Bank Night drawings.

Prior to operating Bank Night, the two theatres were $17,000 in the red but profitable business followed the introduction of the stimulator, Lund testified.

The Beaver judge, in banning Bank Night, indicated the penalty to be imposed on Lund would be light, the ruling stating that "we are satisfied the attitude of the defendant throughout the trial merits favorable consideration."

Dana Spends Two Weeks In Pitt Getting Acquainted

PITTSBURGH — Peter Dana, former Kansas City district manager and more recently a special representative for Universal, who assumes duties as local branch manager for this company, has been here for about two weeks familiarizing himself with the territory and getting acquainted with exhibitors and members of the exchange staff. He succeeds Jules Lapidus, who has been promoted to eastern district manager with New York headquarters.

Lapidus takes over his new duties June 10, his territory covering New York, Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia and Washington.

The Row was pleased to hear of Duke Clark's promotion by Paramount. He is well known here from the days when Paramount's exchange was in Columbus . . . Johnny Frye, RKO treasurer, is on vacation, with City Manager C. Harry Schreiber due to leave for the east June 14.

William Drake Davis Dies After Illness

PITTSBURGH—William Drake Davis, former president of the AMPTO of W. Pa. and for nearly 30 years an exhibitor in this section, died Sunday, June 3, at Veterans Hospital, Aspinwall. He was 43 years old.

He was hospitalized not long ago for what was reported as a "rest," and more recently he suffered a stroke from which he never fully recovered.

While the late manager of the Triangle Theatre was born in Lock Haven, Pa., he had resided in Pittsburgh since the age of ten. He began his industry career as an usher at the Embassy at 14 and for many years he was recognized as the outstanding independent exhibitor in the East Liberty area.

Davis had been listed among the first witnesses to be called in the government's monopoly suit against the industry which got under way in New York the day following his death.

Davis is survived by his widow, Trena Heffner Warman Davis, and two daughters, Gloria and Lois Davis; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Davis of Newark, N. J., and a sister, Mrs. Maude Delaney.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday from the chapel of Herbert V. Sperling. Burial was in Allegheny Cemetery.

Plans Nearly Ready for WB's Regional in Pitt

PITTSBURGH—Preparations were nearly ready this week for the Warner convention which opens here in the William Penn Hotel, Monday, June 10.

From the east and Canada, branch managers and salesmen will convene for the three-day convention. Roy H. Haines will preside and sales chiefs, Sears and Leserman, will be active in the conclave. Warner circuit executives and zone managers will be in attendance.

Ben Kalmenson, western and southern sales manager, who will also be here, will preside at the Warner regional convention in the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, June 17-19. Production lineup and sales policies for the 1940-41 season will be announced at the Pittsburgh conclave.

Close Canton Auditorium; New One Being Planned

CANTON, OHIO—The Municipal Auditorium, built 36 years ago and the only available downtown building for film roadshows, theatricals, concerts and indoor circuses and sporting events, has been permanently closed by order of Fire Chief George Jacob, who branded it a "fire trap." Its closing will temporarily remove one major source of opposition for theatres here.

Plans already are under way for the construction of a new auditorium, which will be adapted to roadshow theatricals, with all stage facilities, dressing rooms and provision for hanging scenery.

George Nelson May Open Theatre in Morgantown

PITTSBURGH—Reports from Morgantown, W. Va., indicate a new theatre will be opened there in the near future by George W. Nelson and associates. The new theatre site adjoins the Comuntzis Restaurant, operated by George P. Comuntzis, partner with George Sallows in the operation of the Morgantown Theatre Co. Nelson, a veteran exhibitor at Fairmont who retired from the industry a year ago, is booking manager for the new Lee at Fairmont which will be opened within the next several weeks.

Rainy Memorial Day Fills Theatres in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—A rainy Memorial Day turned out to be a field day for theatres in this territory. With outdoor entertainment ruled out, the public turned to theatres for their holiday entertainment. Theatres, playing outstanding product, reported business was exceptionally good for this time of year. Downtown first runs were especially well attended. They did better than average weekend business, it is stated.

Extra Prints to Care for Bookings of 'Command'

CLEVELAND—Nat L. Lefton, Republic franchise owner, reports bookings on "Dark Command" are so far ahead of any previous Republic pictures in the territory that five extra prints had to be acquired for the northern Ohio territory, with a similar condition prevailing in southern Ohio. "Dark Command" received the unanimous acclaim of all Cleveland film critics.

Echo to the Fore

DETROIT—Remodeling of the Echo on Oakland Ave. by W. B. Schram and Louis Goldberg, who took it over about six months ago from M. Robbins, has given Detroit its finest addition to colored houses in recent seasons. Design and construction were supervised by Bennett & Straight, theatrical architects, and Morris Pelavin, general contractor.

File Stock Issue

DETROIT—Plans for issuing new stock have been filed with the state corporation and securities commission by Wilding Picture Productions, Inc., makers of industrial films. Plan is for "issuance of 250 shares of unissued A stock, $100 par, and 250 shares of unissued B stock, $100 par," to employes at $100 per share.

Converted Hall to Open

STRASBURG, OHIO—Township Hall here, being converted into a motion picture theatre, was to be opened June 7 by Charles Argentine of Weirton, W. Va. House will operate four nights a week. It will seat 275, and a contest is under way to select a name.

UPPER SANDUSKY, OHIO—Leo Jones, owner of the Star, has taken over the Strand at Carey from D. A. Capell.

Allied Unit Figures Distributor Losses

BOSTON—Alluding to a "Big Eight" fifth column, Arthur K. Howard of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., this week told New England members of Allied that: "A distributor blitzkrieg will descend on exhibitors shortly, as more than a thousand salesmen, fresh from convention, will attempt to strong-arm their way to higher rentals in order to offset European losses.

"Exhibitors will be threatened with fewer and shoddier pictures if they won't go for an upping," declared the Independent Exhibitors, business manager. "They will be told that they must bear their share of the European drop-off and that share will be the amount of the lost revenue in Europe. You can bank on that.

"Before going any further, exhibitors should get wise to the fact that the film revenue from Europe in normal times was about 25 per cent of the total. The foreign market has fallen off to date approximately 10 per cent, according to the Department of Commerce figures as furnished them by the industry. Thus, to date, they have lost about 2½ per cent of their total revenue and have made some of it up in South America. All they need to do now is to lop off some of the screwball salaries they are paying right now to some so-called top executives in order to break even. There is no need to saddle the already overburdened exhibitors with more onerous terms."

Howard said further that increasing film rentals, which he declared already are at the breaking point, "will result in bankruptcy for the exhibitors and destruction for the industry."

Hollywood with its top heavy production costs and its unwarranted salaries for the almighty few should read the handwriting on the wall and wake up before it is too late.

"Let these facts be a warning to every member not to rush into signing contracts now," Howard said. "Wait until our product surveys and product meetings start. The last few years have proved that this is a sound approach to film buying."

Silver Badges to Four RKO N. E. Salesmen

NEW YORK—Sterling silver badges for selling 90 per cent or more of their possibilities this past season were awarded to the following New England salesmen by Ned Depinet, RKO vice-president in charge of sales, at the company's annual convention here: William H. Gardiner, Carmen L. DeVizia and Francis C. Ross, Boston, and William Canelli, New Haven.

Athol Selectmen "Sell" Garbose Right to Run Bank Night

ATHOL, MASS.—Abe Garbose will be allowed by local selectmen to operate Bank Night at the York, providing Garbose lives up to an agreement to pay for the privilege. Selectmen have okayed an agreement whereby Garbose will reimburse the Athol treasury to the tune of $535.30 which the city expended to defend a litigation brought by Garbose when the selectmen declined to permit Bank Night to continue in the York.

The selectmen have further provided in agreement with Garbose that the York pay a weekly license fee of $40.

In other words, it will cost Garbose approximately $2,600 per year in virtual license fees alone to operate the giveaway at the York. This figure, of course, does not include weekly cash handouts, operating expenses, etc.

Garbose formerly paid about $30 per year to license the York.

Concludes Depositions For Gorham Suit

Boston—George S. Ryan, anti-trust attorney, last week concluded the taking of depositions of distributor representatives for use in the separate anti-trust actions of Kenneth Gorham of Middlebury, Vt.; C. F. Millett of Bridgton, Me.; and Frank LePage of Millinocket Theatres, Inc. of Millinocket, Me. William Kelly, Universal assistant branch manager in Boston, and Norman Ayers, local Warner branch manager, testified.

New Haven C. of C. Opposes Neely Bill

NEW HAVEN—As a result of a meeting held by the legislative committee of the New Haven chamber of commerce, at which exchange managers and a few exhibitors were present, it was decided that the chamber oppose the Neely bill in Washington. Professor Ray Westerfield, chairman of the legislative committee, presided at the meeting. Oscar Monrad represents the chamber at the Capitol. Present at the meeting were several of the exchange managers, Lou Schaefer, Paramount Theatre manager, and John Hesse, Roger Sherman manager.

C. of C. Decision on Neely Is Rebuked

NEW HAVEN—Protesting against the decision of the local chamber of commerce decision to oppose the Neely Bill in Washington, after what it terms a "one-sided meeting" on the subject, Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut at its regular semi-monthly luncheon-meeting, instructed its executive secretary, Lawrence C. Caplan, to address a letter to Professor Ray B. Westerfield, chairman of the chamber legislative committee. Aside from voicing the protest against the committee meeting attendance, which included no New Haven or other independent exhibitors, the letter urged suspension of judgment on the bill until proponents also are heard.

Judgment Against Milford Drive-In for $4,483.60

NEW HAVEN—Default judgment of $4,483.60 damages was entered in the superior court here against the Milford Drive-In Theatre Corp. of Connecticut, in favor of Theatre Service & Supply Co. Milford Drive-In Corp. was operator of the 550-car Milford Drive-In, only such venture in the state, last year. The corporation has since been evicted. The service firm claimed the amount was due for supplies delivered and on a note for $4,010 given last year. Franklin Coeller represented the plaintiff and Herman M. Levy the defendant. Judge Edward J. Quinlan presided.

Conn. MPTO Golf Meet Will Be Held Aug. 6

NEW HAVEN—Connecticut MPTO has set the date for its annual film golf tournament, one of the major industry sports events of the east, for August 6, at Racebrook Country Club. Herman M. Levy, executive secretary, was appointed chairman of the event at the meeting on Monday, with Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, as entertainment chairman, and George Wilkinson jr., of the Wilkinson, Wallingford, as treasurer. Admission to the event is $5.00, including luncheon, dinner and green fees.

Assisting the chairman, the following committee has been appointed: Edwin S. Raffile, Samuel Rosen, Max Tabackman, B. E. Hoffman, Lou Schaefer. It is expected that 50 valuable prizes will be awarded to players and non-golfers.

The next meeting of the organization has been scheduled for Monday, June 17, at Ceriani's Cafe, with Arthur H. Lockwood presiding.

Urge Witnesses to Report "Abuses" by Salesmen

BOSTON—Independent exhibitors to be witnesses in the government anti-trust suits have been urged by Independent Exhibitors, Inc., to inform that office immediately if "intimidated by any salesmen or subjected to any other abuses by any of the distributors."

The special notice followed an outlining by the local Allied branch of the statement to 20th-Fox sales representative by Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel for that company. Jenkins told the salesmen to deal with prospective witnesses on a strictly fair basis and not to attempt to castigate or punish them in a business way.

When "Our Town" Premiered in Boston—

Upper left: Mayor Tobin of Boston (seated) proclaims an "Our Town" day in the city to mark the premiere of the Sol Lesser UA production at the Orpheum and State. Charles Kurtzman of Loew's circuit (left) and Howard Burkhardt, Orpheum manager, watch the signature to the proclamation. Upper center: Sol Lesser, the producer. Upper right: Fay Bainter obliges some young fans with her autograph. The center scene is a gala supper dance held at the Ritz-Carlton with the dais occupied by Gov. Francis P. Murphy of New Hampshire, Mayor Tobin, Fay Bainter, Comm. Venable of the U. S. Navy, Mr. and Mrs. Lesser, Thornton Wilder (author of the book from which the film was made), Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craven, Beulah Bondi, and Mrs. Edward MacDowal of Peterboro, N. H., a descendant of the founders of that city where the action of the story is laid. At the bottom is the lineup of civic and film dignitaries. Left to right they are: Mr. Craven, Governor Saltonstall, Mr. Wilder, Miss Bainter, Governor Murphy, Miss Bondi and Mr. Lesser.

"Our Town" Talk of The Town in Debut

BOSTON—"Our Town" became the talk of the town in its debut to an assemblage of civic and film luminaries seldom exceeded in this hub of cultural and social activity. The Sol Lesser production for United Artists release took a double bow in the State and Orpheum theatres.

The world premiere that brought out visiting governors of the New England states, who were hosted by Gov. Francis P. Murphy of New Hampshire and Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, was heralded for a period of four weeks before it occurred and throughout New England by billboard, tack card and radio. Billboards still announce the Sol Lesser production over a 50-mile radius around Boston, and some 25,000 arrows, over a 200-mile area point in the direction of Boston, saying "This Is the Way to 'Our Town.'"

The gala event, which brought throngs of persons from roundabout to the premiere on Thursday, which day, incidentally, Mayor Maurice Tobin of Boston proclaimed "Our Town Day," was graced by the author, Thornton Wilder; by a Hollywood contingent consisting of Beulah Bondi and Fay Bainter, who have important roles in the film; by Aaron Copland, noted composer who wrote the musical score; by Frank Craven, one of the stars of the film, and of course by the pairs of boys and girls, chosen by newspaper contests in 31 surrounding localities, as representative of the "Emily and George" group depicted in the picture. These latter were chaperoned by the mayors of their respective towns.

Others who attended the premiere were UA executives from New York, including the producer Sol Lesser and Mrs. Lesser, Murray Silverstone, Harry L. Gold, Lynn Farnol, Monroe W. Greenthal, Albert Margolies, Louis Hyman and Ed Goodnow. From Loew's came Oscar Doob and Charles Kurtzman. Theatre managers from surrounding towns also attended.

Social activities in connection with the world premiere included a reception in the Ritz-Carlton suite of Governor Murphy; a formal dinner and a dinner dance at which the governors of Massachusetts and New Hampshire were hosts.

Careful Preparation of "Our Town" Campaign

BOSTON—An analysis of "Our Town" by Sol Lesser, producer of the United Artists release, points up the value of careful planning in the preparation of merchandising campaigns for outstanding pictures. Lesser was here for the world premiere of the adaptation of the Thornton Wilder novel at the State and Orpheum. Said he:

"Someone has said that the better a motion picture is the harder it is to sell. To some extent this is really true. A bad film, with a routine plot, uninteresting characters and a treatment that exhibits little or no imagination, does not offer a fraction of the advertising and exploitation problems that a good picture does. Its campaign needs merely to follow those of hundreds of other bad films with routine plots, uninteresting characters and unimaginative treatments. But an unusual motion picture, one that follows no formula but its own, requires an unusual campaign. And 'Our Town' is an unusual motion picture.

"I am not trying to suggest that it is therefore automatically a great one; American audiences will have to decide that for themselves. I want only to describe the difficulties that confront a producer of a picture for which there is no precedent. 'Our Town' was a very famous and a very popular play; it won for Thornton Wilder a Pulitzer Prize. But the motion picture that we made from it is intended for an audience of over 40 millions, only a small percentage of whom are acquainted with the original play, or even so much as its title. The movie audience, moreover, differs from the audiences of other arts in that filmgoers resolutely refuse to have their minds made up for them by anyone but themselves. In literature, art, the theatre, something new can be successfully presented to the public through the medium of a few discriminating men and women (the critics) whose office it is to inform others of important developments in their respective fields. But, except in metropolitan areas, the film public relies on its own curiously intuitive judgment, and perhaps that of the family next door.

"We realized, therefore, that the problem we faced was to inform this vast public of 'Our Town' in terms that would be communicable to them. We needed the small-town approach. To obtain this we might have employed a research bureau or an institute of public opinion; but we chose a simpler and, I think, a more direct method. We went to a small town.

First-Hand Research

"Inglewood, Cal., a community of less than 20,000 inhabitants, was chosen as the object of our experiment. My publicity man and I drove up there one morning in time for lunch. We discarded what traces of Hollywood still clung to us, and put ourselves in the position of strangers seeking help. Our first stop was the office of the local newspaper. The editor told us frankly that probably not a half-dozen of his readers were familiar with Thornton Wilder's play or knew anything about it. This meant that we would have to sell the picture on other grounds. With his help we eventually developed a skeleton campaign by which 'Our Town' could be best conveyed to a public of which the citizens of Inglewood were representative.

"Then we went to see the exhibitor. With his help we devised exploitation and advertising campaigns directed toward the small-town audience. We learned from him the relative boxoffice importance of the various stars in the picture, and what elements of the film itself were most likely to appeal to his patrons. We learned too something of his own attitude toward such things, and have since designed much of our tradepaper advertising accordingly.

"A few townsfolk who were good enough to give us a few minutes of their time and advice completed our private survey. When we returned to Hollywood it was with a better comprehension of how to put across our picture to the people of a nation."

A New Massachusetts Dog Track Virtually Assured

BOSTON—Establishment of a new Massachusetts pari-mutuel dog track was virtually assured last week when the state racing commission granted a 75-day racing license to the Massasoit Greyhound Ass'n, Inc., for a track whose construction has been planned at Wrayham. The allotment of racing time to the Massasoit group practically puts a 1940 deathknell on the Dighton track which ran into too much notoriety following the Chicago gangdom murder of Edward G. O'Hare who had been prominently connected with it.

Comparative Qualities Of Cartoons Discussed

NEW LONDON, CONN.—Discussing editorially the question of what delights children and what frightens them, the New London Evening Day declares, "There are parents who will tell you, for instance, that their youngsters were more frightened of the characters in such films as 'Alice in Wonderland,' 'The Wizard of Oz,' etc., than they were amused."

Continuing, the newspaper says, "And, when one stops to think of it, isn't it a fact that some of the strange looking creatures displayed are bound to be rather terrifying for the impressionable small child?

"The logical observation thereafter is that Walt Disney, with his animated versions of famous children's stories, etc., has done more to provide the vehicles of imagery and imagination for children than any other force in the movies. Few of his animated characters are terrifying and it is pretty difficult for the most timid youngster to become frightened of a ferocious animal that takes time out from his depredations to skip rope, swing on the garden gate or do something else that registers without difficulty in youthful minds as perfectly logical for anyone who wants to 'have fun.'"

Enrich Understanding Of Motion Pictures

NEW HAVEN—"The more one understands about a thing, the more one gets out of it, and the movies being about the most popular form of entertainment, we feel our motion picture councils are of great value in promoting better understanding and discrimination in selection and enjoyment of motion pictures," Donald A. Eldridge, director of visual education in New Haven schools, stated in addressing the fifth annual symposium of the Junior Motion Picture Councils held at Troup Junior High.

The director also brought out that "lessons of living and social values" are to be found in the films. He praised New Haven theatre and exchange managers for their cooperation in this relatively new work of the schools, which now embraces over 500 junior high and high school pupils.

Several members of the council spoke on the value of study guides, stills and Theatre News reviews in helping students make their choice of current films and obtain a better appreciation of them, and Eldridge awarded the prizes in the recent "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" essay contests, held in cooperation with John Hesse, manager of the Roger Sherman.

Students told of the new radio work on motion picture appreciation, and the programs in which Robert Russell, manager of the Loew-Poli, and other managers had participated.

Industrial Activity Up Near Hartford

HARTFORD—Increased industrial activity was noted in Hartford, Bridgeport, Stamford, Thompsonville, and Willimantic areas during April, according to the monthly situation reports of the branch managers of the state unemployment compensation division. The reports also indicated continued good business conditions in seven other areas where branch offices are located. The seven are Ansonia, Meriden, Middletown, New Britain, Bristol, Torrington, and Danielson.

Conditions continued slow in Norwalk, Danbury, New Haven, New London, and Norwich areas, while Waterbury conditions were reported worse.

While the initial unemployment compensation claims increased during the month, the payable claim load decreased slightly. The increase can be accounted for, in part, by the beginning of the second quarter of the year when some persons, previously ineligible for compensation, became eligible. Job placements by the employment service increased 38 per cent over March, and 19 per cent over April, 1939.

April Average Higher Than a Year Ago

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Massachusetts industrial activity during April was slightly higher than in the same month of 1939, according to a report by Elisabeth M. Herlihy, chairman of the state planning board.

Using the average of the years 1925-1927 as an index figure of 100, the composite figure for April was 80.5, as compared with 78.2 a year ago.

Fenton Megs "Fleecing"

HOLLYWOOD—Leslie Fenton will direct Metro's "The Golden Fleecing" for Producer Edgar Selwyn.

PROVIDENCE

THREE Paramount players, due in town to attend the 25th anniversary of the Strand Theatre, will bring Providence its biggest Hollywood invasion to date. Lynne Overman, Muriel Angelus and J. Carrol Naish comprise the trio. Manager Ed Reed of Strand has arranged several social functions during their stay, chief of which will be tea reception at Biltmore with Mr. and Mrs. William Eddy of Pawtucket, parents of Nelson Eddy; Mrs. William Lovett, mother of Dorothy Lovett; Mrs. William T. O'Rourke, mother of Ruth Hussey; Virginia Rooks, script writer, and Miss Mabel Woolsey, member of old Albee Stock with which Overman once was leading man, in receiving line.

City's neighborhood theatres and serial producers both got a publicity break in Sunday Journal of June 2 when Robert L. Wheeler, staff writer, turned out a three-column article with photo art on "The Serial Makes a Comeback," mentioning various chapter films now showing in State and revealing modern juveniles' reactions to same.

George Scher, publicity representative in New England for United Artists, paid his first visit to Providence making contacts with press and other mediums which should net UA some good publicity during coming months . . . Majestic using window cards and other advertising for "Lillian Russell" booking this week; unusual for this house.

Albee's closing date has been set back to June 12, according to latest word from New York offices. Fays dropped vaudeville Thursday and will try dual programs for summer . . . First hot and bright Sunday, June 2, dealt a solar plexus to theatre grosses, all houses being off about 60 per cent.

Officials of the Associated Theatres Company, operators of several neighborhood theatres in Providence and suburbs, have formed a new corporation, the Metropolitan Theatre Co., and have leased the 3,045-seat Metropolitan here from the Delphina Realty Co. The lease is for five years. Incorporators are Abram A. Spitz, president; Ralph E. Snider, treasurer; Judge James E. Dooley, secretary, and Antonio A. Romano. Spitz announced the theatre would be remodeled. Opening is set for September with the policy to include concert and orchestra bookings, road shows and name band and vaudeville for weekends.

Matunuck's Theatre-by-the-Sea, summer legit, was leased for the season by Richard Wilson, former stage manager for Orson Welles and operator of the Bass Rocks Theatre, Gloucester, Mass., last summer.

Fays Theatre adopted a double-feature grind film policy May 30 instead of closing for summer as hitherto.

Ed Reed, manager of the Strand, is going to do up his house's 25th anniversary in a big way. Window card, radio, newspaper and other advertising mediums are being used to put across the world premiere of "Safari" which opened June 6, and the p. a., of a trio of players from Paramount lot is being tied in with various civic affairs.

PORTLAND

BEGINNING around June 17 the State Theatre will launch its most ambitious radio program to date. Six mornings a week, from 7:45 to 8:00 o'clock, it will air over WCSH, "Musical Almanac," a program aimed at the tourist. In addition to theatre plugs and a liberal amount of organ music, the program will announce weather and flying conditions in Portland, the state of Maine, and New England generally, as well as high and low tides. The program will be broadcast throughout July, August and September.

Filmrow visitors: Harry Browning, Boston M&P office, who revealed a love for walking in the rain; Fred Stoloff, NSS representative; Carl Goe, WB salesman, and Frank Meadows, who was making a trip through northern Maine with Goe.

"Request Time," the State Theatre's musical program which went on the air June 1 over WCSH, introduced Helen Alexion, 14-year-old contralto, as a regular member of its cast. Miss Alexion was "discovered" when she appeared on one of the juvenile "Recess Time" programs last year.

A "perfect" Memorial Day for the public, but a bad one for local exhibitors, this year. The silver lining to the cloud wasn't discovered until the following day when an all-day rain brought delayed customers inside theatres.

Connecticut Employment Office Places Youths

HARTFORD—More than 6,000 jobs for Connecticut's unemployed youths under 21 years of age were found by the public employment offices during the last six months of 1939, it has been announced here.

The proportion of junior placements to all placements during this period was higher in Connecticut than in the country as a whole.

During the last half of 1939, a total of 29,265 persons found jobs through the public employment offices in Connecticut. Of these, 6,333, or 21.6 per cent were junior placements. The majority of the youths placed in jobs found work in private industry, only 420 of the placements being in public jobs.

Surplus Commodities Stamp Sales Mount in Conn.

HARTFORD—The Federal Surplus Commodities Corp. has reported new sales of blue stamps to Hartford relief recipients for the week ending May 18 brings the total blue stamps issued since the plan was started March 12 to $58,716, and that of orange stamps to $63,190.

Students Run Theatre

CLINTON, CONN.—The new summer theatre here will be manned by several workers from the Yale School of Drama, it has been learned. Ronnie Hammond has taken over the management of the summer playhouse at Stony Brook for the season.

Reconsideration Brings "Waterloo Bridge" Cuts

BOSTON—"Waterloo Bridge," M-G-M feature previously passed without eliminations by the Massachusetts bureau of Sunday censorship, has been reconsidered by the department of public safety branch and heavily scissored. Eliminations on the 11-reeler, which opened last week at Loew's State and Orpheum in Boston, now include:

"Dialogue, 'A cheaper sort of a show . . .,' to and including, '. . . I suppose you think I'm dirt?'; scene showing Myra smiling and going to voice off stage; scene showing Myra soliciting at station, in part 7. Dialogue, 'Oh, I know what you're thinking . . .,' to and including, '. . . Oh, I'm going to tell him,' in part 8. Dialogue, '. . . what can it be that is so terrible?,' to and including, '. . . for not having taken care of you,' in part 10. Dialogue, 'I'm scared, I tell you! . . .' to and including, 'You don't need to say it. I understand,' in part 11."

Approved without cuts last week for Sunday showings in Massachusetts were 39 pictures, including RKO's "You Can't Fool Your Wife" and "My Favorite Wife."

Two foreign films have been passed for Massachusetts Sunday showings, under the jurisdiction of Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney, following eliminations. Cuts on "The Kreutzer Sonata," a release of Foreign Cinema Arts, are: "Caption, 'Ladies and gentlemen, the most faithful friend of the unfaithful . . .' in part 1. All scenes showing Sonia and Po in sensual embrace on divan in apartment, in part 2."

"Rasputin," released by Concord Films, Inc., was trimmed of "All scenes showing couple in sensual embrace at dance in inn, in part 1. Caption, 'Some patients can be cured . . .,' to and including, 'to the patient nor to the healer,' in part 2. Scene showing girl putting her foot on Rasputin's shoulder in cafe; caption, '. . . God is too unjust . . .,' in part 4. All scenes showing girl taking bath; scene showing Rasputin pushing other girl down on bed, in part 7."

Middlesex Bank Night Test Expected Soon

BOSTON—The Bank Night test case in Middlesex county is expected to come up soon. The giveaway is continuing operation under an agreement between Roy E. Heffner, Affiliated Enterprises assignee, and District Attorney Robert Bradford.

George S. Ryan, film attorney, will defend the action which was set up in an effort to determine the status of the box-office bolster in regard to local anti-lottery laws. Michael J. Hurney, Bank Night salesman, is the nominal defendant in the action which is based on operation of Bank Night at the Tower, Heffner house in Lowell.

Appeal Assessments

HARTFORD—Appeals from the assessment of $785,750 placed on the Loew-Poli Palace Theatre Bldg., 625-653 Main St., and from the valuation of $423,875 placed on the M&P's Allyn Theatre Bldg., 198-200 Asylum St., in the 1939 grand list, have been brought in superior court.

BRIDGEPORT

ERNEST GILBERT, projectionist at the Rivoli, is a grandfather for the second time . . . The Empire, New London, has organized a magic club for youngsters and gives a new magic trick away at each Saturday matinee.

Harry Rose of the Globe had to do plenty of fast work to organize a five-act vaudeville show when his bill, coming from New York by auto met with a serious accident.

Morris and Molly Rosenthal entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rose and other theatrical folk at a dinner in their apartment . . . Federal Census in Conn. Seen Complete July 15

HARTFORD—The 1940 federal census in Connecticut will be complete by July 15, at the latest, State Director John L. Sullivan has announced.

It is expected, however, that preliminary figures for cities and towns will be available before then.

Hartford county will be complete by June 30, and Tolland county is already tabulated, it was said.

Goldsteins Acquire Block In Northampton, Mass.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.—Samuel and Nathan E. Goldstein of Springfield, owners and operators of Western Mass. Theatres, Inc., have purchased the Riley block here between the postoffice and the Plaza Theatre.

There has been no indication from the purchasers what use will be made of the block, although some reports have it that a new theatre may be built here.

BOSTON—Jules Lapidus last week became eastern district manager for Universal. Lapidus was formerly Universal branch manager in Pittsburgh. He will cover New England, Washington and Philadelphia territory, working out of New York.

Investigate Nazi Film

PROVIDENCE—The showing of Nazi war films in a Warwick tavern last week has led to an investigation ordered by Mayor Albert P. Ruerat to determine whether there were any indications of "subversive activities and utter disregard of American principles" at the meeting.

Government Details Against Crescent

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The bill of particulars required by Judge Elmer Davies, following a hearing on February 23 in the suit of the United States Government against Crescent Amusement Co. and its affiliates charging violation of anti-trust laws, was filed by Assistant District Attorney O. W. Hughes on May 22. In this bill the government claims that in the past five years the defendants have taken over or closed at least 26 theatres of independent exhibitors in Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama and North Carolina. However, the bill failed to name the complete list of these theatres, giving the names of 19 operators and 30 theatres that have been affected by the chain's operations. The substance of the charges was that the "defendant distributors aided the defendant exhibitors in taking over theatres and in keeping others closed by providing defendant exhibitors with first choice of all desirable product before releasing same to the competing independent exhibitors."

Attorneys for the defense are allowed 45 days in which to prepare an answer to this bill.

Two Labor Conventions Call Tenn. Operators

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Attention of the members of Motion Picture Operators Local 626 here was divided between the convention of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes at Louisville, Ky., June 3, and the meeting of the Tennessee Federation of Labor on the same date. J. L. Burns, Knickerbocker projectionist, is president of the Nashville Trade and Labor Council. He was accompanied to the Memphis meeting by H. W. Williams, operator at Loew's, as a delegate. J. E. O'Gara, operator at the Knickerbocker, who is a trustee of the IATSE, represented the local at Louisville. Several members of the Nashville local drove to Louisville Sunday afternoon for the opening of the convention.

Rip Condron Shaping Up Gubernatorial Campaign

DALLAS—R. P. "Rip" Condron, former owner of the Star at Forney who announced last week that he had entered the race for governor of Texas, is rapidly whipping his campaign in shape, he said Wednesday. His platform will be "against chain theatres and block booking."

Condron already has made trips to Austin, Fort Worth and several other cities in connection with his campaign. He has purchased a public address system and employed an artist to style and decorate his car and special carrier arrangement he will use for ballyhoo and in making speeches.

Condron's headquarters are at the White Plaza Hotel.

Charter Presented to Tent 22 At Oklahoma City Ceremony

SETOA Meets July 21 In Jacksonville

Jacksonville, Fla.—July 21, 22 and 23 have definitely been selected as the dates for the annual convention here of the Southeastern Theatre Owners Ass'n, according to M. C. Moore of the Riverside, president of the organization. A full convention program will be announced shortly, along with committee appointments by Moore, who also will serve as general chairman.

Arcadia in Dallas Cuts Price Scale

DALLAS—The Arcadia, 1,100-seat neighborhood theatre operated by R. H. (Bob) Clemmons and Lee Hanley, has made its expected cut in admission prices from 10-25-35 cents to 10-15-20 cents. The new scale starts with kids at a dime any time, 15 cents for adults until 5 o'clock, and 20 cents in the evening. Results were gratifying the first week, according to Clemmons.

How the price cut will affect the Arcadia's availability has not been fully determined at this time, Clemmons added.

Other Dallas neighborhoods in the eastern part of town where the Arcadia is located and charging a quarter, say that thus far they have not been affected by the Arcadia cut.

Blue Law Forces Rally In Charlotte Council

CHARLOTTE—Six of the ten members present at the latest meeting of the Charlotte city council voted against Sunday shows.

Hardly had the meeting adjourned before preparations were being made to force a vote next meeting on a measure designed to return the old "blue laws" to Charlotte—regulations so rigid that even soft drinks cannot be sold on Sunday.

Sterling Silver Badges To Four RKO Salesmen

NEW YORK—At RKO's annual convention here, sterling silver badges for selling 90 per cent or more of their possibilities this past season, were awarded to the following southern salesmen by Ned Depinet, vice-president in charge of sales: Vernon H. Adams, Dallas; Paul Harrison, Atlanta, and R. V. Reagin and W. G. Wray, Memphis.

OKLAHOMA CITY—In an impressive ceremony at the Silver Glade room of the Skirvin Hotel Monday evening, which was attended by over 450 members and friends of the trade, formal presentation was made of a charter to the recently formed Tent 22 of Variety. Included in the assemblage were newspaper and radio executives and civic and charitable leaders of Oklahoma City.

L. C. Griffith, chief barker of the Oklahoma City Tent and president of Griffith Amusement Co. of Oklahoma, accepted the charter on behalf of Variety from John Harris, national chief barker who came here for the occasion from Pittsburgh, Pa., where he operates a circuit of theatres.

Inducts 120 Members

Near the close of the ceremony, James G. Balmer, national dough guy, also of Pittsburgh, inducted 120 members into Tent 22.

Chief Barker Griffith introduced a long list of honored guests who had been invited to acquaint them with the aims and achievements of Variety. He also introduced Bob O'Donnell, chief barker of the Dallas Tent who outlined the charitable work done by his group during the past year. His Tent, he related, only last Tuesday started building a $20,000 swimming pool for underprivileged children in south Dallas.

Harris briefly outlined the history of Variety since its inception 12 years ago in Pittsburgh. In the past year over 500,000 children of all races and religions have been aided in one form or another by the 22 Variety clubs of America, Harris told the assembly.

A film recording various charitable projects of Variety, which was made especially for the organization's recent national convention in Dallas, was exhibited for the gathering. Appropriate comments were made by Harris during the film's unfolding.

Griffith announced that Tent 22 will build a $45,000 building at the corner of South Hudson Ave. and West Pottawatomie to house, without cost, private local social agencies. Members of Tent 22 will raise the necessary funds for the building and will maintain it.

Big Dallas Delegation Sees Tent Get Charter

DALLAS—The Dallas Variety Club, Tent No. 17, was well represented Monday night at the charter presentation dinner given for the recently formed Tent No. 22 at Oklahoma City. Those who made the trip were Bob O'Donnell, Ed Olsmith, Jack Underwood, Paul Short, Duke Evans, Harry Sachs, John Franconi, Wallace Walthall, Hugh Owen, Alfred Delcambre, Jake and Dave Lutzer, Rip Payne, Lynn Stocker, R. E. Griffith and Mrs. Griffith, Fred Jack, Jo Jack, Burt King, J. A. McInaney, Oscar Ray and Mrs. Ray, Jack Zern, E. C. Coleman and two or three others whose names were not learned.

Morgan Presides at Paramount Meeting

MEMPHIS—Oscar Morgan, division manager, was in charge as some 50 executives and salesmen of Paramount met here for the company's two-day southern regional at the Hotel Peabody. Aiding Morgan in outlining Paramount's plans for the 1940-41 season was his assistant, Monroe Goodman.

Among those present were: Hugh Braly and Harold Wilkes, district managers of Dallas and Atlanta respectively; Jack Price, New Orleans; Scott Lett, Charlotte; John Kirby, Atlanta; L. W. McClintock, Dallas; J. J. Curry, Oklahoma City, and Bill Bugie, Memphis.

Entertainment included a banquet, with M. A. Lightman, head of the Malco circuit, the able master of ceremonies. Among guests at the banquet were Dave Groskind and Lew Andrews of the Malco office, and Alton Sims of Robb & Rowley.

Ezell and Underwood Will Build Santone Drive-In

DALLAS—Claude Ezell and W. G. Underwood will build a drive-in in San Antonio right away. Details of the project were not learned. Ezell, who attended the Republic regional at Memphis, is expected back this week.

Get's His Mind Off the War

Dresden, Tenn.—Charles Parham, operator of the Uptown, has a Rhode Island Red hen that catches bread crumbs or other small morsels of food tossed to her. Parham says that it keeps his mind off the war and bad theatre business to sit on his back porch and toss crumbs to the hen, which is appropriately named "Mickey," for Detroit's Mickey Cochrane.

Kuykendall to Address Carolina Theatremen

CHARLOTTE—Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA, will be the chief speaker at the summer convention of the TOA of North and South Carolina at Myrtle Beach, June 9, 10 and 11, it is announced by Pauline Griffith, secretary.

About 300 persons are expected to attend. The sessions will be at the Ocean Forest Hotel. President H. R. Berry of Hartsville, S. C. will preside.

A speaker whose name will not be disclosed until the convention opens, will bring to the meeting a surprise address, Mrs. Griffith said. Proposed national legislation affecting the industry will be discussed. Other plans for the program still are in the making.

Prelude to a Swimming Pool—

Neighborhood youngsters were active in the ground-breaking ceremonies of Dallas Variety Club barkers who are going to erect a $20,000 free pool for children in the South Dallas area. The pool, 40x105 feet, will be ready next month. Immediately behind the juvenile excavators are from left to right: Bill Underwood, chairman of the special pool committee; R. E. Griffith, chairman of the tent Heart Committee, and Chief Barker R. J. O'Donnell. Architects, park board members, barkers and contractors looked on.

In the background are Jack Moore and H. F. Pettigrew, theatre architects, and Paul P. Scott, theatre impresario.

Vogel Holds Slump Is "Beginning to Pass"

MEMPHIS—That the slump in boxoffice receipts is only temporary is the opinion of Joseph R. Vogel, in charge of Loew's circuit operations, who was here to attend the opening of Loew's Palace.

"People have been glued to their radios for the latest war bulletins," admitted Vogel, "but they will come back to the theatres. The slump is already beginning to pass as America readjusts its outlook to changing conditions abroad. Past experience has taught us that the public mind readjusts itself to these disturbances and turns quickly again to the movies for relaxation. As a matter of fact, even abroad where the fighting is taking place, the countries on both sides are making every effort to keep the theatres operating. In England, in cities that are blacked out, arrangements have been made to keep the shows going; they have a system of staggering the starting time and the closing hours so that the crowds on the streets can be kept to a minimum instead of coming from all the houses at the same time."

Vogel, who is making a survey of the circuit's southern houses prior to returning to his New York office, was met here by Ernest Emerling, advertising and publicity man from the New York office; W. A. Finney, southern division manager, Atlanta; Col. Cecil E. Vogel, manager of Loew's State, and Robert Kilgore, who will manage the Palace.

The Palace recently came back into control of Loew's at the termination of a five-year lease to Lightman interests.

Memphis Palace Opening Hailed by Projectionists

MEMPHIS—Projectionists and stage hands of Locals 144 and 69 respectively had a large hand in a special section of the Memphis Commercial Appeal devoted to the reopening of Loew's Palace. Three spaces in the section were taken, one by Stagehands' Union No. 69; one by the four projectionists on the Palace staff; one by the quartette in the booth of Loew's State in Memphis.

The Palace quartette is composed of William Shapiro, A. J. Smith, John Muller and Joe South, while the State's welcome was extended by D. S. Weaver, W. T. Branch, E. L. Hurt and M. S. Stroler.

Management of an opposition theatre, Howard Waugh and staff of the Warner, also chimed in with a large advertisement congratulating "three swell guys. Bob Kilgore (Palace manager), Col. Cecil Vogel (State manager), and Ernest Emerling (Loew's advertising and publicity man)."

Three Order RCA

DALLAS—RCA Photophone sound has been ordered for the new theatre Moran E. McDaniel is building at La Marque, Tex., for the Wades at Fuquay Springs, N. C., being re-equipped and refurbished by Louis M. Wade, and for the Garland at Garland, Tex., operated by H. R. Bisby, which is being modernized.

Dixie Doin's... By "Al" Henderson

HAD a short visit with C. C. Bounds of Texarkana, who operates theatres for colored there and in Marshall, Tex., and was informed by his charming manager, Miss Jerry Musgraves, that they had just redecorated and installed a new cooling system at their Palace in Texarkana.

Called around to say hello to an old-timer in the person of E. O. Kirkland, who has the Ritz at Vivian, La. Kirkland has a brother "Pop" Kirkland, who has the only theatre at Bossier City. E. O. tells me he has the agency for theatre cooling systems.

Cooling systems seem to be getting the nod from the boys. Elton Houck of Joys Theatre at Texarkana made a recent installation. He introduced me to his uncle, Clyde Houck, father of Joy, Willis and Freddie.

B. F. (Bill) McDougal of the Drew at Monticello, Ark., spends his spare time fraternizing with the student flyers at the college in his town. Bill is an ex-wartime pilot with plenty of air hours to his credit and we meet on common ground when we do a little ground flying. Bill still gets a little time in now and then just to keep his hand and eye in practice.

Warren Magee of the Rex, Saenger operation at Pensacola, tells me a daughter weighing 8 pounds was born to Mrs. Magee on May 5.

John Hartzog, formerly a projectionist at the Hartford at Hartford, Ala., has been appointed manager of the Bonifay at Bonifay, Fla., succeeding Bob Parker, who resigned.

John McLeod, managing Malco's Ritz at McGehee, Ark., has just finished a complete remodeling of the house which increased the seating capacity.

Clyde McCroskey of the Allied at Dermott, Ark., has about finished rebuilding his house which was destroyed by fire last year.

Sydney Wharton of the Pastime at Warren, Ark., has been in the hospital at Little Rock with a throat ailment, and so did not get to see him; however, had the pleasure of a short visit with his right hand man, Joe Griffin.

The Rialto at Camden, Ark., has just been remodeled both inside and out.

Seen around Pensacola, Fla., were Maxwell (Sweet Pea) Braswell of the Isis, Warren Magee of the Rex, and Clinton Vucovitch.

Had a short visit with Bob Scott, who manages Fred McLendon's Imogene at Milton, Fla. Bob was formerly stationed in Alabama.

Had a pleasant visit with Mason Coggswell, who manages the Roxy at Mobile, and he extended me the courtesy of the house which was appreciated. Coggswell was formerly on the legitimate stage before settling down in Mobile.

A. J. Tighlman, who has the New at Tchula, Miss., tells us he has finally picked a name for his new daughter. It is Jean Myer. Had the pleasure of going fishing with Tighlman in Horseshoe Lake near his town, but had no luck.

A. B. Garrett, who operates the theatre at Hampton, Ark., also operates a motor car business and is running for treasurer in his county.

To Elba, Ala., to see Dozier Roberts, who is now managing the Elba for Walt Brackin. Roberts was previously stationed at Milton, Fla., and Luverne, Ala. Lobby of his house was recently redecorated and installation of air conditioning equipment will begin at once.

Called around to see an old friend, Mrs. L. C. Moore who owns the Ritz at Enterprise, Ala., and the Avon at Geneva. While there met that hardworking Warner salesman, J. H. Black, who gave me some news of the trade in his territory.

Louis Worthington will open a new drive-in in Montgomery, Ala., to be located near the Municipal Airport.

To Marianna, Fla., to see Newton Chalker, who is now managing the Ritz there for Martin-Davis Theatres. Newt resigned his post at Greenville, Miss., with Saenger to return to his home section which is Dothan, Ala. While there our good friend Rufe Davis sr. came by and we had a nice visit. He told of the personnel changes made recently at the Ritz. Ben Holder was transferred from Dothan to succeed Julian Pippin as chief projectionist, while Pippin was transferred to Sylacauga, Ala. Rufe, who was taking a short vacation, seemed to be in the pink.

Charles Rook, brother of film man Al Rook, comes down from the Oklahoma prairies to begin construction of a new 1,000-seat house at Montgomery, Ala., to open late in the year.

Friends of Johnny Jones, who resigned from the Saenger organization about 18 months ago after many years of service, will be glad to know he is back on the job, succeeding Ollie Epps at the Temple in Meridian, Miss. Epps has been transferred to the Strand at Shreveport to succeed Bob Swanson, who has been called to New Orleans for a new assignment. Best wishes, Ollie, on the new job.

Your rambling correspondent was out of touch with things for a couple of weeks and was unable to garner the usual dope for his column, but is now back on the job and expects to do a little visiting in Arkansas and Tennessee within a few days.

DALLAS

HENRY REEVE, owner of the Mission at Menard, was here Monday returning from Washington where he went to appear against the Neely bill. Reeve was in the capital at the call of Judge Roy Walker who has been in Washington for some days as one of the chief opponents of the measure . . . A new girl was born to the Lonnie Leggs at Denison and the mother and baby are doing fine. However, Lonnie, who was here to set in a few pictures for the Superba, was still a little nervous.

Jack Lilly of Greenville looked mighty fine on Filmrow this week showing good gains in weight and color. The going had been tough for him, first with influenza and then an appendicitis operation . . . Jake Watkins, National Theatre Supply manager at Oklahoma City, was a Dallas visitor, coming down to bring two sons and a daughter, James, Earl and Doris, who will make a longer visit. Jake said he would work a number of towns on the way back. Before his promotion, he was cashier and utility man in the Dallas branch under J. I. Roberts.

Audrey Cox of Lamesa and his brother, W. E. Cox of Seminole, were here booking . . . Tol Teeter and wife, now headquartering in San Antonio, were on the Row Wednesday looking over lighting fixtures and other items of equipment. He operates the Joy in Houston and the Joy in San Antonio with associates in each situation. He told friends here that he has just sold his interest in the Joy at Dallas. All three of the Joys run vaudeville and subsequent run films.

The associate operates the agency, and Stewart is on the job at DeLeon . . . Karl F. Tate, city marshal of Valley Mills who owns and operates the Ritz as a sideline, proudly telling Dallas friends of the graduation from high school of his daughter, Miss Frankie Dean Tate. Both are hereby congratulated.

Edward C. Kuehn of Liberty Film Lines and Miss Audry Bivins, No. 1 waitress in Clark's Filmrow Cafe, were married June 2 at Walters, Okla. The groom has been with the Cliff Adair organization for 12 years and his trade name is "Bozo." The bride was a former cashier at the Palace in Corsicana and has been with the cafe here for about a year . . . Clyde Houston of M-G-M and Mrs. Houston celebrated a wedding anniversary the other day. In the observance, they took a trip to Cooper, Tex., where they visited the Henry Sparks family.

Men at Columbia were ready to embark Saturday for Atlantic City to attend the eastern sales convention. The contingent included: J. B. Underwood, branch manager; A. M. Whitcher, office manager; and Salesmen Walter Penn, Jim McKinney, Herman Craver and Leslie Wilkes . . . W. A. Nave, new owner of the Grand at Grandview which incidentally is now housed in a new and remodeled building, dropped by this week and turned in a year's subscription to BOXOFFICE. He fomerly operated a theatre at LaTuna. He is assisted at Grandview by his son, W. A. jr., who is in charge of the booth.

Little has been said about Elm Street fishermen, but we learn that even busy theatremen on that thoroughfare find time occasionally to dampen their hook. This week James L. Reynolds, assistant manager of the Melba, and Francis Barry, publicist for about four theatres, sped up to Lake Dallas for a few hours of angling. Results were not learned up to press time, but J. M. (Soda) Reynolds, father of one of the fishermen, went by the store early that morning and bought two extra pounds of grease for the frying pan.

Bookings on "Hitler—Beast of Berlin," new war picture on which distribution by Adams Film exchanges in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas was announced a few days ago, are coming in at a rapid rate, according to L. F. (Chick) Turner, office manager in Dallas who bore every indication that things were on the hum in that exchange.

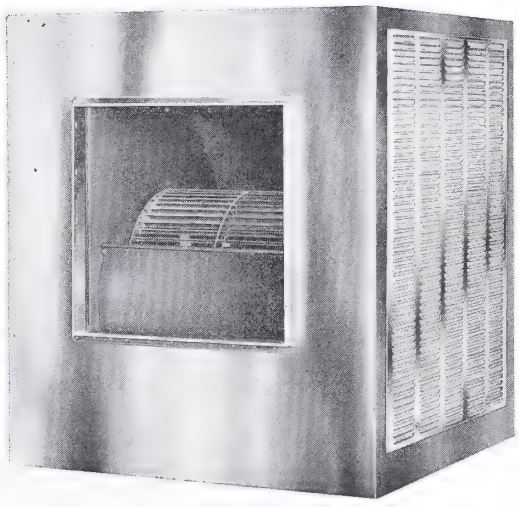
Great things were expected at the Capitol on Elm Street with the current run of the many times reissued "Hell's Angels." The Capitol campaign featured the point that this epic indicated what could happen later in a war of the air, all of which, and more, is happening today. During its life the picture has had a dozen runs or more on Elm Street.

New One for Negroes

GALVESTON—Mrs. A. Martini, operator of Dixie No. 3, is building a new house for colored which is expected to open about September 1.

UA Southern District Helm to Hugh Owen

DALLAS—News of an announcement made in New York by Harry Gold of United Artists reached Dallas, Wednesday, to the effect that Branch Manager Hugh Owen had been elevated to southern district manager, which takes in the 11 southern states and the offices of Dallas, New Orleans, Atlanta and Charlotte. District headquarters have heretofore been maintained in Atlanta. Although there has been talk of a likely successor to Owen in the Dallas office, nothing official was learned at press time as to the identity of the new branch manager.



Along with the Owen promotion, it was learned here that Dave Prince, present UA district manager, has gone to RKO and will work under Robert Mochrie as district manager in charge of the Atlanta, Charlotte and New Orleans branches. Mochrie has been promoted to division manager.

Bennett Cosmetic Film Deal for Interstate

DALLAS—Harry Taylor and Joe Rosenberg, who have been here promoting the Constance Bennett cosmetic film deal, report they have concluded successful negotiations with Interstate for "A" houses in Texas, which include the Majestic, Palace and Tower in Dallas. The reel was screened here at the Fox exchange and subsequent screenings were held for interested theatremen.

Miss Thelma Ward was honored last week upon having completed 18 years of service with the Horwitz Theatres organization. She entered the group in 1922 as an employe of the branch post office and since that time has handled a wide range of duties for Will Horwitz. Miss Ward has been a cashier at the Texan and Iris and head usher at the Iris and Ritz and trained the girls when the new Uptown opened.

D. F. Luckie, original owner and builder of the University in West University Place, announced that he is resuming operation of the theatre, taking over from Hugo Plath who has been operating it the past several months. Luckie entered into a partnership agreement with Karl Hoblitzelle of Interstate Circuit, Inc. With this arrangement the house will enjoy the same booking and operating facilities as all other Interstate theatres in Houston. He also announced that in his deal to retake the theatre he purchased additional ground immediately back of the house for future remodeling and enlarging.

Add New Line

DALLAS—Cliff Adair of Liberty Film Lines and Rex McCulloh of Film Transfer, have extended their interests into a large tourist court, called Pennell Courts, and located on the Denton Road, Highway 77, about a half mile north of Love Field. They are associated with F. E. Pennell, who is manager of the $35,000 venture.

RCA for Bisby

DALLAS—H. R. Bisby has installed new RCA sound in the Garland at Garland. He and Mrs. Bisby also operate the Mecca at Wylie, Ritz at Rockwall and the Ritz at Richardson. Before going into Texas exhibition, Bisby sold film for Republic.

Republic Regional Held in Memphis

MEMPHIS—The two-day Republic regional here at the Hotel Peabody was attended by representatives from seven exchanges and a number of executives from New York and Hollywood.

Herbert J. Yates, chairman of the board, planed in from Hollywood, while James R. Grainger, president and general sales manager, came in from Chicago.

Among those who heard the company's plans for the new season outlined were: Arthur C. Bromberg, president of Republic of the Southeast who headquarters in Atlanta; Henry Glover, Atlanta branch manager; 'Cy Dillon, Charlotte branch manager; L. C. Seichsnaydre, New Orleans; Harold Laird, Tampa; Winfield Snelson, Memphis; W. G. Underwood and Claude Ezell, Texas franchise holders; Morris Loewenstein and Sol Davis, Oklahoma franchise holders, and B. F. Busby of Little Rock.

Judy Canova, hillbilly singer of radio fame who has appeared in a number of Republic pictures, was a guest.

SANTONE

INTERSTATE gave a special gift night party for local graduates at the Majestic Saturday. One hundred useful articles were furnished by Joske's as prizes. "Irene" was the screen offering. Local Interstate theatres also hawked their coupon books as ideal presents for the graduates. These were plugged via trailers . . . Billy Lewis, who originally hails from Florida, has taken over as the new leading comedian at the Joy. Recent revivals at this vaude-film house included "Annabel Takes a Tour" and "Algiers."

Visitors included: Jose Calderon, Azteca Films, Mexico City; Mrs. Eva Warwick (Josephine Brew), Hollywood actress, and William Steele, New York playwright . . . "Air Army," filmed at Randolph Field and showing Uncle Sam's air defense in action, was exhibited at the Aztec last week in conjunction with the regular feature . . . Ernest "Frenchy" Biencourt attended the IATSE state confab at Houston recently. He also was a delegate to the Louisville conference.

A typographical error in last week's BOXOFFICE had "Bill" Cordor's name spelled wrong . . . "Hitler—Beast of Berlin" will be exhibited locally at the Empire this week . . . Jack Hooper, war department photographer, has gone to Vicksburg, Miss., on an assignment.

Phil H. Pierce

AUSTIN

"TOO LONG" KALLGREN, local stage manager for Interstate, is mighty proud of that boat on Lake Austin . . . Lee Bammel, Paramount projectionist, had his ear glued to the radio during the Indianapolis races. Reason: Lee is a former auto racer himself and still builds midget racers.

Mary Murchison, Interstate switchboard operator, mourned the loss of her beloved husband, Eddie Murchison, who died last week following a heart attack.

Kenneth Francis, Paramount usher, while cramming for his final exams, fell down a flight of stairs the other morning at 3 a. m. and broke four right-hand fingers. A day or two later, he was transferred to the Queen, where Manager Charlie Root claims the tumble had nothing to do with the shift.

Vacation flashes: Sammie Russell, Capitol cashier, to San Antonio . . . Sadie May, the girl in the gilded cage at the Paramount, considering a jaunt to Mexico City . . . Lena Novy Podolnick of Los Angeles in town to catch her brother Harold's high school graduation. They're Louis Novy's kids.

Leslie Carpenter named amusements editor of The Summer Texan . . . Eddie Cope, BOXOFFICE scribbler, doing a radio column for the same sheet.

Here's the new lineup at the Capitol: Mike Evans, here from the Paramount; Eddie Milner, here from the State; Karl Stroud, new chief of service, replacing Ewell Love, resigned; Clyde Holland, new doorman.

Euell Phillip Ischy, Paramount projectionist, tossed a barbecue supper the other night in honor of visiting kith and kin . . . Going home for the summer: Ferne McIlroy, candy girl at the Paramount; Raymond Woods of the Varsity.

Oklahoma City Victoria Closed for Remodeling

OKLAHOMA CITY—The Victoria, northside suburban theatre operated by Standard Theatres Corp., is closed for an extensive remodeling program. Reopening in the fall is planned, according to E. A. Patchen, assistant general manager.

Personnel changes made during the week by the organization: Paul Rice, assistant manager of the Midwest Theatre, transferred to the Criterion in the same capacity; A. J. Lynn, assistant manager of the Tower, transferred to the Midwest succeeding Rice; Bill McConnaughy, doorman at the Midwest, promoted to assistant manager at the Tower under Spence Pierce.

Start in Cooper

COOPER, TEX.—Henry Sparks has started remodeling work on a building he recently purchased and which he will convert into a modern theatre of about 800 seats.

Sunday Show Proposal Loses in Covington

COVINGTON, TENN.—The mayor and board of aldermen have rejected the petition of the Ruffin Amusement Co. to operate Sunday shows here. Opposition to the petition was expressed by various church and women's groups.

Ministers and other citizens of Covington appeared against the petition when it first was presented to the board a month ago following a straw vote, through signed cards, obtained by representatives of the amusement company showing a majority of the citizenry favoring shows on the Sabbath.

Montgomery Open-Airer Rises Near Airport

MONTGOMERY — Montgomery's drive-in theatre now is being built in front of the municipal airport on the Wetumpka Highway, five miles from Court Square. L. C. Worthington, of Birmingham, president of the Auto Movies Amusement Co., Inc., is in the city supervising the construction of the project, second of its kind to reach Alabama.

The open air project will probably be ready to open June 15.

Plan a June 15 Opening For Little Rock House

LITTLE ROCK—The new New, being erected next door to its predecessor will seat 900, and will open about June 15. It will be Robb & Rowley's ninth house in the Arkansas capital, says Ralph Noble, veteran city manager for R. & R.

The old house, a 300-seater, will be closed shortly after the New is opened, Ralph adds.

Former Texas Attorney Into Interstate Fold

DALLAS—Dick Stout, an assistant state attorney general under William McCraw and Gerald Mann, has been employed by the Interstate circuit as an attorney under John Moroney, general counsel.

Stout resigned from the department on June 1. He had been handling corporation, banking and insurance matters. He is a graduate of Harvard and his home is in Houston.

Get Tara Lock

HOLLYWOOD—A brass lock of Tara from the "Gone With the Wind" set has been presented by David O. Selznick to Jefferson College at Washington, Pa., for use in the library of a chemistry building now being erected on the campus.

Lacy Manages Drive-In

HOUSTON—Gene Lacy is managing the new drive-in theatre that has been opened here by Texas Drive-In Theatres, Inc., operators of the Corpus Christi open air house.

Julia Gallinger replaces Carlton Smith as assistant cashier-bookkeeper at Columbia . . . A. B. Padgett, Metro booker, is enjoying his vacation.

R. L. Barabee is new manager of the Ritz, Roanoke, Ala., replacing W. W. Lineberger, resigned . . . George Helms, assistant booker for United Artists in Washington, D. C., is vacationing in Atlanta, his home town . . . Augusta Drive-In Theatre, located on Sand Bar Ferry Road and owned by George Wilby and associates, opened June 6. Steve Manderson, formerly with Lucas & Jenkins, is manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Varnell, Princess, Piedmont, Ala., were in town for the first time in many weeks . . . Atlanta Variety Club, Tent No. 21, held its regular monthly meeting, June 3, in the club rooms at the Henry Grady Hotel. Henry Hines was guest speaker on the subject "Boys' Clubs of America."

An elaborate campaign for the local engagement of Republic's "Dark Command" at the Rialto was handled by Manager Murray and Sid Dell, assisted by Republic's Perry Spencer. Breaks in the Atlanta papers included a full page in the Journal, special picture layouts in the Constitution and a display of the original dresses worn by Claire Trevor in the picture in a large department store window.

An unpleasant three hours were spent by Wendell Welch, operator of the Strand in Dallas, Ga., when local police mistook his car as belonging to someone who but a day or so earlier had robbed the Acworth bank. Welch was compelled to accompany police to headquarters before the error was rectified.

Lottery Charge Affects Bingo in Mobile, Ala.

MOBILE, ALA.—Officers have ordered Bingo games in Mobile to cease operation pending the outcome of a lottery charge against Ricardo Montiel, Saenger Theatre manager, now before the circuit court.

The lottery charge against Montiel is the outgrowth of Bank Night which was formerly employed at the theatre. Hearing of the charges were reset in circuit court by Judge David H. Edington until June 27 while Judge J. Blocker Thornton considers the merits of a defense motion, filed in the equity division of the court, to restrain prosecution on the grounds of discrimination.

The defense motion claims the defendant is being discriminated against because, though Bank Night operations were stopped, Bingo games were allowed to run wide open.

NEW ORLEANS

AS OUTLINED in this column a few weeks ago, a graduated tax on all amusement admission has been introduced in the Louisiana house of representatives by Rep. W. T. McCain. In the bill, amusements include theatres, dance halls, skating rinks, night clubs, lectures, and practically all places providing amusements where an admission is charged. The bill calls for admissions from 11 to 18 cents to be taxed one cent; up to 28 cents, two cents; up to 38 cents, three cents; from 38 cents through 99 cents, three cents plus an extra cent tax for each dime above 38 cents. Dollar admissions would be taxed 10 cents, and above $1 one cent for each additional 25 cents. At present, New Orleans has a special amusement tax of one cent up to 50 cents, graduating upwards from that sum.

Saenger Theatres Corp. has filed with the securities exchange commission in Washington a registration statement covering $2,450,000 of first mortgage and collateral trust 4½ per cent sinking fund bonds due in 1952. The company said that it would use the proceeds to retire its debt and those of its subsidiaries.

A drive-in theatre is reported planned for Gentilly where the climate would enable one to operate such a project ten months of the year . . . It is said a determined effort will be made to either repeal or amend the inactive state film censorship law now on the books . . . The Lyceum on St. Charles St. has turned to dual bills.

W. H. Cobb has opened the Isis here. Admission is 10 and 15 cents . . . Jim Dempsey, village constable, attended the stagehands convention as a delegate from Local 39 *. . . SPRINGFIELD, TENN.—A. L. Hancock, manager of the Capitol, and family are on a vacation in Florida.

Improvement Job on the Majestic Gets Going

STEPHENVILLE, TEX.—Following construction replacements and modernization of its front, work of redecorating and furnishing the Majestic here is under way, with the contract being awarded to W. B. King of King Scenic Co., Dallas. Reopening is expected in about two weeks.

The building is owned by R. E. Cox, Fort Worth merchant, while the theatre is owned jointly by him and Mrs. Thomas Donnell, the latter being in charge of the operation. Jake Hedrick is house manager. The Majestic was damaged by fire about two months ago.

E. R. Medd Leaves Crescent To Build in Asheville

NASHVILLE, TENN.—E. R. Medd, circuit manager for the Crescent Amusement Co., has resigned that post and plans the construction of a motion picture theatre near Asheville, N. C. He expects to have this house ready to operate by August 1.

Medd has been connected with the industry since 1910 when he started with the S. A. Lynch Enterprises at Asheville. In later years he was connected with the Saengers at New Orleans, the Lumberton Theatres at Lumberton, and the Howard and Wells Enterprises at Wilmington, N. C. He joined Crescent in June, 1937.

No. Carolina Co. Managers Discuss Coming Product

CHARLOTTE—Sales policies pertaining to pictures to be released this summer were discussed last week by 40 managers of theatres operated by North Carolina Theatres, Inc., at a meeting held in Charlotte. Roy L. Smart, district manager of North Carolina Theatres, Inc., presided.

Nash Weil of Atlanta, the company's chief engineer, addressed the group on summer problems such as ventilation and air conditioning.

AA Moves From Harwood Into Quarters of NSS

DALLAS—Advertising Accessories, Inc., is now located in the downstairs quarters of National Screen Service on Jackson St. The move from Harwood St. consolidates the former Texas Poster exchange, which sold out to AA, and also the Paramount and RKO poster departments.

At the IA Meeting

DALLAS—Attending the IATSE convention in Louisville from Dallas were H. D. Hill, business agent of Local 249, and members C. A. Harcum, C. C. Holt, Buddy Hoylman, L. S. Saucier, W. R. Hall and P. D. Jackson.

Sells to Bounds

DALLAS—T. W. "Ted" Lewis told friends here that he has sold his interest in the Princess at Texarkana to Clyde Bounds and that he is out of show business, at least temporarily. Lewis also said he was leaving for California on a six-week vacation.

TENNESSEE

LEE PRITCHETT of Decatur, Ala., has been made manager of the Gem, Paris, of the Crescent chain. The Gem has heretofore been managed by Hal Laurance along with his duties as manager of the New Capitol. Laurance will devote his entire time to the New Capitol.

Cowan Oldham, manager of the Crescent's Theatre at McMinnville, recently entertained chain managers and members of the office force at Nashville at a picnic at his home near McMinnville. More than 100 attended.

Will McSpadden, of the posting department of Crescent Amusement Co., Nashville, has been made manager of a theatre in Winchester owned by K. C. Stengel of Nashville.

"Appreciation Night" for Lloyd Lawrence, manager of Madison at Madison, Tenn., was recently staged by local citizens.

Bids are being taken for construction of two new theatres in Memphis and a third is said to be contemplated. The Idlewild, to cost between $35,000 and $40,000, is to be built by Chalmers Cullins and Nate Evans at 1819 Madison St. It will have a seating capacity of 1,000. The second house will be built on Sumner St. and is estimated to cost about $35,000.

It is truly "in the bag" at the Rockwood Lyric. Pictures of film stars are being enclosed one to each bag of popcorn sold at the theatre. There are 25 pictures in the series. Too, every tenth bag of corn contains a free ticket to a future picture at the Lyric.

D. L. "Doc" Morrison Dies On Visit to Kentucky

ATLANTA—D. L. "Doc" Morrison, prominent resident of Clermont, Fla., for many years, died last Monday in Ashland, Ky., while on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Paul Campbell.

Mr. Morrison, who was 61, was born in Sonora, Ky., and moved to Clermont with Mrs. Morrison in 1912. He operated the Clermont house for the past 16 years.

Suit by Gaumont British Brings Plath to Dallas

DALLAS—Hugo Plath, operating the University Theatre in south Houston, has been here answering a suit by Gaumont British against him for about $300 allegedly due on an unplayed contract for the Mecca at Jacksboro, which he formerly operated. Plath retained counsel while here and made several depositions.

A. W. Lilly Will Operate New Colonial Full Time

GREENVILLE, TEX.—A. W. "Jack" Lilly has opened the new Colonial and will operate full time. The old Colonial, which he operated only on Friday and Saturday, has been closed.

VANCOUVER

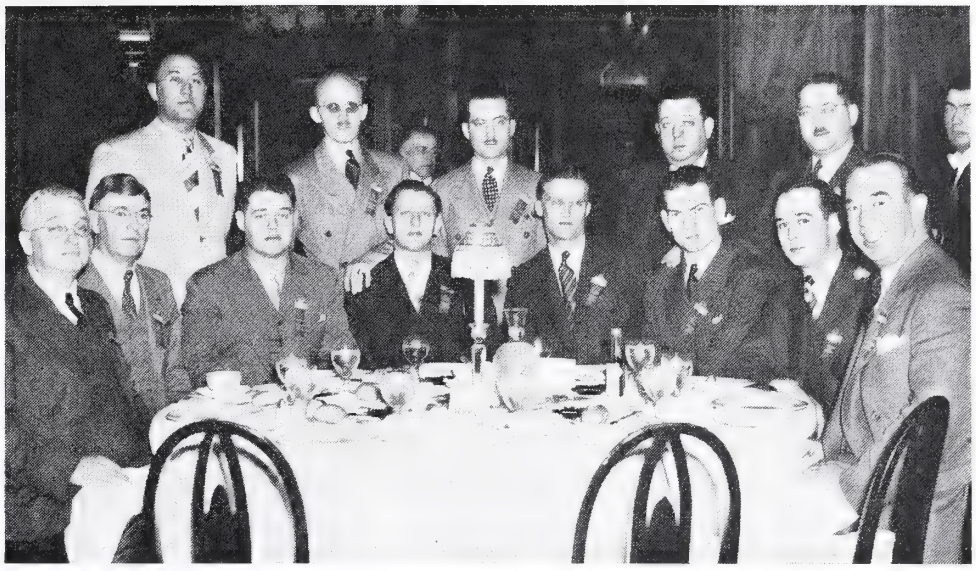
A NUMBER of exhibitors gathered in the Filmrow projection room as guests of Willard Adamson to see "Hitler—Beast of Berlin," which is being released by his company, Grand National. There was Toffey, Calvin Winter's partner at the Marpole; Roy McLeod, genial manager of the Beacon; R. John Dawson of the Plaza, accompanied by his assistant, Earl Hayter. Bill Brown and F. G. E. Stevens of the Lux were also there, seriously watching every detail to gauge its suitability for a first run. Frank Kerr came over from New Westminster to consider it for the Edison, and Guy Graham, a newcomer among exhibitors, to consider its drawing power for his Park, now building at White Rock.

"Babe" Coval planned to leave last Wednesday for Pittsburgh to attend the WB convention . . . The 1940 conventions are rapidly becoming mere memories as one by one the Vancouver delegates return. Bill Hanscher is again at his desk after a busy time in Los Angeles. Bill Jones is expected back on Thursday and Sam Nagler has been around Filmrow for several days.

Guy Graham, who expects to open the Park at White Rock on June 15, was formerly business manager of Local 348, projectionists union, and has a record of many speedboat wins . . . Vancouver was represented at the IATSE convention at Louisville, Ky., by R. G. Pollock, president, and L. B. Pantages, treasurer, of the projectionists' union, Local No. 348; and by Harry Pearson of the stagehands' union, No. 118.

Earl Baltazar, for a number of years projectionist at the Stanley, is leaving shortly to go into business with his brother in Oregon . . . To his sartorial supremacy Wally Woolridge, projectionist at the Strand, has added the allurement of a big new car.

Gordon Sutherland has watched the "wind-up" of so many film stories from his peephole in the booth at the Kingsway that he has decided to take a chance himself and is now receiving congratulations on his approaching marriage.



Whenever a newsreel depicting a horse race runs through the projector at the Marpole, Jack Andrews is all attention and impatient for July 1 when he will be watching one, or two, of his own ponies performing on the local tracks.

Jimmy Dibben, Lux projectionist, is an ardent student of sound, and is establishing a reputation of being able to tune up balky equipment and give the public the best there is in it.

William Wright Succeeds Garfield for United

MONTREAL—William Wright, manager of the Monkland Theatre, has been appointed manager of the Rialto, another United Amusement Corp. house, succeeding R. M. Garfield, who will look after the company's halls and properties.

E. Gaston Fauteux, assistant manager of the Monkland, has been promoted manager in succession to Wright.

Theatre Improvement Spurred in Canada

MONTREAL—Despite the complications due to the war, theatres have been spending considerable money on new equipment, improvements and extensions this year. This was particularly the case during March and April, when business boomed because of the desire of theatre owners to take advantage of the government regulation which permitted a deduction of ten per cent, spread over three years, from the income tax for any improvements or additions made by any corporation in the year ended April 30, 1940.

Compromise on Curfew For Sunday Pictures

TORONTO—At a conference between civic and police officials and theatre representatives, a form of curfew has been adopted in the city of Oshawa, Ont., with respect to the holding of Sunday midnight shows for the duration of the war.

Agreement was reached to conduct midnight performances only on the nights preceding holidays on a Monday. This decision eliminates the garden type of midnight shows and there will be less excuse for people to be about the streets late at night, from the official viewpoint. The theatres affected include the Regent of the Famous Players' chain; Marks, an Associated house, and the Biltmore, which was recently opened as an independent house under the management of George Law of Toronto.

Gracie Fields Canada-Bound

MONTREAL—Gracie Fields, star of "Shipyard Sally," and her husband, Monty Banks, are en route to Canada from England.

Frank Miley Benefits Town With Campaign

TORONTO—Frank Miley, manager of the Granada, Napanee, Ont., has again staged his annual theatre week in which he organized a cooperative campaign among the merchants of the town in the featuring of special sales, a great many residents from the surrounding districts being attracted to Napanee during the six days because of the advertised inducements. Miley distributed printed programs of attractions and performances throughout the district and these also were placed in restaurants, bars and other places where people congregate. Stickers having the words "Napanee Theatre Week Special" were used on many store windows and on the windshields of automobiles while window cards for the Granada were generously used.

Miley held special afternoon shows throughout the week with an extra matinee for the children on Saturday morning, the theatre being decorated for the occasion. A feature of the display were goodwill letters from Allan Jones and Mary Martin, stars of "The Great Victor Herbert," one of the week's pictures. The Granada is the only theatre in Napanee.

Manager Miley also pulled a good stunt for "My Little Chickadee" when he distributed paper towels on which was printed: "Save This Towel! You will need it to wipe away the tears of laughter when you see Mae West and W. C. Fields, etc." A quantity of these towels were refolded and placed in the towel dispensers in the theatre washrooms in advance of engagement.

Doing Yarn for Neagle

HOLLYWOOD—RKO has assigned Ken Englund to do an untitled original to star Anna Neagle. Herbert Wilcox will produce.

MONTREAL

QUEBEC government has chosen an exhibitor for the post of inspector of the Provincial Motion Picture Censorship Board for the Quebec City district. The new appointee, Joseph Tanguay, has had 37 years experience in theatrical and motion picture business, and in the course of his long career was manager of several Quebec theatres, his last connection previous to this appointment being with the Victoria.

Soldiers, sailors and airmen in uniform are being admitted free to the Belmont Park amusement center which includes a cinema. Those who visit the park in organized groups are also given special privileges . . . Firebugs are blamed for a conflagration which destroyed several buildings in Dawson City, Yukon territory, including the old Orpheum.

Larry Stephens, manager of the Snowdon, continues to give first run of British pictures to overflow audiences. The latest he has introduced to Montreal is Edgar Wallace's "Four Just Men," which current war events have rendered topical . . . S. Morgan-Powell, editor of the Montreal Star, approves a suggestion made by correspondents of that newspaper that theatre managements set aside a number of seats on certain days of the week for the free accommodation of soldiers in uniform.

Elimination of the double-bill is foreseen by Ted McCormick of the Montreal Herald, as a corollary of the war-enforced changes in film production systems. "In restricting the annual output of feature-length films," he says, "one evil of the industry—blockbooking—may be done away with," and "if blockbooking goes, it undoubtedly means the end of the double bill," which he considers would be "a good riddance."

Gordon Sparling, production supervisor of Associated Screen Pictures, and Ross Beesley, ASN cameraman, were in Banff during the past week on location in connection with the new documentary picture, "Peoples of Canada," being prepared for the National Film Board.

Joe Lightstone picked another winner for the Orpheum in "My Son, My Son," which is showing for the third successive week . . . Double bills are discouraged by the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire, according to Mrs. H. S. Angas, the national convener of the order's film committee, who reported to the annual meeting that the committee held the ideal program to be one feature with accompanying shorts and newsreel.

Sudden roundup of "fifth columnists" in Canada did not catch the newsreels napping. Crews deployed from Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, and were able to obtain pictorial records of the nation-wide activity of Royal Canadian Mounted Police, military and veterans' organizations uniting to combat the menace. Associated Screen News laboratories quickly prepared this topical material for inclusion in the current newsreels.

Visitors to the Junior Filmrow in the Tramways building which houses Regal Films and Empire-Universal, included Hank Perreault of the Arcade, Baie Comeau, who was in Montreal for the Canadian Legion convention; Ambrose Nolan of the Pix, Aylmer; Georges Champagne of the Auditorium and Roxy, Shawinigan Falls; Tommy Trow of the Imperial, Three Rivers, and Albert Bey of the Cinema, Thetford Mines.

Charles Chaplin, manager of United Artists office at Saint John, N. B., who is naturally known to all his friends as "Charlie," was in Montreal visiting A. J. Jeffery, Quebec manager.

Harry Burko, brother of R. B. Burko, general manager of General Theatre Supply Co., Ltd., has been appointed Quebec district manager of the company in succession to Harry Graham, resigned. Harry Burko was formerly in the theatre supply business on his own account.

Lloyd C. Pearson, general sales manager of Dominion Sound Equipments, Ltd., has been visiting the Toronto office. Dominion Sound has been doing very satisfactory equipment business this year to date, according to F. E. Peters, general manager . . . William Elman, district manager for Columbia in Quebec, and Archie Cohen, salesman, attended the company convention in Chicago . . . Mitch Bernstein, executive of the Maritime Film Co., Columbia subsidiary in Saint John, visited the Montreal and Toronto offices en route to the convention in Chicago.

Calls for the Support of British Motion Pictures

ST. JOHN, N. B.—The importance of supporting British films and of providing suitable bills for children was emphasized in the report of the film committee, presented by Mrs. H. S. Angas, Toronto, national convener, at the 40th annual meeting of the National Chapter of Canada, IODE here.

Mrs. Angus noted that the Quebec government had recently modified its prohibition of children attending theatres and spoke of the special censorship bureau established in this connection. Said the speaker: "This is an important change and it is hoped that satisfactory regulations governing this question may evolve and lead to improved conditions elsewhere where no restrictions exist and children flock to see movies which are utterly unsuitable."

IODE Urges Government to Disseminate Information

TORONTO—The National Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, at its annual meeting, requested the Dominion government to provide films, radio material and other copy with which to offset the subversive propaganda and to refute the claims which emanate from a Nazi source, as features of a drive to maintain the morale of the Canadian people. In other words, the I. O. D. E. is pressing the government to step on it with regard to the dissemination of information.

Writer to Direct One

HOLLYWOOD—Writer Boris Ingster will make his directorial debut on RKO's "The Stranger on the Third Floor."

TORONTO

FRED TREBILCOCK'S flying vacation to South America almost ended in disaster —twice. Doing another part of the world in a series of annual world jaunts, Fred flew to Latin America and was out of Lima, Peru, in no time when everything began to shake and quake. Starting for home on board a Pan-American Clipper, he was suddenly stricken with appendicitis and had to be dropped off at Miami where the operation was performed. In the meantime, Claude Hunter is at the helm of the Toronto Uptown, big F-P house.

Convalescent list: R. S. Roddick, Maritime district manager of Famous Players' circuit, has recovered from a lengthy illness and has returned to circulation. Sid Scott, manager of the Capitol at Sudbury, in the northern Ontario nickel belt, also has recovered and is no longer being hospitalized. Clarence Robson, eastern division manager, is taking life easy at his summer home but would feel more energetic if it did not rain so much.

Appointments: N. E. Fraser, who managed the picturesque Holland at Bradford, Ont., the center of a Dutch settlement, for more than two years, has become manager of the new Century of the 20th Century chain at Trenton, Ont., in succession to Tom Naylor who has been transferred to Toronto. Joseph McPherson has been promoted to branch manager at Calgary by General Manager L. M. Devaney of RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada, succeeding Nat Taylor, transferred to Montreal to replace Mark Plottel who recently became Toronto branch manager.

Lorne Moore, manager of the Grand, Sudbury, caused a commotion with a teaser campaign in which hundreds of stickers bearing simply the picture title "Remember the Night" were fixed to automobile windshields, windows and other prominent places, plenty of talk being aroused over the mysterious appearance of the labels. Gordon Beavis, manager of the Royal, North Bay, offered tardy encouragement for population increases in the promise of guest tickets to parents of any babies born during a specified ten-day period, this being a tie up in a community advertising stunt. Beavis must have had some inside information because there is no report of the collection of a brace of passes. It is interesting to note that Robert Babcock, projectionist at the North Bay Royal, has become the daddy to a baby boy weighing 9½ pounds, but the arrival was too late for the contest.

Ray Tubman, manager of the Capitol, Ottawa, sponsored the annual tulip show of the Ottawa Horticultural Society in the lobby of the theatre . . . Mrs. Frank Fisher, wife of the Toronto branch manager of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., was accorded further high honors in the tennis world when the Ontario Lawn Tennis Ass'n, at its annual meeting, placed her first in the rankings for the year. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher are training for the summer's campaign—when it isn't raining.

Charlie Dentelbeck, supervisor of projection at Famous Players' head office, was granted further leave of absence for his trip to the annual IATSE convention in Louisville to enable him to visit his aged parents at Roanoke, Ind., both of whom are more than 80 years of age. Dentelbeck was one of the first employes of N. L. Nathanson more than 21 years ago.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. has notified Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players, that his Variety Show program has proved such a success with listeners, both civilian and military, that the feature is to be continued throughout the summer. Arthur's production has been staged at the military camp in Toronto and was primarily intended for the entertainment of the troops.

Al Sedgwick, manager of the Belsize, is a kill-joy. In the weekly preliminaries of his beauty contest to select a contestant for north Toronto in the annual pulchritude carnival at the Toronto Police Games late in July, Sedgwick placed a ban on the display of the female form in bathing costumes, ruling that the young ladies would have to appear in dresses complete with stockings because "it is a beauty contest and not a leg show." Jack Arthur, one of the judges, did not show up for the first competition.

Capt. H. J. Sweetman, former manager of the Community Theatre, Kapuskasing, Ont., appeared in a screen role when newsreel cameramen covered the formal opening of the Beaver Club, a recreational center for Canadian troops in London, England, of which he has been made director for the duration. Captain Sweetman was quickly spotted by exchange officials and exhibitors when the newsreel was released in Toronto.

Oshawa went musical when Manager George Law organized a community musicale in the new Biltmore, Sunday afternoon, featuring Florence Glenn, concert artist, and a musical film program. No admission was charged and there was a turnaway crowd . . . George R. Giroux, representing the Technicolor Corp. of Hollywood, paid one of his periodic visits to Toronto.

Mrs. Bessie Moore, proprietor of Moore's Theatre, Grimsby, Ont., has been elected an honorary member of the West Lincoln branch of the Canadian Legion in recognition of cooperative services rendered. Mrs. Moore recently became one of the two charter members of the Canadian Picture Pioneers, having been identified with the moving picture business for more than 25 years.

For the showing of "Road to Singapore," Tom Mascaro, manager of the Capitol, Belleville, appropriately staged a banana-eating contest on the stage as an added stunt. Manager Meehan of the Academy, Lindsay, put on an ice cream consuming contest and the four boys who came up from the audience in response to his invitation had considerably difficulty, much to the delight of the audience. The four spoons were tied together.

Shulman Remodels at Uxbridge

TORONTO—The Strand at Uxbridge, seating 250, has been completely remodeled by the owner, Harris Shulman, who has operated this independent house for many years. It is the only theatre in the village about 30 miles from Toronto.

WINNIPEG

ALTHOUGH the warm weather is definitely here, with crowds out on the streets nightly, show business is still in the dumps without any sign of picking up. The situation is generally attributed to the bad news from the front being disseminated in newspapers and on the radio. Another factor which it is expected also is contributing to a large extent is the tendency of the public to hold on to what money it has in a troubled time. Working together, both factors have made a tough situation for exhibitors.

Vindicating the prophecies made in this column some time ago concerning the excellent outlook in store for it, "Public Opinion," stage quiz inaugurated at the Metropolitan here some time ago, made its bow last week in another western city. The Capitol at Regina now is featuring a show of the same nature under the same name. Indications now are that the show will spread to other western cities in the very near future, with the east following suit.

The Garrick has been extensively renovated, installing new seats, and retouching lobbies and restrooms . . . With the coming of the warm weather, cooling plants again are in operation at the local houses.

A contingent of FP men are in Toronto at the present time in connection with the district managers' convention. Included are: F. H. Kershaw, A. E. Zorn, Don Gauld and Vic Armand . . . Nestor Novak, assistant manager at the Capitol, left for a vacation in Chicago.

Syl Gunn and Harold Gray have carried out considerable exploitation in connection with film showing currently at the Metropolitan. For Bing Crosby's new opus "If I Had My Way" they arranged numerous tieups with music stores, the Kraft people, especially through the medium of banners on trucks, T. Eaton Co., and Canadian News Agency trucks which netted them banners. For the current showing "'Til We Meet Again" they built a tie up around the Westmore cosmetic angle in cooperation with local department stores.

A striking window in the T. Eaton Company stores was the means whereby Harold Bishop capitalized on the Alice Blue Gown motif of his film "Irene."

Ingenious Advertising Is Accorded "Four Wives"

TORONTO—A couple of the theatre managers have been playing around with "Four Wives."

Referring to the picture, of course, Manager Tom McKnight of the Patricia, London, issued formal wedding announcements in the form of cards of the engraved type. These read "The Patricia Theatre is happy to announce the marriage of Four Daughters, Priscilla Lane to Jeffrey Lynn, Rosemary Lane to Eddie Albert, Lola Lane to Frank McHugh and Gale Page to Dick Foran, in 'Four Wives' at the Patricia, etc." These cards were sent out in plain social envelopes.

Manager W. C. Tyers of the Granada, St. Thomas, turned registrar for the occasion by issuing several thousand marriage licenses—or what looked like licenses—to advertise the engagement of "Four Wives." The outside of the herald was printed in legal style and the inside copy started off with "The Granada is happy to announce the marriage, etc." Tyers also fastened 22 by 28 cards to the backs of automobiles in his town, the inscription being, "Just Married—The Four Daughters Are Now Four Wives."

Construction Under Way On House in Courtenay

COURTENAY, B. C.—Construction has been started on the 450-seat theatre for E. W. Bickle of Cumberland.

The house, which will include three stores and an apartment above the theatre, will cost approximately $30,000, and is expected to be ready for opening in September.

Contractors for the project are Dominion Construction Co., Ltd., of Vancouver. Plans were prepared by Architects Kaplan & Sprachman of Toronto.

CALGARY

IMPACT of recent war news, keeping people here close to radios and public meetings calling for alien internment, have caused a slump in theatre attendance. Theatremen expect business to be below par while present day-to-day tension lasts.

Replacing rubber matting in the large lobby of the Capitol here, F. P. C. C. unit, heavy pile carpeting has been laid.

Peter Egan of the Palace has discontinued the weekly Wednesday stage show for the summer season. At this house the British-made comedy, "Shipyard Sally" released by 20th-Fox, has proven so popular during a quiet week in town, that it has been held over.

Al Iscove, genial young manager of the Grand National branch, is receiving congratulations on becoming a father. His wife has just given birth to a ten-pound baby girl . . . their first.

Filmrow is deserted these days with many of the boys being convention-bound. Joe McPherson, manager and Paul Cardell, salesman, are at the RKO gathering in New York; Bill Kelly is attending the Paramount convention at Los Angeles; Sam Pearlman, manager and his assistant, Harry Kohn, have gone to Pittsburgh for Warner while Harvey Harnick, of Columbia is at Chicago.

Back from convention this week came Abe Feinstein of United Artists . . . Vacationing at Hamilton, Ont., Vernon Skorey of 20th-Fox will be gone until the middle of June . . . Theatre operators visiting Filmrow this week were Bert Hawkey of the Orpheum at Ferrie and Pete Ubertino of the Gaiety at Brooks.

An F-P Common Dividend Covers Three Months

TORONTO—The dividend season in Canada has continued with the declaration of two important payments although, as one might notice, there is a war in progress. According to an official notice by T. J. Bragg, secretary-treasurer, Famous Players Canadian Corp. is making a payment of 25 cents on each of the outstanding common shares for the three months ending June 30, following a dividend for the same amount for the first quarter of 1940.

Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., Toronto, has also declared a dividend of 3½ per cent on the 7 per cent preferred shares for the half year ending Dec. 31, 1938, payable June 29. This is another of a series of payments in quick succession on arrears of preferred interest which, about two years ago, were in excess of $20 on each share. The company is now in arrears for only the past calendar year, arrangements having been made for current payments.

Reports Canadian Scenics Interest N. Y. Showmen

MONTREAL—W. J. Singleton, sales manager of Associated Screen News, who just returned from a trip to the New York World's Fair, reports New York showmen are keenly interested in Canadian scenic and tourist pictures. They also are welcoming pictures of Canadian war activities.

The tremendous popularity of visual expression in the United States is evidenced by the fact that Singleton counted no less than 42 complete motion picture projection installations in the limited area of the World's Fair that he visited. Canada is well to the front in motion picture activity.

To Reduce Marcus Loew 7% Preferred Arrears

MONTREAL—Arrears on the seven per cent cumulative preferred stock of Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., will be reduced to $10.50 per share after payment of the new declared dividend. The company will distribute, on June 29, $1.75 per share in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share to holders of record June 15. The stock sells ex-dividend on June 12.

Grierson Recognizes Industry's War Role

CHICAGO—The motion picture industry in Canada has been a "good citizen and, as the war goes on, I am sure it will be an even better one," is the opinion of John Grierson, head of Canada's national film board, Ottawa. Grierson was here for a day this week, coming to the states to confer with Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia Pictures, on distribution of war pictures in the Dominion.

"Understand me," said Grierson, "we in Canada feel that our motion picture industry is an integral part of the country, and realize that its branches have during the war a different focus from those of the United States, a neutral country. We cannot help but feel a debt of gratitude to all of the major distributors and circuits in Canada for the most handsome cooperation the film industry has given us thus far in the war."

Grierson said that the present war has demonstrated in Canada what a tremendous force the motion picture can be for galvanizing sentiments in a nation. "The film industry," he said, "has become a national instrument of service to Canada, and this has been accomplished through the realization of the industry of its new status during war."

Illustrating the cooperation of the industry, Grierson explained that in a fortnight the first of the Canadian short subjects on the war, "Call to a Nation," was shown in 717 theatres in the Dominion. The national film board, he explained, is the film wing of the bureau of information, and operates directly with the Directorate of Public Information. All pictures will be made in French and English, either one or two reels, and will also be shown in the other dominions as well as in Great Britain. Grierson just returned from a trip to Australia and New Zealand where he arranged for showing of the pictures there.

War Information Reels Will Issue Monthly

CHICAGO—The national film board of Canada will continue producing special war information films of one and two reels monthly during the war, according to John Grierson, head of the board, who was in Chicago for a day this week.

Two have been produced thus far, "Atlantic Patrol" and "A Letter From Aldershot." Production will be initiated, as in the past, from Grierson's headquarters in Ottawa, with the technical facilities of Canada's three major film studios at his disposal. These are Frank Badgley, Ottawa; Associated Screen News, Montreal; and Audio Pictures, Toronto.

Grierson told BOXOFFICE that other films, dealing with various phases of Canada's participation in the war, are being readied now, with the next one to be "Women in War." Others to be released will deal with "Mechanics of War," "Economics of War," "The U. S. Border," "The Peoples of Canada," "Canada's Wings," and Naval Auxiliaries."

George F. Perkins Dies After a Brief Illness

Perkins, born in Mansonville, Quebec, was educated in Montreal. He established an electric supply business in 1914 on Craig St., enlarging its scope the following year to include sound and projection equipment. He developed this business into one of the largest of its kind of Canada. President of the company since its formation in 1914, he had been in good health until a week ago. He continued at his office until last Tuesday, when he suffered a heart attack and was taken to the hospital, where he died that day.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Oleen Wright Lemon, and by a sister who resides in North Dakota.

Steal Car to Steal Safe From North Bay Royal

TORONTO—The Royal at North Bay, Ont., was the scene of a somewhat spectacular crime which resulted in a loss of $250 to the theatre through robbery. The criminals first stole an automobile from a North Bay garage and, during the night, carted away the safe from the theatre office. It was taken to a field outside of the city and smashed open for its contents. Manager Gordon Beavis believes that one member of the gang must have hidden in the theatre after the closing of the evening show to facilitate the entry of other crooks. The safe was too cumbersome for one man to handle.

Taylor and Brown Concern Acquires Hamilton Lyric

TORONTO—The Lyric, a long-established theatre of Hamilton, Ont., operated by R. T. Stewart, has been acquired on lease by a new company, Inter-City Theatres, Ltd., of which the principal officers are N. A. Taylor and F. C. Brown. The former is vice-president of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario and managing director of 20th Century Theatres, Ltd. The Lyric will be operated as a unit of 20th Century. It has 750 seats.

Calgary Visitors

CALGARY—Visitors to Calgary's Filmrow were Arnold Entwhistle, operating the Strand, Empress, Dreamland and Princess theatres in Edmonton; from the north came also Kent Purdy who reports business good around his small chain; Saul Stone from Unity, Sask., spent a few days here and M. G. Chisholm, from another neighboring province, Field, B. C., was also a visitor. Max Garfin, of the Shaba at Jasper looked over available pictures.

Every American should welcome an opportunity to see and acclaim this emotional and dramatic document. First, because of its boundless appeal as an engrossing motion picture; and, more importantly perhaps, because it is difficult to conceive of anything—spoken, printed or photographed—better qualified to bring forcefully to their full consciousness the myriad advantages of their lot as democratic citizens when compared to the unfortunate peoples of war-torn, dictator-ridden European nations. Magnificently written, produced, directed and enacted by a sterling cast, the film, while it finds its locale and motivation in the rape of Czecho-Slovakia by Hitler's hordes, is as well-timed for universal interest as tomorrow's headlines. Given the advantage of this timeliness and wisely exploited, its revenue should know no ceiling. Directed by Archie Mayo.

To fill in the gap between effective mystery stories on the screen, "The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady" adequately fills the bill. In good detective yarn style the film, in its various departments, leaves much to the imagination of the audience. Herein a necklace is stolen and a long-absent husband with a criminal record is found murdered in his wife's flat. Warren William as the "Lone Wolf" meets the lady and sets about championing her cause, although all the evidence points to her as an accessory to the crime. Eric Blore as William's butler helps out on the comic end. After a good deal of chase and excitement the affair is concluded to the satisfaction of the police and the "Lone Wolf." With a bit of history serving to bolster the story, the Three Mesquiteers again appear in a worthy western. This is an all 'round finished production that packs a fresh outdoor punch in each sequence for the ultimate in audience enjoyment. Livingston, Hatton and Renaldo come into Arizona during the time of a silver inflation. Instead of attending the wedding of the latter's brother, they become involved in a murder that upsets the entire state of affairs. In order to save an innocent victim of circumstance they have to act out all the tricks in the book before the evildoers are lodged in jail. All in good time they achieve harmony and the story concludes with the couple on their honeymoon. George Sherman directed.

In its initial metropolitan showings, the celluloid version of Rachel Crothers' widely-discussed stage play will probably attract sufficient sophisticates—real and synthetic—to assure satisfactory returns. Fate of the drawing-room comedy-drama in the hinterlands and neighborhood houses, however, is definitely doubtful. For all the weight of its important cast, the rank-and-file of entertainment seekers will find the vehicle, which deals with the bewildering sensations of an unsympathetic, screwball wife and mother from the uppermost social brackets, tedious, uninspiring and over-dialogued. There is another possible stumbling block to general boxoffice success—among the devout, the light, bantering manner in which the story treats the subject of faith in the Deity may engender patronage-killing resentment. True to the tradition of westerns "Prairie Law" does not have a dull moment, whether it be hard talk by hard guys, fist fights or shooting. All that and more is ably carried out to the end by George O'Brien. This tale deals with the invasion of farmers on the rangeland, lured by a land shark, who encourages them to take liberties with the ranchers' water and cattle. At first O'Brien merely looks on but when his friend is murdered and his cattle butchered for the local meat dealer it begins to get under his skin. The story is a neat job written obviously for O'Brien. He has good lines and he breathes a refreshing note into them. His tongue-in-cheek delivery will keep the audience in a state of anticipation. The saga of the west in its early days is still being pursued by the Three Mesquiteers. Here they tackle the lawlessness of the Panhandle. When a youngster is wounded, they learn of the depredations of the ringleader of a group of bandits and murderers who are terrorizing the country. Later the boy is killed. With their dander up the trio set out to track down the culprit. To this end Robert Livingston poses as a notorious outlaw and works himself into the gang's confidence. In good time, and with the timely assistance of Raymond Hatton, he corrals the whole mob and hands them over to the Texas Rangers. It is excitingly told in regulation western style with all the emphasis thrown to the violent action angles. Substantial western drama and effective Three Mesquiteers fare. George Sherman directed.

The umpteenth version of the old, old story about two youngsters trying to live as cheaply as one and finally finding happiness in the struggle, this attempt, a remake of the famous "Bad Girl," suffers from complete unoriginality and a lightweight cast in which only Joan Davis, with her comic eccentricities, registers effectively. Two screen newcomers, Virginia Gilmore and Robert Sterling, make unimpressive debuts in the leading roles, both demonstrating the need for more seasoning. However, the picture will probably slip by adequately as subsequent-run material. Sterling, a woman-hater who dreams of owning an airport, and Miss Gilmore, who thinks marriage is slavery, meet—and promptly fall in love. In neither category—as comedy or as melodrama—does this weak-kneed entry in the program handicap manage to achieve any degree of success. As comedy it is sadly unfunny. As melodrama it is so over-burdened with cliches that a fairly competent cast never has a chance. The writing is feeble, the direction lackadaisical and the boxoffice potentialities about zero. After the deal is made he runs across another girl, immediately falls in love with her, and decides he doesn't want to die. Gangster murder mystery yarn with a small town locale, this is elevated above the ordinary classification through a goodly quota of laughs, a workmanlike screenplay and a competent cast. Frankie Darro is featured as the village wise guy who ferrets out the murderer, aided by Mantan Moreland as the comedy stooge. Darro works in the drugstore as a soda-jerker and delves into chemical experiments as a hobby. When a wounded gangster staggers into the store, he attempts to relay a message to Darro and Moreland. He dies, and the excitement increases when more New York mobsters move into the village to try and get the message, which they think relates to a $300,000 cache hidden in town. Darro and his sidekick of course beat the police to the solution. Howard Bretherton directed.

Republic (12 Chap. Serial) 29 Mins.

For the youngsters little else could be more suitable than this accounting of the adventures performed by Don Barry, of the up-and-coming newspaper cartoon strip character. All the action regularly allotted to a western is present and there is an historical basis to the story. It is the familiar western theme in which the land grabbers come into peaceful country to profit by the intrusion of a railroad. The time is 1870 and Barry, as the son of a rancher, is involved in the proceedings when his father is murdered by gunmen of Noah Beery, strong-arm man, saloon-keeper and stooge of the unscrupulous interests. The first installment has at least a dozen people meeting violent death. Attraction for youngsters is present in the characterization of "Little Beaver," the Indian boy who is the hero's one-man "Fifth Column" against the blitzkrieg tactics of the outlaws. All in all the first adventures of this newcomer to the serial fold has every indication of giving satisfaction.

Over the Seven Seas

20th-Fox (Sports Review) 10 Mins.

Against the narration by Ed Thorgersen has been mounted the finest assortment of yachting scenes yet assembled. From Tasmania to Tampa and from Marblehead to Melbourne the scene shifts, taking in all the way anchorages for an exhilarating photographic treat that covers various craft from catboats to American Cup designs. They go before the wind, with everything set and in countless maneuvers. The sporting, seagoing population wherever there is a body of water able to float anything from a rowboat to a liner should be notified when this one plays.

20th-Fox (Terry Toon) 7 Mins.

This is a well-animated and satisfactory cartoon. The story involves a group of animals which go skiing, particularly a pig. All sorts of hair-raising events befall the chief character as he starts down the mountain on his slats and eventually gets lost. When found, his rescuers come upon him playing poker with a hibernating bear.

Professor Offkeysky

20th-Fox (Terry Toon) 7 Mins.

The animals go in for music again. Here the character of the title is a lion with a Russian accent. He has a time with an ape who accompanies him on the drum. The ape has one note to play. At a concert his score is confused, and he inadvertently starts a jungle swing session. It is familiar stuff, but nevertheless hits the mark as cartoon entertainment.

Coming from the company that produced the Edison films, this documentary film makes an excellent supplement to the playing of those pictures. It is a highly reverent, well-written detailing of the accomplishments of Thomas A. Edison. What he has done is known to all but they can be impressed again by seeing this.

Here are some second rate FitzPatrick exposures in Technicolor of the British possession in the Pacific. The governor's family, waterfront and natives are shown plus a cult that walks over white hot stones in their bare feet. The narration is the usual stuff and a brief excursion closes with the FitzPatrick "farewell" touch.

Isles of the East

20th-Fox (Magic Carpet) 9 Mins.

At this time this reel is particularly deserving of playing time due to the interest in the eventual disposition of the Dutch possessions in the East Indies. Lowell Thomas narrates. The assemblage of scenes includes views of Java and Bali with emphasis placed on resources, people, customs and the like. Particular attention is paid to Balinese ballet in the opening sequence. Worthwhile.

All About Hash

M-G-M (Our Gang) 11 Mins.

This is one of the better "Our Gang" items. The kids set about and solve a domestic problem that besets one of their number due to the Monday night diet of his family. It seems they have roast beef on Sunday and hash on Monday, much to the consternation of the man in the house. They enter a radio contest, put on a "human relations" sketch on the problem and fix things up. Later, instead of hash in the troubled household, there are croquettes.

Spots Before Your Eyes

M-G-M (Pete Smith Specialty) 10 Mins.

The exhibitor might do well to work up the interest of his feminine patrons when he books this serio-comic Smith subject. Using a gag story at length it brings into focus a domestic science expert who, with household materials, repairs the strain done to various fabrics when two kids are let loose in an immaculate house. Smith is at his best in double talk which he uses here. Audiences should go for it.

Swing Social

M-G-M (Cartoon) 8 Mins.

This cartoon belongs in the top rank of animated entertainment. In Technicolor the content is musical and pleasantly rhymed as it tells the doings at a colored "go to meetin' " singing festival. It's sure-fire entertainment comparable with the best and definitely worth while.

Treasure Hunt Via Radio Ups Take in Troy, N. Y.

TROY—Warner's Troy, a first-run, is stimulating Saturday night business through a "Treasure Hunt" in a tieup with a root beer company and with local merchants. The "Treasure Hunt" is advertised on the radio. The first buildup is from 6:45 to 7 p. m., Saturday. During this, the announcer invites listeners from colleges, clubs, large corporations, etc., to form parties. Between musical numbers, he names the articles which must be brought to the lobby. The person arriving first with the most of the wanted things—the deadline is 9:30 p. m.—receives first prize, and so on down the line. Both cash and merchandise awards are given.

At 10 p. m. is broadcast an interview with the winners from the stage of the Troy. Fact that last showing of feature picture follows interviews is emphasized on broadcasts. Manager Leo A. Rosen directs the "Treasure Hunt."

Guessing Contest Stirs a High Degree of Interest

KANSAS CITY—In order to make the giveaway of a studio couch different from the usual coupon method, Dale Havelone of the Fox Brookside here concocted an unusual contest. He placed a bunch of film (an old trailer) in a glass-fronted case, strung every-which-way. The case was lighted on the sides. Then he had patrons guess the length and jot down their guess, name and address on a small card. Interest was unusual. On the average coupon giveaway, in connection with which all the patron does is to tear off a stub and put it in a box, the theatre gets a 40 to 50 per cent response; in this case response was over 80 per cent in the 10 days the contest ran. One couple spent 45 minutes studying the number of frames and computing the length by frames times the length they gave each frame. Guesses ran from 100 to 495,000 inches!

Tieup With Department Store on "Buck Benny"

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. — Manager Edward Smith of the local Goldstein Bros.' Paramount tied up with Neisner's, a local department store, during the run of "Buck Benny Rides Again." Smith gave away free tickets to those ladies who bought handbags at Neisner's with "lucky numbers" on the side of the bag. The "lucky numbers" were listed on a cardboard in the Paramount lobby.

Smith said that this stunt worked okay, to the extent of having to give out quite a number of free tickets while playing the Jack Benny film.

Whirlwind Campaign On Three-Day Notice

SYRACUSE—Despite only three days advance notice, Manager Gene Curtis and staff of the Paramount put on a whirlwind campaign for a revival test run of "Nurse Edith Cavell" dualed with "Grandpa Goes to Town."

The campaign started off by conducting a search for local people who might have known Nurse Cavell. An offer of a private screening was made to any person who contributed to the local Red Cross and a hunt was instituted for old war relics.

In front of the theatre a "trench" of sandbags with two Gatling guns was constructed. A flashy special front was built, over in which were placed "bombshell" bursts of copy. An effect record of machine guns and cannons was played from the inside of the trench, followed by announcements through a loud speaker system. Red flares were used for the "trench" at night.

An effective ballyhoo stunt was the promotion of 500 pigeons of the kind used to carry war messages, which were released with special announcements.

The cashiers were garbed in nurse uniforms with postcards going to all nurses, head nurses at hospitals and the heads of the women's clubs. Two displays were secured in drug stores based on first aid equipment.

Several photographic clubs were contacted regarding a contest with prizes in four groups: nursing; actual war scenes; staged war scenes and miniature war scenes.

For the second picture which features Maxie Rosenbloom and Arturo Godoy, local gyms and boxing clubs were contacted.

Hill-Billy Band Booms "In Old Missouri"

Coshocton, Ohio—Don Jacobs, manager of Warner's Pastime, reports that he hung up a new attendance record during his recent showing of "In Old Missouri" by a simple stunt that aroused general local interest. The stunt was a hill-billy band that he put out on the main streets of Coshocton on Saturday afternoon and evening preceding the Sunday opening. The band attracted such crowds that the police were constantly dispersing them with the result that the hill-billies had to move on to another spot where they attracted equally large crowds. In this way they moved on from place to place, getting bigger and better publicity with every move.

Promises Free Show Later For Patronage at Present

KANSAS CITY—Morrill Moore, in charge for Fox of two neighborhood theatres here, set about to make sure that the week of June 1 to June 7, designated by his own name, would be a record breaker for the company.

On mimeographed letters, distributed to patrons of the two houses, Moore, in intimate letter style, addressed himself to his patrons, explaining his birthday week and his desire to make a record showing. Captioning the letter was the slogan, "You Scratch My Back and I'll Scratch Yours." The letter proper offered the patron free admission on his birthday providing he would attend either of the two houses on this, their birthday week. In the lower corner of the letter was a coupon with spaced marked for name, address and birth date, which the patron was invited to fill in and bring to the boxoffice.

Circus Style Ballyhoo For "One Million B. C."

AKRON, OHIO—A circus-style ballyhoo enabled John LaDue, manager of Warner's Strand, to report outstanding business on "One Million B. C."

LaDue's campaign included a special front decorated with prehistoric scenes; a man and woman, attired in leopard skins, roaming the city; circus heralds inserted in Liberty magazine, with the boys distributing them treated to a morning matinee (not overlooked by the newspapers); 1,000 cartoon books were given to children attending the Saturday matinee, and two mounted 24-sheets were carried through town.

In the lobby was displayed a large live turtle in a prehistoric setting, and at night, after stores had closed, LaDue had cards attached to the doors, reading: "We have gone to the Strand to see 'One Million B. C.'"

Invention Contest Held For 'Young Tom Edison'

PHILADELPHIA — A bewildering array of inventions—from an automatic baby-diaperer to a gadget for closing the window without getting out of bed in the morning—were submitted by kids at a "Young Tom Edison" contest sponsored by eight local neighborhood houses and arranged by the Warner publicity department.

The Franklin Institute chose the winner, 17-year-old Paul Jamalien, who invented an engine. He got a free membership to the Institute, a $200 suite of furniture from the Edison company, a plaque from Mickey Rooney, and a trip to the World's Fair.

The greatest attention-getting street ballyhoo he has ever used is reported by Manager E. R. Erickson of Warner's Rhodes in Chicago to have been a dummy carried on a stretcher by two of his staff, dressed as internes. The stretcher was placarded on the side, "He laughed himself sick at 'His Girl Friday.'"

Notification to resident alumni of Knox College by Manager Jerry Zigmond of the Newman in Kansas City that "Those Were the Days" was showing, brought a turnout of the alumni and netted space in the society columns of the local papers.

A tieup made by the Fox in Detroit with local car dealers has put cars on the street placarded: "Stop me for a free ride to the Fox." The cars double as demonstrators for the dealer and as a taxi service for the theatre's patrons. A phone call to the dealer, too, will bring the transportation.

Traveling Book Pre-Selling "I Married Adventure"

NEW YORK—As part of a national exploitation campaign for Osa (Mrs. Martin) Johnson's new Columbia picture, "I Married Adventure," the biggest book in the world is now touring the U. S. under the sponsorship of the National Wildlife Federation.

Six feet high and eight feet wide when spread, this volume is a replica of Mrs. Johnson's current best-seller, also entitled "I Married Adventure," the Book-of-the-Month Club selection for June.

During the summer, this huge book will cover 48 states under the joint auspices of Columbia, the Book-of-the-Month Club, and J. B. Lippincott Co., its publishers. Department stores, book shops and theatres will display it for the public to autograph. In San Francisco it will be exhibited at the World's Fair, and returning east, it will be displayed at the New York World's Fair. When the tour ends, the book will be presented to Congress in behalf of national wildlife conservation.

"I Married Adventure," in book form and on the screen, tells the life-story of Osa and Martin Johnson during 27 years devoted to filming a record of the world's vanishing wildlife. The picture version will be a Columbia summer release.

Matched Tags for Free Admission

Massillon, Ohio—A special stunt to bring people to see "'Til We Meet Again" at the Lincoln here was effectively used by Manager Irving Solomon. He distributed 2,000 numbered tags, 25 of which had the numbers duplicated. Each tag was imprinted: "Wear this tag 'Til We Meet Again' Lincoln Theatre—Look for the tag on somebody else bearing the number below. If you find it, you and the holder of the matching tag will both be admitted free to any performance of 'Til We Meet Again." Considerable interest was aroused by the stunt.

'Dark Command' Preceded By Two-Month Campaign

CLEVELAND—Clem Pope, publicity director for RKO theatres, and Al Gregg, in charge of publicity and exploitation for Republic Pictures, put on a campaign for "Dark Command," currently playing the RKO Palace, that left nothing to the imagination.

To begin with, the campaign was started last March and was kept up right through the showing of the picture last week. For two months, the Cleveland Public Library, under the supervision of Fred Myers, maintained a book and still display of the picture on two floors, later moving the entire display to the main concourse where it was seen daily by approximately 10,000 people.

The Cleveland Cinema Club gave the picture its backing with Mrs. J. Debernarde, chairman of the Youth Advising Committee, speaking before the motion picture appreciation classes of the public schools, using "Dark Command" as her subject.

Classified ad departments of local newspapers cooperated by inserting 15 names chosen at random from the city directory. Pairs of passes were given to those whose names appeared.

Radio offered spot announcements of the engagement. And of course there were trailers, lobby displays and greatly extended newspaper ads.

Find "Help Wanted" Ads Effective Sales Aid

DETROIT—"Flight Angels" got an unusual "Help Wanted" break in advertising at the Michigan—following remarkable response to advertising for "The Ghost Breakers" premiere along the lines of "Haunted House Wanted."

Current copy is being built up as: "WANTED—Girls with tact, grace, charm, and beauty to be FLIGHT ANGELS, who can handle anything that flies, including a pilot."

Columbia

Blondie Brings Up Baby

Doubled with "Cisco Kid and the Lady." Both pictures clicked to above average business for a bargain night and brought out the kid trade. Everyone present seemed well pleased. Tuesday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Early Arizona

Very good. Worth playing. Thurs., Fri. Weather: Rain. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

His Girl Friday

Good on any day. A fast noisy comedy that will shake the dust off your ceiling lights. Hail Columbia! Our tenth year screening Columbia product and every one a good deal. Wed., Thurs., Fri. Weather: OK. Admission: 35-10. Country patronage. Capacity: 400.—George E. Harvey, Arbuckle, Arbuckle, Cal.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Balalaika

Not the type to attract the masses, therefore business was at a low ebb. I played this way late wondering what I would do with it. I found out to my sorrow. Another plug for the Neely bill. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Warm. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Balalaika

No small town picture. It is strange that Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald would be drawing cards even in the small town, and yet when separated neither will gross film rental. It's been that way every time. My higher class patrons thought this extra good, but of course they are few in number. Thurs., Fri. Population: 800. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Broadway Melody of 1940

This was a very good musical and business held to normal. I almost made the guarantee. It's the type that used to ring the bell, however things have changed and two each year would be plenty to try on the public. Fri., Sat. Weather: Mild. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Gone With the Wind

The worst business in years for this type of picture. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fine. Admission: Increased scale. Rural patronage. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Republic

Arizona Kid

Roy Rogers not as popular as Autry. Did only one-third of the business of "South of the Border." Just fair picture. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fine. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

South of the Border

We ran this one on Sunday and I held my breath for the tryout but it was surprising to see the people who had never seen an Autry western come out saying it was fine. And it was a truly different Autry that went right to all who saw him. The story having the locale it did, helped a lot to put it over. Admission: 35-10. Mixed patronage. Capacity: 375.—J. R. Wills, Loma, Socorro, N. M.

RKO Radio

Allegheny Uprising

Just another historical flop conceived and executed by the brain trust of Hollywood. A lot of noise and racket. I didn't hear anyone say they liked it. Even the kids don't swallow the Injun stuff any more. No boxoffice value to this one in my town. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Good. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Married and in Love

Coupled with "Three Sons" on a double bill for one day at bargain prices and just made the grade. Instead of splitting fifty-fifty as usual, my share was about forty per cent. The audience liked the show and the film company liked the arrangement. Tuesday. Weather: Warm. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Nurse Edith Cavell

Anna Neagle and balance do a wonderful acting job, but the direction seems to lack the necessary pace to make the picture take hold. As is, the picture just unwinds and the audience watches without any reaction much one way or the other. Boxoffice: No good. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 250. —E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Pinocchio

A masterpiece in Technicolor to the largest kid's trade in history at one performance. It out-grossed "Gulliver" on the same days two weeks previous. Well received by everyone including adults. While the guarantee and percentage were high, I think it should be given to your audience. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cloudy. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Pinocchio

One of the sweetest pictures I have ever seen. It is good for all ages, and especially the younger patrons. It is one that everyone should see. Three days. Weather: Fair. General patronage.—L. E. Downing, Haven, Brookhaven, Miss.

20th Century-Fox

Everything Happens at Night

This is not high class entertainment and not worth the price they are asking for it. I did just a fair business on Bank Night. It ranks as a fair program picture, nothing else. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Rain. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

High School

In my opinion this was up to standard for Jane Withers, but they stayed at home in droves, so what I think means nothing. It seems to me Jane has just lost her "pull." I'm hoping her next with Gene Autry will establish her here. Her last few have not been so good. Tues., Wed. Population: 800. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Swanee River

We've just closed a three-day engagement of this feature, with the best business we've had in many a day. There was nary a complaint, except that it was sad, but in our opinion it's got about everything. Everyone had a good word for it, and we were truly sorry when the engagement was at an end. We sure can't say that for many pictures.—Walter Lavan, Park, El Dorado Springs, Mo.

United Artists

Man in the Iron Mark

Historical pictures die with us. We tried to sell this one but couldn't. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Mild. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Young in Heart, The

If you can get them in, you have a fine picture here that will satisfy. Thurs., Fri. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Warner Bros.

Brother Rat and a Baby

Here was the biggest disappointment in months. Everyone expected something as good as "Brother Rat" and very few cared for it. Why would they feature a character that was as big a sap as the one played by Wayne Morris? Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-10. Small town patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 300.—Horn & Morgan, Inc., Star, Hay Springs, Neb.

Roaring Twenties

This was not a bad show and held up to the usual gross for two days. Most people remembered the period covered during prohibition and became deeply interested. The part taken by James Cagney fits him like a glove. Sun., Mon. Weather: Rain. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

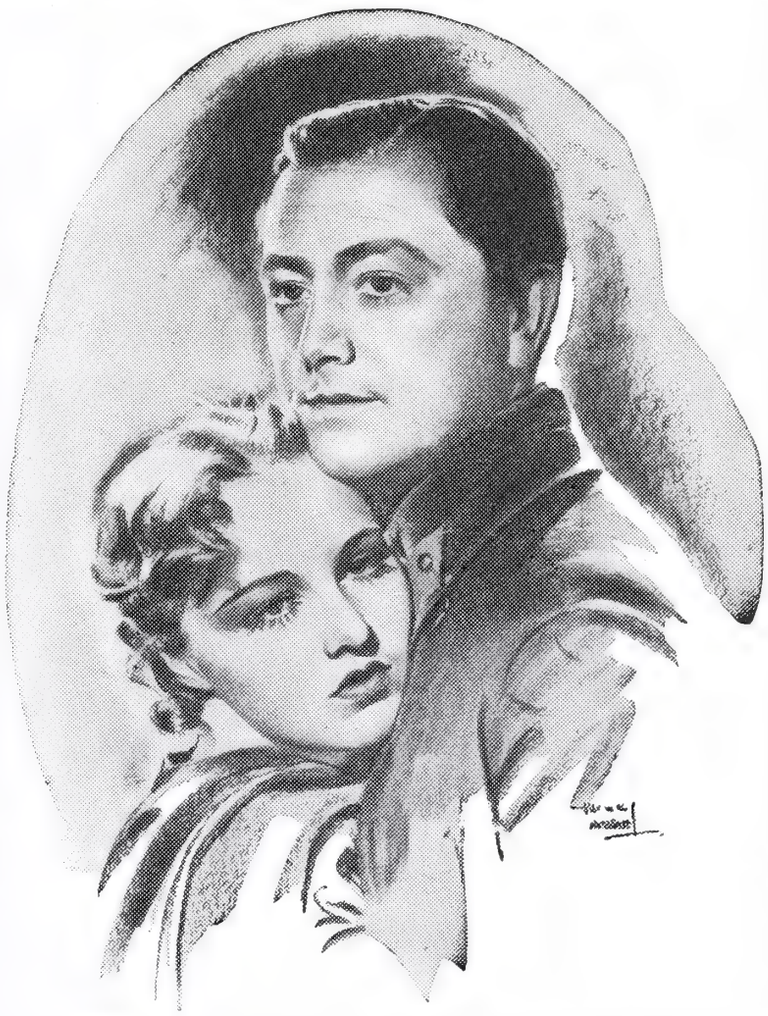
Lists Ten Most Natural Kissers

"Most people judge movie kissing by the way it appears on the screen, but you have to be on the set to see what really happens."

So says Scotty Moore, who has been prop man for 400 pictures in the past 20 years. Scotty insists he is well qualified to select the 10 best feminine kissers. He claims that the best kiss is a natural kiss.

No. 1 is Virginia Bruce, the only actress to register a 100 per cent natural kiss. She never uses lipstick for her screen busses. The other nine are as follows:

No. 2—Ann Sheridan.
No. 3—Constance Bennett.
No. 4—Merle Oberon.
No. 5—Pola Negri.
No. 6—Bette Davis.
No. 7—Dolores Costello.
No. 8—Priscilla Lane.
No. 9—Barbara Stanwyck.
No. 10—Miriam Hopkins.



Deanna Durbin's Fan Mail Shows Rise

Deanna Durbin's fan mail has increased more than 25 per cent since the outbreak of the European war, and now averages 2,500 letters per month, according to Charlotte Taylor, head of the studio fan mail department.

Due to European currency exchange problems, which is preventing foreign fans from sending the usual fees for photos and souvenirs, Miss Durbin suggested that all foreign mail be answered without charge, and that any money sent be returned with her reply. Her suggestion was accepted immediately by studio executives.

More Honor

The Film Academy of France has awarded Frank Capra, producer - director, the Grand Comedy Prize for "You Can't Take It With You," American Academy Award winner.

Helen Gilbert, new screen find, and Robert Young as they appear in their first attraction together on the screen.

ADVICE TO COWBOY STAR ASPIRANTS

"HOW does one become a movie cowboy?"

This is the query incorporated in over 50 per cent of Bob Livingston's fan mail. The youngsters want to know how to go about emulating his career, and to these boys, Bob has a bit of strong and sage advice.

"First of all," he says, "study hard and put all thoughts of entering the movies out of your head until you are at least through high school. The more you know about history and government, the better cowboy you will be. This sounds like an elaborate statement, but it is quite true. The present trend in westerns is to dramatize historical events and situations of the past, treat economic problems raised in the settling of our great western territories, and feature historical characters. If the candidate for film cowboy's laurels knows what he is assigned to enact, he will be that much better an actor.

"Spend all your spare recreational time developing your physique and becoming proficient in all sports. Learn to ride, and master the elements of self defense."

Simon Coins 'Glex' For Lana Turner

Why is Lana Turner the sweetheart of high school and college boys?

The answer is a brand new word . . . Glex!

Director S. Sylvan Simon coined it.

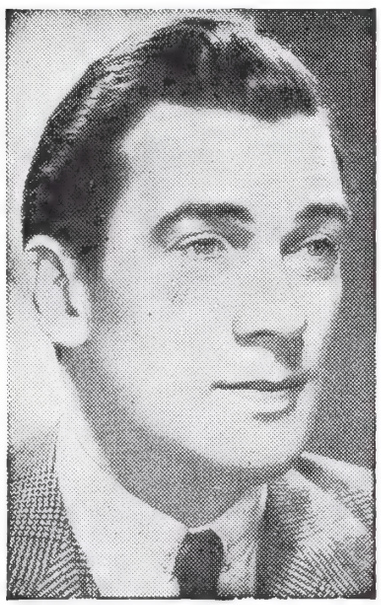
"It isn't glamour, in the accepted sense of the word," said Simon. "High school and college students don't go in for glamour. They might admire it, but it's something to look at from a distance. On the other hand, it isn't sex appeal. It is simply a happy combination of the two. A girl with 'Glex' is one who combines all of the features of the most popular 'dates' on any campus. She has the figure of one, the face of another, the sense of humor of a third. She is completely within the knowledge of lads of this age, with none of the baffling, glamorous complexities. She's a girl they all know, and, as a Glex girl, she's the last word in collegiate fancy."

"So, if you're under 21, forget glamour and develop Glex. It's one way to knock the tag-line for a loop," says Simon.

Bette's Neighbors To Be Thespians

Bette Davis is taking time off from her acting duties to become a theatrical producer.

She's founding the Sugar Hill Players, recruiting the group from her New Hampshire neighbors. A small theatre is being built on her farm to house the organization.



The Sugar Hill Players is dedicated to finding, training, encouraging and sponsoring any and all acting talent in the district.

In Reversal

Ann Rutherford's fans have reversed the usual procedure of asking for her photograph, and she has received more than 300 photos sent to her by young men throughout the country.

Pioneer Stunters Had Nothing on Pidgeon

The heroes and heroines who, in the days of the early serials and westerns, jumped from horseback to boxcar and from a plane's hanging rope ladder to an automobile, would have to streamline their stunts considerably to keep pace with modern screen melodrama, says Walter Pidgeon.

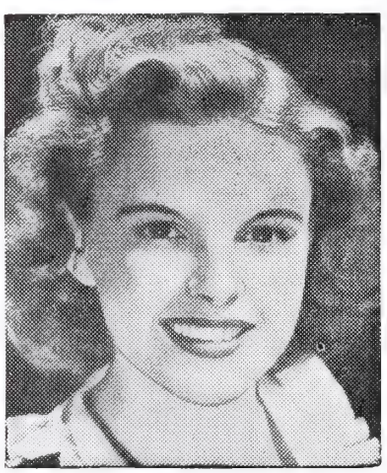
Pidgeon, as Nick Carter, is required to operate a sub-machine gun from a rising plane, to trail an automobile by plane and to be shot down in a plane at sea. Another stunt involved the crashing of a rocket ship.

CAMERA ENTHUSIASTS—NOTE!

Director Alfred Hitchcock and Laraine Day are miniature movie fans and find amusement between pictures writing their own stories and filming them with friends and relatives as members of the cast. Hitchcock says he has learned considerable extra camera technique by using a mimicamera.

CHARM Chats

HANDS are an important part of one's personality, and charm is manifested in their every movement. The fact that attention is drawn so quickly to one's hands is added reason to keep them looking smooth and well taken care of. Any movie queen knows that a nightly application of baby skin oil, or olive oil, around the cuticle base will keep it soft and free from hangnails. This is especially recommended for the typist or business girl who finds it difficult, because of her work, to keep her hands free from hangnails. Nightly use of a good hand cream will keep hands soft and free from lines or roughness.



Hollywood beauticians are now strongly recommending the importance of a mask treatment once a week for hands, the same as is applied in a facial. The same kind of cream or mask can be used for hands, as is used for the face, and should be left on from ten to thirty minutes, depending on how much leisure is afforded. This treatment is wonderful for bleaching and softening, and can also be applied to rough, chapped places on elbows and knees. The cream or mask should be removed with cleansing tissues, followed with the application of a mild astringent saturated on cotton. Some women prefer to keep hand cream on overnight and wear cotton gloves to bed.

Busman's Holiday

Maria Ouspenskaya, noted Russian character actress, is one of the hardest working women in Hollywood. Between pictures, and on days off while working in films, she spends all her time teaching in her own private dramatic school.

Judy Garland Poems To Be Published

Judy Garland has written a book of poems in her leisure hours, which will be published under a nom de plume. Judy prefers to let them stand or fall on their own qualities rather than trade on her screen fame for the book's success.

The poems, according to a few close friends who have seen them, are of exceptional literary merit and deal beautifully and sincerely with the reactions of a 16-year-old girl awakening to the world around her.

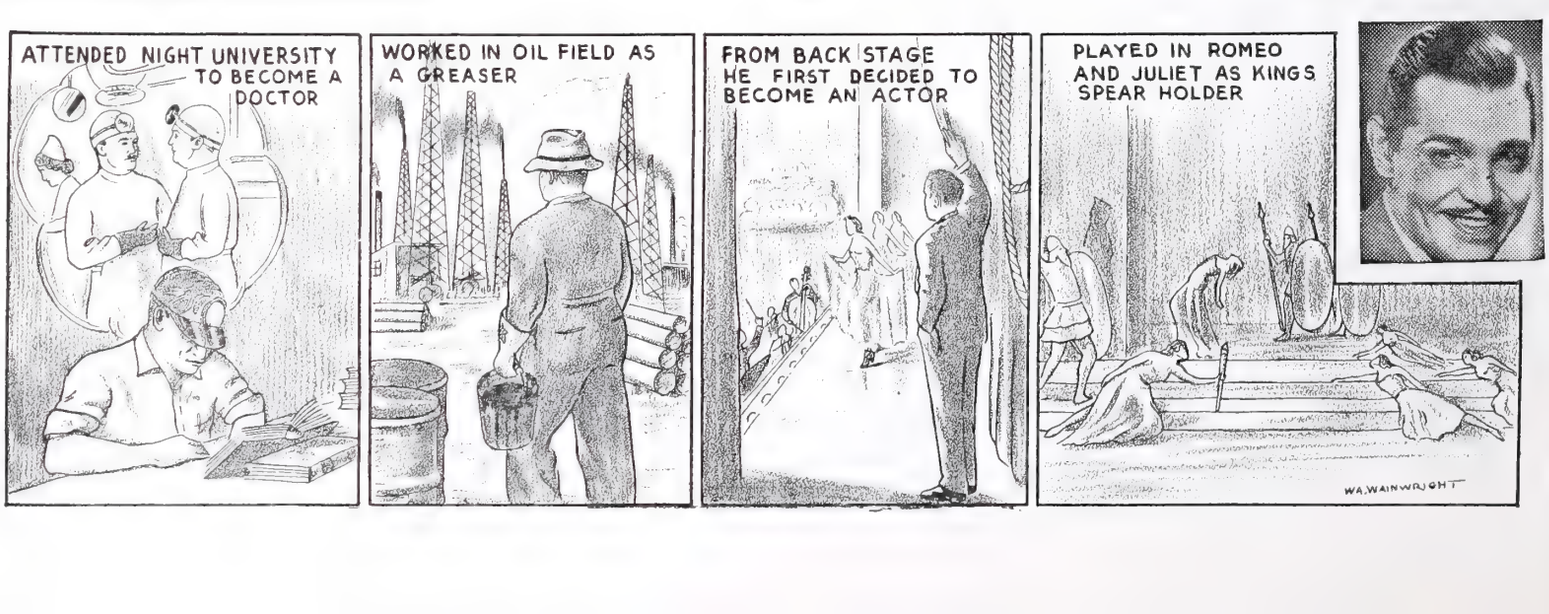
Sonja Henie Takes Own Color Films

A roll of 16-millimeter color film which Sonja Henie brought back to Hollywood from Norway represents the fulfillment of one of the blonde star's most cherished dreams, that of one day visiting the Land of the Midnight Sun; that territory at the northernmost tip of Arctic Norway where the sun shines brightly 24 hours a day.

But on her recent European vacation, Sonja chartered a special plane, and she and her mother and brother, flew to North Cape, on the Arctic Ocean, where they spent five days. Sonja was so enthralled with her dreamland that she brought back the color movies to show Darryl F. Zanuck as a possible background for one of her future pictures.

Makeup Man Gathers 150 Autographed Lips

One hundred and fifty autographed lips!



No, this isn't the inventory of a New Guinea head-hunter, but it does serve a very practical purpose for Clay Campbell, 20th Century-Fox makeup chief.

The "autographed lips" are lipstick impressions made by famed stars on tissue paper, which is subsequently autographed. Campbell has each of the impressions framed, and then, when he wants to show a new player what type of lip makeup she should use, he can exhibit a practical sample in color of the mouth line of almost every feminine star in the industry.

QUICK MAKE-UP ARTIST

Regardless of the type of role she plays, Vivien Leigh (Scarlett O'Hara) takes only an hour and 15 minutes for both make-up and hairdress—and she does her own make-up.

PICTORIAL BIOGRAPHY . . . . . of . . . . . CLARK GABLE

Fads AND FASHION

ONE OF the newest colors for spring, especially in accessories, to be worn with either gray or navy, is Kelly green.

The patch and saddle pocket season is on, and is highlighted on dresses, suits and coats. And the larger the pocket the more fashionable. However, small women should use discretion, as too large a pocket will emphasize their stature, and the smaller, flap pocket is preferred.

Wear a clip on your hat, pocket, belt, suit lapel or bag; use them to clip on your flowers, letting their sparkling brilliance peek out. But remember, if you wear clips in pairs, wear them on one side only, as this season it's smarter to wear them "one-sided" on lapel or pocket, for example, except in the case of the belt, where a clip may be attached on either side.

Skirts are definitely full, and have either shirring at the top, and may be pleated or have gores to give them a "swing" fullness.

The patriotic red, white and blue combination, is a big spring number, and is especially good against a military style background.

Spring accents of white are fresh and crisp looking. Helen Parrish, Universal starlet, shows it in the white pique collar of her blue wool sheer dress, her lacy white braid pan-cake beret with grosgrain bow and long white suede gloves.

Hobnobbing in Hollywood

Gary Cooper will be loaned by Samuel Goldwyn to Warner Brothers to play the title role in a forthcoming picture to be produced and directed by Frank Capra. Tests are expected to begin when Capra and Robert Riskin, his associate, return from Lake Arrowhead and a week of story conferences.

Olivia de Havilland will return to Warner Bros. studio after an absence of several months . . . Ever since Wallace Beery went to Mexico for location work, he has had a fondness for Mexican dishes, so Dolores Del Rio surprised him at a location luncheon in Sherwood Forest by bringing in a vacuum food container, four enchiladas which she had prepared at home.

Pals around Universal are remarking at the close resemblance between Broderick Crawford and Sidney Blackmer . . . Hugh Herbert recently purchased a 200-acre ranch in San Fernando Valley where he will stock and breed horses . . . Nan Grey departed on a short vacation to Mexico immediately upon completion of her acting chores . . . Constance Moore, on a recent weekend at Palm Springs, fell asleep under the hot sun at the desert resort, and awoke with a painful sunburn.

Johnny Downs is teaching Peggy Moran a new swing dance routine . . . Philip Dorn, Holland-Dutch actor, is renewing his acquaintance at Universal with Henry Koster, director of many Deanna Durbin pictures. Koster directed Dorn in Europe before either came to Hollywood . . . Broderick Crawford is scheduled to star in a New York play next fall. Last year, Crawford, for his role in "Of Mice and Men," won the critics' award for the finest performance in a Broadway production.

Frank Morgan is back at work after his "retreat" to the desert . . . Joan Blondell brought her young son and daughter to the M-G-M studio lot . . . Ilona Massey is back from another visit to the ski country . . . Ann Sothern is adding singing lessons to her long list of daily duties . . . Hedy Lamarr is supervising the building of a white picket fence about her hilltop home . . . Eleanor Powell takes daily walks with her two Schnauzer pups.

One of Cecilia Parker's birthday gifts will be her citizenship papers . . . Fay Holden makes her own home recipe book out of all of the varied cooking recipes sent her as Ma Hardy. They number some 1,500 . . . Spencer Tracy has returned to the M-G-M lot after a siege of the flu . . . Greer Garson still is searching for her pet Siamese cat that strayed away from home recently . . . Fredric March got a big hand from a group of fans outside the studio.

Kay Francis has gone to Lake Arrowhead for a brief vacation, following completion of her latest picture . . . Edgar Kennedy has left the studios for a personal appearance tour . . . Helen Parrish is proudly displaying her "two-hundred" pin for bowling, which she won for a 216 score made at a recent bowling breakfast party she hosted.

Deanna Durbin is spending her leisure hours between pictures, studying, in order to take the College Entrance Board examinations in June . . . Charles Lamont, director, is busy planning a birthday party for his three-year-old daughter, Charlene. Baby Sandy will be one of the guests at the party.

Production on a new Edward G. Robinson picture, to be directed by William Dieterle, is scheduled to begin during the week of March 25 . . . Madge Terry, 60-year-old actress who returned recently to America after operating stock companies in Shanghai and Hong Kong for the past year, has been signed by Warner Bros. for a featured role in a forthcoming production.

Marshall Wins Diction Award

Herbert Marshall, veteran screen and radio star, has been chosen by the Department of English of the Linguaphone Institute as the screen actor who has made the greatest contribution in the field of English speech, diction and articulation for the year 1939.

An impressively inscribed parchment scroll was presented to Marshall by Max Sherover, president of the Linguaphone Institute.

FILM FACTS . . .

America produces 85 per cent of the motion pictures exhibited throughout the world. And the motion picture is the world's best entertainment.

Predicts Greater Dramatic Element

That the general use of color photography on the screen will thin the ranks of present day directors is the statement of Henry Koster.

Koster, who has directed Deanna Durbin in four of her Universal pictures, and directed Danielle Darrieux in her only American production, studied painting in Berlin's Academy of Arts before becoming a screen writer and director in France, Austria and Hungary. He is anxious to apply the color technique of the painter to the screen.

In the place of directors forced from the studios by the coming of color will be men with at least a rudimentary training in the use of brush and pallette, he predicts.

"Color injects an added dramatic element to the picture," Koster states. "It must be handled intelligently in order that it will not detract from the dramatic unfolding of the screen story."

Color will be dramatic element itself, Koster adds.

THEIR BIRTHDAYS TOGETHER

July 7 is a lucky day in the Hatton household. Raymond Hatton, Republic western star, was born July 7 and, by an almost freakish coincidence, his father and sister also were born on the same date. The three celebrate their birthdays together whenever they can.

CULINARY Cues

FISH SAUCE RECIPE

The most valued item which Paul Lukas brought back from Pismo Beach, where he was on location, is a fish sauce recipe which he obtained from the owner of the tavern where the company ate. It consists of melted butter, lemon juice, chopped onions and chopped parsley, and is particularly recommended for sea bass.

Your Own Movie Magazine

At the Price of a Throwaway!

This Entire Page Blank For Your Imprinting With Week's Program Local News, Ads

If you haven't read the three preceding pages, do so now and you'll agree that here is something your patrons will take home with them (or you can deliver it to their homes) that will be of interest to every member of the family.

Twice the size of the ordinary herald (12x18 flat), MOVIE TIME will be spiced with humor and chatter and it will receive fresh layout treatment in every issue.

Even the title . . . MOVIE TIME . . . has sales punch. It suggests to your prospective patrons that NOW is Movie Time.

MOVIE TIME is sent to you flat, so imprinting can be made on front and back pages in one operation. The back page is left entirely blank for your use in publicizing your coming week's program. The space is sufficient for good display and, in addition, for news items, either local interest copy, personals about your patrons or about coming attractions. And you have space for advertising of local merchants from which you can offset your entire cost.

MOVIE TIME is offered to you on an exclusive basis . . . that is, it will not be sold to a competing theatre in your town. (It's first come, first served.)

READ THIS:

"Fills a long-felt want in the exhibition end of the business. Here, indeed, is an idea to get the boys out of the rut and cut the expense. MOVIE TIME generally, mast head, composition, type faces, text, etc. is most excellent.

"Boy, I'm hot for this idea of yours. It's a honey!"

—E. E. BLAIR,
Defiance Theatres,
Defiance, Ohio

And this:

"MOVIE TIME is really a clever idea, giving theatres a well-gotten-up news magazine at so little cost. It has plenty of snap and class and interest that should get your weekly programs over to your patrons in an effective manner."

—From Commonwealth Theatres Corp. Managers' House Organ

JOKES SHOULD BE FUNNY

THAT OLD sage and seer, the man who takes his hair down, was hard at it again:

"You know if you keep it up, they won't let you through Cajon Pass into Hollywood.

"For a guy who's been in and around this business all these years, you ought to exercise a little more discretion and stop stepping on so many people's toes. You—he means us—ought to know by this time you can't make people uncomfortable by telling the truth without expecting a slap in the kisser in return.

"Yet, that's what you're doing with column after column on your pet, self-sufficiency, and how it can best be worked out by adjusting the screwball situation at the studios. I might add—that is, if you're interested in my opinion—that exactly is where the serious adjustment will have to be made.

"It's fine to talk about higher admissions and extended playing time. It reminds me of all this moral rearmament stuff. Sounds swell and a grand idea on a very high plane, only Hitler won't listen and that's the end of it. As a distributor, I realize I am making myself suspect, a sort of traitor to the sales executive credo that each season prices must go up. But, if looking into a very honest mirror makes me that, I'll take the gamble.

"I don't think rentals can be stepped in anything like the proportion a lot of other fellows believe, or say they believe. And I don't think a helluva lot can be done about extended playing time. There is some reason for both and, on that score, I line up with the others, but to figure it out in terms of increased revenue that will replace the losses abroad is to my way of thinking an utter absurdity.

"Jokes should be funny, or to laboriously paraphrase it in picture terms, don't believe everything that's said. Maybe the boys who are bouncing the statements do believe their own language, but I doubt that, also. Their sales managers can tell them a different story, although I am well aware Hollywood doesn't very often pay attention to New York's ideas.

"As you have been remarking yourself, by what right does the coast take it for granted the international dollar is a constant equation. Who said so and what proof is there to support such a conclusion? Maybe the total dollar won't have as many pennies in it as in the days of yore and, personally, I don't think it will.

"But Hollywood, abstractly aware that the Old World is in the throes of destruction, stands on its tradition of aloofness, demands its old demands and steadfastly fails to recognize a situation, new to its existence and threatening to engulf it. Utterly fantastic and incredible. But true.

"You can't automatically say that, because we've lost revenue in fifty cities in Europe, fifty cities in the United States will have to make up the difference. Not when the fifty here are already doing well by the distributor. Business isn't so hot here either and, while it may be true the final ceiling for a theatre's gross cannot be conclusively established, it strikes me as a whale of a gamble to rest the future of a huge industry on a dice tossing such as this.

"Something more completely planned has to be worked out. It has to be something that is ear-marked with the possibilities of workability, not out-and-out chance. Total distributor revenue at home, I suppose you realize, doesn't vary much from year to year. Specific attractions contribute in highly fluctuating manner, of course, but when you put it all in one pot it ends up about the same in overall aggregate.

"This suggests to me a basis on which a planned procedure can be developed. If it's so much a year, the companies know where they stand and about what they are entitled to expect. All plans ought to stem from that and you don't need fancy bookkeeping, either.

"It will become evident in a great hurry that one of the needs is lower negative costs. Now I know all the answers bouncing out of Hollywood. Labor is the big item. My eye, it is. That's only a red herring smelling up the trail and waved in the breeze like a smoke screen deliberately designed to duck the issue. That's a pretty bad mixture of figures of speech, but you'll get what I mean.

"A big job? Yes.

"Trouble, revolt and near-revolution? You bet.

"But don't let anyone tell you it can't be done. Not only can it be done, it must.

"Otherwise, all of us are in for trouble that will make the government suit and the Neely bill entirely unnecessary. There won't be any business left to legislate."

NO SELLING STOPPAGE WHILE NEGOTIATIONS CONTINUE FOR INDUSTRY SUIT SETTLEMENT

Conditions Slow Push; Code Essentials in Some Contracts

NEW YORK—There will be cessation of selling during negotiations between department of justice representatives and major counsel for an out-of-court settlement of the industry suit via a consent decree, sales executives declare. However, it is pointed out, general economic conditions have somewhat slowed up the pace which usually follows sales conventions, the last of which is being held in Chicago by Warner starting Monday.

It is held in some quarters that because of the uncertainty of settlement conferences, the majors are not taking chances on what may eventually happen. Therefore, the consensus among distribution heads is not to jeopardize possibilities. As one top sales spokesman stated current settlement negotiations may take weeks, possibly months, before an accord is reached and a plan formally accepted for general trade consumption.

Some Are Prepared

Some companies already have incorporated in contracts and by special riders the essence of the code of fair trade practices rejected by the department of justice last year. About 90 per cent of the clauses have been in effect the past year, it is held.

What the new plan of selling will be, in the event a settlement is reached, cannot be anticipated at this time, it is stated. Likewise, this holds true to an agreement as to the effective date of any terms which may be reached with the consent of all interests involved. Speculation over what may come out of the trade practice plan, if such is to be the case, is beyond the immediate policy of selling; hence, sales heads are resigned to go ahead with formulated schedules until advised otherwise.

On Wednesday, Stephen Doyle appeared for the government before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard and requested adjournment until Monday, which petition was granted. At the hearing the justice department indicated that no dismissal would be agreed upon for United Artists, Universal and Columbia, appearing to insist that the eight defendants participate in any decree that might eventuate.

Indicating that negotiations may be drawn out, Judge Goddard later conferred privately with Paul Williams, in charge of the government prosecution, with a view to handling minor cases until some agreement could be reached with distributor counsel.

On May 18, BOXOFFICE exclusively reported a collapse of overseas' income would be a vital factor in forcing the issue on a settlement. This prediction seemingly has been borne out in recent developments abroad and in Washington.

The realization among major defendants to press its defense in light of most recent changes in the war picture might inflict economic choas, coupled with a prosecution concession that even after a

Help From the Court

New York—Unique in the annals of jurisprudence is the role expected to be played by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard in the final settlement phases of the all-industry suit. The judge has openly declared he intends to assist both sides in working out details of a draft acceptable to all industry interests. This procedure, he indicated, may take a month.

Any plan which has a possibility of bearing fruit will not be overlooked. This may go so far as to invite any individual or organization to recommend views. He has already intimated he will brook no unnecessary delays in getting down to the facts and resolving them into a working formula.

Meanwhile, he declined to comment whether he would set aside section five of the Clayton Act which involves a point of law as to the extent which future litigants can utilize consent decree terms. The judge intimated this issue may come up later and did not desire to render a decision at this time.

May Be Far Away, But Capital Hears Decree Shaping Up

WASHINGTON—A consent-decree settlement of the New York all-industry suit is rapidly taking definite shape, although formal presentation to the court may still be several weeks away.

The recessing of the trial over the last weekend gave point to reports here that counsel for the companies and department of justice and commerce department officials had been in almost constant discussion ever since the case came up.

Washington officials are closely guarding all details of the negotiations, overtures for which are said to have been renewed by company counsel on the basis of intimations that the government would not stand in the way of a quick settlement if a satisfactory basis could be worked out. Involved in the discussions are the same men who participated in the unsuccessful negotiations in New York some weeks ago, Ernest A. Tupper for the department of commerce and members of the consent decree section of the department of justice, together with Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold and government counsel handling the case, with Attorney General Robert Jackson closely informed as to developments.

The writing of stipulations, for which the trial was recessed over the weekend, will tend to shorten materially the period required for the taking of testimony. Under stipulations in an anti-trust suit it is agreed that the defendants did or did not engage in practices alleged by the government, and further proof is not necessary. On the basis of such stipulations, defendants can agree to discontinue any practices which they have admitted and to make such other reforms as may be necessary to satisfy the government, which agreement then becomes the basis of a consent decree ending the suit.

Major problem confronting the negotiators, it is indicated, is the question of divorce. This is considered more important by justice department officials than compulsory block booking, for which several remedies can be readily found.

Divorce has been the stumbling block of the negotiations for months, and department officials are understood to insist that in this, if in no other issue, the companies must make broad reforms.

Considerable interest attaches to the possibility of triple damage suits based on the New York case. The general belief is that with a stipulation admitting that certain methods were practiced or with evidence proving the charge in the court's records, exhibitors may be able to bring suits for damages, although proving them admittedly is something else again.

As a matter of fact, it is said, the department insisted upon the suit going to trial so that such evidence might be in the record. This was one of Allied's demands in a memorandum to the department opposing the acceptance of proposals before the negotiators in New York in April.

Independent exhibitors are said to be willing to accept a consent decree settlement—if they are consulted—provided it deals adequately with the question of divorce and does not debar them from bringing their damage suits. The government is willing to accept a settlement, provided it affords satisfactory reforms, so as to give the industry a measure of security of which today it stands in grave need. The companies are anxious for an end of the suit, so that they may attain that security, and are said to be willing to go further than ever before to bring it about.

Let's Go To It!

THERE has been a great deal of talk about what should be done to put new life into this aging "infant" industry; but no one has done anything about it. Let each man, who expounds his views of what ought to be done, step out and DO IT, and the job will be done.

Let the producers, who say that the salvation of the industry lies in the making of fewer and better pictures, set their own examples;

Let those, who say the elimination of "B" pictures will drive away the box-office blues and bring lost patronage back, follow their own advice;

Let those, who say that doing away with double features, giveaways and other cheapening methods will restore public favor, throw off the shackles of such policies in their own theatres;

Let those, who say that showmanship is the answer to all of the industry's financial woes, demonstrate they are right through their own efforts;

Let those, who advocate higher admission prices, raise them in their own theatres in accordance with their views;

Let each man, who has an idea for the improvement of his own business or the business generally, get busy and do the job without waiting for all of the others to hop on his theoretical bandwagon, and we'll see a wave of the initiative and ingenuity needed to set this industry once more on the march forward.

Waiting for the other fellow; decrying a policy but pursuing it—because the competition does it; sitting on your bottom and wishing that this or that would happen won't make it happen. DOING THINGS IS WHAT GETS THINGS DONE.

There is no cut-and-dried plan to success in this or any other business today—or was there ever such a day. It was the venturesome, pioneering, trail-blazing spirit that took this industry out of the nickelodeon storeroom and moved it into the magnificent palaces. Men, who had ideas, put them into action. If they failed, they tried again and again and again. Enterprise was the watchword in the early days of this business. It was the up-and-doing that got things done. There were few, if any, geniuses; but there were a lot of hard workers. There was enthusiasm; there was courage, and the conviction of that courage that caused men to stick by their ideas until they won out. They didn't succumb to the first defeat after a short "test;" nor to the second or third or tenth efforts.

This is not a college cheering section; but, maybe, that's one of the things needed. So we'll start the cheering:

Instead of yelling about what's wrong with this business, let's remember that there is plenty that is RIGHT with it. There's been enough of the negative thought and talk, let's take the positive view. And let each man become his own cheer leader—but, instead of yelling, let him be DOING. And keep doing. And doing. And the momentum will take hold and the action will be sustained.

If you've got an idea of what needs to be done—GO TO IT!

Notes to You from Red Kann

GEORGE ARLISS, 72 now, turns author with "My Ten Years in the Studios." Describing the various negotiations leading to his contract with Warner, Arliss throws a sidelight on the reason behind the decision to make the original "Disraeli" with:

"Harry Warner . . . told me he didn't expect 'Disraeli' to pay, but was using me as an expensive bait to hook people into the cinema who had never been there before."

His analysis of "only two world-staggering events ever happened in Hollywood:"

"I have never been quite able to discover why the producers and their press departments go to such trouble to get headlines in the Los Angeles papers about the enormous importance of their stars.

"The effect on the population of the arrival of the star is generally greatly exaggerated in the press, while that of the earthquake is discreetly diminished."

Finally, an Arliss closeup of Zanuck when Darryl F. was in charge of Warner production:

"I first met him in 1928 when I was playing Shylock in Los Angeles. Jack Warner brought a party to the theatre and afterward they all came to our rooms at the Biltmore. We talked of the possibility of my playing 'Disraeli' on the screen. Zanuck was tremendously enthusiastic about it—walked up and down outlining with much gesticulation an entirely new opening to the screen version. Jack Warner chuckled and said, 'He does all the work at the studio now. I just add up the figures.' "

Producers' Lament

What gives producers that occasional wild-eyed look is demonstrated aptly by a question asked by government counsel of Nate Blumberg when the Universal president was undergoing examination before trial in the all-industry suit.

Question: "What determines the amount spent on top pictures?"

Answer: "It is very difficult. If we had the answer to that, we'd have no problems. We have estimated some pictures to gross $1,000,000 and have found the final gross has been about $200,000."

FROM Boston comes an amusing one. John V. Spalding, attorney for the Maine and New Hampshire Theatres Co., was telling Philip Hendrick, master, that the Morse and Rothenberg anti-trust case reminded him of a story. It was about a young lawyer who had been carrying his senior's brief case for years and was turning impatient at the lack of an opportunity to display his knowledge of Blackstone.

"Finally," Spalding continued, "he said to his superior, 'May I open the next case?' The senior said he might. When he got through his opening, the junior asked, 'What do you think of that for an opening?'

"The senior observed, 'You have opened it so wide that I will never be able to close it.' "

And Emphatic, Too

Murray Silverstone was explaining how, under the UA setup, his producers have all the time they require to tailor their attractions, how they don't have to rush to meet release dates. "I imagine if Gainsborough had to meet a date with his famous painting, 'The Blue Boy.' Why he might not have had time to paint the kid's pants on."

A Dubious Honor

On the evening before the Nazi horde invaded Luxembourg, Belgium and Holland, Adolf Hitler sat through a sentimental musical film which was described in German quarters "as similar to 'The Student Prince,' but with a Rhine setting."

An honor which motion pictures could have done without.

The Nice Way

Another studio crisis found a certain Hollywood plant faced with the necessity of unloading one piece of deadwood; he had been around the lot for years. Word filtered out, however. A reporter on the phone:

"What about So-and-So? He's through, isn't he?"

Studio Head: "Yes, he's through. But I wish you'd lay off until we can find a title for him before we send the story out."

Modest

Sales manager discussing his company's next immediate crop. In glowing terms, of course:

"You know, nothing great. Just colossal."

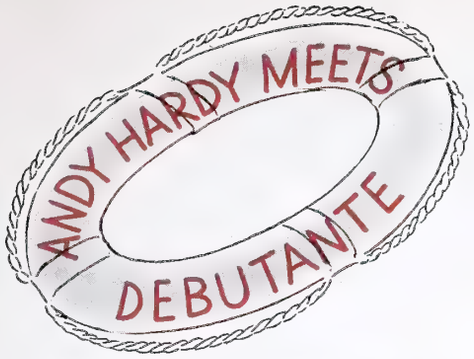
LIFE SAVERS!

Brief Facts About 9 Great M-G-M Pictures!

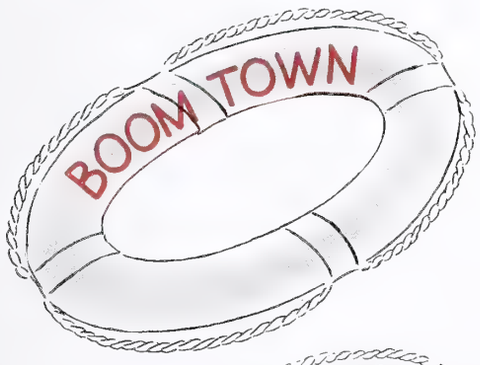
Spencer Tracy has received the finest critical notices of the year and his box-office stature rises to even greater heights as "Edison, The Man" engagements enthrall the public with this truly magnificent entertainment.

"Waterloo Bridge" one of the year's best films presents Vivien Leigh in another memorable role and brings to the public a new Robert Taylor. Box-office and public agree that it's his most appealing job. Three weeks at Capitol, N. Y.



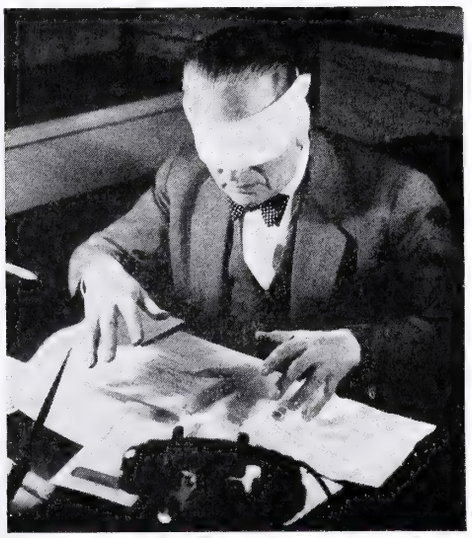
Joan Crawford and Fredric March make a swell box-office combination in "Susan and God." Joan does a job that will delight all who loved her sensational role in "The Women." The famed stage comedy hit has been brilliantly produced in the M-G-M manner. A sensation at its Preview!

"The Mortal Storm" is excitement on the screen! M-G-M did such a swell job of the best seller that the author wrote: "I'm delighted." And what a cast: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart are the sweethearts. Robert Young, Frank Morgan do great work. It's terrific!



Of all the operettas in which Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy have appeared "New Moon" is musically and romantically the best! The public is ready for this type of scintillating attraction and M-G-M has made a great musical show for them. Previewed! And it's Perfect!

How marvelous that at this time when the public wants to forget troubles, M-G-M delivers the most uproarious of the entire Hardy series. "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" has, in addition to Lewis Stone and Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland. It's finished and it's a sure HIT!



Just previewed before an audience that never stopped laughing in Riverside, Cal. "Pride and Prejudice" is without question a glorious audience attraction. Greer Garson (Mrs. Chips) will be famous all over again. Laurence Olivier co-stars. Fun and romance in a grand movie.

Clark Gable! Spencer Tracy! Claudette Colbert! Hedy Lamarr! Yes, they're all in one picture "Boom Town" and it's a powerful yarn of oil millionaires and their lives. Only M-G-M packs such a star-studded box-office wallop, and what a show it is!

Norma Shearer gets the prize role of the year, the fascinating Countess in the best-selling novel "Escape." Robert Taylor co-stars and the cast is hand-picked to assure that this will be one of the greatest of box-office attractions. Something to watch for!

HE TRUSTS TO LUCK!

This exhibitor faces coming months with no assurance of attractions big enough to cope with the competition of the season and the times.

THE WISE OWL SAYS:

M-G-M exhibitors know from past experience that M-G-M plans its production so that its customers are equipped with big pictures when things are toughest!

VARIETY OF STATE LOTTERY INTERPRETATIONS WHIPS NATIONAL THEATRE RADIO BATTLE PLAN

Idea Was to Get 10,000 Houses to Cooperate In Giant Award

NEW YORK—Proposed plans by an important group of theatre operators to adopt a weekly giveaway idea along the lines pursued Tuesday nights by the Tums radio show are understood to have collapsed.

Various schemes have been discussed by majors and independents during the year, but, because of the lottery angle, no impetus has been given to finalization of any of them. Chief objection expressed by several circuit heads is that the idea calls for the winning person to be in the theatre within a limited period of time after the name is chosen, making it compulsory for a patron to buy a ticket to be eligible. This, basically, is asserted to be a violation of the lottery laws.

Under one of the most pretentious plans discussed, a cash giveaway of $50,000 or $100,000 a week was contemplated as the big award with thousands of dollars additionally to be given out as consolation prizes.

In toto, the idea was to get over 10,000 independent and major circuit houses to join. Participation fees would have ranged from $10 to $50 for a theatre, depending on its size, admissions and policy. Average fee was figured at $20 a theatre.

From a Central Point

Provided all the theatres expected were to join, the wheel of fortune would have been operated from a central point, as in the case of the Tums program. The selection of names would not have been limited to telephone directories, but would have included the list of every person living in each city where a theatre or theatres participated.

Despite the recent ruling by the department of justice holding the Tums giveaway no lottery, exhibitors who have been studying the idea feel they have had enough headaches with Bank Night and other forms of money giveaways in theatres. Local authorities have harassed theatres in virtually every town where a form of cash giveaway has been in force at one time or another, it is stated. The consensus among important operators is they do not want to go through the same experience again.

Loew's recently tried out the idea locally in Washington during Horace Heidt's personal appearance with his band at the Capitol. Heidt appears regularly on the Tums air show which distributes $1,000 to the person at home when his telephone number is selected. There also is a $100 consolation award if the party does not answer.

At the Capitol engagement, Loew's offered $500 at each performance to the Washingtonian selected and present in the theatre at the time. Several patrons walked out of the theatre with the bonus money and the idea clicked. Whether Heidt will continue the arrangement on future theatre bookings is not known, but in any event, the idea did not result in unfavorable publicity. Rather, the word-of-mouth campaign boosted the gross and more than made up for the money paid out to the lucky winners.

Many exhibitors are inclined to look askance on any sort of giveaway idea at this time, it is felt. Business has been off and, while Bank Night and other forms of giveaways were regarded as stimulants a year or two ago, many theatre owners appear to be of the opinion that something new in the way of entertainment is needed and not gifts in money or merchandise.

Proximity of summer is another reason for the lukewarm reaction to the mass cash giveaway. Notwithstanding, interests who are sold on the idea will not entirely drop it. They believe the plan has its merits in one form or another.

Radio sponsors continue to give away jewelry, automobiles, mechandise and money, all of which are said to be making inroads on theatre attendance. What plan eventually will come out of the current idea to buck the air giveaways is not known, but some of the circuits may be prompted to adopt their own wheel of fortune where they have numerous theatres dotting a given locality.

About two years ago, Loew's launched a plan whereby a main prize of $1,000 weekly was distributed to the patron who had previously registered but who was present in one of the circuit's Greater New York houses at the time the name was called. RKO followed suit, but after several weeks discontinued.

Several independent circuits throughout the country had been planning to offer twice the amount Tums gives away every week if the party chosen by the radio show happened to be in the theatre. Trouble has developed as a result. In one case the exhibitor was hailed to court in a dispute resulting from a complaint by a patron.

It is understood nothing on an en masse basis will be attempted unless it is legally in the clear. Until that is definitely assured, ideas will continue to be mulled over. Then again a turn in the gross chart for the better without outside stimulents may supply the answer.

Would Vitiate Air Gift Via Plan Without Ticket Angle

CHICAGO—Offering a plan that will combat the Tums' "Pot O' Gold" program and give theatres an equal chance to get more patrons the night of the program, Phil Fischer, president of Hollywood Amusement Co., suggests that theatres cooperate nationally to give away twice the amount of the $1,000 weekly air award to any listener "not at home when the program telephones him."

"The plan has nothing to do with giveaways of any kind in theatres," says Fischer. "It would simply mean subscription of a $2,000 fund weekly—a suggestion would be to get $1 each from 2,000 theatres, or less from more theatres—to be given to the person whose telephone number is called, provided that person is not at home when the call is made. It would not be necessary for that person to be in a theatre. Naturally, if after several weeks no one is home to get the telephone call, but each time gets twice the ordinary $1,000 award, the air program would lose its advertising effectiveness and in the end be stopped."

Fischer suggested that some national exhibitor organization, such as MPTOA or Allied, handle the plan, if exhibitors feel it a worthwhile one.

Sartorial Epitome Circuit's Desire

New York—Having given away practically everything usable in the home, Consolidated Amusements now is offering a suit of clothes, priced at $22.50, to lucky patrons once a week at its various theatres.

Screeno continues as is several nights a week. Also the cut-rate offer on books.

Just what will be the next form of giveaway attraction is eagerly being awaited by the independent circuit's patrons, according to a representative, "inasmuch as the gifts hold more interest than the pictures generally nowadays."

Revive Kaycee ITO

KANSAS CITY—The Independent Theatre Owners of Kansas City has been revived here with E. S. Young as president. One of the first official acts of the organization is a campaign to reduce giveaways and other extra inducements.

No Stoppage in Selling While Suit Decree Talks Continue

lengthy trial "what we get ultimately is doubtful," are given by informed sources as factors leading to negotiations Williams referred to in court.

While these negotiations are said to be a continuance of previous efforts to achieve the same purpose, they are characterized as embodying a new approach to the situation.

Details of the new approach are closely held, but they are believed to embrace the theory that "maintenance of a field as fertile as the motion picture industry is essential to stop warfare."

Referring back to BOXOFFICE's exclusive of May 18, it was stated then "the government has as much as, if not more than, the industry at stake in keeping commerce humming in high gear during times of international insecurity. In the long run, the cost to the justice department of preparing and trying the case would be a drop in the bucket as compared to what the mouth that feeds it might lose if the industry is defeated, is compelled to disintegrate, is forced to cut payrolls and accept distress bids for theatres."

And, it is significant that "the mouth" referred to—meaning, of course, the federal government—received in 1939 a total of $100,000,000 in taxes from the industry while an additional $250,000,000 was paid in taxes to state governments. These figures are from Poor's Publishing current financial survey of conditions in the industry.

It is an established fact that the other three government instituted suits such as the Schine, Griffiths and Crescent actions pending in Buffalo, Oklahoma City and Nashville, respectively, and based on the same broad allegations with independent circuits as defendants, will be withdrawn during pendency of the test trial upon which settlement of the "key" suit is conditioned.

With Start of Suit

Curiously enough, the latest negotiations toward settling the government suit started June 3. That morning Thurman Arnold, in charge of the anti-trust division, made the opening statements before federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, stressing what he termed the "re-birth of the anti-trust laws," which was immediately interpreted by defense counsel as his keynote for disintegration. That same evening Arnold sat around a dinner table, very private and very secret in locale and nature, and is said to have been prevailed upon by industry spokesman to alter his views.

Arnold returned to Washington June 4 presumably to discuss the tenor of the conversation the previous evening with his superiors. On this day, the court room was devoid of any directional signs of a settlement. Thomas D. Thacher, representing Paramount, made the first of the defense opening statements. It took the whole day.

On Wednesday, June 5, the same procedure was followed by Ralph S. Harris, for 20th-Fox; John W. Davis, for Loew's; Louis D. Frohlich, for Columbia; Edward C. Raftery, for UA and Universal, but Col. William J. Donovan, for RKO, and Jerome Strumpf, for KAO, waived openings. The latter incident, coming as a complete surprise to some in that Donovan is said to have spent at least six days in the preparation of his opening, was viewed as playing a significant role in coming events.

It seems, according to informed sources, that Joseph M. Proskauer, counsel for Warner, who followed Donovan and Strumpf, was likewise prepared to waive his opening. But not having heard from the prosecution anent Monday night's developments, Proskauer decided to put his remarks on the record. He completed only a portion of his opening June 5. Judge Goddard asked to be excused for the following morning's session so he could attend a wedding. The request was granted by defense attorneys.

When court resumed at 2 p. m., June 6, Proskauer began where he left off the previous day and consumed the balance of the afternoon until he finished his say.

At that point, the judge asked Williams if he had anything to say in reply. The government prosecutor merely remarked he was grateful for the courtesy but his only desire was to put his first witness, Elmer Pearson, on the stand the following morning. It was assumed from all appearances the government was anxious to get the trial actually under way.

In Buzz of Reports

However, immediately after Judge Goddard retired from the bench, counsel for both sides joined him in an ante room. Those who remained outside suddenly found themselves in the midst of rumors that settlement negotiations had resumed in an effort to forestall the taking of any testimony. When BOXOFFICE reporters sought to determine if this was fact or fancy they were greeted with replies "nothing unusual happened."

Nevertheless, when court opened Friday morning, June 7, not a single defense attorney was in sight. The judge appeared at his scheduled time and the court clerk tolled the usual ritual. John F. Clagett, of the prosecution staff, then informed the court that due to meetings on stipulations being held it was necessary to seek an adjournment until June 10. Judge Goddard acquiesced and added he had spoken to Williams the night before and that morning and was familiar with what was going on. He made no outspoken reference to a consent decree or a settlement. Later that day, defense counsel admitted the real purpose of the adjournment was for discussing a consent decree. At the same time, it was learned the June 10 extension was to go over until June 12 and a strong inference was also made the latter adjournment would again be put over, possibly to June 17. In other words, it was the intention of the court to cooperate with the settlement negotiators to the extent of postponing taking testimony until it appeared a formal agreement had been reached.

In answer to a question, a court attache admitted this procedure might consume "weeks and maybe months, depending upon the progress being made."

Williams and his staff returned to Washington Friday to confer with Arnold and other department of justice officials on what distributor counsel termed "the advisability of discussing a consent decree."

On Saturday, June 8, counsel for majors held a conference among themselves at which time, it is said, more or less concrete terms were tentatively agreed upon in the event the prosecution was of a mind a settlement could be effected.

Another conference of a similar nature was held Monday, June 10, but strict secrecy prevailed. Major counsel stated they were awaiting word from Williams who presumably was to have returned from Washington, June 11. However, Williams appeared at justice department headquarters in the federal building June 10 with the understanding he would seek another postponement from June 12.

Meanwhile, all attorneys who attended the "inside" conferences admitted they had been sworn to secrecy.

Clarifies Allied Angle

Shortly after Williams returned reports circulated that, contrary to previous settlement talks, Allied, in this instance, is not being asked for its opinion in particular respect to theatre divorcement. In one quarter, it was said, "this time it is the government, not Allied."

From a reliable source it is learned one of the provisions of the purported settlement terms embraces the understanding the actual litigation remains status quo until a test trial for the summer months proves either the efficacy or the fallacy of the principles involved. Such a procedure, it is held, would be the basis for determining whether selling in blocks of five is the solution to the block booking problem. At the same time, a checkup revealed little, or any, selling for the new season has taken place, possibly in anticipation of such an eventuality.

New York—In addition to his original contract price, which was $1,075,000 for eight pictures, Charles Chaplin was given a guarantee of $800,000 on "The Kid."

This information was revealed by Thomas D. Thacher when the former judge reflected on historical developments back in 1917, when Chaplin, then working for Mutual Film, switched to the original First National.

Eight Advertising Men In Paramount Field

NEW YORK — Paramount is placing a special force of eight residential advertising consultants in the field about July 1, according to R. M. Gillham, director of advertising and publicity. Activities of the staff will be coordinated by Alec Moss, home office advertising manager.

The field men and the cities to which they have been assigned are Don Chambers, Boston; William Brooker, Philadelphia; J. Maxwell Joice, Cleveland; Clinton Bolton, Atlanta; Bill Landsburg, Kansas City; Carl Kreuger, Chicago; Jack Daily, Dallas; R. Ravenscroft, Los Angeles.

IATSE Expansion Plans Are Mapped

LOUISVILLE — Emphasis upon complete organization of large-city theatres and particular attention to an increase in membership among small-town projectionists probably will highlight the future course of IATSE under the continued regime of George E. Browne as president, it became apparent at the annual convention here last week.

Returned to office with Browne were Harlan Holmden, Cleveland, elevated from third vice-presidency to first, replacing John P. Nick of St. Louis; William Covert, Toronto, second vice-president; Richard F. Walsh, third vice-president; Floyd M. Billingsley, fourth; James P. Brennan, fifth; Roger M. Kennedy, sixth, and Felix Snow, seventh. Louise Krouse of Philadelphia was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Secretary-treasurers were re-elected in all districts, except for replacement of Clyde A. Weston in District Nine. They are:

District No. 1—Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, British Columbia. Re-elected O. M. Jacobson.

District No. 2—California, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah: A. L. Norriega.

District No. 3—New England States: F. W. Newcomb.

District No. 5—Wyoming, Colorado: Jess G. Dauterman.

District No. 6—Texas: Eddie J. Miller.

District No. 7—Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina, Mississippi, Louisiana: R. E. Morris.

District No. 8—Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky: Arthur W. Lyday.

District No. 9—Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Kansas: Roy M. Brewer replaces Clyde A. Weston.

District No. 10—State of New York: Glenn H. Humphrey.

District No. 11—Ontario, Quebec, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick: Arthur Milligan.

District No. 12—Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta: J. Wright.

District No. 14—State of New Jersey: Thomas V. Green.

District No. 15—Oklahoma, Arkansas: William Rea.

LOUISVILLE—IATSE and MPMO, in convention here, elected these to the board of trustees: William C. Scanlan of Lynn, Mass.; R. E. Morris of Mobile, Ala., and George W. Brayfield, Denver. AFL delegates will be Thomas V. Green, Newark and E. J. Brock of Cleveland, while the Canadian trade delegate will be Jack Wright of Saskatoon, Sask.

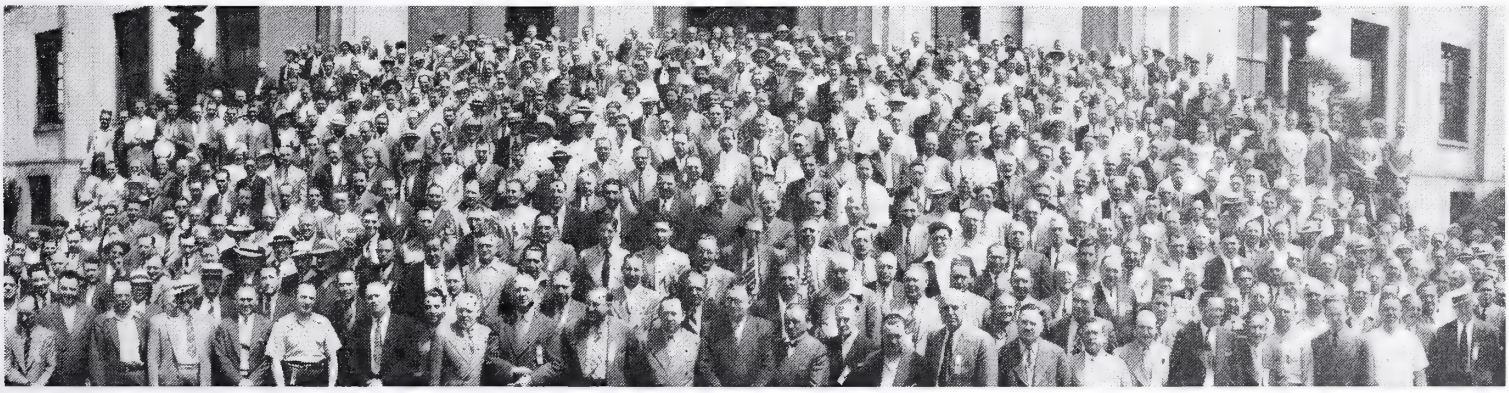
Allied Approves Skouras Plea For Industry Cooperation

WASHINGTON—Recent proposal of Spyros Skouras urging closer industry cooperation is described as "more timely and in better taste" than the current mud-slinging at Allied and its leaders, in a statement issued from Allied's headquarters.

Asserting Allied's activity in connection with the Neely Bill and the anti-trust suit is responsible for the outbursts of its leadership, the communique maintains "they are particularly ill-timed in view of the menacing situation that confronts the industry and the obvious need for team work between all factions and branches."



The statement charges that the industry has had two years "to clean house on a basis that would be not only equitable and just, but permanent and enduring. That opportunity has twice been muffed by attempts to cut across lots instead of square corners."

In what may be construed as a plea for peace, the report states: "It remains to be seen whether the vision exists to seize the present opportunity to put the affairs of the industry on a legal and equitable basis and to bind up the wounds of internecine strife. This will call for the best efforts of the really big men in the industry; it can not be left to minor employes and second string lawyers whose approach to a solution has not risen above personal attacks on Allied leaders."

The statement also contends Allied has brought about the reforms many have talked about and exhibitors will have Allied to thank for their new found freedom when the "monopolistic practices" are finally expelled from the industry.

No 20th-Fox List Cut Planned, Says Wobber

HOLLYWOOD — Twentieth Century-Fox has no intention of reducing its production lineup of 52 pictures, Herman Wobber, general sales manager, said on his arrival from New York. He expects to remain here about six weeks. He declared: "We will deliver the 48 pictures to be produced here and four made in England." During his stay, Wobber expects to visit the company's various western exchanges.

Second Meet Hears Columbia's Plans

ATLANTIC CITY — Approximately 125 delegates from the home office, eastern, mideast and southern branches convened here for the second Columbia regional sales meeting when A. Montague outlined the company's plans for the new season. Details for the 18 top pictures in a program of 44 features, 16 westerns and 130 shorts were given the sales force at the Ritz Carlton. In all, 16 branches were represented.

Various home office executives spoke and stressed the importance of maintaining a level head in face of conditions abroad.

"The future of the distributor," Montague stated, "depends as much on the distributor as on the exhibitor." Jack Cohn, vice-president, also made a talk which was one of the highlights of the convention.

Among home office executives who attended in addition to Cohn and Montague were Rube Jackter, Abe Schneider, Nate B. Spingold, Joseph McConville, Louis Astor, Louis Weinberg, Max Weisfeldt, H. C. Kaufman, L. Jaffe, Maurice A. Bergman, M. Grad, M. Wormser, G. Josephs, W. Brannan, B. Zeeman, V. Borrelli, J. Freiberg, S. Raisler, T. McCue, I. Sherman, L. Malamed, A. Seligman, A. Picker, F. McGrann, A. Sherman, J. Segal, C. Roberts, Joseph Friedman, managing director of England, A. M. Boye of Brazil and H. Prosdocimi of Panama.

From the field:

Albany—J. Miller, manager; E. Hochstim, J. Armm, M. Cohn and S. Goldberg, salesmen.

Atlanta—S. Moscow, southern division manager; W. W. Anderson, manager; B. A. Wallace, U. T. Koch, E. B. Foster, and J. S. Laird, salesmen.

Columbia Wins First Round In Stockholder Action

NEW YORK — Columbia won the first round of a stockholder action seeking to dissolve the company. James F. Burke, holder of 800 shares of common, and claiming to represent 3,350 other shares held by eight stockholders, lost an attempt to examine the company's books for securing names of stockholders to get approval of dissolution.

Burke claims the war in Europe, the Neely Bill, the all-industry suit, possible effects of television on theatre attendance, loss of Frank Capra, and excessive salaries allegedly paid executives make the company a poor risk next year. He seeks dissolution now, while something can be secured for the stock. Supreme court justice Samuel I. Rosenman, with a little more faith in Columbia's future, denied the application. Unless an appeal is taken, the suit is probably finished.

No Numerical Change In Warner Shorts

CHICAGO—There will be no numerical change in the Warner shorts lineup for the new season, Norman H. Moray, in charge of this department, will inform delegates attending the three-day regional convention scheduled to open Monday at the Blackstone Hotel. Several new series are being added to the list which provides 68 singles and 18 two-reelers. Elsa Maxwell is down for three two-reel subjects and the regular number of 26 Merrie Melodies and 16 Looney Tunes will be included.

In the recent Sears Drive, the following winners were announced: Edward M. Schnitzer, eastern district manager; J. Roger Mahan, New Haven manager; Norman Ayres, Boston; Charles Rich, formerly of Buffalo and now at the helm in Cleveland; Sam Lefkowitz, New York; Paul Krumenacker, Albany. Other awards will be distributed here.

Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, complimented Spyros Skouras, president of National Theatres Agency, for his recent remarks at an AMPA meeting in New York. This had to do with increasing admissions and a plea for greater cooperation within the industry.

Among those from the home office at the meeting are Charles Einfeld, Carl Leserman, Mort Blumenstock, Ben Kalmenson, Roy H. Haines, Norman H. Moray, Arthur Sachson, Al Schwalberg, Mitchell Rawson, Sid Rechetnik, Gil Golden, Lee Blumberg and Joe Kelly.

The sales force from the field include:

Atlanta—R. L. McCoy, manager; J. H. Black, H. R. Kistler, F. H. Rudolph, and B. C. Weil, salesmen; and Jack Goldsmith, publicity.

Charlotte—J. A. Bachman, manager; Dean S. House, H. H. Jordan and H. Keeter, salesmen.

Chicago—Rud Lohrenz, district manager; T. R. Gilliam, manager; B. Allen, R. C. Herman, George Weinberg, B. Goldman and Max Roth, salesmen, and F. Barto, publicity.

More Sociological, Political Film Meat for New Season

By IVAN SPEAR

HOLLYWOOD—That the 1940-41 production season will be characterized by further capitulation to the trend toward filming pictures with sociological or political implications is seen as the result of an analysis of the story properties being lined up by the major plants for the new season. The increase in films of this type climaxes a steady growth which, during the past two years, has found such stories slowly creeping their way into the production agenda despite the cries of reactionary critics whose contention has been that the sole content of the motion picture should be "escapist" entertainment.

Several Last Season

During the season just closing, for example, there were such entries as 20th Century-Fox's "Grapes of Wrath"—a filmization of John Steinbeck's liberal, documentary novel; Warner's "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," in which syphilis—a dread word in films and the lay press for lo! these many years—and the discovery of its cure were delicately and intelligently, yet courageously handled; another Steinbeck tome, "Of Mice and Men," filmed by Hal Roach; and, earlier, Warner's "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." A still earlier contribution was Walter Wanger's "Blockade," a story of the Spanish rebellion. It can safely be said that, a few years ago, it would have been impossible to bring any of the above vehicles to the screen.

Either in production or already completed for 1940-41 release are such documentary, off-the-beaten-track properties as 20th Century-Fox's "Four Sons," a story of post-war conditions in Germany; Republic's "Doctors Don't Tell," carrying a message for semi-socialized medicine; Walter Wanger's "Foreign Correspondent," from Vincent Sheean's "Personal History," an analytical, first-hand report of Europe after the first World War and the events leading up to the current conflict; Charles Chaplin's "Production No. 6," in which he satirizes dictatorship; Metro's "The Mortal Storm," from a novel by Phyllis Bottome and treating of conditions in present-day Nazi Germany; Columbia's "Girls of the Road," describing the economic difficulties of thousands of young American women who, through lack of employment, have become hoboes; and Paramount's "Mystery Raider," a fictionalized melodrama which uses the present World War as its background.

20th-Fox Has Most

On coming schedules, the largest contributor to the array of topical subjects is 20th Century-Fox—displacing, incidentally, Warner, which a year ago pioneered the pro-America, anti-dictator policy with its "Nazi Spy." The Westwood plant lists "Highway 66" as another drama of America's migratory workers and a sequel to "Grapes of Wrath;" "How Green Was My Valley," a best-selling novel by Richard Llewellyn which describes the chaotic conditions of Welsh coal miners; "Gestapo," story of the Nazi secret police, to be made in England; "Ladies of the Road," which, like Columbia's "Girls of the Road," will have feminine hoboes and their economic troubles as its subject; and "I Married a Nazi," an expose of modern German life, in which Joan Bennett will star.

For the United Artists lineup Walter Wanger will contribute "Dynasty of Death," filmization of the best-seller by Taylor Caldwell, which is a story of munitions makers and their international intrigues; David L. Loew and Albert Lewin list Erich Maria Remarque's "Flotsam," a tale of post-war Germany, as one of their subjects.

Metro recently purchased John Steinbeck's "Tortilla Flats" and lists, additionally, "Escape," another story of modern Nazi Germany written by Ethel Vance. Delving into still another subject which in previous years has been on the hands-off calendar—insanity—M-G-M plans to film "The World We Make," a successful Broadway play by Sidney Kingsley.

Shelved for the time being, but not definitely off schedule, is the Max Gordon-Harry Goetz production of "The American Way" for RKO Radio. Paramount will shape two subjects around current European War developments—"The Polonaise," a story of the siege and capture of Poland by Nazi Germany; and "Battalion of Death," based on a news story telling of the formation of a volunteer "suicide squad" in France. Although not strictly in the documentary vein, another Paramount property—"The Immortal Secret"—is slightly off the beaten path in that it traces the discovery of anasthesia.

Bringing Home His Point—

Spyros Skouras in a dramatic moment as he drove home an appeal for cooperation within the industry and from all sources. Next to the National Theatres' head is Charles E. McCarthy, 20th-Fox advertising and publicity head. The intent listener with his hand on neck and cigar in cheek is Charles Coburn, the actor. This took place at the AMPA meeting in New York.

Rewrite Neely Bill In Final Push

WASHINGTON—Seeking to dispose finally and for all time of the block booking legislation which has harassed Congress for the past decade, a special subcommittee of the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce is rewriting the Neely bill.

The revamped measure will be in the nature of a compromise between the bill passed by the Senate and the legislation urged by public groups and Allied exhibitors.

The bill is in the hands of a subcommitee of which Committee Chairman Clarence F. Lea of California is chairman, composed of Representatives Lyle Boren of Oklahoma, Martin J. Kennedy of New York and James P. McGranery of Pennsylvania, Democrats, and Charles A. Wolverton of New Jersey, Pehr G. Holmes of Massachusetts and Carl Hinshaw of California, Republicans.

The revised measure, it is understood, will omit the synopsis requirements or substitute a provision for identification along some line with which the companies will not find it difficult to follow, and will have as its main requirement cancellation privileges which will take all the compulsion out of "compulsory" block booking.

Representatives of the public groups and independent exhibitors are said to be ready to accept such a measure.

Several Still Holding Republic Franchises

CHICAGO—While Republic is functioning basically as a national organization, it is expected to be some time before the film company will own all its exchanges.

It was understood here at the conclusion of the midwest regional held at the Blackstone Hotel, that several of the franchise holders have completed year-to-year deals again with Herbert J. Yates and James R. Grainger. Among these are Irving Mandel, who has Chicago, Milwaukee and Indianapolis franchises, and Robert F. Withers in Kansas City.

Says Duals Must Go Or Prices Climb

NEW YORK—"From the operator's viewpoint, either the practice of double billing must diminish—the alternative being better-quality single-feature programs—or admission prices must advance, if theatres are to operate more profitably," says Poor's Publishing in its semi-annual survey of the industry.

The industry "is worried," the survey states, because of the foreign situation. "Should the markets of all nations now at war in Europe remain closed to its films, the domestic industry would stand to lose more than three-fourths of its usual foreign rentals," it observes. Also: "In the past, films have produced substantial income from foreign showings long after their effectiveness in domestic theatres ended. This has permitted amortization of production costs over a longer period than otherwise justified; and the prolonged earnings often meant the difference between profit and loss on a particular production."

With the view that "through drastic reorganizations, the industry has paid for its over-zealous boom-time expansion," the survey goes on: "It was rigidity of expenses associated with ownership of theatres that proved the Achilles heel of the boom years' expansion program. Given a 10 per cent loss in boxoffice receipts, an exhibitor saves only three and one-half per cent in film rentals, while his other expenses in effect remain fixed. The unfavorable leverage of such a situation is obvious. Conversely, with receipts increasing, leverage can be equally beneficial."

Motion picture popularity, as measured by theatre attendance, has given no signs of waning in recent years despite inroads made into the amusement field by radio, sports, radio-phonograph recordings, etc., the survey adds. Total income payments, it points out, were more than five per cent higher in 1939 than the previous year, with the result average weekly attendance at domestic theatres held unchanged from the year-earlier level. That this condition "at least prevails so far this year is suggested by the five per cent rise in consumer incomes evident in the 1940 first quarter."

Prospective film costs for the 1940-41 season are higher, the survey observes. "To a much greater degree than in former years, producers are emphasizing quality. In the past," the article adds, "poor quality in many films did much to retard the industry by provoking censorship and boycott difficulties. The films now in production by major studios should bring good results. Classification of films as 'A' or 'B' quality has done much damage to producers and exhibitors alike in recent years, since implication that one picture is better than another tends to degrade a large percentage of product. Elimination of such practice would prove especially advantageous to the industry as a whole, both here and abroad."

Salaries "Major Problem"

The point is made the principal item of cost—salaries—constitutes one of the industry's major problems, "particularly in the case of second-grade films, where the percentage obviously is higher than in the $1,000,000 film class. So long as the main object remains to amuse the American public, producers, performers, directors and authors who are capable can write their own salary checks. Amusement executives likewise command high salaries; and when stockholders do not meet these demands, they find these men becoming independent producers and making yet more money. The classic example is that of Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck."

The "keen competition existing throughout the industry" is held to have been "primarily responsible for the decline in the number of theatres and contraction on construction outlays of past years. No marked change is to be expected during coming years." It is pointed out that although a 13 per cent rise in theatre construction was registered during 1939 over the previous year, expenditures remained 23 per cent below the 1937 level which, in turn, was 35 per cent under the 1938 figure, when total construction costs were estimated at $19,717,000.

Production Payroll 60% of Its Cost

New York—Because the industry is less adaptable to labor-saving methods, and must employ unusual numbers, its pay roll represents about 60 per cent of production costs, the greatest of any important manufacturing industry in relation to the value of its product, according to Poor's Publishing semi-annual survey. "Consequently," it points out, "social security taxes, which are scheduled to reach six per cent of pay rolls by 1949, will prove burdensome. However, the fact many salaries are high tends to offset this unusual burden, since the tax affects only the first $3,000 of annual pay per person. The estimated $3,000,000 increase in wages granted to motion picture technicians late in 1939, meanwhile, meant a rise of about three per cent in total annual payrolls."

Must Reduce Costs, Says Joe Schenck

New York—Asked his opinion of the immediate outlook from a production point of view as he prepared to return to the coast over the weekend, Joseph M. Schenck, in short, decisive terms told BOXOFFICE: "The situation is very serious. Unless we bring down costs we can't exist. Salaries and everything must be trimmed. Many other things have to be done besides. The country's exhibitors have to lend a hand."

In reply to the question: "Does your view embrace the thought production budgets will have to be cut?" the 20th Century-Fox executive replied: "Necessity is the mother of invention."

Travelers Jittery Over Foreign Mart

NEW YORK—"If they don't bomb London . . ."

That is the big "if" which will decide a number of fateful things including British production. As far as American companies are concerned, they are not going to wait for such an eventuality. It can be safely said plans for production in England are postponed for the duration of the war.

All this and more was said by an imposing number of film folks who arrived on the President Roosevelt, the first of the liners carrying Americans from Europe, about the time millions of radio listeners had their sets tuned to Charlie McCarthy.

The arrivals included: Ben Goetz, in charge of M-G-M's British production; Robert T. Kane, who holds a similar post for 20th-Fox, and wife; Joseph Friedman, Columbia's general manager of England, and wife; Jeffrey Bernerd, head of British Grand National, and wife; Mrs. Francis Harley, wife of 20th-Fox's British general manager, and son; and Mrs. Robert Montgomery, wife of the film star.

There was a general disinclination to discuss the situation. Pier 18 of the U. S. Lines was a mass of confusion. A hot, sweltering night added to the discomfort. And the group of comely Red Cross nurses in uniform somehow brought the reality of war closer to home.

Goetz, who was met by his brothers Jack and Harry, said he had finished "Busman's Honeymoon." A print is arriving shortly. He would not say much more until he discussed the matter with home office executives.

As for Robert Montgomery, who stars in the picture and is now somewhere in France serving with a U. S. ambulance unit, Goetz paid him a glowing tribute: "He is a man's man; he's terrific."

According to Kane, it is impossible to produce pictures under war-time conditions and 20th-Fox has postponed plans of making four features scheduled for re-

Foreign Features Popular in '39

New York—Showing the second largest ratio to total feature pictures released in the United States in history, foreign features accounted for nearly two-fifths of the number of total features exhibited in the domestic theatre market in 1939, states Poor's Publishing in a semi-annual survey of the industry. "Although this compares with less than nine per cent in 1927—thus showing a sizeable expansion in the use of foreign films in this country—competition faced by domestic film producers is but slight," the survey adds. "According to the trade, the maximum bookings for a foreign film in this country are only 3,500 theatres out of the 17,000 open, while for most foreign releases the number of theatres is estimated between 200 and 400; in some cases as low as 25."

Traces Paramount Acquisition

New York—Paramount acquired 300 theatres, in circuits and singly, from 1919 to 1923, counsel for the company stated in the early stages of the government suit. The reason for so doing was "only in order to secure adequate outlets for its pictures."

Commenting on the suit, the attorney asserted "the decree sought would restrict and restrain those competitive efforts in derogation of the public interest, and solely in order to serve the interests of competing producers and exhibitors who desire the aid of the court not in serving the public but in restricting the lawful activities of their competitors."

On January 1, 1940, Paramount had a financial interest in more than 1,230 theatres in 40 states. In 400, its interest was more than 50 per cent of voting control. The company's total investment in theatres is $72,000,000.

lease on the new season's program.

He said it was difficult to obtain gasoline for transportation and capable actors were not available. "The minute they bomb London everybody will walk out of the studios," Kane declared. "I was told to return at home when it became evident the studios were unable to continue."

Business just about stopped in England, Friedman disclosed, when the Nazis invaded the low countries. Until then the theatres with the exception of London were about normal and in some cases better, he stated. The theatres are still operating but attendance has dropped sharply.

Friedman thinks it is no use to make predictions about embargos on remittances or the quota. He said he hopes to take the first boat back to England after attending the Columbia sales meeting.

Until London is bombed, Bernerd, a British production executive, says production will go on. He is here to close a distribution deal for his picture "Pastor Hall" which has a strong anti-Nazi deal. Bernerd plans to leave shortly for Canada where he will look after his business interests.

Mrs. Montgomery did not have much to say. She said "Bob just made up his mind when the Nazis invaded the low countries and before we knew it he hopped an army transport plane to France."

Mrs. Harley said she did not know what her husband's plans were. He is planning to stick it out as long as possible, she stated.

Distributors From Paris; Operate in Bordeaux

NEW YORK—Distributor's representatives in Paris have moved to Bordeaux from where they will continue operations, according to word received from H. L. Smith, Hays office representative in Paris. It appears likely that Madrid or Lisbon will be made the permanent headquarters for the duration of the war.

John S. Cohen Jr.

ATLANTA—John S. Cohen jr., one time film critic on the New York Sun and later in Pittsburgh, is dead here at the age of 41.

Block Booking Forbidden By Decree in Cuba

HAVANA—A decree forbidding block booking here went into effect June 10. The statute approximates the Neely Bill introduced to the House of Representatives in the United States. Representatives of American companies are meeting with the Cuban department of commerce in order to have the decree repealed.

Seidelman to Argentine On UA Assignment

NEW YORK—Sam Seidelman, UA's general manager of Mexico, sailed Friday on the Uruguay on a special assignment to Buenos Aires where he will remain indefinitely. In the meantime, J. B. Urbina continues as manager of the Mexico office.

D. E. Griffiths New Sales Head for Para't-British

NEW YORK—D. E. Griffiths, formerly general manager of First National-Pathe and past-president of Kinematograph Renters' Society, is new general sales manager of Paramount's British organization, succeeding C. G. Dickinson, resigned.

Sanders, Cohen Handling Foreign Features

NEW YORK—Leo Films has been formed to handle the distribution of foreign pictures. The officers are Nat Sanders, president; Leo Cohen, vice-president; and Sylvia Sanders, treasurer.

Facts and Figures Sound Like Fiction

New York—It's not new to producers, but to exhibitors the prices paid by major companies for literary works indicates the extent to which they will go to compete with one another. The figures cited were given by Thomas D. Thacher at the early stages of the all-industry suit.

Producers pay from $35,000 to $100,000 for novels. For successful stage plays the price has gone as high as $225,000; the average for plays being from $50,000 to $100,000. Good magazine stories or a good original, according to Thacher, will sell for as high as $30,000.

No Paramount Units In Seven States

NEW YORK—Paramount, or its subsidiaries, does not operate in seven states, exclusive of the District of Columbia, Paul Williams, government attorney, declared in his resume to the court. He listed these states as Delaware, Kansas, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming.

Among smaller circuits acquired by the majors in recent years, Williams stated, National Theatres took over Fox West Coast, North American Theatres, which was composed of four minor circuits, namely, Far West Theatres, Golden State, Pacific Northwest and Frank Amusement; Midwesco from J. E. and Tom Saxe; Midwest and others.

Warner acquired Skouras Brothers Enterprises, Warner-Equity Theatre Corp., Silverman Bros., Bernard E. and Israel Hoffman, Dennis A. Harris and John H. Harris; Nikitas D. Dipson and John R. Osborne, James E. Coston and Robert O. Farrell, Universal Chain Theatrical Enterprises, Schine Theatres of Canada owning or controlling 15 houses in Ohio; Fred Levy and Leo Goldberg, and J. Appell and Meyer S. Sandau.

Loew and its acquisitions were: Sullivan & Considine which was returned to the seller in 1915; Ackerman & Harris, which was returned in 1922; Loew's Ohio Theatres, Eastern Theatres, now known as Poli New England Theatres; Buffalo Theatres, Inc.

RKO: RKO with 66 theatres, RKO Proctor Corp. with 15, RKO Midwest with 17, Radio-Keith-Orpheum with 24.

Where They Are

Paramount: B&K with 120 theatres in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio; Bamford circuit, operating in Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina, the Tracy Barham circuit operating in Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia; A. H. Blank, operating in Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois and to some extent in Michigan; Hoblitzelle, operating in Texas and New Mexico; Idaho-Utah, operating in those states; Jefferson Amusement, operating in Texas; Lightman with theatres in Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi; M&P, operating in Massachusetts, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Rhode Island; Maine & New Hampshire circuit with units in New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Maine; Miami circuit operating in Miami; Northwest circuit with houses in So. Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin; Paramount-Richards, operating in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi; Penncon circuit, operating in Pennsylvania and New York; Hunter Perry, operating in Virginia; Publix-Richards-Nace, operating in Arizona; Sparks, with theatres in Florida; Western Massachusetts circuit, operating in Massachusetts and Vermont; Wilby-Kincey, with theatres in South Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee; Notopolos circuit, operating in Pennsylvania and Maryland; the Adams houses in New Jersey; West Coast circuit operating in California, and the Cooper circuit, operating in Nebraska and Colorado.

40% Foreign Money Deemed "Frozen"

NEW YORK—Approximately 40 per cent of the present foreign revenue of major companies is completely or partially frozen, according to a check made by a foreign sales executive.

With the state of foreign markets unpredictable from day to day, estimates on the percentage of shrinkage in revenue from abroad are at the most haphazard.

To say most of companies until now have lost 40 per cent of their foreign income is putting the debit cart before the horse, it is asserted. Figures used are based on fiscal business ending August, 1939, and apply only to the state of conditions today. End of year totals, whether calendar or fiscal, are another matter and will reflect varying decreases.

As conditions abroad become more intensified and disorganized, the shrinkage undoubtedly will grow more acute. It will be more noticeable after November 1 when the majors will have completed withdrawal of $17,500,000 from England. There is little expectation the British government can afford to be as lenient next year. And England represents anywhere from 50 to 60 per cent of the total revenue from abroad.

The countries where revenue is partially frozen are England with approximately 24 per cent of the foreign total and Australia and New Zealand about six per cent. Czechoslovakia, which represents about one per cent of the total, has been completely frozen for some companies.

These Are "Frozen"

Countries considered completely frozen are Belgium and France, representing about four per cent; Holland, one and one-quarter per cent; Japan, one per cent; and Norway and Denmark, about one and one-quarter per cent. In the case of the latter two countries, there is a strong prospect of moneys comings from their shortly.

There is no business being conducted in Poland by any of the companies which represented about one and one-quarter per cent of the foreign total. Although distributors are resuming in Spain, no company has drawn money from there since 1936, and prospects for the future are still negative.

Germany and Italy, which at one time accounted for about three per cent, cannot be included because most of the companies with the exception of M-G-M, Paramount and 20th-Fox, ceased business in Germany five years ago and operations were officially terminated in Italy, Jan. 1, 1939.

How to get film shipped to Sweden, the Near East and Egypt, still lively revenue-bearing markets, is the next problem the distributors have to cope with. Postal authorities have informed the companies to hold all mails and prints until new routes can be devised. It appears likely shipments to Sweden will go through Vladivostok via Siberia or around Petsamo in northern Finland. Shipments to Egypt and the Near East will have to go through Bagdad.

IA Views 16mm Field As Its Province

Louisville—A nationwide effort to enforce employment of IATSE members to operate 16mm motion picture projectors, used by representatives of industrial firms and several branches of the government, is portended by a resolution made at the 35th biennial convention of the Alliance held here.

Re-election of George E. Browne of Chicago to the helm of the projectionists union was assured by a unanimous endorsement of his administration.

Delaware Blue Laws Are Again in the Limelight

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Delaware's ancient Sunday blue laws are back in the limelight with Hansel Marvel, 23-year-old dance hall operator at Bowers Beach, near Dover, threatening to bust them wide open.

Marvel and eight other members of his troupe of entertainers were jailed for 24 hours when they refused to pay fines and costs imposed by a magistrate on charges of violating the Sabbath blue laws. He operated again last Sunday unmolested. State police declared no complaints had been lodged against him.

The agitation against the antiquated blue laws began last year when Charles S. Horn, owner-manager of the Blue Hen Theatre at Rehoboth Beach, was fined on Sabbath charges. The Delaware legislature appointed a commission to study probable blue laws changes for recommendation to the next session of the legislature.

Planning to Buy Reade Holdings in Hudson

HUDSON—Freida & Grossman, who own a half interest in a number of theatres here with Walter Reade, are planning to buy him out after the summer. Freida & Grossman sold Reade the 50 per cent several years ago when the latter was at odds with the late Sam D. Cocalis.

Krieger Contacts Philly Suit Witness Prospects

PHILADELPHIA—Seymour Krieger, special FBI investigator in connection with the all-industry suit, has been here the past week contacting a number of independent exhibitors as possible witnesses for the government, if and when, the suit is resumed in New York. It is understood a number of theatre owners interviewed flatly refuse to testify or become involved. It is also said a number of exhibitors whose names have been mentioned will be unwilling witnesses, if called.

Three in Yiddish

NEW YORK—Work on three films with Yiddish dialogue has begun at the Cinema Service Studios in Palisades, New Jersey. The first production, "Eli Eli," will be ready in the fall. Cinema Service Corp. will release.

Eight RKO Houses Dark for Summer

NEW YORK—Closing of RKO's Orpheum, Kansas City, and Albee, Providence, brings the total of the circuit's seasonal closings to eight. The Orpheum, Champaign, Ill., and Grand, Columbus, Ohio, were shuttered recently with the Shubert, Cincinnati, and Colonial, Dayton, Ohio, going dark about 10 days ago. The Palace, Chicago, and Strand, Syracuse, were shut down in May.

Spokesmen for the Warner and Loew chains report "no plans yet for closing any." The former explained some Warner houses are closed during the summer but the decision on them is not made until business shows a decisive drop. Loew's, it is said, does not usually close any of its theatres during the summer.

Consolidated Acquires The Cameo on 42nd St.

NEW YORK—Consolidated has acquired the Cameo on 42nd St., former show house for Russian films, and will reopen it shortly after renovations are made. Dates on summer closings of the six Bronx units, according to a spokesman, have been extended.

Build in Great Neck

GREAT NECK, L. I.—Frank Moscato and Irving Pinsker are building a 599-seat theatre at Grace Avenue and Middleneck Rd. The house is slated to open September 15.

Remodel in Rome

ROME, N. Y.—The Strand, one of two local Kallett theatres, has closed for remodeling. The Capitol, the other house, was completely refurbished last year.

James Hall Dies

JERSEY CITY—James Hall, former featured player with Paramount, who appeared with the late Jean Harlow in "Hell's Angels," died here at the age of 39.

Big Wilmer & Vincent Loss

NEW YORK—Net operating loss of Wilmer & Vincent circuit is reported at $71,878, as compared to $2,768 for the previous year period.

Common Dividend by Loew

NEW YORK—Loew's has declared a 50 cents dividend on its common, payable June 29 to stockholders of record June 18.

RKO Board Meets June 27

NEW YORK—The next regular RKO board meet will be held here June 27.

"Heaven Too" Fulfills Promise

Hollywood—Doubtless the most important and expensive picture completed thus far in 1940, Warner's "All This, and Heaven Too" easily merits a prominent place among the dramatic successes of screen history. From any perspective it is rich fulfillment of the extravagant promise of the picture's two-million-dollar budget.

Despite the generally accepted theory that current fan tastes lean toward film fare in the lighter vein, certainly this highly emotional picturization of Rachel Field's best-selling novel, which of necessity had to align itself on the serious side, will enjoy the universal patronage its excellence in every department deserves.

Primarily a woman's picture, of course, it still possesses sufficient impact to attract those of more rugged entertainment requirements. But the fact that every woman, regardless of age, class or locality, will insist upon seeing it, is probably its greatest guarantee of boxoffice success.

Little need be said about the story, inasmuch as the original has been so widely read and discussed, and to which the screenplay closely adheres—up to the time when the harassed Henriette comes to America, at which point the film ends. Bette Davis' portrayal is on a level with the best of her many superlative previous performances. And the terrific thespic pace she sets is taken in stride by Charles Boyer and the supporting cast, every member of which, even to the bit players, was selected with inspired discernment.

No small shares of the acclaim are due David Lewis for lavish and meticulous production trappings, and Anatole Litvak for his fine-grained direction.—SPEAR.

Charles Chaplin Sues "Life" for Million

NEW YORK—Charles Chaplin and Charles Chaplin Film Corp., filing suit against Life, Henry R. Luce, John Shaw Billings, Roy E. Larsen and Charles D. Jackson for $1,000,000 and an injunction against publication of a negative from "The Dictator," headed the week's court news. Life acquired a negative without Chaplin's permission and intended to publish the picture showing the comedian in an army uniform in its June 17 issue. Chaplin, who claims no film of his in 25 years has earned less than a $500,000 profit and who spent in excess of $1,000,000 on "The Dictator," asserts such publication will destroy the value of the feature and allegedly end what he believes will be a $5,000,000 profit.

Judge John C. Knox has granted Chaplin a temporary injunction against the publication, but 1,600,000 of the 2,800,000 copies have already gone out. Life must remove the offending picture from the magazines in the plant, but must stand trial on the alleged damages suffered through sale of 1,600,000 copies.

In a statement to the press, Life declared "the legal action brought by Chaplin came as a complete surprise. The picture of Chaplin as 'The Dictator' was published because it was a significant and worthwhile news picture and one of national interest at this time."

Paramount has filed a $36,500 suit against the government seeking recovery of capital stock taxes imposed under section 215 of the National Industrial Recovery Act. The company claims the act is unconstitutional, and seeks a refund. The tax was paid on the merger of Paramount International Corp. and Parager Corp. in 1933.

Cummins Pictures has filed an action against Benjamin Brodie and Premier Trading Corp. seeking $12,500, claiming Premier breached a contract giving Cummins distribution of a Polish picture (unnamed) and awarded the contract to Brodie.

Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck dismissed Adrianna Caselotti's $200,000 suit against Walt Disney, Disney Productions, Ltd., and RCA in which the singer, "The Voice of Snow White," claimed RCA dubbed her voice from the sound track of "Snow White" and made records, thus depriving her of employment she might otherwise have gained.

Richard C. Borden filed suit against Jam Handy Pictures Service seeking $25,000 damages for alleged plagiarism of a scenario of his, using Benjamin Franklin as a background, in the defendant's commercial film, "Seeing America."

John N. Weber Retires as Musicians' Union Head

INDIANAPOLIS—John N. Weber of New York, president of the American Federation of Musicians for 40 years, has retired. The announcement came at the opening day of the union's annual convention. Indications are James Petrillo of Chicago may succeed him.

"New Moon" Should Leave Imprint

Hollywood—Unless they have lost their former wide appeal as a co-starring team, the reunion of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy should leave an imprint on theatre ledgers reminiscent of the days when they ruled supreme as queen and king of screen operetta. The comeback vehicle is "New Moon," Metro's latest version of the tuneful and ever-popular operetta. Sincerity of delineation and a welcome restraint in the piloting of Robert Z. Leonard, who also functioned as producer, mark the feature. In the field of light, romantic musicals, the film brooks no adverse criticism.—SPEAR.

Paramount Was Never A "Lone Dissenter"

NEW YORK—Paramount was at no time the "lone dissenter" in previous discussions designed to settle the government suit out of court, Barney Balaban, president, states. In fact, he adds, "other companies" as well as Paramount were not in full agreement on proposed terms as they stacked up when initial attempts were made to achieve disposition of the government's equity action.

Asked if current negotiations were to be interpreted as indicating there was better reason to discuss settlement now than before, he replied this was still a matter of trading. He put it this way: "What we are doing now is to see if there is any basis, under the broad outline of what both sides are looking for, toward starting discussions of terms."

Balaban further declared, "If the proposals for a settlement are set up on a fair basis, we are not going to be stubborn enough to hold out. It all depends and we will know more about it in a few days."

Meanwhile, former Judge Thomas D. Thacher of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, representing Paramount, has been meeting with former Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, for Warner; John W. Davis, for Loew's; Col. William J. Donovan, for RKO; and John Caskey, substituting for Ralph S. Harris, for 20th-Fox. The meetings have been going on at 346 Broadway where defense counsel recently engaged offices as headquarters during the trial.

Work on Draft

It is understood the five attorneys have been working on a draft of proposals based on the trade practices rejected by the department of justice some months ago. Paul Williams, in charge of the prosecution, also has been working with his staff, ensconced in the federal building, on a set of regulations which the government is aiming to incorporate in a consent decree.

Although Stephen Doyle, assistant to the attorney general, informed Judge Goddard the government would not consider a decree unless Columbia, United Artists and Universal were parties to it, counsel for these companies decline to comment at this time. The reason for this is that they have not been informed of the contents of a proposed decree and until actual details are known, there would be no point in making a decision.

Counsel representing all majors, including Adolph Schimel of Universal's home office legal staff, started meetings with Thurman Arnold, Paul Williams, Robert Sher, Robert L. Wright and James V. Hayes on Wednesday at the Bar Assn. Building and they continued several days.

"We haven't broken down yet," was a terse remark made by Williams after one of the sessions. It is understood the adjourned court date on Monday will again be set back by Judge Goddard about a week to enable further meetings.

Firm Foundation for Columbia Program

ATLANTIC CITY—Supplemented by a series of "idea" pictures based on headline events, Columbia's program for next season will be built upon a firm foundation and will help carry the company's plan of showmanship pictures made by showmen for showmen, General Sales Manager A. Montague told eastern, mideast and southern delegates at the second regional sales meeting here. The "idea" picture will be timely and carry special appeal to small-town audiences, he added.

Rube Jackter, assistant to the sales manager, was presented with a baby grand Knabe piano as a surprise gift for his years of service. Lou Weinberg, circuit sales contact, made the presentation.

It was announced "The Fight for Life," which Pare Lorentz produced for the government, will be released on the 1940-41 program. It will be pre-released in a number of cities.

On the night of the opening session, the conventionites gathered at the Ritz Carlton for a beefsteak dinner with a special group of home office representatives in attendance. These included, in addition to the delegates, Leo Blancke, Hal Hode, John Kane, Jack Myers, Max Seligman, Floyd Weber, C. Sharpe, R. Philipott, Max Cohn, Irving Moross, Leonard Picker, Harry Foster, H. Golden, B. Birnbaum, M. Brunet, Ben Morris, Harold Sachs, J. Agell, Larry Schneider, Nat Goldblatt, M. ALBANY—Everett Stutz, who formerly managed theatres in Toledo, Ohio, is new boss of the Colonial, Bernstein Brothers' Albany house. He succeeded Anthony J. Minozzi, who resigned to enter theatre promotion work here. Minozzi was connected with theatres in Syracuse, Elmira and Utica before coming to Albany.

Republic Confidently Sticking to Lineup

NEW YORK—Republic has no intention of cutting its announced lineup of 58 features on account of world conditions, James R. Grainger, president, declares.

Grainger, meeting with delegates at the eastern sales meeting at the Park Central Hotel, said the company was going ahead with the most important and pretentious schedule in its history.

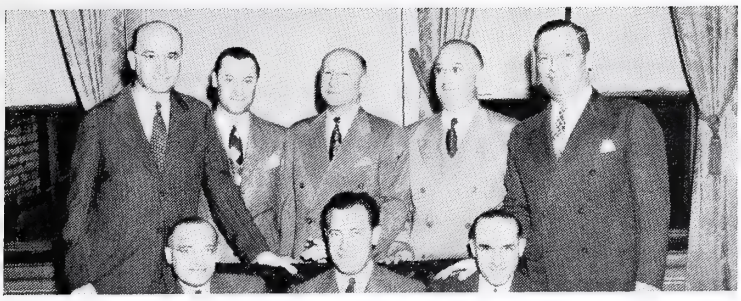
The task of lining up the program kept Herbert J. Yates, head of Consolidated Films, at the studio where he will remain until he has completed details prior to shooting.

It is understood the company's budget for the 1940-41 program will amount to $9,500,000. The selling policy will be flexible with 26 features and two Gene Autry specials slated for the percentage brackets.

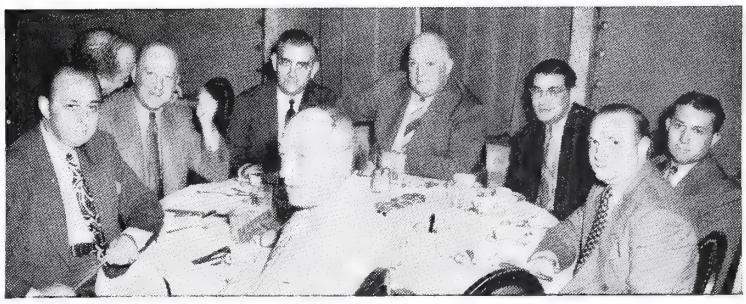
On Tuesday night, after opening the two-day session, the company entertained delegates and home office representatives with a cocktail party and beefsteak dinner at the New York Athletic Club.

Among those present from the field were: M. E. Morey, Boston; Sam Seletsky, New Haven; Herman Gluckman, Morris Epstein and Jack Pindat, New York; Max Gillis, Philadelphia; Sam and Jake Flax, Washington; James H. Alexander, George Collins and Sam Fineberg, Pittsburgh; George H. Kirby, Cincinnati; Sam Gorrel, Cleveland; Nat Lefton, Ohio franchise holder; Sam Seplowin, Detroit; Jack Bellman, Buffalo, and Arthur Newman, Albany.

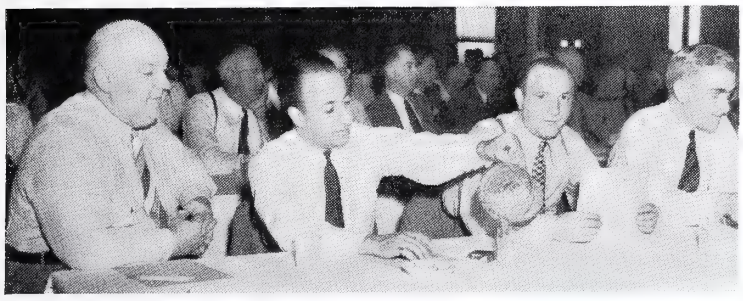
From the home office: James R. Grainger; Walter Vincent, chairman of the board; Morris Goodman, vice-president in charge of foreign sales; G. C. Schaefer, general manager; J. J. O'Connell, treasurer; Si Borus, head of the contract department, and David B. Whalen, publicity head.



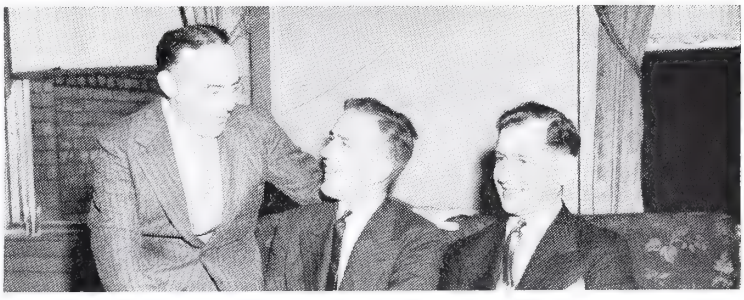
Allied Men Will Attend Warner Cocktail Party



CHICAGO—Allied convention delegates are among the invited guests to a cocktail party being given for Warner Bros. conventioneers Wednesday afternoon at the Blackstone Hotel. The party will close the Warner convention on June 19 as the Allied confab opens.



Jimmy Coston, zone manager here for Warner Theatres, will be host to Grad Sears and all Warner salesmen. Invited guests, besides Allied delegates, include Chicago independent and circuit operators.



Music Hall Negotiating Renewal With Columbia

NEW YORK—Negotiations are under way between the Music Hall and Columbia for a renewal of the theatre's three-year selective deal. A similar pact expires with the current season's lineup. If a new deal is signed it takes effect with the 1940-41 lineup.

Cohn Urges Hard Work As Answer to Gloom

ATLANTIC CITY—An appeal to producer, exhibitor, distributor and public to work together in trying times so that American institutions may survive was made by Jack Cohn, Columbia vice-president, in a convention talk.

"Now is the time to prove our faith in ourselves and in our American institutions if we are to survive the horror and hell that ravages Europe.

"We have got to work twice as hard and twice as fast.

"We all must get out and work to prove to the world that we—and especially the showmen of this country—believe this country is the one ray of democratic salvation in a world torn by strife."

RKO Drops Two

NEW YORK—RKO's foreign department in a retrenchment move has dropped Eddie Ugast and Al Frank, who handled foreign sales, and Art Rossom from the foreign publicity department.

Columbia Adjusting Foreign Activities

ATLANTIC CITY—That Columbia is looking ahead and adjusting its foreign activities to the ever changing conditions of a war-tossed market keynoted a convention speech by Joseph McConville, foreign sales manager.

"Our problem," he said, "and the problem of all of us who look to the foreign market is in guessing the future. No one knows what will happen to tomorrow's business."

Joseph Friedman, managing director of England, also discussed the situation abroad.

Panam Aims Product At Latin America

Aimed directly at the Latin-American market, Panam Productions of South America has been incorporated by T. R. Williams and Ted Richmond, and has closed a deal for the making of four Spanish-language films for United Artists release during the 1940-41 season. Williams, who has just completed four actioners for Monogram's 1939-40 schedule, checks out immediately to establish headquarters in Mexico for the first Panam production, with others to be made in Cuba and Argentina. He was formerly treasurer of Educational Pictures, while Richmond at one time was studio publicity-advertising director for Grand National. Directors of the new company, in addition to Williams and Richmond, are Monte Livingstone and B. Burger.

Pathe British Deal

With British production completely at a standstill because of the grave international situation, Pathe Pictures, Ltd. of London has set a deal whereby it will distribute in the British Isles, 20 features to be made here by Sigmund Neufeld for Producers Releasing Corp. Announcement of the commitment was made by Harry Rathner, PRC president, who is visiting Hollywood. Neufeld, in addition to the features, will make 18 westerns for 1940-41.

Harry Sherman has signed Richard Dix to star in "Cherokee Strip," an outdoor special, which he will gun in July for Paramount release. Lesley Selander will direct from Bernard McConville's original with production to start at Kernville.

Producers David Loew and Albert Lewin have booked Margaret Sullavan to co-star with Fredric March in Erich Maria Remarque's "Flotsam." For United Artists release, the initial Loew-Lewin feature will go into production in July, with John Cromwell directing from a script by Talbot Jennings.

Hopalong Westerns Add Ten Minutes to Length

NEW YORK—All future Hopalong Cassidy westerns for Paramount will be released to run 70 minutes instead of 60 minutes as heretofore, according to the distributor, which holds exhibitors have requested the 10-minute additional time.

Unbroken Production Schedule Reflects a Faith in Future

While another week of disheartening war news from abroad has done little to allay the bad siege of jitters which has had the film colony in its grip for several weeks past, it apparently has failed to exert any deterring reaction on production plans for the early summer, with nearly every studio lining up an unbroken string of vehicles for camera work during the balance of this month and in July.

Turbulent foreign conditions did make their presence known locally in the picture-making scene, however, through Larry Darmour's decision to discard his Columbia-released Jack Holt starrers because of the comparatively high negative costs, on which a bulk of the profit came from abroad; and through the announcement by 20th Century-Fox that because of mounting costs, dwindling revenues and other contributing factors—including the death of Florence (Grandma) Roberts, the "Jones Family" series has been discontinued.

On the other side of the ledger is the fact that Warner, 20th Century-Fox and Metro have all completed their 1939-40 schedules and that they, as well as Paramount, Universal and RKO Radio all have made substantial inroads on the new season's output. Warner, for example, has announced a "full steam ahead" policy under which it will shatter a five-year-old mark for activity by the end of the month, gunning "The Secret Army," "Fiesta in Manhattan" and "Honeymoon for Three" on June 24.

Paramount will also hit a new high summer mark, with eight now being readied, including "There's Magic in Music," "Moon Over Burma," "Touchdown," "Virginia" and "Love Thy Neighbor"—all to go into work before July 15. Big-budgeters slated at Metro include "Philadelphia Story" June 17, "Ziegfeld Girl" July 5, and "The Yearling" a few days later. RKO Radio will roll "Passport to Life" around June 21 and "Too Many Girls" June 24.

Monogram uncorks a barrage shortly with the announcement 22 films will be turned out within the next three months. Breaking the ice June 22 will be "Rainbow on the Range," to be followed June 24 by "Queen of the Yukon." Universal guns "Argentine Nights" and "Little Bit of Heaven" June 17, the same day chosen by 20th Century-Fox for the launching of "Down Argentine Way." For United Artists, Hal Roach has selected June 17 as the starting date for "Road Show."

52 Major Films Rolling With 13 New Starts

The production pendulum is swinging upward again, with 52 features now in work, 13 of them newcomers to the sound stages.

Columbia raised its total to eight with the start of "So You Won't Talk?" M-G-M launched "Golden Fleecing" and "I Married an Angel," and completed "Boom Town" to emerge with six in production. Monogram has one in work.

With no starts listed, Paramount is filming five. RKO Radio launched a barrage by gunning three—"Too Many Girls," "Blood Will Tell" and "Wildcat Bus"—to boost its pace to nine. Republic has four in production. "Tulsa Kid" and "Everybody's Happy" are new starts; "The Girl From God's Country" and "Carolina Moon" were completed.

For United Artists, Edward Small turned the cameras on "The Son of Monte Cristo." Universal is idling along with four in work. Twentieth Century-Fox launched "For Beauty's Sake" and completed "I Married a Nazi" to maintain a six-picture balance. Warner gunned three—"Tugboat Annie Sails Again," "Flowing Gold" and "Ladies Must Live" — and completed "River's End" to hit an eight-picture total.

Second National Defense Short Film by Warner

Second in Warner's new series of national defense short subjects has been titled "Service With the Colors." Gordon Hollingshead will produce, the film to be made in direct coordination with Major William A. Wright, chief recruiting officer for the U. S. army. It goes into work next week at the army presidio in San Francisco from a script by Owen Crump.

Silent on Suit Settlement

Albert J. Law, local department of justice deputy who has been active here for several years in connection with the government's anti-trust and criminal conspiracy actions, has been non-committal to date as to what effect—if any—settlement of the anti-trust suit may have on his future here.

Summing the situation up with a brief: "I don't know yet, one way or another," he likewise refused to commit himself as to whether collapse of the suit would indicate a revival of the government's criminal contempt action against Fox West Coast and nine major distributors.

This suit had been held in abeyance here during the anti-trust proceedings. Law, together with Harold Collins, had been handling it until the time it was stricken from the district court calendar, at which time they were assigned to compile a report on various production phases for use in the eastern suit.

Far-Flung Premiere Fad To a Temporary Halt

A temporary halt has been called to the splurge of elaborate premieres and previews with which the nation has been bombarded for the past several months, with exploiteers winding up their current efforts in a blaze of glory by staging four such attractions in as many key spots throughout the country.

Hollywood turned out virtually en masse for the first top-hat, ermine-cape event in several weeks when Wanger gave "All This, and Heaven Too," its world debut at the Carthay Circle Theatre June 13. The advance estimate of a 15,000 turnout proved to be not far from accurate, with police officials designating a special corps of 200 to divert traffic and handle the crowds. Bleachers to accommodate fans were constructed from the theatre building itself to the midway on both sides of the lane used by celebrities who attended. The guest list included:

Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, the stars; Rachel Field, the author; Jack and Harry Warner, Hal Wallis, Frank Capra, Edward G. Robinson, Paul Muni, James Stewart, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell, William Keighley, Genevieve Tobin, Anatole Litvak, Barbara O'Neil, Clark Gable and Carole Lombard, Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor, Casey Robinson, James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Gene Markey and Hedy Lamarr, Dolores Del Rio, Cary Grant, Merle Oberon, Hal Roach, Edmund Goulding, Mark Hellinger, William Wyler, Henry Blanke, Helen Westley and scores of others.

Picture received its eastern premiere on the same evening at the Earle Theatre in Philadelphia under the auspices of the Aid the Allies Committee, for the benefit of war refugees.

A four-way celebration highlighted the world premiere of Paramount's "Safari" in Providence, R. I., what with the silver jubilee of the Strand Theatre, the 25th year of management for Edward L. Reed, the premiere itself and the personal appearances of Lynne Overman, Muriel Angelus and J. Carrol Naish. Picture made its debut June 6.

The same company introduced "Untamed," featuring Dorothy Lamour, in Seattle June 13, followed the next day by showings in Portland and Spokane.

Edgar Selwyn Returns

Producer Edgar Selwyn has returned to M-G-M after a short holiday in New York.

Maj. Van Dyke Interviews Marine Applicants Daily

In line with his assistant as commanding officer of the 14th battalion, U. S. Marine Corps reserve, Major W. S. Van Dyke is devoting considerable time to recruiting the battalion. He will interview applicants in his office at M-G-M every week day and on Thursday evenings until ten; as well as at Marine Corps headquarters in the Federal Building Monday and Friday nights.

Van Dyke pointed out applicants must be from 17 to 35 years of age and must have had some previous military experience in U. S. services.

Sam Wood Quits Goldwyn Because of Inactivity

Sam Wood has obtained a release from his directorial contract with Samuel Goldwyn because of the latter's productional inactivity. Currently on loan to Paramount for "Rangers of Fortune," Wood piloted only one picture for Goldwyn, "Raffles." Following that film he was borrowed by Sol Lesser for "Our Town."

He'll Know the Time—

David O. Selznick Makes Brief Visit to Coast

Planning to stay only a few days in order to bring his local affairs up to date before returning east, David O. Selznick checked in from New York, where he has spent the past several months. He will be accompanied east by his family. Selznick has been in New York since shortly after the premiere of "Gone With the Wind," and has spent some time in conference with United Artists executives concerning his plans for resuming production. He also made an appearance at the recent UA convention.

Producer Herbert Wilcox pulled out for New York for conferences with President George Schaefer of RKO Radio relative to plans for his next picture, "No, No, Nanette," starring Anna Neagle. It is scheduled to go into work shortly.

After spending ten days at the Westwood studio, D. B. Lederman, 20th Century-Fox's Philippine general manager, has gone on to New York to talk over the Oriental situation with W. J. Hutchinson, the company's foreign manager. Scheduled to arrive here in July en route east on a similar mission is Del Goodman, far eastern manager for the company.

Comings and Goings

Matty Fox, Universal vice-president and aide to Cliff Work, pulled out for the homeoffice after spending a week here. He plans to remain in New York for two months or more while President Nate Blumberg is sojourning at the studio.

J. J. Nolan, RKO Radio's vice-president, and Perry Lieber, publicity-advertising chieftain at the studio, are back at their respective desks. They attended the company's sales convention in New York and huddled with President Schaefer on future plans.

Howard Dietz, Metro's advertising-publicity director, came in from New York to check over product now completed and being readied for release, on which he will map out exploitation campaigns.

Combining business and pleasure, John O'Connor, head of RKO Theatres, arrived from the east for a two-week stay.

Three Sponsoring Sound Recording Demonstration

A demonstration of third-dimensional stereophonic sound recordings, sponsored jointly by the Academy Research Council, Electrical Research Products, Inc., and the Bell Telephone Laboratories, will be held at the Pantages, June 20, according to an announcement by Walter Wanger, Academy president.

Wanger heads the arrangements committee, with Darryl Zanuck as vice-chairman. The new technique permits the recording and reproduction of a range of sound far beyond that now possible, with no distortion of sound quality. Included on the program will be a number of selections by Leopold Stokowski's Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, in which the conductor will demonstrate the stereophonic developments as applied to music.

EASTMAN NEGATIVE FILMS

COLUMNIST JIMMIE FIDLER shatters his own unchallenged record for smugness in his recent blast against what he chooses to term "anti-Nazi" films.

Stating that "it's come more quickly than I expected!" and recalling that "for months, I've warned Hollywood producers against the peril of anti-Nazi films," Fidler views with alarm the fact that seven of such features are in various stages of production or release. He projects several ridiculous reasons in substantiation of his claim that, despite his dire warning, "Foolishly, several studios went right ahead . . ."

The erstwhile air gossiper seems to forget that it is hardly within the province of a reporter to judge the merits or financial future of product before he sees it; and, more important, he completely ignores the fact that the first two of the features he attacks, namely Fox's "Four Sons" and Metro's "The Mortal Storm," are thoroughly splendid productional efforts.

But the highlight of his inconsistency and lack of logic is reflected in his question, "What will happen to them (the anti-Nazi films) in the event of a German victory abroad?"

What, it might be asked, will happen to any American-made films—or any other American institution, for that matter—in such an event?

In the face of this country's official attitude toward the warring nations, it seems highly probable that the charges of "foolishness" which he hurled at the producers have come home to find a permanent abode in the Fidler roost.

Republic will produce a picture based on the life story of Texas Guinan titled "The Roaring Forties." Which makes the lil' neighbor in Studio City just twice as ambitious as the Warner Brothers who settled for "The Roaring Twenties." Now, who'll offer "The Roaring Eighties?" When the trend reaches "The Roaring 160's," a roar can be expected from exhibitors and public.

Announcement that Olympe Bradna has been chosen by the Chippewa Indians of Minnesota as their favorite motion picture actress and will be received into the tribe at special ceremonies on July 4 threatens a revival of the publicity practice—as old as the Hollywood hills—of creating Redskin honors and names for film personalities, most of which have their genesis in the nimble minds of press agents. BALLYHOODLUMS: Phil Gersdorf, recently resigned from Harry Brand's orchid patch at 20th Century-Fox, gives promise of doing a precedentally good job as publicity representative for the Lou Irwin talent agency. Press attaches for agencies are nothing new. Several of the more opulent ten-percenters have at various times created such berths for unattached members of the blurb battalions, a few of which are still existent. But in most cases their efforts were, or are, extremely ineffectual from their employers' cash-drawer viewpoint; due largely to the fact that they specialized in broadcasting stereotyped fan fodder about clients, thereby duplicating, in most cases, the efforts of studio publicity departments. In order for the agent to realize a direct return from the investment he makes in a community praiser for his people, news of their trade activities in tradepapers is of primary importance. Gersdorf seems to be the first person in such a job to recognize that rather obvious fact and is keying his services accordingly . . . Come war, depression and curtailed budgets, Paramount's welkin-ringers still do things on the colossal scale—witness: "Dorothy Lamour traded a ten-million-dollar head of hair for thirty cents worth of calico." Even at advanced prices, a lot of hirsute adornment can be bought for ten million potatoes . . . Credit Bob Taplinger for a new space-grabbing idea in connection with the overworked Hollywood premiere. Arrangements were made to start the projection of "ATAHT" at its Carthay Circle debut through a series of photo-electric cell relays to capture the light impulse from Pollux, said to be Bette Davis' guiding star, harnessing it to close an electric circuit. One of California's characteristic foggy June nights might have kicked the Taplinger scoop into a cocked hat. (If the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce sees this, it's only a gag).

Sombre, Spooky, Sanguine, Slow

A photograph finish for first place in the week's preview event, with the moods and tastes of the individual judges determining whether Metro's "The Mortal Storm" or Paramount's "The Ghost Breakers" was to be selected as the best entry. Declaring the race a dead heat would give neither entry the worst of it since both, in their respective fields, merit limitless acclaim as splendid features.

To be classified as bitter, heart-breaking and austere, and therefore a sombre piece of work which shapes into depressing proportions, the first-named is a breath-taking indictment of the intolerance and persecution which attended Hitler's rise to power in Germany, and from which grew the mad turmoil now throttling half the civilized world. From Phyllis Bottome's widely-read novel, Claude West, Andersen Ellis and George Froeschel fashioned a script that is powerfully engrossing, and the vehicle is so significant in calibre that, for the majority of theatre-goers, it will with little doubt lodge itself on the "must see" list. Frank Borzage is entitled to unstinting praise for his work as producer and director. The cast, of course, is faultless.

At the other extreme is Paramount's "The Ghost Breakers"—a rip-roaring melange of chills and chuckles, with never a dull moment; wise-cracking, fast-moving and interest-commanding all the way. The appellation of topnotch entertainment can be applied to it with no fear of contradiction. Walter DeLeon supplied a scriptful of brittle dialogue and uproarious situations; Arthur Hornblow jr. contributed a solid production mounting, and George Marshall directed with emphasis so successfully concentrated on the lighter elements that it should register among the summer's top grossers.

Warner has a topside action entry in "A Fugitive From Justice"—so deftly handled in all departments that it is sure to please the thrill-seekers. Alex Gottlieb's screenplay establishes a mile-a-minute pace, to which speed Terry Morse geared his direction, while Bryan Foy's production guidance fulfills every requirement for the program brackets. Picture was based on an original story by Leonard Neubauer.

Contrary to the usual criticism, too much story material was the obstacle which Republic's "The Refugee" failed to overcome. Much of the picture's potential effectiveness, as well as an extremely promising opening sequence, is thus more or less lost. The blame must be shouldered by F. Hugh Herbert, Joseph Moncure March and Samuel Ornitz, who wrote the original screenplay, for the feature otherwise is impressively put together; and despite the story shortcomings, can be considered good program material. Bernard Vorhaus directed for Producer Sol C. Siegel.

With the accent on farce humor, Warner's "An Angel From Texas" travels along familiar lines and in its unassuming way will undoubtedly make a favorable impression on those seeking light diverting entertainment. Robert Fellows produced and Ray Enright directed.

Twentieth Century-Fox's "Girl in 313" falls neatly into the supporting niche, having been given creditable handling by Producer Sol Wurtzel and Director Ricardo Cortez. Cast is adequate and the script by Clay Adams and Barry Trivers, from an original by Hilda Stone, measures up satisfactorily.

Trailing the pack was Universal's "Private Affairs," which, the victim of what appears to be a case of hit-or-miss scripting, misses fire although it has the elements which might have been whipped into ace-high entertainment. True, it is an ambitious undertaking, pretentiously produced by Burt Kelly and boasting a thoroughly dependable cast; while Albert S. Rogell turned in a comparatively good job considering the story limitations with which he was forced to work, using every device within his knowledge to keep interest from flagging—in which he was not entirely successful.

Hays Office Conferring on Basic Pact With Writers

Bulk of the Hays office personnel, including its labor negotiating committee, is currently devoting most of its time to conferences with Screen Writers Guild representatives concerning the latter's demand for a basic agreement, the talks getting under way after several weeks' delay.

Meantime, the reorganization of Central Casting is proceeding along several fronts, with Howard Philbrick, generalissimo of the unit, appointing Harold Melniker as head of the casting division and naming Gerald Farman as assistant administrator. Melniker takes over the post formerly held by Bert Hampton. Farman's duties will include supervision of extra interviews, preparation of statistics and analysis of extras' qualifications for specialized work. Under his direction a new "rotating" system of interviewing players has been installed, with every member of the casting department taking his turn in the interview sessions. Currently about 150 extras are being taken daily for personal conferences, which amount Philbrick hopes to step up considerably under the new system.

Harmony Nearer in SAG Ranks; Minority Group Action Fails

A decisive step toward its goal of complete harmony between the "A" and "B" groups was taken by the Screen Actors Guild when, in a two-day superior court trial, it successfully defended itself against an action filed by a minority group of extras, led by Ed Heim, who sought to force the SAG to extend full voting privileges to the "B" members. The ruling handed down declared there was no evidence of fraud, coercion or oppression and that the SAG's regulations governing the control of the "B" division are not against the public interest. Simultaneously the SAG board met to mull plans for closer harmony between extras and the senior division and decided to table, for the time being, negotiations with producers for a reclassification of the "B" players.

Negotiating committees for the Screen Writers Guild and producers held their initial conference relative to the SWG's demand for a closed shop, minimum wages and other adjustments, and announced June 17 as the date for the next session. Y. Frank Freeman, E. J. Mannix and Harry Warner joined the companies' attorneys at the first parley.

Battle between the Screen Office Employes Guild and the American Federation of Office Employes over jurisdiction in the studios and in Central Casting is waxing hotter. The AFOE is to call a meeting of the Conference of Studio Unions, with which it is affiliated, to discuss the Central Casting stalemate, which resulted when producers notified the union it would refuse to open bargaining negotiations until the AFOE receives National Labor Relations Board certification. Meantime the SOEG is preparing a drive for membership among Central's employes in an effort to gain control of the organization. One informal conference anent the situation was held by Y. Frank Freeman and J. W. Buzzell, Central Labor Council executive, who supports the AFOE.

Other labor developments:

The Screen Publicists Guild is soon to call a membership meeting to vote on amalgamation with New York advertising publicists and the formation of a national organization. Screen Cartoonists Guild met with M-G-M executives to resume discussion of its demands for a closed shop. Studio advertising artists conferred with Universal officials on minimum wage demands. Screen Readers Guild submitted a new proposed contract to producers.

Society of Motion Picture Film Editors re-elected Edmund Hannan president, Edward Mann vice-president, Archie Marshek secretary and James E. Newcom treasurer, all unanimously. Next it will choose an executive committee to function in cooperation with the board of directors.

Central Labor Council election is scheduled for June 17 with W. F. Reynolds opposing J. W. Buzzell as secretary-treasurer and C. R. Van Winkle battling Harry Sherman for the presidency.

A Suitable Comeback Vehicle—"New Moon"

Unless they have lost their former wide appeal as a co-starring team, the reunion of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy should leave an imprint on theatre ledgers reminiscent of the days when they ruled supreme as queen and king of screen operetta. The comeback vehicle is "New Moon," Metro's latest version of the tuneful and ever-popular operetta.

Sincerity of delineation and a welcome restraint in the piloting of Robert Z. Leonard, who also functioned as producer. In the field of light, romantic musicals the film brooks no adverse criticism.—SPEAR.

REVIEW FLASHES

A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE (WB)—If it's bang, bang action the customers desire, here is a prize package. Gangdom furnishes the locale, and a high-speed screenplay with plenty of new twists, guarantees suspense and entertainment in bunches for the cops and robbers addicts. The cast lacks marquee magnetism but is well up to the job at hand. Bryan Foy's production and direction by Terry Morse fit the ensemble expertly.

REFUGEE, THE (Rep)—After being launched with an extremely promising opening sequence, this loses much of its potential effectiveness by being permitted to wander rather aimlessly through a labyrinth of story development, which overscripting further tends to discount the picture's impressive production accoutrements and a competent cast in which Charles Coburn shows up to advantage in the title role. Romantic support is supplied by John Wayne and Sigrid Gurie. Sol C. Siegel produced; Bernard Vorhaus directed.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Warner "Jury" to Select Two "Build-Up" Players

Planning to make it an annual event, a "blue-ribbon" jury of 12 Warner employes has been named to select two feminine players from the studio contract list to receive immediate buildups to stardom.

The 1940 committee comprises Robert Fellows, associate producer; Ernest Haller, cameraman; Perc Westmore, makeup chief; Sadie Freyer, head of the stenographic department; Orry-Kelly, fashion designer; Steve Trilling, casting director; Red Turner, property man; Harvey Briggs, head of the purchasing department; Anatole Litvak, director; Oren Haglund, assistant director; George Hurrell, portrait artist, and Jo Drogmund, wardrobe mistress.

Ending Pact With Darmour Jack Holt Will Freelance

Terminating a four-year association during which he starred in 20 action films, Jack Holt has not been given a renewal of his acting contract by Producer Larry Darmour and, according to spokesmen, will freelance in the future. A Darmour attache explained Holt was released because dwindling foreign revenues had seriously cut into the profits accruing from the Holt starrers, which he declared were turned out on a relatively high budget and culled a substantial share of their revenue from abroad. The Holts will be supplanted on Darmour's 1940-41 schedule for Columbia release by a series of "Ellery Queen" detective dramas, which will be aimed exclusively at American markets. Darmour will also turn out four serials and eight westerns starring Bill Elliott.

Gomperts Joins UA

With headquarters in Hollywood, George R. Gomperts has been appointed assistant head of United Artists' pre-selling department, acting as assistant to Monroe W. Greenthal. Gomperts was formerly with nationally known sales promotion and advertising companies, including the Barron Collier Co. of New York.

Shortly after Gomperts' appointment as UA's west coast preselling director, Lew Marin joined the UA exploitation staff assigned to the So. Calif. and Arizona territories, working under Greenthal's supervision. Marin comes down from Seattle, where he was northwest exploiteer for RKO Radio.

Paul Sloane and Joseph Santley, producer-directors, have checked off the Paramount lot, their contracts not renewed. Also due to leave the studio roster shortly is Dale Van Every, who currently is winding up production chores on "Rangers of Fortune."

Dissatisfaction with assignments given her caused Betty Jaynes, youthful singer-actress, to secure a release from her M-G-M contract. Her last screen appearance was in "Babes in Arms."

With the completion of "The Long Voyage Home" and "Foreign Correspondent" by Argosy Productions and Walter Wanger respectively, the Samuel Goldwyn studio has plunged into darkness and several scores of technicians, craftsmen, back lot workers and other personnel have been released. Next picture definitely set to go into work on the lot is "Pot O' Gold," by Samuel Bronston Productions, some time in August. Also lining up pictures for late summer starts are Wanger, Sol Lesser and Goldwyn himself.

Cliff Lewis has promoted Lou Harris from the Paramount advertising department to the post of assistant to Lewis in charge of advertising matters. Harris continues in charge of the trailer department. Don King, department editor, becomes a special feature writer, with Bert Holloway, Lewis' aide in publicity matters, taking over King's spot in addition to his regular duties.

Absence of Members Delays ITO Meet

LOS ANGELES—With several members out of town and consequently unavailable, the meeting of the directorate of the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz., originally scheduled for this week, has been moved back and will be called either June 17 or 18, according to Robert H. Poole, executive director. At that time Hugh Bruen, the ITO's delegate to the Congressional hearings on the Neely Bill, will present a full report of what transpired in Washington, D. C., during the sessions.

Meantime Poole, who attended the hearings as the delegate from the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, is still awaiting an answer from the PCCITO trustees to the lengthy report on the Neely sessions which he filed with them upon his return. He reiterated he will make no official announcement concerning the trip until instructions from the trustees have been received.

Feldstein and Dietrick Re-equip Seven Houses

COLTON, CAL.—Manny Feldstein and Paul D. Dietrick, operating seven theatres in the state, have completed an equipment modernization program in all their houses. RCA was given a contract for new sound and projectors for the Colton, here; new sound for the Strand at Oxnard, and new projectors for the Oxnard, also in the latter town.

Whitson and Lewis End Five-Year Partnership

LOS ANGELES—Partnership of Bob Whitson and Herman Lewis, operating for the past five years as the Whitson-Lewis circuit, has been dissolved, effective as of June 30. Whitson will continue to run the Vista and Hunley and Lewis will resume operation of the Los Feliz. All are subsequent-run houses.

Megs "Constant Nymph"

HOLLYWOOD—Michael Curtiz will direct Warner's "The Constant Nymph," starring Merle Oberon.

LOS ANGELES

PATRONS of the Paramount didn't miss hearing President Roosevelt's important speech of June 10. As the broadcast began immediately after the showing of a newsreel, Manager Harry Wallen tuned the nation's chief in over the sound system and shifted schedules so the audience could hear him . . . Bill Kohler of Astor Pictures has returned from a trip to San Francisco, during which he took in the Golden Gate Exposition.

Arthur Burnham, former assistant manager of the Bell in Bell, is now a booker for Film Alliance . . . Park Agnew, master booker for M-G-M, checked in from the San Francisco branch for a short stay . . . On the Row: Jack Chazan, Rosebud Theatre; Al Galston of the Marcal, Center and Hawaii; Judge LeRoy Pawley of the Desert, Indio; Harvey Perrizo, Dreamland . . . The boys at Columbia came in from the company's Chicago convention.

Back on the job after what she termed a "terrific" vacation is Edith Symmonds, switchboard operator at Columbia . . . Also in from his holiday is Lane Nichols of M-G-M's shipping department . . . Ruben A. Calderon, general manager of the Azteca exchange, pulled out for San Francisco on business.

Booking: Justin LaFont of Barstow; Tommy Huntington, Seville Theatre, Chula Vista; Harry Goldfarb, National, National City; Dick Lemucchi, who operates the Granada in Bakersfield and the River in Oildale . . . Delegates from Projectionists Local 150, IATSE, have returned from the IA's international convention in Louisville.

Sam Milner, Universal salesman, has returned from a trip to Imperial Valley . . . Benny Sachey, booker for Universal, heads for his home town, Benton Harbor, Mich., on a two-week vacation . . . Fred Stein, head of Fox West Coast's film buying department, has checked out on his annual vacation . . . Twin boys were born to Mrs. Sherrill Cohen, wife of the general manager of the Orpheum.

Nat Wachsberger, production chieftain for Film Alliance, checked in from New York to confer with Harry Stern, Pacific Coast division manager for FA, on distribution in this territory of "Fifth Column Squad," the company's newest release . . . Earl Brothers, operator of the Boulder in Boulder City, came in for bookings.

Republic's "In Old Missouri" was held over for a second week at the Hawaii, new Albert Galston-Jay Sutton house in Hollywood . . . In for bookings was Louis Olivas, Walker's Princess Theatre, Santa Ana . . . Robert A. Morales, producer-distributor in Mexico City, on the Row.

THE WARNER contingent shoved off this Thursday for the convention in Chicago. Accompanying Manager Al Shmitken were Salesmen Bud MacDonald, Al Oxtoby and Bill Wheeler . . . "All This, and Heaven Too" opens at the Warfield June 27 on a roadshow basis. It will run three a day with reserved seats for the evening performance only . . . Dan Tocchini has sold his State in Livermore to Y. F. Hamm.

Joan Blondell was to open her play "Goodbye to Love" on Monday but was taken right from the train to the hospital suffering from overwork and exhaustion. The opening was postponed to June 17. The Blondell vehicle is for the introduction of Gloria Blondell, Joan's sister, to the theatre and is reputedly backed by Dick Powell.

All divisions of National Screen Accessories are now housed under one roof which means that National Screen, Advertising Accessories, Western Poster and Southern Poster are doing business at the same stand. Construction is still going on in the renovation of the two-story building and one must side-step carpenters and barrels to get to any of the departments . . . Something new in San Francisco's entertainment circles is the new policy at the Larkin. The house is presenting exclusively all request programs and shows the films, new and old, that the public expressly desires.

Lillian Coates left her job as stenographer at Coast Pictures and was succeeded by Dorothy Foley, formerly secretary to Barney Rose at Universal. Ann Wallin takes over in the Rose outer office . . . George Blumenthal, well known on the Row, is now booking for Coast and its subsidiaries . . . Paul Smoot from the 20th Century Salt Lake exchange was a Row visitor this week . . . John F. O'Donnell, Monogram traveling auditor checking up on the local books.

The First Annual Light Opera Festival closed its four-week run, averaging $26,000 per week . . . Sam Clarke and Marty Weiser, Warner exploiteers, will be with us for the next two weeks getting everything lined up for the "All This, and Heaven Too" run . . . Everyone is happy to see Max Ratner back at his booker's desk at RKO . . . RKO incidentally is remodeling its main lobby, putting in display cases to push coming attractions.

One of the city's landmarks closed its doors when the Music Box gave up under the strain of increasing taxes and lack of customers. For many years the ornate old building was the real hotspot of the town, under its original name of Blanco's. For the past three years the Music Box has been the home of big attractions. The place was built in 1908 and has been dark before.

Russell Clifton, doorman at the Embassy, has been doing his job for the past two weeks with a broken arm in a sling. He has become a master at tearing a ticket in half with one hand . . . Booking visitors: S. E. Bowers, Desert, Hawthorne; Tom Belessis, Roxy, Stockton; Walter Cree, Lake Theatre, Corcoran, and Bill Wagner, Antioch.

Sid Klein is taking his vacation from the office of the Harvey Amusement Circuit main office and is spending the two weeks helping supervise the Harvey interests at the Fair. Other vacationists: Henry Wisnia, booker, and Joe Cannon, cashier, Warner; Loretta, Universal inspectress; Eleanor Byrne, Monogram stenographer; Dan Carpenter, Universal booker; Ben Westland, Golden Gate Theatre publicist, and Anne Sharp, availability clerk at Warner.

New York Visitors—

Mr. and Mrs. Bob White of the Bob White theatres in Portland, Ore., as they visited the RKO Exhibitors World's Fair Lounge in New York.

Trade Pays Tribute To "Daddy" Hines

LOS ANGELES—With more than 250 exhibitors, salesmen, bookers and other Film-row employes on hand, George "Daddy" Hines, believed to be the oldest living showman, was guest of honor at a gala party celebrating his 83rd birthday. The affair was held at the Cocoanut Grove of the Ambassador Hotel, for which hostelry Hines operates the Ambassador Theatre.

Master of ceremonies was J. Stuart Blackton, pioneer film producer and director. Other notables attending, all friends of Hines, were Hobart Bosworth, Monte Blue, William Farnum, Sid Grauman, John Considine sr., Paul Gerson and Bob Poole.

Guy Gunderson, president of the Los Angeles Motion Picture Club, handled arrangements for the event.

Partners Modernize

LOS ANGELES—Grover L. Smith and J. S. Thompson, operators of the Atwater, are modernizing the house. RCA sound is being installed. Smith and Thompson also operate two houses at Glendale.

Gets "Fabulous Thirties"

HOLLYWOOD—Lloyd Bacon will direct "The Fabulous Thirties," a Mark Hellinger production for Warner.

SALT LAKE

CLARE WOODS, formerly at the Centre, is now managing the Studio, replacing Philip Blair. Woods' former spot is being filled by Charles Pincus . . . Salt Lake civic and patriotic group leaders were guests at a special showing of "The Flag Speaks," dramatic new Technicolor featurette, held at the Studio Theatre. Officers of the American Legion, Boy Scout leaders and members of the Federated Women's Clubs and Parent-Teacher Ass'n attending were high in their praise of the Metro film, which carries a message of patriotism to the public.

C. C. Voeller of the Ramona at Buhl, Idaho, is vacationing in Cuba . . . Russ Dauterman, exhibitor of Green River, Wyo., was in town booking . . . J. J. Gillette, well known theatre man of Tooelle, Utah, is vacationing in California . . . E. O. Ostlund of Springfield, Utah, was in town . . . Ditto A. C. Willardson of Salina, Utah . . . Jack Dempsey's former wife, Hanna Williams, is going to Hollywood soon, it is reported here . . . Frank Kopp, a native of Milford, Utah, resigned his post in the Walt Disney studio to join the American Volunteer Ambulance corps in Europe.

Charles P. Skouras has relinquished Fox West Coast operations at Butte, Great Falls, Lewistown and Billings, to Rick Ricketson, division manager of National Theatres in the Rocky Mountain area. Theatres transferred to Ricketson are the Rialto, American and Fox at Butte; Liberty, Town, Rainbow, Ritz and Grand at Great Falls; Fox at Billings, and the Judith and Broadway at Lewistown. Reason for the switch is apparently a matter of coordination and geography . . . "Irene" was a holdover at the Rialto, operated by Joe Lawrence.

Nearly 400 school reporters, representing every school in the Salt Lake system, attended a special matinee at the South East Theatre as guests of the Salt Lake Tribune . . . The spelling-bees at the Capitol continue to be big successes . . . The Motion Picture Club is making arrangements for its annual celebration of Movie Day to be held at Lagoon, midway between Salt Lake and Ogden. This celebration was first held last summer. Harold Chesler of Intermountain Theatres is president of the club . . . According to report, the Broadway, which was ordered closed in May pending correction of certain fire hazards, may not reopen.

Phil Zeller Poised for Ohio Vacation Trip

SANTA BARBARA—Phil Zeller, manager of Warner's Mission here, is breaking in a new car preparatory to a two-week vacation trip into Ohio during July. He plans to stop off in Kansas City for a visit with friends he garnered as district manager in that territory for the Glen Dickinson circuit.

"And see that I don't miss any issues of BOXOFFICE," Zeller advised the reporter. "I would not be without it one week, and look forward to receiving it every Monday morning. It is great. Keep it up."

PORTLAND

BILL McCURDY, sitting behind the grill at J. K. Gill's and buying back the tickets for Maurice Evans' scheduled performance of "King Richard II," nursed bitter thoughts anent the war in Europe. Evans wired that anxiety over the welfare of members of his family in London had caused him to end his tour in Frisco, cancelling further bookings, including Portland . . . Al O'Keefe, Universal district manager, spent a few days at the Portland branch . . . Herschel Fox, Fox booker, is spending his vacation in town.

The Filmrow grapevine reports E. W. Callahan, Seaside exhibitor, merits congratulations on escaping injury in a collision which damaged the car in which he was returning from a visit to Portland . . . Other out-of-towners in during the week included Denny Hull, North Bend; Oscar Phelps, Hillsboro; Al Adams, Silverton; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Randolph, Cathlamet; A. W. Mattson, Deep River, Wash., and the Kuhns of Lebanon . . . Horace Bristol, Life magazine staff man, flew in from San Francisco to photograph Queen Virginia of the Rose Festival and her attendants.

A burlesque version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will feature the summer carnival of the Portland Civic Theatre, June 21-22, with Jesse Mason, popular athlete, cast as Little Eva, and June Dove Wong, Chinese actress, as Topsy . . . The Portland Philharmonic ended its season under Conductor Leslie Hodge, Tuesday. The annual summer symphony series picks up July 15 in Multnomah stadium with Jacques Gershkovitch wielding the baton . . . Shep Fields replaces Ray Pearl, who ended a three-week engagement at Jantzen Beach.

A Mr. Lyris, accompanying Charlie Skouras on a visit here last week, installed a sumptuous, modernistic, refrigerated candy bar in the Paramount lobby. House employes report it has outsold the automatic vendor it replaced, ten to one. It folds up like a Boy Scout jackknife when not in use. The sales appeal is apparent: A super-attractive display.

Ben B. Thomas, chief engineer at the Paramount, arose one morning last week and said to Mrs. Thomas, "I feel so good this morning it must be my birthday." Later that same morning he was found dead, victim of a vagrant blood clot. Ben was widely known as a veteran steamboat man, and more recently as a building engineer. He was 58. His son, Glenn, fills the vacancy on the Paramount staff.

Teamed on Dunne Vehicle

HOLLYWOOD—"The First Woman Doctor," in which Irene Dunne will play the title role for Columbia, is being whipped into screen form by Tess Slessinger and Frank Davis.

Foote on "Californian"

HOLLYWOOD—John Taintor Foote is scripting "The Californian" for 20th-Fox. The film, based on "The Mark of Zorro," will star Tyrone Power.

Columbia Will Release Sherwood's "Legacy"

HOLLYWOOD—The newly organized Robert E. Sherwood Productions has secured a Columbia release for its first effort, "Legacy," in which Warner Baxter will have the leading role, with Gregory Ratoff directing. Headquarters have been secured on the Columbia lot, with camera work on the Charles Bonner novel scheduled to start about August 10. Sherwood (not the playwright) was a radio writer, narrator and producer before the formation of his film company.

Dario Faralla has signed George O'Brien to a starring contract under which the veteran cowboy actor will appear in six independently-made features to be turned out by Faralla for major release during the 1940-41 season. O'Brien, who recently wound up a long-term association with RKO Radio, will assume the role of the Jack London character, "Smoke Bellew," in the series. Faralla last year produced a series of musicals in Spanish, starring Tito Guizar, for Paramount.

Five From L. A. Will Attend Warner Meet

LOS ANGELES—When Warner holds its regional sales convention in Chicago, June 17-18-19, attending from the local office will be:

W. E. Calloway, branch manager; Henry Herbel, district manager, and T. Charack, James Burden and Jack Holland, salesmen.

DENVER

WITH several over-the-weekend rains and cooler weather, theatres benefited and all first runs were above average . . . Dale Campbell has leased the Gem at Walsenburg, Colo., from Ed Mapel.

Don Neil is operating a portable a day a week at Newcastle and Marble in addition to the Sopris at Carbondale, all in Colorado . . . Ray Graham is operating a 16mm unit at a CCC camp near La Jara, Colo. . . . J. J. Goodstein, owner of the Lincoln, Denver, has returned from a five-week trip east.

The Fox houses in Denver are now using a straight Bank Night, starting with $1,000 and increasing $250 if not won, in nine of their 11 Denver houses. The Hiawatha, a neighborhood, is closed for the summer, while the Broadway, running for the most part carryovers from the Orpheum, an RKO house, also does not participate. The Fox houses have dropped their Ford giveaway, which has been running for years—even before Fox took over the houses from Harry Huffman.

Cliff Adams, manager of the Victory Theatres, is on vacation . . . Manny Goodman of Chicago, representing the Hollywood Advertising Co., spent a few days here . . . Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Allen of the Granada of Ft. Sumner, N. M., were in town booking films and buying supplies.

ager for National Screen Service, is now in Seattle on his current trek around the western territory . . . Marty McCarthy, Monogram salesman, has checked in from one of his periodic selling trips.

Mike Levinson, independent distributor of "White Zombie," made a business jaunt to San Francisco and the northern territory . . . The Mason Opera House, converted into a film theatre, opened June 12 with Roger Rogers as manager . . . Anne Shipp of Goldberg Film Delivery and Jack Mossman have set June 27 as their wedding date. They plan a Lake Tahoe honeymoon.

With Herman Ruben, formerly of National Screen Service's art department, as general manager, United Advertising Displays, Inc., has opened offices at 1824 S. Vermont. It will specialize in lobby service and trailers.

On the Row: Mr. and Mrs. Phil J. Pecharich, Ritz, Jerome, Ariz.; Frank Ullman, who operates the Aztec in Calexico and the Broadway in El Centro; Isaac Victor, Victor, Long Beach . . . Harry Denny, salesman for Majestic, pulled out for San Diego on a business trip.

Winding up a stay here, John Mangham, southern exchange manager for Monogram, and Steve Broidy, who holds the Boston territory franchise for the company, have planed out for New Orleans . . . Funeral services were held for Oliver C. Goldsmith, 57, who had been inspector of theatres for the Los Angeles fire department for 15 years. He is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

The Los Angeles Motion Picture Club is acclaiming its June 11 dinner-dance at the Florentine Gardens a huge success. The party lasted until 3 a. m. . . . Harry Taylor, sales manager for George Alderman's Constance Bennett cosmetics giveaway firm, has checked in from Dallas where he spent the last several weeks setting deals with exhibitors in the Texas territory.

National Theatre Supply Sales in Denver Climb

DENVER—Business at the National Theatre Supply office here is booming, as evidenced by their list of recent sales: Egyptian, Delta, Colo., sound equipment; Denver, Denver, projectors, lamps, screen; Paramount, Denver, projectors, lamps, rectifiers; Aladdin, Denver, projectors and soundheads; Mayan, Denver, lamp houses; Ogden, Denver, lamp; Fox, Sidney, Neb., screen; the foregoing are Fox houses, and all along with the Broadway, Denver, installed new lenses; and Fred Curtis of the Tepee Theatre, Thermopolis, Wyo., bought chrome furniture.

Scripts "Sergeant York"

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Buckner is scripting "The Amazing Story of Sergeant York" for Producer Jesse L. Lasky. Warner will release.

: Pre-Convention Notes :

CHICAGO—Charlie Cooper and Dick Sachsel were having dinner together when a Chicago exhibitor came over to inquire concerning the date of the Allied convention, which is June 19 to 21. Sachsel instead answered: "We've changed the convention dates. Now it's going to be June 21, 20 and 19."

Chicago's Filmrow is to be decorated for the convention. Bunting and flags will grace exchange and accessories buildings from 8th to 14th Streets along Wabash Ave.

They're calling Duke Hickey of National Screen Service, who is publicity chairman of the convention, "Six-Copies' Hickey." It's because he wants six copies of everything for his files.

When Jack Kirsch invited Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago to attend the opening session, the event was recorded in photographs.

Ed Hartley of National Theatre Supply is to be among the many equipment dealer representatives at the convention. Hartley dropped into BOXOFFICE's Chicago offices the other day to let us know that he will be on hand.

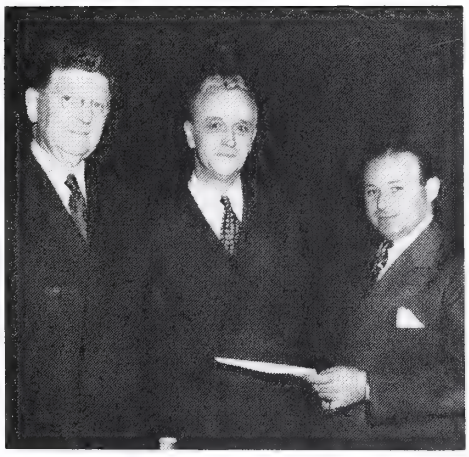
There will be plenty of activities for the wives of delegates.

As usual, BOXOFFICE will carry a complete coverage on the meeting in its June 29 issue, with briefs in the June 22 issue. On page 17 of this issue is the complete program.

The convention hall will be flag-draped, with the emblem of each Allied state unit on the walls.

Delegates' badges will admit them to all loop theatres.

Jack Benny and Jane Withers each bought space in the convention program.



A special "extra" edition of the Chicago Herald-American, published through the courtesy of the newspaper, will be distributed at the annual banquet Friday night. Duke Hickey is in charge of this, and is being assisted by Gene Rich, central editor of BOXOFFICE, who is also a member of the publicity committee.

H. M. Richey, director of exhibitor relations for RKO Pictures, is expected to be here renewing a lot of old acquaintances. He was head of Michigan Allied before going with RKO.

The "old war-horse" of Northwest Allied —Al Steffes—will probably miss his first national Allied convention. The Minneapolis leader is still recuperating from his second recent heart attack.

Among those who had made reservations for the convention as BOXOFFICE went to press were: Ben Shlyen, publisher, BOXOFFICE; William F. Rodgers, sales manager, M-G-M; Jack Schlaifer, eastern sales manager, United Artists; Herman Robbins, George Dembow and Charlie Casanave, National Screen Service, and William Gehring, midwestern division manager, 20th Century-Fox.

The Stage Is Set for Allied's Eleventh Annual Convention

—Candid Illustrators

They'll Be There—

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—All is in readiness for Allied's national convention—it's 11th—opening Wednesday at the Morrison. Several hundred members from the 22 state units are expected to attend the three-day conclave.

Several topics are on the agenda, and among them are:

1. Discussion of higher rental and longer run requests of producers and distributors. This will be the initial convention meeting discussion on the afternoon of June 19, and will be confined to Allied delegates or local members.
2. The two Neely bills, on block booking and theatre divorcement. A report on the progress of both from Allied's standpoint, is expected from Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel.
3. Double features and giveaways.
4. Higher admission prices.
5. Status of New York consent decree discussions.
6. An arbitration plan.

Allied is expected to oppose the repeated demands of distributors that something be done about longer runs to insure greater financial returns to film companies in view of the loss in the foreign market. Practically all Allied leaders have been outspoken against such a plan ever since it was broached some months ago, contending they cannot afford to pay any more for product.

The second afternoon session—Thursday, June 20, will be open to all members and guests. All sessions will be at the Morrison.

15 Chicago Houses Quitting Triples

CHICAGO—The proposed plan of exhibitors on the northwest side to eliminate triple features, announced some time ago in BOXOFFICE, became an actuality this week, when, through the offices of Jack Kirsch, head of Illinois Allied, 15 houses in that section made plans to return from triples to doubles Sunday of this week, June 16.

"This gives us a foothold," said Kirsch. "At least it is a start, and now we hope eventually to get all houses away, first from triples and then from doubles, back to sane single-feature operation."

The theatres changing back to doubles are the Rivoli, Drake, Irving, Milford, Admiral, Metro, North Center, Davis, Bertha, Revue, Lincoln, Commodore, Portage, and two old standbys of lengthy shows, the Bugg and Rosewood. All of these, except the Rosewood, are Allied members.

They also plan to eliminate all 10-cent days.

HOLLYWOOD—Harrison Jacobs is scripting "The Ranger and the Lady" for Republic.

Latest War Flashes for Allied Conventioneers

CHICAGO—United Artists will offer Allied conventioneers, here for their annual confab at the Morrison next week, the latest war news "hot off the wire."

A United Press teletype machine is being placed next to the convention room and will be in daily operation through a tieup between the UP and United Artists on "Foreign Correspondent," the Walter Wanger production starring Joel McCrea.

Equipment Men Expected At Allied Convention

CHICAGO—Numerous equipment and supply dealers are expected here for the national Allied convention as part of the equipment show being held in connection with the confab at the Morrison Hotel. About 85 per cent of all of the booth space had been contracted for this week.

Head ITO Delegation

INDIANAPOLIS—Roy E. Harrold, president; Ernest L. Miller, vice-president; Don R. Rossiter, executive secretary; Harry Markun, treasurer, and Oscar Kuschner, will head the delegation of ATOI to the national Allied convention in Chicago.

Racketeering and Conspiracy Charges Hit Nick, Weston

ST. LOUIS—John P. Nick, former IATSE vice-president, and Clyde A. Weston, ousted business agent of St. Louis Local No. 143, have been indicted under the federal anti-racketeering act and on charges of conspiracy to violate the Sherman anti-trust act. Eleven counts of the indictment allege violation of the anti-racketeering law and one count charges violation of anti-trust law. Federal Judge Charles B. Davis fixed bond at $15,000 for each defendant.

This is the first time the federal government has invoked the anti-rackeetering act here. Conviction carries punishment of one to ten years imprisonment or a fine of $10,000, or both. Anti-trust law punishment is a prison term up to one year and a fine of $5,000, or both. The charges grew out of their management of the affairs of No. 143 for several years and alleged demands on theatre owners, including $2,000 they are charged with compelling the St. Louis Amusement Co. and Fanchon & Marco Service Corp. to pay in November, 1937, before they could open the Orpheum, and also a payment of $6,500 allegedly made November 24, 1937, by certain independent theatre owners when a new wage agreement for operators was up for consideration. Also that they organized the Co-operative Sound Service Supply Co. in September, 1936, and compelled exhibitors to pay this concern for the care and repairing of sound equipment, and ordered only sound engineers approved by them could be permitted in theatre projection booths.

Most of the allegations contained in the 57-page indictment are familiar because of the state extortion charges against the defendants. In one of these cases still pending, Nick and Weston are charged with extorting $6,500 from theatre owners in 1937. On January 11, last, Nick was acquitted on a charge of conspiring to extort $10,000 from theatre men in 1936. The companion charges against State Representative Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady was nolle prossed early in March at the suggestion of Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe. A new element is the allegation that Nick and Weston obtained the $2,000 from the Fanchon & Marco and St. Louis Amusement companies.

In setting out the allegations of violation of the anti-racketeering act, the indictment charges that Nick and Weston:

(1) In November, 1937, compelled the St. Louis Amusement Co. and the Fanchon & Marco Service Corp. to pay them $2,000 before the companies were able to open the Orpheum Theatre. The indictment declares that Nick and Weston "demanded that the Orpheum employ operators at rates above those charged for theatres of the same rating and classification, and also demanded that the Orpheum employ five stage hands who were not needed at salaries of $75 a week each." Those demands were made, the indictment recites, to compel payment of the $2,000.

(2) Used "their position of control (of Local 143) for the purpose of coercing exhibitors (theatre owners) to pay money to the defendants for their personal use" and "intimidated exhibitors by threats of physical injury, violence and the use of force." They also "surrounded themselves and the headquarters of Local No. 143 with men of known bad character and reputation, of violent and vicious disposition and of known long criminal records for the purpose of creating in the minds of exhibitors a feeling of fear," it is charged further.

Coercion Is Charged

(3) Made "excessive, arbitrary, unreasonable, ruinous and bogus demands for wage increases of operators employed by exhibitors, knowing if such demands were met many exhibitors would be forced to close their theatres." Such demands were made, the indictment alleges, for the "purpose of coercing exhibitors" into paying Nick and Weston money.

(4) Threatened to call strikes to force exhibitors to pay "the defendants money for their personal use and profit."

(5) Seized control of unions representing all persons (other than operators) working in theatres, thus obtaining control of all persons having to do with the distribution and handling of films.

(6) Forced exhibitors to employ unneeded stagehands "not with the purpose of serving a legitimate labor objective but for the purpose of coercing the exhibitors."

(7) On November 24, 1937, obtained the payment of $6,500 from independent exhibitors after negotiations over "arbitrary, ruinous and bogus demands for wage increases." Nick and Weston have been indicted in circuit court on charges of extortion in connection with this alleged payoff. Nick also was indicted in circuit court on a charge of extorting $10,000 from theatre owners in 1936 but was freed by a directed verdict ordered by Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe.

On Sound Service

(8) Organized the Co-Operative Sound Service Supply Co. in September, 1936, and compelled exhibitors to pay Co-Operative Sound for the care and repairing of sound equipment in theatres. Nick and Weston, the indictment recites, "were financially interested in Co-Operative Sound Service" and received a share of its profits.

(9) Ordered that only engineers "approved by them should be permitted in projection booths of theatres" to repair sound equipment. The only engineers "approved by the defendants were the engineers employed by Co-Operative Sound," the indictment says.

It is further charged that exhibitors seeking to open new theatres were not able to do so unless they used the services of Co-Operative Sound.

The count of the indictment charging conspiracy to violate the anti-trust law declares that Nick and Weston conspired to place "unreasonable restraints" on interstate commerce in films by trying to control the shipment, lease, distribution and exhibition of films in the St. Louis area.

Claim Other Demands

To accomplish their purposes, it is set forth, they imposed upon "the exhibitors of film the unreasonable requirement that they could engage (in business) only at the will of the defendants and upon the condition that they pay" Nick and Weston to prevent labor difficulties and the calling of strikes.

Nick and Weston, it is charged, sought to coerce exhibitors into closing theatres having a small seating capacity "in order that the public would be required to attend larger theatres charging higher admission prices."

They also sought, it is further charged, to compel exhibitors to sell their theatres at prices below their true value.

The indictment was returned following an investigation of the activities of Nick and Weston by the anti-trust division of the department of justice. Investigators were under the direction of Roscoe T. Steffen, special assistant to the attorney general.

"Putty Nose" Brady Files Notice for Re-Election

ST. LOUIS—Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady, state representative from the fourth district for three consecutive two-year terms, has filed notice at Jefferson City that he is a candidate for re-election subject to the Democratic primary of August 6.

Brady was indicted jointly with John P. Nick, former vice-president of the IATSE, on a charge of conspiracy to extort $10,000 from theatre owners in the fall of 1936, about the time that a new wage contract with the projectionists was up for consideration. The case against Brady was nolle prossed at the suggestion of Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe, because the state's evidence was substantially the same as that against Nick, who was cleared of the charge January 11, last, when Judge Rowe sustained a defense demurrer.

Argue Post-Dispatch Case in October

ST. LOUIS—The Post-Dispatch contempt of court case, now before the Missouri supreme court on appeal from the punishments inflicted by Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe of St. Louis, will come before the high court en banc for arguments the week of October 14, probably on that day.

The cases before the court are the habeas corpus proceedings on behalf of Ralph Coghlan, editor of the editorial page, who was fined $200 and sentenced to serve 20 days in jail, and Daniel R. Fitzpatrick, cartoonist, given 10 days in jail and fined $100.

Judge Rowe objected to two editorials and a cartoon commenting on the outcome of the cases against John P. Nick, former first international vice-president of the IATSE and State Representative Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady, who were accused of conspiring to extort $10,000 from theatre owners in 1936 when a new contract with the projectionists was being considered. Nick was freed on a defense demurrer, while the case against Brady was nolle prossed by Circuit Attorney Franklin E. Miller on Judge Rowe's suggestion.

The Pulitzer Publishing Co., publishers of the paper, was fined $2,000. Its appeal is in the form of certiorari proceedings and also comes up at the same time before the high court.

Civil Liberties Union Into Press Contempt Proceedings

JEFFERSON CITY — The American Civil Liberties Union has been granted leave by the Missouri supreme court en banc to file a brief in the contempt of court proceedings against the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and two of the editorial employes of that paper. Leave was given in each of the three cases, which will come up for arguments the week of October 14. Previously the high court had granted the Missouri Press Ass'n, representing some 300 newspapers throughout the state, leave to intervene in the cases, which grew out of the publication by the Post-Dispatch of two editorials and a cartoon relating to the extortion cases against John P. Nick, former international vice-president of the IATSE and State Representative Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady. Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe of St. Louis fined the paper $2,000, fined Ralph Coghlan, editor of the editorial page, $200 and sentenced him to 20 days in jail, and fined Daniel R. Fitzpatrick, cartoonist, $100 and sentenced him to ten days in jail.

Green Tells AFM of Duce's "Treachery"

INDIANAPOLIS—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, a surprise speaker at the opening day's session of the 45th annual convention of the American Federation of Musicians, flayed dictators in government or in labor organizations and branded Italy's entrance into the European war on the side of Germany as "a most cowardly, treacherous stab in the back."

He pledged labor's support in the government's rearmament program and was cheered as he said that "no foreign foe can enter America any time or any place."

"The American workers represented by the American Federation of Labor are willing to give the United States government a full measure of cooperation and support in the development of our preparedness program," he said.

"We are willing to go the limit to give all we can short of actual war and demand that the government of the United States send all the supplies to the Allies that they need, even on credit. Even if the supplies are shipped without compensation, it must be done, for the cause of democracy has reached a point of desperation.

"America's sympathy goes out to our Canadian members. If Britain is compelled to yield to force for the first time in her history and her government is compelled to take up abode in Canada and take its fleet with it, the government of this country will be in war on the side of Canada."

Faith in Allies

With reference to Italy's entrance into the war, he said:

"I shudder to think what it all means —this reprehensible dirty blow struck by Mussolini—a cowardly, treacherous stab in the back. It means that democracy is at stake—and no one can foresee the future. I have faith, however, and believe that the Allies will win."

He spoke of the part Canada is playing in the war and asked that the "Canadian brothers be given all the support possible." The Federation includes Canadian unions.

He further said, "The contest is and will continue to be between dictator and the rule of the people, and we must fight all the 'isms' which tend to break down democracy. We only know and love one 'ism'—Americanism."

Green paid high tribute to Joseph N. Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians since it was organized 45 years ago and who was present.

The convention adopted a resolution dealing with suppression of subversive activities. It pledged the Federation's allegiance to the American flag and to the United States government, and asked that the United States "continue its service of purging from American life all subversive and treacherous 'isms' and that to that end the congress do all in its power to enact such legislation as is necessary to make it unlawful for parties with subversive inclinations to be voted for or recognized at the polls or otherwise."

A resolution was also adopted that "small bands or orchestras of four or less men be compelled to establish a 90-day residence in any jurisdiction they may enter before being allowed to accept a steady engagement unless permission is granted by the local they so enter."

The Federation of Musicians was founded in Indianapolis 45 years ago. Abe Hammerschlag, secretary of Local No. 3, hosted the session which was held in the Indiana ballroom where approximately 500 were in attendance.

Operators May Go Into Small Towns

Chicago — It is understood here that plans are under way by the operators' union to organize all smaller towns in the middle and southern part of Illinois. Many of these towns, which have only one theatre, have independent operators, and the union is planning, it is said, to coordinate these men and organize separate locals or affiliate these individual members with nearby locals already in existence.

Chicago Exhibitors Figure on How to Overcome Heat Wave

CHICAGO—With the first real summer heat wave only about a week old, exhibitors already are complaining over "the bottom dropping out of the boxoffice." And the last two Mondays, following unusually quiet patronage, especially in the neighborhood theatres, found every exhibitor trying to figure out his own private panacea for the trouble.

It appears there will be no general attempt at a price cut in the suburban houses. There may be an occasional drop or "bargain days" offered, such as at the Essaness Davis, but on the whole exhibitors seem to be prone to stick to their scales.

"I certainly don't believe that we will have to cut admission prices," Jack Kirsch, president of Illinois Allied, told BOXOFFICE. "When prices once are cut, even in the summer, it takes a lot longer to get patrons accustomed to a return to the old higher price later on."

Meanwhile, with big pictures promised from all the companies, B&K plans to keep open all of its loop houses this summer. The United Artists, which closed last summer for lack of product, is definitely scheduled to remain open, according to Walter Immerman, general manager. However, releases for the suburban first-week and similar-run houses, which come to them ten weeks or more after the loop, do not look exceptionally well for the next few months. This may result in the usual summer closings of some theatres.

Exhibitors are again going to try to obtain rental reductions from the exchanges during the summer. Similar efforts will be made to have the operators' union cooperate with salary reductions. This was accomplished last year through the efforts of Allied and the willingness of all to cooperate.

Discourages Asking for Convention Entertainers

CHICAGO—The Chicago chapter of Theatre Authority, headed by Max Halperin, has sent a letter to Jack Kirsch, president of Allied of Illinois, suggesting that the organization not request the use of any stage or vaudeville stars gratis for the national convention banquet.

TA is the national organization which passes upon all benefit performances of its members, which include practically every act. Any bonafide benefits are okayed, with the understanding that TA receive a percentage for its relief fund.

For that reason, there will be no entertainment at the banquet, except dance music provided by an outstanding local orchestra, Ray O'Hara and his band. However, there will be plenty of entertainment for delegates when they go to the Colony Club and Chez Paree for dinner parties. Harry Richman is the headliner at the Chez Paree.

B&K and Employes Give $2,767 to Red Cross

CHICAGO—B&K and employes contributed $2,767 toward the amusement division's $10,000 quota for the Red Cross war fund in Chicago. The industry's quota has already been passed, but the Red Cross, according to James B. Forgan, chairman of the drive here, has received word of an ever-growing need among refugees and wounded soldiers.

Chicago's quota of $1,000,000 has passed the half-way mark, Forgan said.

Wire News Service Takes in Chicago

CHICAGO—Within a month, Transradio News Service is expected to be servicing 25 theatres in greater Chicago with its wire service, according to Milton Fishman, midwest news editor of the service.

Already the idea has spread from the Telenews to the Garrick and the Rialto. At all three houses patrons seem exceptionally interested as they stop to watch the war and other news coming in over the teletype machines.

Teletype Service Begun By the B&K Garrick

CHICAGO—Second loop theatre to install Transradio teletype service is the B&K Garrick. The other is the Telenews, newsreel house. The teletype machine at the Garrick, however, is placed in the outer lobby near the ticket office to attract passersby, while at the Telenews the machine is inside the theatre.

Latest bulletins are being placed on a bulletin board in front of the Garrick, too, similar to the Telenews.

Hearing on Contempt Findings June 17

CHICAGO—Judge Edgar Eldredge, special master in chancery, sitting in the government contempt case here, has set next Monday, June 17, as the opening date for hearing on exceptions to his recent findings in the case.

Eldredge recently ruled that B&K, Paramount, and Barney Balaban should be found guilty of violating Section X of the 1932 consent decree between the government and B&K and major companies except Columbia.

Exceptions have already been filed by the defendant attorneys, and these will be elaborated upon when the hearings open next Monday.

New State in Logansport, Seating 1,200, Opens

LOGANSPORT, IND.—The State Theatre was opened here June 8 by Alliance Theatre Corp. of Chicago. The new house seats approximately 1,200 and will be operated as one of the town's "A" first runs. The Roxy, formerly a first run, will go to second run and the Paramount will remain a second run.

Herb Sullivan, manager of the Roxy and Paramount theatres, will also manage the State.

Much publicity was given to the opening, 500 window cards being distributed within a radius of 30 miles of the theatre announcing it. Many representatives from Indianapolis' Filmrow were in attendance at the opening, which preceded a dinner given by Alliance officials.

A Rumor Grows and Is Put To Rest in Windy City

CHICAGO—This is the story of how a rumor starts.

Gossip along the Windy City Filmrow the other day was that "Hollander is going to New York with Paramount." It didn't take long for the wiseacres to expand this to "Bill Hollander is going to New York as head of Paramount's publicity department."

But the rumor blew higher than a kite when John Balaban and Hollander, B&K's publicity chieftain, checked it themselves with this bit of information: "Yes, Hollander is going to New York with Paramount, but it happens to be young Marshall, son of Bill, who is getting a summer job with the company before going back to an eastern college to finish his final university year."

Work Starting July 15 On Benny-Allen Film

CHICAGO—Fred Allen, shortly before boarding the Santa Fe Super Chief to the coast, said this week that work on his forthcoming film at Paramount with Jack Benny is set to start July 15. The picture is tentatively titled "Love Thy Neighbor."

Civil Liberties Group Fights Ban on "Life"

CHICAGO—The Chicago Civil Liberties Committee has again taken up the cudgel for the motion picture industry against film censorship in Chicago.

This time it's on the ban of Pare Lorentz's "The Fight for Life," being distributed by Columbia. The committee, headed by Ira Latimer, feels the film should be given an adult permit, while the Chicago film censor board, headed by Lieut. Harry Costello, has banned the picture for all but educational showings.

Costello said the censor board believed the picture was not fit for the general public because it portrays pregnancy and childbirth. The board of five voted unanimously to ban the film. Reminded that the film is in its third month at the Belmont in New York, Costello remarked that "we have different standards here; people here don't like to see things like that."

Many Spots Would Show "Knute Rockne" First

CHICAGO—Warner's "The Life of Knute Rockne" isn't finished yet, but there certainly is a lot of competition among various spots in the country to world premiere the film.

The logical spot, South Bend, has its Chamber of Commerce working overtime trying to influence S. Charles Einfeld, Warner publicity director, to hold the premiere there on October 5, the day Notre Dame plays the College of the Pacific. Alonzo Stagg, who coached at the University of Chicago for years, is now the College of Pacific coach and is also in the Rockne film. He would participate in the festivities, should the premiere be in South Bend.

Likewise, however, Chicago's Mayor Edward J. Kelly wants the premiere here and is enlisting the aid of Pat O'Brien and Gale Page, who play Knute and Mrs. Rockne in the film.

Racine Theatre Is Sued For $900 Cash Award

RACINE—A suit charging that Warner's Venetian failed to pay a $900 "Treasure Chest" award has been started by Frank La Boda, localite. Named in the action are Eli Arkin, manager, and Jack Keegan, Milwaukee, district manager for the Warner chain.

Leonard Baumblatt, attorney for La Boda, said that La Boda had registered at the theatre for its weekly award; that La Boda's name was called as winner on May 18, and that the manager announced La Boda was to receive $900.

Baumblatt said the theatre had agreed to pay the $900 by May 31 but failed to do so.

Rites for Lou Levine

CHICAGO—Final rites for Lou Levine, 55, who died last week at his home here, were held locally. He was a former co-owner of the Public.

Organize UTOI on Permanent Basis

PEORIA, ILL.—Plans for placing the United Theatre Owners of Illinois on a permanent basis will be completed at a meeting of the organization Thursday, June 27, at the Pere-Marquette Hotel here, according to an announcement by Edward Zorn, Pontiac exhibitor and one of the leaders in the organization. Many downstate exhibitor leaders are expected to attend.

The UTOI was organized last year with its prime purpose to combat legislation against the industry. After successfully working against several such proposed measures, it has been marking time.

"We plan to have a permanent organization," Zorn told BOXOFFICE this week. "This will be a unique exhibitor group in which there will be no cliques at sword's points with each other. Both major circuit and independent theatre owners will be organized together for one purpose—to combat legislation hurtful to the film industry.

"We will leave such matters as clearance, protection, buying, etc., to other groups," Zorn said. He emphasized that the UTOI has no affiliation with either MPTOA or Allied.

Among those who were at the original organization meeting last year were E. E. Alger, Alger circuit, LaSalle; Fred Anderson, Anderson circuit, Morris; H. U. Bailey and Sam Traynor, Bailey circuit, Princeton; A. L. Hainline, Macomb; Jules Rubens, Great States; A. B. McCollum, McCollum circuit, Hoopeston; A. Marchesi, Marchesi circuit, Amboy; George Kerasotes, Kerasotes circuit, Springfield; Steve Bennis, Lincoln; T. B. Shaver, Henry, and Joe Burke, Batavia.

Warner Theatres Chicago Zone Drives Toward Top

CHICAGO—Managers in the Chicago zone of Warner theatres are putting on a spirited drive to end up in first place in the current quarter of the circuit's annual drive.

Charles Ryan, assistant zone manager, and District Managers Harry Turrell, Herb Wheeler and L. S. Stein are sending regular bulletins to the managers.

One of the best recent suggestions came from Stein, who is also zone publicity director. He advised the men against "Fifth Columnists" in their theatres and defined "Theatre Fifth Columnism" as:

"Slovenliness on the part of theatre employes; sluggishness in service rendered to patrons; and an attitude of defeatism toward the boxoffice possibilities of the attractions the theatre is showing."

Learn Convention Duties

CHICAGO—The Allied of Illinois board of directors met this week to make final plans for the forthcoming national convention. All committee members were acquainted with their duties.

CHICAGO

CHARLIE DAVIDSON of B&K's booking staff passes on to us the following double-feature combination being used in some of the circuit's subsequent runs: "Babies for Sale," "Opened by Mistake."

Fred Bartow, Warner exploiteer, has been a busy man the last several days working on local arrangements for the Warner western division convention opening at the Blackstone Monday.

Joe Berenson is now general manager of the Amusement Club of Chicago at the Stevens Hotel . . . Clyde Winans of the Palace, Gary, Ind., one of V. U. Young's theatres, was on the Row . . . Mrs. Saul Goldman, wife of the head of Variety Pictures, was a patient in Wesley Hospital.

Max Mazur, now with Columbia as a salesman in Minneapolis, took time off during the recent convention at the Blackstone to drop around and say hello to many of his Windy City friends. Max used to work in Chicago.

Herb Chatkin has been appointed manager of the promotion department of Filmack Trailer Co. He formerly was manager of several Chicago theatres and has also been connected with National Screen Service.

The Filmrow all-star team won its second game in the Trans-Loop Softball League last week, walloping the International Business Machines, 26 to 4, with Jack Freedman pitching. Incidentally, Freedman is understood planning to open a 16mm exchange on Filmrow shortly.

Duke Hickey, publicity director of National Screen Service and Advertising Accessories, was called to Minneapolis suddenly this week by the serious illness of his mother.

Saul Meltzer came into Al Simon's restaurant the other day and asked a waitress for a "blitzkrieg sandwich." In answer to her question as to what he meant, Saul said: "I mean in a hurry."

Nate Gross, popular Chicago Herald-American feature writer, is now conducting a daily column, "Town Tattler," including many film items.

Roy Bruder was guest of honor at a party given him by B&K executives and employes at the Blackstone shortly before he left to open his new venture. Bruder, who resigned as manager of the Chicago, is opening a bowling alley in East St. Louis late this month.

The Bookers' Club executive committee was to meet this week to make plans for its first annual picnic.

New officers of the 20th Century-Fox Employes Club are: Selma Hackman, president; Arnold Monnette, vice-president; Max Bonior, treasurer; Bill Hallwachs, sergeant-at-arms, and Mable Carpenter and Jack Eckhardt, co-social chairman. Eckhardt is also acting as publicity chairman. The club's annual picnic will be held in August.

Jack Kirsch recently received a doubles handball trophy for winning the class A tournament at the Covenant Club.

There is a possibility RKO may world premiere "Anne of Windy Poplars" here at the Oriental after the house finishes currently with "My Favorite Wife."

Bob Snyder is now handling three Robert Donat pictures—"If I Were Rich," "Overnight" and "Men of Tomorrow"—for Hoffberg Pictures.

Bill Potts of M-G-M stopped us in the middle of Randolph Street at State to tell us this startling news: Vivien Leigh is the first lady of Randolph Street this week, playing in three pictures—in "GWTW," still at the Woods after five months (that's the Metro plug), in "21 Days Together," at the Oriental, and in "Waterloo Bridge" with Robert Taylor, at the United Artists (that's the rest of the Metro plug).

The Film Relief Fund was enriched by $173.80, turned over from the recent Tippy Harrison testimonial dinner.

Two theatres announced already for summer closing are the Crane, operated by Schoenstadt circuit, and the Hillside, operated by M. Goldberg.

Fred Anderson, head of the Anderson circuit, Morris, Ill., made one of his infrequent Filmrow visits.

Hugh Herbert, in town the other day, was observed by Herald-American Columnist Nate Gross taking a gander at a $400 panama hat. But, he bought a $30 one.

CHICAGO—Chicago territory exhibitors turned out in full force for the Columbia Pictures western division convention annual beefsteak party at the Blackstone Hotel. These pictures show the get-together cocktail party before the dinner. Reading in the usual left to right, top row: John Balaban, B&K, chatting with Jack Cohn, Columbia vice-president, while Bill Hollander, B&K publicity director, looks on, and Nate Platt, B&K district manager, lends an ear to one of the Columbia boys. In the second group are Eddie Alperson, Fox-Wisconsin, in the rear, with Phil Dunas, Chicago district manager for Columbia, Oscar J. Ruby, Milwaukee branch manager, and Harold Fitzgerald, Fox-Wisconsin general manager, chatting in the foreground. And next is Abe Montague, Columbia sales head, discussing matters with Jack Kirsch, Allied of Illinois president, while in the center background is Columbia Chicago Salesman Frank Flaherty.

In the bottom strip, the first group is: Al Raymer, Indiana-Illinois booker; Roland Viner, booker, Anderson circuit; Max Weisfeldt, Columbia short subjects manager; Sam Traynor, general manager of the Bailey Circuit, Princeton; Jack Rose, Indiana-Illinois Theatres; Julius Goodman, Goodman-Harrison circuit, and Benny Lasker. Sitting in the corner in the second group are Joe Weiss, G-C-S circuit; Munn Delano, Columbia Chicago office manager; Ed Mager, Allied Theatres booker; Jim Booth, Essaness Theatres booker, and Lou Reinheimer. And in the last group are Dave and John Balaban, Jack Cohn, and Morrie Leonard.

A Degree by Ripon To Spencer Tracy

RIPON, WIS.—This college town of 4,000 went collegiate in a big way this week when an old alumnus of Ripon College returned to receive the highest honor his alma mater could give him—an honorary degree.

The alumnus was Spencer Tracy. The honor was an honorary doctor of dramatic arts degree. Of course, "Spence," as everyone about the town called the M-G-M star upon his return here, was not exactly an alumnus, having gone to Ripon College only two years, but they didn't quibble over such matters.

Between 8,000 and 10,000 persons poured into town for the various activities, which included Tracy's attendance at the baccalaureate services in the college chapel; the awarding of his degree on the college campus before 6,000 persons; and personal appearances by the star at the Campus and Ripon, which were packed to capacity.

The town square was decorated for the event, for which the city council appropriated $350. When Tracy first arrived in Milwaukee, he was greeted with a huge electric sign, "Welcome Home, Spencer Tracy," atop the city hall, the first time such a sign has been placed there. This was done through the cooperation of Milwaukee's Mayor Carl E. Zeidler.

Besides being awarded a doctor's degree, Tracy was commissioned by Wisconsin Gov. Julius P. Heil a colonel on his personal staff. Amid the day's events, Tracy received a telegram from Clark Gable, addressed to "Doctor" Spencer Tracy, and reading: "I have been taking your medicine for a year and still feel lousy. What do I do now?"

Jack Leib, News of the Day cameraman in Chicago, photographed the event. Others here were Frank Whitbeck of M-G-M's studio publicity department, who handled the details; Bill Bishop, Chicago, and Louis Orlove, Milwaukee, M-G-M exploiteers; and Carroll Tracy, brother and business manager of the star.

Incidentally, the two Marcus theatres opened, at $1.10 top, Tracy's latest picture, "Edison, the Man," the same day the M-G-M star received his degree.—Gene Rich.

Monroe County Imposes Big Fee on Carnivals

BLOOMINGTON, IND.—Following a ruling by the Monroe county board of commissioners, hereafter carnivals playing in Monroe county will have to pay a license fee of $5.00 a day for each show, ride and concession. This will cost the average carnival from $500 to $600 to play a week in Monroe county, outside the city limits of Bloomington.

The move was initiated by a committee representing local churches, business men and theatres. Art Clark, manager of the Indiana Theatre, and Ray Howard, manager of the Princess and Harris-Grand theatres, were members of the committee.

Catholic Editor Admits Authorship of Code

ST. LOUIS—Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S.J., editor of The Queen's Work, a National Catholic Sodality publication, in answer to critics of the film production code, has admitted its authorship. This disclosure is contained in a pamphlet written by Father Lord, titled "What Is Decent Literature?" in which he takes issue with George Seldes' recent book, "The Catholic Crisis," and with an article in Time, national weekly newsmagazine, which ridiculed the code.

Father Lord states that he wrote the code at the request of the industry. It forbids pictures to show sympathy for crime and villainy or to present explicit methods of murder, scenes exciting to lusts, attacks on marriage as an institution, insults to our flag and country, obscenity, perversions, the dope traffic, etc.

The priest-author's pamphlet concludes: "Well, I prefer my idea of fun—and decency—to that of the Time reviewer," to whom he referred earlier as a "smart alec." In its review of Jan. 29, 1940, Time referred to the "immortally funny" motion picture code, and to its author as an "anthropologically fascinating person."

Advertising Attention To "The Flag Speaks"

MILWAUKEE—"The Flag Speaks" has been receiving special attention in various Wisconsin cities. Locally, Harry McDonald used car cards and other promotional methods to plug the picture and the Milwaukee Journal paid tribute to it in an editorial as being "a timely film" and one that "conveys a healthy mental attitude that is much needed now."

At Oshkosh, in connection with the observance of Flag Week, a program was conducted at the Strand June 7 with Mayor George F. Oaks as speaker. The short was shown at the theatre all during the week and Mayor Oaks, in a proclamation, urgently requested "all loyal citizens in this area to set aside a period during Flag Week to view this picture."

Elisburg Quits Essaness; To Operate Loop House

CHICAGO—Herb Elisburg has resigned as district manager for Essaness Theatres and is understood dickering for a loop theatre. As BOXOFFICE went to press, the deal had not been signed, but Elisburg said his plans call for the reopening of the house under his management about July 1.

Open Ind. Drive-In

INDIANAPOLIS—The new Drive-In Theatre located on State Road 67 just a few miles north of here was opened last Thursday night after several weeks delay. Several officials of the company were in town from Detroit for the opening. "Shorty" Phillips is manager.

Suggests Singling Of Ace Pictures

ST. LOUIS—Single featuring of outstanding pictures as a step toward gradually eliminating dual and triple bill programs here, is suggested by Fred Wehrenberg, circuit operator, who at the same time announces his string of houses will play "Rebecca" alone and fill out the program with selected short subjects.

Wehrenberg believes that if local first run houses would get together on a plan to eliminate, or at least sharply reduce, dual programs, subsequent run houses would follow suit.

Recently, Wehrenberg, who is president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, has been showered with letters from prominent organizations affiliated with the Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis protesting the triple-feature programs that still prevail in some local theatres. Many mothers complain that these lengthy bills keep their children away from home too late at night and many do not permit their children to attend theatres showing triple bills. Protests have also been sent to managers and owners of affected theatres. Some clergymen have made triple film bills the subject of sermons in which they voiced their opposition.

Harvey D. Orr, 75, Dies In Indianapolis Hospital

SPEEDWAY CITY, IND.—Harvey D. Orr, 75, owner and operator of the Speedway here, died June 8 in Methodist Hospital, Indianapolis, after an illness of several years.

Orr, born in Wooster, Ohio, came to Indianapolis 13 years ago when he opened the Daisy Theatre. He opened the new Speedway three years ago and managed it personally until several weeks ago when his illness became serious.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Nelle Orr; a son, Harold S. Orr, manager of a Rocky Mount, N. C., theatre, and a grandson, J. Robert Orr of Rocky Mount. Also a nephew, Cal Howenstein of Indianapolis.

Burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery, Chicago.

Deny Move to Unionize Candy Counter Girls

CHICAGO—Numerous circuit and independent exhibitors have said that they have not been asked to sign up with the Retail Clerks' Union, AFL, to unionize their candy counter girls. Reports are that the union is seeking demands of $18.50 weekly for men; $16.50 for women, with $3.00 per day, and 55 cents per hour with a four-hour consecutive minimum, for extra workers. Exhibitors have contended that such a plan would drain all profit from candy counters and would result in more widespread use of slot machines.

Hear of Combine On Solo Basis

Minneapolis — With Northwest Allied considering the organization of a film buying body, word reached here this week that such an undertaking has been launched by an individual, a former film salesman, independent of any exhibitors' body. A number of exhibitors reported that they have been approached by the individual in question. The extent of his success is not yet known.

Ashe Insists Buying Strike Effective

MINNEAPOLIS — While distributors here assert selling is progressing normally, Ben Ashe, Northwest Allied secretary, claims that independents generally throughout the territory are holding off entirely, refusing to meet the exchanges' price demands.

An appeal has been made by Northwest Allied to all the independents to refuse to buy unless the distributors slash their prices from 25 to 33 1/3 per cent and eliminate percentages. The exhibitors have been promised that, "if necessary," Northwest Allied will form a film buying group.

"This is the tightest unorganized film buying strike in recent Northwest Allied history," Ashe insists.

Ashe Heads Contingent To Allied's Convention

MINNEAPOLIS—Secretary Ben Ashe of Northwest Allied, as accredited delegate from this territory, will head a party of at least 25 Northwest exhibitors attending the national Allied convention in Chicago, June 19-21.

The local delegation, among other things, will ask the national organization to take a stand for "unqualified and unconditional 20 to 30 per cent cancellation privilege in all film contracts" and for "a designation in such contracts of pictures being sold with some degree of certainty."

Among the exhibitors who already have announced their intention to attend the national convention are A. A. Kaplan, Sidney Volk, Max Torodor, Harry Dickerman, Charlie Rubenstein, Dave Gillman, Paul Mans, Nate Fisher, Don O'Reilly, Clyde Cutter and Bennie Berger, Minneapolis; George Granstrom, St. Paul; John Piller, Valley City, N. D., and John Piller, Valley City, N. D.

It is planned to have the party leave here in a special car on the night of June 18.

J. Mealy Dead

MONTICELLO, MINN.—J. Mealy, owner of the Lincoln here, is dead at 82. He was the oldest active exhibitor in the territory.

Allied Buying Combine Due For Northwest Decision

Anti-Ascap Measure High Court Bound

LINCOLN—Made absolute this week by Attorney General Walter Johnson were the long-nebulous possibilities that Nebraska's anti-Ascap law, buffeted by adverse decision in the lower U. S. district court, would materialize, and filing of appeal to the supreme court will be made within a week.

Johnson's staff, John Ridell, and the special defender, William Hotz, Omaha attorney, have been working for some time assembling the case for review before the high body, and although admittedly problematical that it would go up until last week, it now is assured.

Johnson is placed in an unusual light in this case, having been a member, not voting, of the legislature which passed the measure in 1937. He said at the time he did not feel it was constitutional, yet, elected the next year as the attorney general, it fell to him to defend the measure in the litigation which ensued as Ascap legal lights filed suit in the name of Gene Buck to test the legislation.

However, it is Johnson's contention, and his department's, that the legislative intent was to break the monopoly practices of Ascap's business tactics. His department does not hold with the court ruling that they were seeking to loot the property rights of music copyright owners. The court said that each was so inter-locked with the other in the bill, it was made ambiguous to the point that the court believed the solons would not have okayed one portion, without the other. Thus, it was called "in-operative."

Johnson, in taking the case up, hardly looks for the supreme court to reverse the opinion of the lower court, although he sees a good deal of similarity in this case and their recent findings in the case of patents of Ethyl gas. He expects, at least, that the supreme bench ruling will provide a basis on which future legislation can be built and stay within the constitution.

Nebraska Broadcasters Aid Fight Against Ascap

LINCOLN—Some of the money which has been feeding the anti-Ascap war chest here, to insure the carrying of the test case to the U. S. supreme court, is coming from the Nebraska Broadcasters association. In their annual meeting last week, the NBA voted to aid the scrap financially, which will start with the filing of an appeal from the recent federal court adverse decision.

Ascap triumphed in U. S. district court, when the three judges who heard the arguments, decided the Nebraska law was in-operative.

W. I. LeBarron, of KGNF in North Platte, Neb., is the new NBA president, with other officers being L. L. Hilliard, of KGKY, Scottsbluff, vice-president; Art Thomas, WJAG, Norfolk, Neb., secretary-treasurer; with two Omahans, Johnny Gillin, WOW, and Vernon Smith, KOWH, on the board of directors.

MINNEAPOLIS—A decision as to whether Northwest Allied will launch a buyers' organization in a move to force down film rentals from 25 to 33 1/3% and to eliminate percentages will be reached when the association holds a convention here July 10 and 11, it was announced by Ben Ashe, secretary.

At the same time Northwest Allied will choose a president and an executive secretary to take the helm and supervise all activities, the illness of President W. A. Steffes making it necessary for him to retire.

The body's directors, meeting here this week, decided on the convention dates. A special committee will decide on a recommendation for executive secretary to be acted on by the entire organization at the convention. It is indicated that the choice has narrowed down to Ben Ashe, who, if selected, would resign as general manager of the Bennie Berger circuit and dispose of his theatre holding, and Charlie Weiner, who, until recently, has been local Monogram part owner and branch manager.

E. L. Peaslee, Stillwater, Minn., exhibitor, now vice-president, is expected to be elected to the presidency.

All of the territory's independents, regardless of whether or not they are Northwest Allied members, will be invited to the convention and asked to participate in a fight against percentages and for lower film rentals. The convention is set for the day before the Twin City Variety Club golf tournament and all those attending will be invited to the meet, Ashe said.

Charles Skouras Confers With Fox Midwest Heads

KANSAS CITY—Here in conference with officials of the Fox Midwest Theatres, Inc., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 10, 11 and 12, was Charles Skouras of National Theatres. Skouras conferred with circuit executives in connection with the current National Theatres drive.

Attending the conference were district managers Fred Souttar, St. Louis; H. E. Jameyson, Wichita, and Harry McClure, Edd Haas, and Lon Cox of Kansas City. E. C. Rhoden, Fox midwest president, and home office executives here participated.

HOLLYWOOD—"The Lost Battalion," a Robert Lord production for Warner, will be directed by Raoul Walsh.

Special Study Due Clearance Plaints

MINNEAPOLIS—Smoldering resentment of Minneapolis independent exhibitors over alleged clearance unfairness will find expression at a special meeting to be called by Northwest Allied. It is indicated that a demand will be framed for presentation to the Minnesota Amusement Co. and major distributors here.

The grievance principally concerns pictures shown first-run at the loop Astor and Gopher theatres, operated by Minnesota Amusement. Although the Aster double features these pictures at 15 cents to 5 p. m. and 25 cents thereafter and the Gopher has a 25 cent flat admission, the Aster has 35 days and the Gopher 49 days clearance over 25 cent independent neighborhood houses.

Independents claim the clearance is "manifestly unfair" and that pictures double featured at the Aster should be excluded from their contracts. They declare they can't profitably play pictures shown first at the two Minnesota Amusement loop houses.

The matter has been a point of controversy for more than two years.

Tri-States Airer Ends Thirteen-Week Span

DES MOINES—The Tri-States Theatre Corp. radio program, "Two on the Aisle," completed its 13-week contract last Friday night.

As stipulated in the original agreement, the program will vacation through the summer months. No definite plans for resumption in the fall have yet been discussed, in view of current business conditions and pending clarification of the Register and Tribune policy as to employes' air activities on sponsored programs.

Ken Clayton, R&T motion picture editor, and Rene Clayton, BOXOFFICE representative, have written and staged the program.

OMAHA

JACK EPSTEIN of the Epstein Theatres will be a married man by the time this column hits the exhibitors' desks. Jack's bride is Rosalie Alberts, dancing instructor, well known to filmites and exhibitors in this area. They are, by now, on a month-long honeymoon to the west coast.

Mrs. Josephine Jenny, wife of the exhibitor at Malmo, Neb., and surrounding towns, is the postmistress at Malmo. She was in town this week to preside over the Nebraska branch of the National League of District Postmasters, of which she is president. During the convention Joe spent his time on Filmrow.

George March and Phil March hosts to a lot of filmites at the opening of the new Co-ed Theatre at Vermillion, S. D. Among those from Omaha were Carl White, Mike Roth, Iz Weiner, Frank Hannon, Gordon Halloran and Fred Thortsen . . . Joe Scott, Fox boss, had his tonsils removed and spent the week chewing aspirgum.

Bob Ballantyne had some tough luck when the northeast Nebraska flood kept him from putting equipment in the new theatre at Homer, Neb. The house was ready for a big opening but now it's hard to tell. Homer was the central point in the flood area . . . Ed Rostermundt had a wedding anniversary this week.

The Hartzell baby, offspring of Mr. and Mrs. DuWayne Hartzell, Rivoli, Charter Oak, Ia., had a birthday. Also birthday congrats to Frances Taylor and Fern Bull of RKO, and R. D. Johnson of Scott-Ballantyne . . . Wedding anniversaries this week include Ted Emerson, Tri-States publicity man; Frank Hannon, Warner peddler; Karl Silkebakken, Princess, Odebolt, Ia.

Wally Johnson, exhibitor at Exeter and Friend, Neb., was in town on business. He hasn't completed settlement on his theatre at Friend, which burned recently, so he's undecided about a new Plaza as yet. Meanwhile Wally is concentrating on his theatre at Exeter.

Frank Van Husan and Howard Harvey went to Grinnell to see Van's daughter graduate . . . Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mansfield, King, Ida Grove, Ia., on Davenport street. Also F. O. Fitsch of Hopkins, Mo., a rare visitor; Bert Beams, Auditorium, Red Cloud, Neb.; C. J. Kramer, Rialto, Stanton, Neb.; Odes A. B. Hilton, and his father, Park, Sioux City, Ia.

Lloyd Selby has closed the theatre at Fairfield, Neb., for a while . . . Sol Francis and Monogram of Nebraska are third nationally in the current drive . . . A letter from Eddie Forester, former manager of the Omaha, who reports from California he is selling more magazine stories . . . Is Freddie Horn, Columbia salesman, about to get married?

Kaycee Barkers Victors Over Juniors at Golf

KANSAS CITY — After losing a bowling match earlier in the spring to Cinema Club, the "junior" Variety lads, Variety Club June 9 took the youngsters at golf, two matches to one.

Roy Dunnock, Atchison, Kas., and F. E. Ritter, Uptown, here, won over John Long of 20th-Fox and F. L. Norris of Warner, 6 and 4. Tom Baldwin of Columbia and Cle Bratton, Council Grove, Kas., beat Martin Stone of Screenland and Walt Kirkham of Commonwealth, 5 and 4.

Joe Lysowsky of Altec and Bill Kubitzki took Benny Benjamin of Monogram and Leon Abraham of RKO, 7 and 5.

Baldwin stunned his opponents when he sank a No. 8 iron shot on the fourth hole for an eagle 3. On the other hand, Kubitzki evened matters by laying a brassie dead to the pin on No. 14 for an eagle, which gave Cinema its one winning match.

Kaycee Independents Are Reforming ITO

KANSAS CITY—Assertedly impelled toward active cooperation by critical business conditions, independent theatre owners of Kansas City met June 7 and reformed the ITO.

Elected as officers are E. S. Young of the Central, president; Stanley Schwartz, Tivoli, first vice-president; Arthur Burke, Colonial and Gillham, second vice-president; Ed Hartman, Murray, secretary, and Harry A. Beynon, Ritz, treasurer.

The re-invigorated ITO, which has been dormant for more than a year and a half, expects to take up the problems of double bills, giveaways, and low admissions, as well as other matters of mutual concern to the exhibitors of Kansas City.

It was interesting to note that more independents attended the reorganization meeting than any similar gathering in several years.

Anniversary Campaign Rewards in Herington

HERINGTON, KAS.—His theatre's 18th anniversary was very effectively exploited for good business by Manager Glenn M. Deeter of the Dreamland, with a series of stunts and tieups that let his town and surrounding towns know of the occasion.

First Deeter had printed replicas of telegrams which invited the reader to attend the theatre and to look for further details in the newspaper. These "wires" were delivered by boys directly to each resident not only in Herington but also in 14 surrounding towns. A full page ad, made possible through a tieup with several merchants, appeared in the daily paper; the paper in addition covered the anniversary with a feature story that had front page space.

Another patronage booster was the announcement that every 18th adult would have his ticket starred which would permit him to a Friday or Saturday performance free. A local bakery prepared a large birthday cake, which, appropriately placarded, constituted a window display, and passersby were invited to guess its weight, the closest guessers receiving passes.

The publicity, displays and well-bannered marquee resulted in considerable extra business for the Dreamland during the week of June 2-8.

Melded Supply Firms Adopt a New Name

KANSAS CITY—The Oklahoma Theatre Supply last week purchased E. C. Leeves's Central Theatre Equipment, and is changing the name of the consolidated firm to General Theatre Equipment. Headquarters and display material of the Oklahoma company has been moved from 126-28 West 18th Street to 115 West 18th Street, the location formerly occupied by Central.

General will not continue distribution of Motiograph projection, Western Electric sound or International seats, according to L. J. Kimbriel, manager of the new equipment company. It will, however, continue with Da-Lite and Early screens, which Central has been handling; and with all of the equipment Oklahoma Theatre Supply has been distributing: Heywood-Wakefield seats, RCA, Brenkert projection and arc lamps, U. S. Air Conditioning, Alexander Smith Carpet. It will add a general supply line—parts for Powers machines, used equipment, rebuilt Powers and Simplex machines, tickets, International carbons. It is establishing a repair and service department. General will also handle fluorescent lighting.

General will have Ed Wilkerson as shipping clerk, Mary Lou Collins as secretary, and Martha Dozier as bookkeeper. It expects to add a salesman, Kimbriel said.

J. Eldon Peek, general manager of the Oklahoma Theatre Supply, parent company at Oklahoma City, was here to close the deal.

Leeves goes to St. Joseph, Mo., now as president of the General Lighting Service Co., distribution outlet for products of the American Metalcraft Corp. In addition to present dealers in fluorescent lighting, General Lighting expects to establish distribution outlets throughout 15 midwestern states. The company will distribute fluorescent lighting and engineering service to all types of outlets, including theatres. The states are Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Wolf Wins Paramount West Indies Cruise

MINNEAPOLIS—Joe Wolf, Paramount city salesman here, finished first in the entire United States in his company's "Round-up" sales' drive. He wins a trip to the West Indies. Bob Ableson, another salesman at the local branch, wound up in fifth place nationally.

"Westerner" Bally Artist Makes Stopover in K. C.

KANSAS CITY—Joe Shea of United Artists' exploitation department stopped in Kansas City Tuesday while on his way to Ft. Worth, Tex., to lay plans for the premiere of Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner" there on June 25 at the Hollywood and Ft. Worth theatres.

LINCOLN

SPEAKING of the money changers in the temple: When Cashier Alice Trumble, of the Stuart, was married last Saturday to Don Costello, all her sister cashiers were attendants. To make the picture complete, Vincent J. DiFiore, chief accountant for the Paramount half of the Lincoln Theatres Corp., chauffeured them to the church for the event.

Projectionist Roy McGraw of the Capitol has a hunk of money in the oil development near Falls City, and the black stuff is beginning to seep in the drillings . . . Note from Hollywood: Al Sellers, M-G-M greeter for the press, has left the lair of Leo, and gone into publicity business on his own . . . Still on ice are those fish caught by Don Monroe and Howard Federer, and there they'll stay until somebody offers to clean and cook them for half. The catchers are too busy trying to snare a horse out of the pack worthy of a show ticket at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha.

George O. Monroe says he believes Ed Sessinghaus and Bob Ballantyne will have the premises of the New Empress in Kearney, Neb., ready for traffic and occupancy, at two-bits or so a seat, by July 2 . . . Maynard Nelson, if he had still been in Norfolk the other day, might have known how it feels to live in Venice, Italy, considering the flood up that way. Being that kind of a showman, however, he probably would have spot-booked something like "Rulers of the Sea" or "Captains Courageous" to take advantage of natural element-exploitation . . . Believe it or not: H. W. "Speed" Lambert can write a letter, he did it this week, or heckled a stenog into doing it . . . We BOXOFFICE guys must stick together. P. M., the New York publication baby to be born Tuesday, June 18, signed on this column conductor for Lincoln correspondent, then asked for suggestion of a guy to do honors in Omaha, for which Monte Davis was recommended, and also taken.

Bob Huffman takes off for Pueblo, Colo., in a week to visit a fortnight with the family, then bring them back with him. He feels ashamed of himself to have to tote them back into this inferno of summer heat, but he yearns for some home cooking . . . Hardest dollar he ever earned: Luke Smith, who bet nine horses in a day at the Omaha track, coming back to town, nerves all shot, and one simoleon in front . . . Charlie Lieb says he will name his forthcoming youngster Jack Joseph, if a boy, and Joyce Jacqueline, if a girl. "Important thing," he says, "is to get jack in there somewhere, because it's probably the only kind I'll ever have."

Note to Sol Francis: Did you know that "Slim" Andrews in the new Tex Ritter western series used to compete with them for audience as a performer in Chick Boyes tent show here? . . . Please, Monroe Rubinger: Take a letter to Bob Taplinger and tell him it's tough to sit at this desk and labor, with the mental hazard of opening those photo-layouts which bedazzle with such lovelies as Elizabeth Earl and Dona Dale, in bathing suit.

Remnant of the torture chamber: Bob Livingston, who has a swinging sign under his marquee on which he puts the billings, became annoyed because the kids were always coming by, then hopping up and slapping the board. So, he had the art shop drive a row of sharp pointed brads in a fringe around the sign, almost un-noticeable by naked eye. For the first week, he collected about 20 yowps per hour.

Prosperity Club Is Brought to Court

OMAHA—Legality test of Prosperity Club, giveaway plan sponsored by Omaha's 23 theatres, has been taken to the Nebraska supreme court by Omaha's city solicitor, W. W. Wenstrand.

Wenstrand has asked the high court to hold the Omaha theatre in contempt of court, charging the giveaway is in violation of the supreme court's ruling of three years ago declaring Bank Night a lottery. Bank Night was at that time ruled in violation of the state's anti-lottery laws.

Prosperity Club had been given local judicial approval by the municipal court. Municipal Judge Palmer dismissed lottery charges against Don Allen, manager of the Omaha Theatre, Tri-States house. Allen had been arrested on the charges as a test case.

Municipal judge refused to accept the contention of city attorneys that the weekly drawings as they are conducted constitute a violation of the lottery laws. He upheld the theatres' contention that one element of a lottery, "consideration" is not a part of the plan.

City attorneys argued increased business for the theatres constitutes consideration enough to provide the necessary lottery element.

Giveaway is $500 per week, with all 23 theatres participating. Person need not buy ticket to register for drawings or win the award.

Wm. Lansburg Assigned Kaycee Area by Para't

KANSAS CITY—William Lansburg, who has been in the advertising department of Paramount in Hollywood the past year, has been assigned to this district as home office advertising representative working under R. C. LiBeau, district manager.

Lansburg reports to Alec Moss, assistant to Robert M. Gillham, former Kansas Citian, director of advertising and publicity for the company. Lansburg formerly was with United Artists in New York two years, in the advertising department.

Drive-In Near Kaycee Probable Next Spring

KANSAS CITY—It is considered unlikely that the Drive-In Theatres, Inc., of Boston, will construct an open air, drive-in theatre in or near Kansas City this season, though it is said that a site will be selected and prepared this fall for early opening next spring. The corporation is building such a house near St. Louis.

KAYCEE

HARRY TAYLOR stopped over in Kansas City this week en route to Hollywood after a trip in the interest of Constance Bennett cosmetics, for which he is western division manager. He recently completed a deal for the product with Interstate circuit in Texas.

Mrs. Nell Flake has sold the Colonial, Alma, Kas., to Walter Kelly jr.

On the Row: Frank Anderson, Family, Kirksville, Mo.; W. G. Forest, Rex, Joplin, Mo.; George Hayob, Mary Lou, Marshall, Mo.; Rex Barrett, Columbia, Mo.; Mrs. E. Nolan, Cassville, Mo.; Homer Strowig, Plaza, Abilene, Kas.; Nick Kotsis, Holden, Holden, Mo.; M. A. Otto, Linden, Pleasanton, Kas.

"Kelly" at Universal has returned from the hospital to her duties.

On the Row: Floyd "Breezy" Hill, exhibitor and mayor of Drexel, Mo.; Joe T. Ghosen, Sedalia, Mo.; J. Ward Spielman, Baldwin, Kas., and Cle Bratton, Council Grove, Kas. . . . Bev Miller of Book Night left over the weekend (June 9) for California, where he will spend a couple of weeks on pleasure and business.

Charles Skouras, president of Fox West Coast circuit, conferred this week here with E. C. Rhoden and other Fox Midwest Theatres executives.

Word from Phil Zeller of the Mission in Santa Barbara, Cal., is that he shortly will stop in Kansas City on a vacation trip to Ohio. He formerly was a district manager in this area for the Dickinson circuit.

Kansas City Vista Is Damaged in a Fire

KANSAS CITY—Five hundred patrons, 400 of them children, filed out to safety when fire broke out in a storage room adjacent to the booth of the Vista here Sunday afternoon.

The projectionist, Robert Dillon, gave warning of the fire when he leaned out of the booth and instructed someone in the audience to "tell everybody to walk out slowly—I'll keep the picture going."

Damage was estimated at about $4,000 to the building, $400 to contents, and $140 smoke damage in apartments and two ground floor shops in the building.

Griffith Will Build New 600-Seater in Paola, Kas.

PAOLA, KAS.—A new theatre, the Paola, will be built by H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., here to replace the one formerly known as the Dickinson, which was somewhat damaged by fire last spring. The new house, modern throughout, will seat 600, and will be ready for operation in August.

Nigh to Meg a "Wong"

HOLLYWOOD—Monogram has assigned William Nigh to direct an untitled "James Lee Wong" detective thriller starring Boris Karloff. Paul Malvern will produce.

Longer Than "Wind" and No Intermissions

Kansas City—The longest show of which we have record was played last week three days by Arthur Burke at the Gillham, suburban house here. It consisted of "Gunga Din," "Trade Winds" and a Charles Starrett western, and lasted just 4 hours and 35 minutes.

"All This, and Heaven Too" Will Roadshow in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY—R. J. Haley, manager of the Orpheum, announced here this week that on June 26 the house would open for a roadshowing at advanced prices of "All This, and Heaven Too." Haley, who is "spelling" Lawrence Lehman, ill for several weeks past, has set up a price schedule of 55-75c and 75c-$1.10 for the indefinite run.

Jack Malerich Dead

MINNEAPOLIS — Jack Malerich, long prominent here as a theatre and radio orchestra conductor and organist, suffered a heart attack shortly after a radio organ broadcast and died almost immediately. He was orchestra conductor at the Minnesota during its recent operation. Malerich, who was 36 years old, also had won some prominence as a composer. His wife and three children survive.

$10,000 for Charity, Kaycee Pledge

KANSAS CITY—A minimum of $10,000 for charity work during the next 12 months was pledged by the membership of the Kansas City Variety Club at a meeting here Monday night, a figure $4,000 above that promised by local delegates to the national convention in Dallas.

The minimum established, the membership will select a specific charity for continuing support at a meeting to be held June 24. Several were suggested by the charity committee and individuals at the Monday meeting, with decision for further study and a report on additional investigation of worthy causes moving final action over to the next session.

At the June 24 meeting, plans also will be discussed for the activities designed to raise the money for the charity work.

Included among those present were Jay Means, Arthur Cole, H. J. Griffith, Ward Scott, Joe Manfre, Leon Abram, Frank Ritter, O. N. Zoglin, Max Barewin, Harry Taylor, Ben Marcus, Jack Gregory, Rube Finkelstein, Jack Barnett, Charles Gregory, E. L. Harris, R. J. Biechele, Tom Wilhoit, Jim Lewis, Gus Kubitzki, Jim States, Sam Abend, Jerry Zigmond, Nat Hechtman, Finton Jones, Peck Baker, Rube Melcher, William Lansburg and Bill Formby.

Adapting "Road Show"

HOLLYWOOD—Sir Herzig is adapting "Road Show" for Hal Roach.

DES MOINES

LOU KAHN'S Grand Theatre sounds like the money . . . Edna Wolfe, Lou's cashier for about a month now, reports a gentleman tendered her a 20-fin bill from which she was to take his 21c for a ducat . . . Edna's round eyes grew rounder still when he flashed another C note after she's swallowed the lump of surprise in her throat and asked if he had anything smaller. To go on from there: Clarence Powell, another Lou Kahn-er, retrived a pocketbook containing 50 smackers and didn't get even a grunt of approval from the loser.

The Pat Russells of Warners and Joe Ancher were at the downtown Hi Ho Saturday, but not for the same thing that the Sil Vogels were seen yawning for at the Hi-Ho next door to the Hiland Theatre much later. What's happened to Joe Ancher's eastern romance, by the way? It'd slipped our mind completely, and apparently Joe's too . . . and how come Joe Smith rated two gals (Jere Nelson and we don't know the other's name) at the Casa Loma Saturday?

That was a Metro-Warner (or Loew's Vitagraph) combine at the Casa Loma with Jack and Lois Kennedy (she's too pretty to look like a wife) and Ruby and Gilly Wells having their Saturday night outing in tandem . . . Jerry Banta had an awful time making Frances see how logical it was to be at the races instead of at work where he started out to be . . . women are so unreasonable, aren't they Jerry?

We're going to stay away from Tri-States for awhile, because we're slated for a very cool reception . . . in fact a downright cold one, we hear . . . it's the colding system off-kilter. Afterthought to Lou Kahn: You and Roscoe Duvall in the booth are the only two pikers in the Grand organization . . . you haven't even been able to handle any big dough.

Emil Franke's in the circus business now, and we're not referring to his "stadium seating in the balcony." Orpheum ducats were prizes for R&T carriers who sold their quota of tickets to their convention circus at the Coliseum Monday . . . The Row, noting that the "Prosperity Club" lottery charge was dismissed in Omaha, has decided that A. Don Allen hasn't slowed up so much, verbally and adverbally, as at first feared.

With Ray Copeland's California convention junket out of the way, the Paramount Pep Club lived up to its name with a party at the Fort's log cabin Friday night . . . We may be late, but we'll get the news to you. Casual conversation revealed a secret 'tother eve: Bill Little won the Tri-States service award for his installation of projection equipment at the Highland which opened only about 18 months ago . . . Bill's perspiring in the booth at the Paramount exchange these days, and wearing a fancy set of brogans that he credits to Mrs. Bill's shopping eye.

Madrinne Silkebakan, who's been saying "hi" to the 4-1104 telephone callers, is saying "bye" to Tri-States Sunday, June 16 . . . She's setting her course n. e. by n. and expects to land in Marshalltown, the Roskopf sector to which her husband has been transferred . . . The circuit has been wheeling along without Boss A. H. Blank during the last week. He went to New Yawk on business Sunday.

Doris English, who used to take G. Ralph Branton's dictation, has been pinch-hitting at Joe Deitch's secretary while Dora Sanquist vacationed . . . With Doris on the job, Dora is taking an extra week of the rest cure . . . We understand Chick Parrish is the guy who persuaded Lillian Russell to explain Henry Fonda to her maw for us before she'd even met the gent. Beats all what can happen at a screening.

Observed here 'n' about: At the Paramount exchange, Chuck Elder waiting for Bill Little and a quick conference across the street . . . At Michaels, Sam Horowitz of Bank Night, Inc., Ray Blank and Lou Elman lunching together . . . On the wrists of Gilly Wells and Speed Lambert, snap wrist watch bands.

Personal memo department: It was about May 10 when George Beaumeister unloaded those chicks which he asserted would be ready for frying in 45 days . . . Time (and the chicks) are about ripe.

It looks as if the little fat guy with the bow and arrow has given Chick (Casanova) Friedman up and moved next door to Warner Bros. . . . Mary Rose Smith, contract clerk, signed up for a life partnership Saturday and Assistant Cashier Norman Holt followed suit Sunday with Pauline Horsborgh. The Holts are now honeymooning somewhere in Colorado . . . Hal Robinson, billing clerk, couldn't be bested, though. He revealed he'd been married since mid-May, but nobody'd discovered it.

Joe Ancher answered the question BOXOFFICE and the rest of the Row have been asking, by asserting he's heading for NY next month to repeat the vows himself and the force is convinced that Bibianne Hazlett is just waiting for the proper moment to spring the news about herself and Kennie . . . Gilly Wells says he's gonna keep Ruby (if she'll keep him), so Boss Art Anderson says that leaves only Beatty and the inimitable Art himself available . . . & Co. thinks the whole thing is carrying the "Torrid Zone" publicity just a little too far.

Anderson spent the week talking about the Warner convention slated Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in Chicago . . . He quit resisting temptation Friday and left for the Windy City with Don West to go into training at the Cub ball park . . . Monroe Rubinger was scheduled in DM Wednesday, on his way toward Chi in easy jumps after having dashed into NY and out again the week before.

Yonder chap with the Bing Crosby smile (next to Emil Franke) is Charlie Curran, who planed in from Gotham Sunday to stir up some interest in the "All This, and Heaven Too" roadshow at the Orpheum June 26 . . . He's working overtime on that yarn about its being a test roadshow for the industry to find out whether there should be any more million dollar productions . . . Curran and Franke saw the R&T carrier parade from the exclusive reviewing stand for guests . . . and started talking about $200 more advertising.

Harry Holdsberg, Eddie Dunn and Bill Beckley were scanning the skies Monday morning, faced with the problem of accommodating 4,425 paper carriers at the Des Moines, Paramount and Strand theatres in case of rain . . . It didn't and most of the conventioneers spent the afternoon at Riverview park . . . Howard Dunn up at Metro not only manages to collect a new domicile and a new dog at the same time, but now he's wearing a new suit to work . . . That wire-hair's "sorta cute" name is Timothy, says Howard, and if he harvests a crop of well-browned shrubs it's okay . . . nothin's too good for the Irish.

If you can believe all the things Chuck Plows is saying you've only 20 years to wait for the solution to all this world's ills . . . Little Charles Edward II is the guy who can do it, too, reports Chuck, who's kicking up his heels since the missus and image returned from a month's visit in Cedar Rapids. Chuck took his wife to task for staying away so long. "'Twas only a month," she pooh-poohed. "And there's only 12 of them in a year," Chuck moans.

The stork's flying around the Film Transportation sector with an eye on Earnie Rinard and making an occasional detour over to the Iowa Film area to check up on Elwyn Wolf's order . . . General Motors dropped a bundle of joy at Johnnie Murano's house—a new Chevvie . . . In answer to Driver Biddle's query at Eighth and Locust Saturday: BOXOFFICE has learned to drive and still knows how, but she still forgets which is high and which is low when she picks up her lord and master at the R&T (and the honeymoon's five months old).

Opie Judd is back to DM looking like a sunflower after that Mortar Board session at the new Alf Landon home in Topeka . . . Opie says, "So help me, Renee, they had baked chicken, hot rolls and marmalade, and ice cream for breakfast!" Speed Lambert phoned to know why & Co. didn't tell him BOXOFFICE had a birthday . . . We figured it'd cost you more, Speed, if you did a tardy "Happy Birthday."

: Remedy at Hand :

LINCOLN—It was just last December that Bob Livingston, owner-manager of the Capitol, started his one-man drive against the inroads of radio, by offering to pay the amount guaranteed the winner of the Tums' Pot O' Gold show, if the winner was in his theatre, and not at home to collect the money.

During the lifetime of the stunt, which ran about three months and was adopted by more than 1,000 theatres in the U. S., Livingston gave himself nervous indigestion every Tuesday night, listening to the Tums show, and worrying for fear the wheel would spin and hit him. So now, he's a confirmed user of Tums!

Dubinskys, et al., Ask Cassil Particulars

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—The defendants in the damage suit of Frank Cassil of the Rialto Theatre here for some $450,000 under the anti-trust laws, June 10 filed application for a bill of particulars from Cassil. The defendants are Dubinsky Brothers and major distributors. Attorneys for Dubinsky Brothers also filed a motion to quash the summonses issued in the Cassil case because the circuit was served as a partnership and not as individuals.

The application for a bill of particulars is answerable in ten days from June 11, or June 21.

In asking for greater specification of charges, defendants point to the Cassil charge that the Dubinskys were permitted by the distributors to contract for the entire product of the distributors for first and second run. Defendants want to know which defendants Cassil means.

Defendants want to know also:

Why the alleged protection period granted Dubinskys was excessive or unreasonable or without justification.

What greater privileges were granted Dubinskys was excessive or unreasonable or without justification.

What greater privileges were granted Dubinskys than Cassil by distributors.

Wherein defendants had aught to do with the fixing of prices charged by distributors to Dubinskys.

What were the advantages that accrued to the Dubinskys, and what were the restrictions imposed on the plaintiffs.

Identification of any alleged uniform contracts.

Itemization of the bill of $150,925.

KANSAS CITY—The "haunted mattress" of Wichita, Kas., a phenomenon which no one has yet been able to figure out, but which emits sounds without apparent reason, was on display at the local Paramount exchange here this week, just after its return from Detroit, where it figured in the premiere of Bob Hope's "Ghost Breakers." The Newman advertised for a good haunted house in which Wanda McKay, Paramount player now in town for a visit with her folks (she used to be Dorothy Quackenbush), was scheduled to sleep—or try to—for the benefit of press and radio. Some effort was made to get Joe Manfre, branch manager, to sleep on the thing, but Manfre asserted he never sleeps any more.

The mattress has attracted national attention since it began to haunt the slumbers of a Wichita band leader last winter. Police and public both have been baffled as to what causes the mattress, at certain times, to emit sounds that resemble those heard at a seance.

ROY CHAPMAN (of the Musical Chapmans) and his acrobatic brother-in-law (with his acrobatic wife) hied themselves in from New Sharon to do a little booking here and a little booking there . . . but all anyone in the crowd could talk about was the circus coming to town the next day.

Earl Kerr is rumored to be the only one interested in the clouds hanging over the Lake at Storm Lake now . . . Bob Ringler is distributing "Bombs Over London" and "Torpedoed!" with Tom Burke hawking the films for him.

Dayton Frederick's man Sunday (Francis Adams) trucks in from Oley every sabbath morn and loads up with film for the coming week . . . Dayton does his circuiteering from Oley, you know.

Jack Bauma has paid absolutely no attention to our requests . . . but we never did compete with a golf game very successfully . . . Now Leo Wolcott is a golfer too, Jack, but if we asked for the dope on any doings of the Iowa-Neb. exhibits, Leo would stop on No. 3 long enough to scribble it down for us . . . he'd even hurry away from No. 18 to mail it!

R. M. (Dick) Phillips, who oversees the Central States interests in Norfolk, Neb., was back in Grinnell, Ia., last week to attend his mother's funeral. Dick was at the Charles in Charles City until transferred to Norfolk this spring.

Nine pee-em and all we've eaten today is two pancakes and 'steen cupsacoffee. Can you blame BOXOFFICE & Co. if they're discussing Mike C. (Calorie) Roskopf's invitation to dinner at the Marshalltown country club? We're slated to get a permit from Father Time to devote our attention to more than a nibble one of these days, Mike.

Now comes another story about Mrs. J. G. Pierce of the Story at Story City . . . in addition to being lovely with a disposition that's like that too, she is a golfer . . . She does her putting around six in the morning, and most certainly must do a perfect job of it, because filmrowers swear she can't do anything in any other way.

J. E. Cass & Son were in from Strawberry Point . . . if they flew in nobody knew about it.

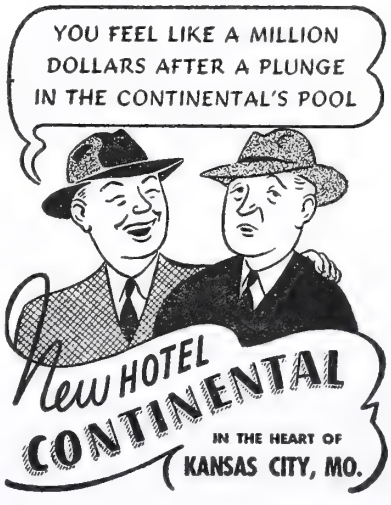
Max Facter of Pioneer circuit was on the Row . . . Eddie Solomon was telling us, Max, that you were the fair-haired boy in Chicago . . . and we'd pictured you as a brunette.

The Smith Bros. of Corydon are trying to get out of character, we hear . . . We're willing to overlook the fact that they don't wear beards, but we see no reason why they have to huddle together over every deal . . . The cough drop bros. stand side by side, boys.

Mrs. C. A. Card of Gilmore City is so quiet that we can't find a thing out about her—except that she's quiet, and was on the Row (where nobody's quiet).

Nate Sandler of Northwood, Missouri Valley, and the Birdland Courts will soon be donning the boys' clothes and drenching the tennis courts with his sporting blood again.

Charlie Peterson of Hampton (ready for another premiere, Charlie?); Bob Malek of Independence and Gladbrook; Elmer Burch of Kellerton; Ray Lumsdem of the Pastime in Iowa City; and Mrs. C. S. Hoffman of Knoxville were around this week.



Wes Mansfield, the oatmeal cookie man from Belle Plaine and Tama, oughta bring some along on his trips to Filmrow. He didn't have any to hand out last week and thereby passed up the best ad he could get for his King's Tower eatery.

Pickin' out the good 'uns and nixing the bad 'uns along High St. were Jaydee Peck, who circuits out of Van Cleve; Frank Shipley of the State at Lenox and M. L. Dickson of the Colonial and Temple at Mount Pleasant.

MINNEAPOLIS

SOME of the film boys are shooting extra good golf this early in the season, including particularly Abe A. Kaplan, Joe Stern, Bill Elson and Charlie Rubenstein . . . Rud Lohrenz, Warner Brothers' district manager, a visitor . . . Seen at the ringside of the Knox-Crowell fight: Bonnie Benfield, Morris, Minn., exhibitor; Bob Ableson, Paramount; Jack Cohn, 20th-Fox; Harry Dryer, exhibitor; Fred Ableson of 20th-Fox; Eddie Ruben and Lowell Kaplan of Welworth circuit; Ernie Hill and Bill Grant, Paramount and Warner salesmen, respectively.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Lyle Webster, Rice Lake, Wis.; Bonnie Benfield, Morris, Minn.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; A. M. Inman, Fairfax, Minn.; G. A. Troyer, Rugby, N. D.; L. C. Molitor, Stewart, Minn.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis., and Harvey Thorpe, Crosby, Minn. . . . Warner bookers have just received buttons for advance plugging of their company's bookers' month in August . . . Why are they calling Bob Brant, new Warner booker, the "Casanova" of Filmrow . . . Alta Benson, RKO cashier, vacationing in the South Dakota Black Hills.

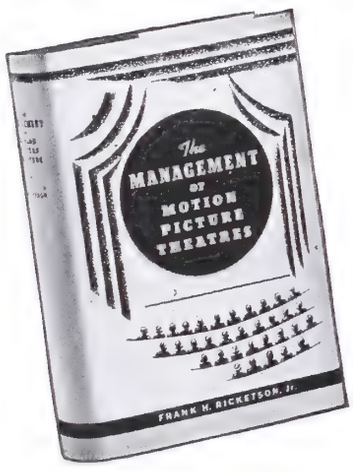
Howard Greenstein has been added to the Universal booking staff to help handle the increasing business . . . A. C. Wilson, 20th-Fox traveling auditor, is in town . . . Irving Gillman, Esquire owner, now is well on the road to recovery after his extremely serious major operation and close call from death . . . Rivian Banks of Republic's office staff is planning a California vacation . . . Bill Scholl, RKO exploiteer, paid a visit to Omaha and Des Moines in the interest of "My Favorite Wife."

Marion Schwartz of 20th-Fox office staff is having the time of her young life in California . . . C. K. Olson, Warner manager, visited northern Minnesota accounts . . . Minnie Hanson, RKO secretary, will vacation in the Ozark mountains of Missouri. She wants to find out if it's true what they say about hill-billies . . . Joe Podoloff, 20th-Fox branch manager, contacted northern Minnesota exhibitors.

E. W. O'Brien, Warner traveling auditor, is spending a brief interval here . . . "Hy" Chapman, Columbia manager, is ultra-enthusiastic over that new-season product lineup . . . R. C. Libeau, Paramount district manager, was a visitor . . . Al Putz, M-G-M office manager, celebrated a birthday and the gang pulled a surprise on him. Had a messenger boy sing "Happy birthday" to him . . . The Esquire had a Red Cross tie up on "Women in War." Donated entire receipts on the special opening night to the organization.

Bob Long, M-G-M traveling auditor, is a visitor . . . The territory is having the most rainfall in many years and while it hurts the boxoffice now it should help crops greatly and, in the long run, be beneficial to the theatre business . . . Ray Haberland, M-G-M poster clerk, went to Regina and Port Arthur, Canada, for his vacation . . . Columbia here finished in the money in the recent Abe Montague drive. Four out of the five offices in Phil Dunas' district scored.

A. Selby Carr, Paramount office manager, enjoying his first vacation in two years. He'll be gone three weeks and will spend the time at the New York World's Fair and fishing in northern Minnesota . . . Bill Evidon, Columbia office manager, took a trip to Des Moines to see his brother, Mel, branch manager there, and to bring back his wife who had been visiting in the Iowa metropolis . . . Charlie Weiner is back from a visit with his parents in Boston and is considering several offers.



His "Cry Room" Gets Newspaper Space

Minneapolis—Fred Schnee, Litchfield, Minn., exhibitor, broke into Marjorie Ellis McRady's "These Men Surprises Have Us All Excited" in the Minneapolis "Star-Journal" when the women's page editor told of the "crying room" in his theatre.

Up Ad Budgets

MINNEAPOLIS—Many local neighborhood houses continue to take increased newspaper display advertising space for outstanding attractions with good boxoffice results. Bennie Berger's Paradise has found the extra exploitation particularly profitable.

Hearing Promised on Detroit Sign Ban

DETROIT—Detroit theatre operators will get a reprieve on the sign ban which forbids all red or flashing signs not 22 feet above the sidewalk, as the result of an appeal to Mayor Edward J. Jeffries. The council quietly passed the ordinance, according to Tom McGuire of Cooperative Theatres, after it had promised to give it a public hearing. For some reason, the hearing was forgotten, says McGuire, and an appeal to the mayor by wire brought a promise that he would veto the ordinance unless the council granted the hearing.

The changeover would cost some 200 houses around $2,000 apiece, theatremen estimate, or a cost of about $400,000 for the city. Cooperative, Allied Theatres of Michigan and United Detroit Theatres all united in the fight against the change, supposed to be in the interest of traffic safety.

More Flexibility in Detroit Openings

DETROIT—Local opening dates will be subject to more frequent change with the adoption of a flexible booking policy by the Fox. The move was made to accommodate the big stage shows the house is bringing in on the average of every other week. The idea is to play stage shows and pictures on alternate weeks at the Fox and Michigan, opposition houses, as the result of a sort of gentleman's agreement.

The Fox jumped from a Friday to Wednesday opening because Jack Benny's "Rochester," the headliner, has to be back in New York on June 18, thus giving him a six-day "week." The house postponed the "Rochester"-Betty Hutton show a week when it was learned Bob Hope was set for the Michigan this week.

Monday opening is likely for the Fox on occasion because some major radio shows going on the air on Sunday can be brought in to open then and to close on Friday or Saturday.

That the split week will mix up booking arrangements was indicated when the Adams, which uses the same product as the Fox under a pooling arrangement, also switched to a Wednesday opening the past week. It will be remembered the United Artists pulled another unusual booking stunt here a few weeks ago by throwing in a second feature in the middle of the week to bolster up a sagging single bill.

Another booking oddity of the past week was the holding of two world premieres at the same time—"The Ghost Breakers" at the Michigan on Friday, and "Four Sons" at the Fox, which rated the rank of a world premiere by coming in two days ahead of regular bookings.

How to Get Maximum Value From Premiums

DETROIT—Exhibitors are able to reduce the cost of premiums and increase the value of giveaways to their house at the same time, according to Joe Mellon, owner of the Chandler. Proper management of giveaways is the solution, he contends.

"Exhibitors have no control over the making of pictures, but they certainly do over premiums. They can pick out the type of premium they want, and they can control the methods of distribution, so here is a real opportunity for some sound, old-fashioned showmanship.

"The exhibitor giving away premiums is giving a 10- to 12-cent rebate to every woman who walks into the house those nights—but studies show that 20 per cent of the women just aren't interested in the giveaways and only take them because they are handed out.

"The way to eliminate this 20 per cent dead loss is to charge two cents extra per ticket for patrons wishing giveaways. The woman is always the most economical member of the family. The man of the house may readily spend a dime, but the woman will not spend the two cents unless she feels she really wants the dish or other giveaway.

"Under this method, exhibitors could give better premiums because the cost is reduced. This would actually save one-third of the premium cost, and those receiving giveaways would appreciate them more. Any woman wanting them would be glad to pay the two cents—say a total of $1.04 for a 52-piece dish set that might cost $25 in a store."

Cleveland Cinema Club Elects New Officers

CLEVELAND—Mrs. Richard K. Jones has been elected president for the Cleveland Cinema Club for the coming year. She succeeds Mrs. F. R. Anderson, who served two seasons in that capacity. Other officers elected at the annual business meeting are: Mrs. E. A. Reilander, first vice-president; Mrs. William Roger Thomas, second vice-president; Mrs. H. E. Smith, recording secretary; Miss Florence G. Foard, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. W. M. Murphy, treasurer.

The executive board includes the following committee chairmen: Miss Bertelle M. Lyttle, bulletin editor; Mrs. F. R. Anderson, motion picture reviews; Mrs. E. E. Louis, publicity; Mrs. Dorothy Debernarde, youth advisor; Mrs. Roy Welch, assistant youth advisor; Mrs. R. F. Bryans, ways and means; Mrs. W. R. Thomas, program; Mrs. J. M. Forsythe, membership: Mrs. W. R. Peden, auditor; Mrs. Ray Long, hostess; Mrs. C. W. Conrad, parliamentarian; Mrs. N. W. Powell, sunshine, and Mrs. Thomas Wood, advisory.

Installation of new officers was held last Wednesday in the chamber of commerce.

Auspicious Occasion For Detroit Tent

DETROIT—The Detroit Tent basked in its well earned glory as Variety Clubs' national chief barker, John H. Harris, presented it a plaque and citation for its outstanding philanthropic activity, at the presentation dinner held Wednesday. Harold C. Robinson, local chief barker, responded, paying tribute to Edgar E. Kirchner, Family Theatre manager, who headed the recent Tag Day, and who was responsible for the activity that brought Detroit this recognition.

Following the throng as it veined out at the presentation dinner:

George Mitchell in—he's managing the Forest for Raymond Schreiber, succeeding William Brack . . . Lew Wisper cheerfully herded a gang of managers of W&W houses . . . Architect Ted Rogvoy renewed acquaintance with another old schoolmate of ours, Captain Don Leonard of the state police.

Ed Kirchner busy circulating and sitting with the ladies . . . Bob O'Donnell talking of his visit the night before with BOXOFFICE publisher Ben Shlyen at Kansas City . . . Frank J. Downey, M-G-M manager, representing Leo.

Jack Saxe sitting quietly in the background—this time . . . Sol Berns, the man who made the show go round . . . Freddie Bernard from the Harper, emceeing the entertainment angles.

Earl Hudson, UDT president, wearing the best sunburn of the season, with Asher Shaw and other UDT-ites . . . Managers John Howard of Paramount and Eddie Heiber of Universal proudly presenting their district managers, Allen Usher and "Peck" Gomersall respectively.

Alex Schreiber busy playing host to Father Harold J. Markey, "Detroit's own Father Flanagan" . . . Fred Schader, of Theatre Authority, sitting at the press table . . . Raymond E. Moon of Mutual Theatres looking quizzical.

Bill Flemion, Excellent Pictures, visibly didn't like the heat . . . Victor Dodge, manager of the Westown, at our table . . . Jack Mowle, Tuxedo manager, has a theme song, "Tuxedo Junction."

Henry Koppin, Uptown manager, who's been losing weight, requires plenty of service for his meals . . . Richard Flemion of Excellent and Ralph Ruben of Amusement Supply staggering in with that screen.

Harold C. Robinson, chief barker, rushing right out to the hospital for general checkup . . . Charlie Perry, Adams manager, genially at the head table . . . Bill Carlson, rushing off to Memphis for more Masonic conventions.

Charlie Snyder, censor, sneaked in unseen—must be a police trick . . . George Bernstein, Confection Cabinet, presenting his boss, Lou Smerling of Chicago . . . Ed Carlson of the Dawn presented by his chief, Barney Kilbride.

Wade Allen, of the Fine Arts, comparing those pictures with the ones he took . . . Mort Winston proved an enthusiastic applauder . . . John Harris, national chief, looks just like F.D.R. on the screen.

Tom Moule, of the Jefferson, was ultimately found by his brother . . . Ed Balmer of Pittsburgh was another honored guest . . . Harry Levinson, RKO, proved a willing assistant to Sandra, the girl assistant—Cully Buermele, of Co-op, provided the coin for her, though.

Tom McGuire, Co-op, busy chasing up a photographer . . . Ben Cohen, circuiteer, back from Florida, was a welcome luncheoner.

Plenty more dope, but no room—among those seen: Bob Fisher, roadshowman; Sol and Mac Krim, brothers; Harris Silverberg, National Screen manager; E. V. Smith, RCA Photophone; Harold Smiley, Associated Theatres; Saul Korman, Grant Theatre; George McArthur, supplyer; Lou Mitchell, Beverly manager; Sam Ackerman, East Side; Art Robinson, premiumist; Fred Dickley, Altec manager; Bob Mork, Mork-Green Studios; Phil Kaplan, Theatrical Advertising; Dave Newman, Pasadena; Daniel J. Lewis, W&W Theatres; and Frank Lorenzen, theatrical florist.

Londons of Detroit Will Build Three

DETROIT—A theatre construction program that calls for the spending of nearly half a million dollars for three new theatres within a mile along West Fort St. is announced by I. J. London, circuit operator, who plans the construction jointly with his son, Burton W. London. The plans mark probably the largest construction program for theatres ever announced in the city for any one district, outside of the downtown section, since the erection of the Annex and Riviera by the Munz interests back in the twenties.

The three units in the program are:

1. Purchase of a 120-foot lot across the street from the Lincoln, which the Londons now operate, on which a 1,200-seat house is to be erected. This is to be operated as a "de luxe grind" with a 15-cent admission scale.

2. Option on a lot about half a mile west for a 1,450-seat theatre.

3. Purchase of the Rex, a quarter mile east of the Lincoln, from J. B. Mitchell. This old house will be torn down, London said, and the new $250,000 structure will house a 1,400-seat theatre, a bowling alley, and a market.

DETROIT

JOE G. PORTELL of the Virginia and Greenwood is expected back from Florida after many months . . . Syd Bowman, UA salesman, has a reputation as a "pushing young man" . . . Al Rupert will install an elaborate new marquee on the Rupert soon . . . L. H. Larime, who supervised group selling on the coast for Jam Handy, has been promoted to national director of the field projection service, talking picture division.

Jim Kent, new manager for Ross Federal Service here, used to be Paramount branch manager at Milwaukee and Chicago, and was a former branch manager in Detroit years ago under the old film company setup . . . M. Keith Ledyard is now central area supervisor for Jam Handy in the retail training department.

20th-Fox Doings: Georgia Clark, contract clerk, has left to go back to her home in Durand. Estelle Burns is her successor . . . Billie Brown, booker, who started the vacation season is reported to be staying at home . . . Hilda Suttliff, booking steno, is off for Chicago . . . Louis Fava, shipper, is proud of that new Coca Cola machine . . . Jack Sturm can greet visitors with a good word about their A-1 air conditioning . . . Thelma Auten, bookkeeper, is back after spraining her ankle while running . . . Jess (NOA) Veldman, cashier, has a new collection idea. A hat up on the post to drop nickels in.

Richard Flemion of Excellent Pictures is starting in as special assistant projectionist for Variety Club's charity shows . . . Frank Papuga is continuing to manage W&W"s new Ace. He had it for John O'Dell when it was the Frontenac . . . Rufe Davis, screen star, out to visit and dine with George Mitchell, manager of the Forest . . . Helen Halstead is sole owner of the Costume Shop in the Fox Theatre building now. Alice Avran has left.

Charles M. Voelker, who was president of Detroit Film Laboratories, industrial film processors, has left, and Edwin Busby is receiver . . . Charles Parham, owner of the Uptown at Dresden, Tenn., has named his bread-catching hen "Mickey"—after Detroit's Mickey Cochrane . . . East Jefferson Ave. is filmdom's favorite residence district, we find from a checkup on where our filmites live . . . Theatrical Post of the Legion is having their big installation party Monday (17), and it doesn't start at midnight this time.

Buddy Fields of the musicians' union got himself carried "dotty" by his enthusiasm . . . Bernard Hoyt of Book Night is off to Chicago for the Allied States convention, with a big display . . . Leonard Slepski, ex-manager of the Esquire in Grosse Pointe, is back from Florida and Mississippi with his brother Art. Met Bill Napier, operator of the Virginia at Indianapolis, on the return trip . . . Jack Saxe, Monogram treasurer, has a favorite beverage—black tea.

Harry Brooks, roadshow distributor, visited Charlie Garner . . . Reminds us, we saw three big men of the industry together—Garner, Ben Wachnansky of the Schram & Goldberg circuit, and Sam Merson . . .

Convention Hears Major Warner Flay Un-American Activities

By ROBT. F. KLINGENSMITH

PITTSBURGH—Marking his first visit here in 20 years, Major Albert Warner, vice-president and treasurer of Warner Bros., addressed the eastern and Canadian sales convention of the company Monday afternoon in the William Penn Hotel, taking the occasion to reiterate the statement of his brother, Harry M., that "there is no place in the company for members of any un-American organization."

"If Hitler isn't stopped, it means the end of everything," he declared. "My father fled Poland to escape Russian control and destruction. This land of freedom has no place for Nazis, Communists or Fascists."

Major Warner recalled that his company had its humble beginning in Pittsburgh. The project, started with the pawning of a watch and chain, is today a $175,000,000 corporation.

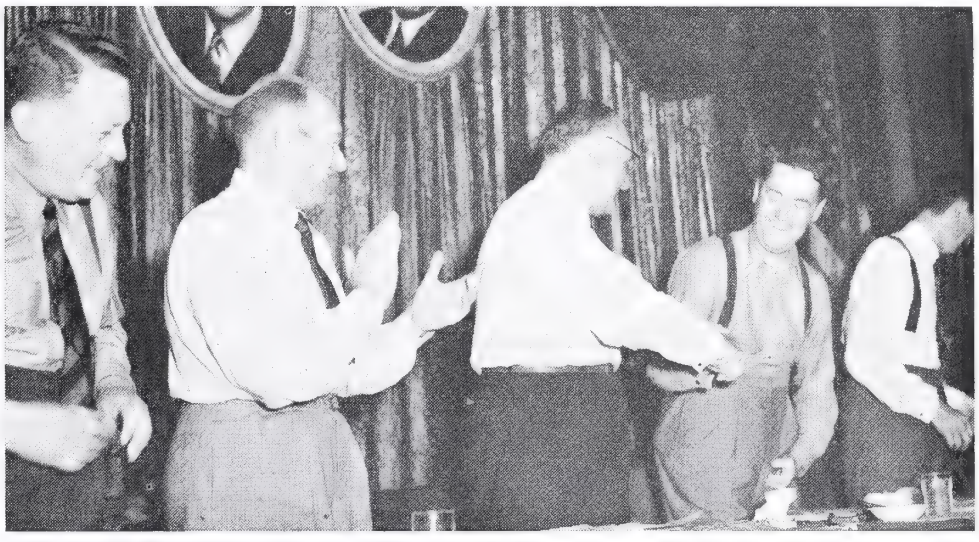
Company executives and salesmen were joined for the first day's sessions by Warner circuit managers of the tri-state area. Joseph Bernhard, theatres head, was one of the speakers that day.

Joseph Hummel, foreign sales chief, announced that Harry M. Warner had cabled the Brazilian government offering to donate Brazilian receipts of "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" to the Red Cross if that country would consent to show the picture.

The new season's product was outlined by Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, and special messages were read from Hal B. Wallis, studio head, and other production executives.

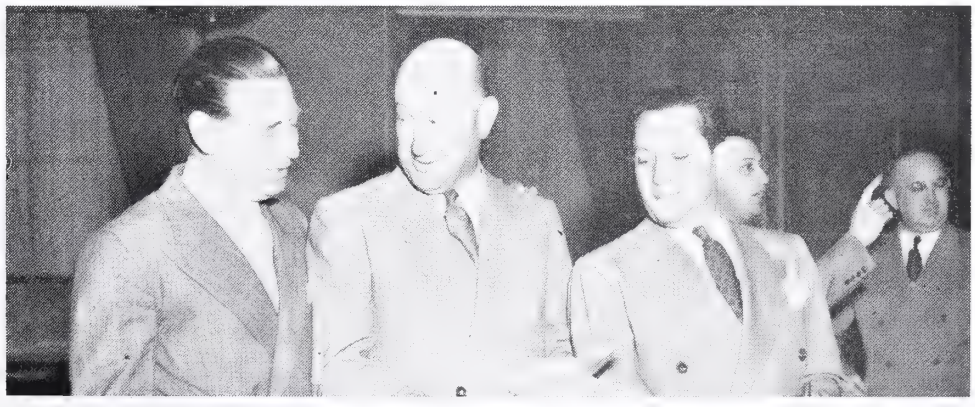
Convention speakers included Roy H. Haines, eastern and Canadian sales manager, and Norman H. Moray, in charge of short subjects.

The deliberations were long and business like and the "action" keynote was adhered to. Following adjournment Wednesday afternoon, the conventioneers were guests of Harry M. Kalmine, local circuit zone manager, at a cocktail party.



Warner Sidelights

DELEGATES found their product well represented in Pittsburgh's famous Golden Triangle. "Torrid Zone" was on the screen at Loew's Penn; the Stanley was showing "Brother Orchid," and the Warner featured "Flight Angels." The Ritz was exhibiting the re-edited "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." "Cavalcade of Academy Awards," special short subject, was billed at the Penn with "Torrid Zone."



"Welcome Warner Bros. Salesmen" valances were hung from all Warner house

At "Ghost Breakers" Detroit Premiere

By H. F. REVES

DETROIT—The premiere here of Paramount's "The Ghost Breakers" was the second in the history or Detroit. "Disputed Passage," also a Paramount picture, was the first. It, incidentally, bowed at the Michigan, as did this newest chiller. Plenty of sidelights, so here they go:

Ed Churchill in from Hollywood for exploitation, flew back Friday night. Gibb Evans from New York office handling more exploitation . . . Churchill used to play football at St. Louis, we learned.

Bob Hope arrived Thursday morning, mobbed at the depot, off to meet the mayor, then golfed with Mayor Jeffries, Mrs. Hope, and John Howard, Paramount manager.

Thursday evening—dinner for Society of Detroit Magicians at the Book Casino, guests of Hope . . . Dr. John Buell, past president, arranging everything . . . Al Munroe, Detroit Times, president this year, in official command . . . Bill Heisel rushing out to be sure his three daughters saw Hope.

Over to Paramount screening room for the private screening, with the SDM, the press, and Hope—said it made him scared to see the picture . . . met the press afterward . . . Hope started his vaudeville career in Detroit theatres—plenty of them—in 1927 . . . told us his reluctance to meet the haunted mattress . . . Mack Miller, Hope's manager, quietly efficient at arranging everything.

Jimmie Pooler of the Free Press, retiring as film critic, and his successor, Frank Gill, both on hand . . . Al Weitschat of the News, and Charlie Gentry of the Times with a big party.

Out to the haunted house for a midnight broadcast on WWJ—at 29871 Lasher Road, near Thirteen Mile Road . . . Crowd estimated at 2,000 (by Donald Davies of the News) to 10,000 (by the announcer) . . . Camera fans roosting in trees . . . Highway blocked for half a mile with cars . . . Motorcycle cavalcade came up unexpectedly . . . ghost—or Hope—fans stowed away in the attic, some got in the cellar—and there were only four police.

Professor Mikesell of the psychology department, University of Wichita (of all places!) brought on his haunted mattress—it thumps . . . Didn't work right for the broadcast . . . Mrs. Hope and Mrs. Skinnay Ennis both claimed they felt it . . . Mrs. Sarah Anderson, a psychic, also said "it thumped."

Bob and "Jeff" (Mayor Jeffries) both puzzled, sitting on the mattress, trying to believe it . . . Bill Goodwin of the Pepsodent program was announcer . . . Letcher Coleman was Paramount operator for the preview.

Formal premiere Friday at the Michigan—Hope put on a swell stage show, plus Professor Jerry Colonna, Dolores Reid (that's Mrs. Hope), Skinnay Ennis, Brenda and Cobina, but not Yahoodi . . . Earl Hudson, UDT prexy, greeting guests in the lobby . . . Saw Carl Shalit, Columbia district manager, in the house . . . Jack Hurford, manager of the opposition Fox, over chatting with Bob Corbin and C. E. O'Brien of the Michigan.

Rosenberg Gets Hurry Call to Washington

Pittsburgh—M. A. Rosenberg, president of the AMPTO of W. Pa., has been summoned to Washington to participate in special sessions with national Allied leaders and with government trust-busting agencies. His call was as a member of the national executive board of the independent theatre owners association, it is understood.

Local reports indicated that a new code of fair trade practice had been submitted to the department of justice by producer-distributor representatives and that Rosenberg found it necessary to drop all other matters and go to Washington for special conferences Wednesday and Thursday.

Midwest Suit Against Co-op Comes July 18

DETROIT—The suit of Midwest Theatres, et al., against Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, alleging conspiracy growing out of alleged film booking difficulties, has been set for trial July 18 by federal district judge Ernest A. O'Brien.

The importance of the suit and the effect it is likely to have in delaying picture buying in the complicated Woodward Avenue booking situation, at the start of the selling season, were the reasons given for seeking an early trial.

Lexington Commissioners Vote Down Fast Time

LEXINGTON, KY.—The board of city commissioners, with Commissioners Dan Regan, Henry Skillman and R. Mack dissenting, defeated an ordinance to give Lexington daylight saving time.

Mayor T. Ward Havely and Commissioner James P. Keller voted for the bill, which would have put fast time in effect from June 10 to September 30.

Virgil Steed, president of the Fayette County Farm Bureau, spoke against the measure, presenting a petition with 2,993 names of persons he said were opposed to the ordinance. A delegation of employes from various Lexington business firms urged its passage.

Must Adapt Programs To Patrons' Tastes

DETROIT—Small town and suburban theatres must be adapted to the needs of the audience, and audience tastes tend to be unpredictable, according to the experience of the two houses operated by Walter Shafer. These are in two west side suburbs about 15 miles from downtown Detroit—the Wayne at Wayne and the new Shafer at Garden City.

Six miles apart, the two houses cater to much the same class of patronage and overlap as was found when the Shafer played some features ahead of the Wayne and business at the Wayne suffered as a result. Features booked for both houses are now normally spotted first into the Wayne.

An unusual split week policy is pursued at the Shafer. Sunday and Monday; Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and Friday and Saturday are the three shifts. The Friday-Saturday shift seems to be working out satisfactorily in an industrial, semi-farming suburb with customers coming back on Sunday after seeing a weekend show on Friday or Saturday. Over at the Wayne, however, the weekend is rarely split this way, although the features are changed in different manners, some splits running Friday, Saturday and Sunday; others, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

The two-day weekend split at the Shafer develops an unusual condition—that business will be good on one of these two nights with any kind of boxoffice picture and luck with the weather. Some weeks Friday is the big night, others it is Saturday. Which night will draw the crowd is unpredictable, according to Manager Roy E. Campbell, depending much on product and competing community attractions.

Not Asked to Censor Propaganda Films

PITTSBURGH — Major General Edward Martin, adjutant general of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, interviewed by a BOXOFFICE reporter, denied any knowledge of the matter of pro-Nazi films being referred to his office for "advice" on the issuance of censor seals.

Last week Mrs. Edna R. Carroll, chairman of the state censor board, stated that in the future she would seek the advice of Major General Martin before approving "propaganda" films.

The state's highest-ranking military officer stated that he had not heard of the subject officially or non-officially. Additionally, to the best of his knowledge, the matter had not been submitted to his office, said the Commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

Dolle Buys RKO

LOUISVILLE — Fred Dolle and Charles Krebbs of the Fourth Avenue Amusement Co. have closed with RKO for the company's new season product, both features and shorts, for the first-run Strand and Rialto here.

PITTSBURGH

FRED J. HERRINGTON has received his renewal license as a notary public. His present term expires at the end of the next session of the senate. The AMPTO secretary has been doing the notary work for Filmrow for many years . . . Phil Brozier, the Avella exhibitor, was in the other day and reported that his commission as a notary public had been extended too . . . Steve Rodnok jr., son of Steve Rodnenok, Oakmont exhibitor, graduated from the school of business administration at the University of Pittsburgh. Young Steve uses the short spelling of his name, and he should be able to cut some business corners too now that he has that sheepskin . . . A. P. Way came in from DuBois to attend the first Pirate night baseball game at Forbes Field. "Under the mazdas" game was played before a crowd of more than 20,000 fans.

The Press reported the other day that film moguls have eased up a bit on their ban against the participation of film stars on radio networks, and remarked: "What the exhibitors will do about that remains to be seen. Their past threats to boycott stars who went on the air didn't amount to the snap of a finger anyhow" . . . Sam Galanty, Columbia district manager, and Dave Miller, Universal district manager, were among recent visitors . . . Milt Samuels of the Atlas appeared before the grand jury in connection with the case of a theatre robber suspect who was held over for court. Milt's office radio, electric clock and other articles were recovered.

Danny Davis, at the Monarch exchange, is assisting R. R. Lytle, director of publicity of Allegheny county for the American Red Cross in the distribution of four single reels for this organization. These gratis reels have running times from 6 to 11 minutes. All theatres are urged to cooperate . . . The Theatre Guild and American Theatre Society are now receiving applications for next season's subscription plays at the Nixon . . . Frank J. Harris has been re-elected chairman of the Allegheny county Republican committee, although he had announced a desire to retire as the county party chieftain . . . Elizabeth borough council has adopted a $25 pinball machine tax.

Stage shows at the Stanley will be discontinued for the summer following the engagement of Orrin Tucker . . . The Barry will feature "Lights Out in Europe," distributed here by Louis Krieger, opening June 26. Dialogue is by James Hilton and commentary by Fredric March . . . Mort and Art England, now operating the Roxy, Clearfield, have appointed Wilfred Sklor as manager. He was formerly assistant manager at the WB Boulevard, Brookline . . . Bill Lewis, Sun-Telegraph drama editor, has recuperated from his recent serious illness and will be back on the job within a few days . . . New telephone operator at the UA exchange is Dorothy Frank.

Al Weiss is sporting about in a new Cadillac . . . Julian Lesser, son of Sol Lesser, producer of "Our Town," was a visitor as was Joe Shea, UA exploiteer, who is specializing on Sam Goldwyn's "The Westerner," which will be premiered at Fort Worth, Tex., in September . . . Ira H. Cohn, chairman of the Variety Club's Heart Committee, has announced plans to raise $5,000, to be used for Camp O'Connell's operation during the summer. The camp opening Sunday, June 30, will be "Family Day" for club members and friends . . . Robert Finkel, son of the William Finkels, graduated from the drama school of Carnegie Tech last week.

Final AMPTO directors meeting before the national Allied convention was held last Friday afternoon at exhibitor headquarters. Additional names have been added to the list of delegates to the three-day Chicago confab . . . Sun-Telegraph Spring Cooking Schools, just completed at dozens of local theatres, were so well received that a summer season was announced and dated for twelve new theatres, not included in the recent series. Theatres and June date schedule: June 13, Memorial, McKeesport; 14, Granada, Beaver Falls; 20, Carnegie, Carnegie; 21, Mt. Oliver, Mt. Oliver; 27, Rowland, Wilkinsburg; 28,

CHARLES BOASBERG, newly appointed RKO district manager covering Cleveland, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Detroit, is shopping for an abode as he plans to make Cleveland his headquarters . . . The A. M. Goodmans of United Artists have opened their summer home in Canada just across from Port Huron . . . Al Perretz, special representative for Alexander Films, stopped off in town to call on exhibitors . . . Fred Holzworth, manager of the Hilliard Square, was host to the Cleveland Safety Council at a special matinee to which the volunteer school guards were invited. Associated circuit, to which the Hilliard Square belongs, donates one of its theatres annually for a Safety Council meeting and complimentary show.

M. M. Blattner, manager of the Heights, has moved up the opening hour of his first evening show to 7:15 o'clock . . . Gerald T. Anderson is the new lessee of the Union Theatre at Richwood. He took over the house from the former owner, V. G. Secord . . . Jane Meisel, secretary to Warner's publicity and exploitation director, Manny Pearlstein, left for a two-week vacation on the west coast.

Jerry Akers, secretary to 20th Century-Fox's branch manager, I. J. Schmertz, also has her ticket bought for a vacation in California. She leaves the last day of June . . . Harry Henderson, manager of the Lorain Fulton; Urban Anderson, manager of the Capitol, and Jimmy Kalafat, manager of the Dennison Square, launched their boat at Whisky Island last week and got everything in readiness for the weekly fishing cruise . . . Only hitch was that Henderson had not yet acquired the new cap which designates him as "commodore."

The first hundred "Susans" to present themselves at Loew's State were guests of District Manager Charles Raymond and Manager Everett Steinbuck to see "Susan and God" . . . Ernest Emerling, assistant to Loew's publicity director, Oscar Doob, paid the local outfit a visit and discussed the local publicity situation with Joe Longo who is steering that department for Loew theatres here.

Kenneth Means, manager of the RKO Palace, has set July 18 as the date when he pulls out of town for his annual trek to California . . . Grace Meier, secretary to M-G-M's office manager, Phil Harrington, will spend her vacation swimming in the Pacific . . . Nat Lefton, Republic franchise owner; S. P. Gorrel, Cleveland branch manager, and George Kirby, Cincinnati branch manager, attended the Republic convention in New York. They will pass on the convention news at a local gathering.

Al Gregg, Republic publicity man, was in Youngstown outlining a campaign on "Dark Command" which opened at the State on June 14 . . . Nat Charnas, Toledo circuit owner, in town last week, said he is meeting the annual summer theatre depression by operating the Strand only over the weekend . . . Robert Smeltzer, Vitagraph district manager, called on Branch Manager Ted Mendelssohn . . . J. J. Maloney, M-G-M district manager, also spent the week in town . . . Bob Bial of Art Guild Studios is busy these days developing new theatre advertising accessories.

Lois Jean, daughter of Max Lefkowich, head of the Community circuit, is at Mt. Sinai Hospital getting patched up from the results of a bad bicycle spill . . . Leo Jones is expanding in more ways than one. He has just added the third link to his theatre chain with the acquisition of the Strand at Carey. The others are located at Upper Sandusky and Forest . . . Glen Kaufman of Montpelier is back home after an extended winter vacation in Florida . . . Henry Stickelmaier of Balaban & Katz, Chicago, was in Toledo looking over his company's theatre interests there.

Howard Feigley, associated in Toledo theatre operations with Bill Skirball, has acquired all new equipment to pursue his favorite sport of fishing . . . Earl Edwards, manager of the State, Napoleon, was in doing some Republic shopping . . . Willard Hart, owner of the Norka and Rialto theatres in Akron, is back at work after having fully recovered from pneumonia which put him on the danger list last spring.

Etta Sabetay, M-G-M assistant contract clerk, is vacationing in California, and Bill McManniss, poster clerk, is back from his visit with his mother in Florida . . . Ralph Landsnaes, M-G-M booker, pulled a fast one when he announced that his marriage to Miss Sally Brooks, which was scheduled for June 9, actually took place three weeks ago . . . Peter Dana, newly appointed branch manager for Universal, has returned from Kansas City where he was on personal business for several days.*

Bank Night's Legality To Ohio High Court

TROY, OHIO—The Ohio supreme court has been asked to decide whether Bank Night, as perfected by theatres, is a lottery and in violation of state laws.

The Troy Amusement Co. here appealed to the high court to review the decision of the Miami county common pleas court, which refused the company's plea that Newberry township officials be enjoined from interfering with Bank Night.

The lower court held the giveaway to be a lottery in violation of the law and that the theatre was not entitled to protection from law enforcement officials.

Cleveland Vitagraph Now Headed by Charles Rich

CLEVELAND — Succeeding Ted Mendelssohn, who has resigned as Vitagraph branch manager here, is Charles Rich who is transferred from a similar post in Buffalo.

Maurice Kinclest, former Universal representative in Belgium, has been appointed a salesman by P-D-C for the local area.

Dave King, owner-manager of the National for 28 years, was given a 60th birthday party Wednesday. He rates as the oldest continuous owner of any downtown house (Ed Kirchner of the Family, another dean of the business was technically manager rather than owner up till recently).

Lester Sturm's wall cases on the 20th-Fox exchange are the best public display available to any local exchange. They stop the general public right on Cass Avenue . . . Vi Whiteside of the stagehands' office likes cool lunches when it's hot . . . Ed King and George Jennings of the stagehands were in Louisville for the IA convention . . . Roger Kennedy, Frank Kinsora, Gil Light and Roy Roben went for the operators.

Sam Jack Kaufman, lately of the Fox, expects an interesting event shortly Herschel Leib, who had the booking office with Sam, is dividing his time between the Fox and the W&W circuit . . . Frank Gill is new film editor at the Detroit Free Press. Jimmie Pooler is back at his old love, the city desk . . . Ray Moon has moved headquarters of Mutual Theatres down to the fifth floor of the Fox Theatre.

W&W has a nifty new reception room layout . . . James N. Robertson, of Mutual, maintains his office in the Roosevelt Theatre building . . . Mary Holoyad is glad things were quiet while the bosses were away . . . Bill Jackson, major domo of the Fox, is getting ready to move to a summer cottage near Lake St. Clair . . . Frankie Connors, Jackson's old room-mate, who just closed at Northwood Inn, still in town.

WOLVERINE DOINGS:

Harrison Beach, roadshow operator, formerly with the Pathescope Co., writes he is going trout fishing for three months . . . George McArthur touring upstate at Flint and Imlay City.

marquees and the William Penn Hotel lobby and marquees had similar banners.

First to greet the press early Sunday was Sidney H. Rechetnik of the publicity and advertising department. With Sid, who edits the house organ, "The Warner Spirit," was Jack Kingsley, also a publicity representative.

Harry M. Kalmine, Pittsburgh zone manager, and C. J. Latta, his assistant and Chief Barker of the Variety Club, Tent No. 1, greeted delegates in the hotel lobby Sunday afternoon.

Warner circuit zone managers attended the Monday sessions with the sales executives and distributing heads. Sid Jacobs and B. F. "Dinty" Moore were conspicuous among the local circuit district managers.

All conventioneers viewed a special screening of Errol Flynn in "The Sea Hawk," Monday morning at the Warner. They did not see the entire show for the reason that the production has not been completed.

Announcement was made that Charles Rich, Vitagraph branch manager at Buffalo, has been transferred to the Cleveland exchange as manager. Rich was formerly a Pittsburgh manager for the company.

Ted Schlanger, Philadelphia theatre zone manager, and Lester Krieger, his booking manager, flew into the Smoky City from the Friendly City and kept themselves busy during the deliberations. Krieger's dad, Louis, who operated a Pittsburgh film exchange three decades ago, recently returned to distribution at Pittsburgh, and he's right back in the swing of things.

Paul Krumenacker, Albany branch manager, greeted a flock of old friends in Pittsburgh, his old stamping grounds for many years. Paul is reducing and enjoying it.

From our records the oldest Warner employes in service attending the convention were Norman H. Moray, short subjects sales manager, and Harry Seed, Pittsburgh branch manager.

Sun-Telegraph photographed Gradwell Sears, Carl Leserman and Mort Blumenstock at the airport as they arrived for the sales parley.

Joe Feldman of the Pittsburgh circuit office looked after local publicity.

Seventy local area theatre operators extended welcome to the delegates in a page ad published in the Press. Harry Seed lined 'em up.

Among the early arrivals was Ben Kalmenson, western sales head, who will have charge of the Chicago convention at the Blackstone Hotel, June 17-19. Ben is a former Pittsburgh branch manager, having succeeded Roy H. Haines, who is eastern and Canadian sales manager for the company.

Joe Minsky, Cleveland city salesman, is a nephew of Harry M. Kalmine, local circuit zone manager.

Harry, Albert, Jack and the late Sam Warner, who opened their first theatre in New Castle, Pa., in 1911, established one of the first film exchanges in Pittsburgh shortly thereafter. Major Albert got a great reception here as the opening session convened.

Joe Beile, stationed at Greensburg, Pa., with the WB circuit, is putting on pounds and pounds.

Dick Brown and Eddie Salamon, Wilkinsburg managers, who have the knack of making friends, added to their lists at the convention. And they had a good time doing so.

Harry A. Seed, Vitagraph resident manager-host, was so happy he threatened to go into his old vaudeville routine, a pre-Shuffle Off to Buffalo!

The Warner gang wasn't the only theatre crowd in the hotel Monday. Local Harris circuit managers held their own regular weekly meeting that morning.

Harry M. Kalmine, zone manager for more than 70 Warner Bros. theatres in the tri-state area, was host to the delegates Wednesday afternoon at a cocktail party and buffet in honor of Gradwell Sears. Many local dignitaries, civic leaders and independent exhibitors joined the party with the gang of swell fellows. This shindig wound up the doin's.

Kap Monahan insists that Warner henceforth will grind out no more "B's" and "in that case, it would seem the double feature nuisance is doomed in Warner theatres . . ."

Bob Coyle, Charleroi exhibitor, was host at a Sunday golf game at Nemacolin to J. S. Hummel and Karl Macdonald of the foreign department, Norman H. Moray and Roy H. Haines . . . While the boys viewed "All This, and Heaven Too," Tuesday morning, Grad Sears, Charlie Einfeld, Paul Lazarus jr. and Roy Haines slipped off and golfed at the Westmoreland Country Club.

T. L. Mendelssohn, Cleveland branch manager who will be succeeded June 17 by Charles Rich, had not been assigned to his new post at mid-week.

Eddie Schnitzer, eastern district manager, was announced as a leading prize winner in the recent Sears Drive. Carl Leserman, assistant to Sears, also announced and presented checks to these branch managers: J. Roger Mahan, New Haven; Norman Ayers, Boston; Charles Rich, Buffalo; Sam Lefkowitz, New York, and Paul Krumenacker, Albany.

A BOXOFFICE reporter greeted many friends in the convention hall during various short recess periods. To old and new friends, we wish to again state: Welcome to Pittsburgh—Glad to have seen you —And Come Again!

Tender Farewell Dinner For H. R. "Duke" Clark

CLEVELAND—Sponsored by the Variety Club, a farewell dinner will be tendered Monday in honor of H. R. "Duke" Clark, who leaves town to become manager of the Paramount exchange in Los Angeles.

Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager, and Bert Stearn, United Artists district manager, are in charge of arrangements. Howard Roth of Paramount and Charles Albert of Warner are in charge of the ticket sale. Harry H. Goldstein, Paramount district manager, has been named toastmaster.

The dinner will be a stag affair, but ladies are invited to join the party after 9 o'clock.

Doubling One Company's Fare Continues in Detroit

DETROIT—Tendency toward double billing the product of one company at first runs continues here, with three of the five first runs playing such one-company duals. At the Adams, Columbia has "The Man With Nine Lives" and "Island of Doomed Men." Around the corner at the Fox, 20th-Fox has "Lillian Russell," supported by "On Their Own," while UDT's Michigan has the FN-WB combination of "Torrid Zone" and "Saturday's Children."

Last week's films proved a boxoffice disappointment, with business way down in all first runs except the Fox, where Ted Lewis in person herded in the crowds.

Testimonial Dinner For Jules Lapidus

PITTSBURGH — A testimonial dinner to Jules Lapidus, local Universal manager who has been promoted to eastern district manager for that company with headquarters in New York, has been announced for June 24. Proceeds will be presented to Mrs. William D. Davis, widow of the veteran East Liberty exhibitor who died two weeks ago.

M. A. Rosenberg and M. N. Shapiro head the exhibitor committee and other committeemen include all local exchange managers and John Harris and Harry Kalmine. Tickets are being offered at $5 each.

The banquet will be served in the Urban Room of the William Penn Hotel at 6:30 p. m., daylight saving time. AMPTO of W. Pa. officers and directors are urging all exhibitors and managers to attend.

A Cocktail Party for Paramount Players

PROVIDENCE—No more swanky cocktail party was ever staged than the one thrown here by the Strand Theatre management at the Providence-Biltmore in honor of Lynne Overman, J. Carrol Naish and Muriel Angelus, who participated in the theatre's 25th anniversary. The press reception followed a tea in honor of the trio held earlier and at which New England society women turned out in full regalia.

Present at the press party were representatives of all the Rhode Island dailies, some weekly editors, Harry Rogovin and Harry Oldshan of Columbia's Boston office, Hank Larner, Paramount, New York; Doc Britton, Monogram, Boston; Bill Horan, Warner's, Boston; Tom Jefferson, Paramount publicist and one of the principals who arranged the party; City Censor Cowan and his aide, Bill McKennon; Archibald Silverman, president of National Realty Corp., owners of the Strand; Strand Manager Edward L. Reed and his assistant, John Hodge.

The SRO sign was hung out at the Strand in the evening for the world premiere of Paramount's "Safari." Many in the audience were veterans of Overman's early days in Providence as leading man of Albee Stock Co. Mowry Lowe, WEAN radio announcer, did the introduction honors from the stage, introducing Silverman, Reed, Larner and the star triumvirate. Silverman, recalling the opening days of the theatre when it was frequently donated for liberty loan drive meetings and other war activities, said he hoped "those days won't return—but if they do the Strand again stands ready to play its part to the fullest."

Larner, in brief microphone speech, said Silverman for 25 years had "played 'em all, Paramount's good ones and bad ones" and called him Paramount's No. 1 New England exhibitor. Reed politely thanked the audience for its loyal support through the years.

Miss Angelus, Naish and Overman did brief appearances and spiels, making no pretense of being other than "strolling players" appreciative of the reception and kindnesses shown them by the natives.

An American Legion band, an usher's corps and a string of bannered autos met the stars on their arrival and escorted them through the downtown area to the hotel.

Williams Slated to Helm Pine Island Drive-In

BOSTON—A new drive-in theatre is scheduled to open between Manchester and Derry, N. H., in about a fortnight. Barney Williams is slated to operate the site, set for Pine Island Park. Williams suffered heavy losses during the recent hurricane when concessions and the grove at Pine Island Park were partially destroyed.

Claim Drive on Monopoly Is to Allied's Credit

BOSTON — Arthur K. Howard, business manager of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., stated this week in a special bulletin to members: "National Allied has been the most important factor in bringing about a day of reckoning for the monopolists. National Allied will continue to be the most influential factor in the period of reconstruction which is soon to start."

Howard urged that the Allied eleventh annual convention in Chicago this year will be the most timely independent confab in the history of the motion picture business.

"The adjustment of major issues of the industry, vital innovations in practices, product buying under entirely different conditions from heretofore, and consent decree proposals, all seriously affecting your future, demand your alert attention and thorough consideration."

Allied Urges Non-Members Visit Parley June 19-21

BOSTON—Unaffiliated New England exhibitors are being urged by local Allied States Association figures to attend the forthcoming June 19-21 Alllied convention in Chicago, to gain the "real lowdown" on industry problems. The membership committee of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., at a meeting last week drafted a letter to be sent to non-member theatremen. Frank Lydon, president of the organization, Morris Pouzzner, Wilbur Peterson, Frank Perry, Ed Charbonneau, and Joe Mathieu set in on the proceedings.

Bank Night's Legality In Middlesex to Test

BOSTON—Bank Night legality in Middlesex county in connection with the lottery laws was scheduled to be tested this week in Middlesex superior court in Cambridge. George S. Ryan, attorney for Roy E. Heffner of Bank Night, and District Attorney Bradford were expected to go into court on an agreed statement of facts, precluding any question of credulity of witnesses and dispute of details. Bank Night continues to operate in Middlesex county per an understanding between Heffner and Bradford that there will be no police interference until the lottery question is decided one way or another.

1940-41 Contracts Topic For Connecticut MPTO

NEW HAVEN—Connecticut MPTO will meet at 12:30 p. m. Monday, June 17, at Ceriani's Cafe Mellone, with Arthur H. Lockwood presiding. Discussion will include 1940-41 film contracts. Herman M. Levy, executive secretary, will report on the film golf tournament arrangements.

Independent Exhibitors Meet

BOSTON—The Independent Exhibitors Inc., held a special business meeting Tuesday at 1:45 p. m. at 20 Shawmut Street headquarters in the film district.

Broidy Names Friars' New Committeemen

BOSTON—Steve Broidy, New England sales manager for Monogram and president of the Boston Friars Club, has named a number of committees for the 1940-41 season of the unaffiliated film fraternity. Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatres Corp. partner, has been made chairman of a special committee which includes Sam Pinanski, John S. Giles, Ralph Snider, J. J. Ford, and Edward Ansin, all part owners of New England theatre circuits. Officers and trustees of the Boston Friars Club also are serving on this contingent.

Harry Kirschgessner, New England head of the National Screen Service, has been named chairman of the house committee which includes Max Levenson, William Mancuso, Irving Walenstein and Joseph Namion.

M. E. Morey, head of Republic Pictures in this territory, is chairman of the membership committee. Serving with Morey are Louis Gordon, Jack Meyers, Harry Alexander and Ben Rosenthal.

E. M. Loew, independent circuit owner, is head of the charity committee. Fellow members are Herman Rifkin, William P. Scully, William Erbb, Mickey Alperin and Louis Klebenov.

Maurice Goldstein, city salesman for M-G-M, is chairman of the entertainment committee which includes Lou Walters, Ben Welansky, Ross Frisco, Tom Maren, Arthur Rubin, Joe Cohen, Eddie Liner and Maurice M. Green.

Edward X. Callahan, 20th-Fox branch manager, heads the auditing committee. Fellow workers are Carl Myshrall, Adolph Burroughs, Julian Rifkin and Bert Lazarus.

George Kraska is in charge of publicity and is being assisted by Max Michaels, Edward J. Carroll, Harry Segal, William S. Koster and Joe Brennan.

Duffy Lewis is in charge of a visiting committee whose other members are Ben Abrams, Sam Haase, Abe Levine and Myer Ruttenberg.

"Our Town" Is Authentic For New Hampshire Fans

MANCHESTER, N. H.—Again, New Hampshire film fans have acclaimed a motion picture in which the locale is their own state. The latest is Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," which opened at the State Theatre here June 2 after an abundance of Boston world premiere publicity in the local newspapers.

The story, actually written about the towns of Peterborough and Hancock, in the Monadnock region, was recognized by fans hereabouts as an accurate portrayal of the Granite State's "everyday folks."

In its newspaper advertising of the film, the State carried a recommendation by Gov. Francis P. Murphy, who said it was "one of the finest motion pictures I have ever seen, flavored with all the simplicity and charm of a small New Hampshire town."

Filmrow Friends Get Operators' Thanks

BOSTON—Among the film men to whom the general committee of the Moving Picture Operators Union, Local 182, has extended its thanks for "expressions of good will which encouraged us to leave nothing undone in making our 30th anniversary celebration an event of happy remembrance," are Philip Smith and James Doyle of the Broadway and Strand in South Boston; Al Somerby of the Old Howard in Boston; Edward Ansin and E. Harold Stoneman of the Interstate Theatres Corp.; Martin J. Mullin and Sam Pinanski of the M&P Theatres Corp.

Pre-Release 'All This' For a Hartford Run

HARTFORD—Concurrently with its world premiere in Los Angeles and Philadelphia, Warner's "All This, and Heaven Too," written by a Connecticut woman, will open Tuesday, June 18, for a pre-release run at the Strand here. Reserved seats have been sold for all evening performances, according to Manager James R. McCarthy.

The picture, which stars Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, is based upon the story by Rachel Field who is well known in this city and in Farmington where she lived for several years. "All This, and Heaven Too" is her second novel and a current best-seller.

Springfield Area Shows Gain in Employment

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—General employment in the metropolitan Springfield district enjoyed a slight gain from January to March, for the most part in the industrial plants, as is reflected in the survey of actual employment records of 300 business concerns completed by the Springfield Chamber of Commerce. The survey has been made for the past 15 years, and is compiled quarterly.

The last survey in January showed the 300 reporting companies employing 41,-176. Ending March 31, the latest survey of the chamber reveals the same companies carrying 41,400, a gain of 224.

United Air Corp. Expansion Will Mean 17,000 Jobs

EAST HARTFORD, CONN.—A total of about 17,000 will be employed by the United Air Corp., of East Hartford, when another plant addition costing $8,000,000 is completed in three months. Construction is starting now.

The Pratt & Whitney division output has been tripled during the last year, due to the present war conditions. Until the first of 1939, the Pratt & Whitney plant had about 2,700 on its payroll with the huge increase in employment having taken place since then.

Moriarty Retains Exchange Local Helm in Boston

BOSTON—Matthew Moriarty, Universal shipper, won out over Jack Martin of Republic for the 1940-41 presidency of exchange employes union, Local B-3. Moriarty, formerly with Warner, last year succeeded Max Magovsky of National Screen Service as second president of the IATSE affiliate.

Elmer Foster of National Screen Service became first vice-president of the organization. Frank Rahilly, formerly of National Screen Service and now with RKO, became treasurer for the third successive year. Clara DeCane of M-G-M went in as secretary.

BRIDGEPORT

MATT L. SAUNDERS, manager of the Loew-Poli, has been made a life member of the Elks and his staff presented him with a gold membership card case.

George Brazil, projectionist at the Palace, Norwalk, is a candid camera addict . . . James Fensore of the Loew-Poli and John Martin of the Brooklawn are back from the IATSE convention in Louisville.

Norman Sullivan, former doorman at the Loew-Poli, weds at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York. He is now doing gags for Bob Hope.

The Groton staged an Italian and American midnight show . . . John Reilly has resigned as chief of service at the Warner . . . Morris Rosenthal of the Majestic used the New York World's Fair in publicizing "Two Girls on Broadway." He passed out envelopes marked "Going to Visit the New York World's Fair? (For what to see—first look inside.)" Contents stressed fact visitors to New York should not miss Broadway and to know where to go for the bright spots they should first see "Two Girls on Broadway."

The city is booming, theatre help is leaving in a steady stream to take factory jobs, but business continues under par. Managers are looking forward to the up-pick in business expected from the new defense program. Bridgeport is expected to be one of the cities reaping the greatest benefits and some factories are already drawing plans for expansion.

Ralph Mauro, sound engineer, has a real problem. He was given an apple and a pear tree, but the tags fell off before he had time to plant them. Now he is trying to guess which is which . . . Areste Tomassetti, Loew-Poli projectionist, has a pet fig tree that has been ailing. He has just replanted it and talks of nothing else.

Arthur "Otto" Esposito of the Loew-Poli heads for a vacation in upstate New York on June 21 and Manager Manny Kugell of the Warner hopes to get away July 6.

"Cashier's Delight"

MARLBORO, MASS.—Fay Carey of the Marlboro here comes through with an idea for an hourly reading reminder, which she terms "The Cashier's Delight." Here it is:

"At set intervals—set by the office—an alarm will ring a switch which will strike the cashier's leg (left one) and (13) thirteen lights will flash on the inside front wall of the boxoffice, and an electric heating plate is switched on in the chair.

"To stop the alarm—switch and lights, the cashier merely shows the completed hourly reading to the clock, which thereupon stops automatically.

"If the reading is not taken immediately upon receiving the warning, the heating unit in the cashier's chair stays on, and finally the cashier is forced to take the reading to shut off the electric current, or else stand up. After two minutes if the reading is not completed, an automatic phonograph starts saying in a very loud voice—'Take your reading, take your reading.' This is repeated until the reading is taken.

"We guarantee that after one week of use—your cashier will either be irrevocably cured—or she will be in the bughouse."

Censor Shears Fall Heavy On Independent Product

BOSTON — Thirty-five motion pictures were subjected to the heaviest cuts in weeks when the Massachusetts bureau of Sunday censorship exercised clippers on four features. Passed without eliminations were "Brother Orchid," "Earthbound," and "Susan and God."

Eliminations on "Wajan," released by Harry Thomas under the title of "Demon's Island," were: "All close-up scenes showing native women at work, in part 1. All close-up scenes showing native women, in part 2. All scenes showing cock-fight and native girl at same, in part 3. All close-up scenes showing native girls looking at sun; all close-up scenes showing native women with children, in part 4. All close-up scenes showing native girls, in part 5. All scenes showing nude men and women bathing in thanksgiving; all close-ups showing native girls, in part 6."

"Fifth Column Squad," being distributed in New England by Roy E. Heffner, was okayed after omission of the dialogue, "For God's Sake . . ."

Eliminations on "One Stormy Night," released by Albert Rashie of Detroit, included: "Scenes showing girl doing body dance; caption, 'Oh my God, what a disgrace!' in part 3. Caption, "Girls are always sacrificed at the altar of dishonorable men,' in part 4. Scenes showing colored girl doing body dance; caption, 'I give you my health, my body and my money . . .,' in part 9."

Heaviest cuts of all were accorded "Reefer Madness," distributed by Harry Segal in this territory, whose scissorings included: "Scenes showing Mae seated in front of mirror putting on stockings and starting to dress, in part 1. Scenes showing couple in sensual embraces on divan; dialogue, 'There's a new one in—,' to and including, '—out for this new kid,' in part 3. Scenes showing Blanche disrobing and dancing with Bill; scene showing Blanche and Bill in bedroom; dialogue, 'Then there's the most vicious type—,' to and including, '—in West Virginia, wasn't it?' in part 4. Scene showing Ralph and Mary struggling on divan; scene showing Bill and Blanche in bedroom; cut to a short flash scene showing actual fight between Ralph and Bill, in part 5. Scene showing Blanche's body falling from window, in part 7".

Five vaudeville acts were granted Sunday permits against three blacklistings, but ten other routines were required to follow recommended modifications in order to conform with Lord's Day regulations.

Hub Met Returns Flesh With Singles June 28

BOSTON—Flesh will start at the Metropolitan on June 28, Friday, when the Bob Hope show will go into the de luxe Boston house for a seven-day run. Jack Goodwin, resident manager, will put the 4,332-seat house temporarily on a single-feature policy at that time, running Hope hand-in-hand with the latter's new Paramount release, "Ghost Breakers."

The spot booking arrangement will return the Met to flesh after close to two years of straight celluloids and will again put the house in the singular position of being Boston's only vaudeville haven.

Prize to Moffitt

BOSTON—George Moffitt, manager of the State in East Milton, won the first prize of $50.00 in an M&P-M-G-M contest for the best publicity campaign submitted on "Ninotchka" by circuit men. Joe Marquis, manager of the Egyptian in Brighton, took second prize money of $25 dollars. Honorable mentions went to Joe Lourie, manager of the Strand in Dorchester, and to Harry Goldstein, manager of the Morton in the same Boston suburb.

Ehrlick on Leave

BOSTON—Joseph Ehrlick, assistant publicity manager for the past few years at Keith's Memorial and the RKO Boston, has gone on summer leave. Ehrlick was formerly assistant advertising manager at Loew's State and Orpheum in Boston under Joseph A. DiPesa. Ehrlick, who is considering several propositions, may be contacted via Jack Granara at Keith's Memorial here.

Extended Run Ends

NEW HAVEN—With the extension of the management of Imperial's "Reefer Madness" and "How to Take a Bath," to three weeks, the 284-seat Lincoln stayed open until June 9, instead of June 2. The house, which depends in a great measure on Yale University patronage, is dark for the summer, and Manager Eugene DuBarry is vacationing.

B-41 Postpones Meeting

NEW HAVEN—Jack Mullen, president, reports B-41 (exchange employes) election meeting, set for last week, was postponed.

Greenwich Roadhouse Is Sued for $750 by Ascap

NEW HAVEN—Ascap has filed a $750 damage suit in federal court here against the proprietor of a Greenwich roadhouse. Alleged infringements of the copyright law were on last November 6 when a dance band played "In An Old Dutch Garden" without a license from the society.

First suit filed by Ascap in this territory, against Harry L. Lavietes, operator of the Pequot Theatre, is set for hearing in New Haven in the fall.

Extensive Remodeling Is Undertaken by Gould

BOSTON—Al Gould is drastically remodeling the Majestic in West Springfield. Gould has contracted with Ken Douglass and Leon Foster of the Capitol Theatre Supply in Boston for a 63-foot marquee as well as air conditioning, a new front, drapes, lobby layouts and general work.

Drop in Westfield

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The population of Westfield has fallen off about 1,000 in the past ten years, according to the latest unofficial tabulation completed this week at Springfield headquarters for Hampden county. The 1940 census counted 18,813 residents as against 19,775 for 1930.

To Remodel Shelton

SHELTON, CONN.—The 500-seat Shelton, operated by Morris Haddleman, will close on or about June 25 for remodeling.

Forerunner Found

HARTFORD—If anyone in this day and age believes that Edgar Bergen did something new when he introduced his famous Charlie McCarthy to American audiences via the radio and motion pictures, their thinking is askew, according to Billy S. Garvie of the Hartford Times, and somewhat of a local historian.

The Charlie McCarthy of 1940 is nothing but a prototype to what Hartford was seeing at Morgan's Coffee House on State St., back in 1835.

An ancient playbill, recently unearthed, reads as follows: "The whole to conclude with Powers of Nesico, the ventriloquist. He possesses by nature the power of causing a voice from all parts of the room and from closets to be heard . . . Causes a child's voice from a teapot to exclaim, 'Let Me Out! or I'll Smother!' Voices come from gentlemen's snuff boxes or a lady's thimble . . . Will cause a codfish to imitate a pig, an oyster many calls of birds. Admission 25 cents and 12½ cents."

Whether Powers of Nesico ever actually used a wooden dummy of a man, like Edgar Bergen does today, is not definitely clear from the records of the performance still in existence . . . but one thing is certain, he certainly could have done it, as much as Edgar Bergen does, declares Garvie.

Darkens for Summer

WALNUT BEACH, CONN.—Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith will not open the Tower this summer, but will place the Colonial on a six-a-week change schedule, shows running continuously.

RKO Boston Drops Flesh For Summer; to Duals

BOSTON—Ben Domingo took the RKO Boston off flesh last week with the conclusion of a seven-day engagement of Horace Heidt. Tentative plans are to continue operation of the Boston throughout the summer as a double-feature house. The possibility remains, however, that flesh may be spot booked. The regular stage policy is scheduled to be resumed in September.

Frank O. Mayo

WEST SPRINGFIELD, MASS. — Frank O. Mayo, 61, character actor whose performances date back to the first Poli (later Loew-Poli) stock company presentations, died last Monday at Wesson Memorial Hospital after an illness of several months. He was first director of the federal theatre project, Springfield division.

Sharby Offers Three

BOSTON—Arthur Sharby has been negotiating to sell three theatres. The trio is located respectively in Richford, Vt., Island Pond, Vt., and Groveton, N. H. They are the Park, the Roxy and the Alley.

Census Complete July 1

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—With only two enumerators now canvassing in small districts of Chester and Holyoke, officials at the Hampden county headquarters in Springfield were optimistic during the past week that the census would be completed on or about July 1.

Hoblitzelle Has a Suit of His Own

Dallas—Karl Hoblitzelle, the president of Interstate, has been named defendant in a number of film suits lately. The oddity is that he is now plaintiff in one himself, having filed against the City of University Park, suburb of Dallas, which seeks to prevent Hoblitzelle from erecting a shopping center in an area restricted to homes. The case has required much time in court and has become an important legal battle over real estate development.

Record Parley Crowd Foreseen by Cole

DALLAS—Before leaving Monday night for Washington, Col. H. A. Cole, president of national Allied, predicted the biggest crowd of independent exhibitors in the organization's history would be in Chicago, June 19-20-21, for the 11th annual national convention in the Morrison Hotel.

Although he made no statement as to his mission in Washington, it is believed he will have some voice in the possible settlement of the government's key suit and terms of a consent decree, should one be adopted.

Whether or not Cole will return here before the Chicago event was undetermined. He said, however, that the Texas delegation now numbers eight and that possibly others would go. Those he named were L. C. Tidball, Ft. Worth; A. W. Lilly, Greenville; Homer Mulkey, Clarendon; Lonnie Legg, Denison; H. S. Leon of Haskell; Bob Euler, booker for the R. N. Smith and B. A. McLendon theatres, and himself.

The Texas group plans to sit in at the Democratic national convention which will be in full sway at this time. Condron, incidentally, is particularly interested in this phase, he having recently declared as a candidate in the race for governor of Texas.

New Members on Dallas Variety Club Roster

DALLAS—Membership list of the Dallas Variety Club, Tent No. 17, continues to bulge with new names being presented this week, as follows:

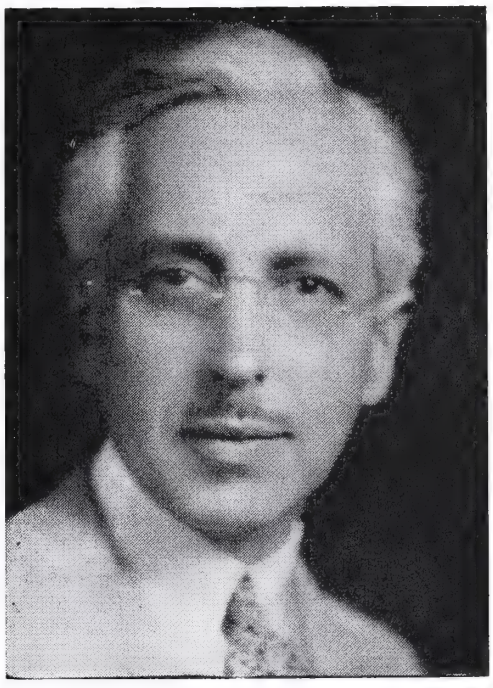
Summer Theatre Opens



AUSTIN—The University of Texas Open Air Theatre, primarily for students attending the summer session, opened its 1940 season with "Three Smart Girls Grow Up."

Louisiana Independents Urge Chain Tax Bill Support

NEW ORLEANS — Independent exhibitors are reported to be urging their state senators to support the theatre chain tax bill just passed by the state house of representatives. The bill, introduced by A. D. Flowers of Jena, is identical with the one passed by the house in 1938 but killed in the senate. It calls for a tax of $50 per house up to five houses; $75 for each up to ten; $100 for each up to 20; $125 each up to 30; $150 each up to 40; $175 each up to 50; and $200 for each over 50. The measure, which would primarly affect the Saengers, Southern Amusement Co., and the Joy Houck interests, is estimated as being able to net the state approximately $250,000 annually.

Another measure directed at chain theatres is one introduced by Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc which would prohibit chains from operating more than one house in cities of less than 20,000 population. Embodied in this measure is a clause compelling places of amusement affected to post a bond to ensure the collection of the tax, and empowering the collector of this revenue to promulgate rules, examine all records of business; examine witnesses under oath; and introduce the use of stamps or tickets to facilitate accurate collections. A censorship feature of the bill calls for an assessment of $4.00 per thousand feet, to be paid by the distributor. Another house bill, HB 796 calls for the department of public education to have charge of the censor boards. Another bill calls for a three-man board of censors, each serving six years at $5.00 per day plus 25 cents for each thousand feet of film examined. HB 577 calls for repeal of the original censorship law in its entirety.

Karl Hoblitzelle Addresses Dallas Patriotic Rally

DALLAS—Karl Hoblitzelle, president of Interstate circuit, this week stepped into another key position as leader of a patriotic rally which concentrated Thursday night with an expected 15,000 persons in mass meeting at Fair Park.

Supported by various groups, the event was anticipated as a demand on Congress to furnish material aid to the Allies now. The sound trucks used over the Interstate circuit were called in to arouse citizens of Greater Dallas and to insure the expected attendance.

Hoblitzelle, who was to be one of the speakers at the rally, said, "We are stressing Americanism, not race, color or creed."

Roy C. Lee will furnish and operate his Hollywood lighting display for the big mass meeting and will handle the airplane distribution of heralds announcing the event, the heralds to be dropped and floated all over the city.

Three Dallas First-Runs Collect for Red Cross

DALLAS—The Majestic, Tower and Rialto this week are taking up collections in the audience at every performance for benefit of the Red Cross. Last week the Palace alone participated in the fund drive and City Manager J. O. Cherry turned over $1,506 in cash to Red Cross officials representing the amount raised in the one theatre. Because of a good response at the Palace, Interstate officials extended collections to its three other first runs.

Racing Terrapin Offered As Variety Bingo Prize

DALLAS—Bingo or Family Nights have been resumed at the Variety club rooms and Duke Evans, single handed, is the host for Friday night, June 14.

He has posted a very elaborate one sheet (gotten up by his brother, Rupert), telling club members what he has in store. The National Turtle Derby comes off August 3, (see Ben Ferguson for details) and Evans offers as a Bingo prize, "Miss Hurricane," fastest 802-year-old terrapin in the world, which he captured in the bottoms of the Trinity. "She hurries—she gets along," the Evans' poster screams.

Await Owen's Successor

DALLAS—Contact with the Dallas branch office of United Artists at press time brought no information as to identity of a new branch manager to succeed Hugh Owen, who last week was promoted to southern district manager. The answer there was, "We have heard nothing and would like to know ourselves." Owen was out of town.

Realistic Newsreel War Clips Create a Minor Problem

DALLAS—Showing of newsreels containing bloody shots of war and its attendant horrors has become a topic of discussion here, if not a problem, in the important exhibition circles.

Realizing the prime factor of newsreels, that of showing the news as it happens, these sources are weighing the likes and dislikes of different classes of patronage against boxoffice figures. For instance a woman was reported to have asked an Elm Street cashier this week if the newsreel contained war scenes, and being answered in the affirmative, walked away without buying a ticket.

Highlight of the question, however, was a letter sent by R. E. Griffith to producers of all newsreels expressing his views on the subject. Griffith was out of town and could not be reached for comment nor was a copy of the letter obtainable at this time. It was understood, however, that this head of about 100 theatres in Texas and New Mexico requested the producers to delete all of the more horrible scenes of carnage, sufferings of refugees and similar shots. It also was understood that these Griffith houses may not show this type of newsreel for the time being in the event scenes in question are not so edited. General public hysteria is associated with the reported Griffith attitude concerning the war reels.

The newsreel problem has also reached Interstate's general office where executives have held discussions. The stronger sex, it seems, wants to see all, but the women shy of these actualities. Among plans suggested was one to withdraw war scenes from all screens except in one theatre where emphasis would be placed on the war as it unfolds.

Interstate officials, however, have not announced a decision as yet in the matter.

NEW ORLEANS

GROSSES fell sharply throughout the territory the past week owing to the extreme interest in flash war news. Also in Louisiana, the state administration is curtailing payrolls, and the WPA is slashing at a terrific rate. The neighborhoods are suffering most, according to salesmen coming in.

Castro Carazo, former orchestra leader at the Strand under the Saenger banner, but now director of the LSU band at Baton Rouge, has been admitted to membership in Ascap . . . A miniature golf course has been installed at Audubon Park. Others will follow in the heart of the city . . . Vic Meyer of the Orpheum took a flier to New York last week, combining business with pleasure.

G. Pipitone, Charles Hartmann and Johnny DeDroit were delegates from the local musicians' union to the Indianapolis convention . . . The old Dauphine Theatre, re-christened the Variety, has reopened under a new policy—one-third vaudeville, one-third films and one-third night club, pure and simple. The lower floor is a night club with five acts of vaudeville, films, drink and food. The balcony is reserved for those who come to see the show.

Leo Seichsnaydre, resident manager for Republic, attended Republic's convention in Memphis. On returning, he told BOXOFFICE he was pleased with the company's lineup and predicted a banner year . . . Atlantic Films (Fred Goodrow and Philip Sliman) will be in their new quarters, the old Grand National building on South Liberty St., in about two weeks.

Visitors: O. J. Gaude, Magic, Port Allen, La.; R. H. Preston, circuit operator, Raymond, Miss.; Vincent Currin, AB Theatre, Amite, La.; Charles R. Hatcher, Star, Meridian, Miss.; C. C. Meyer, Meyer, Biloxi, Miss.; Milton Guidry, Bijou, Erath, who reports that work on his new house is progressing rapidly; O. J. Barrie, Egard, Egard, La.; E. J. Hawkins, Hawkins, Newelton, La.; Mrs. A. E. Foster, Foster, Violet, La.; Mrs. E. W. Clinton, Monticello, Monticello, Miss.

Bernard Fonseca of the Ashton is now the proud possessor of a sheepskin from Loyola University entitling him to hang out his shingle as an attorney-at-law . . . Mr. and Mrs. Buck Jones are at the Hotel Roosevelt on a vacation. On July 19, they will sail for Central America . . . Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brandt of the Roxy celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary, June 12.

Mrs. Genevieve Portwood, who two years ago covered the Row for her father, the New Orleans correspondent for BOXOFFICE, died in St. Louis, June 10. She was 30 years old and is survived by her husband and a daughter . . . Vic Maurin, manager of the Fox in Houma, missed coming to town last week because he was busy with a paint brush giving the house the once over and hanging screen windows and doors.

Messrs. Reed (Rex Poster), Cobb (Isis Theatre) and Langlois (Alamo Theatre, New Roads) were in a deep huddle last week over something that looked like a catalogue of fishing things . . . C. P. Jones, film editor of the Times-Picayune, has resigned and is now in Mexico for his health . . . Vic Meyers of the Orpheum is making special arrangements for the southern premiere of "All This, and Heaven Too," starting June 27.

Proceeds to France

AUSTIN—The $500 earned by the Alliance Francaise, French-language club at the University of Texas, by showing French-produced motion pictures at the Varsity has been sent to aid French refugees.

MEMPHIS

MANY shifts in personnel at the various exchanges were made this week. Lenora Rahm went to Republic as booker's secretary from the cashier's department at RKO. Frances Wahl and Helen Scruggs were added to the RKO payroll. Grace Holmes is the new booker's secretary at Monogram, replacing Mary Ripley Shadduck, who resigned to accept a similar post at Warner, the vacancy there being due to the marriage of Winifred Teasley. Norma Williams, Jimmy Rogers' secretary at Columbia for the past several years, resigned in anticipation of a visit from the stork in the early fall.

Joe Applebaum of the Roosevelt at Hollandale, Miss., and Mrs. Applebaum spent last week in Memphis attending the Shrine convention . . . W. E. Earle, NTS branch manager in St. Louis, spent a couple of days here visiting Bob Bostick, local branch manager . . . L. E. Gwaltney is installing new carpet in his Lyric, Mena, Ark., house . . . Ray Morrow of the Liberty, Malvern, Ark., off to Panama on a vacation. Bill Sims, R&R booker in Dallas, is taking care of the theatre during Ray's absence.

Pete Dawson, NTS ace salesman, is off to New York on a two-week vacation . . . Opal Cullum of RKO is vacationing in North Carolina. Incidentally, she is breaking in a new Pontiac on this trip . . . Paul Schaffer of the Star, Marked Tree, Ark., is driving a new Ford . . . W. H. Kaver of the Von at Booneville, Miss., advises plans have been completed for the erection of his new theatre at Hernando, Miss. This house is scheduled to be completed by early fall . . . C. E. Peppiatt, United Artists branch manager out of New Orleans, was in Memphis working his local accounts.

Lawrence Smith is the new advertising man at Universal, replacing Joe Padgett, who resigned to accept a government position . . . V. E. Crick, president of the local shippers' and inspection union, is back from Louisville where he attended the IATSE convention. Crick represented the southern division, including Atlanta, Charlotte, Dallas, New Orleans and Memphis . . . Homer Hisey, Warner branch manager, left this weekend for the sales meeting in Chicago. Tony Carruth and Al Moore, salesmen, are in the contingent.

MRS. E. L. GLADNEY, who handles the details of the business for George H. "Bo" Goodwin, who operates the two houses at Bastrop, La., reports he has been elected a police juror from Morehouse Parish. Mrs. Gladney is Goodwin's sister and she also informs me that they have installed new carpets, redecorated inside and out and are installing a new heating system.

Called around to say hello to an old friend in the person of Paul Jones, who does the pitching in Pine Bluff, Ark., for Malco, but as he was out of town had a pleasant visit with his assistant, R. C. Lehman, who was at the Rialto at North Little Rock before going to Pine Bluff. He tells me that new seats have been installed on the main floor and other changes made recently.

Jack Guess, who operates an independent theatre at Camden, Ark., is entering the soda water bottling business in his home town of Duncan, Okla., where his dad operates the theatre.

C. C. Mundo, who has the New in Little Rock, has chosen Herod Jimerson as his assistant. Jimerson managed the Best in England, Ark., for a while.

W. F. Sonneman, operator of the Palace and Ozark theatres at Fayetteville, Ark., is confined to his home with illness but manages to transact business just the same.

McShane & Metcalf have opened the Pettijean Theatre, formerly the Ritz, at Morrillton, Ark. This house was rebuilt before being reopened.

To Little Rock to see our good friend, B. F. Busby, who has had the Republic franchise in Arkansas for the past five years, and was told that he is closing the Little Rock exchange as it is being consolidated with the Memphis branch effective June 10. Busby has been in the business in that territory for almost 20 years. Says he plans to take a vacation before getting back into harness and will continue to represent Bank Night in Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi and will merchandise a new system similar to Bank Night for service stations which will be known as "Watch the Meter."

W. E. Osborne, Monogram exchange manager at Memphis, tells me that "Boss" John Mangham is on his way to the west coast to attend a directors meeting and that he will visit the New Orleans and Memphis offices on his way back to Atlanta. Bill Lake, who was with Monogram at New Orleans and left to join RKO at Charlotte, has returned to Memphis Monogram as salesman.

Rains have been the rule and not the exception in the Memphis and New Orlean's zones and business is somewhat below normal in the Tri-State area.

Texas Theatre Guide Shows More Houses

DALLAS—There are 1,024 theatres in Texas as compared to 989 at the beginning of 1939, according to the new 1940 Texas Theatre Guide, compiled by Miss Bonnie Long and just off the press.

These theatres have a total capacity of 513,375 seats as compared with the total of 500,091 at the beginning of 1939. The new Guide shows a total of 572 circuit theatres with capacity of 346,255 as compared with the 500 circuit theatres with 308,829 seats at the beginning of last year.

Of the 572 circuit theatres, 289 are affiliated with producers, and have a seating capacity of 218,646. Of the 1,024 Texas theatres existing now, according to the Guide, 40 are closed—these having a capacity of 14,939. This compares with 48 theatres closed at the start of 1939, the total seats in that instance being 14,466.

Miss Long, now executive secretary of the Dallas Variety Club, has been engaged in the work of issuing the Texas theatre directory for some time, it giving as it does the towns, population, names of theatres, capacity, exhibitors, circuit names, etc. The Texas Theatre Guide for 1940 is in its 16th annual edition.

Atlanta Writer's Mystery Novel Sold to Republic

ATLANTA—Motion picture rights to the mystery novel, "Who Killed Aunt Maggie?," written by Medora Field, who is Mrs. Angus Perkerson, feature writer of the Atlanta Journal, have been acquired by Republic. Temporary working title for the film is "The Belle of Atlanta," and the picture will be among the company's new season specials.

"Who Killed Aunt Maggie?" was published last August by the MacMillan Company and proved extraordinarily popular. The story deals with a double murder in an antebellum home situated not far from Roswell, near Atlanta.

"Grand Old Opry" Bows at Nashville

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Paramount Theatre here will be the scene of a world premiere Friday, June 28, when Republic will show "Grand Old Opry," starring the Weaver Brothers and Elviry.

Station WSM and the makers of Prince Albert tobacco, sponsors of the radio show featuring the stars, will sponsor the premiere. Over 3,000 agents of the tobacco company will be its guests at Nashville for the occasion. Governor Prentice Cooper and other state and city officials will address the premiere audience. Plans are underway to broadcast the show on a nationwide hookup.

Perry Spencer, Republic publicity director in the southeast, is guiding the opening publicity campaign on behalf of the premiere. Several New York officials and film stars are expected to attend.

Calvin Price Anderson, 65, Dies in Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY—Calvin Price Anderson, 65-year-old salesman for the Oklahoma Theatre Supply Co., and a resident of Oklahoma for 30 years, died Thursday, June 6, at his home here.

Anderson moved to Muskogee from Florence, Ala., coming to Oklahoma City about 20 years ago. He was in the theatre equipment business 30 years and had been employed by the supply firm for about 18 months. Prior to that time Anderson was branch manager of the local branch of the National Theatre Supply Co.

Survivors include his wife, three daughters, two brothers, and five grandchildren.

Ascap Moves Okla. City Offices to Dallas

DALLAS—Effective June 15, the Tulsa office of Ascap (American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers), doing business with Oklahoma and Arkansas exhibitors, will be closed and the affairs of that branch transferred to the Dallas office, according to Frank Hemby, southwestern district manager.

David Milsten, of Milsten & Milsten, in charge at Tulsa, is retained as resident counsel, Hemby said.

Build New 800-Seater in Houston's Park Place

HOUSTON—Wygant & Son have been awarded the contract to erect a $45,000 theatre building on Broadway in the Park Place edition for Park Place Theatre Properties Co. The house, to be named the Plaza, has been leased for ten years to the Houston Plaza Theatre Co., chartered last week by L. C. Baxley and Mrs. Katherine Baxley of Houston, and W. J. Lytle, San Antonio theatre man.

The house will seat approximately 800. Tentative opening date is September 1.

BUFFALO COOLING EQUIPMENT
1026 SANTA FE BLDG. BUFFALO ENGINEERING CO., INC. DALLAS, TEXAS

DALLAS

LEROY BICKEL, Buck Weaver, Jack Zern, John Worley and one exhibitor, S. G. Fry of Tyler, played a "fivesome" at Cedar Crest, Tuesday afternoon, and reported a lot of fun, some very good shots with low scores going to Zern and Worley.

Forrest B. White, of Ind-Ex Booking Service and his assistant, Gene Nelson, made stops in Galveston, LeMarc and San Antonio on a business trip contacting exhibitors.

Sebe Goodlett, former Texas exhibitor, who later made a record here with National Screen Service and now is with the Denver office of that company, visited Filmrow, Wednesday, after a trip to Georgetown where he attended the funeral of his younger brother.

H. O. Everts, former west Texas exhibitor, was here on a brief visit looking things over. He is selling commercial cooling equipment this season out of Abilene.

R. J. O'Donnell, Interstate's vice-president and general manager, was expected back momentarily from a trip east where among other things it was reported he sat in for a few hours on the government suit then in progress at New York.

Mrs. Lucille Van Scoy of Cooper, daughter of Henry Sparks there, has been headquartering three days in University Park attending the Methodist School Assembly at Southern Methodist University. Others in the Sparks family were here at the same time. Bryan Sparks, manager of the Grand at Cooper, brought his wife to this medical center for surgical treatment.

Hollis Boren of Memphis was in town booking for his theatres the number of which he recently narrowed down by sale of the new Palace at Jacksboro to Mrs. Trixiana Jack . . . Frederick Hill, manager of the Iras at Fairfield, came up to advance bookings for his theatre.

Jack Groves, former UA salesman, now owner of the Queen at Houston, arrived Monday by car for a day's booking. He exhibited an enlarged photo of his prize winning Cocker Spaniel which has taken down several ribbons and championships.

Ray Higdon, assistant general manager of the Griffith Circuit at Kansas City, and Horace Falls of the same title with the Griffith division in Oklahoma City, were on the Dallas Row, Wednesday, dropping in on several film and theatre executives.

Van Chamberlain of Freer operating there and at Benavides and Mirando City, was one of the infrequent visitors of the week on the mission of booking . . . Robert, of National Theatre Supply Co., is taking his two-week vacation in Colorado.

W. J. (Dutch) Cammer, Monogram's office manager, was in Memphis this week attending the national Shrine convention. He's a member of the crack drill team here.

Mart Cole of Rosenberg tarried only a few hours here the other day and contacted goings on at Yoakum where the Grand is being modernized, following fire damage. Cole goes back and forth from his home to the new house where he and his partner, Rude Garbade, are making sure that the job will be right in every detail.

R. B. Weatherall reports a lull in all lines has been the experience in his town of Madisonville . . . C. D. Touchon, traveling auditor for United Artists, in town for a stay, was in front of a radio as news flashed of Italy's declaring war. He threw off his glasses and declared an uncompromising challenge to the newest foe of the Allies. Charlie is a Frenchman and served as a captain in the U. S. Army during the last World War.

Homer Mulkey spent the weekend on the Row driving down with J. C. Parker of Dalhart . . . P. V. Williams of Munday, and his partner, T. J. Hooser, of Seymour, made practically every exchange during a two-day visit.

Don Douglas of the R&R circuit said construction started this week on the new R&R theatre at Crockett . . . John Stewart of Kaufman was in heavy rain coming over Monday morning and indicated high waters of the Trinity's east fork might prevent his returning home that day. He has been caught in such predicaments before, friends say.

The W. W. McNatt's of Naples, Daingerfield and Hughes Springs, drove in Tuesday as usual, reporting plenty of rain. They have been "two-timing" this market every week since establishment of their present three situations, and odds were they would be back Friday.

Stanley Swift, R&R partner at Cameron, was here during the week conferring with Don Douglas who looks after the product for those houses.

Paramount Director Films Background for "Texas"

AUSTIN—James Hogan, director of the Paramount's "Texas," was here over the weekend with James Lederer, Paramount newsreel photographer for the southwest, to shoot background and atmospheric pictures for the film which will be premiered in Austin. The picture deals with the modern, motorized Texas Rangers.

Shorts taken here were of the state capitol, the University of Texas tower, and Camp Mabry.

Award Cleburne Patron Damages for Injury

DALLAS—By an agreed judgment in Judge W. H. Atwell's federal court, a barber at Cleburne, Tex., was awarded $2,000 in personal damages claimed to have been received when he sat down "in a seat that wasn't there" in the Palace at Cleburne. The defendants were Frank Aydelotte, manager, and the Griffith Amusement Co. The barber claimed also that no usher escorted him down the aisle, and that his injuries incapacitated him from doing barber work since.

Theo Miller Adds Third House With Talco Buy

DALLAS—Theo Miller, a Texas exhibitor for years, whose latest successful small town ventures in new situations at Quitman and Emory have caused considerable comment, has made a circuit out of his business by adding a third house, the Talco at Talco. Miller completed the lease last week with Jefferson Amusement Co., who formerly operated the house.

Mackenzie King Clips Deleted by Theatres

TORONTO—Self-imposed censorship has been put into effect with a considerable number of theatres in the Dominion with respect to the showing of pictures in which Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, prime minister of Canada, appears because of adverse audience reaction which is said to be due to discontent among the people over Canada's war effort under the guidance of Premier King. No action has been taken by the Ontario censor board, but a number of chain executives and important exhibitors have formally notified Chairman O. J. Silverthorne that pictures of Mackenzie King have been removed from current newsreels. It has been pointed out by Hon. M. F. Hepburn, premier of Ontario, that the provincial censor board had not ordered the deletion of the Mackenzie King clips, but that it had been done by the theatre officials because the clips had evoked "demonstrations of such a vociferous nature it was believed advisable to eliminate the scenes."

Among those who notified the board of such action was J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., who stated: "We have always endeavored to avoid matters of controversial nature on our screens and we feel it was in the best interest of our patrons to eliminate the item. It was the feeling of our managers of the Imperial and Uptown theatres to eliminate these clips because of the very bad audience reaction, which consisted of boos and hisses. We have also been advised by our district manager in British Columbia that these clips received an adverse audience reaction of a similar type."

The development has aroused considerable newspaper comment in support of the theatre managers and the theatres mentioned as having deleted the Premier King clips include: Uptown, Imperial and Shea's, Toronto; Capitol, Ottawa; Regent, Brockville; Patricia, London; Grand, Sudbury, and Capitol, Kitchener. The managers at Windsor, Ont., had not censored the news reels but the Windsor Daily Star declared:

"Local theatre managers are quoted to the effect that newsreels depicting Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King at the opening of Parliament have not been scissored here and that there have been no demonstrations of hostility toward the prime minister among members of their well-behaved audiences. Has there been any applause for Mr. King? The utter absence of that usually significant expression of esteem may be almost as ominous as the echoing catcall or the rasping raspberry."

Canada at a Convention—

Advertising Paper Is Closely Scrutinized

TORONTO—The Ontario film censor board is keeping a watchful eye on the newspaper advertising and accessories released with current films with a view to controlling any and all display announcements which might not be appropriate because of the war or otherwise. Considerably more material of this type has been inspected in recent months than in previous periods but the number of rejections under the provincial regulations has been relatively low.

According to Chairman O. J. Silverthorne, there has been a marked increase in advertising items submitted to the board, the number dealt with during the recent fiscal year being 38,967 as compared with 29,383 during the year ending March 31, 1939, and 30,289 in the preceding 12 months.

In the last year, 194 advertising displays were ruled out for various causes, while 28 other items were passed after alterations had been made in the copy. During the previous 12 months, 156 pieces were rejected entirely and 118 were altered on the instructions of the board. In the year ending March 31, 1938, there were 153 rejections, and 68 advertisements were revised.

Universal Sales Meet Starts in Toronto

TORONTO—The annual sales convention of Empire-Universal Films is taking place at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, with home office and branch officials from all parts of the Dominion in attendance for the purpose of getting organized for the new season in the distribution and exploitation of Universal and Republic product and the British features which have continued to come from the London studios despite war difficulties.

The first two days were devoted to matters pertaining to Universal under the direction of A. W. Perry, general manager of the Canadian company, assisted by Clair Hague, Universal representative. W. A. Scully, general sales manager, headed the representation from Universal headquarters in New York as has been his custom for several years. Two more days were devoted to the Universal program, with selling angles for the coming year looming to the fore.

Consider Republic Product

With a break in conferences on Sunday, the convention turned to Republic pictures for two days, and a prominent part in these proceedings is scheduled to be played by James R. Grainger, president of Republic. British pictures for early release are to come in for attention on the closing day. Two dinners were included in the convention program, with theatre officials and other prominent men of the trade as guests of honor. One was addressed by Scully, while the second will have Mr. Grainger as a speaker.

Empire-Universal home office officials at the meetings include president O. Hanson, vice-president Paul Nathanson, general manager Perry, sales manager Harry Paynter, exploiteer Walter Kennedy, Harry Wright and Doug Evans.

Attending from the Toronto office are Frank Fisher, branch manager, Sam Brent and Joseph Polanski, with Clair Hague present in his official capacity. Out-of-town representation includes M. Isman, Montreal branch manager, and Larry Druxelman, office manager of Montreal; Jerry Hoyt, branch manager at St. John, N. B.; George Vaughan, Winnipeg manager; W. Blankstein, Calgary branch manager, and Ben Plottel, manager at Vancouver, B. C.

A note of confidence rang through the sessions on opening day when the speakers outlined plans for the 1940-41 season, the feeling being that the industry had had the experience of troubled times during the pre-war depression and could continue to hold its own with the help of salesmanship and showmanship.

Mrs. Applebaum Finishes 800-Seater Near Toronto

TORONTO—Mrs. Eva Applebaum has completed the construction of the Roxy in New Toronto, a suburban town of 7,500. The house has a capacity of 800. Equipment supplied by the Perkins Electric Co., Toronto, has been installed.

N. L. Nathanson Named CBC Vice-Chairman

TORONTO—At a meeting of the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., was appointed vice-chairman of the government-sponsored radio chain in succession to General Victor W. Odlum who has been appointed to command the second Canadian division of the overseas forces.

Nathanson's name was prominently mentioned a year ago when Chairman Brockington stepped out to receive an appointment at the hand of prime minister King, but General Odlum was named to the CBC post instead, with Rene Morin being the choice as head of the board. For the past four years Nathanson has been a governor of the radio commission and a liaison officer between radio and screen in the Dominion.

F-P Pushes Completion of Niagara Falls Seneca

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT. — Although many building projects have been halted because of war conditions, the work of completing the Seneca here is being pressed by Famous Players Canadian Corp., and it is expected that the house will be ready for operation in July. This is the first period, or atmospheric, theatre to be erected by the Canadian circuit. Decision to construct the Seneca, planned some months ago, was due to a desire to have an attractive theatre at Niagara Falls which is an important border point and one which is visited by thousands of U. S. tourists each year.

Other theatre projects are being held in abeyance and it is understood that the new circuit house at Guelph, Ont., will not be opened until the autumn, although it is completed.

King's Birthday Holiday Occasions Extra Matinee

TORONTO—Many neighborhood and suburban theatres of Toronto and exhibitors of other cities worked in an extra matinee on June 13 which had been declared a legal holiday by the Dominion government in honor of King George's Birthday. Schools, banks, financial institutions, various government departments and many offices were closed for the day but factories and industrial plants continued in operation because of the war. Theatres which derived the most benefit were those which do not have afternoon performances every day.

Biamonte Taking Tenders For Niagara Renovation

TORONTO—F. Biamonte, co-proprietor of the Hollywood, Niagara Falls, Ont., has called for tenders for the remodeling of the theatre and new equipment including heating and air conditioning systems and a modern lighting installation. The Hollywood seats 815. It will shortly have new opposition in the scheduled opening in July of the Seneca by Famous Players.

F-P District Heads Ponder New Season

TORONTO—District managers of Famous Players Canadian Corp. attended a conference at the head office in Toronto where plans for the coming season were outlined and discussed. No announcement was made of decisions and there was no information as to the time and place for the annual eastern managers' convention. One official tersely remarked that "no convention might be held" but it is believed that the managers of the eastern provinces will be brought together about the end of July, as intended, without a pretentious program such as that which was enjoyed at Niagara Falls last summer when representatives from coast to coast took part in a three-day session.

The proposed western regional convention at Jasper, in the Canadian Rockies, in the last week in July has been called off, and a meeting is to be held in Vancouver. On various occasions it has been suggested that the western conference be held at Jasper, a mountain resort, but each time there has been some development which has caused a switch to Winnipeg or some other large western city.

Among those present at the Toronto meeting were L. I. Berg, Pacific Coast supervisor; E. A. Zorn of Winnipeg; Don Gauld, assistant district manager at Winnipeg; Jack Arthur, Western Ontario supervisor; M. Stein of Toronto; F. H. Gow, suburban theatre supervisor of Vancouver; vice-president J. J. Fitzgibbons; B. Geldsaler, director of booking; T. J. Bragg, secretary-treasurer, and R. W. Bolstad, comptroller.

Toronto Operators' Union Officials at IA Meet

TORONTO—Officials of the Toronto Operators' Union attended the 35th annual convention of the IATSE at Louisville, Ky. The Toronto delegation was headed by W. P. Covert, a vice-president for many years; president Charles Dentelbeck, A. Milligan of the Imperial, Toronto, and Dave Siegel of the Casino. These officers enjoyed a short vacation following the convention. Dentelbeck is one of the original employes of Famous Players Canadian Corp. and has occupied the post of supervisor of projection at the head office for a decade or more.

Jack Saunders a Delegate

LONDON, ONT.—Jack Saunders, former manager of the Grand, was a delegate for the local unit, No. 105, at the IATSE convention at Louisville.

Ernest L. Sanders

LONDON, ONT.—Ernest L. Sanders, one-time manager of the Star here, which has been closed for many years, died suddenly at the age of 55. At one time he also managed a theatre in St. Thomas, 18 miles from London.

Ray Lewis' Action Against ITA Bulletin to Court

TORONTO—An action for alleged libel instituted against the house organ of the Independent Theatres Association and various members of the organization by Ray Lewis, publisher of the Canadian Moving Picture Digest, reached the court stage at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, when F. H. Barlow, master of the supreme court of Ontario, allowed an application by the plaintiff to add the names of 25 persons to the list of defendants. The master ruled, however, that the association itself was not a partnership within the meaning of the law and accordingly struck it out as a defendant.

In the argument by counsel it was contended that the organization was an independent body which was not carried on for the purpose of profit or gain and could not be sued as in the case of an unincorporated unit.

Proceedings are expected to continue against the various officers and members of the ITA and the publication of which Mrs. S. H. Falk is editor, N. A. Taylor, Harold Kay, Ben Ulster, Harry Firestone, J. O. Scott, A. Snider and various others. The suit arose over comment published in the Canadian Independent some months ago to which Ray Lewis, publisher of the Digest and also a theatre proprietor in Toronto, is alleged to have taken exception.

Monogram Pictures Is Chartered in Canada

OTTAWA—Formal announcement has been made by the Canadian government of the incorporation under a Dominion charter of a company to be known as Monogram Pictures of Canada Limited, the capital structure being 50,000 shares without nominal or par value, the headquarters to be at Toronto. Monogram product has been distributed by Regal Films Limited for a number of years but no details are available as to the purpose of the separate company.

Another recent incorporation is that of Esquire Films, Ltd., with headoffice listed at Toronto, the purpose of which has been withheld for the time being.

Book Summer Roadshows For Toronto Alexandra

TORONTO—An indication of the entertainment trend in Toronto during warfare is the formal announcement by Manager Rowley that the Royal Alexandra, the home of stage drama, will reopen shortly for a summer season of roadshows in which a number of important stars will appear, these including screen artists who are out of pictures temporarily. This will be the first time in years that the Royal Alexandra has had a summer season, ventures along this line some time ago having been stock offerings.

There has been no suggestion that any local moving picture or combination houses will close down for the summer.

Zoe Akins Chore

HOLLYWOOD — Zoe Akins is scripting "Jane Addams and Hull House" for Charles R. Rogers. Columbia will release.

TORONTO

ONE of the first Canadians to be decorated for gallantry during the present war is Flying Officer Oliver Russell Donaldson of the Royal Air Force who has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for a fighting feat he performed in action over Belgium. Before his enlistment in 1938 Donaldson had leanings toward a screen career and has been remembered for a bit part which he played in "Silent Barriers" with Richard Arlen. Donaldson is now 28 years of age.

The Empire-Universal convention in Toronto has served to bring together three of the Plottel brothers in the Canadian film business, Brother Ben having come from Vancouver to meet Joe who is with Warner, and Mark, recently appointed manager of the Toronto RKO office. Leslie remains on the Atlantic Coast with RKO at St. John and the fifth brother is on the Pacific Coast at Vancouver, but Ben, Joe and Mark had quite a family reunion.

Col. John A. Cooper spent several days in Ottawa looking after the affairs of the national film board. Announcement that M. Neville Kearney had resigned as secretary of the British Film Producers Ass'n recalls that he represented the British film industry at the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa in 1932 when a move was made to adopt a British film quota for the whole Empire but the Canadian delegation argued that the time was not ripe for such a proposal and that Canada was in a different position because of its proximity to the U. S. The resolution was withdrawn.

Manager Dave Gordon of the Oriole in North Toronto made a hit when he presented a complete encyclopaedia to the Hodgson Public School where a reference library has been created. The set is made up of volumes which are being sold with admissions at the Oriole from week to week.

Jerry Loughlin, promotional manager of the London Free Press, has enlisted in the Royal Canadian Navy. For some years Loughlin has extended considerable cooperation to theatre managers in the working up of publicity tieups and cooperative pages with merchants. He will be missed by the exhibitors.

George Law, veteran exhibitor and former exchange manager, has resigned as manager of the recently-opened Biltmore in Oshawa, Ont., and has returned to Toronto. The theatre will be looked after by F. H. Falk, one of the owners . . . Claude Hunter, acting manager of the Uptown in the absence through illness of Fred Trebilcock, decked out the whole front of the house with naval and other flags in profusion for the showing of "For Freedom," propaganda feature which already looks headed for a long run. Trebilcock, by the way, is recovering nicely from the operation for appendicitis which he had to undergo in Miami.

Larry Graburn has returned to Toronto headoffice of Famous Players after several months in Halifax, N. SAINT JOHN was roused to new heights of loyalty and patriotism at a "Win the War" rally which was held at the Capitol recently when the principal speaker was Prof. Trueman of Mount Allison University, Sackville, N. B. Nearly 2,000 persons in the theatre and an estimated 3,000 in King Square, where loud-speakers carried the program, adopted in toto a resolution supporting the government's war efforts, and a copy of the resolution has been forwarded to both the federal and provincial governments. The rally was held from 7:30 to 8:30 and all other theatres in Saint John, Fairville and West Saint John remained closed until 9 o'clock as their part in supporting the meeting.

P. J. Hogan, Paramount branch manager, has returned home after attending the convention in Hollywood . . . L. McKenzie, Vitagraph branch manager, has attended his company's convention which was held in Pittsburgh.

At a benefit show for war purposes, a midnight show held June 9, the Jubilee, Stellarton, N. S., had a return engagement of "Second Fiddle" which proved very popular.

The 8th anti-aircraft battery, stationed at Saint John, were given a very enjoyable concert recently by the Film Girls' Patriotic Club. The general convener was Lillian Bromfield of United Artists, assisted by Marguerite Snell and Helen Selick of Regal Films, Priscilla Coffey and Paula Darrah of Maritime Film Co. and Flora Thurston of Vitagraph. After the entertainment, the club members were guests of Major and Mrs. E. D. Walsh and officers of the battery.

Recent visitors to Filmrow included Jack Kiely of Montreal, owner of several theatres in St. John's, Newfoundland, and Malcolm E. Walker of the Gaiety, Halifax, N. S. and Imperial, Sackville, N. B.

L. A. Marcheterre has opened a new theatre, the Canadian, at St. Quentin, N. B. and will be operating six nights a week but no matinees.

Loew's London Ltd., Says Policy Change Must Wait

TORONTO—Loew's London Theatres, Ltd., operating Loew's in London, Ont., has notified shareholders that the war has made it impossible to secure a general revision of the operation policy of the theatre as instructed by stockholders at the annual meeting four months ago, complaint having been made that certain charges were too high. Announcement is made, however, negotiations with Loew's, Inc., have resulted in a saving in film rentals dating back to Sept. 1, 1939, and in other items.

Louis Gauthier Promoted To Manager of Cartier

HULL, QUE.—Louis Gauthier, assistant manager of the Capitol in Sudbury, Ont., under Sid Scott, has been promoted to manager of the Cartier here. He is succeeded in Sudbury by Max Phillips, formerly assistant at the Capitol, North Bay.

Gauthier was the recipient of a gift from the staff of the Sudbury Capitol before leaving to assume his new post.

F-P Retires $700,000 in Bonds; Meets Dividend

TORONTO — Famous Players Canadian Corp. has not only paid off a block of serial bonds which reached maturity this month but has announced the redemption of a similar block which was scheduled to fall due June 1, 1941, the grand total of bonds thus retired being $700,000. In addition, the big chain is taking care of the payment of a dividend at the end of June on the outstanding common shares of the company for the second quarter of 1940. Disbursements for the first six months of the current calendar year have totaled 50 cents on each share of common and this amount is equal to the dividends for the corresponding period of 1939—before the outbreak of war.

The bonds which have matured had a total par value of $350,000 and the same amount is involved in the redemption of the bonds which were to have been paid off one year hence. Stock exchanges in Canada have been formally notified of the company's action.

President N. L. Nathanson was recently quoted as saying that theatre revenue in Canada had been steadily maintained in spite of the war. Apart from usual theatre operations, the company had extended considerable co-operation to the government in assisting the war effort.

Would Boot German Music Compositions

TORONTO—Film producers may have to check up on the musical backgrounds or incidental music in current or future pictures with a view to eliminating the works of modern German composers if their productions are to be acceptable in the Dominion.

Two of Canada's leading musicians are heading a movement for the banning of modern German music, classical and otherwise, following reports of German atrocities in occupied territory, particularly toward refugees. There is also an important point which is engaging the attention of the Canadian authorities, namely the ban on trading with the enemy under a wartime prohibitory measure. It has been declared that the use of German music of living composers necessitates the payment of royalties or fees for performing rights and these would find their way to the enemy, thus constituting financial aid to the foe.

The musicians who have started the campaign against modern German music are Sir Ernest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and Reginald Stewart, conductor of the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra. They deleted the works of Richard Strauss of Munich, Germany, and other modern Teutonic music from concert programs and are agitating for a complete ban on such compositions in theatres and on the concert stage.

VANCOUVER

IN RECOGNITION of the rapidly advancing importance of motion pictures as a valuable element in both recreation and education, the University of British Columbia announces a series of lectures on "Motion Pictures in Education," to be given the latter part of this month and beginning of next. The director is to be Dr. Brodshaug of Columbia University, New York, and research director for Erpi classroom films.

With the wrecking under way preparatory to the erection of that new Granville Street theatre, W. J. Long has come out with the name, the Vogue. It will seat 1,350.

Mrs. M. L. Murray, exhibitor of the Log Cabin Theatre, Lilooet, B. C., flew east recently and, like a good newspaper woman, told the readers of the three Murray weeklies all about it—sensations, reactions, impressions, etc., etc.—and it is very good reading, too.

Larry Bearg and Frank Gow are due back this week from the Famous Players convention in Toronto . . . Ken McRea offered Metro's "Waterloo Bridge," as the surprise preview at the Kerrisdale last week and its reception more than justified the selection.

George Gerrard, who has been a member of the B. C. Projectionists Society (348) for a quarter of a century, was elected chairman of the grievance committee of the Vancouver trades and labor council.

Bob Foster, reminiscing, recalled how 348, projectionists union, started 26 years ago with a membership of 40 which has quadrupled since then and has jurisdiction over the largest area in the Dominion, with one member operating 300 miles away from headquarters. He also recalled the time when the majority of the audiences at Pouce Coupe used to arrive at the theatre on skis, snowshoes, and by dog team.

Leon Shelly, Screenadz, is again entering the field as producer, this time in collaboration with Ray Fernstrom on a B. C. travelogue, sponsored by the provincial government.

Jack Muir, FP executive, is another one who has stepped briskly out of convalescence into harness again.

WAR NEWS on the radio is an increasingly strong competitor of the theatres which may yet be obliged to broadcast the news between films. Ideal holiday weather is tempting executives to cut short their business days and go golfing in the afternoon, while the sales forces are heading towards the country combining business with a motor holiday.

Few new faces were seen around Filmrow. Exhibitors who called included U. H. Pelletier of the Alma, St. Joseph d'Alma; Ambrose Nolan of the Pix, Aylmer; Georges Champagne, Roxy and Auditorium, Shawinigan Falls; Leo Choquette, Star, Watherloo, and Rialto, Farnham; Paul Cardinal of the Roxy, Canadian and Starland, Montreal, and A. Ringuette, Parisien, Berthierville.

Empire-Universal has placed the British government feature film "For Freedom" at the Palace. The picture details the fight with the Graf Spee and its subsequent sinking . . . Gracie Fields will give a series of concerts across Canada in connection with war charities. Royal receptions are being planned for her . . . The enterprise shown by newsreel cameramen in securing graphic war pictures has caused the newsreels to grow in popularity with the result that business in that direction has improved. Managers are grateful to the censors for quick release of important news pictures.

Consolidated Theatres has placed facilities at the disposal of the committee of recreation for the Montreal district enabling them to send parties of soldiers to the theatres free. Joe Lightstone, proprietor of the Orpheum, announces he will reserve 100 seats free each evening except Saturday and Sunday for enlisted men. The Forum has also been admitting a number of soldiers free to wrestling matches.

When the customers aren't shivering, they'll be roaring; and between chills and laughs they are sure to have the time of their lives while seeing this smart-cracking, fast-moving, interest-commanding comedy mystery. There is never a dull moment, and with audiences everywhere clamoring for diversion in the lighter vein, the feature should register as one of the best grossers of the summer. The screenplay is a masterpiece of brittle dialogue and priceless gag situations; the production is solidly mounted; it is played with a delightful tongue-in-cheek interpretation by an excellent cast, topped by Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard; and George Marshall's able direction knits its various threads into a piece of topnotch entertainment. Story concerns the adventures of an heiress in an allegedly haunted castle.

As the western scene goes in the minds of the fans "Bad Man From Red Butte" should satisfy them for it has a full complement of the tried and tested ingredients that have done the trick in the past. In addition it has a few twists, new to westerns, but otherwise from the standard dramatic catalogue. It is capably acted, humorously relieving. Johnny Mack Brown enters the scene in the usual way—he comes into a town without a sheriff and consequently without any kind of law except that which passes the muster of a local saloon keeper, who is also the culprit in the case. From that point on fists fly, laughs come easily and the violent movement of the story fills in. Fuzzy Knight has a number of good comic moments. There is effective music. Sam Taylor directed.

In this day and age of films that at least have the benefit of effective performances to heighten the story, along comes this throwback to the middle motion picture age. It has very little to recommend it to any audience, whether they be sensation seekers, as the title may lead them to believe, or just habitual moviegoers. The story: a divorcee carries on with a gigolo. Her grown daughter carries on with youngsters of her own set. They hate each other. The gigolo meets and falls for the girl and decides to get a "real" job. Complications enter into the narrative and they are solved in haphazard manner. At best, the film offers jitterbugs in their gyrations and an advertisement for a Mexican nightery on Olvera Street in Los Angeles, and not a good one.

Bitter and breath-taking indictment of the intolerance from which stemmed the madness and carnage that today has half the civilized world in its grip, here is an answer, in part at least, to the bewildering question about how it all started. Its theme deals principally with the persecution of minority groups in Germany immediately following Hitler's ascension to power. It unfolds a heart-breaking story of how friend turned against friend, son against father, brother against brother. Of necessity, then, the picture assumes sombre and depressing proportions. But for all its austerity, and the resentment it will kindle in the hearts of liberty-loving people, it is almost hypnotically engrossing and will probably find its way on the "must see" lists of most theatre patrons. Tim McCoy in a western which keeps to the established order of things and in the production he generally acquits himself of the task with honors. But even in westerns, when the story is amateurishly written, particularly where dialogue is concerned, the audience is aware, or will be. This one comes from the cut and dried formula wherein McCoy, with an already established reputation as a handy fellow with his Colt and fists, rides into a mess of trouble. For their required quality a number of events are worked into the yarn just to let McCoy demonstrate his abilities. Then he proceeds, in his own way, to clean up the town and set things aright. This is done right up to the last foot of film. The idea was good but it seemed to have misfired.

From French studios, "The Mayor's Dilemma" is another unpretentious, ironic, underexposed opus that should provide a treat to by now starved patrons of the foreign film. The French character with its acute individualism, serves to carry the brunt of the drama. This is a story of a group of innocent burghers who, during the last war, fall afoul the German army in a small town on the banks of the Marne. Chiefly, it concerns the mayor and a landowner, who have been quarreling for 20 years over the latter's right of way through the former's barn. Their children contribute to the story as lovers whose wedding night causes five innocents to almost fall victim to a firing squad. The story was neatly concocted and directed. It evolves on the screen as pleasant stuff, entirely satisfactory.

Pretentiously cast and produced, at times highly amusing, this lacks the one essential that makes for ace-high entertainment—a coherent story—and gives the impression of being the victim of hit-or-miss scripting that may hurt its chances with some audiences. However, Roland Young is his delightfully droll self, Hugh Herbert contributes plenty of zany humor, and the rest of the cast—particularly Nancy Kelly and Robert Cummings—manage to overcome, to some extent, at least, the story weaknesses. Young, the black sheep of a straight-laced Boston family, has been an "exile" in New York for 20 years, during which his daughter has grown up in Bostonian society. To aid her in marrying the man she loves, he overcomes the intolerance of his own unforgiving father. Albert S. Rogell directed.

"The Song of the Road" adds another great personality to the annals of the screen, but somehow fails to click as solid entertainment. Here Harry Lauder appears at a disadvantage as an actor, yet advantageously as a variety performer who can put over Scottish songs and all the business in the style that has made him internationally famous. He sings a half-dozen songs as the story plods its way, telling of the trials of a troupe of caravan players who wander from highland town to highland town for one-night engagements. A daughter runs off with a wastrel and dies in childbirth. Another becomes a singer. The child born to the first is taken and raised by Lauder. The story concludes when the wastrel sets fire to the wagons. A few are saved and Lauder and troupe are off again to provide entertainment. At best, it's a novelty.

French. English titles. The exhibitor catering to devotees of the foreign film has in 'The Phantom Wagon" a good dramatic offering which is bolstered by such well-known Gallic names as Julien Duvivier, who directed; Louis Jouvet, Pierre Fresnay, Marie Bell, Micheline Francey. The story is based on a novel by Selma Lagerlof. It is a study in the regeneration of a drunkard and wife-beater who is brought back from the dead to lead a virtuous life with his family. The title comes from a legend which tells how those about to die hear the creaking and rumbling of an old cart that dogs their footsteps. The attention to atmosphere in the film is admirable and only in the trick, double exposure shots, does it fall short. At any rate it is a compelling, mystical experience for the audience.

SELLING ANGLES: "Mad Youth"

There is a pressbook accompanying this item. In it there are such gems as "Willy Castello is the Clark Gable of Europe," "Is Jittermania An Omen of World-Wide Disaster?," "Mary Ainslee is One of Hollywood's Most Favored Starlets . . ." "Betty Atkinson, Named World's Champion Drum Majorette," "It Has Dramatic Color, Intriguing Situations, and Great Emotional Intensity." Let the buyer beware, as the oldtime Greeks put it so well.

CATCHLINES:

Pitfalls of This Streamlined Age Revealed.

Mothers vs. Daughters . . . The Goal a Man.

Is the Younger Generation Really at Fault?

SELLING ANGLES: "Bad Man From Red Butte"

In addition to the regulation exploitation it is suggested here that the exhibitor promote a contest in which potentially interested spectators are invited to write limericks, humorous or otherwise. For this give them free passes. Plug the musical content over the local radio station or in the local paper's radio column. Mount a life size image of Brown on a rearing horse in the prominent place in the lobby. Emphasize the humorous content. Promote newsstand throwaways with western fiction.

CATCHLINES:

He Was Not the Bad Man From Red Butte . . . That Was His Brother . . . But to Prove His Innocence and Purpose He Had to Ride, Fight and Shoot.

He Came to Town . . . Cleaned Out the "Varmints" . . . And Made It Fit To Live In.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Ghost Breakers"

Call attention to the fact this is the second creepy co-starring effort for Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard. A ballyhoo truck with a spooky house on it, doing all sorts of tricks, will attract plenty of attention. Sliding doors and other tricks should be set up in the lobby. Plant ads in local papers reading: "Are you having trouble with a haunted house? I take care of ghosts or money refunded—Bob Hope." To maintain suspense, do not permit patrons to be seated during the performance.

CATCHLINES:

The Blues Haven't a Ghost of a Chance . . . When You See This Spine-Tingling, Laugh-a-Minute Thriller.

The credits for this film state that the story was inspired by Rodin's sculpture called "The Citizen's of Calais." By all means get hold of a reproduction of the work and use it in programs and on posters. Contact the local language teacher for cooperation. The foreign restaurants in the community should also be contacted for posters. There are English subtitles. The film has excellent fidelity to the 1914 period. The exhibitor, knowing where his foreign film audience is apt to be found—in bookstores, art galleries and the like—should see to it that these places are well supplied with advance printed matter.

CATCHLINES:

Firing Squads on Their Wedding Night . . . It Took a Foreign Invasion to Solve a Dispute Over a Barn.

SELLING ANGLES: "Frontier Crusader"

Sell this one on the basis of the magnetism of Tim McCoy's name to the local gentry. Set up a number of dummy blasting powder cans in the lobby with appropriate identification. There are at least five heavies in the picture. Arrange their photographs in a life-size display and invite the audience to guess at their various criminal potentialities. In this display also have a blank frame with a big question mark. The story has sort of master mind behind the dirty work.

CATCHLINES:

When Tim McCoy Comes to Town Things Start to Pop . . . But the Wrong Way for Unscrupulous Desperadoes.

"The Frontier Crusader" He's a Mild Man But Has to Meet "Unusual" Situations With Bullets and Fists.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Mortal Storm"

It should be possible to sell this with ease on the basis of its timeliness—because of current international developments—as well as through the strong cast headed by James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan and Frank Morgan. Another selling point is the widely-read novel by Phyllis Bottome, on which this was based. Blow up newspaper headlines as lobby center-pieces. Publicize the picture with foreign groups from the lands threatened or already invaded by the Nazis. If the German consul will accept your invitation, ballyhoo the fact to the skies.

CATCHLINES:

The Stupendous Story of a World in Turmoil . . . And of a Family Who Sought Only Peace.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Phantom Wagon"

To your bag of tricks for foreign features add stunts slanted at merchandising this offering's dramatic content. Publicize the author and cast, not entirely unknown elements in most situations already established as foreign outlets. Circulate French lineage groups and and tie up with students of the language. Secure a creaking old wagon or cart and have a cancealed driver guide it around the neighborhood as "The Phantom Wagon." Not a pleasant film, this should be sold as a drama of regeneration.

CATCHLINES:

A Story of Regeneration and Reclamation . . . And the Long Trip Back to Virtue.

A Phantom Cart Dogs the Footsteps of the Dying . . . And Brings One Back to Life and Family.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Song of the Road"

It is quite needless to state here that Lauder's international reputation as an entertainer is the chief point of exploitation for this production. In addition, create interest in the travelogue character of the film. Many of the scenes were shot in the Scottish highlands and are beautifully photographed, contributing more to the story than the screenplay. Lauder is at his best when he is singing and dancing. The atmosphere seems authentic. It's 80 per cent ham, but the balance has possibilities.

CATCHLINES:

A Grand Old Favorite Returns With the Songs and the Warm-Hearted Laughter That Have Endeared Him to the World.

Harry Lauder in a Rollicking Vagabond Tale.

SELLING ANGLES: "Private Affairs"

Give plenty of marquee and advertising attention to the cast, headed by Roland Young, Hugh Herbert and Nancy Kelly. As a title tieup, hold a special "sneak" showing of the picture, inviting selected patrons and cautioning them it is a "private affair." Hand out comment cards and use the favorable reactions in advertising. Stills showing an automobile in a race with a locomotive can be planted in insurance company windows on a "safety" tieup. Invite all former residents of Boston to attend at reduced rates.

It's Gay, Zestful Comedy . . . This Story of a Girl Who Knew Her Own Mind . . . and a Boy Who Didn't.

Short Subject Reviews

Tom Thumb

Vitaphone (Merrie Melody) 7 Mins.

Apparently for variation the creators of this series have, temporarily, laid aside their more Rabelaisian excursions into the realm of humor. Here they venture into childhood nostalgia. Tom Thumb, left home alone by his father, gets into difficulty in a dish filled with water. He is rescued in time by a bird. Papa comes home and thinks the bird responsible. He chases it out. Tom goes after the bird, gets lost and is again rescued by the same bird. Eventually Papa understands and all three are happy. Strictly for the children. In Technicolor.

Wimmin Is a Myskery

Paramount (Popeye) 7 Mins.

One of the better Popeyes. Plenty of imagination went into the plot and it emerges in good shape for first rate amusement. Popeye proposes to Olive. That night she dreams of her future married life with the sailor. It seems they eventually have four smaller carbon copies of Popeye, all of them tough guys and hellions to boot. They make of the dream a nightmare of violence. Eventually Olive awakes. Popeye is calling and he gets a "firm" refusal. Worth while.

Social Security

Columbia 10 Mins.

All the whys and wherefores of the great piece of legislation enacted by the 74th Congress are explained in this interesting reel. It deals with the administration of the Social Security Act and answers a number of questions that should prove helpful.

SHORT OF THE WEEK

Hurdle Hoppers

RKO Pathe (Sportscope) 9 Mins.

For sheer excitement in the sense of motion on the screen this record of the U. S. Army cavalry at Fort Riley, Kansas, will thrill the audience. From start to finish there is action. There is little emphasis on the military utility of horses but a good deal on the sporting side of riding and jumping. Horses, ridden by experts, are taken over all sorts of difficult jumps and the camera was advantageously placed to catch the spectacular action. A high spot of the doings is a dress exhibition by Major Tuttle, familiar in the world of horse shows. The reel closes with a wild dash across country by picked riders. All in all here is something in the line of shorts that should just about leave audiences breathless.

The Egg Hunt

A crackpot professor offers a lecture with the aid of motion pictures. The Technicolor cartoon attempts to satirize similar ventures but instead of being sharp and witty it is dull and preposterous.

Mechanix Illustrated No. 4

There are four definitely interesting items to give plenty of merit and to give spectators an interesting variation from the program. In order are shown the new LaGuardia Airport and its modern technical facilities; where streamlining was born-on the drafting board and its application to modern living; consumer protection by testing various products under over-emphasized conditions and new fire extinguishing methods—with carbon dioxide gas. The color is uniformly good.

Stray Lamb

RKO Pathe (Reelism) 8½ Mins.

As a tongue-in-cheek job of gag writing, this short has plenty of slick humor as Andre Baruch tells it. The plot concerns a lamb that is carried off by an eagle and later rescued by a St. Bernard dog. That's the crux of the matter. But the appellations given to various barnyard and wild animals, plus appropriate subtitling, will supply the laughs. Take away the wires and it will fall apart. At any rate it's good for a laugh in any country understanding the language.

Cinderella's Feller

Vitaphone 19 Mins.

Here is another production aimed strictly and accurately for child audience. Again the Cinderella theme is used with few variations. The story serves to display the talents of skilled youngsters in ballet, tap dancing, singing and the like. As such it is among the best yet seen and the color emphasizes the youngsters' appeal. It was given costly production. It should be a natural for weekend matinees where the younger element predominates.

South of the Boudoir

Columbia (All-Star Comedies) 18½ Mins.

Charley Chase gets into all sorts of difficulty. When the boss announces he is coming over for dinner, Charley's wife leaves in a huff. The boss later meets up with Mrs. Chase and brings her along not knowing she is Charley's wife. It is strictly slapstick comedy of the pie-in-the-face school. Chase has a good gag in the telephone receiver which keeps bobbing after he hangs up on his infuriated wife.

Information Please, No. 11

RKO Pathe 10 Mins.

One of the lesser items in the series. Guest Expert Christopher Morley is in on the charades, poetry, singing and the like. Also on hand are the regulars—Franklyn P. Adams, Oscar Levant and John Kieran.

Columbia

Spoilers of the Range

A real good Charles Starrett western. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fine. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

First National

Castle on the Hudson

Just another Sing Sing yarn . . . if you like prison stuff, it should do all right. Our folks are tired of this type. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Capacity: 200.—Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Broadway Melody of 1940

Business was well above average, and they liked it. More comedy than usual, and they seemed to like it. I like to hear the house rock with laughter, and Smiley Burnette is the only one that can do it regularly. The others, like this one, do well to click half the time. Small town patronage. Capacity: 300.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Gone With the Wind

There is no argument as to the quality of this production, but, oh my, what a shellacking we took. Business couldn't be worse. No matinee first day. Mon., Tues. Weather: Fine. Admission: Advanced prices. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Strange Cargo

Business only slightly above average. Not by any means what a picture of this class is supposed to do, but comments were mostly favorable. Thurs., Fri. Weather: Fair. Small town patronage. Capacity: 300.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Young Dr. Kildare

A fine story and a poor house. Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Paramount

Gulliver's Travels

Just average business but it cost much more than average. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Capacity: 200.—Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

Light That Failed, The

Our Paramount salesman insisted six months ago that this film would be the tops. He was fooled but we weren't. If we had it to do over again, we wouldn't take it free. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Capacity: 200.—Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

RKO Radio

Hunchback of Notre Dame

It was as bad as I thought it would be. Could have been made ten years ago as no improvements were made on the original edition. Still it did nearly average business, which surprised us. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Capacity: 200.—Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

Little Orvie

Gawd! What they do in the name of motion pictures! Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Capacity: 200.—Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

Primrose Path

Very well received here. Ginger Rogers excellent as dramatic star. Business good. Subject matter original. Patron comment good. Let's have more like this one. Fri., Sat., Sun. Small town and rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 400—C. H. Barrs, Marlowe, Kinistino, Sask, Canada.

20th Century-Fox

Boy Friend

A natural in our situation despite heavy rains. Wed., Thurs. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

I Was an Adventuress

The record low of the last six months, and the few that came didn't care for it. Richard Greene has got lots of favorable comments around here in the past, but the good old never-go-wrong public knew that this was one they would enjoy most if they stayed at home. Small town patronage. Capacity: 300.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Johnny Apollo

A topnotch gangster picture with a topnotch cast. Did below average business, however. Afraid this type film fare has lost its draw. Lamour turned in one of her best performances as the honky-tonk queen. Sun., Mon., Tues., Wed. Weather: Hot. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 3,500. Capacity: 450.—Charles S. Hoge, manager, Dickinson, Olathe, Kas.

United Artists

Of Mice and Men

A truly great picture. The cast gave a near perfect portrayal of Steinbeck's book. Not over one out of four understood it, however. This is definitely not a picture for small town patronage. Thurs., Fri. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 3,500. Capacity: 450.—Charles S. Hoge, manager, Dickinson, Olathe, Kas.

Warner

A Child Is Born

This fooled us . . . it did nice business. Half the folks came thinking they were going to see "Birth of a Baby" . . . some complained about being gypped. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Capacity: 200.—Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

Gets Complete Service From Boxoffice Booking Chart

Kansas City—How the Booking Chart, BOXOFFICE service feature, is employed for details on playdate records, cancellations, eliminations, Sunday bookings, film rental charges and percentage ratings over a period of ten months is related by J. W. Grantham of the New Baxter Theatre at Baxter Springs, Kas. His letter to Ben Shlyen, publisher of BOXOFFICE, follows:

"I have been keeping a complete file of your Booking Chart as it appears weekly, pasting in the new weeks until I now have it covering from September 16 to July 20.

"The way I keep it, I think it is the finest record I have ever had. I use a regular black pencil to cross out pictures as I book or play them. I cross out with a blue pencil all cancellations or eliminations and check with a red pencil all Sunday pictures.

"It is interesting and instructive to see this long sheet now, as it shows me at a glance just how I stand with each and every company. Not only that, but I use certain markings to show me how much rental I am paying for each picture. When first-run percentage ratings are available, I add them." (Editor's Note: BOXOFFICE publishes first-run percentage reports weekly).

"When some of the film salesmen try to tell me I am behind on bookings, I have only to consult this sheet to see how I stand. It is wonderful to be able to look at it and tell just what is booked, as all blank spots show unplayed or undated pictures."

PRACTICAL IDEAS BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

More Than 300 Did—

Patrons who followed the request and answered the phone placed in the lobby of the Providence RKO-Albee by House Publicist William Morton, heard a one-minute spiel plugging "My Favorite Wife." The phone was wired to a portable microphone which was set up before a continuous playing phonograph in the basement. A 12-inch record was cut with the film advertising message. Installation and equipment cost the house nothing.

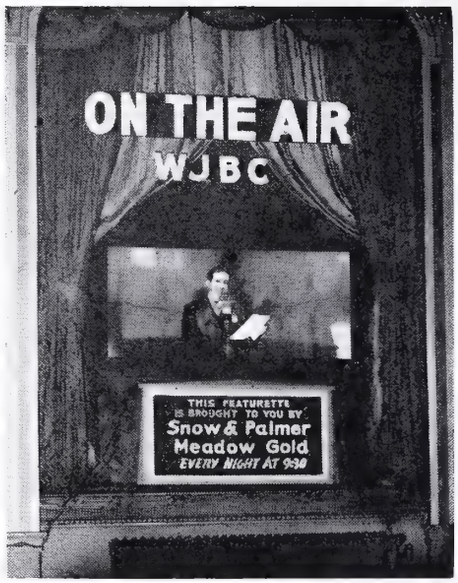
A meaningful slogan is one the midwest chain of Griffith-Dickinson keeps before its managers: "Plan your work . . . Work your plan!"

Educators Test Revivals For Photoplay Study

NEWARK—An experiment to determine the possibility of substituting older "A" pictures for current "B" pictures and of using recommended older films for a planned series of students' matinees, around which curriculum units in photoplay discrimination will be built, will be tried during the academic year 1940-41 under the auspices of the motion picture committee of the N. E. A. department of secondary teachers.

School authorities, in cooperation with theatre managers, will select ten photoplays to be shown during the school year on one afternoon or one Saturday morning each month.

The films thus revived will serve as the basis of a new course in "Types of the Photoplay." The experiment is under the supervision of Dr. William Lewin, of the Weequahic High School here, chairman of a committee of educators who are working in cooperation with Josephine Allensworth of Memphis, chairman of the department committee on school-and-theatre cooperation.



Memory Test in Toronto For "Waterloo Bridge"

TORONTO—A "bridge contest" with readers of the local Globe & Mail asked to send in lists of films with the word "bridge" in the title or in which bridges play important parts, was one of the highlights of Stan Gosnell's campaign on "Waterloo Bridge" at Loew's. Twenty-five pairs of guest tickets were awarded to the winners.

How Edward Brunner, assistant manager, and Phil Laufer, publicist, plugged the New York opening of "The Biscuit Eater" at Loew's Criterion. The youngsters led the dogs around the midtown sector each day after school, their reward a pair of passes each. Another stunt was a 30x40 easel announcing orchids from Walter Winchell, made up of three orchids purchased from a nearby department store. A collar and leash window was promoted at Macy's department store. The theatre front featured a 40x60 blowup from Life magazine's "Movie of the Week" feature on the film.

Radio-Theatre Tieup—

How the Irvin Theatre at Bloomington, Ill., tied up with radio station WJBC and an ice cream company on daily evening news broadcasts. The booth here pictured was prepared at the right of the stage, the broadcast going onto the air and into the auditorium. Auxiliary advertising included a trailer, milk bottle heralds and one-sheets on creamery trucks. The tieup was engineered by Gilbert Brown, Great States circuit district manager.

Broadcasting Children's Performances Benefits

AKRON, OHIO—Ray Essick, manager of the Highland, reports that he has boosted his Saturday matinee juvenile attendance about 25 per cent with a broadcast contest staged over Station WJW. The performances of the children who participate in the broadcast every Saturday morning is recorded and then is run off that same Saturday matinee.

Winners are chosen by an applause recorder and cash prizes totaling $25 are distributed to the children receiving the most applause. Essick states that he has used the stunt five weeks and will continue it another five weeks.

Starz and Norfleet Use Teasers for "Command"

DALLAS—Frank Starz and Hal Norfleet, both old timers in the art of exploitation, dug deep in the stunt bag for "Dark Command." Starting two weeks in advance of its opening at the Majestic, a dozen 24-sheet boards in boxcar letters announced:

"An Important Event In 14 Days." Each succeeding night the figure was changed to read in 13 days, in 12 days and so on until the day before the opening when the boards read "Tomorrow."

NUGGETS

WHEN the farmers came to market the other a. m., they found a group of kids sitting on empty crates—with signs on their backs saying they were waiting for the State Theatre to open. Similar weary but expectant urchins—with appropriate signs on them—were found in other parts of town. It was a stunt of Charlie Moyer's at Hanover, Pa.

Marty Aninsman of the Leader in Philadelphia arranged an "Information Quiz" contest with a local paper, running for 12 weeks. The paper printed questions based on pictures at his house, so readers had to come to the theatre to get the answers. The prize, paid for by the paper, was a trip to Atlantic City.

"Let the Laundry Do It While You See Whether or Not 'Sandy Is a Lady' at the Uptown and Esquire" was the theme of 20,000 heralds distributed by Kansas City laundries for eight days in advance of playdate. F. E. Ritter of the Uptown arranged the tieup—at no cost to the theatres.

A notice in the personals column of the local newspaper offered a pass to either of two Fox first run houses in Kansas City for every pair of discarded baby shoes presented at either boxoffice. The offer was limited to the time preceding the opening of "Sandy Is a Lady."

Manager Jack A. Simons of the Loew-Poli, Hartford, had both his theatre's lobby and front decorated with drawings and cutouts of prehistoric animals during the running of "One Million B. C." Simons put a large cutout of a huge animal in front of the boxoffice, and cut a place in the middle for the boxoffice to do business through. The entire stunt proved an eye-stopper for passersby.

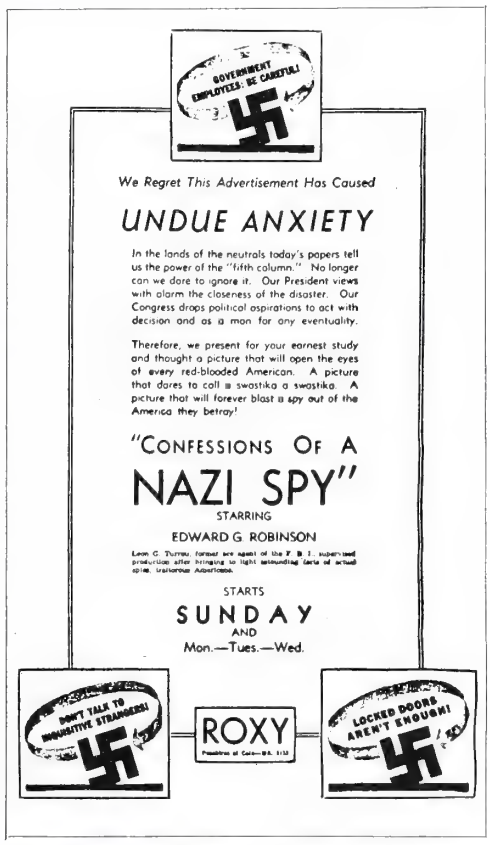
On the back of postcards he mailed to residents of Manly, Ia., inviting them to see "Virginia City," was the handsome, bewhiskered face of "Doc" Twedt, manager of the Lido. It took him over two weeks to grow the whiskers, which were effected particularly for the four-day run of the Warner western.



Staff Distributes Heralds

HARTFORD, CONN.—Members of the service staff of the Loew-Poli distributed several thousand heralds throughout Hartford's residential sections, and also Hartford public schools.

Picturized Novel on Display—

Fifth Avenue window display of the MacMillan Company Book Shop, devoted to the Bette Davis-Charles Boyer co-starrer, "All This, and Heaven Too," taken from the best-selling novel of the same name by Rachel Field.

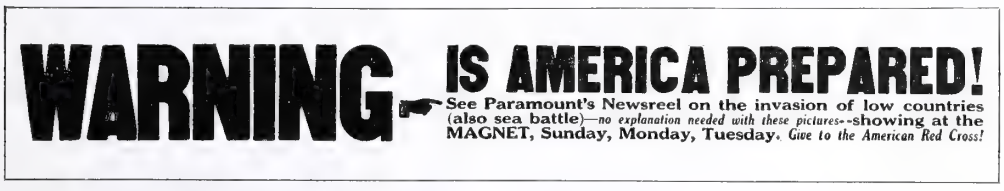
Modern Motif—

How the Roxy in Atlanta boomed a return engagement of "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" in the Atlanta Constitution, morning newspaper. Note the direct emphasis on the "Fifth Column" angle.

"All This, and Heaven Too" Is Tied With Publisher

NEW YORK—One of the most extensive tieups ever arranged between a book publisher and a motion picture company has been set by Warner Bros. and the MacMillan Co., to ballyhoo "All This, and Heaven Too."

A special motion picture edition of the book is being marketed by the publisher. A number of scene stills from the picture have been included, with captions giving credit lines to the Warner film.



The "draw" value of Bette Davis and Charles Boyer as the living counterparts of the fictional characters in the story, affords retail stores over the country another opportunity to cash in on the popularity of this best-seller.

To tie in with the large advertising and publicity campaign being conducted by Warner for the Davis-Boyer film, MacMillan has set up its own promotion and advertising schedule coinciding with picture playdates. Special editions are being mailed to book critics throughout the land.

Warner Philly Houses Run Summer Cooking School

PHILADELPHIA — Twenty-four Warner theatres are cooperating with The Record in conducting cooking schools for patrons. During June, July and August, each house will hold the school for an hour, beginning at 12:30 p. m., a regular admission price admitting the patron to both the school and the matinee.

Tieups with utility companies have provided prizes of roasters, lamps, irons, and electric clocks and other household aids.

A 14-KARAT OPPORTUNITY

THE fellow who coined the phrase, "Opportunity knocks but once," could not have had the motion picture industry in mind, for opportunity keeps right on knocking at its door.

The current instance is in the settlement proceedings of the government suit. And this time it is a golden opportunity that presents itself. But will the industry answer the knock? Or will history once more repeat itself and kill the knock by the knocking from within?

The government's suit against the industry is in process of settlement. Therein the industry has its greatest opportunity to date to come through with a trade practice plan designed for elimination of inter-factional troubles. It will not be a perfect plan—that is, one that will please everybody—but, if it serves the majority, it will contribute much to the industry's future welfare and progress. It presents the opportunity the industry recently has sought to govern itself; and, in this instance, the industry is afforded governmental cooperation, which previously it was denied; and it has all appearances of being a cooperation without the shackles of regulation by a government control body. That is an important consideration in itself.

The truce came at a most propitious time. The foreign situation has accentuated the need for change in the industry—in production, distribution and exhibition methods. All are inter-related and inter-dependent. Each must give consideration to the other and each must lend a willing hand of cooperation to the other. It is just another case of "give and take" and it can't be one-sided. The government, obviously, must be as willing to "give" as it is to "take."

All of the exhibitor's problems boiled down to essentials seem to revolve around three things: 1) What pictures have I bought? 2) What do I pay for them? 3) When do I play them? It's as simple as that. And, naturally, those self-same items concern distributor and producer, too. Questions that can be simmered down to such simple terms should be comparatively easy to solve.

As Spyros Skouras so aptly put it, the industry is in need of a "moral merger." That means that its various branches and their component parts must get together and pull together. That means that if order is to come out of chaos there must be harmony through understanding. That means that there can be no "whole hog" attitudes. And that means compromise or, again, "give" and "take."

Abram F. Myers stated in a bulletin, ". . . it remains to be seen whether the vision exists to seize the present opportunity to put the affairs of the industry on a legal and equitable basis." We believe the vision always has existed, but greed and selfishness have clouded it. That has created uncertainty and uncertainty has held back progress.

And, now, with world conditions what they are, it was never more necessary to remove the uncertainty that beclouds the future of this industry. Time is the essence of the government-industry negotiations. The sooner an acceptable and workable plan (though it may not be perfect) is set into action the better.

Opportunity is knocking—quite loudly this time; it may never come back again. How about opening the door and grasping it firmly and determinedly?

BANKERS' INTERVENTION CHANGES ATTITUDE OF GOVERNMENT IN TRADE ANTI-TRUST SUIT

Said to Have Altered Views of Arnold in "Perilous" Times

By BILL ORNSTEIN

NEW YORK—Banking interests, as represented by Richard C. Patterson jr. and Earl I. McClintock, intervening in the government suit on the night of June 3, after industry leaders failed in their efforts to budge Thurman Arnold on Decoration Day in Washington, have had a direct bearing on the change in the government's stand about theatre divorcement and resumption of trade practice conferences.

It was Patterson and McClintock who invited Arnold to the sedate University Club, off Fifth Ave. and 54th St., for dinner June 3. Also attending were Edwin L. Weisl, a lawyer and Paramount board member, and Joseph Hazen, aide to Harry M. Warner, and also representing Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's.

On Monday, June 17, Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard for a third time delayed the resumption of hearings, until June 26. Stephen Doyle, counsel for the government, asked for a week's respite, but the court informed attorneys he would be occupied on another matter that day and so put the case over until the following Wednesday. This gives the defendant attorneys two days more than they expected.

As chairman of the RKO board, Patterson represents the Rockefeller interests. Prior to moving into the RKO post, he was assistant secretary of commerce for 14 months under Harry Hopkins. He has been a long-standing friend of Arnold. McClintock, Paramount director and holding a similar position in more than 12 large industrial organizations, among them Bayer Aspirin, General Drug, Sterling Products, Centauer Co. and Charles A. Phillips Co., likewise is a personal friend of the trust buster. He also is very friendly with Robert Lehman of Lehman Bros., financially interested in Paramount, and additionally is close to Maurice Newton of the Paramount board, both having graduated from Princeton in 1912.

These men are said to have persuaded Arnold to alter his views on prosecution of the suit in face of "perilous" times, what with the foreign markets shriveled to the core and the possibility of expending $5,000,000 for the defense of the all-industry action.

Hazen, who was instrumental, along with Schenck, in drafting the department of commerce trade practice proposals was armed with such financial information as follows: The five national circuits in 1938 grossed approximately $200,000,000; the seven majors in the same year spent $130,000,000 on production; the five theatre-owning majors today have an equity of $400,000,000 in some 1,000 theatres, plus the $600,000,000 tied up in mortgages, leases and other securities in 2,400 theatres, all told.

The Rockefellers, it is remembered, also have a controlling interest in Chase National Bank, which owns 58 per cent of the stock in National Theatres.

It is understood Arnold consented to see what could be done after listening to Patterson, McClintock, Weisl and Hazen. The trust buster then returned to Washington, instructing James V. Hayes, dubbed "trouble shooter," to report to him directly on the progress of the opening statements by defense counsel. He did and is said to have been particularly impressed with a colloquy between Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard and Louis D. Frohlich, representing Columbia and Paul Williams, for the government. This conversation related to distributors owning theatres and what product they could and could not play.

Ever since then, Hayes has played an important role in the negotiations under way. He was assistant to the attorney general from 1934-36. Then he became a member of Gibdoney, O'Brien & Hayes here. He left the company to rejoin the government in 1938 as a member of the department of justice staff. He has become acquainted with some of the defense counsel over the years and more than once is said to have been approached by the lawyers in respect to a settlement. All these conversations have been transmitted to Arnold, who, meanwhile, had been contacting his superiors in Washing-

Consent Decree Proposal Basis

NEW YORK—Dated June 13 and projected as the commerce department's proposals for a consent decree as a basis for settlement of the all-industry suit, the text reproduced here served as a preliminary formula for discussions between top distributor counsel and representatives of the department of justice.

While by no stretch of the imagination is the draft to be regarded as the final provisions of a consent decree, it is known the justice department has taken exception to several clauses, one of them dealing with "some run." The text is the third trade practice draft worked out by the department of commerce after its experts consulted leaders of the film industry, exhibitor associations, civic and other organizations.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, who made seven trips to Washington from Miami and New York, and Joseph Hazen, representing Harry M. Warner, head of Warner Bros., are understood to have expressed the opinion the third draft was as equitable as any one could desire in an effort to eliminate alleged abuses within the industry. It is also learned that when Schenck and Hazen conferred with Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division, in Washington, on Decoration Day, the latter remarked the commerce department plan "is good and probably more than the government would get in a consent decree." It also may be pointed out Arnold and Allied rejected the third draft the latter part of April. Discussions which have been going on since June 10 have been in the nature of correlating views on the "fairness" of the plan.

Changes will be made before the principles are incorporated in a consent decree, but how far the industry is willing to go is something not for immediate analysis. All company presidents are being informed regularly of meetings with the department of justice here. Their recommendations, or rejections, whatever the case may be, are transmitted daily to negotiating principals.

In a comparative light, most of the principles incorporated in the final code of fair trade practices, drafted as a result of William F. Rodgers' year of effort and conferences with all exhibitor groups, are included in the commerce proposals.

The system of selling which has been in force in England, such as advertised trade screenings of each picture before it is sold, is a highlight of the commerce proposals, which follow:

1. Elimination of Blind Selling. No person shall offer for lease (1) a feature (2) motion picture film for a public exhibition at which an admission fee is charged until the film has been trade (3) shown within the exchange district (4) in which the public exhibition is to be held. Every trade showing shall be preceded by a notice published in at least two trade publications (5) having general circulation among exhibitors which shall state the title of the film and the date and the time when and place or places where the film will be trade shown.

(1) The term lease includes the making of a license, agreement, contract or any type of agreement whereby a feature motion picture film is to be supplied by a distributor directly or indirectly to an exhibitor to be exhibited in a theatre for public performance.

(2) A feature motion picture film shall be defined as a motion picture which is more than 4,000 linear feet in length, hereinafter sometimes referred to as "motion pictures" or "feature pictures" or "pictures."

(3) A trade showing is defined as an exhibition of a motion picture film at a theatre or projection room for the benefit of exhibitors generally, prior to the lease or offer to lease of a film for public exhibition.

(4) Exchange districts shall be as constituted at present—each company shall file a map showing the territory covered by each exchange office. Changes in the territory embraced within a particular exchange district shall, if these changes involve adding to the number of circuit theatres within an exchange district, be made only after approval by the departments of commerce and justice.

(5) Trade publication means a daily or weekly newspaper or magazine which is devoted primarily to news concerning the motion picture industry.

2. Leasing of feature motion pictures in exchange districts. All negotiations for the lease of feature motion pictures shall be conducted in the exchange district in which the theatre or theatres are located. No lease for pictures in any exchange district shall include theatres located in another exchange district, nor shall the leasing of pictures in one exchange district be conditional upon the leasing of a picture or group of pictures in another exchange district.

3. Limitation on the lease of pictures which have been trade shown.

(a) No distributor shall offer for lease more than five feature pictures in a single group.

(b) The lease of one group of pictures shall not be conditional upon the lease of another picture or group of pictures.

(c) It shall be the policy of every distributor not to require an exhibitor to lease short subjects, newsreels, trailers, etc., as a condition to the leasing of any feature picture or group of pictures. Any exhibitor who claims he was forced to lease short subjects, newsreels, trailers, etc., shall mail a written notice of protest to the distributor at its home office within two days after the lease has been signed. If the distributor disputes the claim of the exhibitor, the matter shall be arbitrated.

(d) There shall be no separate score charge for feature pictures leased on either a flat rental or percentage basis.

(e) An exhibitor may cancel out of any group of pictures leased by him, any picture which is locally offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds, provided written notice of his election to cancel shall be mailed to the home office of the distributor not later than seven days after the contract has been executed. However, any distributor may arbitrate the question of whether any picture is in fact locally offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds.

(f) Each license agreement shall specify the preferred playing time, if any, which is to be allocated to the picture or pictures covered by the lease.

(g) No lease of pictures to any one theatre shall contain any restrictions upon any other competing or subsequent run theatres (except as to clearance) as to admission price or policy of operation such as double featuring.

4. Pictures available on some run. Distributors shall make their pictures available on some run* in any situation provided that the exhibitor can satisfy reasonable minimum standards of theatre operation and the exhibitor is reputable and responsible. In carrying out the provisions of this section, no distributor shall request license fees or other terms and conditions that are designed or intended for the purpose of defeating this section. The disputes which may arise hereunder shall be subject to arbitration.

(*This does not mean a particular run, but a run at some time.)

In determining any claim that the license fees or other terms and conditions requested by a distributor are designed or intended for the purpose of defeating this section, the arbitrator shall consider, among other things, whether the distributor obtained similar license fees, terms and conditions in other situations similar to the one being arbitrated and the effect which the licensing will have upon the distributors' total revenue in that particular competitive area.

5. Provisions of leasing agreements. Every lease agreement shall provide that the distributor will arbitrate the following:

(a) Disputes as to whether or not the existing clearance, under the conditions involved in a particular instance, is unreasonable. All awards which change the clearance between theatres shall be reviewed by the appeal board.

(b) Charges by one exhibitor that another exhibitor has leased for exhibition a greater number of feature pictures than the latter reasonably requires for exhibition in his theatre. The leasing by an exhibitor of a sufficient number of pictures to meet its requirements for a period of four months, shall not be deemed to be unreasonable.

(c) Charges that a prior run theatre is unfairly holding back the playing of pictures.

6. Remedy for discrimination against independently operated theatres. When an independent operator of an existing theatre claims that notwithstanding the provisions of this decree a distributing company has by its actions over a period of time demonstrated a policy of discrimination against him in favor of a competing theatre solely because the competing theatre is a component of a theatre circuit, the question will be subject to arbitration.

Should the arbitrators find

Daily Recommendations Constantly Changing Proposed Terms

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—As the first series of unified meetings looking toward settlement of the all-industry suit gained headway, arbitration loomed as the first of the "non-controversial" subjects to be disposed of before both the government and industry representatives tackle the "nut crackers." The latter characterization is said to embrace such topics as clearance and overbuying.

Sources close to the negotiators insist, however, that daily recommendations are constantly changing the character of the proposed terms. In this respect, it is pointed out, machinery which would ultimately set the new trade practices in motion is being frequently revised as new thoughts are put on the table. It is stated that underlying the conferences is a "new approach" which draws upon every plan that has ever been presented to distributors.

Atmosphere Is "Friendly"

It is significant the atmosphere is described as "friendly—almost to the point of eagerness" by both sides. Accordingly, this "definite urge to do business" is seen as speeding up the negotiations so that the industry is prepared to put whatever plan is adopted in work as soon as possible. Toward this end two committees have so far been appointed. One of three members, headed by Austin C. Keough, general counsel of Paramount, is working exclusively on arbitration. The other committee is tackling clearance.

Indicating the extent of the government's cooperation, its representatives are on all committees. George Sher on arbitration machinery, with Keough and Edward C. Raftery; Robert L. Wright on clearance, with Richard Dwight and Keough; Paul Williams on overbuying, with Joseph Hazen, Raftery and Bertram F. Shipman.

The arbitration committee is understood to be following suggestions recommended by the distributor group which handled the code of fair trade practices about a year ago. These are being correlated with the proposal made by the commerce department. The American Arbitration Society also is said to have been consulted for its views and one source suggests this body may ultimately be in charge of arbitration procedure for the industry. This operation may, it is said, be along lines that would have the commerce department sitting in at all times in a supervisory capacity.

There is considerable private speculation

Notes to You from Red Kann

THE GRANDPAPPY was the "42nd Street" special. For what's happened since, Charlie Einfeld is largely responsible and he can't squeeze out of this one.

There has been the junket to "Dodge City." And the one to "Virginia City." Paramount had "Union Pacific" bow in at Omaha, Universal "The Under-Pup" at Scranton. RKO went to Des Moines for Jesse Lasky's lamented talent-hunt-via-the-air-effort. "Young Mr. Lincoln" had to unfold at Springfield and "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" in Washington, which is apt to confuse the best of geographers.

One of Jack Benny's comedies unfurled at Waukegan and that suggests it's too bad he wasn't born in Shanghai. It was Albany, Ga., for "The Biscuit Eater" and Port Huron, Mich., for "Young Tom Edison." "Edison, the Man" set the Oranges in New Jersey afire, "Lillian Russell" Pittsburgh and Clinton, Ia., aquiver. Galesburg witnessed "Those Were the Days."

The tradepaper boys are learning about America at no cost to their publishers.

Because Dorothy Lamour wanted to vacation in Honolulu or because Paramount made the decision, or both, "Typhoon" took its bow on the islands, marking the furthest removed point to date in the long, and, by this time, exceedingly questionable system of opening 'em where it's apt to be different. No newspaper men were conveyed to Honolulu this time, but that doesn't mean it can't, or won't, happen some other time.

Because, too, this is the time of the year when vacations earn consideration and in the interest of travel, freer circulation of money and a general broadening at the base of the brain, let's survey the possibilities. Some company might find a suggestion or two of interest.

For "Ski Patrol," Universal might consider Sun Valley. A lot of the boys haven't been there.

For "Torrid Zone," there are always the bistros on 52nd Street. We can help Warner on that one. Might have a cocktail at Tony's, repair to "21" for dinner abetted by Ballantine and soda at the outset, Ayala, '28 during the roast and a spot of Hine for brandy toward the close, topped off by those sixty-cent and very plutocratic stogies answering to the name of Ramon Alones. For noise, there is Jack White's and Leon and Eddie's with the Famous Door hard by in case the Warner boys really want to do a job.

For "Married in Transit," 20th Century-Fox might let its imagination go. The possibilities there are without limit. Could show in a moving subway train. Or a Fifth Avenue bus, a street car, a Ninth Avenue "L" or a plane. With no slight intended toward the Hudson and Lincoln Tunnels, the George Washington Bridge or the parachute at the Fair.

Paramount's "The Way of All Flesh" turns out to be a trifle embarrassing. We'll let that one slide.

If the Nazis had been more considerate, a great deal could have been worked out by Metro on behalf of "Waterloo Bridge." Over to and back from London on the "Queen Mary" or the "Normandie," and even the Clipper. Cheery quarters at Claridge's where the ambassadors usually hang out. A nice, chatty talk with current ambassador and ex-film man Joe Kennedy. Lunch at the Savoy. Dinner, perhaps, at Scott's for wonders in sea food and Scotch salmon. Then a round of night clubs, only the boys would have to dress all the way. Then a weekend in the lovely English countryside, a quick look at Windsor and maybe a visit to the Bard's birthplace. Who's against?

Sarnoff Says:

"We (the Radio Corporation of America) shall soon make available theatre television receiving equipment which will project pictures upon full sized motion picture screens."

How soon is soon?

No Words Minced

Having gone over budget, a high-priced director fumed and stormed into the head man's office. "You can't rush me. You'll ruin my future," he shouted.

Without fuming and storming, the studio head replied, "What about the future of the stockholders? They've been waiting for a dividend for eight years?"

WARNER AND COLUMBIA GO FOR GROUP-OF-FIVE FORMULA; THREE PERCENTAGE CLASSIFICATIONS

: Consent Decree Proposal Basis :

(a) that the independent theatre is a better theatre than the competing circuit theatre, and

(b) that the distributor has adopted the practice over a period of time of unreasonably refusing to lease pictures to the independent operator in an existing theatre in favor of the competing circuit theatre, and

(c) that the distributor's refusal to lease pictures to the independent operator was in fact due to the fact that the competing circuit theatre was a component of theatre circuit

then the arbitrators shall issue an award prohibiting the offending distributor from leasing pictures to the competing circuit theatre except under separate contract for each picture or group of pictures. The award shall further provide that the offending distributor shall not impose upon or accept from the offending circuit theatre, as a condition of leasing pictures in other circuit theatres, the lease of pictures in that circuit theatre. Such awards shall be appealable to the appeal board.

7. Limitation on lease of pictures to newly acquired theatres.

(a) On and from the date hereof, should any individual, firm or corporation operating a theatre or group of theatres, lease, build, buy or otherwise acquire an interest in an additional theatre in any situation, then and in that event, with respect to the additional theatre, a distributor may lease its pictures for exhibition in the additional theatre only under a lease agreement which relates solely to the said additional theatre as if said theatre were an independent theatre and not part of a circuit.

(b) No distributor shall lease pictures to the additional theatres, referred to in paragraph (a) hereof, as part of a lease involving the lease of pictures in other theatres, nor shall the distributor impose or accept as a condition of leasing pictures in other theatres the leasing of pictures in the additional theatre.

(c) Where any individual, firm or corporation permanently ceases to operate a theatre or theatres in a situation and replaces or substitutes the discontinued theatre or theatres with a newly acquired theatre in the same situation, the substituted theatre shall not be construed as an additional theatre within the meaning of this provision if the seating capacity of the substituted theatre is not 25 per cent greater than the total seating capacity of the discontinued theatre or theatres. However, if the seating capacity of the substituted theatre is 25 per cent greater than the total seating capacity of the discontinued theatre or theatres, the substituted theatre shall be regarded as an additional theatre within the meaning of this provision.

(d) Should any dispute arise as to whether or not any theatre leased, built, bought or an interest therein otherwise acquired in an additional theatre in any particular situation, as provided in paragraph (a) hereof or whether the additional theatre is receiving advantageous treatment because of its membership in a circuit, the same shall be subject to arbitration. The award of the arbitrator shall be appealable to the appeal board.

(e) To further the purposes of the above provision, it is provided that on and from the date hereof should any individual, firm or corporation be engaged to lease motion pictures for additional theatres, then and in that event, with respect to such additional theatres, a distributor may lease its pictures for exhibition in each of the additional theatres only under a lease agreement which relates solely to each of the additional theatres provided, however, that if two or more of the said additional theatres had a common ownership, on or before the date hereof, and continue to be so owned, the distributor may include the said commonly owned theatres in a single lease agreement if the theatres are located in the same exchange district.

(f) No distributor shall lease pictures to the additional theatres referred to in paragraph (e) hereof, as a part of a lease involving the lease of pictures in other theatres, nor shall the distributor impose or accept as a condition of leasing pictures in other theatres the leasing of pictures in the additional theatres.

(g) Upon the complaint of any exhibitor the distributors shall arbitrate the question of whether they have violated any of the provisions of paragraphs (b) and (f). The award of the arbitrator hereunder shall be appealable to the appeal board.

8. Arbitration machinery:

(a) Selection of neutral arbitrators. A panel of approximately 10 neutral arbitrators for each exchange district shall be designated by the American Arbitration Society. Neutral arbitrators shall not have any past or present connection with the production, distribution or exhibition of motion pictures nor any interest in any theatre, as either landlord, lessor or otherwise. The neutral arbitrators shall be paid on a per diem basis when hearing a case, the amount paid to be attractive enough to assure the services of responsible persons.

(b) Advisers to the neutral arbitrator. Each of the parties in interest shall have the right to designate an arbitrator to hear the controversy with the neutral arbitrator to advise with him, but to have no vote.

(c) Arbitration appeal board. There shall be an arbitration appeal board consisting of three members appointed by the court each of whom shall be a person of known impartiality and distinction. One member shall be designated by the court as chairman of the board. The jurisdiction of the board shall be to hear and determine appeals.

(d) Arbitration procedure. An exhibitor who has the right to arbitrate under any of the provisions of this decree may require the distributor to arbitrate the controversy,

Two Groupings for Flat Rental Deals; Both Have 40% Peak

CHICAGO—Both Warner and Columbia, last two major companies to hold annual sales conventions, will sell their next season's lineups in groups of five, each providing for three different classifications of percentages and two groupings for flat rentals.

In the instance of Warner, no terms are set on the Frank Capra film, "The Life of John Doe," and "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, has informed the sales delegates no decision will be made until he sees the finished products; that they may be scaled anywhere from 10 to 70 per cent, depending on what is delivered by the producers.

Of the 48 Warner releases 20 are "A" pictures to be sold four at 40 per cent, eight at 35, eight at 30 with the balance of 28 to be sold flat in groups of 16 and 12. During the current season, the policy provided for two at 40 per cent, six at 35 and 12 at 30 with the balance broken up the same way as next season.

How Columbia Stacks Up

The Columbia formula calls for two at 40 per cent, six at 35 and 10 at 30 per cent with the balance of 26 divided into a group of 14 and another list of 12. This compares with the current season of six in the top group and eight in the second top classification with the remainder split into two groups. Actually, the company has added four "A" pictures to the top group and is offering two high budget pictures instead of Capra's "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

It is pointed out all of the current program of 40, exclusive of westerns, will be delivered in addition to "21 Days Together" and "Mad Men of Europe," which are being sold separately.

Columbia's southern division chalked up first rating in the Montague 15th Anniversary Campaign. Sam Moscow heads this division. Nat Cohn's New York district took second place.

Warner's 104 reels of shorts are broken down into 18 two-reelers and 68 singles. In the two-reel group will be six Technicolor subjects, "Songs of America," "The Fall of the Alamo," "The Unknown Soldier," "Under Western Stars," "The Mississippi Showboat," "Here Comes the Girls." The first three will be along patriotic-historic style. In addition, Elsa Maxwell is down for three Blue Ribbon comedies, "The Lady and the Lug," "Riding Into Society" and "Throwing a Party." The nine Brevities will include "Ed Sullivan's Hollywood Review," "Kiddie Revue," "Ice Follies," "Sockeroo," "Those Minstrel Days," "The Dog in the Orchard," "Service With the Colors," "In Old Mexico."

ALLIED MAPPING OPPOSITION TO INCREASED RENTALS; OPPOSES DROP IN TAX EXEMPTION

Would Delay Buying If Hike Demands Hold; Co-Op Talk Dies

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO — Preliminary plans were mapped by Allied for the formation of a statistical information and propaganda bureau to combat on a national scale "high film rental demands of distributors" following an expression of approval by the general national convention which opened here Wednesday.

"It is our hope," said Col. H. A. Cole, president, "to build this way a wall of resistance against high demands." Details will be worked out later. Increasing demands have been coming from distributors whose incomes have been curtailed by the European war. Allied leaders have opposed the theory that the domestic market can absorb the foreign loss.

Cole denied rumors of a national Allied buying or booking combine, but it became evident here that the organization plans some propaganda activity among independents designed to delay 1940-41 product deals "as long as high film rentals are sought." This is predicated on the Allied belief exhibitors already have reached the saturation point on rentals.

The appearance of C. C. Pettijohn, MPPDA counsel, and Spyros Skouras, National Theatres president, before the Senate finance committee, regarding the proposed change in the federal admission tax, was condemned. The resolution pledged Allied support to the government defense plan, but added that it should not depart from the policy of placing the cost burden on those better able to pay. A petition will be sent to the House committee to restore the original formula of a ten per cent tax with a 30-cent exemption.

Philadelphia is expected to make a strong bid for the 1941 convention.

"Industry Must Solve War Problem"—Myers

CHICAGO—"The war in Europe and the consequent curtailment of the foreign market creates a problem which the industry must solve," wrote Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Association, in the annual convention program this week. "But it cannot be solved as some distributors seem to think, by extorting higher film rentals from the American exhibitors. The exhibitors want to be assured that Hollywood is doing its part by taking up a few notches in its belt," he continued. "Also they want to know that if any part of the burden is passed on, it will be distributed evenly as between the different classes of theatres."

Theatre Tax Testimony "Wrong Kind of Meddling"---Cole

CHICAGO—"The wrong kind of meddling can prove mighty injurious to the industry," Col. H. A. Cole, president of National Allied, said this week in commenting on the appearances of C. C. Pettijohn of the Hays office, and Spyros Skouras before the senate committee hearing on the theatre tax changes in Washington.

On all admissions from 10 to 25 cents, a 1-cent tax; from 26 to 49 cents, a 2-cent tax; and on tickets priced at 50 cents or more, retention of the present 10 per cent tax.

"The senate finance committee, sold by Pettijohn on the idea that the lower admissions should be taxed, did not adopt Mr. Pettijohn's recommendation that the higher admission bracket houses should have their tax reduced," said Cole. "But, instead, it recommended that a flat 10 per cent admission tax be adopted from 10-cent admissions on up. This recommendation was adopted by the senate Monday.

"Pettijohn could not stand to see the admission tax applied on the higher-admission-price houses only, which would have helped us little fellows for at least another 12-month period," said Cole. "No, instead, he had to see that the senate socked us—most of whose houses are in the 10-to-30-cent bracket—the full 10 per cent. He gained nothing for the higher bracket houses, but has laid an additional tax burden on the industry that might have been averted."

Says Allied Didn't Want To "Call the Cop"

CHICAGO—In a pre-convention session of "this and that," Col. H. A. Cole, president of Allied, took time off to reiterate that "the last thing Allied wanted to do was to call the cop."

"We would have sacrificed many things not to call the cop," he said, in defense of Allied's legal and legislative program. "But when we had a neighbor who refused to be neighborly, there was nothing left for us to do."

Cole said that it was five or six years after Allied's organization before it took "the last resource left for us—legislation and litigation." He said that they had come to the end of their rope. "Things got worse, instead of better, at every conference we had with the distributors," he added.

Arbitration, as far as Allied is concerned, Cole said, is satisfactory only when proper rules and regulations on which such arbitration board can pass are also adopted.

Referring to a recent editorial by Red Kann in BOXOFFICE, in which Kann quoted "John Lastrun," who felt that passage of the Neely bill would invite competition to smaller independent exhibitors in small towns by throwing product open (see issue of June 8, 1940), Cole said:

"I agree with Mr. Kann in his editorial, but nevertheless, we at Allied still are against any monopoly maintained by artificial restraint, and if any exhibitor—even an Allied member—has a monopoly on product in a small town, it will be better for the industry if others have the opportunity to bid for that product in open competition.

"We do not believe in tieing up product to keep out competition, but rather in giving so much service that no other exhibitor can afford to come into that town. Exhibitors should give back to the public a part of what they take in, keep their theatres modernized, build new ones when they need them, and then competition will stay out, such as my brother and I have done in Bonham." This was in reference to the operation of Cole and his brother, H. S. Cole, of their three theatres, seating about 1,500, in a town of 6,000, Bonham, Tex.

Continuing, he wrote: "Every exhibitor knows that the industry is in a state bordering on chaos. The situation would be very different had the representatives of the major companies lent an ear to Allied's proposals for fair trade practices and fair arbitration instead of demanding that Allied subscribe to a program dictated by them . . .

". . . The adjustment of the major issues of the industry by means of fair arbitration and other vital innovations in industry practice were more of a shadow than a reality when presented at the Minneapolis convention last year, due to the unyielding attitude of the major companies. This year they can be discussed as something substantial and imminent, due to a changed attitude born by the necessities of the situation.

" . . . Not only are the organization and practices of the industry due to undergo radical changes, but there must be created more effective machinery whereby the exhibitors in different parts of the country can cooperate for their mutual benefit in the every-day detail of theatre operation.

" . . . No one denies that Allied is the deciding factor in all the vast movements now on foot which will mould the form and guide the practices of the motion picture industry for many years to come."

as to how Thurman Arnold is going to "save face" in respect to his oft-repeated declarations the government insisted on divorcement. Authoritative quarters are of the opinion Arnold may achieve this "face-saving" operation through any one of a number of political machinations. But, in any event, the current settlement conferences "are predicated on non-divorcement; otherwise we wouldn't be wasting our time."

A corollary to this is the purely legal angle that besets the current negotiations. This is said to embrace the view that opinion is divided over whether suggestions being proposed are not violative of the anti-trust laws. In other words, as a spokesman puts it, is the decree, whatever it may be, not subject to further litigation even if approved by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard?

The thought here is that severe limitations might be placed upon the eight major defendants and none on exhibitors. In this respect, it is pointed out, a decree signed by Judge Goddard would be in the form of a court order limiting the majors to certain specific practices. Under a code or voluntary industry trade practice plan exhibitors would be asked to sign and then agree to abide by its provisions.

Under a decree, it is held, exhibitors would not be compelled to follow through with the limitations placed upon distributors because they would not be regarded as parties to the decree. The point now facing negotiators is said to be how to bring the non-assentors into line.

For example, one source queries, what procedure would ensue in the event an overbuying or clearance case is brought before an arbitration body in a particular territory? The exhibitor complained against does not necessarily have to arbitrate the dispute, if he is not so disposed, because he could claim he is not bound by the decree which the majors would sign.

giving notice to the Secretary of the Arbitration Board located within his district. The parties to the controversy shall mutually agree upon a neutral arbitrator from the panel established for the exchange district in which the theatre of the complaining exhibitor is located. If the parties cannot agree on the choice of a neutral arbitrator from the panel within a reasonable time, the Chairman of the Arbitration Board shall select a neutral arbitrator from the panel.

(e) Costs of arbitration. The arbitrator shall award costs against either party or apportion them along the parties as he may deem proper.

(f) Sanctions. The arbitrator may provide a penalty in the form of liquidated damages for failure to abide by the award.

In order to discourage unwarranted resort to arbitration, the arbitrator shall be empowered to award a sum of money as liquidated damages in favor of a respondent distributor when he finds that the exhibitor's resort to arbitration was frivolous or made for the purpose of harassment or vexation.

(g) Administration of arbitration machinery. The maintenance and functioning of the arbitration offices and personnel in each exchange district shall be under the jurisdiction of a board consisting of three members. One member to be a representative of the Department of Commerce, one member to be a representative of the exhibitor group, and one member to be a representative of the distributors. This committee shall employ an executive secretary to carry out under its direction the business management of the arbitration machinery. Among the responsibilities of the committee, it shall have the duty of budgeting the cost of operating the arbitration machinery, renting offices, maintaining offices, engaging personnel, etc. Before the entry of the decree the committee shall fix by unanimous agreement the maximum annual cost of the arbitration machinery. It will be indicated by an exchange of letters that the maximum cost so fixed is deemed to be adequate by officials of the Department of Justice. Any increase in the amounts so fixed shall be made only after a majority of the companies have approved.

(h) Financing. The cost of the arbitration machinery shall be met out of a fund made up of (a) a small percentage of the gross receipts of each distributor, (b) a nominal sum such as 5c or 10c per picture leased shall be paid by the exhibitor, and (c) a reasonable filing fee for each arbitration proceeding to be paid by the party filing the complaint.

Favors Wider Spread For Ticket Impost

WASHINGTON—Reaching into the lower income brackets, the Senate will impose an additional tax of something over $110,000,000 upon theatre audiences during the fiscal year which begins July 1, the bulk of which will come from theatres with admission scales of less than 40 cents.

Eliminating that provision of the defense tax bill passed by the House which would have lowered the admission tax exemption from 40 to 30 cents, the Senate finance committee asked the Senate to apply taxes to all admissions beginning at 10 cents, which it estimated would bring in $112,000,000 more than the current tax.

Under a scale drafted by the committee, admissions of 10 to 19 cents would carry a one-cent tax; those of 20 cents, a two-cent tax; those of 21 to 30 cents, three cents; and higher admissions at one cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof.

The decision of the committee to broaden the tax was reached after hearings at which Charles C. Pettijohn recommended a tax of one cent on admission tickets selling for not more than 25 cents, two cents on tickets between 26 and 49 cents and 10 per cent on tickets selling for 50 cents or more, which he said would raise probably $60,000,000.

Opposes Lowered Exemption

Mr. Pettijohn opposed the House provision for a lowering of the exemption on the ground that it might influence many exhibitors to reduce their admission prices to escape taxes, explaining that the industry cannot at this time afford lower admissions.

He told the committee that the industry has lost 75 per cent of its foreign market, with consequent grave diminution of gross revenue, and must now depend almost entirely upon the domestic audience for not only such profit as may be made, but for actual production expenses.

His suggestion was welcomed by the committee, which was seeking ways of avoiding increased tobacco taxes imposed by the House, and he was asked to confer further with Undersecretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan regarding its possible application.

All Brackets Pay

In its report to the Senate, the committee indicated that it had given consideration to an increase in the rate of admission tax, but "deemed much simpler and more feasible from an administrative point of view to decrease the exemption from 40 to 9 cents."

As compensation for the extension of the application of the tax, the committee incorporated in the bill a provision that, after June 30, 1945, the admission-tax exemption is to be raised to $3.

This, however, is a meaningless provision, since no Congress can limit the freedom of a succeeding Congress. In other words, if a future Congress decides it is necessary to continue the tax, it need only adopt an amendment to the revenue law.

Colloquy Had Bearing On Suit Progress

NEW YORK—The colloquy between Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard and Paul Williams, prosecutor, during the opening of Louis D. Frohlich, counsel for Columbia, at the early stages of the trial is said to have had a vital bearing in the mind of James V. Hayes, "trouble shooter" for Thurman Arnold, on the progress of the all-industry suit. Hayes is understood to have informed Arnold of the importance of the over-the-bench discussion which is said to have put a different light on the department of justice views. The colloquy, taken from the record, follows:

Seeks Clarification

The Court: "Mr. Williams, just to clarify my own mind: Assuming a producer distributes his own pictures and acquires a theatre to show his pictures, just that alone, stopping there, does the government contend that that is violative of the statute?"

Mr. Williams: "You mean the acquisition of one theatre by the producer for exhibition? One theatre only?"

The Court: "I would not limit it to one theatre. Let me put my question a little clearer. Assume that a producer makes pictures. He has the right to distribute them. There is no question about that?"

Mr. Williams: "No. That seems to be a concomitant."

The Court: "I should think there should be no question about that. Now do you deny that a producer has the right to acquire a theatre to show his own pictures?"

Mr. Williams: "To show his own pictures?"

The Court: "Yes."

Mr. Williams: "I say, your Honor, that is the very limit to which acquisition of a theatre should be permitted to go. And that is not the objection that the government makes in this case—"

The Court: "I did not mean to get into an argument."

Mr. Williams: "I say the very limit to which acquisition of theatres should be permitted by a producer is to exhibit solely his product. The minute you get beyond that, where he goes out into the general market to get other pictures, then you are on the road and you create a situation that leads to the very thing which we claim spells monopolization in this industry, and which, after all the evidence is in, and after you have heard all sides, we believe will lead your Honor to the same conclusion. But there is no use talking of that. That is out of place here."

Presses for Answer

The Court: "I am not so very clear on your position just now, so see if I state it correctly. That the government does not contend the law is violated if a producer distributes his own pictures or acquires theatres, not just one theatre, but theatres, in which to show them."

Mr Williams: "If they are limited to his product alone I should say that that is as far as it could go."

The Court: "But you say he does violate the law when he allows other producers' pictures to be shown in his theatres?"

Mr. Williams: "I say that where a custom or business operation develops, where a few companies have come to occupy the field in an industry, as they have here, so that through a series or system of exchanges the product is first at their command before others have entry into that field, that they have brought about a condition which is monopolistic, in that the tendency is to exclude other producers from entering that market and to exclude other exhibitors from the opportunity of acquiring product from those producers on even terms with other theatres. In other words, the producers by entering the exhibition field, compete with their customers, who are the other exhibitors. They have set up a preferential system, if your Honor please, where that product goes first to their own houses before other exhibitors have an opportunity to secure it upon any basis. I say that that spells an inequality of opportunity which is violative of the fundamental purpose of the Sherman act. Mr. Davis said this morning, he had not heard of any equality that had been mentioned in the Sherman act. We have cited, to your Honor, cases in the memorandum we handed up where the supreme court, time after time, says that the fundamental purpose of the Sherman act is to preserve equality of opportunity. We say that an industrial condition has been set up whereby these producer-exhibitors serve their theatres first, before releasing their pictures to their customers. Thus depriving these exhibitors of an equal right to bargain for and purchase those pictures, and thereby creating a situation that is the soul of inequality, and in and of itself a violation of the law. Now that is our position on it. I say, that so far as the acquisition of theatres by a producer of pictures goes, it must be limited or else it leads to this violation of law. As soon as this situation is caused to exist, an unlawful condition is created."

The Court: "I didn't mean to start a general argument about this. I wanted to clarify in my own mind what the position of the government was."

Davis Makes a Comparison

New York—Referring to the government's complaint which listed approximately 2,500 theatres operated by the five exhibitor-distributor-producer defendants, John W. Davis, counsel for Loew's, compared independent theatre figures for the years 1933 to 1937 and showed the number of theatres decreased 564, but the number of seats increased 383,000.

To quote Davis, who was using the government's petition as a basis for comparison: "In 1933 there were 16,985 theatres owned by independents, and under the withering blast of this conspiracy they sank in 1937 to 16,421. But though the number of those theatres shriveled to that extent in four years, their seating capacity went up from 8,147,000 to 8,530,000; so if they were accommodating more people actually inside their doors during the course of this conspiracy they were accommodating more in 1937 than they were in 1933."

12,281 Employes On Loew List

New York—Loew's has 12,281 employes engaged in the three branches of the industry, according to John W. Davis. In production the number is 4,800, in distribution, 2,200, and in exhibition, 5,100.

The number of stockholders, it was revealed, is 12,000.

Odlum an Advocate Of Divorcement

NEW YORK — Another advocate of divorcement was discovered when, at an RKO hearing for allowances, Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas, which controls RKO and has a large interest in Paramount, told Judge William O. Bondy he had tried to "install divorcement" in RKO prior to the start of the anti-trust suit, but had been forced to call a halt due to opposition within the company.

Odlum enlarged on the statement at the conclusion of the hearing. "I tried to organize two separate companies, as I think each company working separately would be more profitable. They are, after all, two separate and distinct branches of the industry and as such have separate problems of management. In the present system one branch dominates another.

"Pictures should be sold on their merits. The reason the plan was discarded was that security interests objected in the company itself, and the rest of the industry was against it. One company could not succeed alone. Theatres should be free to purchase film regardless of affiliation. Why should anybody buy a picture except through its merits?"

Odlum refused to be quoted regarding his present feelings on the subject, but did state his views have not changed.

Odlum Statement Elates Leaders of Allied

CHICAGO—Allied leaders at the annual convention here were elated when advised of Floyd B. Odlum's statement favoring divorcement of distribution and exhibition. Said Allied President H. A. Cole:

"I am glad to see one of the big boys with us. That man really has been reading our book."

Metro Unable to Contact Laudy Lawrence in France

NEW YORK—M-G-M's foreign department has been unable as yet to contact Laudy Lawrence, continental European general manager and one of the company's highest paid foreign executives. The last communication came when he was in Paris 24 hours before the Nazis marched in. Home office executives believe there is no cause for alarm and attribute silence to disruption of cable service.

Reserves Decision on RKO Fee Requests

NEW YORK—A long and protracted hearing for fees in connection with the RKO reorganization held in federal court before Judge William O. Bondy, highlighted court news of the week. After listening to arguments pro and con on requests for over $3,100,000 in fees, the judge reserved decision with the probability it will be several months before amounts to be paid will be known. The hearing was featured by a dramatic appeal by Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas, proponents of the RKO plan, who seeks $875,000 in disbursements and 100,000 shares of common stock as a fee.

Odlum's claims were hit hard by Marland Gale of SEC who informed the judge $600,000 was maximum the company could pay on all fees combined. The financier pleaded his cause and declared that to deprive Atlas of its claims would mean the company had reorganized RKO at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars for the benefit of other creditors. Over a score of other attorneys, whose requests had been hammered by SEC and Thomas Finletter, new RKO counsel, also pleaded their cause.

Finletter stated that if the fees were ordered paid, RKO might find itself back in bankruptcy adding only $77,000 in cash was available. He also attacked Atlas' request to be paid in full in stock.

Figures were cited showing that during the term of Irving Trust's receivership from 1933-1939 the company had a net profit of $813,949.

The plight of the picture producing company, hard hit by the loss of 35 per cent foreign revenue, and its probable need of cash, was also cited.

Other Court News

Two suits against Walt Disney's "Snow White" were wiped off the calendar when Adriana Caselotti's $200,000 action against Disney Productions, RCA, and Disney personally was dismissed by Justice Peter Schmuck. Miss Caselotti, the voice of "Snow White," claimed RCA dubbed her voice from a sound track, making thousands of records. The other dismissed action was that of Modest Altschuler against Disney Productions Enterprises, RKO, Irving Berlin, and Frank Churchill. It sought $250,000 claiming "Whistle While You Work" plagiarized Altschuler's song "Russian Soldiers Song."

The $35,000,000 estate of Fox Theatres Corp. headed toward a close during the week as Federal Judge John C. Knox reduced bond of Milton C. Weisman, receiver, from $100,000 to $7,500. Fox Theatres, in liquidation, is worth less than $100,000, after seven years of court effort to save something from the wreckage.

Chaplin "Life" Suit

An aftermath of Charles Chaplin's suit against Time over publication of a picture of himself was disclosed when C. D. Jackson, vice-president of Time and general manager of Life, revealed 1,802,325 copies of Life with the picture, and 1,212,625 copies in which the picture was eliminated have been distributed. Chaplin's claim for damages of $1,000,000 will be based on the distributed figure.

Thomas W. Evans, executive and salesman for Major Film Labs, has filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy, listing $100 in assets and $30,292 as liabilities. Among creditors are J. E. Brulatour, $10,000; Eastman Kodak, $655.

Seeks License Suit Delay

Quinral, Inc., operator of the Empire, Brooklyn, is seeking an injunction to prevent Paul Moss, commissioner of licenses, from revoking its license. Moss claims the management admitted children unaccompanied and seated them in the balcony. The theatre denies this.

The Cine Roma, Italian film house on Broadway, has pleaded not guilty to government charges of embezzlement of amusement tax returns and failure to forward these returns over to the government. Federal Judge William Bondy held the management in $1,000 bail. Trial will probably take place in September.

Supreme Court Justice Lloyd Church dismissed the Caron Corp. suit against RKO. The action sought an injunction against "Primrose Path," claiming the plaintiff's perfume was associated with an indecent person in the film.

Supreme Court Justice Schmuck denied Premium Promotion Syndicate's injunctive plea against Price Premiums and Jacob Price, in which the plaintiff sought to restrain use of "Encyclopedia Night" in theatres, claiming it to be an infringment of their scheme using the same name. Damages of $25,000 are sought.

Alley Believed in Nazi Hands

New York—Norman Alley, former Universal Newsreel cameraman famed for his "Panay" exploits and now with M-G-M News of the Day, is unreported. Alley was stationed in Amsterdam when the Germans invaded the low countries. It is believed he was unable to leave in time and is in custody of the Nazis in Berlin.

Shipping Problem For War Newsreels

By DAVE GOLDING

NEW YORK—Newsreel executives frankly admit they currently have no idea how films of the conflict on the continent can be delivered to New York. The only source of war shots is London, and if the air service to Lisbon is discontinued, the transportation problem will be sharply increased.

Audiences, as one newsreel editor points out, want the latest news as soon as possible. Managers report more and more theatregoers are inquiring about the subject of the newsreel.

Significant also is that this war has marked the end of the individual newsreel cameraman who could venture to the front and score "scoops" for his company. The shots are gathered by the British and French propaganda departments and distributed among newsreel representatives.

The Germans have been equally restrictive about cameramen. All photography is handled by men who hold positions in the army and are equipped to fight as soldiers.

Sole instances of "exclusive" material has been due mostly to chance where the cameraman happened to be on the spot in Norway before the invasion and was able to make a getaway before the Germans occupied the territory.

It is possible, according to one editor, with extension of the war to North Africa, individual initiative may have the opportunity to flourish again as in the more romantic newsreel days.

Although there have been some complaints on the "gruesome character" of newsreel shots, a check shows all are inclined to leave the "horror stuff" on the cutting room floor. A great deal of scenes of the dead and wounded, one editor says, are omitted "because audiences are getting enough of war."

One reason for the scarcity of footage on the evacuation of Dunkerque, another editor reveals, is that the entire newsreel equipment accompanying the British army was destroyed by a German bomber.

A "Station Wagon" Overcomes Sears

Pittsburgh—Grad Sears, general sales manager of Warner, actually broke down and wept at the regional convention here when the delegates surprised him with a Packard station wagon as a token of their esteem.

With "Belasco" Edward M. Schnitzer, eastern district manager, presenting the gift, tears welled from the eyes of the sales chief as he accepted the token.

Only the night before, Sears had taken the sales force to task, like a father reprimands his children. But the following morning, with "Belasco" Eddie, as he was dubbed, in the role of spokesman the children thanked their father for his kindness and thoughtfulness during the past 12 months.

Good Business Cures Several Ills

Philadelphia—For three months last winter, American Federation of Musicians pickets marched outside of George Graves' Carman, with signs denouncing him for not coming to an agreement.

For three months, Graves denounced the union for a hard-headed attitude, and refused their demands.

The union wanted a 52-week contract. He wanted a 40-week contract, providing for a 12-week summer layoff.

He won. The union signed a 40-week contract.

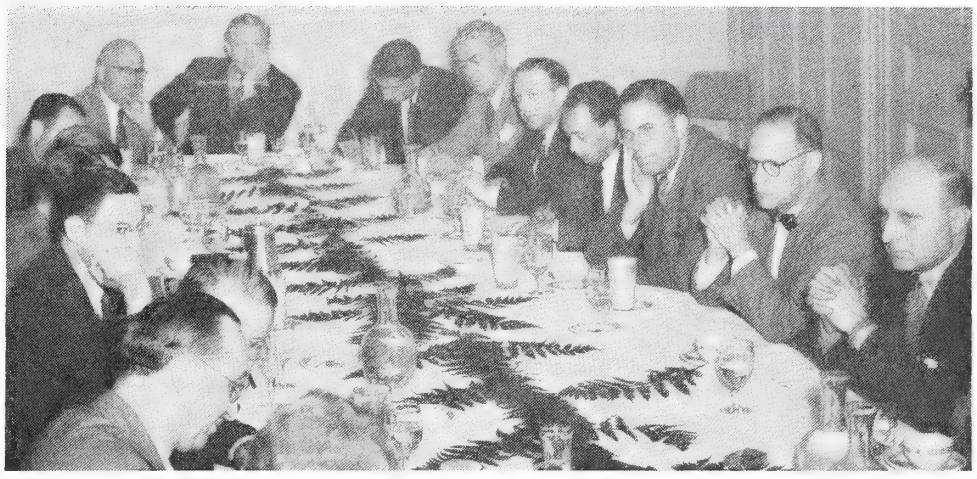
But now . . . business at the Carman is so good, the musicians will be retained all summer, making 52 weeks' work after all.

Sees Para't Position Secure Despite War

NEW YORK—In spite of adverse litigation, legislation and declining foreign markets the current and working assets of Paramount's domestic subsidiaries currently aggregate more than $30,000,000, sufficient to cover all liabilities, mortgages and funded debt of the parent company and its consolidated subsidiaries, regardless of when due, Barney Balaban, president, declared at a stockholders' meeting.

There was not a single dissenting vote for re-election of the entire board. Holders of 4,332,000 shares were represented. The meeting consumed less than an hour. Two stockholders questioned Balaban on operations. The president answered all questions satisfactorily but suggested he treat certain queries of a "trade nature" in his office. Directors re-elected are Neil F. Agnew, Balaban, Stephen Callaghan, Y. Frank Freeman, Harvey D. Gibson, A. Conger Goodyear, Stanton Griffis, Duncan G. Harris, John D. Hertz, John W. Hicks jr., Austin C. Keough, Earl I. McClintock, Maurice Newton, E. V. Richards, Edwin L. Weisl and Adolph Zukor.

Balaban declared the company's theatre business is "slightly in excess" of the same period last year with "no decline expected." When pressed to designate the proportion of increase he said it was his offhand estimate that "less than five percent" would be close. He added any "improvement in industrial recovery must help our status." Earnings so far for the second quarter "indicate" they will be "substantially in excess of those for the same quarter last year and appear to be approaching" the $1,600,000 first quarter of 1940.



Stresses Foreign Situation

A large portion of Balaban's remarks was directed to the foreign situation. Since start of hostilities in Europe in September, 1939, there was a drop of about 35 per cent in the company's gross foreign revenue, he said, as compared to the corresponding five months of 1938. "Thereafter, and to date," he added, "the decline has been reduced to 20 per cent off from the corresponding period a year ago," due chiefly to the company's program of debt retirement, studio retrenchment and world wide operating economies. He explained Paramount has investments in theatre subsidiaries in England which owe between £600,000 and £700,000 in obligations. "Excess cash which may not be brought to the United States can be used to reduce or retire these obligations," he added, observing also a "temporary suspension of British operations or of the flow of cash from England to the company in the United States will not materially affect us."

In 1939 Paramount's film revenue from outside this country and Canada represented approximately only 10 per cent of the entire gross income from film and theatre operations throughout the world, Balaban declared. "Therefore," he said, "it will be seen a small improvement in our business in the United States could offset any major additional declines in foreign revenue."

Freeman Airs His Views—

With members of the trade press, home office sales executives, advertising and publicity representatives, and Barney Balaban, president, in attendance, Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount production head, outlined the company's plans to eliminate "B" pictures and concentrate on about 38 top films for next season. This picture, taken at the Astor, shows the session in full swing. Freeman is second on the left, while Balaban is first on the right.

No More Paramount "B" Films, Balaban Tells Trade Press

NEW YORK—Elimination of "B" pictures on Paramount's 1940-41 schedule "has now been translated into action," declared Barney Balaban, president, during a trade press interview at the Hotel Astor. To demonstrate how this has been accomplished, Balaban had Y. Frank Freeman, executive production head, come on from the coast and explain. Besides these two, others at the luncheon were Neil F. Agnew, sales manager; his three division heads, Charles Reagan, Oscar Morgan and J. J. Unger; Robert F. Gillham, director of publicity and advertising, Al Wilkie and Herb Berg.

Reduced to simple terms, the process Freeman has in mind is to take the money normally expended on flat rental, average program pictures and use it to strengthen the company's top group, largely on the predication that only in rare instances do flat rental films "stand out," and, secondly, because they contribute to double billing—a practice held by the production chief to be the blame for "wasting story material."

Thus, Paramount will drop about 12 "B" films and concentrate on about 38 first line productions. But lest the exhibitor get the impression all he need do when these "extra value" films come along is to sit back and watch the crowds storm his theatre, let him consider his responsibility, Freeman declared. And these are his words: "We do not have enough money to produce pictures and also sell them to the public. The exhibitor must take some of the burden and responsibility away from the producers—assuming the pictures are good. The producer can't carry both loads on his shoulders. The exhibitor must stop relying on producers to put the pictures over for him. We are at the crossroads—producer and exhibitor alike—and whether we succeed or fail may be decided in the next 12 months. The exhibitor must regard himself as a partner if he expects to get the sort of product we must now produce almost entirely for the domestic market."

Balaban observed that as long as the current system of production is responsible for an oversupply of pictures and exhibitors are under pressure from distributors for playdates "they won't do anything different than they have ever done." But, on the other hand, if fewer and better films come out of Hollywood this might lead to more showmanship and possibly longer runs. Ultimately, if all producers followed a "fewer and better" course, he suits and the government suit pending against Paramount and other majors, which he called a "problem of serious concern." Balaban said this "places a great financial burden upon the industry, as well as a serious demand upon the time and energies of executives and personnel . . . The changes sought by the government were so fundamental and far-reaching, and the consequences so serious, the defending companies felt compelled to resist them, believing implicitly in the soundness, legality and business legitimacy of the practices and conditions attacked by the government." He made the flat statement that "representatives of the government and of the defendants upon the invitation of the government" are attempting to effect "practical and workable changes in the trade practices of this industry by mutual consent" which will vitiate necessity of a trial.

Paramount Board Continues With 16

New York—A moment after the ballot counters had determined the 16 members of the Paramount board had been re-elected, one stockholder recommended the board give consideration to reducing the number of members on the ground there were too many and this might prove cumbersome in deciding policies. Barney Balaban, who presided at the stockholders' meeting, answered this by saying it was too late to make any changes for the ensuing year, but the board would be glad to consider it for the future. He also observed 16 members were desirable in order to assure a quorum, since some directors are often occupied outside the city when meetings are called. He also made the point they serve without compensation. Hardly had the words left his lips when a woman stockholder cried out: "If that's the case, the more the merrier."

In answer to a question Balaban said there was no possible conflict between his capacity as Paramount president and that of head of B&K, with whom he has a contract that expires in about two and a half years. Asked whether a contemplated revision in federal taxation on theatre admissions will be passed on to consumers, he replied this will be left to the discretion of local management, depending largely on the competitive situation. A stockholder interested in the possibilities of the South American market was told by Balaban to "forget about it;" that a slight increase in domestic revenue would offset even up to a 33 per cent increase in South American revenue.

The board meets July 1 to elect officers.

said, duals might pass into extinction.

"Better merchandising" of product by theatre operators overtoned most of Freeman's remarks. He estimated the total individual bookings each year runs to about 15,000,000. If by creative showmanship exhibitors were able to net an average increase of $5 on each of these bookings "it would answer the problem." The top national gross in this country and Canada, with "very few" exceptions is about $1,600,000, he declared. This figure is based on the present system of admissions. In order to retrieve the negative cost, plus distribution, advertising and cost of prints, the producer must get back "50 per cent more than he put into the picture," and this is without any thought to profit, he added.

Therefore, he concluded, it is incumbent upon the exhibitor to exercise greater ingenuity in selling pictures to the public, because "whether Hollywood makes more or fewer pictures the cost does not come down for top grade talent—the chances are it will go up if fewer are made" and success of fewer but better films rests with the exhibitor, "for his own salvation."

Brandt Objects to Tax on the "Amusement of Children"

NEW YORK—Objection to the admission tax scale proposed to the senate committee in Washington by C. C. Pettijohn of the Hays office and Spyros Skouras was voiced by Harry Brandt, president, at an ITOA luncheon meeting at the Astor Hotel.

Prefacing his remarks with "none of us would deny the government of the privilege of paying taxes at a time like this," Brandt made a plea that taxes "be kept within proper and reasonable bounds." He said the ITOA had put itself on record in opposition and would receive shortly a hearing before the ways and means committee.

Later, Brandt amplified his remarks to BOXOFFICE and said the one-cent tax on a 10-cent admission was "a tax on the amusement of children." He also pointed out enough burdens have been placed on low income groups without adding to them by taxing their theatre admissions.

Revealing there are more seasonal closings now than all last summer, Brandt said a committee had called on Local 306 to request special consideration in a temporary reduction of wages for the summer. Accompanying Brandt were David Weinstock, Hyman Rachmil and Stanley Lawton.

He declared the committee was "pleasantly surprised at the agreeable reception" by the Local 306 executive board. The union officials, Brandt indicated, expressed a desire to confine the problem to individual theatres. An early decision by Local 306 was promised.

On his remarks on the Neely bill and his trip to Washington, Brandt said "as it is now written the bill is licked." He added the bill would have put "a stranglehold on independent exhibitors."

A subcommittee under the chairmanship of Clarence F. Lea (D., Cal.) according to Brandt, is considering redrafting the bill in a form that would include a comprehensive outline of fair trade practices.

Turning to local problems, Brandt warned members to be careful to adhere to the ordinance which stipulates "a certain section of the main floor be set aside for children and be properly supervised by a matron."

He declared the license bureau had been causing trouble for theatres which have let children sit in balconies supervised or unsupervised. The matter is being discussed with the license bureau and should be amicably settled, Brandt said.

Members were also advised to tell representatives of the porter's union the ITOA is the sole bargaining agent and individual theatres could not deal with the union. The union is requesting a revision of the wage scale following conclusion of the contract on September 1.

For the first time, members of the local film board were invited as guests. Brandt said he hopes to make it a regular occasion every three months in an effort to arrive at a better understanding between all branches of the industry.

He declared the "name calling and intra-industry quarreling" was not doing the industry any good. Asserting signs "point to a better understanding among all branches," Brandt stated "we should unite for the common purpose of keeping the business to ourselves and not let outsiders tell us what to do."

The latter half of the meeting was devoted to fund-raising on behalf of the United Jewish Appeal. William Klein, attorney, delivered an address for the amusement division committee.

New Committees for Suit Decree Terms

New York—As the all-industry suit settlement negotiations recessed over the weekend, two new subcommittees were formed. Personnel of both groups, one dealing with discrimination and the other with a study of sales policy as it affects newly acquired or erected theatres, is the same: Joseph M. Proskauer, counsel for Warner; John F. Casky, representing 20th Century-Fox, and George Sher representing the government.

Suspend Studio Wage Arbitration Plan

NEW YORK—The mutually agreed proposal that major studios and the IATSE arbitrate the matter of the latter's members retaining a 10 per cent wage increase, after a trial period, has been "temporarily suspended," according to Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount production head, who was in the east to attend the company's stockholders' meeting and confer on production plans. He returned to the studios over the weekend.

Freeman said there was no point in arbitrating differences of opinion over the wage situation until tangible facts can be ascertained for presentation to the IATSE. These, dealing with the impost of higher production costs and the foreign situation have been difficult to correlate to the point where they would be sufficient proof to obtain the full consent of the IATSE to drop the wage boost. Freeman added there would be no advantage in arbitrating the situation at present, even if producers were fortunate enough to gain a decision. "We would rather settle the matter by mutual consent than have the IATSE turn around and make new demands on us," is the way he put it.

Bright Report by Dembow On Middlewest Prospects

NEW YORK—Outlook among Paramount theatre partners in North and South Dakota, Minneapolis and Detroit is optimistic for the immediate future, according to Sam Dembow, circuit executive, upon his return from a business visit to those spots. He was accompanied by Leonard Goldenson. Dembow states the Dakotas are hopeful over good crops, while the automobile city looks to an industrial spurt.

BROADWAY

IT HAPPENED the other weekend and as a result it's the exhibitors calling the distributors involved "chiselers." Bill Scully and Jack Bowen decided to play George Skouras and Bill White a round of golf at Westchester Country Club, which they did, with the latter two winding up on the short end. After a tour of the greens, the quartet engaged in ping pong and badminton, the exhibitors paired against the distribs. Again the theatre-operating fraternity found themselves on the short end. But then the sports cycle turned to cards, the same teams paired at casino at $1 a point. Not only did Skouras and White make up their losses, but each chalked up a net profit of $214 on the day. Skouras has been paid off. White is still waiting for his check. Every time he tries to get Scully on the phone for the pay-off, the Universal sales manager is either in Canada or Memphis or some other town far removed from Radio City. Bowen has made it apparent Scully will dole out the dough, but for the past week there has been no sign of Scully or the $214. Hence the name calling.

Cresson E. Smith, RKO's western sales manager, left for Minneapolis over the weekend . . . Margaret Driscoll, secretary to F. L. Weber at Columbia, is vacationing in the Poconos . . . Sam Krellberg was at the ringside for the Louis-Godoy tussle. He had a special reason. Louis goes into a serial film for Krellberg in about two weeks . . . Fred W. Deitsch, Columbia executive floor receptionist, is celebrating his 11th anniversary with the company. Says he remembers back when the entire personnel consisted of 50 persons and were all on one floor. The number has increased since to about 500 . . . Clara Deutsch, secretary at Allied of New Jersey headquarters, will be married on June 30 to Arnold Ghinger. The ceremony takes place at Schiff Center, Fordham, followed by a honeymoon at Hunter, N. Y. . . . Rutgers Neilson has been busy attending affairs of the National Editorial Ass'n meeting. He is the only press agent on their membership roles.

Along Film Peddler's Lane: Jules Lapidus, Universal's eastern district manager, acquired a home in Mt. Vernon before leaving on a trip through his territory . . . Harry Furst, salesman at Big U, mourning the loss of his sister, last surviving member of his family . . . John Bolte, who operates three Bronx houses, is sporting a new summer outfit . . . Lester Cohen of the Arcade and his partner, Joe Pearl, are touring the south with their families . . . Harry Blinderman of the Belle circuit has acquired the Palace, Manhattan . . . Moe Lane, Manhattan exhibitor, reports his son is feeling better following an appendectomy at the Park View Hospital . . . Max Cohen, Big U sales manager, is proud because his daughter graduated from the New York Fine Arts School summa cum laude and received a scholarship, all on her 18th birthday . . . Izzy Zatkin, booker and buyer for the Lane, Tribune and Gem theatres, Manhattan, is vacationing in Philadelphia with his family . . . The Lesinger freres, Herman, Sam and Murray, are operating the Jefferson, Brooklyn.

Robert Schless, general manager of Great Britain and the continent for Warner, plans to return on the Clipper July 15 . . . Enrique Baez, UA's Brazilian manager, sails on the Brazil Friday. Also on the boat is Carmen Miranda, who did a Portuguese specialty for 20th-Fox's "Down Argentine Way" . . . If Ben Cammack, assistant to Phil Reisman, cannot make that boat, he will sail for Buenos Aires on July 14 . . . On the Uruguay southward bound for a cruise are Mrs. Tom Connors, wife of M-G-M's eastern division manager, and daughter Marjorie . . . Alex Korda is due in on the Clipper Friday . . . Mrs. Laudy Lawrence, wife of M-G-M's European manager, and son are expected over as soon as transportation can be arranged . . . An infection kept Arthur Loew off the tennis courts and out of the office during the week.

Charles Skouras broke a luncheon date with Farmer Bill Powers to break bread with Bill Rodgers at the Plaza Hotel. Squire Powers in turn lunched with Louis Astor of Columbia at the west side Lindy's . . . John A. Downing, RKO's home office representative in Boston, has been appointed office manager of the Hub exchange . . . Bill Scully, Universal's general sales manager, and F. J. McCarthy, eastern division manager, are in Memphis talking a deal with M. A. Lightman. Scully goes to Chicago before returning while McCarthy heads straight back to New York . . . Verree Teasdale, film actress and wife of Adolphe Menjou, is stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. She's here on a vacation . . . George Seed, formerly manager of Fabian's Harmanus Bleecker Hall, is now located in Cohoes, N. Y., as city manager operating both the Rialto and Regent.

Leopold Friedman moves from the Warwick to Fifth Ave. and 68th St., October 1. He has the corner apartment on the 11th floor which overlooks the park . . . Frank P. Orsatti is president of the newly formed Phonovision Corp. of America . . . Joe Vergesslich is handling shorts and non-theatricals at the local Warner exchange. He likes it, too . . . Lyle Talbot on Saturday night was guest of honor at the Hotel Piccadilly Celebrity Soiree series . . . Bill Grady has left M-G-M . . . Bob O'Donnell has gone back to Dallas after a brief stay here . . . Frank Freeman came on from the coast to attend the annual Paramount stockholders meet held Tuesday at the home office . . . Earl Hudson was in from Detroit for conferences with Sam Dembow, Leon Netter and Leonard Goldenson.

Joe Rosenbloom, son-in-law of Ed Mantell and in charge of the Art and Tiffany, Bronx, has been confined to Hunts Point Hospital for the past two weeks during which time he underwent an operation . . . Charles Casanave flew to Chicago, Tuesday afternoon, for the Allied convention. He left the Windy City, Friday . . . Milt Kusell has three ears of corn he picked last year from his Goshen, Conn., farm . . . Maurice Brosie, of the State, W. Orange, is still talking about the dinner he had with Spencer Tracy when the star visited on the recent "Edison, the Man" premieres in the Oranges . . . Jack Hattem, chief booker and buyer for the Interboro circuit, makes his headquarters at the local Columbia exchange with a desk and all set aside for his daily use . . . Charles Stern visited Baltimore and Washington UA exchanges the latter part of the week . . . Harold Sugarman, upstate UA salesman, was a visitor at the local UA exchange for periodic conferences . . . W. Ray Johnston is making his permanent headquarters on the coast now.

Frances Bloom, formerly Louis K. Sidney's secretary, has resigned at WHN to devote her future time to domestic life . . . Edward C. Grainger has returned from a 10-day trip through the Feiber & Shea houses in Ohio, Pennsylvania and upper New York . . . Ernest Truex will be back on Broadway soon, having been cast for the Moss Hart-George Kaufman show to feature Helen Broderick . . . Bette Davis is planning an eastern vacation shortly . . . Sam Seidelman is now a member of Arthur W. Kelly's home office foreign staff at UA . . . Mort Shea has been ailing lately and is spending his time at his New Hampshire farm . . . Max A. Cohen, who purchased the Wallack Theatre on W. 42nd St. some time ago from B. S. Moss, is preparing to tear down the structure and erect a new 600-seat house. He also intends to go ahead with the building of a new theatre on 116th St.

Allied Gets Reports On Suit and Neely

(More Details on Page 26)

CHICAGO—The present status of the Neely bill in the house of representatives and the consent decree negotiations were discussed by Abram Myers, general counsel, at the closing session of Allied's convention at the Morrison Hotel. The meeting was a closed affair, for Allied members only.

The convention passed a series of resolutions, embodying most of the discussions of the confab. Briefly, they were:

1. Organization of a standing committee on information that will collect and disseminate sales policies and practices, together with legal data, for all Allied members "in good standing," and that all units cooperate by furnishing such data.

2. A petition to be sent to the film companies asking them not to permit showing of their "A" product on double feature programs.

3. An attack on the Hays organization for appearance of its representatives before the senate finance committee on the admission tax revisions.

4. Pledge of support of personal services and use of Allied member theatre screens to the government in its preparedness and defense program campaigns.

5. An attack on distributor company special drives for dates, claiming they are becoming too numerous now.

6. Praise for Allied leaders' work on the Neely bill and other measures, and at the same time, condemnation of "certain spokesmen for other branches of the industry" for their "efforts to smear Allied and her leaders for their efforts in our behalf."

7. Wishes for a speedy recovery to Al Steffes of Northwest Allied, who is ill, and recuperating in the Minnesota woods.

8. Thanks to Jack Kirsch, of Illinois Allied, for work done by himself and his committees on the convention.

The Thursday afternoon session found varied exhibitor delegates airing their complaints over double features in their territories.

Charles Casanave, head of Advertising Accessories, Inc., made a plea for Allied support by its individual units as well as nationally, stating that the new services of A. A. "would cause a rebirth of and improvement in advertising accessories."

The convention closed Friday night with the annual dinner-dance in the Morrison Terrace Room, with Jimmy Walker, ex-mayor of New York, and onetime general counsel for MPTOA, scheduled to be toastmaster. Dinner parties were held on Wednesday night at the Colony Club, and Thursday night at the Chez Paree.

The total registration ran about 400, including exhibitors, wives of exhibitors, trade press, and equipment representatives.

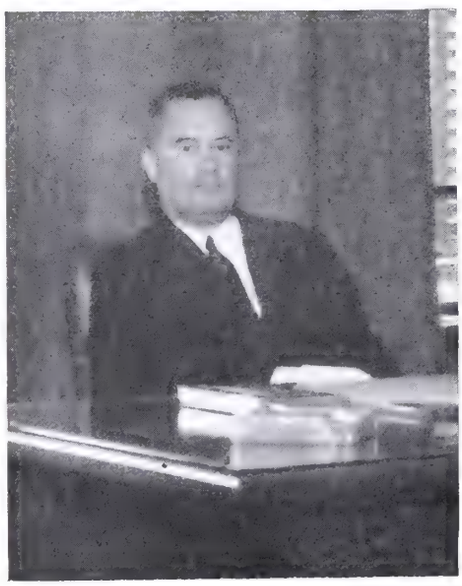
Arnold Believes Divorcing Theatres Would Be Like "Unscrambling Eggs"

New York—Thurman Arnold has not determined if the government is willing to waive divorcement of theatres but the trust buster, personally, is convinced such a procedure is impracticable, he is said to have told his confreres at the momentus June 3 dinner at the University Club, according to unimpeachable sources.

In fact, these sources declare, Arnold, in describing his own attitude in respect to divorcement, is said to have used the term "it would be like unscrambling eggs."

The entire conversation that evening is understood to have centered distinctly about whether the industry was "in earnest" in attempting, at this time, to set up a workable trade practice formula. After such assurances were given in unequivocal terms, Arnold is said to have advised industry representatives to go about the business of drafting settlement proposals, so that these could be put into effect the moment his superiors consent to status quo of theatres.

Circuit Head Envisions A Pickup in the Fall



NEW YORK—With business for the period off about 10 per cent, Charles Skouras, head of Fox West Coast, looks for a substantial improvement in the fall. Skouras maintains the war news over the radio is largely responsible for the drop in receipts.

The circuit executive, here for product conferences with his brother Spyros, stresses the need for the steady flow of big pictures. Observing that conditions are "pretty bad" now, he points out, significantly enough, the "bad ones are doing worse than ever at the boxoffice."

Skouras expresses the hope the majors will reach a settlement with the government on the anti-trust suit. He believes it will help boost the confidence of all concerned considering the plight of the industry as a result of the European war.

At the present, Skouras says, FWC has no intention of constructing any new theatres.

Concerning double features, Skouras declares it has been going on for six years and it will be difficult to change the habits of theatregoers. He says they are demanding quality as well as quantity in their film diet.

Played Part in Big Doings—

Paramount Salary Figures Are Filed

NEW YORK—Two actors, Harry L. Crosby jr., more familiarly known as "Bing" and Fred MacMurray outdraw Barney Balaban in yearly salaries, according to the Paramount's report for the year ending December 30, 1939, filed with SEC. Crosby is top man with $250,000, MacMurray follows with $240,333 and Balaban, president of the company, earns $236,333.

The aggregate remuneration of seven directors who are also officers of the company amounts to $689,895. Salaries of six other officers total $150,803. There are 131 employes in production and distribution who receive over $20,000 a year for an aggregate of $6,620,718.

According to the report, three persons received bonuses or share of the profits amounting to $30,000 or more. They are: Ronald Colman, $44,747; Martin J. Mullin, $37,854, and Samuel Pinanski, $37,854. Price, Waterhouse & Co. with $43,913 and Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett with $58,600 are the only outsiders receiving $20,000 or more in fees.

91 Domestic Affiliates

Out of 135 subsidiaries, the company lists 91 domestic affiliates of which it owns 67 directly or indirectly by holding 85 per cent or more of the stock, 22 by controlling from 50 to 85 per cent of the stock, and two others wholly owned but inactive. There are 44 subsidiaries operating in foreign countries which are not listed.

The company, the report shows, has $33,960,726 in securities invested in its domestic affiliates. The company holds 257,651 shares in Balaban & Katz amounting to $20,821,583. In New England Theatres, Inc., the holding of 100 shares is valued at $1,714,210. All others aggregate $11,462,264.

Investment in securities of foreign subsidiaries totals $20,821,583. Included here is Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., with 38,992 shares at $17,664,435.

Cost Allocation Unchanged

The company continues to allocate 85 per cent of production cost to the domestic market and 15 per cent to foreign. Approximately 83 per cent of the domestic is written off in three months and the remaining 17 per cent within 12 months of release. The portion allocated to foreign is written off in 15 months.

It is stated no persons as of May 10, 1940 own more than 10 per cent of any class of equity securities. Adolph Zukor and his son, Eugene, are listed as owning an unpaid balance of $315,000 on stock received as part of proceeds from settlement by the reorganization trustee in 1937.

The securities registered by Paramount with the Stock Exchange and the amount to which they are effective are: Three and one and one-quarter per cent debentures due March 1, 1947, to $12,507,200; six per cent cumulative first preferred $10 par value to $144,562; limited guaranty of Paramount Broadway Corp., first mortgage sinking fund certificates to $8,104,000, and common stock $1 par value to $2,467,275.

New Passport Regulations Cut Canadian Patronage

ALBANY—New regulations on passports for Canadians entering United States are reported to have reduced further patronage at theatres on this side of the border which has been decreasing accordingly as the war overseas became total. The exchange situation is still another factor in the drop. In some places Canadian money is accepted only at a big discount.

"Heaven Too" Into Music Hall at Regular Policy

NEW YORK—After weighing the possibility of roadshowing "All This, and Heaven Too" at the Center, Warner executives decided to open the picture at the Music Hall, July 4, under the regular house policy.

The length of the picture, two hours and 20 minutes, has posed a problem for the Music Hall management which will condense the stage show.

"School Days" a Tasty Dish

Hollywood—To the current entertainment taste, RKO's "Tom Brown's School Days" will be like a thick slice of roast beef and a liberal helping of Yorkshire pudding to a hungry person. And it is just as steeped in British tradition.

In picture form, the comparatively simple, although famous, story of English school life during the nineteenth century possesses the artistic appeal of a fine etching, of which many of its beautifully staged and masterfully photographed sequences are reminiscent. This artistry does not detract from the feature's dramatic and interest-sustaining qualities, but, on the other hand, serves to enhance them.

The cast is splendid and reveals definite juvenile star material in moppet Jimmy Lydon in the title role, although Sir Cedric Hardwicke dominates. Gene Towne and Graham Baker co-produced; Robert Stevenson directed.—SPEAR.

Adjustments Dictate "Wind" Withdrawal

NEW YORK—Adjustments made to subsequent run operators who complained they could not afford 70 per cent for "Gone With the Wind" after the film had been "milked" by extended first-run and moveover engagements has been instrumental in M-G-M's decision to shelve the film the end of July so far as further 1940 bookings are concerned.

This course is not considered radical, it is said, since the original plan had tentatively limited 1940 bookings to 5,000. This figure will be achieved in about six weeks, with approximately 3,500 engagements written off, 1,500 more booked and which are playing off at the rate of about 250 a week. It is estimated that to date 28,000,000 persons have seen the film, some two and three times. On the basis of a Gallup poll conducted before the picture was released and which was a factor in determining the sales policy, executives are of the opinion that, all things being equal, "Wind" should attract up to 25,000,000 persons in 1941. This is confidently anticipated in view of the lower admission scale that will prevail. Current deliberations are said to revolve around a 50 cent matinee-75 cent evening scale, with proportionately lower rentals to exhibitors.

As an indication of the proportionate share of business still available in key cities where the film has played, it is pointed out "Wind" was shown in but 60 subsequent runs in the local metropolitan area aside from two first runs on Broadway, while the company's possibilities in this area is figured at close to 400.

"Stars Look Down" May Follow "Wind" at Astor

NEW YORK—Indications are "The Stars Look Down," English production produced by I. Goldsmith, will follow "Gone With the Wind" at the Astor. The latter film, in its 27th roadshow week, may be pulled within four weeks. Meanwhile, the M-G-M studio is busy editing "Stars." Certain footage necessary to accelerate the pace is said to be before cameras in England at present.

Plans call for a policy at the Astor similar to "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and "Pygmalion." These were presented at popular prices. "Stars," from a story by A. J. Cronin who wrote "The Citadel," features Michael Redgrave, Margaret Lockwood and Emlyn Williams, and was directed by Carol Reed. The distributor has not included the film on its 1940-41 schedule, but will offer it if special, advance engagements come up to expectations.

RKO Quits Negotiations For 7 Cocalis Houses

NEW YORK—Extended negotiations between RKO and the Cocalis interests for the latter's seven theatres in the Bronx have been called off, according to Malcolm Kingsberg, RKO executive.

Provide Canadian Gov't Films for Fund Raising

NEW YORK—Permission for the Canadian government to exhibit an alloted number of American films free of charge in order to raise money for Canadian war savings certificates was granted L. N. Nathanson, head of Famous Players Canadian Corp. and chairman of the industry committee cooperating with the Dominion government, at the regular second quarterly meeting of the MPPDA board.

Nathanson made a special appearance before the board which voted unanimously to grant his request. All details of the special showings have yet to be worked out. It is said war saving stamps will be used as admission in the campaign to raise money for the Canadian war chest.

Those present at the meeting included Will H. Hays, chairman; E. W. Hammons, E. B. Hatrick, W. C. Michel, Murray Silverstone, George Schaefer, Jack Cohn, Barney Balaban, David B. Bernstein, Joseph Hazen, Charles D. Prutzman and F. L. Herron.

Clearance Suit Charges Are Held "Unfounded"

NEW YORK—Skouras circuit executives declare the anti-trust charges by the River Theatre Corp. on clearance differences between Pearl River and Nyack are unfounded. The plaintiff has the Central, Pearl River, while the defendant operates the Broadway, Nyack, a distance of nine miles apart.

The River Theatre Corp. states it has to wait 52-72 days after Nyack, but the Skouras contention is clearance is controlled by Paterson, N. J., for both towns involved. Further, Skouras does not operate the Paterson, hence the Nyack Theatre has no say in the clearance matter.

In the Bag—

Gene Towne, producer of RKO's "Tom Brown's School Days," smiles with satisfaction upon the bag containing the prints for the premiere at the Music Hall. Towne was bagged by Photographer William T. Hoff at New York's La Guardia Field.

War Tax Measure Is Seen as Price Boon

NEW YORK—Opinion of a number of exhibitor and distribution executives is that adoption of war time tax meaures at theatres will prove a boon to the industry. The war tax amounts to one cent on every 10-cent admission or fraction thereof.

The general consensus seems to veer to the belief such a tax will give exhibitors their first opportunity in years to increase prices. It is held that where an exhibitor is charging 25 cents he will be compelled to add the three cents tax to his price and rather than make the admission 28 cents he would be inclined to charge 30 cents, thereby netting two cents extra for himself.

Similar examples are made all along the line and it is hoped admissions generally will move upward. However, there is a fear some exhibitors, who usually charge 10 cents, rather than add the penny tax are likely to absorb it. This is not expected where there is a 15 cents admission. The tax would bring the new figure to 17 cents and rather than advertise an odd figure, or absorb two cents on each admission, the price is expected to be boosted to 20 cents. Actually this would net the exhibitor three cents, two cents for the government but an overall increase of five cents from the former tariff.

With 85,000,000 weekly admissions as the gauge in the United States, it is the belief of Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, distributors can recoup foreign losses if every theatre owner cooperates.

Admission Tax Collections Lowest for Year in May

WASHINGTON—Federal admission-tax collections in May dropped to the lowest point touched since January, totaling $1,791,095.76 as compared with $2,000,902.18 in April, it is shown by figures just compiled by the bureau of internal revenue.

The month's revenue, however, was well above the $1,605,987.70 collected in May, 1939, and brought collections above those of the corresponding period a year ago for the fourth consecutive month.

The bureau reported that admission tax collections for the first 11 months of the fiscal year which ends June 30 were $20,242,312.69, an increase of $2,262,771.21 over the $17,979,541.48 collected in the corresponding period a year ago.

"U" Retires 12,750 Shares Of 8% Preferred Stock

NEW YORK—Retirement of 12,750 shares of Universal 8 per cent preferred stock has been completed, the shares having previously been purchased out of surplus. Capital of the corporation has been reduced by $1,275,000, the amount represented by the retired shares. Also, the company has extended its revolving credit with Irving Trust and Commercial National Bank and Trust Co. for one year beyond Oct. 13, 1940. The amount has been increased from $2,500,000 to $3,250,000.

REVIEW FLASHES

CAPTAIN IS A LADY, THE (M-G-M)—A snug little comedy which will do yeoman's service in the niche for which it was produced, namely, supporting fare at the deluxers and top billing in neighborhood showings. Charles Coburn, flanked by a bevy of tried and true character actresses, is featured as a salty, retired sea captain who is the only male inmate of an old ladies' home. His characterization is up to his usual high thespic standard. Frederick Stephani produced; Robert S. Sinclair directed.

CROSS-COUNTRY ROMANCE (RKO)—Most audiences in search of light diverting entertainment should find this easy enough to take, albeit it patterns closely after the now historic "It Happened One Night." As a comeback vehicle for Gene Raymond, however, it serves its purpose, its quota of laughs and moves along rapidly throughout. Cliff Reid produced; Frank Woodruff directed.

MILLIONAIRES IN PRISON (RKO)—A fresh salt on the conventional penitentiary melodrama, in which the usual grimness has been alleviated by welcome touches of humor, places this above the general average of program fodder. Among its assets can be listed a winning performance by the perennial Lee Tracy, bobbing up again to give an excellent account of himself. Howard Benedict produced; Ray McCarey directed.

QUEEN OF THE MOB (Para)—Adhering to routine as a gangster melodrama in every respect, this is aimed for consumption by the action house. The production displays some measure of class but the story, based on material supplied by J. Edgar Hoover, holds no surprises. Cast is adequate. Edward T. Lowe produced; James Hogan directed.

UNTAMED (Para)—All that saves this one from hopeless mediocrity are the impressive and vast scenic backgrounds of the Canadian woods, in which it finds its locale; the fact that they are expertly photographed in Technicolor, and a spectacular blizzard sequence. The screenplay, an adaptation of the Sinclair Lewis novel, "Mantrap," specializes in the obvious; the cast, although it tries hard, cannot transcend the material with which it is supplied, and direction by George Archainbaud is sluggish and heavyhanded. Paul Jones produced.

WAGONS WESTWARD (Rep)—Fits the niche between regulation westerns and the product of major companies which occasionally do an outdoor epic. Story has twins, one good, one bad, working out their destiny. Chester Morris, Buck Jones, Anita Louise. Lew Landers directed.

Consolidated Shutters Ascot in the Bronx

NEW YORK—Consolidated has finally darkened the Ascot, one of the six Bronx houses slated for summer closings. The circuit, it is said, still has the Avalon, Fleetwood, Oxford, Kingsbridge and Jerome on notice for a sudden shutdown.

Meanwhile, poor business accounted for seven other shutterings in the metropolitan area. Manhattan houses are the Bijou, Clinton, Palace, Second Avenue and Belmont, in addition to the Strand, North Tarrytown and the Playhouse, Rye.

The Ruby, an old East Side landmark, is being demolished.

Schenck Renewed for Five Years, Talley for Three

NEW YORK—Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the 20th-Fox board, and Truman H. Talley, producer of Movietonews, have had their contracts extended, the former from Aug. 22, 1942, to March 31, 1947, and the latter from June 14, 1940, to June 13, 1943.

There is no change in salary for Schenck which is reported at $2,500 a week. Talley, under his expiring agreement, received $1,000 a week, but under the new arrangement gets a boost of $250 a week. However, the new contract reads his salary shall be subject to reduction if a general cut is instituted.

Precedental Ruling In Broadway Zone

NEW YORK—Of particular significance to independent operators within the Broadway zone is a decision of Judge Carroll G. Walters dissolving an injunction against the Belmont previously granted by Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, and dismissing the complaint brought by Local 306, projectionists union, against the theatre.

The court's decision, coming after Emil K. Ellis was called in to defend the theatre at trial, is said by the attorney to be the first to hold that granting of a temporary injunction in a labor dispute after trial, is not conclusive on the trial court. Ellis states the ruling circumvents Section 876A of the civil practices act.

When the action was originally filed in 1937 by the union, it sought to enforce the Belmont to adhere to a wage scale for operators set up in the 10-year contract between Local 306 and the ITOA on the ground the Belmont, which Sam Krellberg owns, was an ITOA member. At that time the theatre was paying $63 a week for two operators. The action sought to compel Krellberg to raise the wage scale to $275 a week for four operators, which, with the subsequent 10 per cent raise recently granted Local 306, would bring the aggregate weekly operators' salary to $302.

Judge Rosenman granted the union a temporary injunction and the Belmont was required to pay projectionists according to the higher scale. Subsequently Local 306 sought to make the temporary injunction permanent. When the case came to trial Ellis contended (1) Krellberg had not been duly admitted to the ITOA according to its by-laws, (2) the organization had no power to make a 10-year contract with Local 306 binding on non-assenting members, and (3) the Belmont was not a typical Broadway theatre.

Apparently Judge Walters was not in accord with the plaintiff's version of what constitutes a Broadway theatre, which went like this: Any theatre between 34th and 59th Streets and Sixth and Eighth Avenues. Harry Brandt, a plaintiff witness, said a Broadway theatre is one showing first run films in the Times Square area and which has a transient trade. He said the Times Square area is between 42nd and 50th Sts. and Sixth and Eighth Avenues, although conceding the Miami on Sixth Ave. and the Waldorf on 50th St. are not first-runs.

Matthew Levy, counsel for Local 306, is expected to appeal.

Operators' Strike Closes F&M Units

St. Louis—A strike of operators Thursday closed 27 Fanchon & Marco theatres here. The strike was called when the circuit refused to dismiss two suits against the union for $75,000 and $200,000 as a condition of a new wage contract. Other houses in the city are not affected.

Bankers Change Gov't Attitude

ton on future moves. The night before former Judge Joseph M. Proskauer opened, Hayes indicated a recess would be taken. However, when Williams did not say anything in court the following day, Proskauer approached Williams after his opening and asked him the why and wherefore. Whereupon, Williams said he was waiting for the defense to make the move. Proskauer said he was waiting for Williams, but in any event both sides wanted the other to start the ball rolling.

Immediately after Judge Goddard gave his blessing to a temporary adjournment of the trial so both sides might proceed on settlement discussions, distributors got busy at their own headquarters and also squeezed in two sessions with Arnold. Nothing near a tangible basis for settlement came out of these meetings with the trust buster, but it was mutually agreed "in principle" an approach was at hand.

Arbitration was the first subject tackled by the lawyers amongst themselves.

Session in Schenck's Office

Indicative of the industry's respect for the government's desire that all interests be appeased in whatever trade practice formula is ultimately adopted is the star chamber session held in Schenck's office the morning of June 17. Those who attended were, in addition to Schenck, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M who played a leading role in the negotiations that resulted in the ill-fated code of fair trade practices; Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager of Warner and right bower to Rodgers during the code palavers; John W. Davis, representing Loew's; Proskauer, Robert W. Perkins and Hazen, for Warner; J. Robert Rubin, Leopold Friedman and Charles C. Moskowitz, also for Loew's, and George J. Schaefer, RKO president. It is significant Sears chose to attend this meeting rather than the opening day of his own company's second sales convention in Chicago.

According to authoritative sources, the Monday morning session revealed the attorneys and executives are considering the relevant merits of the respective highlights of both the commerce department proposals as well as the code of fair trade practices. At 2 p. m., the same day, Schaefer, Davis, Hazen, Sears, Proskauer, Neil F. Agnew, Austin C. Keough, Thomas D. Thacher, Richard E. Dwight, Edward F. Raftery, Benjamin Pepper and Williams held a conference at the Bar Ass'n Bldg., a stone's throw from the Hays office on 44th St.

It was at this juncture the first formal debate for an acceptable draft came about. After a few sessions, it became apparent the overall importance of the task would require several months to complete. The view in this respect is that any plan which might be developed from present negotiations would give quicker relief to complainants than a trial which may last a year or two with at least 12 to 20 months for adjudication by the supreme court.

April Film Stock Deals By Company Executives

WASHINGTON—Transactions of film company officers and directors in the stocks of their corporations in April are reported by the securities and exchange commission in its semi-monthly summary, as follows:

Columbia Pictures: Acquisition of 100 shares of common stock by Abraham Schneider, New York, officer, and exchange of 31,321 common voting trust certificates for 31,321 shares of common by Jack Cohn, New York, officer, whose interest at the end of the month was 31,876 shares.

Birth of the Movies Is Remembered

Pittsburgh—The current week, starting June 16, is occasioning a celebration by the Harris Amusements of the 35th anniversary of the world's first motion picture theatre. It was on June 19, 1905, that the late Senator John P. Harris, and his brother-in-law, Harry Davis, opened the Nickelodeon in Pittsburgh, the first all-moving picture theatre in the world. All of the Harris houses are taking part in the current anniversary campaign.

Short Subject Reviews

The U. S. Navy

(March of Time—Vol. VI, No. 11)

RKO 19 Mins.

March of Time, in its latest issue, surveys the navy and explains how it will be developed and expanded under the new national defense program. The editors point out that under the present administration the government has spent four and a half billion dollars on the navy and will have to spend many billions more. Which will make a lot of people sit up and take notice. All forces of naval defense are shown, and development of the navy since the famous, five-power conference is dealt with. It has been pointed out previously that the MOT editors are trading close to the line of propaganda. With this issue, they hopped over squarely with both feet.

Stranger Than Fiction No. 78

Universal 9 Mins.

Herein are scenes of a college student who spends most of his time doing hand stands; a woodcarver named Quigley who models pioneer scenes in Portland, Ore.; an airline pilot's hobby—miniature railroads; a cartoonist who draws blindfolded; two women who fashion clever knick-knacks from sea shells and a Reading, Pa., modeler who builds wagons. Interesting, as usual.

The Foul Ball Player

Paramount (Stone Age Cartoon) 7 Mins.

The commentator on the sound track tells how our ancestors played baseball. Then this bit of whimsy starts off. At first it lags but when things really get going between the Granite Giants and the Marble Midgets, there are many laughable situations which should particularly appeal to kids. Final results: Midgets win with the aid of allergy. The Giants all have hay fever and the golden rod settles their hash.

Cradle of Champions

Paramount (Sportlight) 10 Mins.

Youngsters who may probably be the next champions in various sporting endeavors are shown in this reel at practice. It covers horseback riding, broad jumping, shot-putting, skiing and finally boxing by five-year-olds at Annapolis. It is appealing throughout. The last sequence is good for a laugh anywhere. Worth while.

Onion Pacific

Paramount (Popeye) 10 Mins.

Popeye and Bluto run trains for a state franchise. In addition Olive Oyl offers a kiss to the winner. Everything that could possibly happen in an animator's bag of tricks does and the result is a whirlwind subject. The invention is good. The reliable spinach again does the trick. Good.

Sanctuary of the Seals

20th-Fox (Newsreel Cameraman) 9 Mins.

The breeding, courtship and early life of seals on the Pribilof Islands have been ably captured by the camera here and they make first rate entertainment of the natural history kind. The reel is studded with winning studies of young animals and also offers many narrative sidelights into commercial hunting.

Catnip Capers

20th-Fox (Terry Toon) 7 Mins.

This one is comparable to the best Technicolor cartoons produced by any company. In the departments that count—animation, imagination and execution—it has the stuff to amuse the audience. The mouse inhales catnip and goes off on the wildest fancifying. Eventually he comes to earth, the laughing stock of the mice.

Information, Please No. 10

RKO Pathe 11 Mins.

In the Information Please league this number has about the highest batting average to date. Deems Taylor is the guest expert. The queries shot at the quartet which includes Oscar Levant, F. P. A. and Kieran range from naming various weapons to correctly identifying George Washington in a Homburg hat. Worth while.

Boobs in the Woods

Columbia (All-Star Comedies) 16 Mins.

Andy Clyde is one of those hapless husbands burdened by a shiftless brother-in-law. The brother-in-law causes Andy to lose his job. The family then goes on a vacation with same in-law making the camping trip a nightmare. The comedy is both juvenile and antiquated.

The Chewin' Bruin

Vitaphone (Looney Tune) 7 Mins.

This is Porky Pig and not Porky Pig. The character listens to his grandpa relate how he conquered a pesky bear that had a hankering for his precious chewing tobacco. Flashback tells the story. The animation and general chase and fighting business are well handled but the whole seems to be just average.

You're Next

Columbia (All-Star Comedies) 17 Mins.

That gifted comedian, Walter Catlett, makes the most of skimpy material at his command. Consequently, the comedy is fairly amusing in spots. Catlett is teamed with Monte Collins as partners in a detective agency. Roscoe Ates is the kidnaped victim. The technique is antebellum.

Stranger Than Fiction No. 77

Universal 9 Mins.

In keeping with the title, this number offers a Louisville man who prides himself on his long finger nails; an Oregon baseball stadium worker who solved the lawn mower problem by attaching a wheel chair to the mower; a dog that plays baseball; miniature art works in wax, and a house in Florida that is covered with a million bottle caps.

Swingin' in the Barn

Universal 19 Mins.

With a barn for the story setting, a number of youthful and fast moving acts perform in this two-reeler. It is altogether entertainment of a sound nature and should please wherever the audience relishes the simpler forms of entertainment. The King Sisters sing; Texas Jim Lewis and his band supply the musical background; Maidie and Fay offer acrobatic dancing and the Hill Billyettes offer a dancing ensemble. It has hardly a dull moment.

Modern New Orleans

M-G-M (Traveltalk) 8 Mins.

The city that calls itself "America's Most Interesting City" is Technicolored in some of its less interesting aspects here. Shown are the Huey P. Long Bridge, the new hospital, Roosevelt Hotel, Canal Street, docks, cemeteries, homes, and the like. It could have been done much better if a comparison of the "Vieux Carre" were made with the new city.

Blue Barron and His Orchestra

Paramount (Headliner) 10 Mins.

This is a neatly done musical that should have them leaving the theatre well satisfied. The musical arrangements are smooth and easy to take; the vocals and novelties hit the spot. Production and recording are fine. Worth while.

Going Places No. 77

Universal 10 Mins.

This issue deals entirely with the life and activity that is to be found on dude ranches out west. Plenty of footage is devoted to riding, camping and the familiar like. Throughout it is well photographed and pleasantly diverting.

Silent Wings

RKO Pathe (Sportscope) 9 Mins.

Motorless aviation is the subject of this reel. Pictorially and verbally it sums up to a novel sporting reel which should have good reception. The sport has been little publicized in this medium and many will be interested in these closeups of the how, why and whence. Worth while.

Warner Bros. (——) 140 Minutes Rel. ————

Doubtless the most important and expensive picture completed thus far in 1940, this easily merits a prominent place among the dramatic successes of screen history. From any perspective it richly fulfills the extravagant promise of a $2,000,000 budget. Although current tastes are said to lean toward lighter film fare, certainly this highly emotional picturization of Rachel Field's best-seller, necessarily on the serious side, will enjoy the universal patronage its excellence deserves. Primarily a woman's picture, it will still attract seekers of more rugged entertainment. Every woman will insist upon seeing it, which fact is probably its greatest guarantee of box-office success. Screenplay closely adheres to the story. Bette Davis' portrayal ranks with her best, her terrific Thespic pace taken in stride by Charles Boyer and the supporting cast. Anatole Litvak's direction is fine-grained.

Bette Davis, Charles Boyer, Jeffrey Lynn, Barbara O'Neil, Virginia Weidler, Helen Westley, Walter Hampden.

All This, and Heaven Too F

Drama

If it's bang, bang action the customers desire here is a prize package. Gangdom furnishes the locale and a high-speed screenplay, while plenty of new twists guarantee suspense and entertainment in bunches for the addicts of the cops and robbers school. While the cast lacks marquee magnetism, it proves well up to the job at hand; production and direction fitting the ensemble expertly. Donald Douglas is an attorney who has become involved with the mobs and faces an unjust charge of murdering a policeman. Two factions are trying to kill him, the gendarmes and the gangsters; but an insurance company, with a million-dollar policy, wants to keep him alive. Roger Pryor, as a smart-cracking investigator for the risk firm, saves his life, the day—and his comely sister for himself. Directed by Terry Morse.

In easily associated vein to the present international crisis, Jack Holt's adventure is this time in the interests of the U. S. government in a drive to break up a sabotage ring. He takes association with the ring by capturing an enemy agent and taking on his identity, which brings him in touch with C. Henry Gordon, Cecilia Callejo, and Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom, who work in one group. It is all being operated as an inside job, the head man being Clay Clement, who, by a series of close squeaks, Holt manages to tag. The ring is built on the premise of scaring aliens, illegally in this country, into submission to the will of Gordon, who orders them out on saboteur missions. Enough side romance to carry along is entered via Noah Beery jr. and Miss Callejo. It is a good action adventure, for the duals, or the weekends. Lewis D. Collins directed.

A welcome throwback to the days when a pie in the face was the last word in hilarity, this is slapstick at its funniest and the kind of entertainment that will send patrons home fully satisfied that their price of admission has been well expended. It provides that rubber-legged veteran, Leon Errol, with ample opportunity to deliver his standard brand of highly amusing drolleries and mug the rest of the hard-working cast into almost complete oblivion. The gags emerge in an almost continuous stream, pointed up well by Leslie Goodwins' direction. Errol, irascible husband and father, gets in a jam when he promises Dennis O'Keefe $1,000 if the latter can first save an equal amount in order to marry Errol's daughter. Never dreaming O'Keefe can turn the trick, Errol gets into plenty of trouble trying to fulfill his promise.

As sticky a mess as ever went onto celluloid are the further film adventures of L. M. Montgomery's pollyannaish heroine who never lost an argument in her tussle with injustice. It can only appeal to those who enjoy their entertainment saccharine-sweet. Others are sure to find it cloying, over-length and all rather pointless. Apparently the feature suffers from over-production and a reluctance to discard unnecessary footage, inasmuch as several cliche-laden sequences have been dragged in by the heels to prove liabilities rather than assets. An able cast is powerless in efforts to transcend a snail-paced script. The story, endless in its telling, chronicles Anne Shirley's herculean and successful efforts to overcome obstacles thrown in her path in a prejudicial community to which she has been assigned as a school teacher. When Horsetraders Jack Randall and Frank Yaconelli find they are bucking a hopeless situation in the disposal of their stock, they learn the responsible party is retailing "hot" nags. Locating the trail of the crooks, Randall comes to the ranch of Marin Sais. The hired help at the place center the blame on a white stallion that lures the mares away. In due time Randall and his aide locate the stolen stock and the hideaway of the outlaws. But at this point Randall and company get caught. Eventually they free themselves and set about to track down the culprits. This they do in good time. Also, right on the spot at the proper moment, the sheriff arrives and the gang is arrested.

Unless they have lost their former wide appeal as a co-starring team, the reunion of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy should leave an imprint on theatre ledgers reminiscent of the days when they ruled supreme as queen and king of screen operetta. The vehicle in which they make their joint comeback is Metro's latest version of the tuneful and ever-popular Sigmund Romberg piece, backgrounded in colonial New Orleans. Although the feature lacks some of the production grandeur which characterized many of their previous triumphs, this loss in opulence is more than compensated by the sincerity of delineation and a welcome restraint in the piloting of Robert Z. Leonard, who also functioned as producer. In the field of light, romantic musicals the film brooks no adverse criticism.

After being launched with an extremely promising opening sequence, this feature about dust bowl farmers and their tribulations loses much of its potential effectiveness by being permitted to wander rather aimlessly through a labyrinth of story development, which over-scripting further tends to discount the picture's impressive production accoutrements and the work of a competent cast. But, while the picture misses in the story department, it still may be considered as fine program material. Charles Coburn shows up to advantage in the title role, while the romantic support is supplied by John Wayne and Sigrid Gurie. Basically, the story is of the struggle of midwestern farmers against dust and drought, into which is woven the tale of an eminent Austrian surgeon and his daughter who aid the farmers in their fight. Here's a picture to give the gun for kids, capitalizing on the present crisis. Words like "sabotage, boring from within, fifth column, enemy agents, etc." have become household expressions, any and all of them easy to hook onto this picture by marquee, adds, and throwaways, all designed to throw scares and create curiosity. Newspapers with headlines of un-explained accidents at airport tests, labor troubles, and blowups of cartoons, or printed comment relative to Roosevelt's recent "dagger" speech, all fit here. Exploited along lines of a modern, current event, "Passport to Alcatraz" has its best hope.

The Man Who Comes Around When You're in Trouble

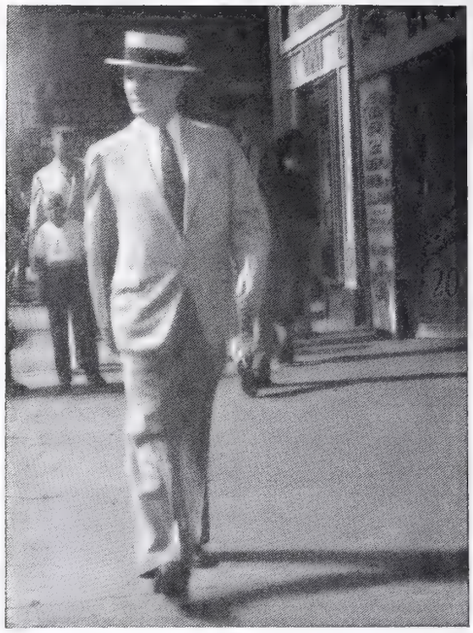
The "little man who wasn't there"—the fellow who can save you the dealer's discount and service you by remote control is ever present when you want to buy.

He may be useful in scaring an extra percentage of discount out of your local supply dealer, but when equipment troubles beset you and there's an S.O.S. for service, you can most always count him among the missing—a casualty of cut-rate selling.

Despite all arguments and actions to the contrary, we are still a strong advocate of the well-stocked, capably managed theatre supply and service store as a necessary adjunct to successful theatre operation.

To maintain convenient sources of supply, of product demonstration and service for routine and the ever-possible event when emergency equipment is demanded, and quickly, is well worth the fair rate of profit your established local dealer must have to stay in business and really be of service.

This industry should take care that an always dependable source of helpful service is not allowed to dry up through an ever-increasing demand for greater discounts.



We intend no criticism of the exhibitor who buys direct from the manufacturer or of the manufacturer who may choose to sell direct. But we do seriously question the business logic of certain very obvious intentions to squeeze the legitimate supply man out of the picture.

Since it's your picture, some day and maybe sooner than you think, you may need the man who comes around when you're in trouble.

The RIGHT KIND OF HOUSE reaches FAR AFIELD FOR PATRONAGE

"We felt," said John Servaas (above), "that Martinsville should have the very latest type of theatre." And now Martinsville has it.

"OH, I CAN'T afford to fix up my old house or build a new one in this community. The natives just won't support that kind of investment."

That statement represents the composite opinion of many theatre owners who, as a result of oversight and maybe some obstinacy, are "missing the boat" on theatre business in their communities.

In this day and age, a town or neighborhood that will not support an inviting, comfortable and refined place of entertainment and a plant that will show moving pictures as they should be exhibited deserves no entertainment at all.

But there's something desirable beyond the limits of an immediate community that many exhibitors seem to lose sight of. What is the drawing radius of a theatre? Can it, or should it, be limited by ward boundaries, city limits or county lines? The answer is NO!

A Noteworthy Example

The right kind of theatre under astute business management and a brand of showmanship that breeds the movie-going habit in any community recognizes no territorial limitations. The ramshackle, out-of-date theatre severely restricts movie-going in its own small area. The modern theatre creates new business in its own bailiwick; but it goes beyond that by bringing patronage from outside areas.

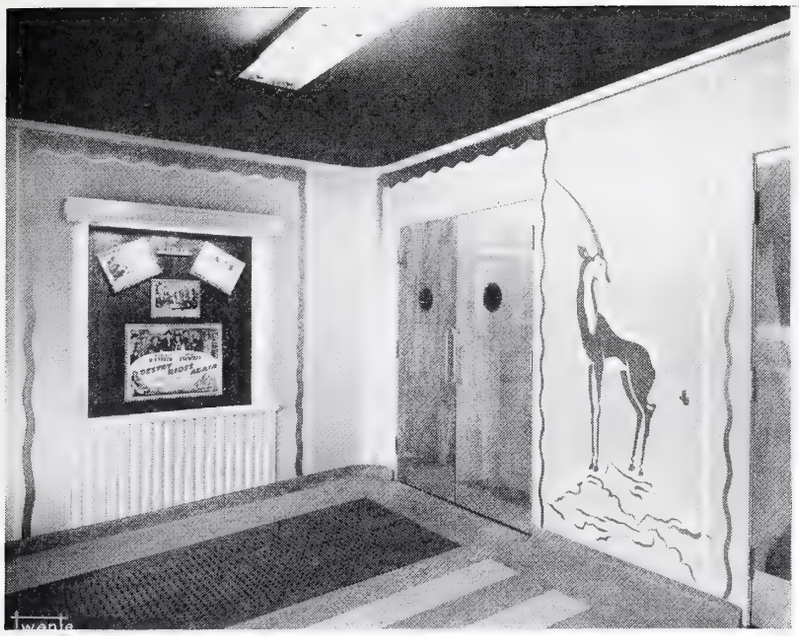
Most fortunately this month we have for citation a typical case in point. A recently completed small-town modern theatre designed and equipped to satisfy both local and transient patronage and according to all reports it is accomplishing its purpose most satisfactorily.

Martinsville, Indiana, a thriving little city, is situated about midway between two big towns, Indianapolis and Bloomington. Its population of around 5,000 natives is supplemented regularly by many transients. Martinsville is known as one of the most popular health resorts of the Middlewest. At this spa is located the source of some of America's finest artesian mineral water, a healing agent of unsurpassed quality. The town has five modern hotel-sanitarias with a range of rates to meet all purses.

Martinsville is also noted as the location of the Grassyfork Gold Fish Hatcheries, the largest of its kind in the world, producing some sixty million fish yearly in a picturesque pool covering several hundred acres. Grassyfork is also a large producer of aquatic plants and is one of the most picturesque settings in Southern Indiana. Too, it is the home of Old Hickory porch and garden furniture.

Visitors from all over the country come to Martinsville to relax and recuperate—to rest and enjoy themselves while regaining their physical and mental composures. And now they come from nearby towns to see the movies.

Such a place as Martinsville demanded a theatre of the modern, rest-provoking type and it has one, the new Indiana, pictures and particulars of which are presented herewith. But before describing the project, a word or two about the men who conceived and created it.



John Servaas of Indianapolis is the owner. He also owns the State, another Martinsville theatre, as well as the State, Mecca and Stratford in Indianapolis, the Woods in Kokomo, the Main in Lafayette, the Logan in Noblesville and the Rex in Rochester, Indiana.

The new Indiana Theatre faces the prospective patron in the manner of all good salesmen—with a good-looking front. Thus it imposes the will to patronize on all who might otherwise pass it by. Erwin G. Fredrick was the designer.

A Decision Is Made

The original Indiana Theatre at Martinsville was completely destroyed by fire last fall and for a number of the reasons given hereinbefore, Mr. Servaas decided forthwith that "Martinsville should have the very latest type of theatre." So in collaboration with Theatre Architect Erwin G. Fredrick of Chicago, Ralph Iula, theatre decorator of Indianapolis; Russell Schnaiter, Martinsville general contractor, and a carefully selected group of material and equipment suppliers, Mr. Servaas fulfilled his objective with the opening of a truly modern little 668-seat theatre on March 26, 1940.

At left, the lobby, and on the right, the lounge, in sectional view to show the effects of a smart decorative treatment applied by Ralph Iula in colorful motives inspired by picturesque local scenes. In the rear, at right, may be seen the entrance to a most novel cosmetic room for the convenience of lady patrons.

Mr. Servaas has been in theatre business almost from the beginning of movies. He was no novice even in the "Nickelodeon" days, winning his spurs of showmanship in several branches of the business, including film distribution, sound equipment and theatre supplies. The influence of the latter is shown in his wise selection of equipment and furnishings for the new Indiana Theatre.

He explained his objective to Architect Fredrick, who incidentally is a member of the Advisory Board of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute, and commissioned him to design a theatre that would make Martinsville, its transient guests and the surrounding territory generally "sit up and take notice."

MR. FREDRICK

The final result, a restful, perfectly proportioned, not too modernistic house with equal appeal to wealthy transients and the less affluent native element was accomplished. Cost was no great object, but there was no money wasted, because of thoroughness and thrift in planning.

The Decorative Details

The front elevation of the new Indiana presents an ensemble of colorful structural glass—an ivory background with burgundy trim and a base of burgundy below, all trimmed in chrome metal. This same color scheme is carried out on the pylon name sign, the lettering of which is accentuated in gold, green and white neon lighting which carries also across the edge of the marquee done in shades of green, ivory and wine with an ivory ceiling. The sign tower is set at the outer edge of the marquee directly above the centered boxoffice to which all attention is directed. The ticket office itself is a neat affair in structural glass flanked at either side by attractive entrance doors and built-in poster cases.

The lobby, comparatively small in area, serves also as a reception or waiting room for patrons. Its ceiling is Venetian red and a fluorescent light fixture covered with a rectangular etched glass illuminates the area. The walls are peach colored and all wood trim is in bone white except the doors which are of natural birch. The figure and ornament are copper bronze highlighted with bone white enamel and varnished a high gloss. The floor is a neutral toned terrazzo and the mats are of the same tone. A perforated rubber mat is to be noted at the entrance aisle.

The manager's office adjacent to the lobby has ceiling and walls in a soft grey-green and all wood trim is a shade deeper.

Extra PROFIT POTENTIALS and a SERVICE TO THEATRE PATRONS

By Helen Kent

The modern candy vending machine of a type which is particularly adaptable for theatre installation is exemplified in this 1940 model which has proved most popular because of its large capacity of 320 bars and a selection of sixteen varieties. Especially sound-proofed and attractively display lighted and with optional base finish, this piece of equipment would harmonize nicely with most any type of interior decoration. (Photo courtesy Stoner Corporation).

NEVER on the lookout for new ways to make money, modern showmen have evinced during the past several years more than ordinary interest in the selling by various means of candies, popcorn and other refreshments within their theatres. The strange part of the trend is that it is really not new but is in fact quite as old as the showing of moving pictures. Even before pictures, the sale of confections was somewhat of a theatrical tradition.

Patrons of theatres like to munch while viewing the entertainment. And what is more natural than that the house itself should profit by this most human characteristic. That the habit fell into disrepute for many years and was practically outlawed by patrons and theatre owners alike for many reasons, among them noise, muss and odors, is well known. But it seems now that this undenied source of substantial net profit has been modernized to the tune of better equipment, cleaner habits of purchasers and complete acceptance by all as an accommodation.

A Survey Is Made

Observing this trend which has become more prevalent in theatres during the past five or six years, we decided to conduct a survey in a sort of cross section of the industry to more clearly understand this new service which has sprung up unheralded among us, but about which a whispering campaign has been going on among showmen for some time. These showmen won't always divulge profit experiences, but they are known to smile knowingly when the subject of confectionery and popcorn sales is mentioned among them.

And too, because we believe this is a much healthier source of extra profit for theatres than many of the schemes and promotional tactics tried within the past decade, we wanted to know more about its workings and to dispel any secrecy from such operation if it has indeed been found so profitable. Anything growing with such mushroom-like rapidity must have its merit and more and more theatres might just as well profit from the experiences of those who have pioneered in this "modernized" version of the popcorn and candy butcher.

We wanted to know just how profitable it was to theatre operators to sell candy and popcorn and cold drinks and other items within their own doors rather than seeing these same articles of gustatory delight carried through the portals and consumed within the theatre although purchased elsewhere. We wanted to know why both patrons and the owners of theatre property now considered this service not so distasteful as they once had.

Further, we wanted to know all the objections to confectionery buying, selling, consuming and handling within the theatre—and how these objections could best be overcome and to see how much the profit angle outweighed the trouble angle. And finally, we wanted to know how the service could be applied in a most refined manner to the various classes of patronage, thus to avoid the repetition of its former fall from grace.

We made a great many surprising and gratifying discoveries in our survey, conducted entirely by Boxoffice field representatives in 26 different cities, nominal centers of film trade, and their surrounding territories. We asked questions frankly of theatre owners and managers, operators of concessions of the sort under consideration, and we received some equally candid answers.

A candy counter and popcorn dispensing unit form the service end of an appealing extra-profit source in the Tivoli Theatre at Gary, Indiana, a 700-seat house. Effective, yet unobtrusive in appearance, and aided by an attractive attendant, this set-up has been found most profitable. On a recent Sunday, this theatre sold $68 worth of popcorn and $38 worth of candy. (Photo courtesy Burch Manufacturing Company).

Owners Wouldn't Tell

Many times our correspondents had to glean their information from observance, since their subjects of interview were often loathe to divulge profit experiences, and at other times percentage deals with outsiders, although profitable, would not permit such thorough questioning. These were cases in which the theatres were profiting merely as the locations of profitable small business on a room rental basis.

We have tabulated the findings in various classifications for easier reference and a clearer understanding of how this new source of extra profit works. The tabulations are quite general in scope but that they show a definite trend in the matter is undeniable. A study of them will be enlightening to all concerned in this growing service to theatre patrons; including theatre operators, concession operators, the manufacturers of equipment used in the purveying of such refreshment items, and as well the theatre men who may be hesitating in their acceptance of the current turn toward extra profit sources.

Little can be added in explanation of these tables. They speak for themselves on the various angles involved. However, some interesting sidelights on the subject are in order. And these mostly have to do with the profit experiences of many of the operators and also with the objections to concessions and their modus operandi as disclosed by our survey.

On the profit side of the ledger, it was discovered that popcorn vending is far and away the most profitable because of a greater net; while candy grosses run this item a close second, either sold over the counter or through vending machines. Many operators favor both items. Cold drinks sold through vending machines or across the counter is a relatively new source of profit which is becoming increasingly popular and with great possibilities for development.

A few profit experiences, typical of various parts of the country, on sales of popcorn in theatres of varying capacities are shown in the table above. Although quite general in scope, it shows the trend and the excellent possibilities of this new angle of entertainment operation. On this point, an amusing observation was made in the report of one field representative, who stated that "in a number of situations the income from confectionery counters and popcorn or candy vending machines is the only source of profit for the exhibitor. In other words, he loses on the show but makes some money through confections."

But, of course, that's not exactly a healthy condition either. There must be something radically wrong with the theatre when it must go into the refreshment business to make money. Obviously, the cart is before the horse in such a situation and the theatre probably is not so well equipped or managed as is its supportive concession.

Equipment Modernized

Undoubtedly, the success of this new profit angle of theatre operation is dependent in great measure upon the modern equipment now available for its application. For example, today's popcorn machine bears little or no relation to the equipment with which this delicacy was prepared and dispensed in theatres fifteen or twenty years ago. The new candy counters are equally attractive. Likewise, the candy vending machine, a comparatively modern device makes the sale of confectionery practically a trouble-free operation.

These modern pieces of equipment are efficient, noiseless and in most cases attractive enough in appearance to make them harmonize with nearly any theatre interior. Very little space is consumed by such equipment either, and in many cases small niches may be provided wherein the equipment and its attendant may hold forth to the greater service of patrons and theatre alike.

Extra Profit Sources and a Service to Theatre Patrons

We have listed objections to the use of popcorn machines and candy vending machines as they were expressed by theatre operators. These objections are common, but in nearly all cases a bit of foresight can circumvent even the most serious ones. Undeniably, mussiness is the greatest objection to popcorn and confectionery consumption within the theatre. But if the theatre property is kept neat and clean in every other respect, patrons will be most thoughtful in the disposition of papers and boxes for which they are responsible.

Odor has been overcome almost entirely through the medium of effective air conditioning. The odor of eating within the auditorium is hardly found objectionable when plenty of fresh air is circulated freely. And the aroma of preparation of the popped corn is usually no longer a problem since the machine can be located where an exhaust fan outlet can carry away all fumes.

Noise Not Now Serious

Noise of eating and rustling confectionery wrappers and boxes is an objection which was found much more serious at the time sound pictures were first introduced. The public itself was unaccustomed to the necessity for remaining quiet while being entertained. But recently, we find less cause for objection on this score. Patrons of theatres are of their own accord much more quiet within the auditorium, and no doubt improved conditions of sound reproduction are also contributing factors.

At any rate, many theatre men who operate concessions no longer find noise a serious obstacle. And an interesting discovery was the fact that because of this obstacle, if it may indeed be termed one, the popcorn concession operators were promoting the sale of 10-cent boxes above 5-cent bags of popcorn because of less noise in handling by the patrons within the auditorium. For this same reason, candies with foil wrappers or in boxes are more popular with the management than those in crinkling paper wrappers.

Candy counters and candy vending machines have adherents also. Some groups favor the counter method of selling, claiming that the personal touch of an attractive attendant behind a modern counter sells more and gives more service. On the other hand, the vending machine advocates point out that their method is more modern, requires less attention and appeals to the slot-machine instinct of the public. Too, there is no expense involved in salaries for attendants.

Most vending machines, for candies, cold drinks, cigarettes or other items, are operated by syndicates, who service the machines and leave them in practically trouble-free operation for the theatre and its staff. No attention is necessary under such arrangement by the theatre management, but of course, the profit is smaller under such conditions than where the theatre management itself is sole operator and owner of the machine.

The earning possibilities of modern equipment of this sort will over-ride any objections on the part of theatre men to the slight extra time and labor involved in keeping the machines stocked and of greatest service to the customers. The survey shows that owner-operated candy vending machines are highly profitable.

How these sources of extra profit are applicable to the various classes of theatres and patronage was our final theoretical problem to be determined by the survey. We found that the practice of providing popcorn, candy and other refreshments within the theatre was not confined to any particular class or size of theatre.

The profit possibilities are proportionately as great in small theatres as in large ones, large cities as in small towns. The refined manner in which these items are dispensed seems to be the only determinant. So long as this extra service to patrons is kept unobtrusive and supportive to entertainment, it will be an asset to the theatre—and a high profit earning one as well.

Three Essentials to an Efficient A. C. System

Matched Equipment: For the lowest possible operating cost, all of the various units in an air conditioning system should be matched in capacity and performance to operate as a unified system.

Engineered Installation: First, a thorough survey to determine the specific requirements and peculiarities of the job. Second, an engineered plan designed to meet those requirements. And finally, an installation that is neat, efficient, compact and done without interruption to business.

Responsible Maintenance Service: Continuous, efficent operation is further assured by regular maintenance service under contract, providing periodic inspection and adjustment, for the protection of the owner's investment and his complete satisfaction.

G-E Air Conditioning helps pay for itself through increased box-office

Not so long ago you could depend on a good show to bring in a good box office. But today people expect good shows wherever they go—so they flock to the theatres where they know they'll be comfortable too.

REAL THEATRE COMFORT in summer calls for clean, fresh air at all times—properly de-humidified, cooled and circulated without annoying drafts. There should be no hot or cold spots in the house. G-E equipment gives just this kind of summer comfort.

WHETHER BIG OR SMALL, your needs can be met by G-E. For General Electric offers a complete line of dependable, efficient equipment for theatre air conditioning. These units are reasonably priced—and operate with typical G-E economy, year after year.

A compact G-E summer air conditioning system will keep your patrons coming back no matter how high the temperature goes. They'll come more often—and bring their friends. In fact, many owners say their G-E equipment pays for itself by the extra business it brings.

Television?.. ANOTHER AIR ATTACK or A BLESSING TO THE BOXOFFICE?

By Ansel M. Moore

IS TELEVISION at this time an ominous threat to theatre business?

If an invasion of our domain is as imminent as some say it is, then what's to do about it?

If television is to be a conquest of our long, but somewhat lightly held, commercial preserves, are we prepared to repel it?

On the other hand, if televised entertainment in the homes of our patrons can be construed as a helpful contemporary, should we not look upon it as such and even now begin to explore its possibilities as a boon, rather than a bane to the theatre boxoffice?

These are but a few of the questions that have been occurring to us with ever-increasing frequency here of late and we've tried to find the answers. No one, and none the less its sponsors, seems inclined to be emphatic about television. Therefore, it is difficult to nail it down completely on any point but one. The point agreed upon is—it's coming! When? That logical next question causes the subject to lapse back into the limbo of uncertainty again.

Current Events

Before hazarding our own special thoughts on the wavering possibilities of television as it may affect movie-going, let's review current events and present some authoritative views from persons who are, or certainly should be, more competent to analyze the situation than we. First may we introduce certain high points of a speech made by Mr. Thomas F. Joyce, vice-president of RCA Manufacturing Company, before members of the S. M. P. E. at their Spring convention held recently.

Predicting that within twelve months after the Federal Communication Commission grants television stations the right to have commercial television programs, over 25,000 television receivers will be sold in the New York area alone, Mr. Joyce proclaimed television a potentially gigantic industry that would eventually provide entertainment and employment for hundreds of thousands of people.

Approximately thirty stations in eighteen cities throughout the country have applied for television licenses, said Mr. Joyce. Six of these have already been granted. If the others are granted, eight to ten million families, or about 25 per cent of our entire population, will be able to receive television service in the home, he continued, and we quote:

"If these television stations do begin sending out television programs, I do not think that the prediction of at least a million television receivers being purchased by the American public within five years is too optimistic. That means that our potentially great television industry is fairly under way."

Cooperation Invoked

Mr. Joyce then invited the motion picture industry to play a more important role in the early development of television as an entertainment service. He pointed out that no one has yet been able to gauge exactly the public's great capacity for entertainment. As work hours are shortened and people have more time for leisure, they will be receptive to new as well as long established forms of entertainment, and will patronize those which offer the best services, without necessarily hurting any existing forms of entertainment that continue to give the public the service it wants. (The italics are ours).

He pointed to the mistake which the phonograph industry made in the early days of radio's development, when they chose to ignore the new medium. If they had taken an active part in its development they might now still be holding the public's favor with both radio and progressively better phonographs and records, he said.

Instead it is now the other way around. Radio companies took over the phonograph companies and by applying modern radio technical advances to the phonograph art, have revitalized the record business to the point where it is once again a thriving and growing business.

Mr. Joyce went on to say that television would open up many new avenues of exploitation to the motion picture industry. By means of television, condensed previews of movies can be presented to home audiences. Potential screen stars will receive their screen tests through the television camera. A director will be able to judge how a scene will look to his potential audience by viewing it on a television screen as it actually is being performed on the studio lot at the same time that the cameras are grinding out film.

He told the engineers that many of the first-night audiences of the "Gone With the Wind" movie were disappointed because they did not have an opportunity to see the stars who had come from Hollywood to attend the premiere. Later it was learned that all the stars were attending a special party given by a prominent individual. With television many thousands might have attended this exclusive party while enjoying the comforts and conveniences of the home.

But sharply on the heels of the foregoing significant prediction came news from Washington in the form of a ruling by the F. C. C. which effectually scrapped the whole set-up that had given rise to optimism regarding the early advent of commercialized television. The new ruling seems to have deferred indefinitely, at best, any chance of commercial operation, since it is announced that full commercialization will not be considered (by F. C. C.) until "the engineering opinion of the industry is prepared to approve any one of the competing systems of broadcasting as the standard system."

Exhibitors' Attitudes

Despite this temporary stalemate, and the conviction of many theatre owners that television "has a long way to go before it can be taken seriously as either a help or a menace to theatre business," there are those among us and in high places who are taking its eventual entry a bit seriously, but more with an idea to adaptation than with an air of fear or belligerency. As for instance this statement of John Balaban of Chicago. Said he:

"It is too early to determine yet what form it will take. However, I believe that television will be absorbed by the populace without endangering motion pictures too much.

"No one knows today just whether the radio has helped or hurt the film industry. Some nights in the week it hurts, but at the same time it has created many personalities for motion picture use, such as the Winchells, Jack Bennys, Don Ameches, Bob Hopes, Bob Burns and many others.

"I am one who believes that the motion picture is here to stay and that television, when it comes, can become a daily event in the lives of people just as radio has, and still leave them plenty of time

Effective AIR DISTRIBUTION and the DECORATIVE POINT OF VIEW

By F. J. Kurth

In this article the author has made a most logical appeal to common sense respecting air distribution, one of the major requirements of an effective theatre air conditioning system. His conclusions and recommendations on the physical effects and functions of air diffusion are self-explanatory.

We presume, however, to emphasize a further point of interest in connection with the modern types of air diffusers referred to, which we think deserves more reference than the author has given it—the Decorative point of view.

Air handling devices, as will be noted in the accompanying illustrations, can be decorative in their design and application as well as extremely efficient in the performance of their more functional duties as outlined by Mr. Kurth.

With his permission, therefore, we call attention briefly to the manner in which the modern wall type of air diffusing element fits into the decorative scheme of the theatre. It can be a decorative factor rather than a discordant note in an otherwise attractive treatment.—The Editor.

IFAULTY air distribution in a theatre is a matter of serious economic consideration to both the owner and operating management. When the public refuses to sit in one portion of a theatre because of drafts or excessive temperature differences, the unoccupied seats may mean a loss in the operation of the house. The public has learned to expect comfort in its favorite place of entertainment—the movie.

While moving picture houses were among the first buildings used for early experiments in summer cooling, less than 10% of the nation's houses are equipped with complete air conditioning today. A large portion of the remaining 90% depend on the operation of fan or blower systems, many of which were installed to meet basic ventilation requirements, with no thought to proper air distribution.

Devices Now Adaptable

Most of these systems were installed in accordance with the best then known methods; hence there is no question of establishing blame for the resultant conditions. The science of air conditioning, and particularly air distribution, has advanced so rapidly in recent years, that theatre owners have been hard put to keep pace with all current developments. Air handling devices are now available to correct the most perplexing problems in the ventilation and air conditioning of theatres. In many cases these devices may be applied to the existing fan and duct system, without the necessity of making expensive changes in the layout.

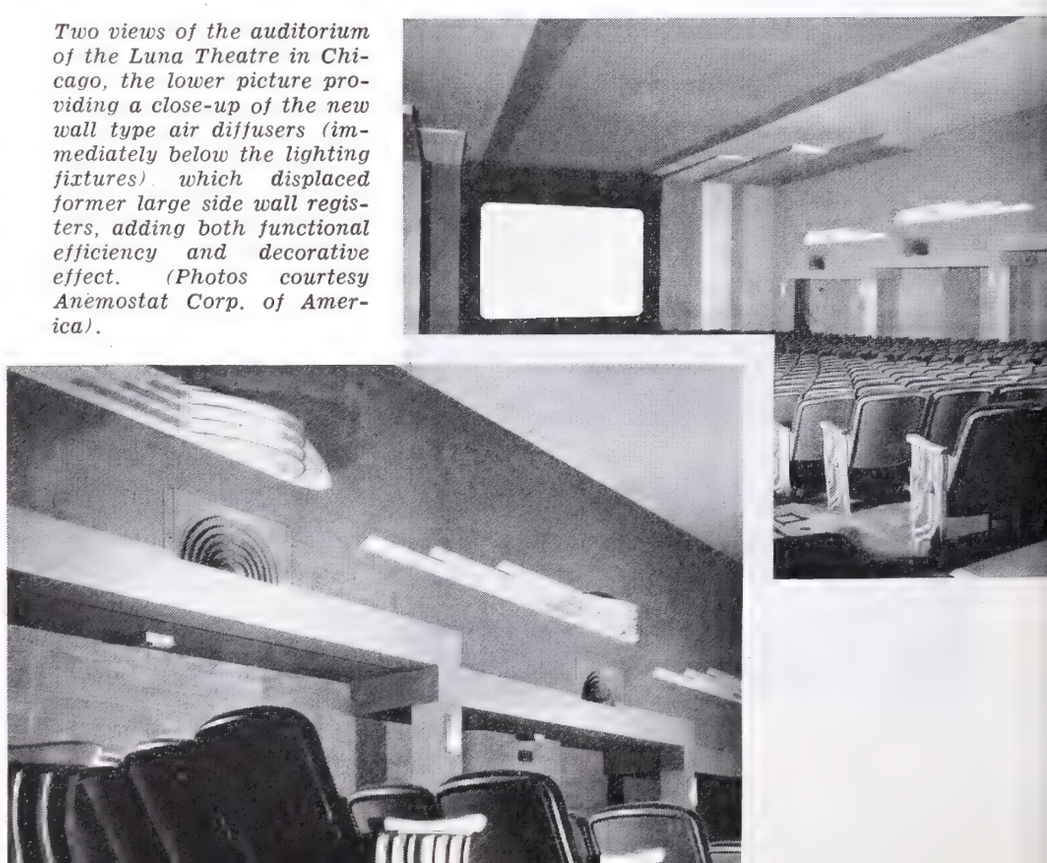
Owners of the Luna Theatre, located on the south side of Chicago, were faced with the serious problem of partial occupancy. Because the front seats of this theatre were much cooler in winter, and warmer in summer, than other portions of the house, the public was unwilling to occupy these seats, even when the best pictures were exhibited. A low ceiling over the auditorium aggravated the condition.

This 870-seat house was equipped with a fan system handling 21,000 cubic feet of air per minute, in accordance with stringent local ventilation requirements. Another regulation insisted that winter temperatures should not exceed 70° F. Circulation of this large volume of air, at comparatively low temperatures, created a condition which was not conducive to human comfort.

Tests taken in the theatre revealed a temperature difference of from 7° F. to 10° F. between front and rear of the house. Air entering the auditorium from four large wall registers on each side swept over the house, creating uncomfortable conditions, particularly in the front seats.

Differentials Eliminated

In re-designing the air distribution system, the problem was to eliminate temperature differentials between the front and rear of the house and reduce air motion to the point where it was not perceptible to occupants of the theatre. Because 21,000 c.f.m. had to be used to meet ventilation requirements, fan speeds could not be reduced. It remained a matter of selecting proper air outlets to equalize temperatures and reduce velocities.



For this purpose, Oscar Dauber of Chicago, consulting engineer engaged by the theatre management, selected eight side wall anemostats, which were installed in place of the large side wall registers. Two ceiling type anemostats were also installed in the corridors running down each side of the auditorium. At the same time the system was properly balanced to equalize air flow through these modern diffusers.

Because the installation changes duct air velocity to pressure energy in the room, and at the same time produces an intimate mixture of room air and incoming air within itself, the two problems were quickly solved. First, air velocities were reduced to the point where they could not be noticed by the public, and temperature differences were reduced to approximately 1° F. in all portions of the Luna Theatre.

As a direct result of these simple changes in air distribution, all seats in the Luna Theatre are now filled, as the public can occupy any part of the auditorium in perfect comfort.

In considering changes in the present air conditioning or ventilating equipment, theatre owners can profit by the experience of the Luna management. The en-

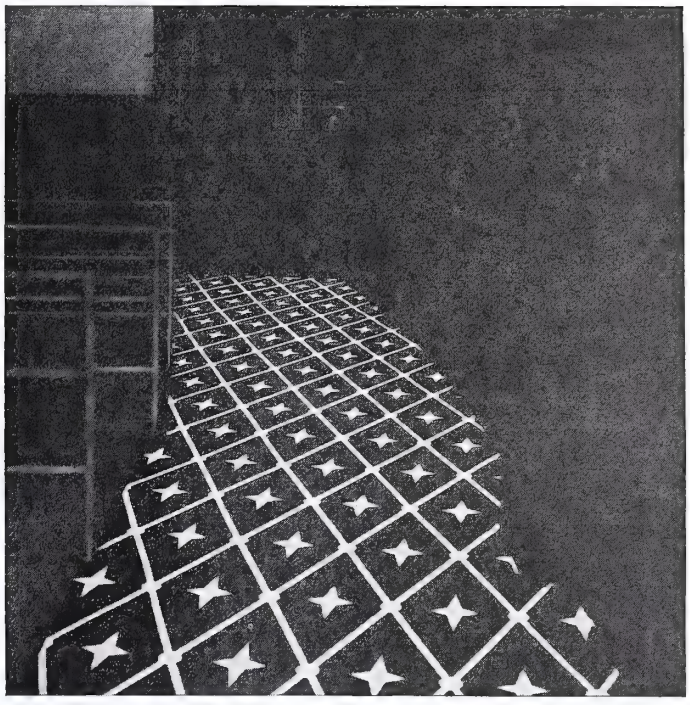
Another Cost Reduction On G-E Mazda Lamps

A sweeping price reduction, averaging 17 per cent, affecting the list values of nearly one hundred types and sizes of Mazda lamps, effective June 1, was announced last month by General Electric's Lamp Department at Nela Park.

Of particular interest to users of standard types are the 7½, 15 and 25-watt lamps, now listed at 10 cents each. Lowest price of a home-type Mazda lamp heretofore has been 15 cents. Other popular lamps substantially reduced are the standard inside-frosted 40, 50 and 60-watt sizes, each having been reduced from 15 to 13 cents.

Most of the lamps affected by the price change are general-service types designed for a variety of uses in homes, stores, offices, theatres and factories. Included in the list is a wide range of tungsten filament, fluorescent and mercury lamp types.

This marks the company's twentieth major price reduction in lamps over a period of nineteen years. Other lamps similarly reduced in price are specialty types for such fields as aviation, movie projection and electric signs. The latest reduction, the announcement stated, is in accordance with the company's policy of sharing manufacturing economies with consumers.



The Poster Projector Peps Up the Promotion

Using a poster projector, smaller theatres which cannot afford to employ skilled display or sign men, can now produce striking, attractive and business-building lobby displays. Any young man or woman of average ability can soon learn this interesting work. Also, the skilled display artist employed by the large theatre will find it a great convenience and time-saver. He can turn over to an assistant the mechanical details of production and devote his own time and talents to creative planning.

Any "copy" or design can be projected enlarged to the size desired onto a poster board, traced and colored. The "copy" may be pictures from press sheets, photographs, original sketches or designs or advertisements. It is reflected, enlarged to any size desired, directly onto the poster board, compo board or other surface in the original colors and in correct proportions.

The sign man can trace this to make an exact copy or he can omit details not desired. He can copy the original coloring exactly or change it to produce striking poster effects. For outdoor bill-board work, general sign and display work, theatre or window displays, motion picture and stage sets, the artist can make his original design in a small size. After he has worked it out to his entire satisfaction, it can be projected (magnified to the desired size) onto poster paper or board and an unskilled assistant can complete it.

First in the mind of every theatre manager should be the condition of his house and the efficiency of his equipment. It means so much to the boxoffice.

'BLACK MAGIC' at the New York World's Fair

The photograph of the carpet was made with no other illumination than the Westinghouse ultra-violet lights overhead. Yet the beams of these lights are invisible . . . and the carpet itself seems to be illuminated, giving off a beautiful and magical glow of an intensity more than ample for complete visibility underfoot.

You can obtain the same amazing effect in your own theatre with Alexander Smith Fluorescent Carpet. LITERATURE

The following concerns have recently filed copies of interesting descriptive literature with The Modern Theatre Information Bureau. Readers who may wish copies of such literature may obtain them promptly by addressing The Modern Theatre, 332 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Advance Manufacturing Company, of St. Louis, Mo., submits a colorful new jobber's portfolio, presenting its complete line of popcorn and peanut machines and quick-lunch equipment. The booklet answers many important questions about the popcorn business.

Carrier Corporation, of Syracuse, N. Y., offers an illustrated folder in description of a new Carrier dry storage bottled beverage cooler for use in theatres where cold drinks are dispensed. Full specifications are given on four different sizes and models of the modern unit.

Climax Reflector, Inc., of Canton, Ohio, offers a completely descriptive circular on the new Climax Sparkle-Lite reflectors, Flame-Lites, Colorlites and Adjustolites, for pepping up theatre electrical displays with color and "punch" at lower cost.

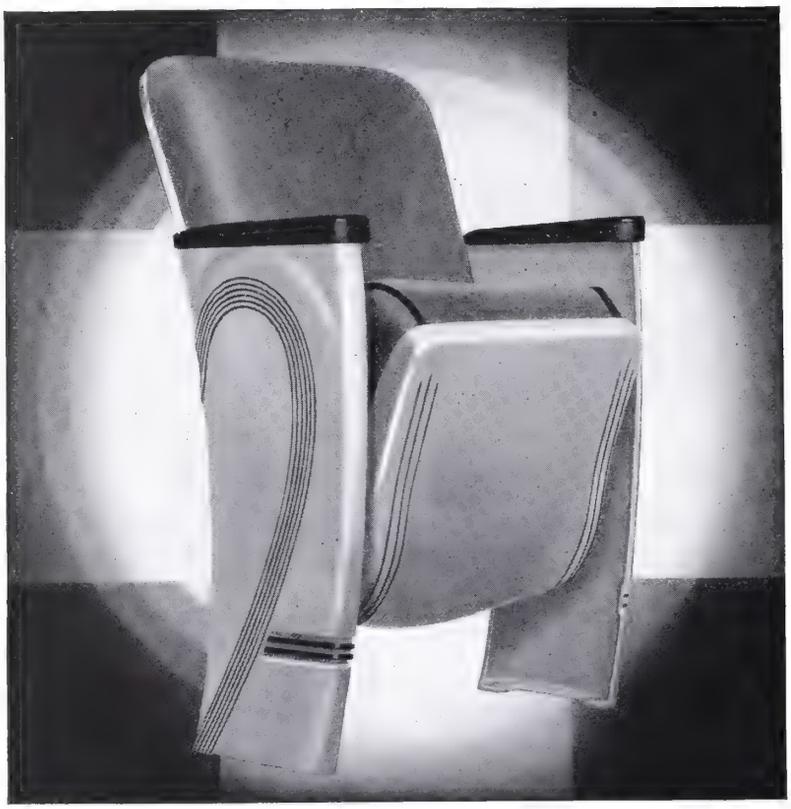
Continental Lithograph Corp., of Cleveland, Ohio, presents a new and interesting portfolio with illustrations on Conti-Glo Fluorescent Paints for decorating theatre interiors, including also pictures and descriptions of Conti-Glo (Black Light) spotlighting equipment.

Motiograph, Inc., of Chicago, submits a 24-page booklet, "A Model Projection Room," devoted to projection room planning for greater operating efficiency. The book is profusely illustrated with sketches, floor plans, wiring diagrams and other details.

RCA Manufacturing Co., Inc., Photophone Division, of Camden, N. J., offers a 68-page hand-book of technical data for projectionists on Photophone Sound Systems, explaining the principles of sound and equipment in simplified language. A valuable treatise for the projectionist who wants to improve his technique.

Reynolds Electric Company, of Chicago, files a folder on the new Reco Radi-Aire Circulators for air motion control. The devices, available in floor, ceiling or low-stand types, offer a new principle in air circulation. A folder on Reco Exhaust Fans and Attic Ventilating Units is also provided.

S. O. S. Cinema Supply Corp., of New York City, announces a series of bulletins including Bulletin FA on photographic film and slide projectors; one on super Gold Seal automatic all-electric ticket registers; Bulletin EB on the Imperial 16mm Sound on film projector; Bulletin Eagle-10 on Superior Eagle 35mm projector, and a 1940-1941 Air Conditioning catalogue.



Vallen, Inc., of Akron, Ohio, presents an ingenious little folder on curtain controls and tracks entitled "Complete Blackout." The folder refers to a "complete blackout" of overhead hazards, curtain noise, costly installation and service troubles as applied to the company's products.

Western Electric Company, of New York City, offers a profusely illustrated 16-page booklet on the new Type 22D Portable Speech Input Equipment, lately produced and announced by the company. The new equipment is pictured and described and technical data also is included.

FURNITURE

The choice of furniture for lounge rooms in theatres should receive special attention. It is now purchased with the whole picture of the room in mind, with due regard to design and style and how its type will fit in with the general scheme of the room.

Values in furniture are determined by sound construction and distinction of style. The first safeguard is to purchase from a reliable dealer, as often the name of the manufacturer suggests the quality of the piece. Cheap furniture is never a bargain at any price since it will soon have to be replaced, while good furniture may be expected to withstand the more than normal abuse to which theatre furnishings are subjected.

After the furniture is selected, it is well to plan the layout — in well arranged groups. These groups should be a composition by themselves but they should also be so related that two groups or more can be formed into one. Groupings should be made around points of interest and should always be well balanced, but if the furniture itself does not form such a balance, wall ornaments or pictures may be used to fill in the voids.

Secondary items, such as small tables, ash receptacles and lamps should be placed according to convenience. Mirrors cleverly placed in small lounge rooms will seemingly add depth, thus making the room appear much larger than it actually is.

Adapting the size of the furniture to the size of the lounge is another important consideration. The furniture should not be too large in a room of ordinary size, and greater comfort may be secured in smaller pieces which are in scale with the room. Huge couches, without which no theatre lounge was recently considered complete, are now being replaced by smaller settees of better lines and better proportion. If the furniture is fitted to the environment and is in accord with the arrangement and general scheme of the room, the entire lounge room effect cannot help but be one of good taste and individuality.

World's Fair Exhibitors Control Their Curtains

For the second year of the New York World's Fair, Automatic Devices Company has been called upon again to supply their steel curtain tracks and automatic curtain machines to a number of discriminating product exhibitors.

A total of 18 units are installed in various buildings, including the Eastman Kodak Company, Radio Corporation of America, Ford Motor Company, Dominion of Canada, World of Fashion and others. These are in addition to the 48 units purchased last year for various industrial and government exhibits and amusement concessions at the Fair.

The company also reports a steadily increasing demand for their new medium-duty curtain track which is said to be an economical solution to the curtain operating problems of many exhibitors.

DOWNTOWN or NEIGHBORHOOD Theatre?

Let Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau Tell You What Carpet Best Suits Your Needs

The type of carpet that Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau recommends for a typical downtown theatre is usually quite different from that suggested for a neighborhood theatre. This refers not only to durability but also to style factors.

It is important for patterns and colors to show up effectively under dim lights—and to harmonize correctly with the theatre's architecture. Because of the exceptional clearness of Cochrane colors, they are especially suited for theatre installations.

Forty years of experience in weaving theatre carpets plus careful study of service conditions in hundreds of theatres enables Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau to give you expert advice on every phase of carpet problems. And this advice is yours for the asking.

The completeness of the Cochrane line—the fact that all carpets have an all-wool face—are dyed with pure dyes—and woven with exacting precision, are further reasons for consulting Cochrane first.

DISCUSSION OF ACOUSTI-DECORATIVE EFFECTS FOR MODERN THEATRE INTERIORS

Analysis of Beauty in a Theatre Decorative Scheme

By Hanns R. Teichert

OUR modern conception of beauty remains based on the antique principles of art. We still support the theory that the greatest grace and life that a theme can possess is the motion and spirit imparted by large flowing lines. And that no forms express motion so well as those of the flame and the gliding, wavy lines of the serpent.

Michael Angelo proves that the triangular form of the glass, which the Greeks dedicated to Venus, and the serpentine line itself, are the two most expressive figures that can be thought of to signify not only beauty and grace but the whole order of form.

Architecture, in its application to the needs and tastes of today, reflects this theory more and more every day—the sharp and angular lines of the modernistic era having vanished fortunately, to be replaced by rounded curves and elongated sweeps of walls and cornices. Flowing lines introduced in the treatment of arches and entrances have given these openings grace and elegance. Sweeping ceiling lines staggered in different levels and soffits, dramatized by brilliant changes of color, lend distinctive new atmosphere.

Fundamentals

We must determine what constitutes beauty and grace in certain forms and lines and consider the nature of the lines in their different combinations, so that the ideas of taste expressed in the ever-fluctuating styles shall be true to the principles governing beauty and grace.

Let's consider the fundamental principles which are generally allowed to give elegance and beauty, when duly blended together, to compositions of all kinds and the particular force of each in those compositions which seem to please and entertain the eye and radiate grace and beauty.

The principles are fitness, variety, simplicity, intricacy, all of which cooperate in the production of beauty, mutually correcting and restraining each other occasionally in any decorative scheme. The proportions of decorative schemes should be governed by fitness and propriety, the same as architectural proportions are fixed in the dimensions of walls, pillars, arches and other provisions for the support of great weight, as well as the size of windows and doors fitting individual requirements.

How great a share variety has in producing beauty may be seen in the ornamental part of Nature. All senses delight in variety. The eye is offended at being fixed to a point or to the monotonous view of a dead wall as much as the ear is offended by one even, continued, unbroken note. Yet there is relief in a certain degree of sameness, if it is properly introduced in a scheme contrasted with variety, because it adds up to more variety.

Uncomposed variety without design is merely confusion and deformity. Proof of the truth of this statement is found in most of our older, antiquated theatres which were originally built with only one idea in mind, i.e. to create monumental edifices to stun the public's fancy, without regard for beautiful simplicity and utilitarian design.

Destruction

Those "architectural wedding cakes" were made still more insulting to the eye of the understanding (even if limited) public by the use of gaudy or drab colors without rhyme or reason. Most of those old traditional theatres were based on masterfully designed buildings of their respective periods and were copied without considering the new function these old designs were to fulfill. Forcing these periods, long outlived, into use for buildings to house our most modern theatre industry, destroyed their aesthetic value and the supposed-to-be improvements that were later added did the rest to destroy even the last vestige of beauty.

Part of the effects of beauty result from the symmetry of the scheme; symmetry in masses as well as applied decoration and color. Simplicity joined with variety enhances the pleasure of variety by giving the eye the opportunity of enjoying it with ease. A certain quantity of design adds greatness and grace, but excess is to be avoided, or bold quantity will become heavy and ridiculous.

Color and design are much easier to apply in excess than architectural features. That is why most of the sins are committed by decorators who first of all have not the education and training of a professional man at their command and too often are possessed with an idea of creating a masterpiece by the overflowing use of stencils and designs and color. It requires not only training but also personal feeling and taste to create a pleasing effect that radiates grace and elegance.

And now, what is proportion:

Here we cannot confine ourselves to surface treatment only but must consider certain planes of solidity that are found in profuse variety of shapes in any architectural scheme. So we have to consider their features in their part, designed to accomplish the peculiar movements of each, when introducing decorative design and color.

NATURE'S WAY

It is evident that nature has seen fit to make beauty of proportion and beauty of movement necessary to each other, and our observations should interpret this natural phenomena into architectural and decorative design. Light and shade produced by ornamental projections should not be confused by the application of different colors to these surfaces which tend to minimize and flatten their ornamentations.

The shadows of a beautifully designed cornice are effective enough without resorting to polychrome. The dramatization of large planes with bright colors tends to emphasize the intricate designs of architectural plaster so much more that it is wise to leave well enough alone by painting ornamental features off-white or at least a very light color in order not to destroy their ornamental relief.

Color, the real essence of a theatre decorative scheme, is such an all-important subject that we have set aside another article for a further discussion of this specific phase. These foregoing notes therefore will later be discussed more in detail as to individual periods, as well as specific color combinations, for all public rooms of a theatre.

Advisory Service

Since modern theatre decorating is a specialized art requiring counsel, creative talent and planning ability which are not usually available at all points of the country, Mr. Teichert has agreed to serve our readers in an advisory capacity. He will be glad to correspond with any of our readers who may wish information and advice on decorating procedure. All such inquiries will be given prompt attention. BUSINESS REVIVAL DEPENDS ON BUILDING

GENERAL building activity has been showing some signs of improvement in the past few months, over the stagnancy that has prevailed heretofore. However, we have been awaiting impatiently the unusual activity in building construction which is destined to arrive if and when definite stability of business in general is forthcoming.

As 1940 gets well under way, we have greater hopes that capital in business, the confidence of which unconsciously and directly controls the building construction barometer, will be sufficiently optimistic to provide impetus to building activity. Let us hope for further stabilization of present uncertain conditions due to politics, foreign wars and unemployment, to instill this vital confidence so conducive to an upturn in our nation's further progress.

Revived activity in the building industry, which undoubtedly is supplying much momentum to economic progress, will unquestionably develop greater potency in the motion picture theatre business.

A marked improvement in building construction which involves so many prospective buyers of commodities and which in turn necessitates the employment of more and more people in an endless cycle, will assert itself ultimately at theatre boxoffices.

It was with the thought of possibly stimulating necessary theatre construction that Edward Paul Lewin, Chicago architect and a member of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute's Architectural Advisory Board, recently presented at our invitation a series of articles on the "Relation of the Modern Theatre to Low-Cost Housing Projects" in The Modern Theatre section. In his presentation, Mr. Lewin emphasized the economic need of new and rehabilitated theatres in the immediate vicinities of low-cost housing project developments and private residential developments. Many advantages to the housing tenant and his family as patrons of the modern theatre structure, as well as a definite improvement in the exhibitors' business, were clearly indicated by Mr. Lewin.

The idea was most favorably received by many of our readers who sensed in it a possibility of stimulating desirable and necessary activity in theatre construction. We feel that there are other rapidly developing influences that might tend to create an economic necessity for immediate theatre construction and rehabilitation. Therefore, from time to time we will publish other articles prepared by members of our Planning Institute Advisory Board dealing with subjects which we think would indicate a definite need for additional theatre construction.—THE EDITOR.

Air Motion Control an Important Consideration

Without air motion control, the fresh, cool air of an interior lays along the floor, usually about knee deep. Hot air rises to the ceiling. Between the two extremes lies the warm air. From ceiling to floor several temperature variations are found. Lack of controlled air motion permits uneven temperatures, stale air accumulations and results in a depressing atmosphere.

With proper air motion control an even temperature is maintained and the constant refreshing movement of air helps the human body to function properly. The body uses evaporation to dispose of moisture and to regulate body temperature. Variations in room temperature and stale motionless air hamper these functions, producing discomfort.

Television? Another Air Attack or a Blessing to The Boxoffice?

and willingness to go see a motion picture."

Mr. Balaban's reference to radio and his optimism respecting the outcome at all events is noteworthy.

In a similar vein comes a statement from Henry D. Behr of the Wilmer & Vincent Corporation of New York. Says Mr. Behr, with the full approval of Mr. Sidney Wilmer:

"Your question 'should commercial television help or hurt theatre business when it arrives' is difficult to answer. Recent events indicate that progress of commercial television on any considerable scale will be subjected to considerable delay as shown by recent events.

Answered by Assumption

"To answer your question, we will have to assume that the Federal Communication Commission will eventually establish manufacturing and broadcasting standards to be followed throughout the industry. After that, volume set production can be relied upon to bring set prices within reach of the public. When the number of sets in homes increases sufficiently, sponsors will be willing to pay for programs. This can be likened to newspaper advertising whose rates are based chiefly on circulation possibilities. Sponsors will be found who will support television only in proportion to the potential home audience.

"Assuming that a large number of sets will be absorbed by the public at some distant date, we can then attempt to answer your question. As long as television programs are limited to short subjects, feature trailers, educational material, news, sporting events and interviews, no serious harm should result to theatre interests. As a matter of fact, it might help this business if an audience of millions were given an opportunity to view short scenes of feature productions. This may have the effect of whetting the movie appetities of many prospective patrons who now avoid the movie theatres. News and sporting events will not hurt the theatres provided judgment is exercised in regard to amount televised.

"It must be remembered that a television pick-up of an original event will at best be more or less haphazard. It should be the function of the theatre to show these events in detail from film. Important events could be televised to the home in condensed form, accompanied by recommendation to attend the local theatre for the complete event. This would be somewhat like the practice of Trans-radio, which gives news broadcasts over the radio in condensed form and ends with the suggestion that listeners read local papers for further details. There is no question but what this has increased newspaper sales.

"Short plays, via commercial television, will not hurt the business, providing material is used that does not compete with the type of plots used in full length film productions. Proper coordination between television and movie theatre interests should result in increased interest in movies with beneficial financial results to both. Lack of cooperation between these interests will have disastrous results to all concerned. Theatre owners should worry less about what will happen when commercial television arrives but put forth greater effort toward improving performance, including more attention to sound and projection quality."

And Our Opinions

Now for some additional opinions of our own, based on observations, hind-sight, fore-sight and the power of reasoning which we are supposed to possess. We believe television reception in certain classes of homes and places of public gathering is inevitable and that it will come sooner than many of us expect. Science cannot long be subdued and inventions of the spectacular sort, such as television, must soon find their way to the public in one form or another.

Personally, we can't see the possibility of a television receiver set in every home that now has a radio. In fact, we see no comparison between radio and television in volume of use or entertainment use value. Its replacement of the modern moving picture theatre as a medium for entertainment is exceedingly remote and it will affect, we predict, boxoffice receipts far less than radio reception has in the homes or elsewhere.

Our most optimistic view of television in its finally perfected form is a novelty effect that will soon subside unless it is adapted to and adopted by the moving picture industry. Unlike radio for home entertainment, the televised subject will require utmost audience concentration on a viewing area of extremely limited dimensions. The likelihood of advertising sponsorship—a subsidy which it will most surely require—will further negative its effect on a public that is already pretty well fed up with the interjected advertising plug it must endure while being entertained at home.

If the television broadcast is ever able to fulfill more than a very few of the functions of real entertainment now to be found in our films and on the screens of our fine modern theatres, it might become a serious threat to our economic equilibrium. In which event, we would strongly advocate its adoption as a supporting attraction. Real showmen are not asleep to that possibility.

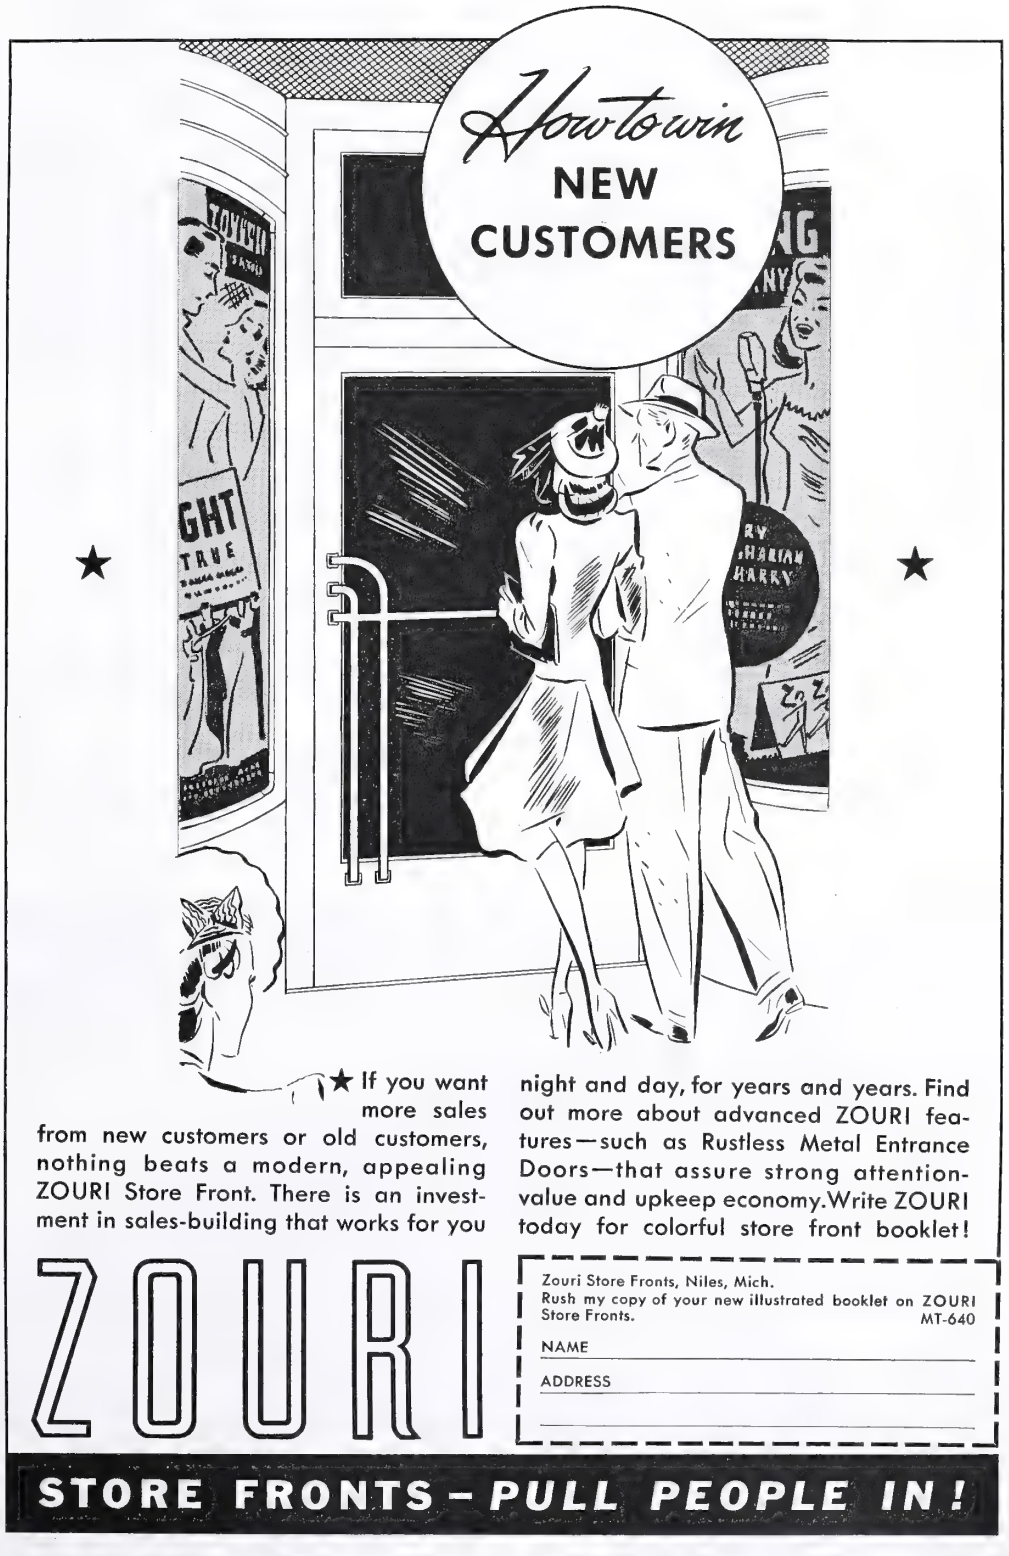
In the meantime, and while there's still time to perfect our defenses against all possible forms of invasion, let's continue by all available means to improve our theatres in both physical appearance and standards of operation.

Why not capitalize the public's general distaste for free or subsidized entertainment and re-energize the natural human preference and willingness to pay for being properly entertained away from home?

Fine carpets are a first consideration for decorative art in theatre interiors. Their selection is vital.

NEW UNIT

Bridging the gap between comparatively high-priced refrigeration cooling systems and the commonly used forced air circulating devices such as blowers, fans and exhaust vents, is a recently announced evaporative cooling system produced by S.O.S. Cinema Supply Corp., which is designed for spaces up to 100,000 cubic feet.



Employing a rotary atomizer, curved filter mat of special fiber chemically treated to eliminate odors, pollen and dust, the new units are said to fill a specific need. Special sealed moisture-proof motors, recirculating cold water pumps and directional flow air distribution vanes are other features referred to.

Entirely self-contained sizes are available from 3,500 c.f.m. up to 22,000 c.f.m., recirculating four gallons of cooling water per minute. The original cost is said to be much lower than a comparable refrigeration system, while upkeep is claimed far less than mechanical refrigeration.

One or more units may be installed at the rear of the theatre to provide cool, clean air for the lobby, projection booth, balcony or toilets, while several units installed under the stage or alongside the proscenium will take care of the large part of the main floor. Such an arrangement is said to be quite flexible, as the manager may use all or any part of the equipment, depending upon outside temperatures, time of day and size of audience.

REPUTATION

Air conditioning can and has definitely enhanced the reputation of many businesses. Particularly in the theatre field where it made its debut, it reflects your consideration for the comfort and welfare of your patrons. It indicates you are a modern showman receptive to progressive business methods. It marks your establishment as a pleasant, cheerful place to be entertained. It definitely builds customer good will.

PLANNING

CONDUCTED IN COLLABORATION WITH LEADING THEATRE ARCHITECTS AND ENGINEERS

When the Theatre Decorator Proceeds from an Architectural Plan

R. M. DAVIS* takes you behind the scenes to explain some of the secrets of successful modern theatre decoration and the design for greater house appeal. Further frank disclosures will follow in later issues.

REX DAVIS

WE INTEND that this article shall be frank and in a simple, plain language, understandable and easily digested by anyone closely or even remotely connected with the problems of theatre decorating.

When you find yourself faced with an actual painting job, be it a new building or the remodeling of an old interior, be honest in the admission that it offers no convenient handles. You are in truth stumped in not knowing just which way to turn first, or just what painting firm can be entrusted with the all-important job of executing interiors that are correct and sufficiently attractive to pass the discriminating eyes of the majority of your patrons.

In the hope that you may be interested in how one decorating firm approaches and solves such problems as yours, we will take an imaginary theatre and carry to the sketch stage a lobby, explaining each step of the solution and the basic reasons behind our recommendations.

*Associated with Hanns R. Teichert, Theatre Decorators.

Location and Scheme

We have worked in this case with a leading theatre architect. He has given us dimensions and a sound architectural background from which to start. The subject theatre, seating around 800, we will say, is located in a suburban community, population around 50,000. Prospective patrons mostly derive their incomes in a large metropolis forty miles away. So they are thoroughly familiar with modern surroundings of commercial buildings.

Therefore, we determined upon a base theme of simplified classic modern—which would allow us to create an interior comparable to, if not in advance of, the theatres to which these people are accustomed to in the large city. We are thus pulling every selling string, developing an interior that will be understood, accepted and appreciated.

Remember, the day is past—long past—when you could expect educated people to be satisfied with a movie-house which decoratively is only one step removed from a public garage—plus haphazard seating accommodations. These people demand clean, pleasant, comfortable and spacious theatres. Any house missing in any of these specifications will drastically reduce its own potential boxoffice receipts.

So, to sum up our major problem in this instance, we must decorate a theatre that will be viewed with favor, that will not only hold local patronage where it belongs, but will also draw people from the large city (an easy driving distance) to enjoy the advantages of this correctly executed modern theatre.

As shown in the sketch, the architect decided this room must be spacious—thirty feet square and about twenty feet high. He needed these dimensions to consciously suggest an uncramped welcome. Indirect lighting will flood the unbroken ceiling where in the focal center will appear a rich bronze lighting fixture.

The indirect bulbs are installed behind a plaster cove which is of architectural importance. To give interesting variety, we suggested a mahogany veneer to cover his structural columns. Curved walls above entrances to public spaces and dropped ceiling levels in these same spots give added architectural transitions.

Our general color scheme must be rich, complimenting complexions and heavy enough to harmonize with the planned bold plain wall surfaces. To meet these functional requirements we decided upon a ceiling of soft champagne color. Bottom and edge of plaster lighting cove to be in a deep dubonnet. This color is also to be used on the drop ceilings at entrances of public rooms, as well as on the two end lobby walls. Remaining main walls are to be painted in a deep champagne tone.

For our decorative treatment we have borrowed from the classics, with a conservative use of Zodiac figures, stripes, Grecian key and leaves. To impart further richness we are suggesting backgrounds for these items of a gold leaf or a gold fabric, all decorative figures to be painted directly on these materials. For a floor covering we use a deep grey blue carpet, giving a balancing color as well as a sufficiently heavy base for the wall colors.

On the drop ceilings we show flush louvre lighting fixtures that give a dramatic effect when they momentarily flood with light any person walking beneath them. Here we are allowed to appeal gracefully and effectively to the vanities of human nature. The ladies will be well pleased. And needless to add, few of the men patrons will seriously object!

To carry this "pampering of vanity" a little further, the entire wall, as one approaches the side entrances to the auditorium, is covered with plate glass mirrors, allowing all to get a good full length "shot" of themselves and thus be pleased! In case one might question our reasoning on this "vanity-ego," point, we simply need to call attention to the time spent by men and women alike in front of mirrors in beauty salons, in barber shops or in shop windows along the avenues. The observation is convincing.

Now finally to give this lobby that needed touch of softness, we have placed therein a pair of long draperies made of peanut colored silk velvet. The high-lights of color that will be caught and reflected by the draperies will warrant their slight extra cost.

In concluding, let me ask you to remember too that this lobby is the creation of a theatre architect. The decorator has a much easier task in developing schemes from planned interiors of this sort. But, when there is no architect in the picture and where an old interior is to receive paint only, the decorator who is capable, should be given the entire responsibility of creating worthwhile effects, and no one but a theatre specialist should be so employed. It will pay you to remember this point if no other.

Rather than confuse you with too much material in one article, we will hold off until next month our formula of development for the public rooms of this same imaginary theatre. In the meantime, any decorating problems that you may have will receive our careful study—if you will only let us know what they are.

FHA Financing for Air Conditioning Available

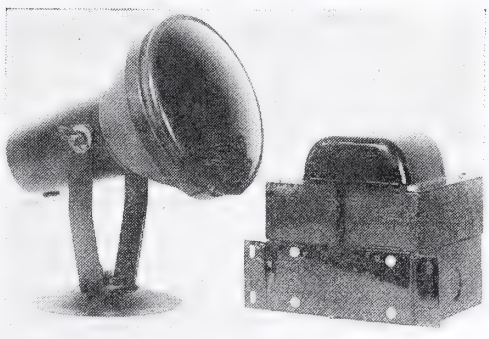
NEW YORK—A method of financing installations of air conditioning equipment under the national housing act in cooperation with C. I. T. Corp. has been worked out by S. O. S. Cinema Supply Corp.

With no down payment required, the terms extend up to 36 months, local contractors receiving payments upon completion of the jobs. Installation costs are included in the total amount and the first payment by the purchaser becomes due a month after installation.

FLUORESCENCE — A NEW DECORATIVE FACTOR

Hawaii Theatre murals treated with "Phantom-Lite" and radiated with black light. The gorgeous beauty of these murals is intensified by all the vivid colors of the rainbow; the ceiling is a heavenly blue and the stars are silvery bright. (Photo courtesy Phantom-Lite Products, Hollywood).

FICTION writers and persons of imaginative ability have often foretold the future day when illumination of interiors would be ideally provided by "luminous walls and ceilings capable of emitting the necessary light." The arrival of this "ideal" method of illuminating certain interiors which require very low lighting levels now seems to have taken place. The first few major installations completed have been judged highly successful and are at least an indication of the future trend.



Introduction of new lines of fluorescent paints, the "liquid light that comes in cans," along with perfection of new equipment designed to cause this "canned light" to fluoresce, are responsible for the innovation. The new paints are fluid light sources. Walls and ceilings painted with them emit richly colored light when fed with energy, not by the flow of current through a connected wire as with orthodox light sources, but by means of an invisible beam of harmless "near" ultra-violet (black) light directed upon them from concealed "black lights."

This revolutionary technique of decorative lighting is based upon the same general scientific principles as those upon which the operation of the efficient new tubular fluorescent lamps depend. In the latter, fluorescent crystals on the interior walls of the glass tube absorb ultra-violet energy (short wave) generated in the arc stream, change its wave length and emit the energy in the form of light which the eye can see. Fluorescent paints operate quite similarly, though they are applied directly upon the surface to be illuminated and are designed to emit visible colored light when harmless (long wave) ultra-violet energy is directed upon them.

Today, "painting with light" is a pleasing reality. Light, in any of twelve colors, may be brushed on or sprayed wherever desired, solidly or in tones, over the entire area to be illuminated or in design ornamentations. As simple to apply as ordinary coloring matters, these "canned light" compositions open up wide fields of potentiality in the decoration and illumination of theatre and other auditoria, night clubs, ballrooms, bars and other locations where low levels of illumination are desired without glare from high brightness sources of visible light.

The auditorium of the new Hawaii Theatre in Hollywood, opened in early May, is believed to be the first theatre wherein fluorescent walls and ceilings are depended upon as the sole source of running illumination. Practically every square foot of ceilings and walls is sprayed lightly with the glowing fluorescent paint. Sunlight and moonlight effects produced with blue and flame-tinted incandescent lamps provide intermission lighting, but otherwise there are no white lights, no fixtures and no side wall brackets.

During picture presentation, the patron is seated beneath a most beautiful deeply luminous blue Hawaiian night sky with brightly glowing stars. Because of the perfect third dimensional effects attainable by this new decorative technique, the walls appear to have receded and a fluorescent rendition of Mt. Mauna Loa spouting fire and smoke gives the appearance that it is many miles in the distance. Light emitted by the over-all fluorescent treatment bathes the auditorium with "shadowless moonlight," providing excellent illumination without screen interference and without a single glaring light source or brilliantly lighted surface.

A rapidly increasing number of theatres, night clubs, ballrooms, bars and public auditoria are being planned, constructed or completed wherein fluorescent compositions and "black light" equipments form the major part of decorative and lighting effects. Adjudged the perfect means of theatre auditorium lighting, this combination is being incorporated in new and remodeled theatres throughout the country.

In California alone, where the pioneer installations were made last November and December, the following installations in theatre auditoriums have been completed: Academy Theatre, Inglewood; Lido Theatre, Newport Beach; Tower Theatre, Fresno; Strand Theatre, Modesto; Fifth Avenue Theatre, Inglewood; California Theatre, Sacramento; Newsreel Theatre, Hollywood; Esquire Theatre, Madera; Hawaii Theatre, Hollywood. Others are planned and under construction.

And this new fluorescent formula for decorative effect does not stop with walls and ceilings. At least one leading carpet manufacturer has introduced fluorescence to special carpet patterns, which when activated with black lighting brings out unusual beauty of the carpet when theatre lights are low. With the recent perfection of special lighting devices and equipment for the application of "black lighting," such as those illustrated herewith, the new and spectacular lighting-decorative medium should meet with much favor among theatre men who are interested in novel effects.

Personality in theatre management is again coming back into its own. The modern theatre is no longer directed by proxy.

HONORED

William L. Pereira, architect for Paramount's proposed new studio and a member of the Advisory Board of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute, has been awarded the Scarab gold medal by the Scarab National Architectural Society for "significant professional achievement." The award is made annually to one architect under thirty-five years of age whose achievements are of sufficient national significance to warrant it.

William Pereira, associated with his brother, Hal Pereira, designed the Esquire Theatre in Chicago, which was chosen by the Encyclopaedia Britannica to illustrate ideal modern theatre construction and design; seventy-five other theatres constructed in the past four years; buildings at the Chicago, Texas, New York and San Francisco World's Fairs. He is now designing six film exchanges for RKO.

RURAL THEATRE OPERATION RATES A CHANCE

THE two snapshots appearing above speak for themselves. Mrs. Margaret Harkey Higginbotham, who operates theatres in a circuit of eight towns in the land of Bob Burns, known as the Ozark Amusement Company, was requested by the people of Black Rock, Arkansas, which had never had one, to put a theatre in their town. Mrs. Higginbotham advised them that she would consider the possibilities of a house in Black Rock (pop. 751) provided she could find a desirable location.

After making a number of unsuccessful trips in an effort to find a suitable site, she was on the verge of giving up the idea entirely when she decided to take another look at an old dilapitated store building on the corner which had been vacant for many years.

Her friends were horrified to find that she would even consider the ancient building and tried in every possible way to discourage the venture. But she wouldn't listen because in her mind's eye she had already visualized the smart black and white tile front of the modern little theatre which she recently opened.

Her new house, the Ozark, has the latest type equipment and 300 of the most comfortable seats obtainable. It is operating regularly and both she and the citizens of Black Rock and its surrounding territory are happy and proud of the civic asset to their community. Which all goes to show that small-town theatre operation could be more profitable if more theatre owners tried harder to make it so.

Screen light is important, too. Many developments in the projection light source have made brilliant snow-white projection light available to all theatres, large and small alike.

Automatic curtain control contributes immensely to the House Appeal of any theatre. It adds finesse to the performance on the screen.

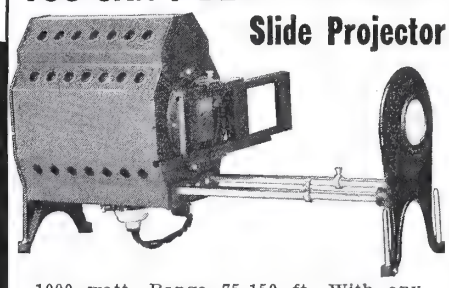
B&L Super Cinephor f:2 WITH 25% MORE LIGHT TRANSMISSION

Bausch & Lomb now offers the f:2 Super Cinephor which actually delivers 25% more light on the screen. Light lost in previous lenses by surface reflection (4-6% at each air to glass surface) is made to do useful work. A new process of treating lens surfaces minimizes reflections and makes this f:2 lens have a light efficiency that hitherto would have been possible only at f:1.79.



Not only is there 25% more light on the screen, but also a gain in contrast and crispness. Shadow detail is not diluted by distributed light. Color films, too, have greater purity and brilliance.

The Right Kind of House Reaches Far Afield For Its Patronage

are in a medium yellow and the wall with ornamentation is in Congo brown. This ornament is in bone white eggshell enamel and all wood trim is in bone white also. The lounge is located on the second floor, and on the wall opposite the door entrance is a large circular mirror of blue tint. This mirror reflects the ornament on the brown wall and gives an impression of water.

Significantly, this broad mural scene suggests local atmosphere in its approximation of scenes and picturesque settings of the community. Hence this type of decoration on the brown wall. The carpet is of the same design and color as that in the auditorium and chrome furniture is upholstered in blue and red leather.

Furnishings Functional

Immediately off the main lounge is the ladies' powder room, on the entire east wall of which from ceiling to floor are mirrors and make-up tables all finished in bone white eggshell enamel. Three full length mirrors are recessed in between the make-up tables and the tables are ribbed. The ceiling and west wall are in turquoise blue and the north and south walls are coral-peach. The toilet ceiling and walls are in turquoise blue with an orchid and lettuce green tile wainscot. Ceiling and walls of the men's retiring room are in a rust tone with a black and yellow tile wainscot.

Absence of applied ornamentation in the auditorium is noteworthy. All attention is focused directly on the screen. Indirect spot lights in the ceiling are on an emergency circuit, eliminating possibility of a "blackout." The ceiling is painted a dark blue and the walls down to the wainscot molding are of a rose-rust tone. Two decorated panels are of a deeper tone than the adjoining walls.

The decorative free-swinging ornament, which was sketched on at random, is of the same color except in a much lighter shade and outlined in a much deeper tone, which really is a Venetian red. The proscenium arch is of a shade similar to the major portion of the walls and the wainscot is a delft blue to harmonize with the grey-green seat upholstery. The stage curtain is teal blue and all of the wood trim is bone white trimmed in royal blue. The draperies are coral-peach and the predominating color in the modern carpet pattern is a French blue.

One may possibly wonder at the graduated lines on the side walls. The walls are "asbestos feathers" down to the wainscot molding and the balance of the wall surface is cement plaster which runs up to a point of ten feet in order to protect the acoustical material from damage. The "international" stripes were injected to keep the wainscot from appearing too high. Specially made light fixtures are of a deep rose tone in the center finished in polished bronze. Three of these large fixtures and two banjo lights on each wall serve to illuminate the auditorium.

Conceived for Comfort

The most comfortable type of full upholstered seats were provided, spaced adequately for convenient access. A washed-air cooling system is used, the air from which is introduced and distributed through a wide rectangular grille above the proscenium arch. A gas-fired heating plant introduces warm air in winter through grilles concealed in the decorative panels at each side of the stage.

In its modern equipment and most efficient layout for the reproduction of sound moving pictures, the new Indiana Theatre could hardly be excelled. It has the latest types of apparatus and no sacrifices were allowed in the processes by which pictures are put on the screen. The acoustics are perfect and the sound reception is exceptional, thanks to wise selection and servicing of the equipment.

Here then is another modern theatre, the type of which is giving the public a new conception of the entertainment value of pictures when properly presented. It's the kind of house that reaches far afield for its patronage—in this case as far away as Indianapolis and Bloomington. Mr. Servaas and all concerned are certainly to be complimented.

Try fluorescent carpeting activated by "black light" for a truly breath-taking effect. It's the latest innovation of the carpeting and lighting industries and its appeal is both novel and practical.

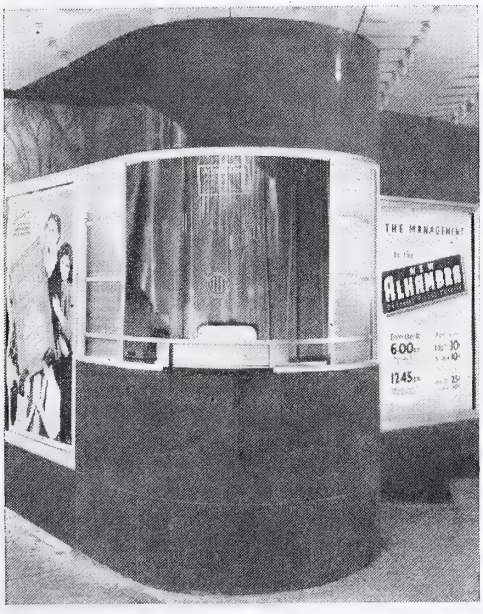
NATE GOLDEN



THE U. S. Department of Commerce recently released a new bulletin which embodies a comprehensive statistical survey of all branches of the American motion picture industry. Nathan D. Golden, Chief of the Department's Motion Picture Division under whose direction the data were compiled, pointed out that in every instance the figures presented were obtained from sources within the industry.

Following are a few outstanding statistical facts as revealed in the survey: The financial worth of the American motion picture industry is conservatively estimated as in excess of $2,000,000,000. One hundred firms are engaged in producing motion pictures in this country, producing an annual average of 500 feature films and 800 "shorts," at an estimated aggregate cost of $165,000,000. California accounts for 95 per cent of the total production, the remaining 5 per cent being produced in New York. Approximately 28,500 people in the United States are employed in motion picture production, with Hollywood's annual payroll amounting to about $129,000,000. Between 100 and 250 prints of each feature film are required for initial distribution in this country and 276 separate industries, arts and professions are involved in the making of a single feature picture.

In the exhibition field, 241,000 people are employed in 17,000 theatres operating in the United States which have a seating capacity of 10,462,208. Average weekly attendance at these theatres approximates 85,000,000 persons who contribute more than $1,000,000,000 in yearly revenues at the boxoffice. Film rentals paid by these theatres to distributors of motion pictures average over $250,000,000 yearly. For newspaper and magazine advertising the motion picture industry spends over $77,000,000 annually in the United States and an additional $33,000,000 in foreign countries.

United States productions account for 65 per cent of all the motion pictures exhibited in theatres throughout the world and approximately 35 per cent of total revenues received by American film producers for their productions is derived from foreign sources.

CONTACT

Beauty at the point of contact—the boxoffice—could hardly be more appropriately expressed than in this view of the cashier's cage of the Alhambra Theatre in Detroit, designed by Architect C. H. Crane. The gracefully rounded "counting room" is formed of all-red vitreous structural glass in keeping with the general scheme of the entire facade. THEATRE ILLUMINATION FOR ADVERTISING DISPLAY, ATMOSPHERE AND BETTER VISION

A New Idea Steps Up Attraction Panel Effectiveness

By C. M. Cutler and H. J. Chanon

Mr. Cutler

Mr. Chanon

THEATRE owners know the value of luminous attraction letter panels. Their highly effective advertising and pleasing appearance by night and by day has been borne out by hundreds of marquee installations—and now a new idea to increase still further their effectiveness. This idea utilizes two of the most powerful forces known in attracting attention, high brightnesses or fixed or changing values and color. Brightness changes have always been readily obtained through the use of equipment designed to dim filament lamps. On the other hand, volume of color has been more difficult to obtain.

The introduction of Mazda F (fluorescent) lamps has changed this entire picture as it is now possible to obtain colored light directly at extremely high efficiency. As a matter of fact, green can now be produced at efficiencies 100 times as high as with former light sources. By employing green as the static color, and combining it with filament lamps controlled to change in brightness, effects never before practicable can now be obtained.

Changeable Effects

The section of an attraction letter panel shown in Fig. 1A appears to be no different than a regular panel consisting of a large luminous area against which opaque letters are viewed in silhouette. The panel is just this for a few seconds only as a glance at Fig. 1B now shows the center area of the upper row of letters to be luminous. Actually, the color of the luminous background has been transformed from green to white and the letters during the same period have changed from full black to letters with red centers and opaque margins. Unfortunately, color cannot be employed in these photographs to show how this transformation has taken place. However, the accompanying sketches illustrate the construction of a typical section and indicate how both color and brightness are varied to bring about this change.

The combination of green Mazda F lamps and regular filament lamps in conjunction with letters having transparent centers of red glass or plastic are shown in Fig. 2. Here 36-inch Mazda F lamps are positioned alternately between rows of 60-watt filament lamps. In green, these lamps, including the auxiliaries, have an efficiency of about 60 lumens per watt. These burn continuously to produce a high brightness panel in color.

An examination of the radiant energy curve in Fig. 3 shows that almost all of the energy in the green Mazda F lamp is confined to the green region of the visible spectrum. Practically no energy is present in the red end. Consequently, when the filament lamps are not in operation, the letters appear as full silhouettes as no red light is available to be transmitted by the centers of the letters.

The filament lamps are connected to a reactor type of dimmer with automatic timing in which the voltage is varied through a range from approximately black-out to full brightness. The radiant energy curve (Fig. 3) shows the filament lamp to be rich in energy in the red part of visible spectrum. Therefore, as the brightness of the filament lamps increases red energy is produced in abundance and the transparent centers of the letters appear red. At the same time, the so-called white light of the filament lamps dilutes the green produced by the fluorescent lamps and the luminous background becomes practically white in color.

Process Explained

Fig. 4 illustrates the changes that take place during one complete cycle. To simplify the explanation the illustration has been confined to the letter "E." During the first half of the cycle the voltage of the filament lamp circuit is increased. The brightness of the opal glass panel changes from green to greenish white and then to white. The letter strokes during this phase appear first as silhouettes and then gradually take on brightness. At the peak of the cycle, the letters are red as the filament lamps are operating at full brilliancy. As the voltage is decreased, the red letter centers disappear and again become silhouettes while the background changes from white to green. A complete cycle should be approximately five seconds in duration. However, it is desirable to provide some means of adjustment in a. Filament lamps not burning. Upper and lower rows of letters both appear the same in silhouette against the green background.

FIGURE 1

Comparison between opaque letters and those with transparent center strokes are demonstrated.

b. Filament lamps at full voltage. Upper row of letters has red center strokes whereas lower row appears the same in silhouette against a white background.

the timer to select the best combination for local conditions. If desired, the filament lamps can be flashed on and off in which case the color and brightness changes are produced instantly. However, the dimming cycle brings about the changes in a gradual manner and the resulting effect may be more pleasing.

A theatre front can utilize this idea in the vertical name sign as well as in the attraction letter panel. However, other colors may be employed for variation. In the artist's sketch shown in Fig. 5, the name sign "Park" has been given a similar treatment. Here the Mazda F gold lamp may be employed to produce a high luminous background in color against which letters with transparent blue centers are viewed. The spectral curve for the gold lamp shows that the total energy is in the green, yellow, orange and red part of the visible spectrum. The combination of these colors produces the characteristic gold. Since no energy in the blue and violet region is present, the letters with blue centers appear in silhouette when the filament lamps are not burning. Increasing the voltage on the filament lamp circuit introduces white light which has sufficient blue energy to produce a blue center stroke. The background changes from gold to white during this phase of the cycle. This combination of blue letters lined with opaque margins against a white background is very effective.

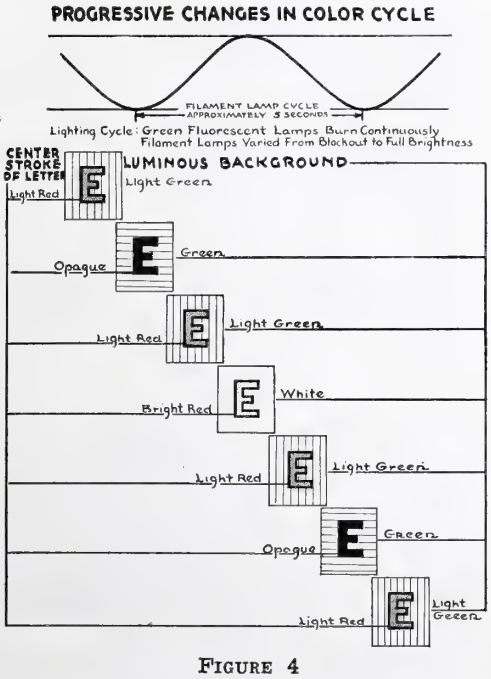

FIGURE 4

Steps in the production of colored center strokes through a variation in voltage across the filament lamp circuit.

FABRICATION SIMPLE

Mazda F lamps in color are available in 18", 24", and 36" lengths. This selection makes possible the application of this idea to marquees and signs of various dimensions. For purposes of illustration, the 36" size was used in Fig. 2. To facilitate erection and fabrication, the metal panels shown can be made up in convenient sections and wired in the shop. The sections themselves may be bolted to the supporting structure, thus requiring a minimum of construction work on the job. Wire way is suggested for the bottom of the section for connecting the panel to branch circuits.

To insure good brightness uniformity of the flashed opal glass panel, the spacing between the Mazda F lamps indicated by "S" (Fig. 2) should not exceed 1 to 1½ times distance "D" measured from the center of the lamps to the glass surface. The same spacing for filament lamps is recommended.

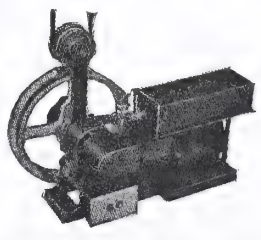
For most effective operation of the color change it is necessary to so choose the size and number of filament lamps that when full voltage is impressed across them the white light emitted will be approximately 1½ to 2 times that produced by the Mazda F lamps. This ratio will produce a rich color in the letter stroke and high background brightness.

Table I has been prepared to serve as a guide when green or gold Mazda F lamps are used. In each case it is assumed that the wiring panel section (Fig. 2) will house 2 rows of fluorescent and 2 rows of filament lamps. For other variations in size it is desirable to maintain about the same ratio of white and color lighting.

FIGURE 5

A modern theatre front employing green Mazda F lamps in the attraction letter panel and gold Mazda F lamps in the vertical name sign.

TABLE I—LAMPING RATIOS



Green and white background and red letter stroke combinations.

Height of Panel Section	Fluorescent Lamps		Filament Lamps
	No. & Size	Lumens	No. & Size	Lumens
24"	2 - 18"	1800	6 - 40-w	2820
36"	2 - 21"	2600	8 - 40-w	3760

48"	2 - 36"	1860	8 - 40-w	3760

Since green Mazda F lamps are highest in volume of colored light, they are recommended for the attraction letter panel in high brightness districts. Because of their position, letter panels must compete with other areas of high brightness such as store fronts, show windows, street lights, etc. The same number of gold lamps produces an abundance of light for the theatre in the lower brightness neighborhoods. By doubling the number of fluorescent lamps and increasing the wattage or number of filament lamps accordingly, the same effectiveness is obtained as with the green background and red letter combination. This treatment offers new opportunities for the vertical enclosed name sign as well as the marquee.

PRACTICAL DISCUSSIONS ON THE MECHANICS OF PROJECTION AND SOUND

"Helping in the Biggest Job of the Industry"

By The Editor

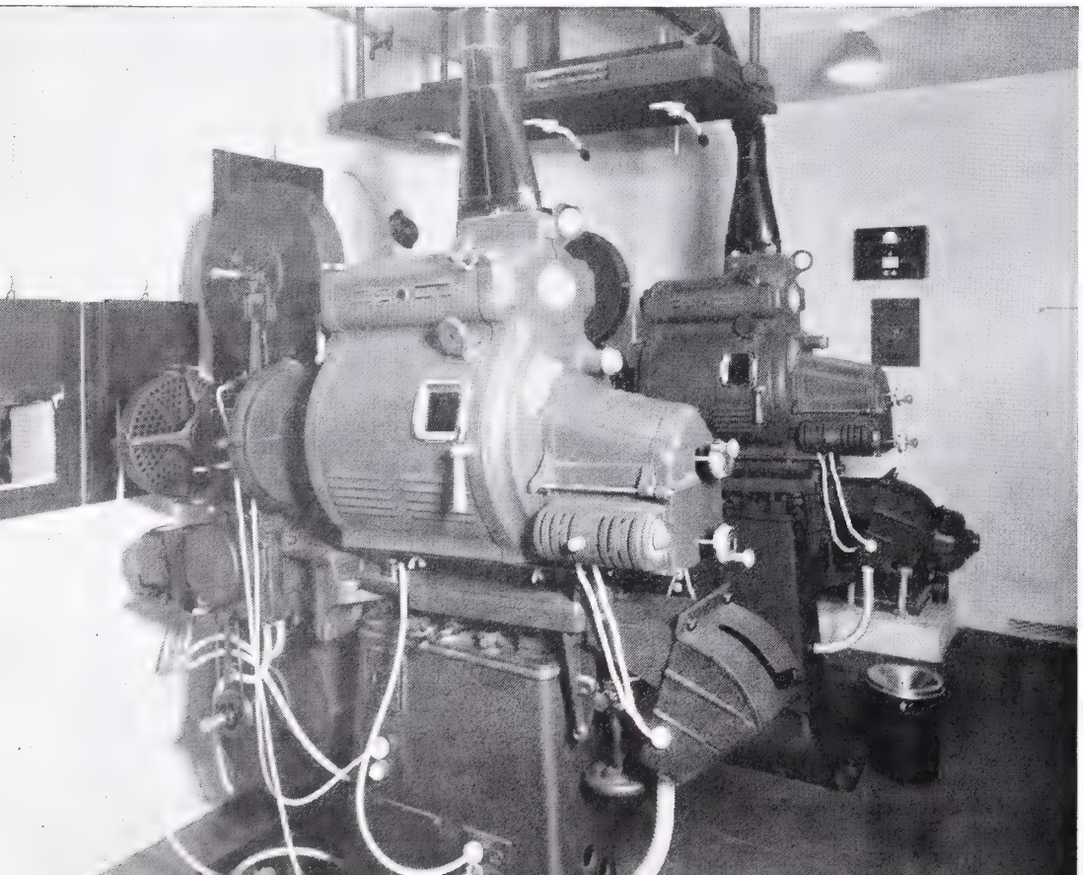
IN THIS instance we're deliberately appropriating the catch-line of one of our regular advertisers, with full intent to lend emphasis to the selling point involved, i. e., that Better Projection Pays.

Perhaps our doing so may smack of commercialism or a too obvious attempt to propagate the purchase of some new equipment. However, if that construction is placed on what we have to say by any of our readers, we'll simply let it go at that.

Candidly, this department is in complete accord with the proposal advanced by one of our sponsors to the effect that they, as an organization, can help you theatre owners in the biggest job now confronting you, namely "getting theatre patrons back again."

The Saving Grace

Among the many useful mechanical factors that can contribute to the restoration of the movie-going habit, is there one more basically essential than good projection? Without it, fine photography and superb production technique fall flat on the screens of our theatres and generally with a public recoil that strikes at the very vitals of the boxoffice, and therefore does theatre business generally no good.



With good projection, the standard of which is higher today than ever before, many a flop picture has found sufficient favor with the patrons to impel them to try again. Even a poor picture subject, if properly presented on the screen and in an environment for pleasure and relaxation, is seldom the cause of a patron's resolution to stay away from all theatres. Yet cases aplenty are known where good pictures poorly projected have caused patrons to look to other sources than the movies for entertainment.

This public of our knows little about the technique or scientific modus operandi of a moving picture machine and it cares less to know about the formulae of the process. Their knowledge of what goes on in that mysterious little compartment, with the portholes, tucked away up there in the rear of the auditorium was well interpreted on the radio recently.

On the Johnson Wax program (and this is no plug), Fibber McGee told Molly that all moom pictures (good and bad) come from Hollywood. To which Molly replied: "Oh, do good pictures come from Hollywood? I always thought they came from those little rooms up there in the back of the house."

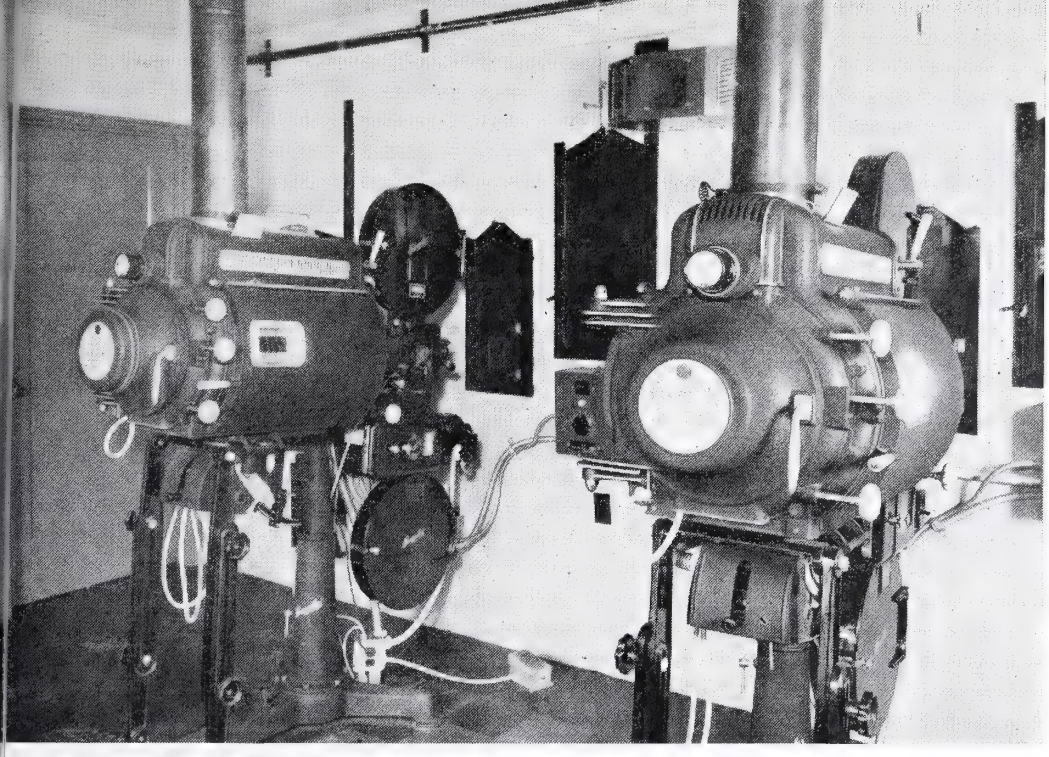
Molly was right. Good pictures do come from many of "those little rooms up there." But a lot of film goes in those rooms good and comes out bad; the result of poor projection. And for the self-same reason, pictures of poor to medium entertainment value get little help from the questionable mechanical process employed in their reproduction. Fine photographic values, one of the most appealing effects of modern picture production, are too often lost entirely or severely reduced by the inefficiency of a picture machine or one of its many appurtenances.

True, the public doesn't know exactly how projection is done nor why pictures are clearer and steadier and altogether more enjoyable on one theatre's screen than they are on another. But too many people have already found out enough about good picture projection to make them discriminate in favor of the theatre which has it —and distance is no longer a decisive factor.

In this corner of the spacious projection room of John Servaas' new Indiana Theatre at Martinsville, Indiana, described elsewhere in this issue, is to be seen the type of equipment provision that makes Better Projection Pay. The "booth" of this up-to-date little small-town theatre is anything but a repository for out-worn projection equipment.

Who's Job Is It?

The "biggest job of the industry" has often been alluded to in this journal. It is neither political, by-partisan, nor a special task to be assumed by any special group within or without the industry. Getting estranged patronage back into our theatres regularly — reinculcating the movie-going habit, as it were—is the job of every man and woman in picture show business.



The task can no longer be shirked nor the responsibility shunted aside. It belongs to every one of us, the producer, the

RECOGNITION

It is an old southern custom that prominent visitors to Louisville are made Kentucky Colonels. A more signal and substantial honor was bestowed upon P. A. McGuire, advertising manager of International Projector Corporation, when he attended the recent I. A. T. S. E. convention in Louisville.

As a guest at one of the various dinners, among other social events given by or for delegates during the convention, Mr. McGuire was presented with a Silver Plaque in recognition of his untiring efforts to raise projection standards and secure recognition of projectionists as technicians.

The presentation was made by a committee consisting of William P. Covers, vice-president of the I. A., and B. A. of Toronto Local 173; C. A. Dentelbeck, president; Arthur Milligan, secretary-treasurer, and D. Siegel, member of the Local, who also notified Mr. McGuire that he had been made an Honorary Member of the Toronto Local, in appreciation of work well done.

And here is the projection equipment layout in Kalafat Brothers' Gala Theatre at Garrett, Indiana, another small-town modern theatre about which more will be said in a later issue. In this "little room 'way upstairs" is to be found the right solution to the Better Projection problem. (Photo courtesy National Theatre Supply Company, Chicago.)

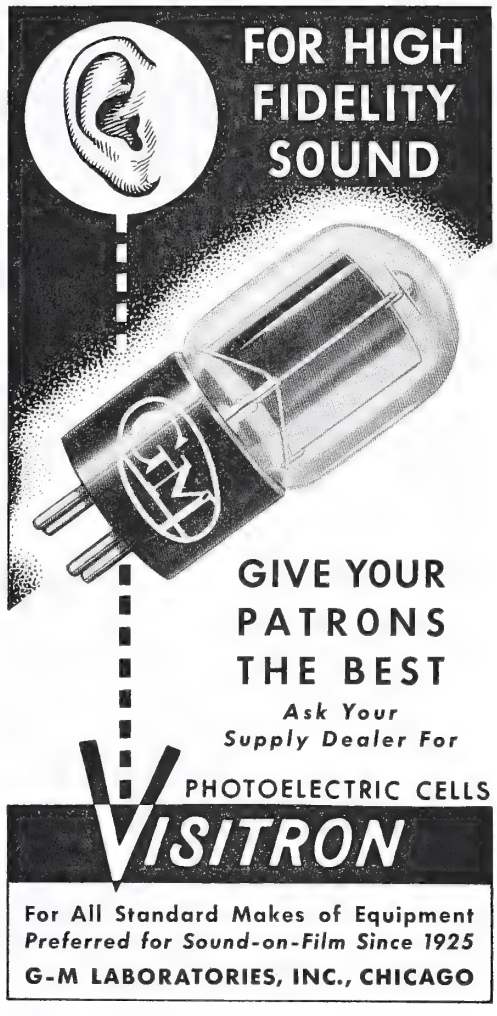
photographer, the projectionist, the promoter, the publisher and none the less does it belong to the men who own, operate and manage our theatres.

Men who make and sell and advertise equipment must share the responsibility with men who buy it, bearing in mind always the mutual objective to create more business for the boxoffice through bringing back business that has been allowed to stray away.

Good pictures from Hollywood alone won't accomplish the end. Nor will good projection at home effect the purpose unassisted. The finest modern theatre built won't do it if one or more of the most vital details is missing—and good projection is vital, even to the smallest of our theatres.

This publication has been persistent as well as consistent in its advocacy of coordinated theatre planning. In other words, we have often expounded, herein and in other departments, the theory that a theatre plant is no more efficient from the standpoint of profitable business promotion than its weakest link. Therefore the necessity of forging every link into a chain, the pulling power of which is expressed in two words: House Appeal.

An Ominous Oversight



In our frequent appraisals of theatre modernizing projects, both newly constructed and altered, we find many occasions to compliment both the owners and their architects as well as all others who have contributed to noteworthy accomplishments. But far too often, case histories of theatre modernizing projects received, and not infrequently those of entirely new jobs, contain this ominous information: "Projection Room: No new equipment purchased. Old apparatus (sometimes overhauled) transferred from former house."

Overhauled projection equipment has no place in the modern theatre and no theatre owner can justly lay claim to the possession of a modern theatre with outmoded equipment hidden away in his projection room. The source may be concealed, but there's no way of camouflaging what appears on the screen.

Is it because Mr. and Mrs. Public can't see what's in that "little room way upstairs" that we don't see fit to modernize the works? Or are we still building and equipping our theatres merely to look at? We think most theatre owners have passed beyond that sort of reasoning.

The smarter set of theatre owners today are building their theatres for better projection. They're not hedging on this vital factor of House Appeal when it comes to the purchase of modern projection equipment. In fact, the truly modern house is actually built around its projection—with all other contributing elements pointed at one all-important objective: The complete and uninterrupted enjoyment of all that appears upon the screen.

In this new strategy of theatre formation, designed to restore the movie-going habit, modern projection equipment is playing a most helpful part.

Frank Opinions on Operation and Other Faults We Find

By Gordon H. Simmons

THE owner of a beauty parlor up in Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, visited me a few days ago and asked me to air condition him. I couldn't see any objection to doing so since theatre owners seem to prefer to stay the way they are. So I figured up and ordered out what was necessary and at noon caught the "Hiawatha" which took me the thirty-three miles to Oconomowoc in forty minutes flat.

The beauty parlor owner had both his sheet metal man and his plumber meet me and I proceeded to instruct them explicitly how to install the job, all apparatus having been delivered. I promptly got into a scrap with the plumber and this happened before I had a drink, too. He wanted to do the job his way and I wanted the job done my way. Guess who won the argument.

After I got all through giving instructions, I suppose I was bristling like a frustrated porcupine, so the owner took me to a cozy little place around the corner and proceeded to get me properly soothed. He succeeded too well.

By the time I got good and soothed, it was train time and I got back to Milwaukee in a jolly state of mind. So I went to the ..... Hotel to get fortified in other directions; not having had lunch and two strong drinks on an empty stomach were too much.

My Wondering Waitress

I found that hotel dining room air conditioned (second attempt) and here I was barging into the place after the job was done. That's what I get for taking up so much of my professional time with you theatre fellows. I asked the girl in charge of the dining room if the job worked all right. She said: "Yes, it works." I said: "Last time I was in here it was too cold." Then she said: "I guess a lot needs to be learned yet about air conditioning because it's still too cold."

She went on to say that this was true of every theatre in Milwaukee. (Ouch!) I might have assured her that it was also true of darn near every so-called air conditioned theatre in the country. And further I could have added that it was quite understandable. Of all the people who talked to me in that place, not one raised a dissenting voice or expressed an opinion to the effect that "air conditioning was not as good as it might be," or "why the heck isn't it better than it was before."

I know and I'm not too modest to tell you either. Too many people, both in and out of theatre business are too bloomin' ignorant or lazy or both, to find out what it takes to properly operate an air conditioning job and then go and do it. An adjustment or two often is all that is necessary and it's practically as simple as that.

Now you fellows don't properly support me. My cash clients and closest confidants are mostly non-theatre owners. They hunt me up and ask me to handle their jobs and they don't try to chisel me either. I have nearly a thousand jobs in the City of Milwaukee and only two of them are theatres. So with theatre jobs scattered from Lake Superior to the Gulf of Mexico, I don't have to solicit business. Provided I'm willing to starve. Oh sure, I get lots of postage stamps, but as I mentioned once or twice before, I'm no cockroach so I can't eat paper.

And I'm Telling You

But to lapse momentarily into a more serious vein, here are some features that will make you theatre owners better liked by your customers, if you know how to feature them in your place of business. Which is exactly what I told our beauty parlor owner in regard to the operation of his job when I turned it over to his loving care.

I told him not to permit his temperature to get below 78 degrees and to use all fresh air. Those of you who can't do this can at least use as much fresh air as possible. If you fellows don't know how to adjust a thermostat, drop me a post card and I'll send you a blueprint, showing how to take your thumb (or any finger) and push the little lever so-o-o until it is directly under the mark "78" and then leave it there. Push it lower at your own peril.

I get one theatre job fixed for postage stamps and by the time I'm done with that there have been ten other jobs installed that need fixing too. I feel like the British just before they pulled out of Norway. What's the use? However, instead of withdrawing I feel more like running a blitzkrieg.

If I could but harness up some mechanized forces to make people mind their operations, just like I do after I finish an air conditioning job, I might be more helpful in cleaning up a deplorable situation in the theatre air conditioning field. But it's your money, boys, your houses, and your privilege to spend your money any way you damn well please. You don't even have to listen to me if you don't want to. We're still a democracy and I'm no dictator. I'm simply trying to do my bit for Better Air Conditioning.

Observations Enroute

Since my Zephyr wasn't available for the aforementioned trip to Oconomowoc, I took the streamlined "Hiawatha." Which is air conditioned—and I really mean air conditioned! The kind of a job that is, you should have. I'm told it's a million dollar train, yet I rode 33 miles on it for 66 cents. The train was crowded. Quite evidently good air conditioning pays in transportation too. And according to the will of Mr.

STILL FISHIN'

Blaming Brother John F. Rees of the Regal Theatre at Wellsville, Missouri, for the above predicament, Simmons still brags about his piscatorial prowess, a point which this picture would seem to disprove. Note that his escort (whose identity he failed to disclose) is holding the burden of proof.

As announced in last issue, Simmons is still en route—somewhere out in the Mississippi Valley—doing his daily boy scout deeds in behalf of Better Air Conditioning. The above picture proves it!

If you want to see Simmons professionally, socially or purely out of curiosity, write or wire this office (The Modern Theatre, 332 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago) and we'll try to send him your way. The terms are simple—a tankful of gas, a tummyful of food and a tip-off on the whereabouts of the three little fishes.—The Editor.

*Air Conditioning Engineer, Milwaukee, Wis.

John Q. Public, air conditioning is good for business in just about all other public places such as restaurants, beauty parlors, stores, taverns, homes. Yes, you guessed it—and in theatres, too.

During my forty minute ride on the air conditioned train, I noticed a long narrow grille extending the entire length of the coach and out of this grille came hissing a lot of pure fresh air. Sure I heard the hissing noise but what's the difference? The fact remains that although the train was crowded, I knew from that hiss that I was not breathing air just previously exhausted by someone nearby. All of the train windows had double glass. But of course theatres don't need double glass windows because they seldom if ever have windows.

On the back of each seat was a freshly laundered linen cover and it was clean, impressing all of us passengers with proof that the incoming air had been voided of dust, dirt and cinders. The temperature in that coach was just right too. I found the automatic temperature control system and after one glance I knew that the temperature would be held just right whether the coach were crowded or nearly empty.

In other words, what was installed on that train was really an air conditioning system. Systems such as this are doing a lot to counteract the bad effect on the public of your "lack of systems." And conversely, they serve to show up your shortcomings if you don't have "a system" or do have one and fail to operate it according to Hoyle.

My guess is that each coach of that ten-coach train had an air conditioning system costing perhaps $10,000—or $100,000 to air condition that million dollars' worth of customer service. And I paid only 66 cents to ride 33 miles on it.

A Reckless Charge

Now don't overlook this: Here were ten separate air conditioning installations, each independent of the other, and all of them being quietly rolled along on ball bearings at 90 to 120 miles per hour. Whereas your jobs don't have anywhere to go. They just sit in one place and continue to help or hinder your business, depending upon what they are and how you operate 'em.

And how that "Hiawatha" can ramble! I've taken out after it in my Zephyr like an auto-chasing collie dog, and all the speed I can muster is not enough. That streamliner leaves me just as if I were tied to a post. Don't think that when I do something like this that I have been within a hundred miles of a drink, or that I do such a thing just to show off. I simply have a certain degree of skill in regard to some things and driving a car is one of my accomplishments.

Usually when I make a fast trip anywhere it is because some troubled soul has called me and asked me to hurry. My fishing partner who goes with me on many of my trips is an ex-race track driver and usually he drives the car too, which somewhat tempers the charge of recklessness on my part.

But that does not prevent me from preferring the charge of recklessness against many of you fellows for attempting to secure air conditioning with but the slightest regard for the scientific values involved. Believe me, air conditioning will go along with or without you. It cannot get along without me—and by this I am referring to the principles I stand for and not to me as a person.

That "Hiawatha" train was built by engineers from smokestack to rear water closet. And it is a moving picture of what science can do. It moves and how! But the amount of scientific principle I've seen wrapped up in most theatre air conditioning jobs I could easily put in my eye and not even have to blink it.

Men Out of Work

Oh, yes, I've seen plenty of science wrapped up in air conditioning apparatus, but it was put there by the factory. But the installation of good apparatus is so terrible in some cases I've seen that it seems whoever installed it must have gone to some kind of school to learn how to become expert at doing things the wrong way. Maybe I'm doing the wrong thing by talking to you so plainly, but I've reached the point where I just plain don't give a damn who gets sore at me for spouting the truth.

With all the competent engineers—men who know what it's all about—around the country needing work, it seems a shame to have to look at so many Jerry-built theatres. There certainly must be somebody around named "Jerry," and it's not me nor the other engineers nor the registered architects; and 94 per cent of the time it's not the manufacturers either. My stock advice to troubled theatre owners is: "Next time hire yourself an architect."

Sure, I'm hot. It took but two little drinks to break down my maiden-like reserve. I cussed out two plumbers and that was even before I had quaffed any beverage. Many a job I've cussed into place and somehow they seem to work the better for it.

I bought my car from a finance company, as who doesn't. Just yesterday I told the finance man, "Lookahere! I've bought four automobiles from you and what the h— have you bought from me? You need air conditioning in your office and if you don't have me put it in, you can sweat it out before you do any more business with me." Oh, I am a sweet and beguiling salesman when I think somebody needs a real selling jolt to wake him up.

The finance man said, "All right, put her in and if she don't work as good as your Zephyr, I'll be suing you." I told him that at least my apparatus wouldn't consume nearly so much oil as the thing on which he expects me to make regular monthly payments. I guess that held him for awhile.

So today came the plumber. Oh, how I like plumbers—Oh, how I do love plumbers —Oh, ————. Well, in their right place I do like some of them. Brother Plumber proceeded to connect the condensation drip line that carries the humidity away by gravity with the sewer end higher than the other one. Do you think I said, "Bless you, my child?" Not to this plumber, I didn't.

But getting back to my Zephyr. I wouldn't cast aspersions where they are not well justified. Henry Ford just recently gave me free gratis and for nothing one asserted twelfth of a dozen new engines completely installed, and for that he has my eternal friendship and good will. That's service. I got it—and I have the same brand to give you theatre owners. Henry and I run our business the same way. But he's got the cash and I've got the reputation. I'd like to swap my lot with Henry. Wouldn't you?

SIMMONS' Q-AND-A CORNER

Problems presented herein are bona fide and are not imaginary concoctions for the purpose of misrepresenting reader interest. Original signed letters are on file for examination, subject to the approval of correspondents.

So typical of conditions that confront many theatre owners who are really trying to do the right thing by air conditioning is the following letter from Missouri that we reproduce it here:

The Letter: "I have diligently read your articles in Boxoffice but failed to heed many of them due mostly to high pressure salesmanship being brought on me first handed then after finding out that their installations wouldn't work I would try to remodel them according to my own ideas in the vain attempt to salvage something of them.

"You see, I have been in the show business ever since two reels and two hundred film breaks constituted an evening's entertainment, so I have been browbeaten, bent, double-crossed, dented, kicked and cuffed around until I'm pulped like putty and so easily impressed by these high pressure salesmen in particular and all salesmen in general.

"The 5,000 gallon steel tank shown on the sketch I am enclosing reminds me of the fact that the experiment cost me around $1,300, and that's a hell of a lot of dough at our present grosses.

"You see this hot air salesman sold me a cold air job that turned out to be too hot to handle on a cool $1,300, so we folded.

"The idea was to cool the theatre with chemicals (salts) in the washer, then when the water became warm the salts were to be solidified and used over and over again. (We put a pump on the solution and you could see the salts form into solids again, but the expense of electrical energy ran the operation into real money, so I cooled off on the proposition and dropped it.)

"Now in a sort of rambling way I have that off my chest, I submit the enclosed sketches for your consideration and advice as how best to get service from the mess I now have on hand.

"Another thing I crave is information concerning the most satisfactory way to bring heat from the furnace (coal fired) into the auditorium. You will notice the present ducts are under the stage floor. This system has been in two years and has never given the satisfactory results that we formerly secured from the old system that blew the heated air into the auditorium eight feet above floor level. The difference exists probably in that the present blower on the furnace is a small one and it kicks on and off by thermostatic control, while the heat from the old furnace poured into the house by a 2,500 c.f.m. fan used in the cooling system but run at very slow speed while heating. (We very often had over-heated furnaces as the janitor would build a big fire and then forget to turn on the fan, so we installed the present outfit for that reason.)

"Here's another experiment we made: Tried to heat the house by hooking the present furnace into the duct that runs through the house at the ceiling level, but 'no soap.' Regardless of how hot we got the furnace we could go into the balcony where the duct ended and the air would be mildly warm only and we never could succeed in getting the place comfortable.

"The theatre is 110 feet long, 22 feet wide and will average about 17 feet high. Walls are of brick and concrete blocks, metal roof, ceiling of acoustic board. The building is exposed to the north at front and is in between buildings for the first 60 feet—50 feet of both sidewalls and rear wall are exposed to the weather. Seating capacity 400.

"We want to do some remodeling at the stage line while the weather is bad and business is slow, very slow, and would be glad to have your opinion concerning the location of the ducts that the apertures may be made in the proper places as the proscenium arch is built.

"Thanks now—or something else later, maybe.—J. F. R."

"P. S.—Since I'm a bear for experiments, how do you suggest handling the Silica Gel? I did intend to dive into that a little this season—it helps keep me busy and broke.—J. F. R."

My Response: "Of course I enjoyed reading your nice letter of the 13th, but tears came into my eyes as I read about your troubles. And I have a suspicion too that there is many another theatre owner who diligently reads these articles and then lets himself get sold some of this and some of that without getting much in the way of results for his money.

"But since you confess being an experimenter, and we must have them if there is to be any progress, permit me to say that I am an experimenter, too. But I do make my mistakes on paper and then rub them out, which is a less costly way to experiment.

"I want to compliment you on the nice drawings you sent. On them is all the information I could need to properly advise you. And I will be glad to do so, but I'd like to know first in which direction your experimental mind is inclined.

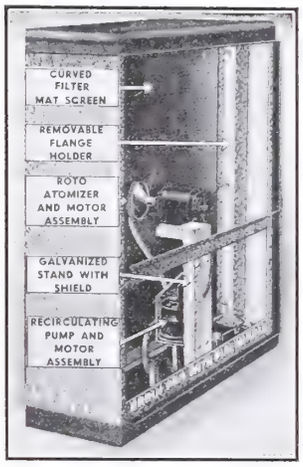
"Do you want something done in the orthodox way, or are you still seriously interested in something new?

"In any event, pull out your present air washer and throw it over your left shoulder when nobody is looking. Perhaps the casing can be used to house your cooling coils, so leave this much in place until I can figure your job closer.

"Your blower rated at 40,000 c.f.m. is large enough for a 400-seat theatre. Large enough to remove the ladies' hats without asking them to do so. 12,000 c.f.m. is enough, so you'll have to cut her down.

"I'd rather not mix the heating and cooling systems. So let's discuss the cooling first. Your 3 by 6 foot duct into the auditorium is big enough. Leave the main duct as is. But connect it into your 1 foot 6 inch by 4 foot duct in the ceiling not now being used. We should put some direct cooling into your balcony. If this duct is in the attic, insulate it with 4 inches of rockwool or equal. If suspended from the ceiling, don't bother. Cut the present 3 by 6 foot fan duct on right side of stage down to 3 by 3 feet and duplicate it on the other side of stage. Cover these openings with a special air diffuser grille I will select for you and which will cost $3.25 per square foot.

"I don't like your heating system but



Are You Confused?

The subject of Air Conditioning explained in common, non-technical every-day terms becomes less baffling to the man who wants to buy equipment. If you are confused regarding the application of air conditioning to your theatre, write a letter to Gordon H. Simmons, 926 N. Insulating Lath Has Peculiar Advantages

If the walls and ceilings of any portion of the theatre are to be plastered, specify a base that will give plus advantages. Modern insulating lath products meet the primary requirement of a good plaster base by providing an excellent bonding surface. It is claimed that such material will withstand a plaster pull of over 700 pounds per square foot—many more times the bonding strength needed. In addition, for the same cost, it builds into the walls and ceilings the approved modern insulation needed for the modern theatre.

Sound as well as heat insulation is provided in such material, for noise like heat has difficulty in penetrating a closely knit fibre structure. Thus street noises are minimized and the passage of annoying sounds from one part of the house to another is practically eliminated.

Insulating lath has the hearty approval of lathers and plasterers alike since it goes up easily, bends around moderate curves without breaking and insures an interior permanently free from ugly, disfiguring lath marks. Moreover, it reduces the chance of plaster cracking by providing a continuous uninterrupted plaster base.

Outmoded and worn theatre seats are hard on you as well as your patrons, and they're certainly not conducive to "repeat" business. This intimate piece of theatre equipment should by all means be kept comfortable and up-to-date.

hesitate to recommend at such long distance. If you want to buy me some gasoline, I could come out there and nose out what should be done about this. Didn't get my vacation this year so am looking for a friend to 'spring me.'

"Now you've got the 'makins' of a good job. If you can get a well with 58 degree water or less, a set of coils and a filter is all the apparatus you need. Of course, a couple of controls are nice, but naturally hand operation is what nearly everybody to date has. I only stick them on my de luxe jobs.

"Hope to get another human interest letter out of you and if you grant permission and my editor is willing, I'd like to publish your first letter in my 'Q-and-A Corner.' Theatre owners would get a chuckle out of it, and it does vindicate some of my preachments. More later after I hear from you about the possibility of a well. Then too, I'll tell you more about this Silica Gel. She's a honey, if you know how to handle her.—G. H. S."

A Haven of Relief for Overheated Puppies

What is said to be one of the most popular practical features of the 1940 World's Fair, believe it or not, resulted from a woman's ramblings about the Fair grounds last August.

It's the "Cold Dog Stand," or foot cooler, a new attraction at the Carrier Igloo, where walk-weary fairgoers will be able to air condition and soothe their burning bunions in between tramps from the Trylon and Perisphere to Brazil, France, Poland and the nearest exit.

One of the failings of last year's exposition, critics agree, was lack of the "woman's touch." First impression was of massive structures, gigantic statues and wide open spaces in between.

Margaret Ingels, only woman air conditioning engineer at the Syracuse plant of the Carrier Corporation, came to New York on one of the hottest days last summer and started out to see the sights. After several hours, she dragged her tired feet into the Carrier exhibit.

"I don't think anything has ever looked or felt quite so good to me as that chair I flopped into," she smiled today. "My feet were burning like hot coals. The idea hit me then. Why not 'air condition' the hot 'dogs' at the Fair next year."

Back in Syracuse, she started putting her ideas on paper. Several rough sketches she had made fell into the hands of J. I. Lyle, president of the company. He called her into his office.

As a result, the elaborate "throne," which will hold three persons at a time, was planned. It's the "hot foot" in reverse. Judging from last year's foot troubles, this "citadel to foot comfort" at the Igloo should do a land-office business.

Effective Air Distribution and the Decorative Point of View

gineer or ventilating contractor engaged to remodel the existing system of air distribution in any theatre should be instructed to investigate the possibility of applying the new and improved air distributing devices, before undertaking costly revisions in the existing duct system.

PRELIMINARY PRECAUTIONS

The engineer or air conditioning contractor, in considering changes in an existing air handling system should:

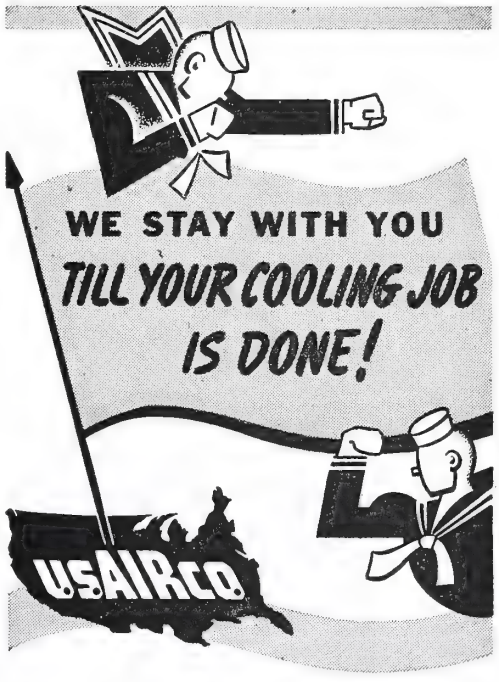
1. Check supply fan for adequate air handling capacity.

2. Modernize air filtering system to provide clean air.

3. Change air distributing system in the theatre, making use of the most effective, scientifically designed air outlets available.

4. Estimate the cost of summer cooling by the least expensive methods for the locality; evaporative, cold water, refrigeration, or a combination of these.

5. Estimate the cost of an evaporative condenser or cooling tower, where water costs are an important consideration.



Roof Insulation an Economy Provision

Adequate insulation of built-up roofs is of the utmost importance, from the standpoint of air conditioning efficiency, fuel economy and protection to the roof itself. Rigid roof insulating boards effectively retard the passage of heat through the roof and by preventing condensation protect the roof deck against rot and corrosion. Applied in layers over the deck to give the required insulating efficiency, use of the product becomes an investment which returns dividends in fuel savings, comfort for the customers, and freedom from maintenance worries throughout the normal life of the roof.

Room Ventilators as Auxiliary Equipment

For managers' offices, projection and rest rooms or various ante-rooms in the theatre, a room ventilator is a complete, compact, portable, inexpensive means of providing positive ventilation, air cleaning and outside noise elimination. It fits any window, is quickly, easily installed, uses very little current, and its design, color and finish can be happily combined for pleasing appearance.

Unaffected by outside weather conditions, a good room ventilator supplies a clean, fresh, quiet, invigorating atmosphere the year around for any desired room. Simple, finger-tip control enables instant mixing of inside and outside air in any desired proportion.

To get comfort cooling that delivers results at the box office, you need good equipment and competent, experienced engineering. USAIRCO manufactures a complete line of cooling equipment, blowers, air washers, cold water cooling cores, refrigeration. And with this equipment it delivers an engineering service which builds up a cooling system to meet your specific needs.

When you put your cooling job up to USAIRCO, you're sure you're going to get the results you want. That's our record in 16 years of theatre cooling. We guarantee satisfaction. For complete information on low cost cooling, write USAIRCO.

AREN'T THOSE COLOR SCENES Beautiful JOHN!

● I never saw anything more realistic in any theatre. In fact, all the pictures in this theatre are so much better than they used to be. Am I imagining things?

No, Mary, Mr. Robinson, the Manager of this theatre, is a friend of mine and he told me that they have recently installed a new type of projection light known as the "One Kilowatt" High Intensity arc. This new light is designed especially for the small theatres. It is a snow white light like daylight and there is half again as much light on the screen as they had formerly. That's why the pictures are so natural and easy to look at.

All I can say, John, is that it's wonderful and believe me I am going to tell my friends about it. Mr. Robinson is to be congratulated for his progressiveness.

Paramount Has Banished "B's," Barney Balaban Tells Press

NEW YORK—Elimination of "B" pictures on Paramount's 1940-41 schedule "has now been translated into action," declared Barney Balaban, president, during a trade press interview at the Hotel Astor. To demonstrate how this has been accomplished, Balaban had Y. Frank Freeman, executive production head, come on from the coast and explain. Besides these two, others at the luncheon were Neil F. Agnew, sales manager; his three division heads, Charles Reagan, Oscar Morgan and J. J. Unger; Robert F. Gillham, director of publicity and advertising, Al Wilkie and Herb Berg.

Reduced to simple terms, the process Freeman has in mind is to take the money normally expended on flat rental, average program pictures and use it to strengthen the company's top group, largely on the predication that only in rare instances do flat rental films "stand out," and, secondly, because they contribute to double billing—a practice held by the production chief to be the blame for "wasting story material."

Thus, Paramount will drop about 12 "B" films and concentrate on about 38 first line productions. But lest the exhibitor get the impression all he need do when these "extra value" films come along is to sit back and watch the crowds storm his theatre, let him consider his responsibility, Freeman declared. And these are his words: "We do not have enough money to produce pictures and also sell them to the public. The exhibitor must take some of the burden and responsibility away from the producers—assuming the pictures are good. The producers can't carry both loads on his shoulders. The exhibitor must stop relying on producers to put the pictures over for him. We are at the crossroads—producer and exhibitor alike—and whether we succeed or fail may be decided in the next 12 months. The exhibitor must regard himself as a partner if he expects to get the sort of product we must now produce almost entirely for the domestic market."

Balaban observed that as long as the current system of production is responsible for an oversupply of pictures and exhibitors are under pressure from distributors for playdates "they won't do anything different than they have ever done." But, on the other hand, if fewer and better films come out of Hollywood this might lead to more showmanship and possibly longer runs. Ultimately, if all producers followed a "fewer and better" course, he said, duals might pass into extinction.

"Better merchandising" of product by theatre operators overtoned most of Freeman's remarks He estimated the total individual bookings each year runs to about 15,000,000 If by creative showmanship exhibitors were able to net an average increase of $5 on each of these bookings "it would answer the problem." The top national gross in this country and Canada, with "very few" exceptions is about $1,600,000, he declared. This figure is based on the present system of admissions. In order to retrieve the negative cost, plus distribution, advertising and cost of prints, the producer must get back "50 per cent more than he put into the picture," and this is without any thought to profit, he added.

Therefore, he concluded, it is incumbent upon the exhibitor to exercise greater ingenuity in selling pictures to the public, because "whether Hollywood makes more or fewer pictures the cost does not come down for top grade talent—the chances are it will go up if fewer are made" and success of fewer but better films rests with the exhibitor, "for his own salvation."

Gold Medal—

For "signal achievement" among architects under 35, is presented William L. Pereira (left) by R. Van Buren Livingstone, national president of Scarab Architectural Fraternity. Pereira is the 30-year-old designer of Paramount's projected new $15,000,000 studio, a panoramic conception of which is visible in the background.

Monogram Adds Six To High Bracket

An additional six of Monogram's 50-picture schedule for 1940-41 are to be boosted into top budget allocation, giving the company ten high bracket films instead of the original four, according to an announcement by President W. Ray Johnson.

Three of them — "Gypsy Cavalier," "Black Stallion" and "College Sweetheart" —will be filmed in color. The remaining specials will include "The Ape," "Under Northern Lights," "Freckles Comes Home," "Hoosier Schooldays," "Sign of the Wolf," "Trail of the Yukon" and "Her Father's Daughter."

Independent Production Ahead at Lively Clip

Paralleling conditions at the major studios, independent production continues at a lively clip, with indications the pace will continue throughout the summer.

For Columbia release and working on the Columbia lot, Ben Hecht has launched "Before I Die," starring Douglas Fairbanks jr., with Hecht directing. The unit was organized only a short time ago. Also for Columbia release, Robert Sherwood is due to start "Legacy," with Warner Baxter starred, within a few weeks.

Still another independent unit, the Frank Capra-Robert Riskin organization, is to give the go-signal to "The Life of John Doe" July 8. It will be distributed by Warner.

RKO Radio spokesmen have confirmed that Richard Dix, who wound up his acting commitment with the completion of "Men Against the Sky," intends to set up an independent production unit to make three pictures yearly, starring himself, for major release. Dix currently is starring in Harry Sherman's Paramount western, "Cherokee Strip."

As "ATAHT" Made Its Debut—

Among distinguished film colonists who attended the world premiere at the Carthay Circle of "All This, and Heaven Too" were Frank and Mrs. Capra and Harry and Mrs. Warner (top scene), and Elsa Maxwell and Jack L. and Mrs. Warner (lower view).

Ballyhoo Artists Finally Get a Breathing Spell

With studio communiques all adhering to the "all quiet" vein for the time being, a well-earned rest is being enjoyed by filmdom's exploiteers who, during the past few months, have been working ceaselessly on the task of arranging formal premieres and lavishly ballyhooed previews of Hollywood product throughout the nation.

Present schedules do not list another such event until Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner" makes its formal debut in Fort Worth, Tex., in August in conjunction with that city's annual "Casa Manana" celebration. This will be followed in September by the world premiere of Frank Lloyd's Columbia production, "The Howards of Virginia," in Richmond, Va. Being planned for Thanksgiving Day in Ottawa, Canada, is the premiere of Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount production, "Northwest Mounted Police."

Warner and Metro Race "Calamity Jane" Opus

With two studios currently making preparations to film a feature around "Calamity Jane," celebrated two-gun gal of the early west, indications are a race to bring the subject to the screen will be precipitated, with neither entrant as yet showing signs of dropping the vehicle off schedule.

First to make the announcement was Warner, which plans to star Bette Davis and has assigned Jerry Wald and Richard Macaulay to prepare the script. Second entrant is M-G-M, which has handed the title role in its version to Ann Sothern.

"Our Town" Week—

When Sol Lesser's United Artists production, "Our Town," had its western premiere at the Four Star in Los Angeles, Mayor Fletcher Bowron proclaimed an "Our Town" week and urged citizens to take time out for a "revaluation . . . of our town." Mayor Bowron (left) here presents the original copy of the proclamation to Lesser and Guy Kibbee.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S lawsuit against the publishers of Life may prove unfortunate for all concerned. Chaplin essays to recover $1,000,000 for damages he contends he suffered when the widely-circulated magazine printed a portrait of him in character for his role in "Production No. 6," which the veteran comedian charges the magazine obtained without his permission. Chaplin asserts its publication was in violation of civil rights and that it will cause irreparable damage to the potential revenue, estimated at $5,000,000, which he expects from the picture, because it will largely destroy the publicity campaign he had planned for it.

Quite probably the comedian-producer's action has considerable basis of merit, from a legal standpoint. Undoubtedly he sought the very best available legal advice before initiating the litigation. Further in evidence of the strength of his position is the fact that Judge John C. Knox granted an injunction restraining the distribution of 1,200,000 copies of the magazine containing the offending shot, and which were delivered to the news stands with that page removed.

Viewing the situation from a policy perspective, however, poses a question as to possible damaging repercussions to the industry through the restriction—if not complete elimination—of an extremely valuable and important publicity outlet.

Under normal procedure, ambitious publicity men are only too pleased to make stills from motion pictures available to publications almost the minute the feature goes into production. In fact, they resort to every conceivable device in their efforts to have such stills appear in print—early and often.

As a result of this mad scramble for space, the columns of Life, because of the magazine's large circulation and great reader interest, have become one of the most desirable objectives toward which Hollywood publicists direct their offensives. Let an orchid purveyor plant one of his studio's productions in Life as "the picture of the week," and he takes bows for months to follow.

For some unexplained reason Chaplin reversed the normal procedure in connection with his current photoplay, variously known as "The Dictators" and "Production No. 6."

Perhaps he believed that withholding information about the exact contents of the feature would whet the public's appetite and curiosity. Perhaps he was not sure of the ultimate fate and future of the comedy in the face of rapidly-changing world conditions and the status of dictators.

Apparently the curiosity-whetting reaction manifested itself in the case of the editors of Life, who scooped the world by reproducing in a full page a photograph of Chaplin in the uniform he wears in the picture. To what means the editors resorted to secure the still have not been officially disclosed. Regardless, their enterprise has precipitated them into a million-dollar lawsuit.

It would be entirely understandable if the magazine should henceforth close its columns to any and all art from Hollywood. Again, general fourth estate reaction to the lawsuit might result in editors of other publications become wary of and antagonistic to the film capital photographs with which the studio praiseries are constantly besieging them.

In such an event, the men who are responsible for keeping the public sold on motion pictures and those who make them will find their efforts seriously hampered.

BALLYHOODLUMS: Leo's tom-tom beaters are apparently proud of having established "some sort of a pictorial record for screen stars when the Ripon Weekly Press printed a total of 56 pictures of Spencer Tracy in a single issue on the occasion of his returning to Ripon College to receive the honorary degree of doctor of dramatic arts." Probably a picture for every reader, which is some sort of a record indeed . . . Badly in need of some sound public relations advice is Carole Landis. Close on the heels of her "the-ping-girl-because-she-makes-you-purr" fiasco, she rates black headlines in connection with a suit seeking $50,000 damages from her because a clothing firm charges, she broke a contract permitting the use of her name and poses of her in bathing suits for advertising purposes. The comely Miss Landis will soon be pressing Constance Bennett for honors as Hollywood's most bickering femme . . . Two current and excellent lines from Paramount's advertising-publicity department prove the Marathon streeters are devoting their best attention to something besides war news: "Kiss the 'B's' Goodbye" and "It Should be 'The Gross Breakers' Instead of 'The Ghost Breakers'." . . . In making preview arrangements, the blurbists are showing good judgment by substituting cartoons for the newsreels which usually precede a debuting feature. Certainly the mirthful antics of Mickey Mouse, Porky Pig, et al., are more conducive to receptive moods on the part of reviewers than are scenes of Herr Hitler's straffing of innocents.

Opulent, Operetta, Omnifarious

Hollywood's reviewing battalion was subjected to a bit of strafing last week, having been literally bombarded with celluloid. In both quantity and quality, it was the most important preview week in the past several months.

Of first importance, of course, was Warner's roadshow attraction, "All This, and Heaven Too." Without doubt the most significant and expensive film effort yet made this year, this picturization of Rachel Field's widely-read novel easily earns a permanent niche among the screen's dramatic successes, one whose excellence in every department will certainly be rewarded by universal acclaim. Casey Robinson closely adhered to the highly emotional theme of the original in his screenplay, his work contributing its share toward richly fulfilling the extravagant promise of a $2,000.000 expenditure. Equally important factors are Anatole Litvak's superlative direction, David Lewis' lavish and meticulous production guidance, and the work of the cast—which, down to the least important bits, was obviously selected with shrewdness and finesse.

As first-line features there were RKO Radio's "Tom Brown's School Days" and Metro's "New Moon." The former, steeped in the tradition of nineteenth century England, is a faithful, beautifully mounted rendition of the famous novel of British school life by Thomas Hughes; created with such artistry that it literally bristles with dramatic and interest-sustaining qualities. Producers Gene Towne and Graham Baker have a soundly-manufactured vehicle to their credit, in which the work of Director Robert Stevenson, as well as that of Walter Ferris, Frank Cavett and the two producers, all of whom had a hand in the scripting, stand out with particular brilliance. The comparatively simple story has the picturesque appeal of a fine

Major Production Lags a Bit; 48 Before Cameras

Production pace at the major plants is lagging a bit, with 48 features and two serials in work, of which 12 are new starts.

For Columbia Ben Hecht gunned "Before I Die," while a Charles Starrett western, "Thundering Frontier," and a Larry Darmour chapter-play, "Deadwood Dick," also went before the cameras. Metro held to a five-picture pace. Monogram gunned "Rainbow on the Range" and "Shadows Over Chinatown," at the same time completing "Boys of the City," to emerge with three in production.

Paramount has five in work. "There's Magic in Music" and "Cherokee Strip" are newcomers. Going into the cutting room was "Rangers of Fortune." RKO Radio's total dropped to five with the completion of "One Crowded Night" and "Men Against the Sky." Republic gunned a serial, "King of the Royal Mounted," and two features, "Oklahoma Outlaws" and "The Impostor." "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot" and "The Ranger and the Lady" were completed, leaving the studio with five, including the serial, in production.

Also tapering to five was 20th Century-Fox, where "Charlie Chan in the Wax Museum" was completed. Two are in work for United Artists. Universal gunned two new ones.

Yates East After Product Parley

Having spent several weeks at the North Hollywood studio, huddling with M. J. Siegel and other executives on schedules and budgets for the 1940-41 season, Republic's chairman of the board, Herbert J. Yates, has returned to New York by plane. The program charted for the company under Yates' supervision is the most extensive, in point of both quantity and expenditures, in Republic's history.

Jules Levey has also gone to New York, his object a series of conferences with William Scully, Universal sales manager, regarding the campaign to be shaped for Levey's "The Boys From Syracuse." It goes into release August 2 as Levey's initial independent production venture. It is his intention to tour the key cities to aid in selling the film, returning here early in September.

Howard Dietz, Metro's advertising-publicity director, who arrived last week from New York, plans to stay here for about two months. He treks east July 1 for a short visit, returning to the coast almost immediately.

Joseph M. Schenck has returned to his desk at 20th-Fox after two weeks in New etching, of which many of its superbly-photographed sequences are reminiscent.

"New Moon" is aptly tailored to successfully reunite Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy as queen and king of screen operetta, marshaling all of the entertainment elements which made their previous co-starring efforts so successful at the box-office. This one is sure to approach those past records unless the duo has lost its former wide appeal; and the sincerity and excellence of the Eddy-MacDonald delineations seems to preclude that possibility. Robert Z. Leonard, who both produced and directed, is to be applauded for a welcome restraint in his fulfillment of both assignments. Jacques Deval and Robert Arthur wrote a colorful screenplay from the celebrated Oscar Hammerstein-Sigmund Romberg - Frank Mandel - Laurence Schwab operetta.

Two found their way into the highly satisfactory program classification, Metro's "The Captain Is a Lady" and RKO Radio's "Pop Always Pays." The first-named is a compact comedy-drama that will be found entirely serviceable as supporting material in de luxe showings and a top-bracket entry in neighborhood houses. Charles Coburn makes his usual excellent impression in the title role; Harry Clork concocted a thoroughly enjoyable script from a play by Rachel Crothers and a book by Louise Forsslund, and both Producer Frederick Stephani and Director Robert B. Sinclair accounted for themselves well.

A welcome throwback to the days when a pie in the face was the acme in humor, "Pop Always Pays" is slapstick at its most hilarious, providing the rubber-legged Leon Errol with an opportunity to to do some 14-karat mugging and steal the show away from the rest of the hard-working cast. Charles Roberts, working from a story by Arthur J. Beckhard, whipped up a script that is nothing more or less than a chain of ludicrous gag situations, timed to the minute in Leslie Goodwins' direction. Bert Gilroy functioned as the producer.

Just more pictures included Paramount's "Queen of the Mob" and RKO Radio's "Anne of Windy Poplars." The Paramount entry offers no surprises as straight gangster melodrama, adequately put together and portrayed, but likely to get no further than the action houses. William R. Lipman and Horace McCoy, collaborating on the scenario, adhered to routine development throughout, basing their efforts on a book by G-Man J. Edgar Hoover. Production by Edward T. Lowe and direction by James Hogan are up to par.

Only those who must have their entertainment of the saccharine-sweet variety are going to get much pleasure out of "Anne of Windy Poplars." To remaining theatre-goers it will undoubtedly be found cloying, pointless, over-produced and, in short, a sticky mess. Those who turned it out were apparently reluctant to discard a lot of footage which might better have been dispensed with. Jack Hively directed and Cliff Reid was the producer.

Military Films Obtain Toehold at Studios

Addition of a number of vehicles attuned to the rapidly-growing interest in things military, plus at least two gestures tending to contradict the general wave of curtailment in film-making expenditures, are the latest factors re-shaping Hollywood's summer production schedules.

In the former category Warner added "50,000 Pilots" to its lineup, basing the story on the nation's new defense program calling for a heavy increase in our air strength, turning the idea over to Producer Edmund Grainger for development. Twentieth Century-Fox announced that "Sergeant Sam Dreben, U. S. A.," biography of a famous World War soldier, will go into production July 8, in which action it is jumping the gun on Jesse L. Lasky, who is preparing "The Amazing Story of Sergeant York" for a late summer start on the Warner lot.

Prior to his departure for New York Herbert J. Yates, chairman of the board at Republic, called a meeting of the North Hollywood plant's producers, directors, associates and other production personnel at which he assured them there are to be no layoffs and no change in the 1940-41 schedule, most opulent in the company's history. Another note of optimism came from the Hal Roach lot in Culver City when it was announced more than $300,000 has been added to the "Captain Caution" budget, lengthening the shooting schedule and augmenting the marine footage. Thus the United Artists release will now represent an investment of well over $1,000,000.

Yates declared Republic's next big-budgeter will be "The Lady From New Orleans," and announced the forthcoming Gene Autry western, "Melody Ranch," will be turned out on an appropriation fully three times as great as that usually allotted the Autry sagebrushers.

Indicative of the general speedy production pace among major and independent alike is the fact that General Service, rental studio, is crowded to the limit. Edward Small, Harry Sherman, Frank Lloyd and Alexander Korda all have shooting space there and are in action.

In order to place the second Kay Kyser starrer, as yet unnamed, in work by July 15, RKO Radio has shelved "Blood Will Tell" until a later date. Both vehicles are to be produced and directed by David Butler.

Otherwise schedules at most studios remain virtually unchanged, the lineups constituting an unbroken string throughout the summer months.

At Processing Peak

Cinecolor, Inc., has reached its processing peak with four film companies shooting five pictures for processing on single-coated stock. Firms include the Vancouver Motion Picture Co., Classical Film Corp., Paul Hoeffler and Paramount's Popular Science and Unusual Occupations shorts.

REVIEW FLASHES

CAPTAIN IS A LADY, THE (M-G-M)—A snug little comedy which will do yeoman's service in the niche for which it was produced, namely, supporting fare at the deluxers and top billing in neighborhood showings. Charles Coburn, flanked by a bevy of tried and true character actresses, is featured as a salty, retired sea captain who is the only male inmate of an old ladies' home. His characterization is up to his usual high thespic standard. Frederick Stephani produced; Robert S. Sinclair directed.

QUEEN OF THE MOB (Para)—Adhering to routine as a gangster melodrama in every respect, this is aimed for consumption by the action houses. The production displays some measure of class but the story, based on material supplied by J. Edgar Hoover, holds no surprises. Cast is adequate. Edward T. Lowe produced; James Hogan directed.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Central Casting Reports Extra Placements Down

Despite a reported improvement in job distribution, whereby 20 per cent more work has been given qualified extras rather than to occasional players, Central Casting Corp. has reported a 25 per cent decrease in placements for extras during the first five months of 1940 as compared to a similar period in 1939. Only 88,035 jobs were handed out, a decrease of more than 33,000 as compared to the 121,249 placements made in the first five months of 1939. Earnings took a corresponding nosedive, standing at $1,000,720 for 1940 and $1,253,004 for 1939. Although in previous years there has always been a definite increase in May, June and July, Central's report disclosed that pattern is not being followed this year.

Pursuing his plan to skeletonize his production organization until his differences with United Artists have been disposed of in one way or another, Samuel Goldwyn has released Edwin Knopf from his contract as a production executive after a year of service. Knopf, former M-G-M studio story chief, will announce a new affiliation shortly. Goldwyn has also arranged for the loanout of all other contractees save Actress Doris Davenport. Walter Brennan has been borrowed by Warner; Cinematographer Gregg Toland goes to RKO Radio; Cameraman Rudy Mate is at Universal; William Wyler is directing Warner's "The Letter," and other Goldwyn employes have been farmed out to various studios.

Kohlmar Gets "Brothers"

Twentieth Century-Fox has assigned Fred Kohlmar the production reins on "Brothers."

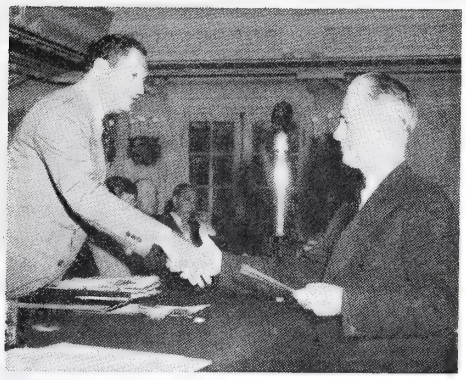
York on personal and company business, bringing back with him the report that fully 75 per cent of the foreign market has been wiped out beyond hope of restitution. Also checking in at the studio was Herman Wobber, general sales manager for the company. His itinerary will include a tour of 20th Century-Fox's western exchanges, where he will outline the company's 52-picture program for 1940-41 in detail to the sales personnel.

Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president in charge of studio operations, returned June 20 from New York, where he spent a few days in conference with homeoffice executives. Boris Morros, head of the recently-formed National Pictures Corp., went east to huddle with Paramount officials regarding the two pictures he will make for Paramount release—the initialer, "Second Chorus," and "The American Vagabond."

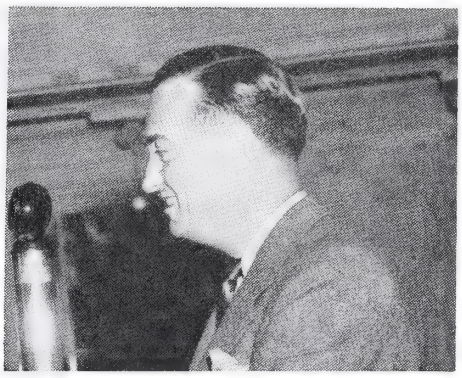
Bearing a print of "Tom Brown's School Days," for RKO Radio release, which opened June 20 at the Radio City Music Hall, Gene Towne, of The Play's the Thing Productions, checked out for New York. Max Gordon and Harry Goetz, who have an RKO Radio distribution deal for their independent unit, came in from Gotham and have gone into conference with executives of the Gower Street plant regarding their next vehicle. No decision has yet been reached as to whether "The American Way," shelved some time ago, will be placed back on the Gordon-Goetz schedule to follow their initialer, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

Ben Goetz, former M-G-M British production head, is at the Culver City studio conferring with Louis B. Mayer and other officials concerning his future status. The last picture made by Metro under his supervision in London was the Robert Montgomery starrer, "Busman's Honeymoon."



Ed Peskay, Hal Roach's New York representative, is huddling here with Roach regarding distribution plans for "Captain Caution."

"Deadwood Dick" Is Next Columbia Serial



Larry Darmour's next serial for Columbia release will be "Deadwood Dick," based on the traditional hero of the dime novels of the early 1900's. George Morgan, Wyndham Gittens and Mark Leyton wrote the script, which James Horne is directing.

Hornblow's Next

Arthur Hornblow jr. has been assigned to produce "The General Came to Stay," an unpublished novel by Dalton Trumbo, for Paramount as a contribution to the studio's 1940-41 program. William Holden will be featured.

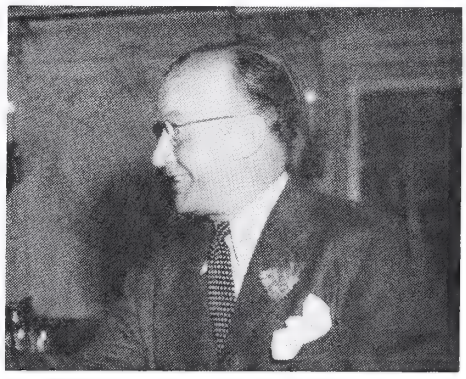
Poole Returns From A Visit in Frisco

LOS ANGELES—After four days in San Francisco, Robert H. Poole, executive secretary of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, returned June 21 to his desk as executive director of the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz. His jaunt northward was more or less in the nature of a routine junket during which he conferred with officials of the Northern California ITO on PCCITO matters.

His trip delayed for the second time the projected meeting of the ITO's directorate, at which Hugh Bruen, the organization's delegate to the Congressional hearings on the Neely bill, will present a full report of what happened in Washington during the sessions.

Another Try to Reopen The Rialto in Seattle

SEATTLE—Another attempt to open the Rialto, license of which was revoked several months ago by the city council on petition of the theatre censor board, was made before the council license committee.



Al Solomon, First Avenue business man, asked for a license, but the chairman of the committee referred him to the censor board, saying the council probably will not grant a license unless the board approves.

Ricketson to Supervise FWC's Montana Houses

LOS ANGELES—Rick Ricketson, Fox West Coast divisional manager headquartering in Denver, has been handed jurisdiction over all FWC houses in Montana by Charles P. Skouras, president of the circuit. Ricketson formerly supervised theatres in eastern Montana, with the 11 houses now added to his string having been operated out of the local office here.

S' FRANCISCO

THE Davies Theatre has re-installed Ten-O-Win on a seven nights per week basis. M. L. Markowitz, operator of the house, had used the cash giveaway game for over three years until a few weeks ago when he decided to eliminate all games and rely on pictures alone to bring in customers. After two weeks of a straight picture policy, the game was brought back to jack up a sagging boxoffice.

Leo Carrillo will be master of ceremonies for the Los Angeles County Day at the Fair, June 22. The popular star will lead Sheriff Eugene Biscailus' posse and probably the 160th National Guard. A large official delegation will also include Tom Mix, Buck Jones and Lewis Stone . . . Ad Ramish and Lou Rosen of the Royal Amusement Co. were guests of William Citron before embarking for Honolulu on a combined business and pleasure trip . . . Granville McPherson is having the National Theatre Supply do a bit of renovation on his Portola in Portola.

Clarence Gabriel, genial manager of the President for the past three years, is now filling the same capacity at the Crystal in Salinas . . . Ed Bauer of National Theatre Supply is having no trouble keeping his chin up these days. Said chin is strapped in a leather gadget as a result of Ed's recent illness . . . Milt Nelson of the Harvey Amusement circuit has deserted the main office for two weeks or more in Angel's Camp . . . Chris Peters, age 12, is parading a swell new horse given to him for graduation by his dad, Bill. The elder Peters operates the theatre in Manteca.

Claiming an all-time attendance record for any theatrical enterprise on the Pacific Coast, Billy Rose's Aquacade played to 300,000 persons during the first 20 days of the Fair. This is 33 per cent of the total number of persons to pass through the entrance turnstiles . . . Beverly Miller and wife from Kansas City were Row visitors this week. Miller is in the premium business and a former exhibitor . . . Jesse Shlyen from the BOXOFFICE *home office in Kansas City was in town, bringing with him his bride of two weeks . . . LOOKS like summer is here to stay, or rather the heat. Old Sol is keeping up his batting average and playing favorites with outdoor amusements while the showshops take it on the chin . . . Conventions are still draining Filmrow. With the return of Neal Walton, Ray Ackles, Keith Beckwith and Bill Kostenbader from the Columbia gathering in Chicago, we see Bill Shartin, Art Gollofon and Cy Young starting to Chicago to attend the Warner Bros. meet . . . Eddie Rivers turning movie producer. He made a special picture, "The Class of 1940," which featured all the students in the various high schools. The film was tied up with the Bon Marche department store and is being shown at the Paramount. Hats off for a good exploitation gag, Eddie.

Speaking of exploitation, Fred Ford has joined the Seattle branch of RKO and will campaign forthcoming productions. He replaces Lew Marin, who resigned to join United Artists in Los Angeles . . . LeRoy Johnson, general manager of the Jensen-von Herberg circuit, announces that the house recently leased and now being remodeled in Renton is expected to be ready for opening by July 4. A contest is to be conducted among Renton residents for naming the theatre. House will seat 500 . . . Aldeen Hawk, for many years with Warner, has left with her hubby to make residence in San Francisco. Aldeen tried to say "goodbye" to everyone, so for those she missed, there it is.

Preparations are now being made for the annual golf tournament to be held by the Northwest Film Club. Tentative date has been set for July 17 and it is expected that a deal will be worked out with the Inglewood Country Club to hold the contest which will wind up with a dinner dance . . . Gene Groesbeck, the Enumclaw exhibitor, won himself a trophy playing golf at Hayden Lake . . . This week finds C. B. Gustafon, Filmrow auditor, and his wife, Maxine, off to Hollywood for their vacation; likewise Stan Gottstein of National Screen Service . . . Spending their vacation in the northwest are Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smoot of Salt Lake City. Perry is head booker at the Fox exchange . . . Selom Burns of RCA is proudly exhibiting a medal awarded him for safe driving. The medal, card and check were presented by an insurance company . . . Mel Sohns of Kirkland is passing out the cigars. It's a boy.

John Lee of Ephrata, visiting on the Row, says his new Margo Theatre will be ready for opening about the middle of July . . . After spending the past week here, Art Aronson, district manager of National Screen and Accessories, has left for California . . . Art Huot telling that his grandson, born to Vern and Eleanor Egenes, has been named Craig Richard Egenes . . . Will Sheffield of Canton, N. C., is visiting his brother, J. T. Sheffield. He is accompanied by his wife, and it is their first visit to this part of the country. While here they took a two-day trip to Victoria and Vancouver.

Eddie Walton, back from that trip east of the mountains, tells that many exhibitors in that territory are coming in for the annual Filmrow picnic, among them Mildred Bishop of Lewiston, Idaho, and Milburn Kenworthy of Moscow, Idaho . . . Helen Swanson, stenographer at 20th Century-Fox exchange, will be married June 22 to Harold Gibson, a "non-professional" . . . Mrs. John Hamrick has returned from Astoria, Ore. Her sister, whose illness called her there, is much improved . . . Evelyn Oxtoby up from California and spending a week with her mother, Mrs. Robert Fundenberg, in Portland . . . Frankie Peacock is busy entertaining her sister, Mrs. W. S. Lawson of Lethbridge, Canada.

Maury Saffle, L. J. McGinley and Bill Shartin formed a trio of proud dads who watched their children graduate from Queen Anne High School at the Civic Auditorium, the youngsters being Maurice Saffle, Evelyn McGinley and Geri Shartin . . . Word from the south tells that Bill Dover, for years with Darryl Zanuck at 20th Century-Fox but recently in New York, has become an associate of the Feldman-Blum Agency in Hollywood . . . Bill Saal, top publicity man for Republic, is expected in the northwest in the near future to handle special personal appearances . . . J. T. Sheffield hosted a party of 16 at a private screening of "Wagons Westward" and entertained them later at the Film Club . . . A large Seattle delegation attended the opening of Bill Ripley's new theatre in Kelso.

Exhibitors in this week included Billy Hartford, Everett; O. T. The latter has been transferred to Minneapolis.

PORTLAND

THE "Barrel of Gold" quiz night feature has outgrown the Oriental and hereafter will be staged simultaneously in the Hollywood as well as on its regular Wednesday schedule. Both audiences join in competing for the weekly grand prize by means of telephonic communication between the two houses. Minor awards are duplicated. Last Wednesday was "Merchants' Night" at the Hollywood, the prizes including an electric refrigerator, a bedroom set, grocery orders, gasoline and others put up by business houses. Expansion of the quiz program added to the audience and the size of the pots.

Ruling over the sixth annual Shakespearean festival at Ashland in August as "Queen Elizabeth," 19-year-old Mary Elizabeth Shreve and her court of three princesses have scheduled a tour of the state, to be climaxed by a special appearance before Governor Sprague at Salem . . . Robert W. Earl is the new president of Portland Civic Theatre, following elections last week. Jack Kloepper is a trustee . . . Speaking of elections, it's a third term, without a dissenting vote, for Arlinton B. Crum as president of the Actors Club of Oregon.

It was no surprise to the doorman when the woman with the three shabbily dressed children presented four tickets such as merchants give away for a Saturday morning cooperative show, but these particular tickets had long since expired. The doorman balanced the cost of four admissions against the painful task of turning the family away, and hesitated only briefly. This family enjoyed the picture tremendously. They rarely attended the movies, and were not critical. But then, the woman lost her purse in the theatre, and it contained her last two dollars and a half. Not a trace of it could be found, but the next day word was sent to the woman to call and identify her property. The new, white purse they showed her, she sadly admitted, was not her own, but the usherette knew better. For, inside, was two dollars and a half and an order for groceries. There could be no mistake. Doormen and usherettes are softies.

JENNE DODGE opened her new Mayfair in Ventura, June 18, giving her two houses in that locality . . . Fox West Coast has reopened its State, dark since 1937, in Redlands, planning to operate it on a 15-cent admission scale in conjunction with the circuit's Redlands Theatre.

An amateur photo exhibition in the lobby of Manager Tom Soriero's United Artists Theatre down town is attracting considerable attention. Soriero has effected a tieup with the Los Angeles Photographic Dealers Ass'n, through which 40 prizes are being offered to amateur camera fans by eight leading photographic supply houses . . . Alettie Hanseth, secretarial worker at Fox West Coast, is recovering at her home from fractures received in a fall.

Booking visitors: Ben Mohi, Century and Princess; Judge LeRoy Pawley, Desert, Indio . . . Lorraine Gaertner of the El Rancho, Moore Park, resting comfortably at the St. Francis Hospital, Santa Barbara, following an operation . . . Henry Sonnenshine of Premiere Pictures stayed over in New York to catch the Louis-Godoy fight, June 20.

A certain doctor in Glendale, reports Howard Perretz, Metro booker, has seen "The Great Waltz" more than 100 times. He calls Howard every week to find out what theatre is showing the musical . . . H. W. Dodge, Altec staff representative, stopped off in San Francisco en route to Seattle. H. M. Bessey, president of the company, is expected in from New York around June 29.

Gordon Wilson, M-G-M booker, and Bessie Booth of the contract department have returned from their respective vacations . . . Mike Newman, Columbia exploiteer, has returned to his headquarters at the local exchange after handling an opening in Ventura.

A. Bou, operator of the Rex in Fresno, is holidaying here . . . Republic's "The Crooked Road" opened its local first-run engagement at the Orpheum downtown June 19 . . . More booking visitors were: George Harter, Arlin; Ben Peskay, Banner and Palms theatres; Sid Kurstin, Boulevard, in Whittier; Harold Glass, Gordon.

Ruben Calderon, general manager of the Azteca exchange, is back on the job after a short business trip which took him to San Francisco . . . Helen Ankeney has returned to the Paramount office after an absence of several months. Now a contract clerk, she was formerly a booker's secretary . . . Mike Levinson, independent distributor, headed out for points north on business.

Dudley Forey, Monogram booker, doesn't know whether he's the victim of an elaborate rib or not. Anyway, here's the story he has been telling around the Row: One day recently a very suspicious looking gentleman with what Dudley swears was a German accent, appeared at the exchange and inquired about information about certain pictures for booking in some theatres in Paris. Dudley admits he didn't say which Paris (there's a Paris in California), but thinks there might be something in all this "fifth column" excitement.

A screening of Producers Releasing Corp.'s "Hold That Woman," featuring James Dunn, was held at the Paramount exchange by Coast Pictures . . . Fred "Buckskin" Gage, United Artists salesman, is in Imperial Valley on a selling trip.

Gus Acosta of the Azteca exchange is in El Paso on a two-week business-pleasure trip . . . Frances Martinez claims to be so much in love with her job as Azteca's office secretary, that she has declined her well-deserved annual two-week holiday.

Ted Cunningham came in for bookings for his Brentwood Theatre . . . Ditto John Eliot of the Knoll . . . A. J. O'Keefe, Universal's western district manager, was in Seattle . . . Bob Tenberg, manager of the Majestic in Santa Monica, was married in Yuma, but the identity of the new Mrs. Tenberg has been successfully shrouded so far.

SALT LAKE

RETAIL sales show a sizeable upturn for the past several weeks . . . Preliminary studies of Salt Lake City and vicinity were made by technicians of 20th Century-Fox in connection with filming of the latter part of the "Brigham Young."

The Covered Wagon Days celebration, held annually in this city as well as in Ogden, Utah, is being prepared for in a big way and will take place July 19-24 . . . The Constance Bennett tieup on beauty products, handled by a local department store and given free to ladies attending the Centre Theatre, is going over nicely.

"Women in War," a new Republic release, previewed recently, is going over big in this section . . . M-G-M's "Edison, the Man" is doing splendid business throughout the Intermountain territory . . . A recent tieup with local Hotpoint dealers was very effective, with tickets to the Utah being obtainable at these stores to see "Blame It on Love."

San Francisco, the Fox in Salinas, and the Fox in Watsonville. This is the first time this organization has ever had a giveaway in any of their San Francisco theatres. Also, the California is the first downtown house to handle the books . . . George Hickey, M-G-M western division manager, in for one of his periodic visits . . . Frank Morgan stopped off for a day on his way north for some fishing. Ed Beck, M-G-M exploiteer, showed Morgan and his wife the high spots . . . The newest house to open in this territory is the Mt. Burney in Burney. Loomis and Tyler enterprises are operating the theatre.

Charlie Owens, generalissimo at Coast Pictures, is now handling the booking of all Coast products. Frank Maun is no longer with Coast . . . Pat Paden is now associated with the Davies and Casino theatres as assistant to Manager Donohue . . . Dick Bear has closed his Playhouse in Carmel for the summer . . . Mel Klein, Columbia assistant manager, was confined to his home this week with the flu . . . Universal is in the midst of its "Vacation Drive" and pushing its products for dates.

Many of the Hollywood actors and actresses drop into town for a few days of seeing the Fair. This week it was Kenny Baker and wife and Stan Laurel who made the headlines . . . Jeanette Larson is the new receptionist at Pacific Premium and Dexter Robinson is an addition to the shipping room . . . Dan McLean is contemplating taking last run in the city and dropping his admission to 15 or 20 cents. The present policy is second run with a 30 cent evening price. However, the 40 cents policy of the first run houses has made the Embassy's policy practically worthless . . . Mike Levinson, independent distributor, in town on business . . . Bill Lewis is back at his desk at 20th Century after a two-week jaunt around the pleasure spots of the state.

The vacation beat: Louella McGovern, head inspectress at 20th Century; Laura West, Columbia contract clerk; Alice Francis, 20th Century cashier . . . Booking this week in person were Peter Garrett jr., Yolo, Woodland, and Arthur Fukuda, Royal, Sanger.

Elsa Maxwell was a busy visitor this week. She appeared at the Exposition to do her bit for the Mobile Foyer, organized to equip and maintain movable canteens behind the lines for the soldiers of France. In addition to the Fair appearance, Miss Maxwell had a party June 21 at the Clay Theatre where three films were shown.

Bill Blowitz to Ballyhoo "Heaven Too" Showing

LOS ANGELES—Warner has engaged Bill Blowitz to handle the local publicity campaign for "All This, and Heaven Too" during its current roadshow engagement at the Carthay Circle. Blowitz was formerly with the M-G-M studio publicity staff.

Cole Sells Sideline At Allied Conclave

CHICAGO—Allied's national president, Col. H. A. Cole, had something of interest to discuss with theatremen besides exhibitor problems at the Allied convention here this week.

It dealt with a new type marquee attraction letter, which gives one the impression of Neon. In reality, it consists of two letter outlines in one; a background cutout letter, over which is placed a silhouetted larger letter which is slotted. Through this pours reflected light from a fluorescent bulb placed behind the letter track in the marquee. The white reflector in the marquee provides the Neon illusion.

Cole claims theatre marquees do not have to be changed radically to accommodate the new letters, and that the lighting is so economical he uses it in several of his Texas houses all day long.

The letters have been patented by Cole and his partner, A. W. Lilly of Greenville, Tex. Will W. Hays, a former employe of theirs in the Rialto, Greenville, is the inventor. He is also interested in the company.

Meyers, Valos Accord in Glencoe Said Sought

CHICAGO—It is understood, without confirmation from either exhibitor, that attempts are being made to work out an agreement between Sam Meyers and George Valos, each of whom are building theatres in Glencoe, swank suburb north of Chicago.

Meyers announced his theatre many months ago, went ahead with plans. Valos announced his theatre and went ahead with plans. It is understood the walls of the Valos' house are up, while only the foundation of the Meyers house has been erected.

Hear Sam Meyers Will Operate Valos House

CHICAGO—It is learned that preliminary discussions toward settling the Glencoe building dispute between Sam Meyers and George Valos will end with Meyers operating the Valos house, and with both organizing a corporation to control the theatre. The Valos house, named the Glencoe, has the outer structure about complete. The new corporation would then absorb the costs already charged to the Glenwin, the proposed Meyers' house.

UTOI Preparing to Fight Any Move for New Admission Tax

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—Illinois exhibitors were more alarmed than ever this week over the prospect of having a three per cent state tax added to the proposed new federal tax on admissions, several Illinois legislators having intimated they will attempt to tax the industry on admissions when the legislature meets again in January.

Should such action eventuate, one group sure to institute an immediate counter-campaign is the United Theatres Owners of Illinois. Eddie Zorn of Pontiac, chairman of the UTOI, this week told BOXOFFICE, "We believe preparedness is our greatest weapon. We are cognizant of that fact, and during the coming summer and fall months, we plan to do all in our power to keep such a bill from even being presented to the legislature." This matter, he added, will be thoroughly discussed at the forthcoming meeting of the UTOI on Thursday, June 27, at the Pere-Marquette Hotel in Peoria. Since the group has no affiliation with either Allied or MPTOA, all exhibitors are invited to attend.

It is understood, Zorn said, that another tax to be proposed would be one on all coin-operated candy machines in theatres, which, he said, his organization would fight.

"Nickel slot-machine movies may also begin to prove a menace to us," Zorn said. "With the producers cancelling options of hundreds of contract players, these players will be free to appear in shorts for these machines. With their name value, even if they are not stars, they could be a threat to theatres. We will watch this phase of development closely. The UTOI will recommend licensing of these machines by cities and communities, similar to heavy licenses paid by theatres."

Seven Visits in Six Months, Says Cole

Chicago—Since the first of the year, Col. H. A. Cole, national president of Allied, has been called to Washington seven times on Neely bill conferences, he said this week.

Indianapolis Theatremen Meet at ATO Offices

INDIANAPOLIS—The Indianapolis Theatre Owners held a meeting at the Associated Theatre Owners office on Filmrow last Wednesday afternoon which was presided over by Earl Bell, vice-president of District No. 3 of ATOI. Those in attendance included: Al Ackerman, Tacoma; A. C. Zaring and Eddie Zeyen of the Zaring; Oscar Kuschner, Hollywood; Ernest L. Miller, Cinema; Claude Allison, representing the five Olson circuit houses; Harry Markun, Talbott and Belmont theatres; C. E. McConaughy, Dream; Irving Tamler, Tuxedo; Ernest Tamler, Oliver and Rex theatres, and Earl Bell, Howard.

Heads Committee

INDIANAPOLIS—Jesse Morgan, manager of the Talbott, operated by Harry Markun, is chairman of a committee to supervise festivities in connection with the reopening of Talbott Avenue. The program will feature open house by merchants in the neighborhood who will present free souvenirs, favors, sandwiches and refreshments.

Wehrenberg & Kaimann Merge 25 Houses in St. Louis Area

ST. LOUIS—One of the most important mergers of independent theatre interests in the St. Louis area was consummated when Fred Wehrenberg, head of a string of neighborhood and suburban houses, and Clarence Kaimann, in charge of the Kaimann Bros. circuit in North St. Louis and St. Louis county, reached an understanding as a basis for a consolidation of their interests.

While complete details have not been made public, it is understood both Wehrenberg and Kaimann will be interested financially in each of the 25 houses affected.

Big advantage obtained through the deal is that of booking for an enlarged circuit of 25 houses.

The St. Louis Amusement Co., controlled and managed by Fanchon & Marco interests, of course would not be affected by any such deals. This circuit has 24 houses. In addition, the Fanchon & Marco interests have the Ambassador, Fox and Missouri theatres in the first run field.

The deal between Wehrenberg and Kaimann is the biggest of its kind swung in St. Louis since the early 20's when the Skouras Bros., Harry Koplar and Bill Goldman merged their groups of neighborhood theatres.

Both Wehrenberg and Kaimann are veterans in the industry. Wehrenberg is president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, having held that post for many years, and is also a member of the national executive committee. Kaimann has been a director of the local organization from time to time.

The Wehrenberg houses affected by the deal are the Melba, Michigan, Cinderella, Virginia, Apollo, Savoy, Studio, Normandy, Melvin, Lemay, Southway and Dakota.

Kaimann houses involved were the O'Fallon, Baden, Ashland, Pauline, Bremen, Salisbury, Robin, Queens, Lee, Janet, Circle, Lowell and Bridge.

The 12 houses in the Wehrenberg circuit have a total seating capacity of 9,336, while the 13 Kaimann houses seat 8,406.

: With the Warnerites :

CHICAGO—The convention was welcomed by both B&K and Warner Theatres with special advertisements in the daily newspapers. B&K also sent special courtesy passes for any of its theatres to all the Warner conventioneers.

When the salesmen woke for the first session Monday morning, they found special one-sheet greetings, in three colors, under their room doors. These were special greetings tieing in with "Brother Orchid." A miniature standee of Edward Robinson in this characterization also went to every salesman.

Scores of Allied, independent and circuit exhibitors attended the special cocktail party and buffet given Wednesday afternoon at the Blackstone by Jimmy Coston, Warner theatre zone manager here.

A special "extra" edition of the Chicago Herald-American, featuring all Warner news on the front page, was distributed at the convention.

Several of the advance guard of the conventioneers spent Saturday at the race track, while Charlie Einfeld, golfed at Midlothian Country Club, with Jimmy Coston and Walter Branson, RKO district manager.

Ted Mendelssohn, formerly of Chicago, was about. He has recently been transferred from Cleveland Warner branch manager to the Rochester district out of the Buffalo Warner office.

It's Handed Them—

National Equips Two in Illinois; One in Ind.

CHICAGO—R. W. Dassow, manager of the local National Theatre Supply store, reports several installations lately.

National Theatre Supply is furnishing the booth equipment and seats for Ben Shafer's Shafer, opening in August in Lacon, Ill. The house seats 400. Seats and other equipment for the 500-seat Luxe in East Peoria, Ill., have been furnished by NTS for Merlyn Ewing. This house also opens in August.

Nate Bernstein has purchased projection, sound and canopy from NTS for his Times, 500-seat house, opening soon in Elkhart, Ind.

nati, to work on the roadshow opening there of "All This, and Heaven Too." Incidentally, the picture was screened for the men Monday morning, with sequences of "The Sea Hawk," shown on Tuesday.

Conventioneers received current copies of Esquire, and daily copies of Chicago newspapers in their rooms while here.

Betty Dolar, Rud Lohrenz's efficient secretary, did an equally efficient job of work on the convention.

Ben Kalmenson, western division manager, was taken on all sides by his boys whenever he sat down to a friendly game of cards.

And Fred Jack, southern district manager in Dallas, lost some of that first prize money of his to his men . . . Incidentally, Jack led five of his Texas broncos, 6-feet tall and 250-pounds strong, here in an American Airlines plane.

Doak Roberts, Dallas manager, we hear, is doing his part to equip himself to help hunt "fifth columnists." He is taking lessons at a Dallas flying school and is rapidly becoming an even better skeet shooter. He, by the way, is about the only Warnerite ever to beat Grad Sears at skeet-shooting.

Sid Rose, Omaha manager, found he had just as bad luck at Chicago racetracks as he used to have when he was a Chicago salesman.

Sid Rechetnik and his able assistant, Jack Kingsley, were busy with the trade press, and did a swell job getting the news to everyone on time.

Warner's Wisconsin theatre operators attended several of the meetings, headed by Jack Keegan, district manager in Milwaukee. Others here were: Al Kvool, Warner-Saxe manager; L. F. Gran, Standard Theatres; Jack Silliman, Rio-Appleton Theatres; Eddie Vollendorf, Warner-Saxe booker; Tom Cornell, Warner Theatres booker; and Harry MacDonald, Warner Theatre manager.

Benny Lasker of the Lasker circuit and Carl Leserman were observed at the Balinese Room bar in the Blackstone.

Musicians' Convention Endorses Neely Bill

INDIANAPOLIS—On the record of the American Federation of Musicians' 45th annual convention held last week at the Indiana here, was an endorsement of the Neely anti-block book bill. The convention during its session elected James Petrillo of Chicago, president, succeeding Joseph N. Weber, head of the federation since 1900. The life-time post of "technical adviser" has been created for Weber. Other officers elected are C. L. Bagley of Los Angeles, vice-president; Fred W. Birnbach of Newark, N. J., secretary, and H. E. Brenton of Boston, financial secretary-treasurer.

Among the resolutions considered by the convention was one aimed at halting federation members from making phonograph records and transcriptions until an understanding would be reached with the recording companies, and music distributors regarding their use. This resolution, at the behest of Weber who questioned its legality, was referred back to the executive committee.

A discussion of the social security act by the federation's counsel, Samuel T. Ansell, and an expression of opposition to the Indiana gross income tax law as a "hardship on leaders of orchestras in this state" marked the latter half of the convention before the installation of officers on Saturday.

CHICAGO—Charles J. Passafume, formerly advertising manager for the Gregory circuit in Kokomo, Ind., has joined the publicity staff of Filmack Trailer Co. in Chicago.

Adler Rehearing Denied

CHICAGO—The United States federal district court has denied the petition of the Adler Sign Letter Co. for a rehearing in the suit of Wagner Sign Service, Inc., against the Adler concern.

Assign Andrew Stone

HOLLYWOOD—Andrew Stone will direct Paramount's "There's Magic in Music" from a script by Frederick Jackson.

American Themes Top Warner Schedule

CHICAGO—"Realizing the almost complete loss of the foreign market today, the Warner feature product for the coming season is based practically entirely on themes of Americana," Grad Sears, general sales manager, told the convention here, when he disclosed the 1940-41 product lineup to the men. He arrived late Monday night from New York, by plane, where he appeared in connection with the government suit on Monday.

"More than 90 per cent of the next season's features from this company will be based on varied American background material," he said.

Highlighting this type of story material, he said, will be six top-budgeted productions with western locale. These will be "Santa Fe Trail," starring Errol Flynn, to be made on the same scale as "Dodge City," "Virginia City," and "The Sea Hawk;" "High Sierra," starring Paul Muni, in W. R. Burnett's best seller; Thomas Ripley's "They Died With Their Boots On;" "Montana," by C. B. Glasscock; "Calamity Jane," starring Bette Davis, in a new type role; and "Sam Colt, Trigger Man." All of these and others on the program will be in line with Warner's "action pictures" policy, Sears said.

Mort Blumenstock, eastern advertising and publicity manager, arrived Tuesday morning from New York where he had been working on the campaign for "All This, and Heaven Too."

Over 350 Exhibitors at Warner Cocktail Party

CHICAGO—Over 350 visiting and local exhibitors attended the Warner Bros. convention cocktail party and buffet at the Blackstone Hotel Wednesday evening. This goodwill gesture found exhibitors and distributors rubbing shoulders in a spirit of good fellowship. Just about every delegate to the Allied convention, in addition to Chicago circuit and independent exhibitors, and other film company representatives attended the party, which was hosted by Jimmy Coston, Warner theatre zone manager in Chicago.

Chicago Council Lists Six for the Family

CHICAGO — The current listing of the Chicago Better Films Council shows the following on the family list:

"The Biscuit Eater," (Para't); "The Dark Command," (Rep); "The Doctor Takes a Wife," (Col); "If I Had My Way," (Univ); and "20-Mule Team," and "Edison, the Man," (M-G-M).

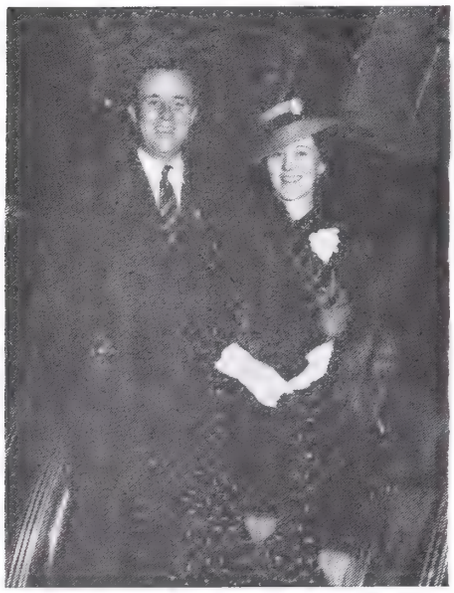
The mature listing includes: "Alias the Deacon," (Univ); "Babies For Sale," (Col); "The Ghost Comes Home" and "Strange Cargo," (M-G-M); "It All Came True" and "'Til We Meet Again," (WB); "Port of Shadows," (Film Alliance); and "Women Without Names," (Para't).

Labor Day May Mark Return Of Singles in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE—Through the efforts of Harry Perlewitz, business manager of the ITPA of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, plans are underway for all Milwaukee county theatres to revert to a single feature policy on Labor Day.

An attempt to drop double features was made earlier in the year but did not materialize because most exhibitors had too much product on hand at the time.

According to Perlewitz, both circuits and independents have declared that they will cooperate in the move. Pertinent reason for the proposed shift, according to one report, is the increased film rental being asked by producers.



Papers Devote Section To Logansport Bow

LOGANSPORT, IND.—The opening by Alliance Theatre Corp. of the new State here Saturday afternoon, June 7, was made an auspicious event when both dailies, the Press and the Pharos-Tribune, each devoted special eight-page sections to descriptions of the theatre, those connected with it and for congratulatory ads from merchants and associations of the town.

Alliance Theatres, which now operates three houses here, is headed by R. J. Dee and S. J. Gregory, who is vice-president and general manager. Herbert C. Sullivan is resident manager. The circuit has 16 houses in Indiana, four in Illinois, and three in Wisconsin.

Polishes "January Heights"

HOLLYWOOD—Lenore Coffee is polishing the script of Warner's "January Heights."

Hollywood Bound—

Is Pat O'Malley, the "Little Alfie" of Alec Templeton's radio program, and Mrs. O'Malley. Pat will play the role he has made famous in "Captain Caution," being produced by Hal Roach.

MILWAUKEE

BOB ELSON and Bill Anson, together with members of the Cubs and Giants baseball teams, appeared on the stage of H. J. Mirisch's Oriental and Tower last week for one night.

Recent local visitors were Spencer Tracy and Linda Ware. The former was awarded an honorary doctor of dramatic arts degree at Ripon College and the latter was en route to Detroit, where she reigned as queen of a dairy show. Tracy was also named an honorary colonel on Governor Heil's staff.

Joe Baisch, manager of the Strand at Green Bay, offered a money back guarantee in connection with the showing of "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" and "Three Cheers for the Irish" on a twin bill.

Russ Leddy, manager of the Orpheum in Green Bay, promoted a special free show for kids last week with the admission an old straw hat.

In a tieup with seven local merchants, the Wausau at Wausau staged a special Thursday matinee, admission to which was 2 cents when accompanied by a free ticket from participating stores.

Apollo at Janesville has announced a new summer price policy of 15 cents for adults . . . Ray Zahn, whose Falls at Menomee Falls was recently destroyed by fire, is planning to erect a new house on the site of the old one.

Richard Schacht has been named manager of the Badger at Merrill . . . Harry Perlewitz has returned from a four-day business trip around the state, contacting exhibitors in behalf of the ITPA of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

More than 25 Milwaukee and Wisconsin exhibitors, including all officers of the ITPA of Wisconsin, attended the Allied confab in Chicago . . . E. J. Weisfeldt offered free harmonicas and staged an amateur harmonica contest in connection with the showing of Borrah Minevitch's "Harmonica Rascals" at his Riverside here.

A number of Warner-Saxe houses, including the Milwaukee and Savoy, gave kids a Mi-Lola cigar free June 15 as a Father's Day gift . . . Ted Toll's Waukesha Beach is showing free films each Friday night.

Ludwig Screen Advertising, Inc., of Minneapolis has filed articles of incorporation in Wisconsin . . . The Hollywood in La Crosse promoted "The Biscuit Eater" by staging a mutt parade open to kids from 6 to 16.

HOLLYWOOD—Metro has signed Sinclair Lewis to do an original for the "Judge Hardy" series.

Raft Heads East—

George Raft, Warner star, en route to New York, is greeted during a Chicago stopover by Gene Rich of BOXOFFICE. Raft has just completed his latest Warner starrer, "They Drive by Night."

Hearings Postponed In Contempt Case

CHICAGO—Further hearings in the government's criminal contempt case before former Judge Edgar Eldredge, special master, who heard the case for Federal Judge Charles Woodward, have been indefinitely postponed.

The case was scheduled to have been heard Monday, but counsel for the defendants are understood busy with other legal matters, which necessitated the postponement.

Raft Ventures Opinion Light Product Needed

CHICAGO—George Raft, in Chicago en route to New York after finishing work on Warner's "They Drive By Night," told reporters that he feels more light, comedy productions should be turned out by Hollywood today. "The world is full of sorrow and trouble," said Raft, "and I believe more film fans will go to motion picture theatres to see entertainment that will make them forget the troubled world for a couple hours."

Louis Brecka, Chicago Independent, Is Dead

CHICAGO—Louis Brecka, well known Chicago independent exhibitor, died suddenly this week. He operated the Standard, Newberry and LaSalle, and at one time also operated the California, Homan and Bell.

New Ticket for Lupino

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has handed Ida Lupino a new term acting ticket.

CHICAGO

Chicagoans May Have Fight With Censors

CHICAGO—The Chicago Civil Liberties Committee is anticipating a flood of anti-Nazi picture rejections—or at least wholesale cuts of parts of those pictures—Ira Latimer, executive secretary of the organization, told his group at a special screening of "The Fight for Life," a picture the committee is now fighting for passage.

The pictures mentioned by Latimer were M-G-M's "The Mortal Storm" and "Escape," 20th Century-Fox's "I Married a Nazi" and "Man Hunt," Warner's "Secret Army," Paramount's "Mystery Sea Raider," Columbia's "Mad Men of Europe," and Charlie Chaplin's "The Dictator."

"The Chicago motion picture police censor board has continually banned all anti-Nazi pictures," he said, "and we anticipate trouble on any or all of the pictures I have mentioned. Naturally, we will fight for the okay of all these pictures from a freedom of speech and press viewpoint."

Latimer was speaking at the screening Columbia arranged for his group for the Pare Lorentz production of "Fight For Life," made by the United States Film Service, and being released by Columbia. The film was banned here, the only spot banned thus far in the U. S., primarily because the censors feel it shows too much about pregnancy and child birth. Other sources say that the real reason back of the ban is that it shows too much of Chicago's slums.

The Civil Liberties Group voted to telegraph Mayor Edward J. Kelly, not only to lift the ban, but to give it a general permit. It is understood he was to look at the picture this week with former Judge Svenjon Johnson, now director of Illinois government reports, who has been asked by Washington to investigate the local ban.

Latimer repeated at the meeting that his group is still doing all it can to have the present censorship ordinance revised.

Dembow and Goldenson Paramount Emissaries

CHICAGO—Sam Dembow and Leonard Goldenson, theatre operating coordinators under Barney Balaban for Paramount Pictures, were here over the week-end conferring with John Balaban of B&K. From here they planned to go to Detroit for conferences with Earl Hudson, operating head there of Paramount's United Detroit Theatres.

Two-Day Run in Hammond By "GWTW" Over Big

HAMMOND, IND.—"Gone With the Wind," that picture that is always fooling everyone, fooled them again when it played two days at the Warner Paramount here.

Put in for two days only, because of bad business done by the picture in Chicago's first series of subsequent runs, the picture did just about twice the business that had been anticipated for it.

HARRY ODENHAL, manager of the B&K Congress, returned Monday with his wife and mother from a two-week vacation trip in Norfolk, Va., where they visited relatives.

Lieut. Harry Costello, police film censor, is vacationing with Mrs. Costello this month in Tampa, Fla. While he is on leave, Sergeant Healy is pinch-hitting for Lieutenant Costello.

Johnny Smith, business agent, and Neal Bishop, secretary, of the local operators' union, returned this week from a motor trip in the east, following the recent IATSE convention in Louisville.

George Moyen, 43, manager of the Essaness Irving for several years, died last week. He is survived by his wife and two children.

Dave Katz of Hollywood Advertising Company has many of the banner company's "God Bless America" silk banners all over Filmrow, making it quite a patriotic spot these days.

Bill Hollander of B&K and Mrs. Hollander motored to Hanover, N. H., for the graduation exercises of their son, Marshall. After an extended motor trip in the east, the Hollanders will return about July 1 . . . Jules Ruben of Great States was in New York on film deals last week.

Now that Mannie Gottlieb's local Universal branch was the winner in the Scully Drive, the outfit is getting set to cop first prize again, this time in Universal's Summer Drive ending August 31.

Larry Stein of Warner Theatres is receiving congratulations. It's a baby girl, mother and daughter doing well at Southshore Hospital.

Fred Mindlin of International Enterprises is back from St. Louis where he completed a deal for premiums with the Fred Wehrenberg circuit . . . Nat Levine of the west coast passed through Chicago last week and was the guest of Saul Goldman of Variety Pictures. Levine, planning to re-enter production soon, was returning from Culver, Ind., where his son, Arthur, had graduated from Culver Military Academy.

Eddie Brunell of the Metropole had his car double-parked on Filmrow when Johnny Bouxsein, brother-in-law of Sam Traynor of the Bailey Circuit, Princeton, accidently drove into Brunell's car. Both cars had nicked fenders, but the exhibitors didn't have any trouble, settling for a drink apiece.

They're calling Larry Stein, Warner Theatre publicist, the "Charlie Chan" of Filmrow. Stein is getting so he can tag the murderer in every mystery picture screened in the wee small reels of the fil-lum. Only thing, Charlie Ryan, Harry Turrell, Herb Wheeler, Alex Halperin and Frank Williams don't like, because it spoils the pictures for them.

Lorraine Pernitz, of the Warner office staff, was to be married this week. She was looking very motherly last week with that life-size baby doll she bought from one of the Filmrow venders.

Jack Hunt, manager of the Oriental for Jones, Linick & Schaefer, and his wife are on a motor vacation trip in New England. They plan to spend several days with their daughters, Bonnie and Gloria, who are with the Ringling Brothers Circus.

Ezra Stone, who appears in Paramount's "Those Were the Days," stopped off for a night and a day this week between TWA planes en route to the west coast.

What price Hollywood. An exhibitor who is opening a new suburban house, was overheard remarking that he is opening with "Dishes, and 'Young Tom Edison.'"

Universal Premiums has moved from the third to the second floor of the Exhibitors Building.

Clyde Eckhardt, 20th-Fox branch manager, this week screened "I Was an Adventuress" and "Four Sons" for exhibitors . . . Sonja Henie, 20th-Fox star who was here this week for several days, was kept busy denying romance rumors with Dan Topping.

Harold Speilman, 40, chief air conditioning engineer for the Chicago office of Vilter Manufacturing Co., died suddenly this week.

Abe Fischer is manager of the Chicago exchange of the new national company, Producers Releasing Corp. He and Mike Godshaw, representing Film Alliance, have their new offices now at 1255 So. Wabash.

Phil Fischer of Hollywood Amusement this week sold a patent for a baseball apparatus game to the Exhibit Supply Co.

It is planned that the city's department stores, offices and industries will be combed for talent and properly trained so that hidden talent will be given a chance to show what it has. Nate Weinberg, well known to Indiana filmdom, will handle details for the theatres and Pete French, who handled the quiz programs for the theatres, will be master of ceremonies.

Carl Niesse, operator of the Vogue, Indianapolis, celebrated the second birthday of the theatre, June 18. Several weeks ago when Dick Powell was making a personal appearance at the Lyric here, the two pored over the plans for the celebration. On his visit Powell revealed that he intended to construct a chain of neighborhood theatres in California. After inspecting the Vogue and its large adjoining parking lot, Powell asked permission to use the same plans for his own house.

Maurice Rubin, operator of the Tivoli, Lake and Uptown theatres in Michigan City, will open his new Lido, June 27 with a gala celebration . . . Michigan City, Ind., is assured a season of summer legit with the signing of Alison Skipworth, Lenore Ulric and Taylor Holmes to star in three of the five productions to be presented at the new Michiana Shores Theatre Colony, starting July 17.

The other is Irving Ilmer. Both were among the 30 Indiana contestants who had auditions May 27 before Stokowski in Indianapolis.

W. L. Jones, National Manager of Photophone installations for RCA out of Camden, N. J., was in town checking over recent installations and conferring with W. H. Trunick, local representative.

Business Barometer Is His Suggestion

Chicago—Windy City exhibitors were so disgusted this week with last weekend business that one suggested the following to BOXOFFICE:

"Why not make a barometer? List the exhibitors in business as of June 1 and then see how your graph goes down when you list those that will be left successively on July 1, August 1 and September 1."

Elisburg Takes Sonotone; Will Reopen July 1

CHICAGO—Herb Elisburg has taken over the Sonotone Theatre, formerly operated by Mannie Stutz, on Van Buren between Michigan and Wabash Aves., and will rename the house the Studio.

Elisburg plans to reopen the house about July 1. Before taking over the theatre, Elisburg resigned as a district manager for Essaness Theatres. This was announced in BOXOFFICE last week, and his acquisition of the Sonotone forecast.

Admission scale will be upped to 75 cents top, with first nights of each new film showing being sold out to the First Nighters Movie Circle at $1.10. The entire front including the marquee, and the interior, will be remodeled. Associated with Elisburg is Belle T. Simon.

Single feature attractions together with selected shorts will be run, with each performance starting on the even hour. Elisburg plans to show no Russian, Nazi or Italian films.

Roadshow "Heaven Too"

CHICAGO—Present plans call for Warner to roadshow "All This, and Heaven Too" in Chicago. The B&K loop house in which the picture will get its roadshow run has not yet been decided.

Lipscomb Finishes Script

HOLLYWOOD—W. P. Lipscomb has completed his script of "Moon Over Burma." Louis King will direct the Paramount production.

ST. LOUIS

BERNARD E. EVENS has been appointed midwestern press representative for United Artists with headquarters in St. Louis. His territory will include Kansas City and Omaha as well as St. Louis. He has been on the publicity staff of United Artists for the past four years.

Eddie Arthur, brother of Harry C., top Fanchon & Marco executive, is acting as coach for the F&M softball team of which John Snook, doorman at the Fox, is captain. The team is arranging a series of games for Wednesday and Sunday mornings. Competitors may reach them via Grand 6433.

A version of George White's "Scandals" opened a week's run at the St. Louis, June 20. The production runs for an hour and 15 minutes and includes 30 scenes with original costumes. In addition to the principals, there is a chorus of 50.

Contract for the recreational center to be erected at Hampton Ave. and Chippewa St. has been awarded to the Kloster Co. Otto Stein jr. will manage the 16 bowling alleys to be included in the project.

Lolita Lindsay, west side girl slated for a screen trial in Hollywood next summer, was "interviewed" by "Buddy" Rogers during his stay at the Meadowbrook Country Club. He promised her personal assistance when she reaches the film capital.

Joe Keating, manager of the Grand-Florissant, is about the happiest chap in North St. Louis since Mrs. Keating, the former Ruth Sartorius, once of the F&M accounting department, presented him with that girl. The baby and mother are doing nicely and Joe has just about come down to earth again.

Oscar Johnson has been re-elected president of the St. Louis Symphony Society for the ninth consecutive year.

Frank X. Reller jr., chief of service at Loew's, has been promoted to assistant manager at Loew's Penn, Pittsburgh. He is replaced here by Jack Winkle.

Basil Bickel, projectionist at the new Drive-In in DesPeres, Mo., flies to work in his own plane.

George McDonald, former projectionist here, has returned to the home port as representative for the Jam Handy company, Detroit.

The Armo Skydome on Morganford Road, South St. Louis, has opened for the season.

Sam F. Millard, former owner of the Lyric on Sixth St. near Pine, and his wife were injured in an automobile accident at Hopkinsville, Ky., recently. Both are now convalescing in New Orleans.

Nick, Weston Furnish $15,000 Bond Each

ST. LOUIS—John P. Nick, former first vice-president of the IATSE, and Clyde A. Weston, ousted business manager of Local No. 143, appeared before U. S. Commissioner John Burke and furnished bonds of $15,000 each. They were indicted here on charges of violating the federal anti-racketeering act and also the Sherman anti-trust act.

Nick's bond was signed by his two brothers, Walter and Joseph P. Nick, while Weston's surety was a professional bondsman.

Neither of the accused men would make any comment to the press.

Nick was accompanied by his attorney, Sigmund Bass.

Motion to Quash Judgment In Court Contempt Case

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.—A motion to quash and set aside the judgment of Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe who imposed a $2,000 fine on the Pulitzer Publishing Co., publishers of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, on a contempt of court charge, has been filed by counsel for the paper in the Missouri supreme court. The motion was filed in certiorari proceedings based on the fine against the publishing company.

The jail sentences of 20 and 10 days and fines of $200 and $100 imposed on two members of the paper's editorial staff in the same case, also have been appealed in a habeas corpus proceeding.

Judge Rowe objected to two editorials and a cartoon touching on his handling of the extortion case against John P. Nick, former first vice-president of the IATSE, and State Representative Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady. Nick was acquitted under a defense demurrer on January 11, last, while the companion charge against Brady was nolle prossed March 5 at the suggestion of Judge Rowe.

Ann Marsters Named Film Editor of Hearst Paper

CHICAGO—Ann Marsters, feature writer of the Chicago Herald-American, has been named motion picture editor of the Hearst afternoon daily, Jack Malloy, publisher of the paper, announces. Miss Marsters will continue handling feature stories and interviews, in addition to supervising all film news. She will continue her occasional trips to Hollywood.

Lucia Perrigo, feature writer, has been named motion picture critic. She will write reviews under the by-line of Rob Reel, now an old standby with the paper.

Dorothy Deere recently resigned as motion picture editor and critic of the newspaper to become a member of the publicity staff of B&K, in addition to continuing to handle her five-times-a-week gossip program over WJJD.

Gollos Bros. Open Fifth Theatre in Chicago

CHICAGO—Gollos Brothers held a formal opening over the weekend of the newly acquired New Sun. The house was formerly operated by Richard Babiner as the Sunnyside.

And while all exhibitors in the city were figuring how to cut out triple features, Gollos Brothers opened the house with a triple feature bill. It is their fifth house, the others being the Ray, Midway, Woodlawn and Ark.

Switow Is Sued

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Mrs. Mary Tegart is seeking $5,000 damages from the Switow Theatrical Co., Inc., of Louisville for a back injury and "intense nervous shock" allegedly suffered when a snake crawled over her left arm and shoulder while seeing a show at the Elks Theatre here. The company management said the incident happened on April Fool's Day, and that a boy, who concealed the snake in his pocket, had brought it into the theatre without the knowledge of the management.

Operators' Strike Closes F&M Units

St. Louis—A strike of operators Thursday closed 27 Fanchon & Marco theatres here. The strike was called when the circuit refused to dismiss two suits against the union for $75,000 and $200,000 as a condition of a new wage contract. Other houses in the city are not affected.

Blows by Hitler Are Felt at Boxoffices

By DAVID F. BARRETT

ST. LOUIS—The keen public interest in Hitler's total war in Europe is reflecting itself sharply at boxoffices in this section, with exhibitors reporting grosses down as much as 50 per cent since the German warlord unleashed the full fury of his "blitzkrieg" in the Low Countries a month ago.

Fred Wehrenberg, circuit operator, in discussing the situation, said business has slumped as much as 50 per cent in some of his houses. He attributes the drop to the daily war news flashes.

It is pointed out interest in the first World War was a decided boon to theatres. Newsreels built around war happenings were given a big play in theatres and thousands of additional customers trooped to the theatres to get up-to-the-minute data on the conflict. But today, with the radio furnishing spot news every minute of the day, potential theatre customers are staying at home, since the speediest kind of handling of war newsreels are sadly outmoded when they hit the screen.

The war situation has had such an adverse effect on business in this district, it is anticipated that a record number of houses will be closed for the summer. Wehrenberg will close the Normandy, Normandy, and the Dakota here next week. He said he understood a number of other independent theatres in this section also plan early closings.

The war has also brought other problems to exhibitors. At Fanchon & Marco's Ambassador, Manager Harry Crawford announced the management had withdrawn a newsreel section showing Hitler and Mussolini at Brenner Pass a year ago, because of audience reaction. The reel started Friday, June 14, and each showing created considerable amount of hissing and booing. At one performance a customer reportedly didn't choose to hiss and, according to one version, a man seated next to him remonstrated with his fists. Crawford, later stating he didn't know whether any blows had been struck, ordered that section of the newsreel deleted.

Municipal Rent on Signs Suggested by Inspector

ST. LOUIS—A municipal rent on the square footage of display and advertising signs projecting over city streets and sidewalks was suggested by Building Inspector Stanley Baker of Topeka, Kas., at the recent 25th annual meeting of the Building Officials' Conference of America, Inc., held in Hotel Jefferson here.

Baker said such a tax might stop "blackout" bitterness between neighboring merchants, and that his department, in cooperation with the Topeka fire department, has started an inquiry into the legality of a city sign rent ordinance. It was revealed that in some cities complaint has been made that advertising signs interfere with traffic control lights.

Ashe Paves Way to Lead Allied Unit

MINNEAPOLIS—Paving the way for his appointment as Northwest Allied executive secretary who will virtually "lead" the organization now that illness is compelling President W. A. Steffes' retirement, Ben Ashe has resigned as general manager of the Bennie Berger circuit, effectiv July 1.

A considerable faction is known to favor Ashe's appointment, Ashe himself is said to be willing to take the post and it is known that his name will be presented to the convention scheduled for July 10 and 11 in Minneapolis.

At the same time it also is certain that a vigorous fight will be waged by Sol Lebedoff, one of the independent insurgents, against the selection of Ashe. Lebedoff, who long has opposed President Steffes and who withdrew from Northwest Allied to form an opposition group, insists that Berger and Steffes would continue to dominate Northwest Allied if Ashe is named for the post.

Another objection being advanced against Ashe is the fact that he owns a theatre and some of the independents declare that the executive secretary should be free from theatre entanglements.

However, Ashe has a very considerable following because of his recognized ability, tact and pleasing personality and present indications are that he'll be returned the winner, despite the objections of Lebedoff and some others. It was felt generally that he did a fine job in presiding over recent meetings in President Steffes' absence, although Lebedoff, charging that he was using a steam roller at the last convention, walked out on the meeting.

The final decision on the executive secretary's appointment will rest with the entire membership. However, a special committee has been appointed by the directors and will make a recommendation which is expected to carry much weight with the members. At the same time other nominations may be made from the floor.

Iowa University Releases Films on Dental Care

IOWA CITY, IA.—Lessons in dental hygiene now are being dispensed by the University of Iowa via motion pictures, according to Lee C. Cochran, head of the visual education department.

Two new Iowa movies on the subject, "Let's Talk About Your Teeth" and "Your Child's Dental Health Problems," have been completed and are being distributed throughout the nation, Cochran says.

Baehrs Buy 20th-Fox

MINNEAPOLIS—Twentieth-Fox has closed for its 1940-41 product with the Baehr circuit, Ed and Gus Baehr, the chain's operators, were here to make the deal with Moe Levy and Joe Podoloff, district and branch manager respectively.

Northwest Allied Urges Drive Over Nation Against Duals

MINNEAPOLIS—Northwest Allied members, a unit in opposition to double features, are urging that action be taken nationally to ban the twin bills. They want national Allied States to take a definite stand in the matter and to use pressure on the producers and distributors so that double feature theatres will not be serviced.

While this territory has been kept comparatively free of the dual bills, many of the independents, fearful of their inroads, want to get rid of them entirely and believe that the elimination can be accomplished by the production of fewer and better pictures which, it is felt, would help the boxoffice all around.

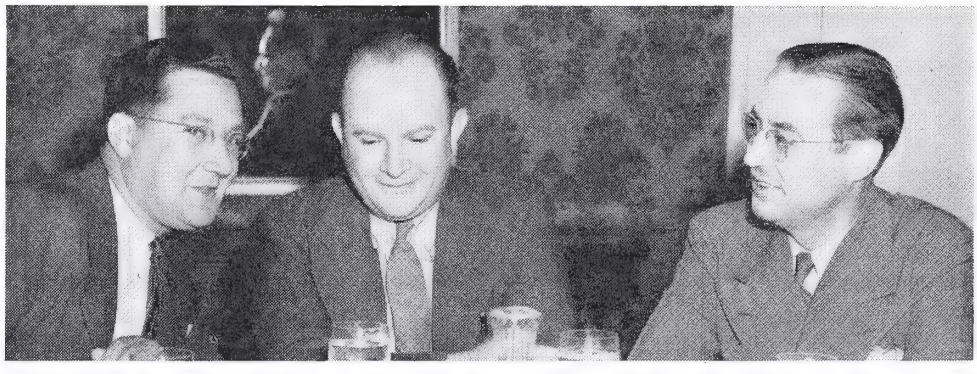
Some of the Northwest Allied leaders are afraid that the present boxoffice jitters and increasingly tougher going may drive many exhibitors in the territory into double features in desperation. These leaders counsel that the twin bills do not provide the solution to the boxoffice problem.

If they are unsuccessful in engineering a national move against the double features, the Northwest Allied leaders indicate that they'll bring up the matter at the convention to be held here July 10 and 11 and determine what can be done in the territory. If they have their way the Minnesota Amusement Co. will be asked to eliminate the double features at their two Twin City loop houses.

An Appointment Is Kept

Fairbury, Neb.—This idea of a press agent's stunt always being a gag, must have soured on the elements here.

Jimmie Redmond, publicist for the Bonham, was smearing up the town ballyhooing the coming of "Typhoon."



It did—the real thing. A wind and rain struck the theatre, ripped off the roof, doused the stage in water, and did a total of $5,000 damage.

Barrons Open Remodeled Kansan at Pratt, Kas.

PRATT, KAS.—The Kansan, rebuilt into a modern house following the fire late last year which destroyed the old Kansan, was formally opened last week by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Barron. The Barron is the A house, the new Kansan the B house. The Barrons also have the Anthony and Novelty at Anthony, Kas., in partnership with Floyd Droz.

Both houses here were sold out for the opening, and the Barrons received an armful of telegrams from Hollywood, Kansas City, and elsewhere. The Kansan opened with "Dark Command."

The Barrons have operated theatres here for over 15 years.

"Movie of the Month" Club Sells Blocks of Tickets

OMAHA—Movie-of-the-Month Club is a semi-giveaway plan that has been put into effect by Tri-States Theatres here.

Evert R. Cummings, Tri-States district manager, thought up the idea and Ted Emerson, Tri-States advertising man, put the plan into active operation.

The plan is simple. It consists merely of giving the patron a free ticket to the designated "Movie-of-the-Month," provided that patron buys a booklet of eight 25-cent tickets or else five 40-cent tickets.

In the booklet is a "bonus ticket," good for the "Movie-of-the-Month," on any of the following months, even though the rest of the tickets in the booklet may have been used previously. The special film may be showing either at the Orpheum or Omaha theatres, both Tri-States first run houses, and is selected by Tri-State officials.

At present the "club" has about 600 to 700 members and by next fall the Tri-States boys hope to obtain 5,000 members.

The $2 booklets are sold at the boxoffices of both theatres and also at a book counter at the city's largest department store. They are plugged heavily by trailers in both houses and in all Tri-States ads.

Hold War Newsreels Are Magnet in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS—The local public really wants "war pictures," but not as features, according to exhibitors. The fans desire shots of the European conflict in the newsreels and such footage actually is a magnet which draws in many customers, in the theatre owners' opinion.

This is contrary to the general impression that people come to the theatres to "forget" about the war for the time being and do not want to be reminded about it in any way. If newsreels are deficient as far as war shots are concerned, there are complaints from the customers, exhibitors say.

Although there has been no definite proof yet, the exhibitors believe that features dealing with the war are not in order. The present preference, as far as the public is concerned, is for comedies, it is felt.

The few war feature films recently released have not been sufficiently outstanding or representative to permit any definite conclusions, the exhibitors point out. Instinctly, however, it is felt that, for the present, war subjects should be tabooed in the films.

$1,000 to Red Cross

MINNEAPOLIS—Bill Elson of the Seventh Street Theatre, chairman of the theatre men's Red Cross committee, announces that more than $1,000 has been subscribed for the fund by film men and theatre employes.

Omaha Beacon Reseats

OMAHA, NEB.—The Beacon has installed new seating, purchased of the Scott Ballantyne Co.

Harnesses the Radio—

KANSAS CITY—Paul Dixon, manager of the Vogue Theatre, Salina, Kas., which is owned by Gus Diamond, is a theatre manager who, when he couldn't whip radio, joined it.

Dixon tied up with Royal Crown Cola on a kiddies' Saturday matinee for the summer. At no cost to the theatre he broadcasts as "Uncle Paul" each Saturday afternoon. R-C Cola pays for the radio time over KSAL. Kiddies join the R-C Club, the meeting place of which is in the Vogue, and admission to which is 10 cents. For half an hour (over the radio) kids put on a home talent show, sing patriotic songs, etc.

During his broadcast Dixon announces forthcoming attractions at the Vogue (plenty of parents are listening in). The show itself fills the house every Saturday matinee. Once a month the kids get a bottle of R-C Cola.

Country Echoes Plaint On Gift Affliction

KANSAS CITY—BOXOFFICE's report three weeks ago on theatre conditions in Kansas City and efforts to do something about admissions, doubles and giveaways has attracted national attention among exhibitors, according to Walter S. Croft, business manager of the operators' local here, who just returned from the IATSE national convention in Louisville.

Croft found exhibitors complaining of similar conditions elsewhere throughout the country. In Kentucky, Indiana and some other spots they're not only plagued with multiple bills and premiums but with money giveaways, derby nights, sweepstakes nights, etc.

These situations seem to be hurting most the small independent exhibitor who doesn't possess sufficient capital to carry through. Circuit operators and large independents can weather the storm, although one Kentucky exhibitor indicated that it doesn't seem to matter much what the theatre offers in way of giveaways—they still won't come in.

Croft is currently conducting a cross-section survey among members of the public to find out just what they do want in the way of screen entertainment and theatre programs.

Fox Ozark Corp. to Build 1,000-Seater in Sedalia

SEDALIA, MO.—Fox Ozark Theatres Corp. will build a new 1,000-seater here, it was announced today by E. C. Rhoden, division manager for Fox Midwest Theatres. Construction is to start at once.

As present lessees of the Liberty, Fox Ozark was unable to reach terms with the owners for a renewal upon the impending expiration of the lease, and the decision to build was reached.

The new structure will face Courthouse Square, on ground which the company recently purchased. The present three-story business structure occupying the location will be razed with the exception of the sidewalls, and the new theatre building will be extended to a depth of 120 feet.

The house will include a balcony leading off a mezzanine floor, and the rear of the center section on the first floor will be occupied by 200 deeply cushioned loge seats, a new departure in midwest theatre design.

Front will be two stories in height, of stucco finish. The theatre will be ready for occupancy on August 15. Robert Boller of Kansas City, is the architect.

Pioneer Circuit Reopens Spirit Lake Theatre

SPIRIT LAKE, IA.—Theatre accommodations for the summer vacationists in the Iowa lake area were improved last week with the reopening of the New Royal here.

The Pioneer circuit house had been closed for several weeks. The lobby was enlarged, rest rooms installed and seating capacity increased. A new front was built on the house and a new screen was added to the equipment.

Ray Hillary manages the theatre.

Among visitors on hand for the opening of the remodeled house were Art Farrell of the New Rapid in Rock Rapids, Marion Parkinson and Beckley of the Fraser and Spencer in Spencer, Ia., and H. W. Lambert. Farrell is reported vacationing in Spirit Lake.

Merged Firm Is Named Mo. Theatre Supply

KANSAS CITY—The Missouri Theatre Supply Co. is the new name taken by the Oklahoma Theatre Supply Co. following its absorbing of the Central Theatre Equipment Co. last week. The new company is remodeling the storerooms at 115 west 18th St. to bring them up to par with the front offices and display rooms at that location, according to L. J. Kimbriel, manager of the Missouri.

Joins Metro Premium

KANSAS CITY—Herschel Kaufman has been appointed new district manager of the Metro Premium office here. This is Kaufman's first association in the industry.

MINNEAPOLIS

BETTY DEE of United Artists is keeping her vacation destination a secret . . . Ed Smith, RKO assistant home office manager of branch operations, a visitor . . . Kiwanis convention didn't help boxoffices here this week as far as was noticeable . . . Ernie Hill, Warner salesman, and Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn., exhibitor, report fishing at Leach Lake, Minn., has reached an all-time high . . . "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, and Sol Lebedoff, independent exhibitor, suffering from eye ailments.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included: Ed Baehr, Brainerd, Minn.; E. P. Nelson, Waseca, Minn.; S. J. Backer, Hankinson, N. D.; Leo Backer, Brown Valley, Minn.; Lowell Smoots, Little Falls, Minn.; Bernie Larkin, Madelia, Minn.; Al Inman, Fairfax, Minn.; Tony Paulson, Amery and Clear Lake, Minn.; Ed Gleason, Osseo, Wis.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; Charlie Connaught, Olivia, Minn., and Tommy Novack, Glencoe, Minn.

Kenny Adams, RKO head booker, spending his vacation at his North Dakota home with his ill father. If his dad recovers sufficiently, Kenny will devote a few days to fishing in northern Minnesota . . . John Stevens has converted the old Savoy in the lower loop into a new and beautifully modern house. It has been renamed the Grand . . . Lake Sarah the vacation destination of Chester LeVoir, RKO assistant booker. Chester likes to fish.

A. C. Wilson, 20th-Fox homeoffice auditor, in from New York . . . Sam Dembow jr., Paramount theatre executive, here for a few days . . . "Irene" mopping up in Minnesota Amusement Co. houses throughout the circuit . . . C. R. Long, M-G-M homeoffice checking supervisor, a visitor . . . Helen Pauly, now Mrs. Adams, back from her honeymoon and resuming her duties as secretary to Branch Manager C. K. Olson at Warner Bros.

Doug Pratt, Columbia homeoffice auditor, spending a few weeks here . . . A. Selby Carr, Paramount office manager, writes from New York that he's having the time of his life at the World's Fair . . . Bill Woods, Paramount booker, taking a vacation in California . . . "Hy" Chapman, Columbia branch manager, visited Iron Range accounts . . . Bob Long, M-G-M homeoffice auditor, in town . . . Helen Duval, member of RKO office staff, vacationing in the northern Minnesota woods . . . Uxtry! Fred Finnegan, RKO booker, finally has located Diamond Reef at Lake Minnetonka. Many months of labor thus have been rewarded.

Clara Eisenberg of Universal office staff vacationing in northern Minnesota . . . Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, visiting his Des Moines branch . . . LeRoy Miller, Universal branch manager, hitting northern Minnesota spots . . . Warner gang back from the Chicago sales convention . . . M-G-M office elaborately decorated for the mid-season "Goodwill Drive."

Gets an O'Brien Western

HOLLYWOOD—RKO has assigned Director David Howard to "Triple Justice," a George O'Brien western.

Equipment Sales Imply Business Still Exists

KANSAS CITY—While business isn't as good as it might be in the Kansas City sector, there is abundant evidence that theatres still are functioning.

J. Walter Shreeve, manager of the National Theatre Supply Co., reports the sale of a pair of high intensity lamps and rectifiers to George Hayob for his Mary Lou, Marshall, Mo.; air washer and blower to Chester Hurdle of the Karyl, Milan, Mo.; ventilating equipment, W. D. Fulton's Strand, Kansas City; pair of new mechanisms, Fox Midland, Hutchinson, Kas.; pair high intensity lamps, Fox Eldorado, Eldorado, Kas.; new carpet and miscellaneous furnishings, Lee Sproule's new Star, Chanute, Kas.; low intensity lamps and rectifiers, Lloyd Metcalf's Gaiety, Ash Grove, Mo.; sound, high intensity lamps, generator, and screen, C. H. Barron's Kansan, Pratt, Kas.

CLARKFIELD, MINN.—The Clarkfield Club is remodeling a building here into a showhouse to give the town its first theatre. Jim Anderson has promoted the deal.

KAYCEE

A SPECIAL province was watching over Stan Goldberg of Monogram last week when his car turned over several times and was demolished. Stan received only a few scratches, most of which are in evidence on his face. The accident occurred three miles north of Marion, Kas., while Stan was en route to Tampa, Kas.

Lee Sproule has opened a new 350-seat house, the Star, in Chanute, Kas. . . . Charles L. Abrams, who has been manager here for Metro Premiums the past year, has quit to enter the packing house supply business. He is succeeded by Herschel Kaufman.

Exhibitors were scarce as hen's teeth on Filmrow last week, due to the rainy weather (at least that's our guess) . . . Believe it or Not, John Kelly, who covers Kansas for National Theatre Supply, has quit smoking after years as a stogie smoker.

The report is that the Walkathon at the Pla-Mor, current headache to Kaycee exhibitors, is drawing 7,000 nightly. Admission is practically nothing, but concessionaires are getting plenty per head after they get inside.

Robert Dillon, operator at the Fox Vista, Kansas City, broke some bones in his feet when he dropped from a second

DES MOINES

ONE of those little pink-and-white darlings who popped up at you out of great big boxes on the Community Center stage was Florence Sokolof, Carl's angel child . . . Sarah Sokolof, who used to be Sarah Grund when we were in school, the proud mama who nearly burst with pride when Flo gave the audience an extra sweet smile and won a little extra attention in return.

Tim Evans over at RKO has won for himself a nickname lifted from Ray Copeland's Paramount establishment. It's "Gabby" and it's because Tim likes to visit over the phone, not because of his figger. We couldn't help hearing Joe Rogatnik tell G. J. Malafront (Universal auditor out of NY) that he still thought the girl at Mel Evidon's typewriter ought to push Nan Gray out of the running.

Swinging around Lee Township: Lou Kahn's help says Lou's a good man, lots of fun, but he just ain't never around . . . Lew Lepowitz says, "I've been a good, busy little boy" . . . Hayden Peterson must be getting religion, at least his ads just don't look the same these last few weeks. We met Grace Simons just leaving National Screen at about 10:30 Friday evening. She looked like Adrian himself had put on the finishing touches just and all for some handsome swain waiting for her at the curb (complaint to Boss Friedman: Grace wouldn't stop and give us our National Screen gossip!)

Bill Little, Paramount exchange projectionist, has a grudge against even numbers. He's pappy to three, ages one, three and five. Charlie Curran, the All This'n Heaven Too-er from NY, snagged himself a little local paradise when he escorted Evelyn Rosen to the screening (don't be so backward, Joe. You know that faint-heart-fair-lady theory as well as anybody, don't you?)

Morrie Smith's drivers are slated to find themselves short a passenger . . . Bill Scholl's bought a car of his own (and went through town so fast we didn't even get a chance to see it) . . . Speed Lambert drove in from Spirit Lake, Monday, to find Jack Kennedy closeted in his office, Jerry Banta picking up weight, and no orders on where to go from here . . . Speed's been making the circuit of the state's American Legion commanders lining up parades, bugles and flag waving for "The Flag Speaks."

Monroe Rubinger was calling BOXOFFICE & Co. at home, office(s) and other haunts last Sunday to no avail . . . He didn't know they were sitting at the corner of Forty-Seventh and Lyndale in Minneapolis, talking with Bill Lansburg of Kansas City (and blond) quite by accident . . . Rubinger was en route with his flaming chariot to the Chicago convention, but was expected back Wednesday to see that he gets All He Expects and a Bonus Too.

R&T executives last week looked at a color motion picture of the Youngstown (Ohio) Vindicator's carrier-salesmen's convention . . . The R&T had Cal Ray shooting several hundred feet on their own carrier carnival this summer . . . Color motion pictures of the latest modes in air travel were shown at a garden dinner of the Des Moines Interracial commission at the home of J. E. Campbell . . . The Pan-American Airways film "Trans-Pacific" was a free attraction at Younkers tearoom.

As predicted here a month ago, Republic has taken over Elmer Tilton's franchises in Des Moines and Omaha . . . We've decided that if we hang around in front of Harkyt's long enough we'll run into Art Stolte . . . Art Anderson and Don West spent the weekend cheering the Chicago Cubs and Art spent Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday as the Warner convention's most eligible bachelor.

Abe Frankle's looking for swarms of kids after that bit o' honey . . . He's using the free Bit O' Honey candy bar as bait for early admissions at his Casino here . . . Emil Franke has switched the "ATAHT" matinee starting time from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. to give the Orpheum a 4:30 p. m. show for the women shoppers . . . The R&T roto this Sunday burns up five Hollywood features by doing the lives of five film stars in pictures on a single page . . . We caught Tri-States DD downtown long before 10 last Saturday, digging through the R&T morgue for pix of Brother Orchid and Ann Sothern together.

You've never seen Opie Judd at her best if you've never seen her in those gray riding breeches and hunter's red vest . . . Met Walter and his dimples in the revolving doors at Banker Trust, Friday . . . Met Bill from Paramount in the Utica elevator—you can meet Filmrowers in the darndest places.

Charlie Curran's screening was one of the most moving we've witnessed in a long time . . . Joe Ancher had to rush out and get a drink (water) . . . G. Ralph Branton hurried to the telephone . . . BOXOFFICE & Co. left feeling frozen to death (musta been those snowflakes which seem to shut out all the world, Charlie) . . . Emil Franke had a chair-moving phobia . . . Mrs. Franke had to have a drink too (we're still meaning water) . . . incidentally, everybody managed to see all this and the picture too.

Ray Butcher, assistant head shipper for Chick Friedman, is now in Stan Mayer's poster department at Fox . . . His brother, Melvin, is taking up where Ray left off at National Screen . . . Ray is interested in multiplication, did you know that, Stan? The unique aspect of Pat Goodenough's honeymoon is that Margaret Sullivan (Pat's sister-in-law) and her husband are sharing it, and there's nothing unique in the fact that Pat's due for some extra tall razzing from the gang when she gets back.

Ione Jones used to fly to Kaycee and nobody knew why . . . Now Ruth Godeen flys to Kaycee too and nobody knows why. When he reads this, Ted Ashby will probably laugh as hard as we did when we heard Mrs. Frank Greenland say she'd seen the Ted Ashby bull and it was two bulls. The feet of Marilla Gammell, Garth Games and Robert Fridley are all new on the National Screen desks . . . Robert used to be an exhib (at St. Ansgar, we think).

....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

MINNEAPOLIS is a long way to go for a bit of Sunday afternoon canoeing, but BOXOFFICE & Co. are just that off-balance . . . We stopped at Jewell for gas, etc. and decided to look up G. H. Maxon and his Strand Theatre while we were there.

We found the Strand without any trouble, but Maxon had hidden his red head well and we never caught sight of a hair on it . . . We walked down the Strand aisle toward the stage under which we hear Max has a workshop, but the strong nerves of BOXOFFICE gave way in the inky blackness and even & Co. couldn't convince her it wasn't a scarey place.

We left the mirror and the pussy willows in the Strand foyer and inquired next door at Austin's Cafe . . . no Maxon. We hunted under cars in the Ford garage . . . no Maxon. So when your fellow townsmen tell you, Maxon, that a very strange-looking female, accompanied by a guy with a funny haircut, was on your trail, don't be alarmed.

We didn't have much better luck finding George Hake in his Lyric at Belmond, but we found out that you go two blocks up, two blocks over, one more up, and then ask somebody if you can't wait until he gets to the theatre at seven.

We did catch D. F. Gran at the Avery in Garner . . . We saw those famous black lights and discussed the war situation for a while . . . Gran says nothing's too good for the Garner tootsies and he wants that s'pensive black carpet for them too. Norman Hornor, formerly of the Star at Sioux Rapids, is Gran's well-mannered projectionist . . . Norman showed us the booth and we noticed that he's one of Sioux Rapids' honor society students.

We spent most of our time reading cottage titles at Clear Lake, but we notice Joe Cole has his Park Theatre open again for the summer lakatonists . . . He set the turnstiles moving Thursday, June 13.

Tom Arthur could quit mopping his brow and talking about the heat in Mason City, if he'd just go in the Cecil or the Palace and sit down.

We've been hearing that Bill Mack is hauling 'em in from miles around up

Northwood way, and we can believe it after observing the landmark he calls a new canopy . . . Crowds were jammed around the Nate Sandler house so heavily we couldn't find a place to stop to spend a nickel for an ice cream cone at the Jacobson Soda Grill next door.

You can order your film fare right with your meal at Albert Lea, Minn. The Broadway Theatre's current bill is advertised on the hotel menu . . . We hear there was blackjack at that Hampton, Ia., film party.

Hubie Schrodt is red in the face for two reasons. First, he discovered that the boxoffice of his Grand at Estherville, Ia., can snag more game while he's gone than he can on the up end of a line in Spirit Lake. Second, Speed Lambert is reported to have towed a couple of finny tribesmen ashore, but Hubie fished all day for a sunburn . . . Dice at Hampton, too.

Don and Dorothy Smith highwayed from Carroll to Clinton, Monday, to get little Jimmy and his sister who had been visiting grandma for five weeks. Dorothy's busy learning to be a mother all over again and Don's checking up on things over at the Earle . . . Betcha Charlie Peterson was on hand at that Hampton whingding.

Jess Day's pretty proud of the way things look around Fort Dodge this summer with those new canopies on the Rialto, Iowa and Strand . . . J. A. Doop of Adel's Rialto, was getting plenty of attention on the Row last week. It was all because of the strikingly attractive woman with him. She's Mrs. Doop.

Query to Francis Pace: We thought Lee Henry used to be at Malvern, but everybody tells us you've been the man on the scene for y'ars and 'ars. But BOXOFFICE is hard to convince (says & Co.). Wasn't Lee collecting at the door there before you took over?

"Huddie" Huddleston of the Earl at Earlham, was discussing business along the Row last week . . . Roy T. (Thoroughbred) Hill of the State (One Horse Town) Center Hills has changed his tactics. He's doing DM without his horse this summer and he's lugging a straw hat instead of a bale of hay.

Kaycee Landmark May House Burlesque Shows

KANSAS CITY—Possibility that the old Missouri Theatre at Twelfth and Central, in downtown Kansas City, will be renovated for use this fall is considered good since the visit here this week of George Young, president of the Midwest Burlesque circuit, who may lease the house from the Butler estate of St. Louis for a burlesque show. The house has been dark for years, and Kansas City hasn't had a burlesque (aside from the Gillis) for several years.

Sixth Variety Luncheon Attracts 100 Filmrowers

KANSAS CITY—Almost 100 attended the sixth in a series of luncheons for employes and executives of Filmrow firms June 17 at Variety Club. About 40 attended from Paramount; about 25 from RKO. One more such luncheon will be held later this month. Chief Barker Jay Means gave his "Why of Variety" as quietly and impressively as ever. Purpose of the meetings is to acquaint all of Filmrow with the objectives of Variety so that they will know the worthiness of such objectives when the local tent sponsors an activity designed to help achieve them, according to Means.

Arthur Cole of Paramount acted as emcee. He said that a special entertainment committee for the luncheon had had a song and dance act by Tommy Thompson of RKO and Joe Manfre of Paramount recommended to it for the occasion, but had decided that inasmuch as the Club's prime purpose is charity, the two performers would not be allowed to appear.

Appropriateness of the Thanksgiving menu of turkey and dressing was made apparent in the short talk by Robert Carnie, Paramount salesman, and World War No. 1 veteran. Carnie served with the Australian forces during the first World War, and helped raise Red Cross funds in this country when invalided.

Among the guests was Shields Wilson, Camdenton, Mo.

Among those on the Row this week: Elmer Bills, Salisbury, Boonville, Brunswick, and Huntsville, Mo., (he has just taken over Huntsville); Joe Lenski, Cozy, Girard, Kas.; George Nescher, Rio, Valley Falls, Kas.

Morris Zigmond, brother of Jerry Zigmond, manager of the Newman Theatre, was here last week on his way from New Haven to the west and a vacation to visit with Jerry.

Holman Anderson, assistant manager of the Uptown, was presented with a baby girl June 15 by Mrs. Anderson. Manager F. E. Ritter suggested he name her "Sandy," since "Sandy Is a Lady" was playing the house at the time. The Andersons compromised: They named her Sandra Leigh Anderson.

Foster Thornhill, 19, assistant manager of the Esquire, and Loretta Bruce, one of the Glamour Girls at the Tower, were married June 20.

LINCOLN

CLIPS from the country (by carrier pigeon Mike Roth): Jack McCarty, Louisville, and Bob Ringler, former exchanger in Omaha, are doing the territory with independent pictures . . . Glen Van Wey, Gothenburg, is building a new home so lavish the film peddlers won't feel at ease in it . . . Ralph Dalton, Osmond, has had to depend on his theatre business this summer, because his ice business hasn't had much chance to flourish . . . Walt Hagedorn is hardly ever in his Rialto office in Cozad, mostly being found out back of the theatre where he's building a boat. Up until the Nebraska floods of a week ago, he was jeered about it more than Noah, way back when . . . Speaking of the flood, Dick Phillips, Norfolk, blames Harry Shumow for it, on account of screening "Waterloo Bridge" up there, thus giving the elements the idea.

Irving Heller, of Columbus, and Henry Salthun, Ft. Dodge, Ia., swapped managerial posts . . . One of these days M. E. McClain is going to open the new Empress in Fremont, and try to get that $35,000 he spent on fixing it up, back with interest and a profit . . . Jack Logan, in Osceola, has political pull, his dad being one of the state house workers here . . . Dick Lysinger, of Ravenna, who besides his theatre is in the film transport business with his brother, lost their transport the other night when it caught fire up Grand Island way.

C. Howard Kennedy, in Broken Bow, has one of the best looking youngsters in all the film business, and has a watchdog trained to be with the kid all the time . . . Charlie Leib is trying to get bets all over the territory that his coming heir will NOT be a boy, because the Doc told him it would be.

For the authenticity of this one, nobody can vouch. Seems Jimmy Redmond and Bonnie Aumiller went fishing down Fairbury way. Bonnie hauled up 24 fish in an hour, and Redmond never got a nibble. Next day, the same thing happened, and so on for two weeks running. Redmond finally persuaded the Bonham cashier to stay home one day, went down alone, cast in his line and waited. No nibbling going on, he gave up in disgust and was packing

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, exhibitors at Brownville, Neb., were on Filmrow. Frank didn't say anything about sending us a bushel of apples, which he raises . . . Ted Emerson, Tri-States advertising man, will have a birthday soon . . . Alice Neal has a new camera . . . Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morrison, exhibitors at Walnut, Ia., were spotted on Davenport St.

Mike Roth, National Screen boss, was cornered by Barney Oldfield, BOXOFFICE mugg, the last time Mike was in Lincoln. Barney bought Mike a coke in exchange for which Mike gave Barney a couple of pages of news about Nebraska exhibitors. As he was about ready to leave, Mike said, "The only trouble is, all that stuff was in the Omaha column already!"

Don McLucas was called to Davenport, Ia., by the death of a brother . . . Ira Adams, Rialto, Nelson, Neb., will pack up his family about July 1 for a trip to Canada and New York . . . J. Morgan Reynolds, Elwood and Bertrand, Neb., is taking a trip through Yellowstone Park.

Francis Johnson, Home, Danbury, Neb., has developed an attachment that stops the projector immediately whenever the film breaks. Exhibitors say the thing has a lot of possibilities and we say good luck to Exhibitor Johnson . . . Adele Anderson, Warner steno, and Bud Rodberg, poster clerk at same exchange, on vacations.

Bill Wink, Warner booker, went to Okoboji on his honeymoon but didn't get sunburned. He's back at work now . . . A project for a dam on the Republican River may help exhibitors greatly in southwestern Nebraska.

Exhibition's 35th Year Is Observed

PITTSBURGH — The Harris Amusement Companies have just completed a week of celebration to observe the 35th anniversary of the first theatre permanently and exclusively devoted to motion pictures. The Nickelodeon, that house, was opened June 19, 1905, in Pittsburgh by the late Senator John P. Harris and Harry Davis. The story of the trade through the years is told by Eugene LeMoyne Connelly, associated with Harris and Davis in the early venture. It is from his story that the following digest is taken:

The first movies ever seen in Pittsburgh were unreeled in 1897. They came with a lecturer and were introduced as nothing more than a freak of photography. Harris and Davis displayed these single reelers in connection with a vaudeville and stock company. This granddaddy of them all was "Lumiere's cinematograph." It was eight years later—in 1905—that Harris gave the world its first straight-film house and the writer, delving into Greek for "Odeon" which is theatre, and into American slang for five cents, which is nickel, created the synthesis, "Nickelodeon."

Was Remodeled Storeroom

This precursor of the oriental palaces of a few years later, when clothing caliphs became movie moguls, was a remodeled storeroom, that boasted a white linen sheet, some opera chairs, a phonograph, lots of stucco, burlap and paint, and an abundance of incandescent lights. This Nickelodeon seated 96, and with a turnover every 15 minutes and a 16-hour run, accommodated 6,144 patrons to see the one or two reels. Summer slumps had no meaning for this grind, for a backward glance at June, 1905 shows the Nickelodeon and Nixon, Pittsburgh's then newest playhouse, the only two doing business. The rest of the rialto gave way to the swelter season with nary a thought of combat.

Davis and Harris, quick to realize the importance of their new show business, soon provided the public with four nickelodeons in Philadelphia, one in Rochester, N. Y.; one in Buffalo and one in Cleveland. In Pittsburgh 14 or 15 of the houses sprung up.

Phases that mark the two-billion dollar industry of today, were not lacking in the era of the epics "Poor But Honest" and "The Baffled Burglar," the first pictures shown at the first Nickelodeon. It seems that typical of all Nickelodeons in their neanderthal period was a blaring phonograph over the boxoffice, stridently grinding away day and night—a phenomenon that brought the industry its first injunction when a court, across the way from a Nickelodeon, unable to counter with the din, issued a writ against all picture houses, restraining them from using phonographs to attract patrons.

Produced Pictures in Pitt

Quite early in the life of the motion picture business the inter-relationship of exhibition and production became manifest. A year after the Nickelodeon was opened Harry Davis began making his own pictures in Pittsburgh. The supply until then came from New York and New Jersey. To staff his production setup, Davis brought Gilbert M. Anderson from New York as an "idea man." A year later Anderson was "fired" for his lack of "ideas"—his creation of the first "chase" type of film comedy notwithstanding.

Anderson's jobless wanderings took him to Indianapolis where, joining a motion picture inventor named Spohr, the firm of Spohr and Anderson was born and developed into S. & A. which continued its evolution into Essanay, for a time the leading motion picture studios in the world. Major product of Essanay was the series that told of the adventures of Broncho Billy, played by no one other than Gilbert M. Anderson, who also made the films and directed them.

As the industry grew, newcomers who began operations in New York, climbed to prominence, providing names that became synonymous with the business. Adolph Zukor, Marcus Loew and William Fox were among the pioneers who sensed the possibilities of the new medium and left the clothing business to build fortunes in the picture business.

Production, too, drew to its ranks various and novel talents. Film making began in numerous lofts and unused crannies, the cinema skies displaying such meteors as Biograph, Vitagraph, Lubin, Essanay and others now forgotten. D. W. Griffith of the Biograph Company was the first to realize the value of personalities and in a brief time gathered about him those who were to rule the screen of their day: Mary Pickford, Lillian Gish, Dorothy Gish, Mae Marsh, Robert Barron, Blanche Sweet, Lionel Barrymore, Henry Walthall, and others.

To the ranks of these pioneers came a director whose uninhibited nature where laughs were concerned soon rolled audiences in the aisles. This was Mack Sennett whose "chases' and "Keystone Cops" are of happy memory.

Today this industry entertains nigh half a billion people weekly throughout the world; spends a hundred million annually for advertising and ranks among the first five industries in America.

Tops in Charity—

This Will Always Draw a Line

Pittsburgh—Eugene LeMoyne Connelly, one time associate of the late Senator John P. Harris and Harry Davis, has this yarn to tell about the first Nickelodeon:

"An enterprising house manager at the Nickelodeon one day flashed a slide on the screen reading: 'A twenty-dollar bill has been found in the lobby. Will the owner please form a line at the boxoffice window tomorrow night'?"

Kentucky Taxes Cash Drawings

Louisville—The Kentucky law providing a 15 per cent tax on cash drawings became effective June 12, the state revenue department advises. It applies to theatres, churches, clubs or any other organization conducting raffles, Bingo games or any other contest of chance involving the award of prizes. Managers of the contests or drawings are required to deduct the tax from the prize money.

Hearing in Detroit On "Slot" Films

DETROIT—A public hearing on the question of coin-operated projection of pictures is to be taken up by the city council upon the request of Cooperative Theatres of Michigan. The council was commended by Co-op for passing a complete ban, effective Monday, upon all pin games.

Close control of the coin-controlled projectors is sought by Co-op. Elimination of monopoly in distribution of film or machines for this new field must be sought, in Co-op's view, and censorship to avoid "immoral, indecent, and obscene movies" must be established.

Censor Charles W. Snyder recently told BOXOEEEICE that the new films would be subject to approval by his office.

Weiland Remodeling Is Nearing Completion

PITTSBURGH—Extensive modernization of the Weiland is nearing completion after several months. In addition to interior improvements, new features will include a modern glass front and a new marquee. An addition to the building, which squares the structure to the sidewalk property line, has been completed and will be opened soon as an ice cream bar, confectionery and sandwich shop by the twin sons of A. A. Weiland.

Nelson Returns to Exhibition At Morgantown, W. Va.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA.—Sam Phillip of the Phillips Music Co. will be associated with George W. Nelson in the operation of the new theatre which will be opened here next to the Comuntzis restaurant. Another member of the enterprise will be Thomas Monroe. Nelson is the veteran retired Fairmont exhibitor. Seating capacity will be 850, and opening is expected for Labor Day.

Clear Site in Shinnston For a New Theatre

SHINNSTON, W. VA.—Property across the street from the Princess has been dismantled for the building of a new theatre. Rex, which was destroyed by fire, will not be rebuilt. Meanwhile, the Princess has been operating and the Columbia has been newly decorated and new equipments are being installed for early opening. When the new theatre is opened in the fall, it is expected that the Princess will be remodeled as a restaurant to replace the restaurant on which site the new theatre is being erected.

John D. Nagy Will Build In Rural Valley, Pa.

RURAL VALLEY, PA.—John D. Nagy, operator of the NuMine in the community of that name for the past ten years, is building a 300-seat theatre in this community.

Construction on the new house, which will be known as the Liberty, is expected to start June 24.

Finds Nothing Keeps Public Away From Good Pictures

A "Little Newsreel" Program Goes Over

Detroit—Charles C. Perry, manager of the Adams, offered an innovation last week, in the form of a "little newsreel" program.

A full half-hour of newsreels made up from the four major releases and devoted entirely to war news, which was put on the screen, met with a favorable public response. To further tie in with the current interest in war news, a teletype machine has been installed in the lobby to give late flashes.

The program is clicking so well it is likely to be extended to full hour, according to reports.

Beedle Heads Allied's Delegates From Pa.

CHICAGO—Western Pennsylvania delegates to the 11th annual Allied convention arrived here late Tuesday afternoon.

E. T. Beedle, Canonsburg, was the delegation chairman. Arriving with him on the special B. & O. car were:

William R. Wheat jr., Sewickley; Ray Allison, Cresson; William and Harry Walker, Crafton; M. A. Rosenberg, Fred J. Herrington, Miss Mathilda Kiel, T. R. Gilbert and Peter Alderman, Pittsburgh; Frank Panoplos, Clairton; Bert Dattola, New Kensington; Dr. C. E. Herman, Carnegie; Sam Navari, Universal; Harry Rachiele, Sharpsburg; Stephen Rodnenok, Oakmont; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Antonoplos and daughter, Lula, East Pittsburgh; Andrew Battiston, Manor; Paul (Squee) Ayres, Canonsburg; J. G. (Glenn) Carruthers, Grove City; Tom Anas, Weirton, W. Va. Also present was R. F. Klingensmith of BOXOFFICE.

AMPTO Members Will Hear Convention Report

CHICAGO—Members of the AMPTO of W. Pa., were notified this week to "be prepared to attend a meeting of independent theatre owners to be held some time during the week of June 23." A full report of the national Allied convention will be presented, according to M. A. Rosenberg, president, and Fred J. Herrington, secretary, who were active at the three-day confab and at a number of directors meetings held here.

Cleveland Exhibitors Head for Allied Meet

CLEVELAND—The deadline list of exhibitors who made reservations to attend the Allied convention in Chicago included: Ernest Schwartz, president of the Cleveland Motion Picutre Exhibitors Assn.; G. W. Erdmann, association secretary; M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit; Meyer Fine, Sam Stecker, John Kalafat, Associated circuit; James E. Scoville, Jack Essick, Ray Essick, Scoville, Essick and Reif circuit; Jack Shulman, Abe Schwartz, M. M. Jacobs and F. Arthur Simon.

CLEVELAND—Motion pictures have not lost their lure and mass appeal, according to a local theatre circuit owner, all argument to the contrary notwithstanding.

While the general attendance today is reported to be all the way from 25 to 30 per cent under summer average, and while the exhibitors lay the cause of poor business to a multitude of reasons, such as poor pictures, radio newscasts, the call of the great outdoors, one exhibitor who has experienced more than 25 summers and winters in this industry says that according to his records, rain or shine, war or peace, summer or winter, theatres are even today doing very good business whenever they show a picture the public wants to see.

"I operate a chain of houses located in different sections of the city," this analytical exhibitor said. "The same weather conditions prevail for all of them. They are equally affected by war news from abroad. So what happens? On a beautiful Sunday not long ago, when theatres automatically succumb to the open air competition, those houses playing pictures that have boxoffice appeal had the crowds. The others did not. Now the houses that had poor business could see the weather, the war, etc., as alibis. But what of the houses that did business?

"Let the producers give us pictures that the public wants, and we'll show them that we can bring in the people to see those pictures."

"This brings up the old argument as to what constitutes a good picture," goes on the exhibitor. "In my opinion, there is only one gauge of picture value. And that is its boxoffice drawing power. If it pulls in the patrons it is a good picture. If it doesn't, then regardless of its art value or its moral value or its prestige, it is not a good picture."

Outdoor Film Circuit Is Started by Irving Field

CLEVELAND—Free outdoor films is the newest innovation in this territory. Irving Field, who operates the Ohio House in Burton, Ohio, during the winter, has devised the new plan in cooperation with merchants of several towns. On Monday the free shows are offered at Lake Shore Blvd. and Lost Nations Road; on Wednesday, in the public square of Madison, and on Saturday in Burton. Field reports that he is negotiating for other locations.

Reunited in "Bittersweet"

HOLLYWOOD—Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy will be co-starred again in Metro's "Bittersweet," which is based on the Noel Coward operetta.

A year after the Nickelodeon was opened Harry Davis began making his own pictures in Pittsburgh. The supply until then came from New York and New Jersey. To staff his production setup, Davis brought Gilbert M. Anderson from New York as an "idea man." A year later Anderson was "fired" for his lack of "ideas"—his creation of the first "chase" type of film comedy notwithstanding.

Anderson's jobless wanderings took him to Indianapolis where, joining a motion picture inventor named Spohr, the firm of Spohr and Anderson was born and developed into S. & A. which continued its evolution into Essanay, for a time the leading motion picture studios in the world. Major product of Essanay was the series that told of the adventures of Broncho Billy, played by no one other than Gilbert M. Anderson, who also made the films and directed them.

As the industry grew, newcomers who began operations in New York, climbed to prominence, providing names that became synonymous with the business. Adolph Zukor, Marcus Loew and William Fox were among the pioneers who sensed the possibilities of the new medium and left the clothing business to build fortunes in the picture business.

Production, too, drew to its ranks various and novel talents. Film making began in numerous lofts and unused crannies, the cinema skies displaying such meteors as Biograph, Vitagraph, Lubin, Essanay and others now forgotten. D. W. Griffith of the Biograph Company was the first to realize the value of personalities and in a brief time gathered about him those who were to rule the screen of their day: Mary Pickford, Lillian Gish, Dorothy Gish, Mae Marsh, Robert Barron, Blanche Sweet, Lionel Barrymore, Henry Walthall, and others.

To the ranks of these pioneers came a director whose uninhibited nature where laughs were concerned soon rolled audiences in the aisles. This was Mack Sennett whose "chases' and "Keystone Cops" are of happy memory.

Today this industry entertains nigh half a billion people weekly throughout the world; spends a hundred million annually for advertising and ranks among the first five industries in America.

No Shoving, Either

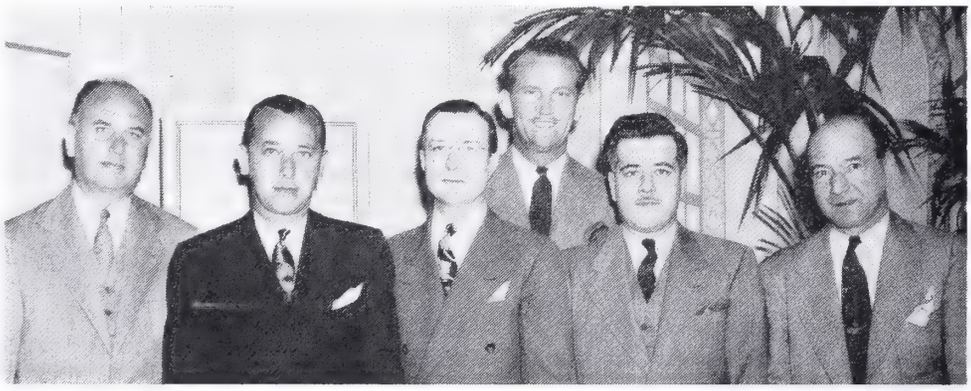
Pittsburgh—Eugene LeMoyne Connelly, one time associate of the late Senator John P. Harris and Harry Davis, has this yarn to tell about the first Nickelodeon:

"An enterprising house manager at the Nickelodeon one day flashed a slide on the screen reading: 'A twenty-dollar bill has been found in the lobby. Will the owner please form a line at the boxoffice window tomorrow night'?"

Return to New York Will Be Made by Jack Graham

PITTSBURGH—Jack Graham, veteran film sales representative of this city, has resigned duties as city representative for RKO Radio, and by July 1 he will have moved to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he will reside with his mother. Graham recently suffered the loss of his wife and he desired to make the change at this time.

In all probability he will remain with RKO at the New York exchange or will be connected with the theatre department. After serving in the World War the well-liked film man came to this city in 1919 with Pathe. For 21 years he was a sales representative here for Metro, Real Art, World Wide and Pathe, before the merger which brought RKO into the field.



Herbert H. Greenblatt, RKO branch manager, stated this week that Graham would remain here for a week or so to say goodbye to his many friends.

Cleveland Warner Club Dance Attracts Throng

CLEVELAND — The annual Warner Club summer dance was a great success, according to the 250 or more people who attended the party last Friday in Warners Corners, as the club room is called.

Charles Albert of the theatre booking department, was in charge of arrangements and takes a bow for the way it went over. In addition to dancing and refreshments, Chairman Albert arranged for entertainment which included Nan Blackstone from the Hollenden Vogue Room, Val Vontane from the same place, Ralph Rau from College Inn and Mrs. Ralph Nathanson who, as a former radio star was known as "the little girl with the big voice."

Final event of the evening's entertainment was a crazy auction with proceeds donated to the Red Cross.

They See a Show Free and Then Make a Profit, Too

DETROIT—A new form of getting into the show free—or even making a profit on it is reported by an exhibitor whose house is close to the East Side Drive-In Theatre.

According to the report, residents of the neighborhood, particularly women, have taken advantage of the rule that children would be admitted free to the drive-in, and have collected a number of children from the neighborhood, in some instances also collecting a dime from their parents to take them out for the evening. The youngsters are then driven to the drive-in and taken in without admission charge. The dimes pay the adult admission fee, with perhaps a little left over.

Ray Showalter Elected By Stagehands Local

DETROIT—New officers elected by Stagehands Local 38, IATSE, are: President, Ray Showalter, Fox Theatre; first vice-president, George Daly, Wilson; second vice-president, James O'Dea, Jam Handy Studios; recording secretary, Ernest Holloway, Fox; financial secretary-treasurer, Lester Hamilton, United Artists Theatre; business representative, Edward L. King; delegates to Wayne County Federation of Labor, E. Clyde Adler, Michigan Theatre, and James O'Dea; sergeant-at-arms, William S. Foster.

The new men will hold office for one year.

Lessen Restrictions on Visitors From Canada

DETROIT—The threat to the business Detroit theatres derive from Canadian customers was slightly eased by an ambiguous ruling from the state department. Entire effect of the ruling was not wholly clear to local officials, but apparently Canadians may come in by getting a regular immigration visa once and then getting a special identification card for subsequent visits. This still increases the difficulty a Canadian will have in coming into town to shop and catch a show. Number of such shoppers has been estimated at two million annually.

Butterfield Chain Expands In Three Mich. Cities

LANSING, MICH.—Current expansion by Butterfield circuit is under way in three Michigan cities.

At Benton Harbor, Butterfield has purchased the Caldwell Theatre building which will be modernized. The chain also plans to open a second new house there and to build a 500-seater in St. Joseph. Work on a 900-seater for Lansing is under way and is expected to be completed about October 1.

Perer Plans Labor Day Opening for New House

PITTSBURGH—Progress is reported on construction of the new unnamed theatre at 551 Greenfield Avenue after one month's work, Herbert Leonard Perer stated this week. Indications point to a Labor Day opening. The 48x100 foot building will have a seating capacity of between 600 and 800. All equipments and fixtures will be of modern design and manufacture; marquee will be designed and erected, but the front materials have not been definitely selected. Architect is Harry Ginsburg.

Perer, who is a nephew of Archie Fineman, well known city showman, has a business associate and partner in his cousin, Nathan H. Perer.

Forward in Detroit With Plan for Italian House

DETROIT—Although the entry of Italy into the war has brought a sudden temporary stop to Italian film imports, plans for a new theatre to be devoted solely to Italian films will be carried on, according to Paris Bucci. Tentative name is Cine Roma, and plans call for starting construction in about a month on a site on Gratiot Avenue, between the Seven and Eight Mile Roads. The house will be ready around September.

Bucci has been showing Italian films here for some seasons, chiefly at the Park Theatre.

PITTSBURGH—Proceeds from the Jules Lapidus testimonial dinner, to be held in the William Penn Hotel, Monday evening, June 24, at 6:30 o'clock, will be given to the widow and children of William D. Davis, veteran exhibitor, who died several weeks ago. Tickets are $5.

Lapidus has assumed duties as eastern district manager for Universal Pictures. The former local branch manager, now succeeded by Peter Dana, will be honored by members of the local exchange staff at a special dinner in the Roosevelt Hotel, Saturday afternoon, June 22.

Members of the industry were busy this week selling tickets for a radio which will be awarded at the Lapidus testimonial Monday evening. The radio has been on exhibit on Filmrow in the A. & S. Steinberg window. Proceeds of the ticket sale also go to the Bill Davis family.

Mervis Brothers Acquire Browar Colored House

PITTSBURGH — The Roosevelt Theatre, Center Avenue, has been acquired under lease by the Mervis Brothers, Norman, Ray and Jack. The transfer is effective July 1.

Roosevelt is one of the de luxe houses in the black belt and is owned by Mark Browar. The Mervis Brothers operate four other local theatres and within the next two weeks they will break ground for their new house in Aspinwall.

Browar, one of the Browarsky brothers, this week observed his 33rd year in exhibition. He entered the nickelodeon business with the late Nate Friedberg.

A. N. Notopoulos Reopens Capitol at Altoona

ALTOONA, PA.—Capitol, A. N. Notopoulos-Publix house, has reopened after being completely redecorated by the Scatena Studio of Pittsburgh. House has been remodeled and new projectors, lamp houses, seats and other equipments have been installed. Marquee has been streamlined.

The same company's Olympic here is installing an air conditioning system.

Wechsler Succeeds Lynch On Warner Pitt Sales

PITTSBURGH—Harry Seed, Warner manager, announces the appointment of Jerry Wechsler as a member of the sales staff. He succeeds Bob Lynch, resigned, and will cover the northern sales area. Wechsler has been associated with the M. S. & A. J. England enterprises for a number of years. Some years ago he operated an independent exchange here.

as president of the Marion Rotary Club, he attended a national Rotary get-together . . . Ernest H. Walters with theatres in North Baltimore and Sylvania, was a Film Bldg. visitor during the past week.

Over at the 20th-Fox exchange, they sure have got the right Bingo combination.

George Schenker of the Lorain Theatre, Lorain, is an optimist. Instead of dwelling on poor business he points out that there are five weekends in June and he's hoping they will all be rainy ones.

Joe and Paul Raful, sons of B. Ruful, owner of the Carol in Newton Falls and the Ohio, Youngstown, made the rounds of the exchange the other day . . . Harry Reinhart owner of the Mozart, State and McKinley theatres, Canton, and Mrs. Reinhart, are expected back from a two months vacation trip in California and Hawaii June 21 . . . Al Gregg, Republic publicity director, had a couple of days of enforced vacation last week due to a foot infection.

George Fettick, associated in Midhio Theatre with Tracy Barnham, makes his headquarters in the Dixie Terminal Bldg., Cincinnati, but was in town to book for the recently acquired houses in Fremont, Clyde and Bellevue . . . Al Ptak, manager of the Lyceum, Cleveland, is undecided whether to attend the Allied convention in Chicago or the Kiwanis convention in Minneapolis which comes a little later . . . Milton A. Mooney, head of Co-operative Theatres of Ohio, was among those present at the Warner regional convention in Pittsburgh last week—not that he has any Warner affiliations at present, but just for the fun of the thing.

Arthur Unger of Coulter Premiums, Detroit, stopped off for a day last week to say "howdy" to the boys and incidentally to see what is the present local reaction to premiums among the theatre owners . . . A. S. Smith has closed his Community Theatre, Sugar Creek, for the summer . . . Maxwell Joyce will arrive in town the end of the week to become permanent Paramount publicity and exploitation director for Harry Goldstein's district covering the Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati territories.

Walter Brandt, Vitagraph salesmen, has in his possession a pass to a play signed by Lillian Russell herself and dated October 25, 1895 . . . August Ilg, owner of the Ohio Theatre, Lorain, and George Schenker, owner of the Lorain Theatre, Lorain, stopped along Filmrow to visit because, they say, they never see each other in Lorain.

Loew's State is very resplendent in its new coat of blue paint on the boxoffice and outer lobby . . . Carl Scheuch, who resigned from the PDC sales force, has been succeeded by Maurice Kincler, former Universal representative in Belgium.

Marcia Jean Miller, seven-year old granddaughter of M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, made her debut as a premiere danseuse in the Little Theatre of the public auditorium last week. She was one of the featured dancers in the David Morgenstern Dancing School recital.

Back from the Columbia convention in Atlantic City and full of enthusiasm over the coming year's product are branch manager Lester Zucker, salesmen Manny Glick, Oscar Bloom and Jack Share and booker G. S. Vojae . . . The Columbia girls, who stayed at home, came in for a big box of salt water taffy as their share of the convention spoils.

In a tie-up with the Klein News Agency, 10,000 copies of the May issue of Movie and Radio Guide, containing a double page spread on "Typhoon" were distributed to patrons of the Associated Theatres circuit houses one week in advance of playing the picture.

Back from the Warner convention in Pittsburgh, it is learned that "All This, and Heaven Too" will be shown later in the season in Cleveland on a two a day policy . . . Ted Mendelssohn, former local Vitagraph branch manager, is still a member of the Vitagraph family and will take a sales position in an eastern office, exact location to be announced shortly.

Charlie Deardourff, M-G-M exploiteer, tells us that the E. D. Ward, who is heard over short wave from Germany, is Edward Delaney, formerly head of the M-G-M exploitation department and the immediate predecessor of Oscar Doob.

Lund Fined $500

BEAVER, PA.—Convicted on a charge of conducting a lottery in connection with cash awards at two theatres here, J. C. Lund of Aliquippa was sentenced to pay court costs and a fine of $500. Attorneys for Lund indicated they would appeal to the supreme court.

War Relief Ambulances A Theatre Project

Detroit—A drive for the theatres of the country to supply ambulances for Red Cross war relief was started here Wednesday by the Lincoln Park Theatre in suburban Detroit. Max Allen is owner and William Richmond, manager, of the house. The city council has approved the idea which is being made a community project, with the council, local merchants and residents contributing. The theatre will contribute 50 per cent of one night's receipts as its share in helping to reach the goal of $1,500 to $2,000, which is the cost of equipping one ambulance. The ambulance will bear the name of the community or the theatre, thus definitely identifying contributions made locally. The idea it is hoped will spread nationally through the chains, and its adoption is being discussed by other showmen here.

New Ozoner Bows; Another Enjoined as "Nuisance"

DETROIT—Outdoor picture shows, long the bane of established exhibitors, are in the news in two southeastern Michigan towns.

First in Romulus, where the Marko's Open-Air Theatre opened last Friday. Operated as a smaller type drive-in, this spot is the first independent opposition that the two big drive-ins just outside the city limits have encountered.

At Temperance, a show put on as a free outdoor merchant's style review by Harold Berry, was enjoined by the circuit court at Monroe. Neighbors complained that it was a "nuisance."

Gratiot's Merchants Are Sponsoring Free Shows

GRATIOT, OHIO — Merchants here are sponsoring free film shows each Friday night throughout the summer. The show is presented on the school grounds. There is no theatre in the village. Stores remain open for the convenience of shoppers.

D'Carlo Guides Contest

PITTSBURGH—The Western Pennsylvania contests for the selection of "Miss America, 1940" will be directed by Don D'Carlo, theatrical agent with Filmrow headquarters. D'Carlo was very successful in this promotion last season.

Players, and Pine Grove, Cambridge Springs. The Jennerstown Playhouse has inaugurated another season . . . Mrs. John Walsh and daughter are vacationing in Newport, R. I., while the Fulton manager manages the Shea house at Cambridge, Ohio . . . Several hundred friends of the M. N. Shapiros were in attendance at the house and lawn party which they staged Sunday evening in honor of their two daughters. A large canopy tent was erected for the occasion and a garage served as a refreshment stand.

Jake Smith was in booking early Monday morning prior to shoving off for Mt. Clements, Mich. . . . Samuel Rosenberg is the new assistant manager at WB's Baulevard, Brookline . . . New manager at the Girard, West View, is Tony Cavallo, at one time manager of the Liberty, New Kensington.

Miss Jetta H. Gray, bookkeeper for the Arcade and Colonial, South Side en route to the bank to deposit $300 had an experience on Monday which she says she will remember as her "last trip to the bank." A robber snatched the wrapped billfold from her arm and hurried down Carson street as Miss Gray screamed. Two men joined the chase, one of them wielding his umbrella, hooked the robber, who slipped and dropped the money. The robber escaped and the $300 was retrieved.

Reject Plea for Writ Against Picketing

HARTFORD—In the first court decision under the 1939 anti-injunction statute, Superior Court Judge John H. King rejected the petition of E. M. Loew's Enterprises, Inc., for an injunction forbidding the local IATSE to picket the corporation's theatre on Asylum Street.

The decision, unless appealed to the supreme court of errors, ended litigation which started in 1937 when a strike was called at the theatre. The theatre corporation, in the suit heard by Judge King, claimed that the strike was over, and the defendants had no right to picket, even peacefully.

Heffner Notes Cash Game Resurge in Rhode Island

BOSTON—Roy E. Heffner, New England Bank Night assignee and owner of world rights on Good Will Award, reports that Rhode Island theatremen have been returning to the cash giveaway fold following clearing of the plans on lottery charges in the state. Accounts have already been closed in Providence, Pawtucket, Woonsocket, and Newport, with the M&P Theatres Corp. opening with Good Will Award in the last three cities after Independence Day.

Stage Shows Have Chance Of Holding Metropolitan

BOSTON—The Metropolitan, New England's largest theatre, has returned to stage shows after nearly two years of straight celluloids. Although the first footlight session was on a spot booking arrangement, contracts signed with the musicians' local covering a period until September 1 makes other spot bookings throughout the summer a possibility.

Bob Hope, who brought his unit to the Met to combine with the New England premiere of "Ghost Breakers" was expected to collect some $17,000 for the engagement.

New England Contingent To Allied Chicago Meet

BOSTON—An Independent Exhibitors, Inc., group attended the Allied national convention at the Morrison Hotel in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur K. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lydon, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Peterson, and Nathan Yamins planned to attend the affair, while E. M. Loew, former local Allied director and at present a non-member, also was expected to be on hand.

"Irene" Is Held

BOSTON—Ben Domingo, manager of Keith's Memorial, retained "Irene" for a second consecutive week at the de luxe house. It was the only first-run Boston film hold over.

Reconstruction Program Under Way in Plymouth

PLYMOUTH, N. H.—A reconstruction program has been under way at the Plymouth, of which Sherburne R. Graves is the manager.

Two stores have vacated the theatre building to allow for the expansion. The entrance is being moved to the north corner of the building, where there will be a large marquee, with the ticket booth in front.

A 100-seat smoking balcony is included in the remodeling plans.

Construction Plans Ahead For East Hartford House

EAST HARTFORD, CONN.—Plans are going ahead for the construction of the Sycamore Corp. theatre to be located on Main St. between Bissel St. and Wells Ave. The theatre, to be East Hartford's second, will seat 1,000. About $130,000 is expected to be spent on the project. The only other theatre in this suburb of Hartford is the Astor, an independent house.

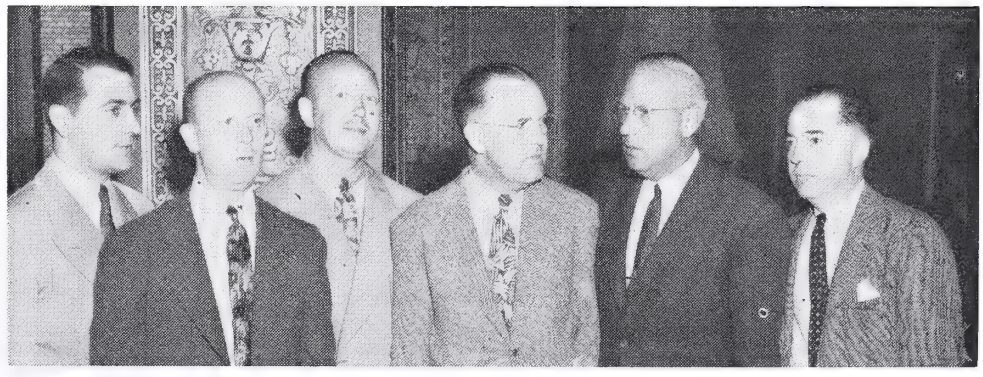
Park Opens June 30

NEW LONDON, CONN.—The Ocean Beach park board has set June 30 as the date for the formal opening of the new $3,000,000 park and municipal beach which this city decided to build after the hurricane two years ago.

Motion Picture Names In Summer Theatres

BOSTON—Motion picture names will glamorize New England summer theatres again this year. Among the straw hat situations opening in Massachusetts in the next few days are the Cape Playhouse at Dennis, the North Shore Players at Marblehead, the Rice Playhouse at Oak Bluffs, Brattle Hall in Cambridge, the Town Hall Players at Westboro, the Lake Whalom Theatre at Fitchburg, the Red Barn at Westboro, the Harbor Playhouse at Marion, the Priscilla Beach Theatre at Plymouth, the Nantucket Players at Nantucket.

In Maine, the Lakewood Players at Skowhegan are already under way with such names as Don Terry, Hume Cronyn, Louise Campbell, and Owen Davis jr. Jimmie Savo opens the Ogunquit Players at Ogunquit next week in "Mum's the Word."



Also due to open are the Barnstormers at Tamworth, N. H., the Garrick Players at Kennebunkport, Me.; the Weston Playhouse at Weston, Vt.; the Casino in Newport, R. I., and the Lippitt at Providence.

Summer Retrenchments In Conn. Operations

NEW HAVEN—Fishman Theatres will reduce the 500-seat Apollo to half-week operation as of June 22. Foreign pictures, originally planned for three days a week, will not be shown. The Fishman chain also closed its 612-seat Winchester recently for an indefinite period.

Warner has closed the Tremont, Ansonia, in keeping with the usual summer policy. The Globe, Clinton, also was closed. Otherwise all 45 Warner houses usually operating remain in operation. Capitol, New Britain, and Gem, Willimantic, remain dark after many years of inactivity.

The Lampert Moodus, Colchester, and East Hampton theatres have cut out Wednesday and Thursday changes until Fourth of July, when the houses go on the summer schedule of full-week, three changes.

Arthur K. Howard Asks Prompt Remittances

BOSTON—In a plea for strong organizational support, Arthur K. Howard, business manager for the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., last week told local Allied members, "In 1939, 20th-Fox paid the Hays organization dues amounting to $146,019. This is what Fox thinks of organization. And the job that the MPPDA is doing to maintain the monopoly, stall adverse legislation and buffer public opinion, is indicative of the effectiveness of a well financed organization."

Calling for more prompt returns on monthly assessments, "If we are to keep rolling," Howard said, "Allied has worked miracles with very little, but that little bit must be kept up unless you want the Trust to operate unmolested."

Heffner, Hurney Limit Lowell to Weekends

Presents Advantages of Dividing Long Stories

HARTFORD—"Should the dividing of long film stories into more than one picture prove practical, Hollywood will be in a vastly improved position to deal more accurately with the problems it encounters, particularly in historical and biographical features," in the opinion of Julian B. Tuthill, film critic and columnist of the Hartford Times.

Tuthill declares, "Often, in the split-second editing that is demanded to tell a whole story in 90 minutes, the spirit of the times being depicted is thrown out of balance.

"A great deal of dramatic license has had to be taken at various times . . . even to the point of quoting from famous speeches before they have been given, or making it appear almost as if people were in two places at one time.

"The refinements of the age of chivalry have been particularly wrecked in some films, where romantic affairs have seemed to develop with a rapidity that was unknown in the hour of gallantry. To save time to permit actors full use of their hands, gentlemen have been known to keep their hats on, on the screen, while talking to ladies in periods when such rudeness was completely taboo."

Tuthill concludes with, "It is in this measure that European film productions so often excel our own. By confining themselves to mere fundamentals and extremely simple stories, producers in France, Germany and Sweden have sent to us films that were far more fascinating on an atmospheric score than some of our best films, in which complications have risen up to prevent dawdling over relatively unimportant details."

Charles Guadino Promoted To Loew Bijou Assistant

NEW HAVEN—Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, announces the promotion of Charles Gaudino, student assistant at the Loew-Poli to the assistantship at the Loew-Bijou, succeeding Sal Di Manno, who has been transferred to New York. Another invalid along the Rifkin route in Springfield has been the wife of Andrew Sette, Capitol manager, convalescing following an operation . . . Nathan Yamins has put a new summer policy into the Strand and Park in Fall River, cutting down shows at the situations to two daily.

Danielle Darrieux Starrer Subjected to Scissors

BOSTON—Danielle Darrieux got the scissors here last week when the department of public safety made several eighth-reel eliminations on "Mademoiselle Ma Mere" which George Kraska has been showing at the Fine Arts Theatre. Cuts on the H. H. Hoffberg release, the only motion picture in a list of 40 to get the shears, were:

"Scene showing George kissing Jacqueline at Inn and dialogue pertaining thereto; all scenes showing George and Jacqueline in bedroom at Inn and dialogue pertaining thereto, in part 3."

Among the films passed without cuts were 20th-Fox's "Four Sons," Paramount's "Ghost Breakers," Monogram's "On the Spot," and Universal's "Love, Honor, and Oh Baby."

No vaudeville routines were refused Sunday licenses, but nine acts were required to follow recommended modifications in order to conform with regulations covering the approval of entertainments to be held on the Lord's Day. Seven acts, including Horace Heidt's stage show routine, were granted Sunday licenses, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 135, Section 4 of the General Laws.

"I Take This Oath" Will Premiere at Trans Lux

BOSTON — Harry Asher, vice-president nationally of Producers Distributing Corp. and its New England distributor, has signed with Al Lauder of the Trans Lux for the New England premiere this week of "I Take This Oath." The feature opened the same day at Fay's in Providence. Negotiations are now in progress for a Boston unveiling of "Hold That Woman."

See City Exodus

HARTFORD—Although final results in all probability will not be ready by July 15, indications have been expressed here by census directors that several cities will show slight decreases, while suburbs of Connecticut's largest cities will show gains in population.

: NEW HAMPSHIRE :

CHARLOTTE MERCHANT has been granted a city permit in Manchester to make alterations at her Lyric there.

A new wrinkle in class prophecies marked the commencement at Berlin High School when motion pictures were used to depict the seniors in various future careers.

Film theatres still are crowded in England when "Gone With the Wind" opened recently, many fans had to wait for days for their tickets due to the huge advance sale, accordling to Senor Gustavo Duran, young Spanish composed, who has arrrived in Wilton with his American bride.

A new radio station is planned in Manchester by a group comprising Gov. Francis P. Murphy, Dr. John J. Powers of Manchester, and Maj. Edward J. Gallagher, Laconia newspaper publisher.

The Empire in Manchester has started a giveaway of chromium-plated cookware, with coupons being offered patrons each Wednesday and Thursday evening.

The Pavilion at Alton Bay, where films and dancing have held sway for several years, has been converted into a roller skating establishment.

Sherburne R. Graves, manager of the Plymouth Theatre in Plymouth, is building a new home on "Stonebrook Road," Plymouth's newest residential area.

Changes in Massachusetts Sport Field Will Benefit

BOSTON—Two changes in the Massachusetts sports outlook last week brightened the summer picture for local theatremen. On Cape Cod, the old Cape League has dropped its schedule for the first time in nearly two decades. Games previously were played in Chatham, Hyannis, Osterville, Orleans, Falmouth, Weymouth, Bourne, and Barnstable, although the League has been reduced to four clubs for the past year. Lack of financial support caused the demise.

Another theatre boon was the elimination of passes at the Revere dog track, which is installing 25 cent turnstiles.

Hartford Manufacturing Report Shows Uptrend

HARTFORD—Figures in the monthly statistical report of the Manufacturers' Ass'n of Hartford county show June 1 payrolls at 124 per cent of the Jan. 1, 1929, level, and man-hours of operation at 100.4 per cent of the same accepted norm.

Principal factor in the uptrend, which has added some 3,214 people to manufacturing payrolls since the first of the year, is the expansion of the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Corp., division of the United Aircraft Corp., and the Pratt & Whitney division of the Niles Bement Pound Co.

Biggest gain was recorded in the 43 factories in the Hartford district, where operations during May rose 4 per cent and employment was up 1.5 per cent. New Britain's 27 plants held about even in employment, while operations fell off 1.9 per cent. The 12 Bristol factories, also included in the index, revealed a slight drop in employment and a rise in rate of operations.

Polling Patrons on War Film Subjects

OKLAHOMA CITY—In an effort to find out whether the majority of the theatre patrons prefer to see war films and special short subjects on "fifth column" activities, Walter B. Shuttee, general manager of Standard Theatres Corp., is making a poll of his patrons' film tastes.

Girls have been placed in the lobbies of downtown Standard theatres to query patrons as they leave the houses. On the first day of the poll last week 1,084 answers were secured from both men and women. The poll was taken between 1 and 5 p. m. and 7 and 10 p. m., thereby getting the matinee and evening patrons' opinions.

"Personally I want to see newsreels of war scenes and shorts subjects pertaining to military activities, but I wonder whether the majority of theatre patrons feel as I do," Shuttee said. "If the poll, when completed, shows the majority do not want to see war films, we will try to eliminate them or cut out the worst part of the newsreels on the war so that our patrons can be entertained and laugh without the sobering effect of war and newsreel shots to offset their entertainment."

The questions asked of patrons are:

1. Do you want to see war scenes in newsreels?

2. Do you want to see special short subjects pertaining to "fifth column" activities, preparedness, army, navy and air corps activities?

Totals are kept by the poll takers on men and women separately. The first day men voted 144 for and 32 against showing of war scenes in newsreels. The women voted 216 for to 164 against the showing of war scenes. On the second question, 134 men voted for and 33 men against, about the same ratio as on the first question. The women voted 269 for and 93 against the showing of special short subjects with war themes. These figures must be studied in the light of the total number of men to women whose opinions were obtained. There were answers of 742 women to only 342 men, reflecting the predominance of women over men as theatre patrons.

In answer to a question as to whether war newsreels shown in Standard's theatres had been cut up to the present to eliminate undesirable war scenes, Shuttee said that none had been, but that next week the Midwest Theatre would play "Susan and God" on a "no war" program as an experiment.

In addition to the lobby poll, 1,000 self-addressed post cards will be distributed to persons on the street and in business places.

To Show the Full Horror Of War in Newsreels

OKLAHOMA CITY—The full horror of war as depicted by newsreels will be shown to the American people without "cutting," Morris Loewenstein of the Majestic here says.

In many theatres it has been the practice to cut the newsreels. A decision last week of the MPTOA, however, has changed that, the president of Oklahoma Theatre Owners, Inc., says.

"It is being done in order that we may do our part in keeping the public fully informed," Loewenstein declares.

Loewenstein returned from Washington recently where he went to attend hearings on the Neely bill. While there he conferred with Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president. Loewenstein is national secretary of that association.

Preparations Move Forward For Convention by SETOA

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—Preparations are well under way for the annual SETOA convention to be held here July 21-23 at the George Washington Hotel. A record attendance is anticipated.

The first day, which falls on a Sunday, will be marked by a buffet supper in the evening at the George Washington.

A business session will be held the next morning from 9:30 o'clock until noon, with Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA, a speaker. In the afternoon, a golf tournament will get under way at the San Jose course. That evening conventioneers will be guests of E. J. Sparks and his managers at a shrimp supper at the Copper Kettle on the Beach.

Tuesday morning will also be given over to a business session, with the golfers again holding sway in the afternoon. There will be many prizes for players.

A banquet, dance and floor show will wind up the convention Tuesday evening. Fuller Warren will be master of ceremonies

The following committees are in charge of arrangements:

Business—Oscar C. Lam, R. B. Wilby, E. J. Sparks, Earle Fain and Lukie Stein.

Resolutions—Thomas E. Orr, Mitchell Wolfson, William R. Griffin, Mack Jackson, Nat Williams and Hugh Manning.

Art Work—Walter Golden.

SETOA Golf Tournament Set for July 22-23

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—SETOA's annual convention golf tournament has been set for July 22-23 at the San Jose course, only 15 minutes distant from Jacksonville on the St. Augustine highway.

There will be prizes galore with everyone to be a winner, according to Riley Davis, golf committee chairman, who also announces the entrance fee will be $4, which includes caddy fees.

P. S.: It is important that you bring you own clubs.

New Taylor Theatre

TAYLOR, TEX.—Taylor's new theatre will replace the space formerly occupied by two of the oldest buildings here. The new situation will cost more than $20,000.

Seasonal Business Formula Is Upset

By V. W. CRISP

DALLAS—Continued rains and unimproved roads leading into the smaller towns have brought many complaints of unseasonably low grosses from independent exhibitors, confined mostly to east and central Texas.

In Dallas, the picture is different. When the whistle blew for the Blitzkrieg into France, the bottom dropped out of nearly all boxoffices. It was either the war by itself responsible or an extra early summer slump upon us.

Low grosses continued for days and finally a fair weekend turned up after about three weeks. Now, in the midst of unprecedented rains for June, outdoor activities have been curtailed and business at the first runs is reported fair, with good grosses at the neighborhoods.

A well-versed theatreman said Wednesday that the war has overshadowed all business and that past boxoffice records according to seasons can't be relied upon now by the exhibitors. It is just as likely now to have good receipts in bad season as it is to have bad receipts in good season as the war continues and develops, he said.

Jack Daily Is Resident Publicist for Para't

DALLAS—When the eight advertising and exploitation men take to the field July 1 to boost Paramount's 1940-41 product, Jack Daily, from the studio publicity department, will be headquartered in Dallas, succeeding Ben Hill, who before going to Paramount had handled RKO and United Artists first runs.

Clinton Bolton will work out of the Atlanta exchange. Several years ago he handled two important publicity assignments here with the Texas Centennial and the Pan American Expositions.

Urge Reduction in Production Costs; Hit at Star Salaries

CHARLOTTE—Drastic reduction in production costs by the elimination of "exorbitant" prices paid for film personalities by competitive bidding, and quality film fare "more reasonably produced at a cost measured by the conservative possibilities of the domestic market," was demanded by the convention in Myrtle Beach, N. C., of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina.

Recognizing the curtailment of foreign income by the European war, the resolution contended exhibitors currently are giving the maximum running time to present product; that the domestic market value on film rental "is already forced to the very maximum to assure any profit at all for the exhibitor," and that admission prices cannot be materially increased.

The convention, at the same time, voted to "pledge our best to get the maximum returns in a cooperative spirit with the producers."

Adoption was requested of a 20 per cent cancellation privilege in the belief that "a forward step will have been taken to insure a more cooperative approach to the common problems that confront us."

"Irrevocable opposition" was pitted against the entrance by any producer into the slot machine film projector field, the convention urging producers to refuse the use of any of its talent or facilities to the new medium.

Other resolutions extended appreciation to Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, the principal speaker; Claude Lee of Paramount, another speaker; commended retiring South Carolina State Senator John F. Williams as a friend of the industry, and extended regret to George W. Bailey of Wilmington, N. C., on his serious illness.

Santone Views Booster Film

SAN ANTONIO—"Cross Roads of America," a film to advertise the Alamo City to the nation, was privately shown here last week. The film is sponsored by the city.

The contingent from the North Carolina metropolis including Hal Jordan, salesman; H. Keeter, salesman; John Bachman, manager, and Dean House, salesman.

The Remodeled Atlanta Reopened With Duals

ATLANTA—The Atlanta, operated by the Rex Amusement Co., New Orleans, has reopened with a double feature policy at 5- and 10-cent admissions.

A new cooling system and RCA sound have been installed and the house has been remodeled. Manager will be Willis Houck, formerly of New Orleans.

Quality, Lower Cost Seen as Answer

Charlotte—"It is the unanimous opinion of this convention that the success of this industry can be attained only by quality product, more reasonably produced and at a cost measured by the conservative possibilities of the domestic market."—From a resolution at the convention in Myrtle Beach of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina.

NEW ORLEANS

ATLANTIC FILMS are now in the midst of moving to their new quarters in the old Grand National building. They will have their official opening in about two weeks . . . Buck Jones and the missus, after hunting up all the westerns showing in the city, took a flier at the ice skating exhibition at the Municipal Auditorium. Incidentally, the Auditorium was packed—its a novelty in New Orleans—skating on real ice in June.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Castay of the Louisiana Motion Picture Equipment and the baby are on a vacation in West Terre Haute, Ind., where they are visiting Castay's brother . . . Eddie Delaney, of the Pike Theatre, Magnolia, Miss., celebrated the theatre's first anniversary with a 75-pound cake displayed in the lobby. Each patron received a slice.

A. B. Brashear, general manager of the American Desk Mfg. Co. of Temple, Tex., visited his office here in New Orleans and announced himself well satisfied with results. W. H. Prewitt is local salesman. Mrs. Prewitt is in the Hotel Dieu where she has been confined for some time with illness but is now on the road to recovery.

Rain throughout the territory for the past ten days has seriously interfered with business, many of the smaller houses being compelled to close. Neighborhoods in New Orleans also suffered in grosses.

Visitors to the Row despite the rain: A. Legnon of the Weeks, Weeks Island (Iberia parish); Charles Waterall, Pritchard, Pritchard, Ala. . . . Columbia's delegates to the national meet in Atlantic City, H. Duvall, J. Winberry, J. J. Farbacher and R. A. Kelly have returned to the city.

Joy Houck was one of the first to visit Atlantic Pictures' new offices and congratulate Goodrow and Sliman on the completeness of their plant. Joe Barcelona of Baton Rouge did likewise.

Promoters are busy endeavoring to bring to life again the old Federal Theatre Project, but this time in a new dress—nothing more than a movie colony composed of the members of the theatre project which would make two reelers for the use of the smaller houses in the state. They want the writers project to produce the scenarios, the historical project to furnish the data and the state to sponsor the idea.

Cupie Aucoin has obtained a contract with the Motion Pictures Vending Machines Co. in Hollywood whose product will be released in the early fall. She has been in the coast city for over a year . . . The softball team recently organized on Filmrow has collapsed—the players were too fast for opponents who did not care to take a licking . . . Hugh McCollum, Columbia short feature producer, is in the city on a vacation.

With a powerful lobby working against the six bills affecting the film industry in Louisiana, the odds are that the bills will be lost in the shuffle . . . The United Chain will sponsor an elimination beauty contest at their various theatres to select a Miss New Orleans of 1940 to be sent to Atlantic City, in cooperation with Harry J. Batt of Pontchatrian Beach where contests have heretofore been held.

"All This, and Heaven Too" at the Orpheum will open to the highest prices in the history of the theatre: $1.12 after 8:30 p. m. All seats are reserved.

Construction on Santone Drive-In Set to Start

DALLAS—Bids were in the hands of contractors this week and construction will follow immediately on the new Drive-In Theatre for San Antonio as announced recently by Claude C. Ezell. Location adjoins the Kit Kat Club on the Fredericksburg Road northwest of that city and 4½ miles from the business center. The site will accommodate 502 cars. Estimated cost of the entire project and equipment is around $50,000. The opening is anticipated in 60 days.

W. G. Underwood and Ezell are behind the new venture. Early in the spring they announced purchase of Texas rights to install drive-in theatres and started a search for locations.

Baldwin Scripting

HOLLYWOOD—Earl Baldwin is scripting "The Weakest Link" for Warner. Eddie Albert will star.

Crescent Seeks to Strike Out 13 Items From Gov't's Bill

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Defense attorneys for Crescent Amusement Co., its affiliates, and certain producers and distributors have demanded and obtained a hearing on June 29 in U. S. district court, seeking to strike out 13 items in the government's bill of particulars. The defense seeks to have the following items eliminated as "impertinent and irrevelant:"

"(A) Palace Theatre, Rogersville. Defendant exhibitor built new theatre, cut admission prices, showed double features and caused independent exhibitor difficulty in getting good pictures, forcing him out of business.

"(B) Owner unknown, Lake City. (Same distress method charged as in A).

"(C) Name and owner unknown, Oneida. (Defendant exhibitor leased theatre from under independent exhibitor and ran him out of business.)

"(D) Roxy Theatre, Union City. (Same as A).

"(E) Roxy Theatre, Earlington, Ky. (Same as A).

"(F) Empress Theatre, Central City, Ky. (Same as A).

"(G) Kentucky Theatre, Hopkinsville, Ky. (Same as A).

"(H) Cherokee Theatre, Copper Hill. (Same as A).

"(I) Hendren and Parrott Amusement Co. Chain of 12 theatres in Tennessee cities. Independent exhibitors forced to sell for 50 per cent when defendant exhibitors threatened to build competing theatres in each city.

"(J) Lyric Theatre, Guthrie, Ky. (Same as A).

"(K) Princess, Lawrenceburg. Independent exhibitor sold 50 per cent interest under threat of competing theatre.

"(L) McKenzie Theatre, McKenzie. (Same as A).

"(M) Bama Theatre, Athens, Ala. (Same as A)."

Picture Going Costs Men More

Fort Worth—Men at Texas Christian University spend an average of $2.38 monthly on films, as compared to 98 cents disbursed by women, it was found in a recent survey of extra curricular expenses. The wide difference in amounts is largely due to the fact that the men generally buy two or more tickets. Funds spent for golf mount along with theatre tickets, with horseback riding and bicycling taking much lower figures.

Preview First of Series Of Texas Educationals

SAN ANTONIO—The first of a series of 20 educational pictures for the state's public school system was exhibited locally in the Plaza Hotel.

The initial subject is "The Story of the San Antonio Missions," which was produced here by Stephen R. Wilhelm, head of Alamo Pictures. The featurette runs 45 minutes and has been filmed with both sound and color.

At the premiere showing were members of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, civic and school authorities, and members of the cast.

Azteca Releases

SAN ANTONIO—New Azteca releases for the month as announced by J. J. Jimenez, head of the Latin-American exchange here, are: "Odio" (Hate); "En Un Burro Tres Baturros" (Three Hicks on a Donkey); Tito Guizar in "Papa Soltero;" "Cuando Canta La Ley," and "El Trovador De La Radio."

Adapts "Smiling Corpse"

HOLLYWOOD—"The Smiling Corpse," a comedy-mystery, is being adapted for Warner by Robert Presnell.

Must Face Charges of Operating a Lottery

MOBILE, ALA.—Judge J. Blocker Thornton, in Mobile equity court, granted a motion to strike from the record Ricardo Montiel's complaint in which he sought to avoid prosecution on lottery charges.

The indictment was returned against Montiel for his Bank Night operation in the Saenger, Mobile's largest downtown theatre.

Montiel immediately appealed to the state supreme court. He charges discrimination, in that while he was indicted for Bank Night operations, scores of Bingo games, sponsored by church and fraternal organizations, were allowed to run uninterruptedly.

MEMPHIS

W A. SCULLY, general sales manager for Universal, together with Frank McCarthy, eastern sales manager, spent several days in Memphis this past week with Jimmy Prichard, their local branch manager, working with the circuits, and incidentally, to see their new streamlined exchange.

This past week saw three new theatre operations in this territory: C. H. Hulin reopened the Star at Hughes, Ark., which had been closed for the past couple of years; Harlon Madden opened his ace suburban house, the Cozy, in Carruthersville, Mo., and James Joe opened the Grand View in Grenada, Miss., which is to be for colored.

Among Filmrowers vacationing are: Ilene Lindsay, assistant cashier at Universal who is taking it easy in Michigan; Mack Jackson, National Screen Service is relaxing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jackson, in Alexander City, Ala. Incidentally, Mack's father operates the Strand in Alexander City; Milton Lindner, salesman for NSS, is taking in the Fair in New York; Louise Moeller, secretary at Malco Theatres, is off to parts unknown; Evelyn Hammond, Tom Young's secretary at Fox, and Maxine Wilkerson, Bill Bugie's secretary at Paramount, are staying in "their own back yards."

Congratulations are in order for the Jimmy Augustines of the Normal, Memphis, on the arrival of an 8½ pound boy some ten days ago. Jimmy jr. and mother are doing nicely . . . An unusual visitor this past week was Ernest Austine of Rison, Ark.

Virginia Brown, secretary at Malco Theatres, became Mrs. James G. Raiford, Saturday night, when she was married at Hernando, Miss. . . . O. W. McCutcheon advises he has just installed fluorescent carpets in his Malone at Sikeston, Mo.

Monday was Ladies' Day at the Variety Club and the two "Bobs" on Filmrow were crowned "Kings for the Day"—Bob Conway of NSS and Bob Bostick of NTS put on a "Midnight Ramble" program at high-noon. About 125 were present . . . Morris Gelders has joined the staff of the NTS . . . G. H. Goff of the Rustic, Parsons, Tenn., has been elected Mayor . . . M. H. Brandon, president of Film Transit, Inc., visited his Memphis office this past week . . . K. H. Kinney of Hughes, Ark., advises he has just about recuperated from the Shrine convention.

A. C. Bromberg, president of Republic Pictures of the Southeast, who recently bought the Arkansas franchise, spent this past week consolidating the Little Rock and Memphis exchanges. With the purchase of this franchise, this makes him the largest individual franchise holder in the company. Merritt Davis, who is well known in this territory has joined the sales staff and will cover the Arkansas territory.

R. H. Fisher of the Crescent, Belzoni, Miss., was in advancing his bookings . . . Kirby Smith, Linden Circle manager, in Memphis, who is in the reserve corps of the Army, received notice this past week to report for duty at Ft. Riley, Kas. As yet no announcement has been made as to who will take over his post.

The Advertising Accesories, Inc., bought out the Peerless Advertising Co. this past week, and Bailey Prichard, who operated Peerless for the past several years, went with AA as salesman for Mississippi and Tennessee, Bob Conway, branch manager, announced. The Peerless Printing department will be maintained as in the past with Ralph Prichard in charge.

CHARLOTTE

H H. "HECK" EVERETT of Charlotte has been elected governor of District 31-A of the North Carolina Lions clubs. He is president of the Everett Enterprises, Inc., operating a group of theatres in the Carolinas.

New booth equipment has been installed in the Ritz at Walterboro, S. C. by National Theatre Supply. H. B. Cook is manager of the Ritz.

The Clinton at Clinton was opened last week by R. P. Rosser . . . W. B. Joyner opened the Gay at Gibsonville last week . . . Ruth Hardin of the National Theatre Supply office is out on vacation.

John Scott Trotter took time out from his work in Hollywood to fly to Charlotte to spend his birthday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Trotter. He has just completed his first feature-length picture, "Rhythm on the River."

Managerial Shift Follows Bernstecker's Promotion

CHARLOTTE—Effective June 23, according to announcement by H. F. Kincey, general manager of North Carolina Theatres, Inc.; Emil Bernstecker, present city manager and in charge of the Carolina here, will become district manager of the company's eastern theatres; Neil McGill, manager of the Imperial, will succeed Bernstecker at the Carolina, and Sanford Jordon, manager of the Broadway, will become city manager of the Lexington theatres.

Dewanner Stallings, city manager of Lenoir theatres, will take over the Imperial, and Clyde Wooten, manager of a theatre in Danville, Va., will become manager of the Broadway here.

Other changes in the organization are: Roy L. Smart, present district manager, will take charge of booking and buying; Harry Hardy, present booker and buyer, will become district manager; Montgomery Hill and Warren Irvin will retain their district offices at Greensboro and Columbia, S. C., respectively.

ATLANTA

MR. AND MRS. M. C. MOORE, Riverside, Jacksonville, Fla., spent several days here. Mrs. Moore then continued on to Alabama to visit relatives . . . George Jones, office manager for Republic, spent the weekend at the Georgia Power Co. camp in Gainesville, Ga. . . . Filmrow visitors were: J. Jarrell, Roxy, Commerce, Ga.; L. Ramm, Aiken, S. C.; Thomas Brandon, Magnolia, Titusville, Fla.; G. A. Johnson, Cherokee, Center, Ala.; Mrs. Violet Edwards, Strand, Washington, Ga.; O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga.; Col. Thomas E. Orr, Albertville, Ala.; R. E. Martin, Columbus, Ga.; J. F. Camp, Ritz, Barnesville, Ga., and Moon Corker, city manager for L&J Theatres, Athens, Ga. . . . M. J. Rogers, cashier at Universal, is vacationing.

B. C. Gibson Will Helm UA Branch in Dallas

DALLAS—B. C. Gibson, United Artists salesmen, has been named branch manager, succeeding Hugh Owen, who was elevated to the post of southern district manager.

Gibson started as a film salesman 20 years ago in Atlanta for the old World Film Company and has since followed that vocation in the same capacity with one exception. He arrived here in 1920 as salesman for Educational. Then he became associated with M-G-M's Leo. From M-G-M he dropped the salesman classification to become branch manager for Sono Art-World Wide for two years during the life of that company.

Gibson then connected with Universal and later joined United Artists where he has been for the past few seasons. Aside from film duties, he is one of Variety Club's most active members.

TENNESSEE

SUNDAY films have been defeated in Covington, but the city council of Murfreesboro has referred the question to a vote of the people . . . Nine Nashville suburban theatres promoted attendance on Father's Day by allowing fathers to come in free with one child's paid admission. Hundreds of youngsters marched in proudly with their dads.

Cherokee Amusement Co. has sold its lease on the Strand, Mountain City, to Allen O. Kent, Gade Springs, Va. Kent has had 20 years experience in theatre operation.

A stock company, "The Suitcase Theatre," plans summer shows at the Fisk University Little Theatre (Negro), opening with "Do You Want to Be Free?" The company will present a scene from this play at the national convention of the New Theatre League in Philadelphia.

White, Bungalow, Weatherford; Louis Barton, Stroud; Paul Covey, Laverne, Laverne; John Terry, Rex, Konowa; Bill Jones and Bill Strickler, Harmony, Sand Springs; Carl Burton, A-Mus-U, Cordell; Harry Holt, formerly an exhibitor at Maud; Mrs. Ida Haines, Cortez, Wanette; Wesley Hodges, Broadway, Anadarko; Max Brock, Palace, Lawton; A. B. Momand, Shawnee.

Bob Pfotenhauer, manager of the State, has been up in the air lately with an air-conditioning crew in his theatre at all hours of the day and night. He came to work the other morning with one brown and one grey sock and was unaware of it until his mother telephoned and asked him what socks he was wearing. As Bob is an immaculate dresser, that was something.

Donald Alvin and Earl Ford, usher and doorman, respectively, at the State, have resigned . . . The old Folly, closed now for several years, is having its walls plastered preparatory to reopening, which Joe Cooper, president of Joe Cooper Enterprises, will determine when he arrives here this week. The Folly, formerly a 15-cent grind, will operate on the same policy when it reopens, according to Standard officials, which company leases the house.

Gladys Hale, secretary to A. L. Smith, Standard Theatres treasurer, is spending two weeks in Texas . . . Mrs. Louis Barton, wife of the Stroud, Okla., exhibitor, underwent a major operation there last Monday. Her husband was in Oklahoma City last week for the state Democratic convention and also to attend to details of contsruction of his new $50,000 theatre on Southwest 29th St. near Western Ave. Difficulty over clearing title to the lots had held up construction, but Barton has a green light showing now.

Mrs. J. E. Hobbes, wife of the Universal branch manager here, has gone to Charlotte, N. C., their old home, with daughters Nancy and Laura, to spend the summer . . . J. O. Stallings is reported to have leased the Joy at Ringling from O. L. Athey. Stallings formerly operated the Joy before Athey leased it from him . . . Another recent change in ownership was the leasing of the Blue Moon at Garber to Thurman H. Ellerd, Oklahoma City, by Cecil J. Hammett.

E. B. Coleman, M-G-M exploiteer from Dallas, was in town working on "Edison, the Man" which has been booked for this week in the Criterion, downtown first-run Standard house . . . Margaret Mason, M-G-M accessory billing clerk, is spending her vacation visiting some folks in Dallas . . . Woody Sherrill, formerly of M-G-M's ad sales department here and later booker in the Kansas City exchange, is now head booker in Des Moines.

Ed Peel, Warner head booker, has been elected president of the Filmrow bowling league for the coming year. Berlin Parks, National Theatre Supply, was named vice-president, and George Friedel, head booker at 20th Century-Fox, secretary-treasurer . . . Clyde Marker, assistant booker at 20th-Fox, returned from a week's Dallas vacation, then had to take another week to recuperate.

R. E. GRIFFITH donned tight-fitting khaki and left for the peaks and canyons of New Mexico on a pack horse expedition. He took Rupert E. Griffith jr. and a nephew, Gene Moore, of Fairfax, Okla., along. The trip will last about a week.

"Miss Hurricane," the prize Trinity bottoms turtle which Bingo host Duke Evans exhibited at the Variety Club last Friday night, went to none other than Alfred N. Sack, head of the Sack Amusement Enterprises. To be sure, Sack will enter the amphibian in the Variety Turtle Derby to be "run" here during August.

Hugo Plath of the University Theatre, Houston, was here Tuesday and told friends he has sold his interest in that theatre. Current reports are that the University is again being operated by Dale F. Luckie, who built and opened the place about three years ago.

R. C. "Bob' McIlheran, manager of the Gem, Wichita Falls, was in booking. His last visit two months ago was on a trip to San Antonio when R. C. McIlheran jr. was commissioned a lieutenant in the U. S. air corps. He is now stationed in Panama. Bob said it has rained as much in Wichita as it has here but that business has been good.

Ben Knoch came up Wednesday with his partner, Ernest Rockett, from Waxahachie . . . Fred and Mrs. Oliver drove down from Shamrock in the Panhandle to book and shop around equipment houses. Distance makes them among the infrequent visitors. They operate the Liberty.

The Roy C. Lees have a pet goat that always goes along when they are out night clubbing . . . The Lakewood, newest of the neighborhood deluxers, operated a cooking school two days this week.

Karl Hoblitzelle is now exhibiting pictures in Dallas other than films. In the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts at Fair Park, the famous Hoblitzelle collection is on display. The group includes restored masterpieces of the 16th century, and later works of ancient vintage.

The Warnerites are back from the company's annual convention in Chicago, which, by the way, was the last confab among film companies to be held this year. Those making the trip from here were Southern Division Manager Fred M. Jack; Doak Roberts, branch manager; Salesmen H. D. Parks, W. O. Williamson, H. G. Krumm, Paul Backus, Byron Adams, and William W. Lewis, publicity man.

Rubin Frels was here from Victoria booking for his south Texas circuit. With him was Rubin jr., who seemingly has grown about one foot since his last visit to the Row . . . L. M. Threet of Lufkin passed through Monday on his way to the Chicago Allied convention.

G. A. Cole, who during the past few years has operated in several Texas towns and most recently at Fort Stockton, was back on the Row this week. He is expected to enter a new location shortly.

Newsreel Division Plan Works for Interstate

DALLAS—Interstate officials determined their newsreel policy this week which includes elimination of war shots from part of the Elm Street screens. The Tower and Capitol are showing the uncensored reels. The more gruesome scenes are being eliminated at the Rialto. All war scenes are deleted at the Palace and Majestic, according to James O. Cherry, city manager.

When trailers announcing this policy were shown on the Palace and Majestic screens, audiences loudly applauded, Cherry said.

Complaints of adverse audience reaction to war scenes in smaller towns have been negligible.

Jenkins Plans Exchanges In Dallas and Atlanta

DALLAS—John Jenkins, engaged the past several years in the distribution of all-Negro pictures, announced his intention to establish exchanges in Dallas and Atlanta soon.

Jenkins recently contracted with Supreme Pictures for a series of four Negro films and four Bob Steele re-issues. His connection as representative of Million Dollar Productions, also makers of Negro films, has not been changed.

Remodeling Mishap Not to Halt McAlester Work

DALLAS — During process of remodeling the R&R Ritz in McAlester, Okla., which the circuit had under contract, the rear wall toppled in and one workman was killed, according to C. V. Jones, R&R official who inspected the scene of the accident this week. Work has been stopped temporarily but will soon proceed to completion, he said.

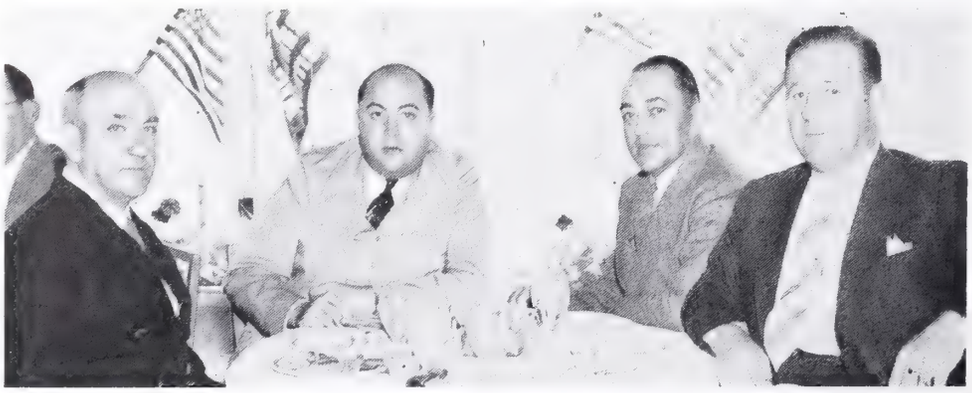
Gulfport Opening

GULFPORT, MISS.—The Ritz, a 350-seat theatre for colored, was opened here Friday by A. L. Royal, who also owns and operates the Royal, a downtown all-white house. His new Ritz will be managed by M. M. Bailey, formerly of Lumberton, Miss.

Holiday Bound—

Awaiting bus time at the Freeman Memorial Clinic, this group of youngsters is ready for a two-week stay at the Dallas Variety Club's summer camp for boys. It was the season's second group and totaled 75. The camp, located on the R. E. Griffith farm near Belton, is in its second year under the supervision of Marshall Brown, athletic director of the Dallas Athletic Club.

SANTONE

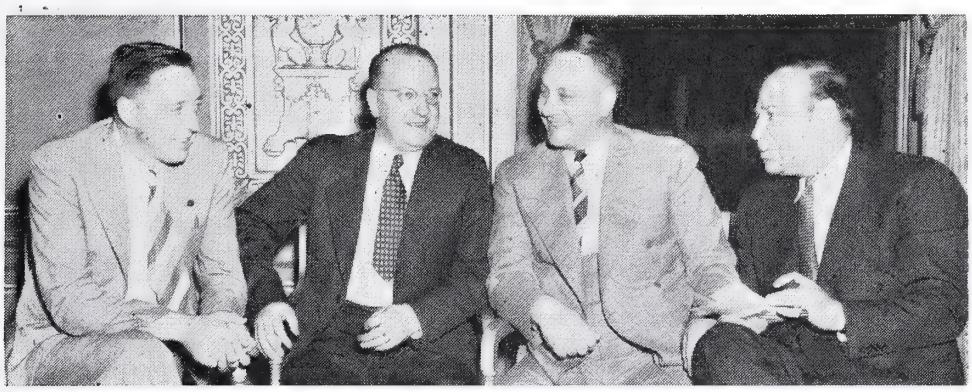


THE CAMEO, new Negro house, opened with a revival of "Nurse Edith Cavell" to satisfactory business . . . Over at the Joy, Jack Arnold, Dallasite, is holding sway as the new leading straight man . . . Johnny Dennis, local representative for the MPMO, back from the Louisville meet . . . Miss Dorris Null, candy gal at the State, pinch-hitted in the boxoffice while Irene Brown vacationed down on Corpus bay. Incidentally, Peggy Norby, new popcorn saleslady, manned both stands, pro tem.

When "The Magic Bullet" recently played at the Texas, it was advertised in the press ads as "not a gangster picture" . . . Phil Alexander auditioned his "Let Them Speak" stage play on the Plaza Hotel mezzanine floor last week for Interstate . . . Two of San Antonio's best actors—Jay Ralston and Eddie Moran—will be seen in the Civic Opera, "Student Prince," at the Sunken Garden Theatre, June 25.

Local Interstate theatres participated in the Red Cross drive by solicitation of war relief funds through collections during each performance, daily . . . Interstate's Gift Books of tickets were hawked as an ideal present for Father's Day . . . Now all the laddies and lassies will have to watch their steps since yours truly has been appointed a special deputy constable of precinct one, Bexar county . . . San Antonio's drive-in will be constructed by Messrs. Ezell and Underwood of Dallas and will open on or about August 1 with accommodations for 300 cars. Location will be on Fredericksburg Road, just outside the city limits.

For the third consecutive year, Joseph McGarrigle, English actor and World War vet, has been made stage manager for the San Antonio Civic Opera Co. Joe also has a part in the next production . . . Lupitina Narro, Latin-American exchange employe, hard at work after that vacation in Mexico City . . . T. J. Jackson, son of "Stout" Jackson, tent roadshowman, is here training with Uncle Sam's aviators at the major flying fields.



Dropping in at the Aztec, Tuesday, we were reminded of Grauman's Chinese in Hollywood. The theatre was perfumed with the exciting new fragrance of "Safari," which was also the title of the feature picture.

F-P Managers Move Across Continent

TORONTO—Several important changes in managerial personnel of Famous Players Canadian Corp. have been made in various parts of the Dominion.

L. M. Graburn, lately acting district supervisor on the Atlantic Coast and previously manager in Vancouver on the Pacific Coast, left Halifax for Toronto, stopped momentarily and proceeded to Regina, Sask., to become manager of the Capitol in that city.

Robert Maynard has resigned as manager of the Cartier in Hull and Louis Gauthier, assistant manager of the Capitol, Sudbury, in northern Ontario, was promoted by District Manager Jack Arthur to succeed Maynard who has entered another line of business.

Replacing Gauthier at the Sudbury Capitol as assistant to S. Scott is M. Phillips, promoted from the position of usher at the Capitol in North Bay.

Mamoulian Directs Power

HOLLYWOOD—Rouben Mamoulian will direct "The Californian" for 20th-Fox. Tyrone Power will play the title role.

Silent Tribute to Allied Forces

Montreal—Tribute to the gallantry of Allied forces fighting against the onrushing Nazis in France was paid by theatre audiences in most of the city's central theatres on the evening of the capture of Paris. The orchestras spontaneously played "La Marseillaise" between shows.

Moviegoers about to leave the theatres, and others coming in, stopped wherever they were and stood silently at attention as the stirring strains of France's national anthem swelled up, and remained stationary until the music died away.

After final performances at each of the theatres—a check revealed this was being done at the Loew's, Palace, Capitol, Princess and Imperial—"La Marseillaise" was again played, but was this time followed by "God Save the King."

Projectionists Make Services Available

TORONTO—Following a meeting of the Toronto Motion Picture Operators Union subsequent to the return to the city of delegates to the 35th annual IATSE convention in Louisville, Ky., formal announcement was made by President Charles Dentelbeck that the members of the local had placed their services at the disposal of the Dominion government in the war effort for capacities in which they were best fitted to perform special duties.

One of the first steps in this direction has been to provide projectionists, who are employed in theatres where night performances are scheduled except on Saturdays and holidays, for national service as electrical technicians without remuneration. Experienced in sound projection, these men have been made available for the repair and maintenance of wireless, telephonic and other equipment in use by the armed forces, for instructional purposes and for the providing of entertainment features. Members of the International Union are giving their spare time during mornings and afternoons without charge.

Arthur Milligan, an officer of the Toronto local for many years and one of the Toronto delegates to the Louisville convention, has been named chairman of the committee to supervise this national service and to maintain contact with the Government Departments in the placing of projectionists in part-time duties.

Word has been received from E. J. Landsborough, manager of the Capitol at Galt, Ont., that one of his operators, J. Freeman, has joined the colors by enlisting in the Canadian Active Service Force for Overseas service.

Announcement has also been made by Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players Canadian Corp., that the circuit has donated a projection machine to the military theatre at Camp Borden where a considerable number of C.A.S.F. units have been assembled from the Toronto and eastern Ontario military districts for intensive training. Films are being loaned by film exchanges in Toronto for camp performances at frequent intervals during each week.

Back from the IATSE convention trip and holidays are W. P. Covert, business agent, Arthur Milligan, who is a veteran operator at the Toronto Imperial, Dave Siegel of the Toronto Casino, and President Dentelbeck.

A. J. Laurie Effects Distribution Deal

TORONTO—One of the most important of trade developments in Canada in recent years reached its final stage last weekend with the completion of arrangements for the distribution in the Dominion of features of Associated Talking Pictures, Ealing Studios and Michael Balcon Productions, a five-year franchise for which has been signed by a new company, Esquire Films, Ltd., with head office in Toronto, of which A. J. Laurie is president and general manager.

Fifteen features for immediate release comprise the first allotment under the franchise and prints of 14 pictures have already been received by Esquire Films which was recently incorporated as a company under a federal government charter. The concluding deal in connection with the setup was the signing of a contract with Empire-Universal Films for the physical distribution of this group of pictures throughout Canada by means of the six Empire offices from coast to coast. Announcement to this effect was made at the annual sales convention of Empire-Universal at the Royal York Hotel here, with all officials and branch managers in attendance as well as President Laurie of Esquire Films who presented an outline of the product. It is noteworthy that Laurie was assistant general sales manager of Empire-Universal until a few months ago when he resigned to launch his own enterprise. Arthur Lee of New York, former general manager of GB in the States, was also in attendance and it was divulged that he has acquired the United States rights for the 15 features.

Most Prints Ready

President Laurie announced that his company would control all new features starring George Formby who has been rated the leading boxoffice star in England for the past two years in an official survey, while other productions are directed by Robert Stevenson. Heading the list is the naval film "Convoy," dealing with the present war marine situation. It was announced that "Let George Do It," with George Formby, would have a Broadway premiere in a few weeks. The list includes "Young Man's Fancy," "The Proud Valley" with Paul Robeson, "Cheer Boys Cheer," "Return to Yesterday," "Saloon Bar," "It's in the Air," "Sailors Three," "John and Marion," "I See Ice," "The Outsider" with George Sanders and Mary Maguire," "The Human Monster" with Bela Lugosi, and "I Killed the Count." Prints of all these pictures are already available with the exception of "John and Marion" which is not yet completed.

Laurie is a veteran of the film business in the Dominion, having made his start as an exhibitor at Montreal back in 1911.

TORONTO

JACK ARTHUR, district manager of Famous Players Canadian Corp., has been appointed chairman of the subdivision of the Canadian Red Cross national committee for advertising and has supervision of theatre and radio features for the society.

Miss Gladys Withers, cashier of the Capitol, Sarnia, Ont., has gained wide fame as a ticket seller, apart from her duties in the boxoffice. She has been mentioned in dispatches because of her record in selling hundreds of books of Thrift Tickets issued in recent weeks by Famous Players Canadian Corp., being far in the lead in the sales campaign. Last December, Miss Withers also set a record for the circuit in the sale of admission books as Christmas gifts. W. J. Fawcett is the manager of the Sarnia Capitol.

Al Ironsides, formerly of the Toronto office of Associated Screen News, visited his old haunts around the local film colony while on leave from the Royal Canadian Air Force with which he has been training as a full-fledged airman for some months.

Word has been received from England that Fred Doney, manager of the Capitol, St. Thomas, Ont., has been promoted to the rank of Captain and has been appointed to a brigade staff headquarters. Capt. Doney was one of the first in Canada to enlist last September and went Overseas with the first division of the Canadian Active Service Force. Fred Masters of Famous Players' auditing department, who is now across the Atlantic with the Royal Canadian Air Force, has been promoted to the rank of Leading Aircraftsman.

M. Scoyne, well-known to the public for some years as the doorman of the Capitol, London, Ontario, has joined the colors and is headed for overseas with the Canadian Army . . . Roy Tasch, ace cameraman of Associated Screen News, has been permanently appointed to the Toronto branch of the company and is busily engaged with newsreel work and shooting for government pictures. Montreal was formerly his base of operations.

Manager Al Sedgwick of the Belsize, secured wide publicity, including many pictures in the daily newspapers with his beauty contest, the final competition of which was conducted Monday night, June 17, before a crowded house. For the final judging, the 12 young ladies appeared in bathing costumes, after wearing street clothes in the elimination tests.

Announcement has been made from Famous Players' head office, of the appointment of Sylvester Gunn, booker of Western Theatres, to the management of the Metropolitan at Winnipeg in succession to Don Gauld who has been promoted to be assistant district manager in the Middle West under the direction of E. A. Zorn. Hilliard Gunn, formerly chief of staff at the Metropolitan, has been made assistant manager to Frank Willis at the Orpheum, Fort William, Ont.

Martin Simpson, formerly assistant manager at the Capitol, Hamilton, Ont., has been transferred to Halifax to be assistant to R. S. Roddick at the Capitol. With the appointment of Arthur Ducharme as manager of the new Park at Windsor, Ont., Ralph Bartlett, assistant manager at the Windsor Tivolix has replaced him as assistant manager at the Windsor Palace. Lloyd Allen, chief of staff at the Windsor Capitol, has become assistant manager at the Tivoli.

Fred Trebilcock has resumed his post as manager of the big Uptown, after a series of misadventures on his holiday flying trip to South American Republics. He experienced the earthquake at Lima, Peru, after which he started for home on a Pan-American Clipper. He became ill at Trinidad and had to be taken from the airplane at Miami for an appendix operation. He is still under the doctor's care.

Frank O'Byrne, Toronto branch manager of Associated Screen News, made a flying trip to Algonquin Park for a fishing outing. During the flight, the airplane encountered a severe storm but Frank did not know it until some time afterwards when he was awakened from sound slumber. He subsequently made a trip to Montreal on business.

Among the screen and stage stars who have been booked for engagements during the summer stage season at the Royal Alexandra, are Raymond Massey, Miriam Hopkins, Ruth Chatterton, Edward Everett Horton, Ina Claire, Bramwell Fletcher and possibly Laurence Olivier, the latter having now been notified by the British War Office that his military services are not required for the present.

William McKnight, veteran exhibitor and former Toronto newspaperman, has resigned as manager of the Capitol, Woodstock, Ont., which is operated by Griffin Theatres Limited . . . Charles Dentelbeck, supervisor of projection for Famous Players, has returned from a tour of inspection at theatres in Galt, Guelph and other Western Ontario cities.

TILBURY NOTES: Basil Markle, in charge of advertising at the Plaza, left for a honeymoon trip to Montreal.

In a tieup with Salada Tea, local merchants have arranged with the Plaza to admit children to the theatre for the tops of tea packages.

Pete Barnes of Dallas, Texas, owner of Foto-Nite, was a visitor here for the introduction of the game to Tilbury.

All soldiers, home on leave before going to Camp Borden, have been guests of the Plaza . . . The Plaza, incidentally, held a private screening for nuns and priests of the district, on the occasion of presenting the March of Time reel dealing with the Vatican.

Scoffs at Idea Britain Will Move Studios to Canada

TORONTO—Arthur Lee of New York discounted the idea that British film studios would be transferred to Canada because of the war, as intimated by Robert G. Sherriff, author, in a statement on arrival in the Dominion from England.

Interviewed at Toronto where he was attending the Empire-Universal annual sales convention, Lee declared that he knew nothing of any general movement for the setting up of British studios in the Dominion and regarded the idea as somewhat ridiculous.

"When they stop producing pictures at the London studios, they will stop producing at Hollywood," declared Lee with emphasis.

Lee represented Gaumont-British in the United States for a long period and has been closely linked with the British industry. He resigned as GB general manager for the United States on June 1 but is launching an enterprise of his own for the distribution of British product in the States, it is understood.

Theatre Circuits Meeting Dividends Regularly

TORONTO—The Eastern Theatres, Ltd., subsidiary of F-P Canadian Corp., operating the Toronto Imperial which seats 3,373, has declared a dividend of three and one-half per cent on the preferred shares of the company for the first six months of 1940, payable July 31.

In connection with the 3½ per cent dividend currently being paid by Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., Toronto, half of which is being applied against back interest on the seven per cent cumulative preferred shares, dividend arrears on Loew's in downtown Toronto have been reduced to $10.50. A dividend was paid April 1 and, within three months, another payment is being made.

It is of interest that not one of the important theatre companies or chains of the Dominion has passed its dividends during the past 12 months.

Proposed Parry Sound Building Abandoned

TORONTO — Theatre Holding Corp. has announced that it will not proceed with the erection of a new theatre in Parry Sound, Ont., on a site which was purchased a short time ago, to replace the Royal. The latter, bought last year, seats about 300 persons and it is being enlarged to take care of present demands. Jack Wellard, formerly of Columbia Pictures' Toronto office, is the manager of the Royal.

"Hell's Angels" Again

TORONTO—The original "Hell's Angels" has been revived at two Toronto theatres, the Avenue and the Pylon. The Avenue is situated close to the Royal Canadian Air Force training school in North Toronto and many air cadets were attracted by the feature.

Changes Follow F-P Control Extension

WINNIPEG—The most important development in local film circles is the deal through which FP has gained control over several houses formerly owned jointly with Western Theatres Limited. These houses include the Gaiety, Tivoli, Uptown and the Crescent. As a result of the new set-up, various changes have taken place with regard to personnel. Don Gauld, one-time manager of the Metropolitan, has been appointed supervisor of the new four-house circuit. Leno Toraldo moves in as manager of the Crescent. Harold Gray, formerly assistant manager of the Metropolitan, takes over the managerial post at the Tivoli. Jack Fitzgibbon replaces Gray as assistant at the Metropolitan.

Expect Passport Demand Will Boost Patronage

TORONTO—If the United States government goes through with its announced intention of requiring the possession of a passport by every visitor from the Dominion after July 1, theatre owners and managers in the border cities of Canada expect that the restrictive regulation will have the effect of stimulating patronage in their houses. With Canadian money at ten per cent discount and the U. S. border officials asking for passports at $5 each, Canadians will be less inclined to cross the line for screen entertainment, it is believed.

R. L. Vallee Will Soon Open in Sherbrooke

SHERBROOKE, QUE.—R. L. Vallee, head of the Independent Theatres circuit, is rapidly readying the Premier Theatre here, which he took over on May 1, for its opening.

New equipment and acoustical treatment have been installed and completed and a contract for air conditioning has been signed. The cost of the modernization, which has been extended to include a new marquee as well as interior renovation is over $30,000.

War Savings Stamps Serve To Admit in Ottawa

OTTAWA—One of the new Canadian War Savings Stamps was the price of each admission to the Capitol in Ottawa at a special performance last Sunday under the auspices of the Catholic Youth Organization. Instead of admission tickets, the savings stamps were sold at the cashier's wicket and the money is being turned over to the Canadian Government to aid in the war effort.

This is the first time in Ontario that admissions of any kind have been sold on a Sunday at a place of amusement.

MONTREAL

HERR VON RIBBENTROP, Germany's foreign minister, spent several years in Canada previous to the first Great War, residing in Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa. Acquaintances noted that he was highly susceptible to ridicule, and in this connection it is related that one summer evening he wore the first white linen suit seen in the Capital as he escorted a lady to a motion picture theatre. In the darkened interior the usher thought he had removed his jacket, and, tapping him on the shoulder told him "Gentlemen are not permitted to remove their coats." Ribbentrop was furious. "Have you never seen a white suit?" he exploded. His companion had difficulty in persuading him to remain and see the show.

Import licenses will be required on all goods imported into the United Kingdom, the Canadian trade commissioner in London reports. For certain commodities, however, individual licenses will not be required, an open general license being all that is necessary. This applies to cinematograph standard width unexposed and film base film and cinematograph exposed.

Italy's declaration of war against the Allies, quickly followed by Canada's declaration of war against Italy, had the effect of substantially increasing patronage at some north end motion picture theatres in a district where Italians are numerous. One manager reported being surprised in the early afternoon by the large number of Italians who bought tickets and entered the theatre. It developed that they were seeking refuge from raids conducted by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who rounded up and arrested Italian residents.

Gordon Sparling, production supervisor, and Ross Beasley, cameraman, of the Associated Screen News, are off to the Maritime Provinces to complete a cross country tour during which they have been shooting "Peoples of Canada" for the national film board . . . J. W. Campbell, news editor of Associated Screen News, has been spending a few days in Ottawa.

Romeo Vandette, supervisor of projection equipment for the United Amusement Corp., recently built himself a speed yacht . . . Quebec life underwriters, their wives and friends, attended a showing in the Montcalm Palace, Quebec, of a Hollywood production, "Yours Truly," which deals with the art of salesmanship . . . Competition for the motion pictures these summer evenings is being provided by band concerts in the parks of Montreal.

R. C. Sheriff, author of "Journey's End," has been visiting Montreal as advance agent for Alexander Korda, famous British producer. Mr. Sheriff expects to accompany Korda to Ottawa there to discuss with officials the possibility of producing pictures in Canada.

Motion pictures from the film library of the Province of Quebec department of education were shown to Quebec Kiwanis by Gaudry Delisle, department official-Tizoune, Montreal French-speaking comedian, was featured at a special midnight show at the Cambrai, Quebec . . . Dave Bines, RKO dance director and producer, has been engaged for the fifth consecutive season as production chief of the theatrical group at Schroon Manor, Schroom Lake, resort which attracts numerous Montrealers each summer.

Two Montreal projectionists will be honeymooning soon, it is reported. They are Tommy Keegan, of the Corona and Paul Guilbault of the Seville, who are understood to be contemplating early assumption of the bonds of matrimony.

A new combined amusement and tax ticket imposed on exhibitors by the Province of New Brunswick is objected to on the ground that theatregoers might be able to purchase tickets in one place of amusement and use them in another, as tickets are all alike except for the serial number which the doormen would not have time to check.

John Justin, 22-year-old British film star, wha has just completed "The Thief of Bagdad" at Hollywood, is here on his way to England to join the Royal Air Farce. He obtained his pilots license last year and was paced on the reserve, but has just been called home.

Greatest of the British patriotic films, the "screen's thrilling tribute to the glorious of the British Navy," "For Freedom," starring Will Fyffe, Scotland's greatest actor, and officers and men of the light cruisers Ajax and Exeter, drew throngs to the Palace. "For Freedom" has the endorsement of high-ranking officers of the Canadian Navy.

Lucien Roy, energetic western representative of Associated Screen News, flew to Edmonton to film the ceremonies in connection with the disbanding of the famous Edmonton "Grads" basketball team . . . Stuart Legg, of the National Film Board, was a visitor to the Associated Screen News head office in Montreal.

WINNIPEG

FRANK H. KERSHAW has been appointed district supervisor of the Alberta division of FP. In the company of A. E. Zorn, western district manager, Kershaw left this week to take up his new duties at Calgary.

Bill Novak, formerly manager of the Capitol at Regina, comes to Winnipeg to manage the Gaiety. E. A. Retalick goes to the Uptown helm.

The medical profession takes control of cinema fare in the city this week with three films at first run houses including doctors in their showings. "The Doctor Takes a Wife" goes into its third week at the Garrick. "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," is playing Eddie Newman's Lyceum. "Dr. Cyclops" is doing well for Syl Gunn at the Metropolitan.

Nestor Novak returns from his holidays at the beginning of the week . . . Sir Harry Lauder returns to town in a film, "Song of the Road," which is playing the Osborne.

Empire-Universal Dines Universal and Republic

TORONTO—The dinners formed the diverting functions of the annual convention of the Empire-Universal in the Royal York Hotel here.

At the Universal dinner, the guests of honor were W. A. Scully, general sales manager of Universal, and F. J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager. Prominent guests included Col. John A. Cooper, president of Motion Picture Distributors of Canada; J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., and Jules Allen of Theatre Holding Corp. and Premier Theatres, with Arthur A. Lee of New York.

A similar dinner was held for Republic when the guest of honor was President James R. Grainger.

Officials of the Canadian company included President O. Hanson, Vice-President Paul R. Nathanson, General Manager A. W. Perry, Sales Manager Harry Paynter, and Clair Hague, Canadian Universal representative.

A patriotic theme was presented in the assembly room for the convention in the display of a handsome life-size painting of His Majesty King George VI in a large gold frame which was festooned with Union Jacks. This was provided for the occasion by Ben Cronk of Toronto.

"Primrose Path" Permit Withdrawn in Ontario

TORONTO—Announcement has been made by Chairman O. J. Silverthorne of the Ontario film censor board that the permit for the exhibition of "Primrose Path" in this province had been withdrawn because of complaints from the Local Council of Women regarding the moral tone of the feature. He intimated that the picture might be released after further consideration.

"I don't think the picture is any worse than 'Of Mice and Men' and 'Grapes of Wrath' which are along the same line. It will likely be shown again," Chairman Silverthorne declared.

: How They Sell 'Em :

Andy Ostrander, pinch-hitting for Nestor Novak away on holiday, helped Harold Bishop in lining tie-ups in connection with "Lillian Russell" in window displays at Eatons, the Bay and Birks-Dingwall stores in Winnipeg. In connection with his showing next week of "This Freedom," Harold Bishop is preparing a strong campaign which will feature a parade of 250 sea cadets and their band to the house.

Three hundred one sheets, interesting newspaper ads featuring intriguing teasers featured Syl Gunn's exploitation of "Dr. Cyclops" which is playing his Winnipeg house this week. A window in the T. Eaton Co., played an important part in a tieup with a Paramount Pictorial on men's hats. Ten thousand biscuits, distributed in connection with a local biscuit manufacturer, was the medium Gunn used successfully to ballyhoo his showing of the "The Biscuit Eater."

VANCOUVER

FILMROW is awaiting details of film losses suffered in the burning of the Orpheum at Dawson City . . . Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Elliott, Rex, Quesnel, B. C., are enjoying a visit from their daughter Mabel, who came down from Stewart to see them . . . The third in the series, "Canada Carries On," entitled "Home Front," is to make it's first appearance at the Capitol, June 27. The film, dealing with women's activities in war time, was preceded by "Atlantic Patrol" and "A Letter From Aldershot."

The Bralorne and Pioneer mines have hit upon a plan to enable their men, who may be temporarily embarrassed, to see the pictures they exhibit in their community halls. Any one wishing to see the show asks the time-keeper for a theatre check which is then chalked up against his wages. This may give the time office some extra work but at the same time it boosts boxoffice receipts . . . W. S. Weston is installing a second projector in the Oliver booth at Williams Lake.

"Babe" Coval is expected back from that WB convention . . . When the Dominion was closed for alterations, Bill Tenny was offered a fill-in job in the booth of another theatre, but he said no and went fishing . . . Harold "Happy" Wardrop, who was laid up some time ago, asked the Plaza to cease holding his job open for him as he intends taking an extended rest while recuperating. Art Carriveau, projectionist at the Rex, will take "Happy's" place.

Another change will occur when Shirly Wilson will leave the booth at the Bay to take the place of Earle Baltazar, who left the Stanley to go into business with his brother in Oregon . . . L. B. Pantages, secretary-treasurer of Local 348, and Harry Pearson, Local 118, delegates to the IATSE convention, are expected back this week, but R. G. Pollock, president of 348, may not be with them as he proposed visiting the New York World's Fair.

When not busy in the projecting booth, Joe La Chance's mind is busy with inventions. His latest is a salmon lure which so impressed others that it was quickly financed and is now being manufactured in quantity. It is said that Joe once had an idea for a reversible propellor . . . Keeping up to schedule, the reflooring of the Dominion is finished and seats are now being installed.

"People of Canada" to Be Next Dominion Feature

TORONTO—The next propaganda picture of the national film board of Canada will be released under the title of "People of Canada," it is intimated. This was scheduled under the heading of "Women at War" but Republic Pictures has produced a feature with a similar title.

Work is in hand on a national film which is really international in that it deals with the amity—not enmity—between Canada and the United States, with particular reference to the more than 3,000 miles of mutual boundary on which there are no fortifications for "self defense."

Grace Fields' Montreal Visit Creates Flurry

MONTREAL—Monty Banks, British actor and film producer, husband of Gracie Fields, may produce a film in Canada starring his wife, he informed BOXOFFICE during a visit by the couple to Montreal.

Gracie Fields, who is making a trans-Canada tour, sponsored by the Navy League of Canada, with the object of raising funds for wounded and disabled seamen and their families, hit the front pages immediately. Officials of the Canadian Legion and the Navy League went to the City Hall to arrange a civic reception for the star and to see that she signed the Golden Book, when Mayor Camillien Houde declined to receive her on the ground that the tour was a publcity stunt. Protests poured in on the City Hall, editors condemned the mayor and then Mr. Houde backed down, declaring he was under a misapprehension when he refused the invitation. Miss Fields has shown no concern, simply saying she "did not come to Canada for afternoon tea but to work for the soldiers and sailors," and said she was too busy to think about social matters.

Ottawa Civil Employes Will Miss Matinees

OTTAWA—Adverse effect upon matinee patronage of theatres of the Dominion Capital is expected in the decision of the Canadian government to discontinue the practice of early closing for the 15,000 civil servants in Ottawa during the summer months because of the war. Previously, the daily schedule during the hot season was 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. with 90 minutes off for lunch but all that is changed now and the government employes must struggle through to a later hour—or too late to catch the matinee price at Ottawa theatres.

Columbia

Amazing Mr. Williams, The
This was the talk of this little burg. It was a scream from start to finish. I played it on Bank Night. It is a hard picture to get patrons to see. Don't play up the cast, play up the plot. Wednesday. Weather: Good. Admission: 30-10. Spanish patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 305.—T. J. Wade, Mesa, Roy and American, N M.

Too Many Husbands
A snappy comedy that will please the patrons. Columbia product always dependable. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 350.—John L. Bush, Ritz, Little River, Kas.

First National

Fighting 69th, The
Absolutely tops in war pictures. Very timely in showing. I was proud to stand in the lobby as they came out of this one. Cagney has a good following here. Give us more like this. Sun., Mon. Weather: OK. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Fighting 69th, The
This picture really brought them in. The rain was coming down in torrents and they still came. No one had any kick coming. "GWTW" played one day before this picture. Sunday. Admission: 30-10. Spanish patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 305.—T. J. Wade, Mesa, Roy and American, N. M.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Another Thin Man
A good picture and a good cast. What we can't understand is why this new release did not do the business that an old release, "Wings of the Navy," did the week before. This "Thin Man" film deserved better patronage. Boxoffice: Disappointing. Thurs., Fri., Sat. Weather: Cool. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—John Grabenstein, Liberty, Eustis, Neb.

Edison, The Man
Excellent production. Couldn't find a flaw in it anywhere. However, our audience doesn't go much for this type of story. Believe if M-G-M could have released this to us during the school year, we could have really gone to town through school tieups. Audience: All were agreeably surprised and enthusiastic as they left. Boxoffice: About average Sunday-Monday. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Henry Goes Arizona
Leo the Lion laid an egg when Metro put Frank Morgan in this unpretentious opus. We don't think Morgan can stand star billing. We like him as a supporting player where he seems to fit. This has no drawing power, nor is Morgan as funny as he has been in some past films. It isn't good for a single. Business: Don't mention it. We feel like going to Arizona. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—John Grabenstein, Liberty, Eustis, Neb.

I Take This Woman
Tracy did the acting and Lamarr kept the beauty situation well in hand. Tracy is a good name to have up on the front. Fair biz. Sun., Mon. Weather: OK. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Judge Hardy and Son
When patrons come to you and say they liked it, it makes you and your boxoffice feel good. Some customers thought this the best Hardy film. Nevertheless, this series has always been dependable at our boxoffice. They're made for a small town. Thurs., Fri., Sat. Weather: Cool. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—John Grabenstein, Liberty, Eustis, Neb.

Northwest Passage
A superior film, pleasing 100 per cent, due to a great story, beautiful color, a flawless cast, and excellent direction. Spencer Tracy does his usual best, as only Tracy can. Robert Young gave a surprise performance, proving again he's dependable. The musical background is the best in a long time; we need more of the same quality. Our boxoffice didn't do as well as expected, due to heavy rain storms, but at that it was good. Thurs., Fri., Sat. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—John Grabenstein, Liberty, Eustis, Neb.

20 Mule Team
This was a natural for us. A good many of the oldtimers around these parts know of the old Death Valley operations, and so this made a hit with our patronage. Believe it will click all over, especially where Beery is well liked. Audience: Enjoyed it tremendously. Boxoffice: Above average Thursday-Friday. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Waterloo Bridge
Marvelous performances and a good job of scripting and directing. There is some question though about its entertainment qualifications. Tear-jerkers are okay, especially for the feminine trade, and the fact that this one has a good moral lesson, may enhance its value and appeal. Audience: The women came out crying, "My, wasn't it wonderful?" The men grinned sort of sheepishly, and there were practically no children. Boxoffice: About normal Sunday-Monday. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Monogram

Covered Wagon Trails
Why did they waste the celluloid? Pass it up, even if you have to close. Saturday. Weather: Hot. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Population: 2,000. Capacity: 300.—Frank Medley, Palace, Monterey, Tenn.

Paramount

Biscuit Eater, The
One of the best dog pictures ever made. Good business especially because bird hunting is popular here. It's in the "groove." Wednesday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Population: 2,000. Capacity: 300.—Frank Medley, Palace, Monterey, Tenn.

Buck Benny Rides Again
This is the second money picture we have had this year from Hollywood, the first one being Metro's "Northwest Passage." There is no sense to it, but, boy, is it fun! "Rochester" steals plenty of scenes and Benny does the best job I have ever seen him do. And there isn't an off-color word in it! Where is the guy who said we have to have sex and trash in our pictures? Audience: Rolled in the aisles. Boxoffice: Well above average. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Disputed Passage
This was better than we had anticipated. It drags at times, but with its story and acting, it pleased most of our patrons. The cast was well chosen. Business: Average, no more. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cool. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—John Grabenstein, Liberty, Eustis, Neb.

Knights of the Range
A good western. Audience: Liked it. Boxoffice: About average Wednesday. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Those Were the Days
It's OK. Good pic, good cast, good show. Pleased everyone. Thurs., Fri. Weather: Hot. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Population: 2,000. Capacity: 300.—Frank Medley, Palace, Monterey, Tenn.

Road to Singapore
A swell picture and the best from Paramount this year. Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour make a combination that is hard to beat. Better than average boxoffice in spite of a bad storm on Saturday night just at show time. Thurs., Fri., Sat. Weather: Good first two days. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 350.—John L. Bush, Ritz, Little River, Kas.

Rulers of the Sea
This picture packed plenty of wallop for my audience. They really took this up. Personally, we did not care for the picture. BUT, we don't count. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Good. Admission: 30-10. Spanish patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 305.—T. J. Wade, Mesa, Roy and American, N. M.

Typhoon
Whew-whew! Audience: Plenty came, all liked it, and lots of enthusiasm as they left. Boxoffice: Well above average. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Republic

South of the Border
Autry & Burnette on a one-sheet is enough here. This was the best yet. Better business than "Days of Jesse James." Friday., Sat. Weather: OK. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 398.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

RKO Radio

Abe Lincoln in Illinois
I have never seen this play, but if it ran for a long run on Broadway, it must surely have lost something in its transition to the screen. As a 16mm film in the library of the high schools and colleges of the country, I would say this would rate tops. As entertainment in a commercial theatre, I'm sorry. Boxoffice: Very poor. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Swiss Family Robinson
Slow and drags like English productions. Long on conversation—short on convincing action—and no boxoffice appeal (BOA), just B. O. Audience. Only a few came, and we had several walkouts. Boxoffice: Worst in two years for a Thursday-Friday. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

20th Century-Fox

Little Old New York
A good cast that played their parts well. Alice Faye did a swell job. The picture will please everyone, but needs selling. Sun., Mon., Tues. Weather: Rainy. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 600. Capacity: 350.—John L. Bush, Ritz, Little River, Kas.

Young as You Feel
Our Saturday audience seemed to enjoy this thoroughly. Boxoffice: Less than Saturday average. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

United Artists

Housekeeper's Daughter, The
Fair picture with no extra business. Joan Bennett was beautiful. "Benny" stoled the show with most of the patrons. Sun., Mon. Weather: OK. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

King of the Turf
Played on Bank Night with good business and they all liked the picture. The young star was O.K. Wednesday. Weather: O.K. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 398.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Raffles
This was a very good picture and it drew very well. I played it with a lot of competition and it came through for me. Sun., Mon., Tues. Weather: Good. Admission: 30-10. Spanish patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 305.—T. J. Wade, Mesa, Roy and American, N. M.

Universal

Hawaiian Nights
Light comedy and a swell little musical production. Johnny Downs has quite a number of fans here. Played on Bank Night. Good business. Wednesday. Weather: OK. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Laugh It Off
This was so lousy that patrons spent most of their time in the lobby to pass the time until Bank Night. They should burn pictures of this type. It was a great tragedy for me to have to run it. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Good. Admission: 30-10. Spanish patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 305.—T. J. Wade, Mesa, Roy and American, N. M.

Warner Bros.

Brother Rat and a Baby
This was OK for people that went for comedy. I didn't do so well with it. Those who saw it enjoyed it immensely. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 30-10. Spanish patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 305.—T. J. Wade, Mesa, Roy and American, N. M.

Granny Get Your Gun
Here is one of those things that you know could never have happened, but it's a lot of fun just the same. May Robson gives an excellent account of herself and should be a rising star in the future. Audience: Really enjoyed it. Boxoffice: Below average, so get out and work this one when you date it. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Roaring Twenties
Good picture. Most grown-ups will enjoy looking back 20 years. Audience: Liked it. Boxoffice: About average Wednesday. (We played this one late so played it only one day). Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Invading Parachutist Sells "Mad Men"

Pittsburgh—Harris Senator, in attracting attention to its feature, "Mad Men of Europe," had a dummy dressed as a Nazi parachute invader hanging from a spread-open parachute (miniature), suspended on a rope and attached to a window device above the restaurant which adjoins the theatre. A spotlight illuminated the display at night.

MPTOA Points Out an Opportunity to Trade

NEW YORK—A letter, reporting a meeting early in June, of representatives of the various branches of the industry, who urged cooperation in national defense, was sent to 9,000 theatres in the country by the national office of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, urging aid to the government in its national defense plan.

The letter, signed by Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA, recommended to the trade that every newsreel containing information of governmental plans and activities toward preparation for emergency be given a complete showing at each performance.

'Baby Sandy' Photo Contest Under Way in Green Bay

GREEN BAY, WIS.—Standard Theatres' Bay, Strand and Packer theatres are conducting a "Baby Sandy" contest. Hundreds of pictures of local babies, entrants in the contest, are being shown on the theatres' screens and patrons are being given three weeks in which to cast their ballots.

Each series of pictures is being shown for one week at each of the three theatres, with the winner to be announced July 3. Eighteen winners will participate in $100 worth of prize money and a baby parade is planned for the afternoon of July 3 as an added feature of the contest.

Surprise Recording Is A Hit in Brooklyn

BROOKLYN—Frank Horowitz, manager of the Vanity, Brooklyn, introduced a new wrinkle in community singing. During the run of a community sing reel, a neighborhood sound outfit made recordings of individual voices unknown to the patrons. After the reel, the recordings were played back to the audiences, providing a great deal of amusement and laughter. The patrons, whose voices were registered, received the recordings as gifts.

Housewives Matinee Tried in Chicago

CHICAGO—Ben Cohn, manager of the Warner Frolic, has figured out a way to get around the double-feature problem with his feminine patrons. Continuing to show double features, Cohn has announced a daily "Housewives Matinee" policy for the Frolic.

And to be sure that all housewives in the neighborhood of the Frolic know about it, Manager Cohn has two of his ushers making a house-to-house canvass to determine the feminine viewpoint on the problem. The two young men making the canvass for him are Donald McLaughlin and Harry Mintch.

Cohn's plan of a housewives matinee is this:

From Monday through Friday he shows the regular two features assigned to his house in the week of release, but opens his daily matinee with a selected short subject group. He follows this with the best of the two features and then allows a minute or two intermission for those to depart who do not want to see the second feature.

The two boys who have contacted several hundred housewives find them overwhelmingly in favor of the project, as outlined by Manager Cohn. Where the boys do not find anyone home, they leave a mimeographed slip. Cohn has placed boxes in leading drug stores in the Hyde Park district where the Frolic is located, so that the housewives may deposit the ballots after they have signed them.

Intensive Drive for June Business in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY—Standard Theatres Corp. of Oklahoma City is using a direct mail, screen trailer, newspaper and radio campaign to bolster the boxoffice during the month of June which campaign has been named the "Big-Picture Roundup," according to E. A. Patchen, assistant general manager.

Twenty thousand direct mail pieces have been mailed to Oklahoma City residents calling their attention to the excellent feature pictures booked for Standard theatres during the month of June. Co-operative advertisements are appearing in local newspapers and spot announcements are being used on two local radio stations, KTOK and KOCY. The stations were given 125 names for tickets to the theatres to be distributed by them. KTOK received a promotion trailer on standard screens in the deal. Twenty spot announcements were promoted on KOCY.

Civic Leader's Message Plugs "Flag Speaks"

KENOSHA, WIS.—Elmer R. Brennan, manager of the Kenosha here, featured a message from the president of the local chamber of commerce, in newspaper advertising plugging the short, "The Flag Speaks." Also as a tribute to Flag Week, Brennan arranged for the appearance of Kenosha's 48-piece Boy Scout band on the stage.

Your Own Movie Magazine

At the Price of a Throwaway!

AT LAST!!...

Here is something your patrons will take home with them (or you can deliver it to their homes) that will be of interest to every member of the family. A four-page publication that is chockful of newsy, breezy fan material, attractively high-lighted with cuts.

Twice the size of the ordinary herald (12x18 flat), MOVIE TIME will be spiced with humor and chatter and it will receive fresh layout treatment in every issue.

Even the title . . . MOVIE TIME . . . has sales punch. It suggests to your prospective patrons that NOW is Movie Time.

MOVIE TIME is sent to you flat, so imprinting can be made on front and back pages in one operation. The back page is left entirely blank for your use in publicizing your coming week's program. The space is sufficient for good display and, in addition, for news items, either local interest copy, personals about your patrons or about coming attractions. And you have space for advertising of local merchants from which you can offset your entire cost.

MOVIE TIME is offered to you on an exclusive basis . . . that is, it will not be sold to a competing theatre in your town. (It's first come, first served.)

Movie Time

MORE ABOUT DOUBLE TROUBLE

EMPHASIS upon a good, though not new, idea was applied at the Allied convention in Chicago last week when the organization framed a demand that distributors forbid double featuring of "A" productions and then settled with a request for distributor cooperation toward elimination of duals generally.

Stopping the joint-playing of two "A" attractions would tend to lessen the growing menace of the dual program. However, when a so-called big picture, coupled with a so-called little picture, fails to draw, the modern day showmanly (?) tendency is to "give 'em more." That's how double "A" programs came to be in the first place. And, when programs of that calibre fail to draw or return a fair profit, the pyramiding tendency may go still further. Already we have triple features in quite a number of situations.

This double-featuring problem is getting to be a rather wearisome subject to talk about. In fact that's about all that is being done about it—talk and more talk. If someone would only do something about it! If only those in control of the leading theatres throughout the country, particularly the distributor affiliates, would make the move they keep yelling for "the other fellow" to take—and stick by their guns—the problem would be solved.

True, there might be a loss sustained in the transition, but that would be only temporary; and there might be no loss at all, if the change to single-feature policy is properly merchandised. It's that temporary-loss fear (result of a weak-kneed, short-time test) that seems to be the big obstacle. But time and courage would overcome it.

There is very little new that can be said about this hardy subject of double features. Most anything that would be said probably would be repetitious. Yet there are a couple of points that we haven't seen or heard anywhere. For instance, some of the key first-run houses (distributor-affiliates) decrying duals but playing them, offer the defense that moviegoers who don't like dual shows can get the schedule of the main feature and arrive in time to see only that. But some of these schedules are so cockeyed that the main feature can't be seen unless a family stays downtown to dinner, and a very early dinner, or else catches the last showing that ends near midnight. Some first runs do not even advertise their feature schedules but require a prospective patron to call the theatre to get it. If a patron is lucky enough to get the theatre before the third phone call, provided he hasn't become disgusted after the second call, he usually learns that the main feature is on and will be half over by the time he gets to the theatre. Result: he either looks through the paper to find some other show or disgustedly turns on the radio. Is there little wonder that so many people have quit going to the movies, seeking their entertainment elsewhere?

The other instance is that double features, the novelty and the illusion of "twice as much for your money" having worn off, don't suffice in themselves to attract sufficient patronage. So premiums or other gadgets are offered. (Theatres have now become book shops, selling the public things to keep them at home). We wonder how many exhibitors have stopped to consider that the cost of the second feature and those plates and pans invested in some genuine showmanship effort would return them as much, if not more, money. And even allow some money for better equipment and for physical improvement of the theatre property. At the same time the public respect for the motion picture theatre would be increased.

The buck has been passed back and forth between big theatre and little theatre as to who is to blame for double features. The fact remains that the big fellow has first choice and is in a better position to introduce a new policy or get rid of one he himself decries as ruinous. Let the leaders set the pace; the rest will follow. Let's quit talking about double trouble and get something done about it.

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION LEGAL IF BACKED BY CONSENT DECREE, GOV'T SOURCE CONTENDS

Holds Exhibitors Would Have to Accept It or Do Without Product

NEW YORK—Regarded by some observers as the most significant development in negotiations for settlement of the all-industry suit is said to be the government attitude that compulsory arbitration, viewed as a component part of a consent decree, is legal and a contravention of the supreme court decision outlawing such a practice.

Technically, of course, this means exhibitors will be forced to accept arbitration in order to secure product. In fact such a concession by a justice department spokesman carries with it this observation: "Arbitration to prevent discriminiation is all right." The inference here is that arbitration as part and parcel of every contract is in the "public interest." One source goes so far as to explain it this way:

"The distributor defendants, if they sign a consent decree, will offer contracts to exhibitors stipulating arbitration as well as other trade practice terms. If an exhibitor takes the position he does not want to sign a contract calling for arbitration, the distributor need only tell him the contract as drawn has been approved by the federal court; hence the distributor has been directed to sell his product in that manner."

Negotiations Continue

Meanwhile, negotiations between the government and the industry continue with daily sessions at the Bar Association Building here. As an indication "real progress," as several participants describe it, is being made is the sudden appearance at conferences of A. H. Feller, special assistant to the attorney general in charge of the decree section in Washington. James V. Hayes of the government staff has been named press liaison for both sides.

On Wednesday, another court postponement of the suit was granted until July 1. Further short adjournments are expected, Federal Judge H. W. Goddard was informed. Pointing back to conferences held on the code of fair trade practices and department of commerce proposals, distributors see many months of deliberation before a new plan is finalized and ready to be offered to the industry at large.

While it is admitted in some legal quarters that the validity of forcing exhibitors to accept arbitration has not been finally determined, despite the government's view, there does not seem to appear a large cleavage in opinion as to the desirability of such a practice.

Conscientious objectors to an arbitration clause would be a distinct minority, it is held, because Allied, MPTOA, the ITOA and some 10 or 12 regional exhibitor organizations, in addition to affiliated circuits, already will have recommended such an agreement to their member units. Thus, some observers believe, perhaps no more than 2,000 strictly independent exhibitors would be left to make their own decisions on this matter. "Objectors" would be brought into line by the big majority of exhibitors favoring arbitration, is the contention of one authoritative industry source.

As a means of smoothing out any exhibitor opposition to arbitration, industry and department of justice representatives are said to be considering the part the American Arbitration Ass'n might play in the practical operation of the arbitration formula if, and when, it is accepted as part of a settlement of the industry suit. The AAA, at two meetings with government-industry representatives, has been sounded out on what services are available in the event it is called into the picture.

The industry's problems are not new to the AAA. It provided the seventh arbitrator during operation of the old film boards of trade in 1925 for settling local disputes, and it has 6,000 arbitrators in about 1,600 of the country's most important communities. Of this number about 2,000 are in the metropolitan area.

It is learned the AAA has suggested that the industry adopt an arbitration system similar to that recently set up by virtually all the air transport companies. Under this system, which would be administered by the AAA, judgments rendered in arbitration may be entered in court.

Two features of the plan are said to lend themselves particularly to the industry. First, the arbitration machinery is available for settlement of disputes concerning any kind of agreements, ranging from leases or sales of equipment to agreements providing for self-regulation of trade practices and operating methods. Secondly, the arbitration procedure provided for "is to be voluntary in character based upon a voluntary contractual relationship."

Eighty Millions Annually Due From New Federal Ticket Tax

WASHINGTON — Federal admission tax collections of $80,000,000 a year are foreseen under the new national defense revenue act, dropping the exemption from 40 to 20 cents. The measure was signed Tuesday by the President.

The 20-cent exemption, provided for in a compromise reached by congress on the bill, lies halfway between the 30-cent exemption originally adopted by the House and the nine-cent exemption proposed later by the Senate. The former would have given a revenue of approximately $25,000,000 over the current tax, but the latter would have raised more than $100,000,000.

The compromise was demanded by the House conferees as the price for abandonment of the proposed increases in tobacco taxes, which the Senate had deleted on the basis of the increased revenue which was to be provided from admissions.

Members of the House took the position that the 9-cent exemption would serve to tax children attending theatres and to penalize the small houses, and maintained that Congress could not justify such a step in the face of its refusal to add additional levies on tobacco.

The conference report was adopted by both House and Senate, with practically no debate on any provision and with only passing reference to the admission taxes.

Circuits to Pass New Tax On to the Public

NEW YORK—Major and independent circuits are planning to pass the tax on to the public.

Cite Texas Ruling in Westway Suit Appeal

BALTIMORE—In its appeal from a lower court decision dismissing the action, attorneys in the Westway anti-trust suit contend "it is controlled by" the supreme court decision in the Interstate case in Dallas. Edgar Allan Poe, Westway counsel, claims (1) the seven distributor appellees have refused to license the Westway except after a 14-day clearance in favor of the Edgewater and/or Alpha; (2) the separate license contracts between the Edgewood management and 20th Century-Fox, Loew's, Paramount, UA and Vitagraph and the separate contracts between operators of the Alpha and Columbia and Universal, giving the Alpha 14 days' clearance over the Westway, constitute contracts in restraint of trade and in violation of the anti-trust laws.

RKO Buffalo Exchange Wins Depinet Drive

BUFFALO—The RKO local branch finished first in the 1940 Ned Depinet drive, it was announced at the Variety testimonial to Charles Boasberg, recently promoted to central district manager, and Elmer Lux, salesman elevated to manager here. A. N. Schmitz, manager of the Milwaukee exchange, was second; Barney Pitkin, New Haven, third; P. M. Baker, New Orleans, fourth, and M. E. Corey, Portland, fifth.

The local branch, incidentally, has finished in the capital prize division for the past four years.

See Ill-Starred Code Clause As Best Arbitration System

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—A representative cross-section of distributor and exhibitor interests believes the final arbitration draft contained in the ill-fated trade practice code promulgated just about a year ago is still the best system for settling grievances. These conclusions are the result of a checkup undertaken by BOXOFFICE in light of the pending settlement of the government suit and the certainty that from it will emerge a formula of arbitration which must meet with universal acceptance. However, they are not without decided variations as to approach.

Terms of Proposals

Terms of the arbitration proposals as finally set down after months of negotiation between distributors and independent exhibitors last June provide for panels of ten men in each exchange district, each to have a knowledge of industry machinery and each to serve without compensation.

An arbitration board would consist of four members, including one neutral of high business reputation but not necessarily associated with any branch of the industry. In arriving at decisions, the complaining exhibitor would be entitled to a full vote; the exhibitor complained against would have a one-half vote; the distributor or distributors affected would have a one-half vote and the neutral arbitrator a full vote. The latter would be chosen by the three other members of the board.

No Appeal Board

The plan does not provide for an appeal board. In arriving at the foregoing terms, the thought was said to have been jointly recognized "the neutral arbitrator holds the balance and he is the one who must be convinced." It was for this reason that only one-half votes would be given to the distributor involved and the exhibitor complained against, since the bulk of complaints would be expected to be leveled at affiliated or the larger independent circuits. Even should both these interests throw their votes together they would have but an aggregate of one vote, equal to that of the complaining exhibitor. In the event of such a tie, it is said, the neutral arbitrator, with a full vote, would have to be convinced of the merits of the claim before casting the balance of the decision.

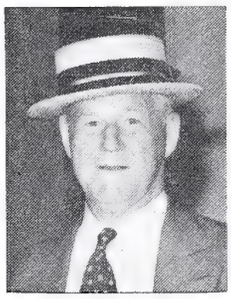
In order to avoid promiscuous filing of claims the neutral arbitrator would have the power to assess costs against the complainant if he finds the exhibitor's action unwarranted. He also would have the power to fix damages for either party and his decision would be final. The cost of maintaining the boards would be partially met through a filing fee of $5, and if this proved inadequate it is understood the distributors would jointly subsidize the additional cost until a formula is arrived at. After each decision the board would determine who was to pay for the services of the neutral arbitrator.

Differed on Limitations

At one point in last year's arbitration conferences a government spokesman is said to have suggested the majors agree to a clause limiting the items an exhibitor might wish to arbitrate to clearance and overbuying. This is said to have met with approval of the distributors. However, the latter, in turn, suggested a permanent board be set up to deal with contract violations.

Among the views that do not fully coincide with the proposals as set forth is one that holds any form of arbitration should follow along the lines adopted by the American Arbitration Ass'n. A Paramount partner is of the opinion disputes could best be handled by a disinterested party, sitting alone as a judge, arriving at decisions after both sides presented their positions. This view is shared by a large independent operator, but he makes the observation that to secure the services of a neutral person with an understanding of the problems of the industry is difficult. Still another takes the position disputes should be arbitrated by three industry men in each key center but that at no time should the services of an "outsider" be solicited.

Men Behind the News



New York—On the right are 10 men, all lawyers, who compose the five sub-committees working on arbitration, clearance, overbuying, discrimination and theatre acquisition provisions of the new trade practice draft designed to end the all-industry suit without benefit of a court decision.

John F. Caskey of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, representing 20th-Fox, is on sub-committees handling discrimination and newly acquired theatres; Richard E. Dwight, of the same legal firm, who played an important part in drafting arbitration provisions of the code of fair trade practices, is assigned to clearance; Joseph Hazen, member of the Warner home office executive staff, and a partner in Friedman, Bareford & Hazen, on overbuying; Austin C. Keough, Paramount general counsel, on arbitration and clearance; Joseph M. Proskauer of Proskauer, Rose and Paskus, counsel for Warner, on discrimination and newly acquired or erected theatres; Edward C. Raftery of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, attorneys for UA and Universal, on arbitration and overbuying; Robert E. Sher, government lawyer, on arbitration, discrimination and new theatres; Bertram F. Shipman of Mudge, Stern, Williams & Tucker, Chase Bank counsel, also interested in National Theatres, on overbuying; Paul Williams, for the government, on overbuying; Robert L. Wright, also representing the government, on overbuying.

Notes to You from Red Kann

THE straining to which Hollywood press agentry submits itself in the headlong rush to be "different" continues to be illustrated by a peek at almost any day's released absurdities.

These examples are supposed to be funny and probably they are. But, if they are not funny, certainly they are very sad as a reflection of how the creative end of the business is made to appear in the eyes of the public, once assuming the following dribble gets widely into print.

It was the Warner shock troops that concocted "oomph" for Ann Sheridan. It took Busby Berkeley, according to released publicity, to figure out "zoomo" for Mickey Rooney. All by himself, apparently, too.

"I thought of zim and boom. Then I figured the girls would all say 'Oh!' when they saw Mickey. So I put them all together and got 'zoomo'."

Don't leave the page. Get this one.

It is S. Sylvan Simon—he directs, too—who discovered what some of us had been wondering about. There have been different ideas afoot, but it seems what Lana Turner has is a new discovery called Glex.

"Glex is the word for it. It isn't glamour in the accepted sense of the word. High school and college students don't go in for glamour. They might admire it, but it's something to look at from a distance. On the other hand, it isn't sex appeal. It is simply a happy combination of the two.

"A girl with 'Glex' is a girl who combines all of the features of the most popular 'dates' on any campus. She has the figure of one, the face of another, the sense of humor of a third. She is completely within the knowledge of lads of this age, with none of the baffling, glamorous complexities. She's a girl they all know and, as a Glex girl, she's the last word in collegiate fancy.

"So, if you're under twenty-one, forget glamour and develop Glex. It's one way to knock the stag line for a loop."

Viva la Glex!

To stimulate public interest in "I Was An Adventuress" the 20th Century-Fox publicity clearing house at the studio, decided on this:

"The scenarists wrote into the script ten varieties of kisses. They are the peck, 10 seconds; the clinging vine, two minutes; the briefie, or swiftie, five seconds; the he-man, 20 seconds; the pop (plenty of noise), 10; the alligator (nose to nose), 15; the bear (very lovingly), 25; the Graustarkian (the lips barely touching), 10; the prude (right on the forehead), five; and the kittenish (a wet kiss)."

And these are an at-random selection.

Ad Infinitum

The other issue, Ivan Spear, writing in Hollywood, directed a dart at the Warner press enthusiasts for apeing the GWTW method of describing "Gone With the Wind" with ATAHT, meaning "All This, and Heaven Too." He was thinking of the public, which is more than a lot of others in this business do, and what doubtful sport it might be for the constituents to figure out that RRNOTGWT had a slight bearing on one called "Renfrew Rides North on the Great White Trail."

This at once suggested an infinite number of possibilities. For instance, there's LOWS. This has nothing to do with nosedives at the boxoffice, but with a film called "Light of Western Stars." POTSS wouldn't necessarily mean the proof-reading room had gone astray, but an application of the same sort of brilliant technique to "Pals of the Silver Sage."

Similarly, SOL wouldn't mean Lesser or Rosenblatt, but "Sidewalks of London;" CC not Moskowitz, but "Curtain Call;" VC not Victoria Cross, but "Virginia City;" HAH, not part of a laugh, but merely "Headleys at Home;" HOW not an Indian sign, but "Horrors of War;" LOT not related to studios, but to "Life of Tschaikowsky."

And HOTS wouldn't have a thing to do with "Oomph" Sheridan, but all to do with "Heroes of the Saddle."

Clear Enough

Typical Hollywood understatement flourishes in this word from the M-G-M studio:

"Simon Bolivar is to be the subject of a screen epic."

SEE CURRENT SUMMER AS LUCRATIVE SEASON; INDUSTRIAL SPURT, SUIT DECREE REASONS

Observers Agree Price Hikes Inevitable; Cite Last War

NEW YORK—Summer, 1940, is expected to be one of the most lucrative in exhibition in several years. And for the first time in many months this optimism is shared by major and independent exhibitors alike. The motivation for the optimism, however, takes a fork mid-way, where affiliated operators feel grosses will boom as a result of anticipated industrial spurt, while independents foresee tangible dollars and cents benefits emerging from a settlement of the government suit.

The latter, it is reflected in some quarters, admit the stage is set for a more hopeful summer period than has obtained in past years even if fruits of the settlement do not bear at once. There is, then, a picture of universal expectance the next two months will be the direct antithesis of what July and August normally stand for at boxoffices. There are but two conditions; (1) that the United States is not actively at war, and (2) that distributors refrain from boosting rentals "to take advantage of the situation" to the point where such action "would defeat everything."

See Price Increases

Almost without exception exhibition interests declare admission prices will be increased. Such a move, whether it be concerted or otherwise, is not expected to meet with public opposition. It was done during the last World War, veteran operators say, when it became evident industrial recovery justified the action. At that time average small town theatres were getting 50 cents top during the week, it is said. As for the immediate future, observers point to the fact that with a reduction in the ceiling of federal taxation, operators will be free to boost scales at will since the impost of the new 10 per cent levy on admissions will begin at 21 cents.

"The public will stand for the increase, too," one circuit operator declared, "because for one thing those that are working won't be pinching pennies as they are today and a few hundred thousand now unemployed will be getting regular salaries." In this connection the operator recalled that during the World War common laborers were receiving from two to four times normal salary.

Any, and all reference to what may happen to increased admissions, however, brings an observation of which this is typical: "But the product must stand up; the public is not going to be fooled. Also, there is a limit to what we can pay for product."

Taking these two conditions in order, it appears, from representative opinion, July and August releases are "as good as, if not

No Dearth of Product Foreseen For July and August Dates

NEW YORK—There will be no dearth of new releases for July and August, according to schedules set up by the eight majors, Republic and Monogram. With a minimum of 56 pictures already slated, the possibilities veer to the list being increased by 12 with two additional uncertain.

Definite release dates have been set for 37 films during July, and 19 for August. Although the total may be boosted to 70 for the two months, this compares with 61 for June and July last year.

Reissues continue in demand in the local territory because of numerous changes in independent theatres. All exchanges report a lush business on this type of product, with some circuits said to be making blanket deals.

New releases for July and August, as they now stack up on information furnished by distributors, follow:

July 3—The Golden Trail (Mono), The Refugee (Rep).

July 4—South of Pago Pago (UA).

July 5—Andy Hardy Meets a Debutante (M-G-M), Dr. Christian Meets the Women (RKO), Private Affairs (Univ), Sailor's Lady (20th-Fox), Way of All Flesh (Para't).

July 6—The Man Who Talked Too Much (WB).

July 10—Pride of the Prairie (Mono).

July 12—Millionaires in Prison (RKO), Black Diamond (Univ), Manhattan Heartbeat (20th-Fox), Stagecoach War (Para't), One Came Home (M-G-M), Scatterbrain (Rep).

July 13—Episode (WB).

July 15—Carolina Moon (Rep), Boys of the City (Mono).

July 18—Military Academy (Col).

July 19—Arizona Cyclone (Univ), Cross Country Romance (RKO), Girl From God's Country (Rep), I Do! (M-G-M), Maryland (20th-Fox).

July 20—Ladies Must Live (WB).

July 22—The Haunted House (Mono).

July 25—Blondie Has Servant Trouble (Col).

July 26—Pride and Prejudice (M-G-M), Stage to Chino (RKO), Stranger on the Third Floor (RKO), You're Not So Tough (Univ), Untamed (Para't).

July 27—They Drive by Night (WB).

July 29—Orphans of the North (Mono), Rainbow of the Range (Mono).

July 31—It Happened in Paris (Col).

August 2—Golden Gloves (Para't), Great Profile (20th-Fox), Lucky Partners (RKO), South to Karanga (Univ).

August 5—Chamber of Horrors (Mono), Law of the Tong (Mono).

August 9—Boys From Syracuse (Univ), Mystery Sea Raiders (Para't), One Crowded Night (RKO), Street of Memories (20th-Fox).

August 16—Brigham Young (20th-Fox), Comin' 'Round the Mountain (Para't), Queen of Destiny (RKO).

August 23—The Brat (20th-Fox), Dance, Girl, Dance (RKO), Down Went McGinty (Para't).

August 24—The Sea Hawk (WB).

August 30—I Married a Nazi (20th-Fox), Wildcat Bus (RKO).

Columbia will release some time in August "The Howards of Virginia;" Republic during July and August, and for which no definite dates have been set, will release "The Ranger and the Lady," "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot," "Oklahoma Outlaws," "The Tulsa Kid," "The Impostor," "The Old Mill Stream" and "Border Legion."

M-G-M will release during August "Boom Town," "We Who Are Young," "Gold Rush Masie," "I Love You Again." "Escape" and "Busman's Honeymoon" may also be released, although they are on next year's program.

Trade Already Under Tight Gov't Reins

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—Discussion of the possibilities of settling the issues of the all-industry suit via a consent decree, which would embody a trade practice plan approved by the department of justice and later enacted into law, possibly as a modified Neely bill, has led to speculation as to how far the trade already is under government supervision.

A survey shows that the government camel has its head well within the film industry tent.

Nearest to direct federal regulation, of course, is the control of labor conditions exercised through the national labor relations act and the fair labor standards act, the former dealing with labor practices and the latter with wages and hours.

The federal admission tax enables the government to keep an eye upon exhibitor business; the income taxes, corporate and individual, keeps the government in close contact with what all branches of the industry are doing from year to year.

The financing activity of film corpora-

"Important Plans" to Allied Later, Myers Tells Members

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—"We are working on something important that will benefit all independent exhibitors. What it is we cannot divulge, even to you, because the information might fall into the hands of the distributors, who would attempt to block it. We are confident that within 30 to 60 days we will be able to tell you."

And this, from Abram F. Myers, general counsel, to the general session, was substantially the extent of the information garnered by the rank and file of Allied at the 11th annual national convention at the Morrison Hotel here as the grapevine buzzed in the wake of the daily executive board meetings and secret sessions.

While the registration was between 400 and 500, the exhibitor attendance, according to the registration list released, including Chicagoans, numbered about 175.

Of the convention activities, Allied made much over the new information and propaganda bureau it will inaugurate, and the appearance of C. C. Pettijohn of the Hays office, together with Spyros Skouras, National Theatres chieftain, before the senate finance committee to propose a change in the federal admission tax schedule from the one that had been reported by the house committee.

Samuelson Heads Data

Sidney Samuelson of New Jersey will head the standing Allied committee on information and propaganda. With him will be Pete Wood, Ohio; Arthur Howard, Massachusetts, and Don Rossiter, Indiana. This committee, as reported in the resolution passed by the convention is,

" . . . to keep abreast of all sales policies and practices (by the distributors) and to disseminate legal information for the benefit of Allied members, together with appropriate suggestions and recommendations; that all members in attendance hereby pledge to the national board the cooperation of their respective units in both the collection and dissemination of such information."

How It Will Operate

Samuelson explained how the plan would operate. He said it would begin functioning within the next few weeks. Exhibitors giving information will remain anonymous. The bureau will be used by Allied to "police and restrain trade practices of the distributors that are unfair." Non-members of Allied in territories where there are no Allied units may obtain the information by becoming sustaining Allied members. Present plans reveal no assessment for operation of the bureau.

Material to be sought in the sales surveys will be on "forced selling of shorts, special contract clauses, whether pictures did business at the boxoffice, whether pictures are sold flat rental or percentage, and similar material."

Allied complained also about the 16mm non-theatrical prints of major productions, and named a committee composed of Roy Harrold, Indiana; Ray Branch, Michigan, and Samuelson, to confer with the producers and distributors "with the idea of getting all the possible immediate aid in connection with this problem."

The committee met during the convention with William Scully of Universal and Eddie Golden of Monogram on 16mm product from those companies.

The meeting devoted considerable time to multiple-feature troubles of exhibitor delegates. After the discussion, it was at first planned to ask the distributors not to permit showing of "A" product on double feature programs. This was later changed to a resolution, asking them to work toward general elimination of double and multiple features, becauses double features:

Why They Dislike Duals

"Encourage the policy on the part of the producers to make features of mediocre and poor quality designed to be exhibited on a double feature basis only and thereby flood the market with inferior product; create a shortage of pictures for exhibition, result in a sellers' market, and results in reducing the number of admissions at the boxoffice by surfeiting the public desire for motion picture entertainment."

During the discussion, Alex Schreiber of Associated Theatres, Detroit, told of a theatre (the Times Square) across from his company's Loop in the downtown motor city district that changes its programs at midnight, thus permitting a patron to come in on Saturday evening, see three features from that program, and stay after midnight to view the next day's three pictures. All for 15 cents. During the week when the house runs two features, a patron can come in during the evening and stay for the changes for a five-cent service charge, together with one of several thousand passes distributed free. The weekend schedule of the Times Square assertedly shows that a checker went in at 7:10 p. m. Saturday and did not come out until 3:02 a. m. Sunday, having seen "Riders of the Sage," "Alice in Wonderland," "Go West Young Man," "Covered Wagon Trails," "The Outcast," and "The Light That Failed."

Jack Kirsch of Illinois Allied said that 17 independent exhibitors in Chicago agreed to cut from triples to duals, but that B&K continued to run triples at its Belmont.

Charles Casanave, head of Advertising Accessories, Inc., National Screen Service, subsidiary, made a plea for Allied support by its individual units as well as nationally. He contended his organization is an independent, and argued it will greatly enhance advertising accessories, causing a rebirth of new ideas in this field.

Jimmy Walker, former mayor of New York and onetime general counsel of MPTOA, was the toastmaster at the dinner-dance concluding the convention. Typical Walkerisms:

"When I think of the tears we shed about a quarter century ago over the poor exhibitors who were about to be driven to their graves, and now come here and find many of them still hale and hearty, I cannot but feel they were a lot of crocodile tears, but still maybe not in vain."

"The way to see America is to be general counsel of an exhibitor film organization. You see towns you never heard of."

"I was once supposed to know something about politics . . . And once I returned from my first exhibitor convention and gave Tammany Hall some tricks they never even knew about."

Other Speakers

Among other speakers at the banquet were William Rodgers, M-G-M sales head; Golden; Kirsch; Myers; Ezra Stone, appearing in Paramount's "Those Were the Days;" H. M. Richey, RKO, and Judge Braude, of Chicago boys' court, who spoke for Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Resolutions adopted by Allied included:

A request that distributors attempt to restrict double and multiple features.

A protest against licensing of 16mm rights to regular product. A committee composed of Roy Harrold, Indiana; Ray Branch, Michigan, and Sidney Samuelson, New Jersey, was named to confer with distributors.

A pledge of support, a promise of personal service and availability of Allied member screens to the government in its preparedness and defense programs.

An attack on distributor company special playdate drives, which Allied claims are becoming "too numerous."

Allied Working on Own Decree Plan

Chicago—The plans Allied leaders are working on have to do with the forthcoming government consent decree, it is learned here. The leaders indicated that some of the "straws in the wind" can be assumed to include Allied's old cry of "the right to buy," adequate and "the right kind" of clearance, and some sort of initial breakdown of block-booking, expectedly in the "blocks of five." Divorcement, as a part of the decree, still appears to be farther away than all the others.

Future Allied Meets More "Business Like"

CHICAGO—There is a possibility that future Allied conventions will run more and more to business sessions, Col. H. A. Cole, president, said in announcing that the convention in 1941 will be held in Philadelphia, probably late in May or early in June.

"There is more and more of a tendency to forego all of the belly-aching, stormy sessions of years ago, when we were mad at the distributors and affiliated circuits," he said. "Especially, since it appears that before long we may be getting something we have been fighting for."

Cole said that next year it is planned in Philadelphia to have individual group meetings for exhibitors where regular operation problems on theatres will be discussed. This will be the first time that such problems and regular business sessions will be planned. Sidney Samuelson of New Jersey is expected to head the convention committee.

Trade Already Under Tight Gov't Reins

tions are covered by the securities and exchange act, and it is necessary for corporations seeking to raise money by the sale of stock to give the securities and exchange commission detailed and complete information of company setup, financial structure, business, etc., before the stock can be offered the public. Annually, all companies whose securities are registered must make reports to the commission, and they also must report, as they occur, significant changes, such as the acquisition or disposition of affiliates, etc.

The interstate commerce commission lays down the rules for the transportation of films by the railroads; the neutrality law, even, especially referred to the industry in a provision permitting it to sell under different conditions than apply to other commodities in the foreign field.

The department of commerce keeps a beneficient eye upon the industry, aiding it in development of foreign markets; the state department also is of service wherever possible along that line and in the protection of American film interests in foreign countries which threaten to impose quota or other handicaps.

The postoffice department watches the use made of the mails, and a year ago barred them to the promoters of "Bank Night;" it also has barred the mails to "schools" for film talent and similar enterprises.

The war and navy departments keep in touch with the production of features in which those services are portrayed; they cooperate in the furnishing of facilities, but require that the pictures be submitted to inspection so that no inaccuracies go undetected or any military secrets are revealed.

Government interest in the industry also is evidenced in other ways. The federal trade commission has interested itself in film matters, at one time spending years in investigation of Famous Players-Lasky and has in recent years moved against pictures based upon, but not following, well-known novels, as in the case of "In His Steps." The department of justice, also, is interested, as is now well realized in the industry, in methods of doing business.

Of the ten major federal departments, only agriculture and interior have no interest in the activities of the industry, but these, as well as all others and many of the bureaus and commissions, have produced motion pictures depicting their activities. All told, there is a very decided participation by the government in the activities of the motion picture producers, distributors and exhibitors.

better than" they were the same period last year. One large independent operator says the calibre of product for the next two months is representative of the kind distributors in former years made it a practice to hold up for fall. "I don't remember the last time we saw a roadshow in the summer," he asserted, referring to "All This, and Heaven Too," adding: "There seems to be more $1,000,000 pictures scheduled for summer release than I recall in many seasons."

In this connection, an affiliated circuit executive went to the trouble to make a comparison of pictures released in the summer of 1939 and those designated for release in July and available for August. He makes the point his checkup is based on only those 1939 films that received better than "average" reception at the boxoffice, while the 1940 crop is calculated on only those releases he regards as above the "typical program picture."

This is the result:

Complete "Snow White" Reissue Test Runs

KINGSTON, N. Y.—"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," coupled with four single-reel Disney cartoons and "You Can't Fool Your Wife" completed a three-day repeat run at the Kingston here Sunday in the last of a series of tests designed to determine the desirability of immediate national reissue of the feature length cartoon.

As interpreted here after audience reaction crystallized, "Snow White" might garner considerable business solely on juvenile trade out of school during the summer months. RKO went overboard in this direction in exploiting the film, sending two men here three days in advance for the purpose. Presence of the four single reelers also points up the all-juvenile angle. They were "The Three Little Pigs," "Ugly Duckling," "Donald's Lucky Day" and "Ferdinand the Bull."

The identical Disney program was put on in Stamford, Conn., and Meadville, Pa., for similar reaction earlier this month.

Supplements Program by Amateur Broadcasting

LOS ANGELES—Having secured a tieup with Station KGFJ, the Times Theatre here has inaugurated a weekly amateur talent show conducted by the "Radio Talent Scout," and which is a supplementary attraction to the regular screen program every Friday night.

Entrants compete for cash awards, the winners being chosen by applause from the audience, and their efforts are broadcast through the facilities of the radio station.

Talk Mae West Pact

HOLLYWOOD—Columbia is negotiating a two-picture deal with Mae West.

Adjustment Problem Termed "Serious"

NEW YORK—The industry's problem of adjusting itself to a domestic basis is termed "serious" by the Wall Street Journal in an article appraising the effect of the loss of foreign revenue.

According to the financial daily, the readjustment problem will take considerable time to solve. It states the loss of foreign markets will mean the planning of pictures mainly for the domestic market, made at a cost that will permit profits solely from domestic rentals.

It is difficult to know where to economize, admits the Wall Street Journal. Labor unions, the article claims, have saddled the industry with high wage scales, so therefore it is difficult to cut salaries from the top down. Star salaries depend to some extent on the success of their films, but this expense is also very hard to adjust, it is stated.

"So far American producers have done a satisfactory volume of business in Britain and losses on exchange have been largely offset by short positions in sterling or by sterling loans arranged in London," the writer adds. "From now on, however, the effect of the war on revenues may be much more drastic."

No second quarter estimates can be made for Loew's, according to the newspaper, because of the necessity for setting up large and still undetermined contingency reserves. It is probable that before these reserves, profits will be close to the same rate as in the first half year because of continued income from "Gone With the Wind" and well-sustained foreign income.

Paramount, which is described as being "less dependent on foreign film rentals than other companies because of its large number of theatres," is said to be doing relatively much better. The article states earnings for the June quarter are expected to be close to the March quarter, showing approximately $1,606,000 in profits.

Kreier Managing Director For 20th-Fox in Spain

NEW YORK—Robert A. Kreier, formerly 20th-Fox's assistant continental European manager to Ben Miggins, has been appointed managing director of Spain. Although no other statement was made, indications are the company expected to renew operation on a wide scale following the Fascist uprising there.

20th-Fox Offices Resume Operations in Holland

NEW YORK—Offices of 20th-Fox in Holland have resumed business, according to Walter J. Hutchinson, director of foreign sales, who says advices from Amsterdam state activity is almost back to normal.

Ban on "Merry Wives"

NEW YORK—The state board of film censors has banned "Merry Wives," Czechoslovakian film, ruling the picture is "immoral, indecent," etc. Edgar E. Lloyd, distributor, will appeal.

One Way to Get War News Fast

New York—Here's how John W. Hicks, Paramount's vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, whose office overlooks the Times Building, gets the latest war news. At regular intervals, his executive assistant, Albert Deane, drops into his office with a pair of binoculars to read the bulletins posted on the building. Beats the radio, says Deane.

Distributors Tiff Over Japanese Allocations

NEW YORK—Distributors' representatives in Japan are tiffing over import permits, according to word received here. Columbia and Paramount are aligned against the other companies who want to revise allocations issued by the Japanese finance ministry to conform with those of the home ministry.

Under the law issued by the home ministry at the beginning of the year, the companies received the following import quotas: Paramount, 14; M-G-M, 13; Columbia, 11; Universal, Warner, 20th-Fox and RKO, nine each, and UA, seven. Paramount and Columbia benefited most under the deal arranged with the finance ministry in 1938 and, accordingly, would suffer somewhat under a revision.

The squabble, however, is minimized here becauses Japanese authorities are said to have been lax, as usual. In the last four months, permits for only ten prints were issued and it appears doubtful whether the majors will be allowed to fill their commitment of 81 by the end of the year. Although business, it is claimed, is very good, the distributors are still unable to withdraw any revenue.

Start Shooting in Four Weeks on Charity Film

NEW YORK—Actual shooting of the charity film which will have the service of six well-known directors, will get under way in about four weeks, according to Herbert Wilcox, who was in town for 48 hours conferring with RKO executives.

Proceeds of the film, which is based on Stacy Aumonier's "Octave of Jealousy," will go to Allied and American charities under the supervision of Dr. A. H. Giannini.

The directors donating their services are Alfred Hitchcock, Frank Lloyd, Edmund Goulding, Victor Saville, Zoltan Korda and Wilcox. Probably every English and French star in Hollywood will appear gratis in what promises to be a novel screen presentation.

Among the writers working on the story, according to Wilcox, are A. J. Cronin, James Hilton, Aldous Huxley and W. P. Lipscomb.

RKO is donating the studio equipment and will handle the distribution on the film, Wilcox states.

Germany Spearhead Of New War Films

NEW YORK—Nazi Germany, which was considered "verboten" as screen material by some major distributors, now forms the spearhead of a number of war pictures which will be launched in keeping with the martial times.

On the current lineup, 20th-Fox has released "Four Sons" and Darryl F. Zanuck is preparing "I Married a Nazi." Another being released is M-G-M's "The Mortal Storm," based on the novel by Phyllis Bottome. The studio is now shooting "Escape" featuring Norma Shearer. It is said the theme of Robert Montgomery's British production, "Busman's Honeymoon," concerns itself with the Nazi dogma.

For the immediate present, Warner has completed a new ending for "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" to bring up its chronicle to date. Columbia has "Mad Men of Europe" in release.

It is understood UA will reissue Alexander Korda's "The Lion Has Wings" along with it as a companion feature. There is some talk that RKO will dust off "Nurse Edith Cavell" now that the time is propitious. Universal may do likewise with "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Road Back." Meanwhile the company has "Ski Patrol," dealing with the Finnish-Soviet war.

Republic is releasing "Women in War" and Monogram has "Torpedo Raider," a GB revival. Producers Distributing Corp. is plugging "Beast of Berlin" for houses which go in for circus showmanship.

Believes European Market Is Not "Entirely Lost"

NEW YORK—Although in the dark about what will happen to business operations abroad, Nicholas M. Perry, Columbia's European continental manager, does not believe the European market can be considered "entirely lost."

Perry, who arrived recently via the Clipper, reports conditions in a state of disruption. He states the Paris offices are now operating from Bordeaux and Lisbon.

In about four months, Perry thinks, the companies may be able to service accounts again. He is quite confident restrictions will not be too severe.

Mexican First-Run Date Difficulty Reported

NEW YORK—Although Mexican exhibitors are required to play one native production a month, local producers are finding it difficult to obtain first-run playing dates, reports Charles Roberts, Columbia's home office supervisor for Latin-America. He says local banking interests are attempting to stimulate production there. Columbia has acquired so far four Mexican-made features for Latin-American distribution. Last year the company handled five.

Talent—Legal and Sales—

Not a sales convention, as one might gather. The pictures above are merely an indication of the activity around the Bar Association Building where negotiations for settlement of the government suit are going on daily. Office hours 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., an hour for lunch, resuming at 2 p. m. and from then on until the last suburban express leaves Grand Central.

Trio by Luise Rainer For Triumph Pictures

NEW YORK—Harry Brandt and Nat Wachsberger of Triumph Pictures have signed Luise Rainer for three pictures. The first, "Jacqueline," starts in mid-September, with an RKO release probable.

Into Opinion Surveys

ALBANY—Ross Federal Service, through its offices and organization in every key film exchange city throughout the country, has started to take polls on current questions for American Opinion Forecasts, Inc. The latter was recently formed by Edward J. Wall, former assistant to Harry A. Ross, president of Ross Federal.

Four Schine Houses Are Darkened for Summer

ALBANY—Four Schine theatres—the Regent, Amsterdam; Hippodrome, Little Falls; Palace, Watertown, and Pontiac, Ogdensburg—have closed for the summer. The Strand, other Schine house in Ogdensburg, was recently remodeled, Pontiac being used during the shutdown.

Jimmy Walker Not Returning

CHICAGO—Jimmy Walker denied at the Allied convention that he plans to reenter the industry, despite rumors that he will. He said he will have no connection with the New York government suit or any other matters.

Attorneys Told to Keep On Preparing

New York—Although the government has secured an adjournment of the all-industry suit hearings, with further requests along the same lines scheduled, home office and junior counsel engaged in preparing for the defense have been informed to continue as though nothing had happened.

The reason for this is that negotiations, while hopeful now, may break with the department of justice for an out-of-court settlement, contingent on the basic principles to be included and agreed upon in some sort of decree.

Deferment Bid Sees Decree by October

NEW YORK—Indicating no definite plan will be reached by August when Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard starts his two-month vacation, J. Stephen Doyle, assistant to the attorney general, in making a government request for a July 1 postponement of the suit, stated there is a possibility of a consent decree being ready along in October when something of a more substantial nature will be reported to the court.

Doyle declined to set a specific time limit when an agreement on the principles of a trade practice plan for inclusion in a consent decree will be ready for signing, thereby disposing of the suit from the district court calendar.

"The government has been participating in daily conferences with the defendants in the Bar Association Building," Doyle informed Goddard, "and I can report definite progress is being made.

"Under discussion at the moment," he added, "is the subject matter of the commerce department trade practice plan for a consent decree. Sub-committees have been formed and specific topics are under discussion. Proposals are being drafted and nothing has arisen to indicate a final settlement of the matter cannot be reached."

BOXOFFICE, on June 22, exclusively reported the names of the five committees appointed to handle the various subjects alluded to by Doyle. Pictures of the men and the committees on which they are functioning appear on page five in this issue.

At the conclusion of the brief court hearing on the adjournment of the suit, Doyle explained the code of fair trade practices propounded by the industry last year also are being considered in the discussions. The two plans—namely the department of commerce proposals for a consent decree and the industry's draft for trade practices—are being used as a groundwork for the decree now being formulated.

NEW YORK—A fifth postponement of the all-industry suit is expected Monday when J. Stephen Doyle will appear before Judge Goddard and ask to put the case over until July 8.

See Neely Bill Fate Hinging on Decree

WASHINGTON—Fate of the Neely block booking bill is seen in Washington as dependent upon the outcome of the current negotiations for a consent-decree settlement of the all-industry suit.

Members of the House sub-committee in charge of the measure are pressing forward with their rewriting of the bill, but it has been indicated that no great haste will be made in the effort to enact it, particularly if it becomes apparent that Congress is going to suspend for the summer.

Considerable doubt surrounds the future of the bill in the event the current negotiations for a consent decree are successful.

The block booking provisions of the decree will certainly be no easier and are very likely to be more rigorous than those it is proposed to incorporate in the Neely bill, in which event it is quite probable the measure will be permitted to die.

It was pointed out that the bill was passed by the Senate last year on Senator Neely's plea that the New York suit might not be settled for a long period and Congress should not await court action in dealing with the block booking problem.

The same appeal was made by witnesses appearing in favor of the bill before the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce during its recent hearings.

The sudden developments, which halted trial of the suit, have changed the situation materially, and there now is a prospect that it will be settled before legislation can be enacted.

Queries Up in Arnold Divorcement Stand

NEW YORK—If Thurman Arnold wants divorcement of theatres, and he has left no doubt in that direction, how can reports be reconciled that he is being asked to consider retention of theatre interests by distributor-exhibitor defendants in the government suit as a condition of a consent decree?

The question is only one of a number asked by observers of the "marathon" the assistant attorney general is conducting in Washington. It came from the lips of a sales executive and primarily was meant for the ears of one of his company's attorneys.

The attorney's reply was something in this vein: "Forget all about Arnold's villification of the industry at that Washington sub-committee hearing as having any bearing on a consent decree. There can still be a consent decree, although Arnold is firm on theatre divorcement.

"And this could very well be by his taking the position the original proposal for a consent decree was made by the department of commerce. While he has said it is his personal belief that there will be no settlement, he probably meant just that—a purely personal view."

Says Men in Field Can Help Avert Costly Litigation

NEW YORK—That a great deal of the litigation which results in an economic waste of thousands of dollars a year can be averted with the help of men in the field is the legal advice of Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel, to the 20th Century-Fox sales staff.

Although his remarks are addressed to members of his own organization, what Jenkins has to say on the subject construably might serve as a general model.

Many of the rows, Jenkins believes, can be settled before they reach the lawsuit stage. "It is up to you to bring to the attention of your superiors every case of unreasonable clearance, every case of inability to get product and every instance of dirty work which you know about," he says.

"No man can say that one side is entirely right and the other entirely wrong," Jenkins declares. "There must be some give-and-take on both sides. The settlements which have been made did not take the form of giving the plaintiff all he asked. There were compromises. I am convinced you men can accomplish many of those compromises before lawsuits are started."

In referring to the approximately 90 anti-trust suits brought by private individuals seeking triple damages, Jenkins points out for the most part they involve inability to get product, or alleged unreasonable clearance. He stresses the fact salesmen and the branch managers are the ones who have first-hand information about the complaints and, consequently, should take steps to prevent them from reaching the litigation stage.

Mentioning the majors' promise to the government that no reprisals would be taken against its witnesses, Jenkins advises:

"Do not let any resentment which you may feel toward any witness whom you know or with whom you do business show itself. Deal with these witnesses on a strictly fair basis. Do not attempt to castigate them with your tongue and do not attempt to punish them in a business way. In your business dealings with them keep calm and lean backwards in making

Hear 200 of 1,000 Plaints Probed

NEW YORK—The department of justice has not specifically investigated more than about 200 of the approximate 1,000 complaints which form the basis of its allegations against the industry in the key suit, it is reported.

This is indicated by a major attorney who was asked if it was his understanding that the department will subpoena the witnesses listed as having knowledge of alleged wrongdoing on the part of distributors.

"As a matter of fact," the attorney declares, "we have only been able to find about 200 complainants whose situations have been investigated by justice department representatives. Although the list contains more than 1,000 names it now appears that the government cannot possibly subpoena them all because it hasn't gone to the trouble of determining whether all these grievances actually constitute a basis for alleged violation of the anti-trust laws.

"In a business as complicated as this," he adds, "and with salesmen constantly striving to get the best possible deal for their companies it is conceivable that many exhibitors might take the position they are being constantly pushed around. So for the cost of a three-cent stamp they write to the department of justice and say all manner of things are being done against them. Well, almost three-quarters of these complaints have not been examined by the government as to their merits."

However, special investigators continue to check complaints as they filter in.

Sees Percentage as Blind Selling Out

NEW YORK—If blind selling continues distributors should be forced to offer percentage pictures on the basis of their national gross, is the observation of a veteran mid-western exhibitor.

He amplifies his views like this: "Every season we are besieged by salesmen who offer us more percentage pictures than the previous season. Now, I hold no particular brief against percentage pictures, except that I think there are too many percentage brackets. A good percentage picture can be profitable to both distributor and exhibitor.

"But when salesmen represent an unseen film as a 30 or a 40 per cent picture I believe the burden of delivery rests with his company. In other words, the percentage allocation must measure up to the film, or the other way around if you like it. The only fair way to do that is for distributors to fix the percentage allocation after the film has played a representative number of national situations; not before.

"If the percentage film gets no more gross than a flat rental," the exhibitor adds, "on the basis of past performances of flat rentals, then it should be incumbent upon the distributor to kick back the difference. It is patently unfair for a distributor to charge us, for example, 35 per cent for a picture, sight unseen, until it is proven the picture deserves that rating. There must be hundreds of exhibitors paying at the rate of 30 and 35 per cent for pictures that belong in the flat rental class."

Many Witnesses Are Private Litigants

NEW YORK—At least 25 of the approximate 550 probable witnesses listed by the government in its all-industry suit have been, or are now, involved in private anti-trust litigation against the majors.

One of the exhibitors included in the department of justice list is Paul P. Scott of the Varsity, Dallas. His suit against Interstate was settled and he is now a city district manager for the circuit. Another Dallas action against Interstate disposed of out of court in the last few weeks was that of L. L. Dunbar of the Queen.

Additionally, there is the Harry Fried case in Philadelphia where the exhibitor had been suing the Warner circuit and majors in connection with his three main-line houses. Listed as a government complainant, the same ground is covered as in his private suit which has been disposed of. Paramount and Columbia gave him additional product, which was what Fried wanted. Also mentioned in the Philadelphia area is Eugene Mori of the Landis, Vineland, N. J., whose chief complaint was against the Warner circuit. A pooling deal there between both interests is reported to have been worked out, thereby disposing of the legal action.

Peculiarly enough, Verner U. Young of Gary, Indiana, recently lost a decision to the majors in the federal court in Chicago. In the government record, he names 20 theatres and complains against Loew, Warner and Paramount.

Unusual Probable Witness

J. M. Ulmer of Ulmer, Berne & Gordon, Cleveland, is an unusual probable witness. It will be remembered at the time of the government suit against four majors in St. Louis about five years ago Ulmer testified for the government. This was the case wherein F&M was the complainant.

Possible witnesses also include exhibitors responsible for the contempt proceeding against FWC in Los Angeles and B&K in Chicago. On the coast, Milton B. Arthur is among the complainants. In Chicago, Edwin Silverman and Emil Stern, in addition to Allied leaders, are listed.

William N. Youngclaus of Grand Island, Neb. whose anti-trust case against the majors is history is not forgotten in the government tally. It is claimed he has knowledge of an existing monopoly by Paramount in his territory.

E. M. Loew, who a few months ago filed seven individual anti-trust actions against the majors in connection with his open air theatres in New England and the south, is also among the potential witnesses.

Charles Morse and Louis S. Rothenberg, New England as well as upstate New York exhibitors, are there, too. For more than two years testimony in their action has been taken before a special master. As yet, there is no definite date of trial.

Newell B. Kurson has three private suits pending in New England against the majors and each of the complaints is recited in the government answer to the distributors' consolidated interrogatories.

That Rubin Frels of Victoria, Tex., appears is not surprising to defense counsel. In his private litigation involving the Uptown at Victoria he seeks more than $500,000 damages. Paramount is his principal object of attack.

Fred G. Weis of the Savannah, Savannah, Ga., has a suit now pending against Lucas & Jenkins, Paramount affiliate, seeking $654,000. The government cites unreasonable clearance as the main objection and complaint.

Another exhibitor whose name occasions no surprise is A. B. Momand of Shawnee, Okla. He has suits pending in Boston and Oklahoma City against all companies and asks for a total of more than $9,500,000 in damages.

W. E. Smith, former Paramount franchise owner and district manager in Philadelphia and now operator of the Windsor, W. Orange, N. J., with Fred Falkner of Netcong, nearby, some weeks ago filed individual suits against distributors. He is another among the government's possibilities.

Weingarten Listed

Herman Weingarten, who operated the Surf and Cameo in Miami and turned them over to Wometco in settlement of an anti-trust action against the circuit and majors, is listed with the same complaint by the department of justice. He sought $432,000 and settled for a lease on one theatre and the sale of the second.

Frank E. Hollingsworth of the Pix, Beatrice, Neb., had threatened for some weeks to file a claim against Fox Midwest. He finally did and included the majors. The government also has a record of that case.

Although the action by Joy Amusement against Interstate in Texas was disposed of privately some months ago, J. L. Greenwood of the Joy, Houston, is among probable witnesses for the department.

Other sponsors of private suits who find their names in the answers to distributors' interrogatories include:

David Shapiro of the Admiral, Philadelphia; George T. Graves of the Carman, Philadelphia; Herbert Elliott of the Fern Rock, Philadelphia; Ralph D. Goldberg of the Roseland, Omaha, and Frank Koppelberger of La Crosse Theatres, La Cross, Wis.

New Rochelle Terry-Toon Studios Close July 3-15

NEW ROCHELLE—The Terry-Toon studios will close for two weeks, from July 3 to July 15, during which time the entire staff will take vacations. On the later date the studio will have three films ready for 20th Century-Fox and five in production.

GN British Production Is Sought by Columbia

NEW YORK—Columbia is negotiating for "Pastor Hall," British film of the Bishop Niemoller incident, produced by Grand National, Ltd., represented here by Jeffrey Bernerd.

"U" Has "Fugitive"

NEW YORK—Universal is releasing "The Fugitive," a British-made film, featuring Ralph Richardson and Diana Wynward.

Says Field Men Can Reduce Trade Suits

sure that you ask for a fair business deal in every way."

On overbuying, Jenkins claims there is little the distributors can do about it and maintains the salesman has the right to assume the exhibitor is not overbuying. One step the salesman can take after the contract starts on its liquidation, especially if there is another theatre in the town in need of product, is to insist the customer make up his mind within the time provided by the contract itself as to whether or not he is going to eliminate a picture, he says.

Jenkins cautions salesmen not to let their customers sit on their pictures. "As soon as a picture is eliminated by your customer, offer it immediately at fair terms to that other theatre which is in need of product."

"When a distributor allows an exhibitor to delay playing pictures and then finally to pay for them without playing them, the distributor is taking an active, knowing part in the unfair and evil practice of overbuying. In other words, we must see to it that we do not actively contribute by act or omission to overbuying by an exhibitor."

Roach Refutes Curtailment Talk by Starting Two

NEW YORK—Despite much coast "talk" indicating there may be a serious curtailment of 1940-41 production schedules, Hal Roach has given the go-ahead signal for two new pictures, according to Edward Peskay, sales supervisor, upon his return from a visit with the producer.

Aside from "Captain Caution," which will be released in August, Roach plans to put "Roadshow," budgeted at $800,000 and "Broadway Limited" before the cameras in about two weeks, Peskay states. He adds the cost of "Caution" is over $1,000,000.

Musicians Federation Keep New York Headquarters

NEW YORK—The American Federation of Musicians will maintain its headquarters in New York, a union spokesman states. With the naming of James C. Petrillo, Chicago, as head of the union, there was some talk of shifting the office. Petrillo remains in charge of the Chicago local and will commute between the two cities.

Gets Great Neck Job

GREAT NECK, L. I.—Amusement Supply Co., Inc., has been engaged to design, build and equip a modern 1,200-seat theatre on Middle Neck Road. The project, to be constructed on the site of a garage, will be ready in October.

World Has "Shark Woman"

NEW YORK—"Shark Woman," exploitation film produced by B. F. Zeidman, has been acquired by World Pictures.

Allied of New York Not to Cut Prices

NEW YORK—With the new 10 per cent tax on admissions from 21 cents and over passed by Congress, Allied of New York is the first exhibitor unit to go on record not to cut prices.

It has been rumored some exhibitors were planning to pare admissions from 25 cents to 20 cents to avoid the tax, but directors of Allied of New York, in session Thursday, unequivocally expressed their cooperation and support to the new emergency act. The directors also authorized Max A. Cohen, president, to communicate with President Roosevelt and offer full support of their theatres and services to any program which will foster Americanism.

Any attempt by exhibitors to reduce admissions to obviate the tax would bring about a price war, it is held in some quarters. Further, it is stated, such a move would be unpatriotic and amount to "a dose of poison to film companies." The contention is that to reduce prices would reflect on distributor revenue. If distributor revenue is pared, it is argued, producers will be forced to bear down on production costs on outstanding pictures which are sorely needed now.

ITOA Is Jubilant Over Tax Ceiling

NEW YORK—Jubilant relief was expressed by most members of the ITOA and other independent exhibitors that the new 10 per cent admission tax starts at 21 cents. The general trend among houses affected, a survey shows, will be to pass the tax on to the public.

Such action was taken by the ITOA executive board which met in a special session to discuss the federal levy. Those houses which are affected, Harry Brandt, president, said are going to have the public pay the tax.

In a statement for the Stanley-Warner Theatres of Philadelphia, Joseph Bernhard, general manager, stated: "There will be no cut in admission prices in Philadelphia or anywhere else on account of the tax. The tax will be added everywhere to present admission prices, as I consider it a patriotic obligation to help make the people defense-conscious."

Similar sentiment was voiced among officials of other major circuits. Among sales executives was some grumbling over the fact the tax does not encompass all admission brackets.

Allied of New Jersey on Fence Over Tax Course

NEW YORK—Allied of New Jersey went on record at a meeting in Asbury Park as favoring passing on the new federal admissions tax to the public, but reserved the right to absorb the new levy if it meets with audience disfavor. The organization's convention in September at Atlantic City will be held at either the President or Ritz-Carlton, it was decided.

Decree Expert—

A. H. Feller, special assistant to the attorney general in charge of the decree section for the government, came on from Washington especially to sit in on settlement negotiations and advise on legal angles for setting up a consent decree.

Legality of Issues Puzzling Lawyers

NEW YORK—Legality of a certain number of proposals which would be incorporated in a consent decree is understood puzzling negotiators working on a settlement of the government suit.

Many differences have arisen as to what can go into the decree and what cannot be inserted, it is held. One is the question of compulsory arbitration which a government source contends can be adopted but which some distributor lawyers frown upon becauses of the supreme court decision outlawing such arbitration.

It is also stated every precaution will be taken not to violate the anti-trust laws. Those who point this out hark back to the Interstate case where minimum admission prices and elimination of duals in contracts were held against the Sherman law.

All distributors were parties to the Interstate agreement, it is stated, and it is felt that all majors again will be joining in a practice with the government, if department of justice attorneys finally approve, of doing something which may be subject to criticism by the supreme court. That not only applies to compulsory arbitration, but other on-the-border topics as well.

While there is an intimation Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard will ultimately pass on the legality of the proposals in doubt, there is a question in the minds of a number of lawyers whether the judge's decision would be the final word.

Meanwhile counsel for both sides all week went over a lot of ground covered previously and have just about reached the stage for drafting a first formula of the correlated ideas on trade practices under a consent decree.

Says "Slot Movies" Plan Featurettes

OLD POINT COMFORT, VA.—Manufacturers of film product for the slot machines soon to be placed on the market, are planning to make featurettes running from 20 to 30 minutes in length, Ed Kuykendall told members of Virginia's MPTO who assembled here at the Hotel Chamberlin for their mid-summer convention.

The president of the MPTOA also predicted a product shortage in Hollywood within the next six months, adding that, of necessity, exhibitors will be forced to give extended playing time to big pictures.

After a general discussion from the floor on the new federal admission tax, the convention, in a formal resolution, decided to pass it on to the public.

The welcoming address was delivered by Hon. Mayor Bickford of Hampton, who was introduced by William F. Crockett, president of the association. Col. Robert Barton, counsel, then read his report laying special emphasis on the activities of the legislative committee at the last meeting of the general assembly.

Guests who made brief talks from the floor included William Sussman and Edgar Moss of 20th-Fox; Ted O'Shea, Metro; Carter Barron, Loew's, and Jack Cohen, National Screen.

Social activities began Sunday morning with a fishing trip into Chesapeake Bay, followed by swimming and cocktails. The convention wound up Monday night with a banquet and dance.

In attendance were:

Col. Robert Barton, Frank Wolf jr., Ed Kuykendall, Wade Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen, Jake Flax, Sam Flax, Dan Weinberg, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Barbee, Charles E. Crank, Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Distributors Marking Time on Continent

NEW YORK—Distributors, marking time over developments on the continent, are frankly pessimistic whether normal operations can ever be resumed in a market dominated by the Nazi economy.

One view holds it is too soon to make any predictions since peace has not yet been declared and only an armistice exists in Europe. Others, more realistic, do not plan to ship any new prints into Europe until they know definitely the conditions under which they can operate.

One of the more unpleasant prospects facing the majors is that they may have to deal with a monopoly, patterned after the Italian model, and dominated by Nazi economists.

Signs that some of the companies are actually planning to withdraw until the end of hostilities is seen by the action of 20th Century-Fox which is planning to liquidate offices in Germany and the resigned complacence among M-G-M executives who expect the worst as a result of "The Mortal Storm." Paramount, the only other company operating in Germany, continues its cautious course there.

Another problem facing distributors who have high priced continental managers is what to do now that their market has been virtually wiped away. M-G-M's Laudy Lawrence, Paramount's Fred Lange, 20th-Fox's Ben Miggins and Warner's Bob Schless will be most affected. Schless, however, is still in charge of England and plans to return there shortly.

Main hope of the foreign managers is that theatre screens in continental Europe must be supplied with films. Popularity of the American product, it is hoped, will make the Nazi powers more lenient as a matter of policy in bolstering the morale of the conquered populace.

Schine Counsel Sets No Limit on Particulars

BUFFALO—Counsel for the Schine circuit states that while major distributors, co-defendants in the anti-trust suit, have made a definite time limit for the government to furnish bills of particulars, no such request has been made for the Schines.

It is indicated the government may delay in supplying the particulars to distributor defendants and action will not be pressed in view of settlement negotiations under way in New York for a consent decree on the big suit. Sources here believe that if the all-industry action is amicably settled the government will withdraw the local action.

RKO-Cocalis Negotiations Approaching Conclusion

NEW YORK—Negotiations between RKO and Cocalis, which at one time were almost called off because of a stalemate, are approaching a conclusion and final details await the approval of John J. O'Connor, RKO vice-president in charge of theatre operations.

New York Allied May Join MPTOA

New York—Max A. Cohen, president, and directors of Allied of New York are seriously considering joining the MPTOA. At a meeting Thursday, an invitation by Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA head, for the local unit to join the national organization was discussed with indications pointing to a favorable decision shortly.

When Kuykendall was in town two weeks ago, he personally talked to Cohen about affiliation with the latter expressing a desire to leave such action to the board and membership.

Easterners Attend Allied Convention in Chicago

CHICAGO—Among those registered at the 11th annual national Allied convention recently concluded here, were the following:

From New York City—Charles L. Casanave, George F. Dembow, Edward Golden, Adolph Haas, S. W. Hand, Mrs. David Harris, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hartley, David Palfreyman, H. M. Richey, Al Steen.

From Philadelphia — Joseph Conway, Michael Felt, Charles Goldfine, E. T. Kelley, David E. Milgram, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Samuelson, and Raymond Schwartz.

From Camden, N. J.—Edward Auger, H. C. Elwes, and from Newark came Mr. and Mrs. H. Lowenstein.

A Baltimore registrant was H. A. Blum, and A. F. Myers came from Washington, D. C.

NEW YORK—An innovation in audience games is announced by Premium Products, specializing in business stimulators. The distributors claim every number called is punched, making 24 ways to win on two cards and eliminating dead numbers.

Monogram Will Move Headquarters West

HOLLYWOOD—Denying he will replace Scott R. Dunlap as production head, W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram, states the company's home office, with the exception of the foreign department, will be moved to the coast in the course of the next year.

Johnston has been in favor of moving the company's main offices to Hollywood for some time. On his recent trip from New York, he indicated he was about to fulfill that desire.

Dunlap's contract, the Monogram chief points out, was renewed in February to run until March, 1945. The agreement continues him as top man at the studio in addition to supervising units producing for the company outside.

Additional space has been taken at the Ralph Like studios and other production quarters are being sought for the completion of the Monogram program. There will be no curtailment of production, Johnston insists.

Local 306 Ready to Talk Summer Wage Scale

NEW YORK—Local 306 is willing to meet any independent exhibitor halfway on reduction of wages of projectionists for the summer, a union spokesman declares.

Concerning the request made by Harry Brandt on behalf of ITOA for special consideration to independent theatre owners to prevent an unprecedented number of summer closings, the spokesman adds:

"The union is ready at any time to discuss the problem with the theatre owner. Where it can be shown receipts warrant a readjustment to keep the house open for the summer, we will be glad to cooperate."

Max Roth Assumes Warner Branch Helm in Buffalo

BUFFALO—Max Roth, formerly Warner salesman in Chicago, has assumed his new duties as branch manager of the local exchange. Roth, who is a film veteran and former district manager for Fox, Columbia and Republic, replaces Charles Rich, recently shifted to Cleveland as branch manager.

The new sunburn Eugene Picker is sporting these days comes from weekends on the new family yacht.

Good on 19th Hole

RYE, N. Y.—The sun came out early as the annual RKO golf tournament got under way at the Westchester Country Club —and seven pill-swingers fainted from shock. This neatly timed incident was the signal for a rush to the 19th hole, where, with the proper fortification, the others went strengthened to brave the strange elements.

There were no reported cases of sunstroke, but a couple of wet feet from the soggy fairways made up for it. The food was excellent, the brisk breeze could have been used to better advantage sailing a boat and the prizes were of such excellence that a Pinkerton detective would have come in handy. All told, about 200 Amazons and kibitzers put it down as a delightful day.

Old RKO Surrenders Right To Do Business in N. Y.

NEW YORK—Federal Judge William O. Bondy, on request of Irving Trust, former RKO trustee, has signed an order authorizing the trust company to surrender the bankrupt company's right to do business in New York. On January 26, 1940, all holdings of the old RKO Corp. were turned over to the reorganized company. This new order, under section 216 of the general corporation laws of the state, is the last legal matter in connection with RKO to be handled by Judge Bondy with the exception of allowing fees on reorganization.

Para't Board Meet Holds No Threat to Executives

NEW YORK—No change in the Paramount executive slate is anticipated when the board meets Wednesday for annual elections. The board itself was continued recently at the stockholders meeting presided over by Barney Balaban, president.

Trio to Kallett

ALBANY—The Kallett circuit has leased the Paramount, a summer situation in Schroon Lake. Also the Rex, Bolton Landing, from Alec Taylor, and the Strand, a new house in Long Lake, from Mrs. Becker.

Playwright Victors Sued by Producer

NEW YORK—Court news of the week was inconsequential for the greater part, with the most important action being filed by Guthrie McClintock against Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes. This suit is a new one of its kind, with the play producer seeking 50 per cent of the award granted Sheldon and Miss Barnes for their successful prosecution of the "Letty Lynton" suit against Loew's. The film company plagiarized "Dishonored Lady" in the picture and after a seven-year fight, awards of $167,000 were granted. Claiming he was promised 50 per cent of the film sale price in "Dishonored Lady," McClintock is suing, claiming the plagiarism award constitutes a film sale. The monies received from the prosecution by Sheldon and Miss Barnes of the Capitol theatre are also included.

The Roxy has applied to supreme court for a writ of certiorari seeking a reduction from $4,100,000 to $3,025,000 on its tax assessment for 1940-1941. It is claimed on behalf of the theatre the assessed amount represents an increase of $775,000 over the assessment of 1937, with no new improvements since then. Justice Samuel Rosenman set September 23 as date for a hearing on the application.

Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck dismissed William Mancuso's suit for $250,000 against Harry Schlitt, Samuel Bram, Herman Robbins, Charles Casanave, Advertising Accessories, Inc., American Display Corp., Exhibitors Poster and Supply Co., Inc., National Screen Service, National Screen Accessories, National Screen Announcements, and National Screen Co. The suit claimed defendants monopolized the trailer industry by control of product of major film companies and prevented Mancuso from securing accounts for his own trailer business.

Would Impound Stills

Decision was reserved by Supreme Court Justice Felix Benvenga on the application by Ernest Hemingway, Benjamin Glazer, and the Theatre Guild for a temporary injunction against Film Alliance and Midtown Theatres' proposed exhibition of "Fifth Column Spy" at the Rialto. The film was to open June 28, but the date has been shifted to July 3 with the judge requesting no exhibition until he decides the issue.

The plaintiffs claim exclusive right to the title "Fifth Column" and assert the defendants, having acquired an English picture, "Spies of the Air," changed it. Use of the title would ruin any film sale of the original owners, the plaintiffs assert.

Charles Chaplin is bringing an application to impound the stills of "The Dictator" in possession of Life. The actor is suing Time, publishers of Life, for $1,000,000 damages for having released pictures from "The Dictator" in the June 17 issue of Life without permission. Application will be heard in the federal court, July 2.

REVIEW FLASHES

ANDY HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE (M-G-M)—The excellence of all the Hardy Family pictures having long since been established, judging any one of the series as to its comparative degree of worth becomes strictly a matter of individual tastes. This one differs but little from its predecessors in entertainment qualities and revenue possibilities. Some may acclaim it the best of the group, others vote it below previously established standards. The story seems to have lost some of the others' down-to-earth, homey humor, atmosphere and plausibility, but to more than compensate for this shortcoming, Judy Garland and her voice have been added to the cast, which she bolsters so substantially that at times she completely takes the play away from Master Mickey Rooney, his usual irrepressible self as the adolescent Andy. George Seitz directed.

MAN WHO TALKED TOO MUCH (WB)—Courtroom drama of lawyers, their trade and problems. An effective dramatic offering with strong suspense. George Brent, Virginia Bruce, Brenda Marshall, Richard Barthelmess. Vincent Sherman directed.

MARYLAND (20th-Fox)—Those who remember "Kentucky" can look forward to another fine and entertaining picture in this one, the story of Maryland Maid whose sire throws and kills Sidney Blackmer and stirs up a strong resentment in Fay Bainter against horses from that point on. However, she has to contend with too many obstacles to keep up the hate forever. How she finally overcomes this is expertly portrayed by a strong and impeccable cast comprising John Payne, Charles Ruggles, Marjorie Weaver, Walter Brennan, Brenda Joyce, Hattie McDaniel and others. Technicolor gives the picture a significant touch. Henry King directed in the true vein of the south. The scope and painstaking effort behind the film make it an outstanding job.

STAGECOACH WAR (Para)—Standard entry in the Hopalong Cassidy series, which is to say that it is virtually as good as money from home for exhibitors catering to enthusiasts of western fare replete with an abundance of thrills, chills and chuckles. With a framework of magnificent scenic backgrounds, William Boyd turns in his usual excellent performance as "Hoppy," aided and abetted by an action-packed script. Harry Sherman produced; Lesley Selander directed.

STREET OF MEMORIES (20th-Fox)—Another melodramatic tear-jerker which will serve its purpose as supporting fare, enacted by a cast of adequate but unseasoned troupers. Story is a bit far-fetched but will pass muster as program material. Lucien Hubbard produced; Shepard Traube directed.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

ITO Bulletin Explains New Admission Tax

COLUMBUS, OHIO—Explaining how the new tax on admissions of 21 cents and over operates, P. J. Wood, secretary for the ITO of Ohio, warns exhibitors not to meddle with the internal revenue bureau on returns.

"Don't do any fooling with Uncle Sam in connection with any part of the federal tax because this old fellow with the whiskers has a way of making it pretty tough for cheaters." He also reminds the internal revenue bureau has access to all books and records for checking returns.

Watervliet Arsenal Project Heartening

ALBANY—Atop a report by the state labor department that New York state factory payrolls rose .3 per cent in May, marking the first time in 1940 that net changes were better than usual seasonal changes, came encouraging news to distributors and exhibitors in expanded employment at Watervliet Arsenal and elsewhere.

This is the result of the new national defense program, which will improve employment and business generally in a number of situations throughout the Albany territory. The Watervliet Arsenal, which has been increasing its employes and payrolls for the past year, is being placed on a 24-hour basis of operations. Man-hours of employment will be stepped up 20 per cent over the previously announced plan. A total of $1,723,900 for the purchase of new tools and general rehabilitation is to be spent at once. The sum of $923,900 has been made immediately available.

The program contemplates eventual employment of 5,000 to 6,000 men, it is said. The Watervliet Arsenal is the only heavy gun factory of the war department and the only one where the type for badly-needed coast defense guns is manufactured. A bill now before Congress increasing the Army to 375,000 will require the production of more guns.

In addition to Watervliet Arsenal, General Electric's giant plant in Schenectady is receiving many war orders. The latest is a $522,816 contract to provide supercharger assemblies for the Army Air Corps.

The .3 per cent increase in state factory payrolls was in contrast to an average over the past 25 years showing losses from April to May of .9 per cent. The decrease in employment for May, 1940, was only .8 per cent, whereas the normal decrease is 1.3 per cent.

Tax Hearing Affair Draws Allied Fire

CHICAGO—Even as the Allied convention closed, there still appeared to be two sides to the argument brewing between the association and Spyros Skouras, on the latter's appearance before the senate finance committee on the suggested changes in the federal admission tax.

The president of National Theatres claims this was done with Allied's leaders' full knowledge, while Allied leaders claim they knew nothing of his appearance there with C. C. Pettijohn of the MPPDA, until after they read about it.

Hays office sources in Chicago told BOXOFFICE that "It is known that Spyros Skouras, together with Pete Harrison, talked with Abram Myers in Washington and was given his okay on the amendment."

Skouras Tells His Side

Skouras in a four-page telegram to Jack Kirsch, addressed to the convention, told his side of the story, explaining that he had conferred with Myers June 12, explained the plan, but that Myers telegraphed him June 13 in New York that he was not in favor of it. The plan was for a one-cent tax on admissions from 10 to 25 cents, two cents on admissions from 26 to 49 cents, and ten per cent above that.

He said that the plan was presented to the senate committee on June 14, after Skouras had discussed the matter with Col. H. A. Cole, Allied president. In the telegram, Skouras gave his reasons for opposing the original house committee plan to lower the ten per cent levy from the present 40-cent to a 30-cent level. These were:

"Would Lower Admissions"

That admissions would be generally lowered, recalling they were cut when the 40-cent exemption was provided in the first tax. He said that before the 40-cent exemption was adopted, over 2,500 theatres were charging 50 cents and upward, but that after the tax measure was enacted this number was so reduced till today there are only 140 theatres charging over 40 cents. As a result, "subsequent runs and small town theatres are forced to charge low admission prices which obviously are detrimental and injurious to them. If the 30-cent admission were exempt under the present law the conditions prevailing today would be greatly accentuated with resulting greater injury and worse conditions than now exist."

He added that producers today are losing more than 75 per cent of foreign revenue, that exhibitors should encourage them to produce quality attractions, and that the plan proposed would be beneficial to the producers as well as to the exhibitors.

On the other hand, Allied contends that Skouras made no mention of conversations between Myers and Pettijohn, and charges that Skouras presented his plan without advance notice to Allied. Allied's statement outlined the preliminary steps in the action, and added that Myers sent a statement to Allied leaders, when the house introduced its original bill, advising Allied not to oppose the bill and that it was the industry's "patriotic duty to accept its share of the burden without complaint."

It concluded with the observation the record should be made available to independent exhibitors "in order that they may know to whose meddling they are indebted for being subjected to a tax from which the House of Representatives had exempted them."

PHILADELPHIA

THE Republican convention affected exhibitors in more than one way. The visitors so packed the hotels that visiting exhibitors had to go across the river to Camden for accommodations . . . The mummers' parade, which attracted an estimated 1,000,000 spectators, killed business Tuesday night, and the Schuylkill regatta sabotaged the boxoffice the next day . . . But midtown theatres snared a lot of the out-of-towners . . . The Variety Club was packed thicker than it has ever been with visiting celebrities, politicoes and writers . . . Will Hays was one of the visitors . . . Nancy Lee, Variety Club's "Miss Philadelphia," 1939, was official hostess for the Vandenberg delegation.

Buckley to Rebuild Harmanus Hall

ALBANY—A new theatre will be erected on site of Harmanus Bleecker Hall, recently destroyed by fire with the loss of an employe's life. Christopher H. Buckley, owner of the property and operator of General Stark, Bennington, Vt., announced this from Bennington. Buckley said details waited on adjustments to be made with the insurance companies, but hoped to announce them within a few weeks. Capacity of old house, built 50 years ago for stage shows, was just under 2,200.

Under a 21-year lease signed July 24, 1935, by Buckley and Fabian's Fast Theatres, Inc., latter agreed to pay $50,000 yearly rental for use of Hall. The lease, filed with Albany county clerk, has a provision that in event of total or 80 per cent destruction of the Hall by fire, the owner could give notice he was rebuilding and thus hold lease in force. Fabian Operating Company and Copia Realty Corp. guaranteed the lease.

Production Steady; Fifty in Work

HOLLYWOOD—Production hold steady, at a 50-picture pace, with 12 new starts to supplement those already in work.

Columbia launched "Thundering Frontier" and "Wizard of Death" to boost its total to seven. Metro has five in work, none a new start. "Range Busters" and "All Around the Town" got the go signal at Monogram, which simultaneously completed "Rainbow on the Range," "Arizona Redman" and "Haunted House" to emerge with a three-picture total.

Paramount gunned "Moon Over Burma" and "Arise My Love," hitting a six-picture pace. RKO Radio signaled a start on "Too Many Girls." It has eight in work. Republic's total dropped to two when "Tulsa Kid" went into the cutting room.

"Down Argentine Way" went into production at 20th Century-Fox, giving that studio a four-picture total. United Artists has two in work. Universal started "The Son of Roaring Dan" and "Hired Wife," and completed "Margie." It is shooting six. Warner has seven on its stages. "Honeymoon for Three" and "House on the Hill" are new starts; "A Dispatch From Reuters" and "Money and the Woman" were completed.

See Busy Summer in Film Making Schedule

That July will be marked down on the books as one of the busiest summer months, from the point of production activity, that has been recorded in Hollywood for many a year, seems almost a certainty as a quick survey of film-making plans on most lots reveals that, to date, 26 pictures have already been chalked in to hit the sound stages from July 1 throughout the month.

War hysteria to the contrary, the first day of July will see Warner gun "The Secret Army," while M-G-M will launch "Philadelphia Story," RKO Radio will roll "Little Men" and Paramount will signal the start on "Touchdown." On July 5 Universal will launch "Seven Sinners." July 7 will see both "Virginia" and "Love Thy Neighbor" in action at Paramount. A banner day in point of monetary expenditure will be July 8, when Warner alone guns "The Amazing Sergeant York," Frank Capra's "The Life of John Doe" and "Santa Fe Trail," with an aggregate budget of well over $3,000,000. On the same day RKO Radio rolls "You'll Find Out," 20th Century-Fox launches "Charlie Chan in Washington" and M-G-M signals a start on "Go West."

On July 10 Metro will gun "Little Nellie Kelly," while RKO Radio will unleash a barrage by starting two Tim Holt westerns simultaneously as well as launching "Stunt Man" and "Mexican Spitfire Out West." "Third Finger, Left Hand" rolls at M-G-M, July 11 and "Bittersweet" gets the gun at the same studio the following day. July 15 will see "Kitty Foyle" and "No, No, Nanette" before the cameras at RKO Radio, "Tin Pan Alley" getting the gun at 20th Century-Fox and "Fiesta in Manhattan" rolling at Warner. Paramount guns "The Shepherd of the Hills" and an untitled Jack Moss production July 29.

Republic has decided to shelve the big-budgeted "Storm Over India" because of its British military backgrounds, which it feels would not be timely in view of current developments, and has replaced it with "Friendly Neighbors," a musical.

With the completion of "Shadows Over Chinatown" Monogram will discontinue its series of detective thrillers based on the "James Lee Wong" stories in which Boris Karloff has portrayed the Oriental sleuth.

"GWTW" Brass Box Lock To College by Selznick

WASHINGTON, PA.—The new chemistry building of Washington and Jefferson College will have a brass box lock of the Civil War South, through the generosity of Producer David Selznick of "Gone With the Wind."

A. V. McClain, assistant to the college president, saw the lock in the film, and wrote the producer that the new building was being done in Southern Colonial design, and the builders were unable to find an appropriate lock for the main door of the building's library. The lock came by return mail.

Heavy Canada Load In War Budget

TORONTO — Canada's second wartime budget provides increased taxes that hit the theatre business, with circuits called upon to pay 40 per cent of gross profits to the federal government, in addition to provincial levies.

The new Dominion profits tax is an increase from 50 to 75 per cent on profits in excess of the basic rate from the average income over a four-year period prior to the war. This increase applies to individual theatre companies, whether chain or unaffiliated.

Film exchanges and theatres also are required to pay a war tax of ten per cent on the value of imports except those under the British preferential tariff, which means a higher cost on films, accessories, equipment and supplies from the States.

Individual wage earners now pay a war defense tax of at least two per cent on incomes as low as $600 per year, which is expected to cut into spending money for amusements by the average people who form the bulk of theatre patronage.

The new taxation is taken in good part by the people in recognition of the serious aspect of the war and the need for adequate financing.

An Elsa Maxwell Short

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has assigned William McGann to direct "The Lady and the Lug," a short subject starring Elsa Maxwell.

Louisiana Chain Tax In Senate Setback

BATON ROUGE—A Louisiana senate committee has reported unfavorably a theatre chain tax bill introduced by A. D. Flowers of Jena in the lower house and passed by that body. The sole supporter of the measure in the committee was John W. James, Columbia.

The bill, identical with the one passed by the house in 1938 and killed by the senate, calls for a tax of $50 per house up to five houses; $75 for each up to ten; $100 for each up to 20; $125 each up to 30; $150 each up to 40; $175 each up to 50, and $200 for each over 50. The measure, which would primarily affect the Saengers, Southern Amusement Co., and the Joy Houck interests, is estimated as being able to net the state approximately $250,000 annually.

Another measure directed at chain theatres is one introduced by Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc which would prohibit chains from operating more than one house in cities of less than 20,000 population. Embodied in this measure is a clause compelling places of amusement affected to post a bond to ensure the collection of the tax, and empowering the collector of this revenue to promulgate rules, examine all records of business; examine witnesses under oath; and introduce the use of stamps or tickets to facilitate accurate collections. A censorship feature of the bill calls for an assessment of $4.00 per thousand feet, to be paid by the distributor.

Another house bill, HB 796, calls for the department of public education to have charge of the censor boards.

Still another bill calls for a three-man board of censors, each serving six years at $5.00 per day plus 25 cents for each thousand feet of film examined. HB 577 calls for repeal of the original censorship law in its entirety.

Variety Club Plans Guest Clubroom in New York

DALLAS—A special club room in the Hotel Astor, New York, will be made available by September for out-of-town members by the National Variety Clubs, according to R. J. O'Donnell, local chief barker, on returning from the east. He just toured nine cities with John Harris, national Variety prexy.

New tents may be organized soon in Los Angeles and New Orleans, O'Donnell said. Oklahoma City is the baby tent, No. 22.

Dwore's House Burns

SCHENECTADY—Cameo, Sid Dwore's ace Schenectady theatre, will be closed temporarily as the result of a fire which broke out in the booth. Flames crept between the floors, the top one of which is occupied as an apartment. Dwore had recently remodeled it. There were no injuries.

HOLLYWOOD BOXOFFICE

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE PRODUCTION CENTER

(Hollywood Office—Suite 219 at 6404 Hollywood Blvd.; Ivan Spear, Western Manager)

Producers Kept Tense By Central Casting

What with the potentially dangerous strike at Central Casting Corp. to contend with in addition to their other chores, officials of the producers association, particularly the labor contact division, are experiencing a more than usually busy period. Aside from the CCC muddle, requests for conferences on contract revisions are on file from several studio crafts, on all of which huddles are planned within the next few days.

Furthermore, Will H. Hays, president of the MPPDA, is expected to check in early in July for his annual summer visit. Officials here said no definite date of arrival had been named, but disclosed they expected Hays to put in an appearance following the close of the Republican convention in Philadelphia, to which he is a delegate from Indiana. It is believed one of his first actions upon arriving will be to appoint a successor to Tom Pettey, who resigned as public relations counsel for the Hollywood office some weeks ago.

Confers on Assignment

Checking in from Lexington, Ky., Anna Bell Ward, head of the Elliott-Ward theatre enterprises, has begun conferences with George Weeks concerning her assignment as associate producer on the "Range Busters" series of westerns which Weeks will turn out for Monogram release.

Central Casting Strike Lines Hold; SAG Breach Threatens

Although a torrent of proposals and counter-proposals are being given careful scrutiny by representatives of both groups, the AFL-supported strike of Central Casting Corp. employes is still in progress, with indications that an agreement with producers for a closed shop for members of the American Federation of Office Employes may not be reached for some time. Constituting the major hurdles are the disposition of casting directors, which producers want classified as executives, while the AFOE insists they be included among other CCC employes, and failure to reach an agreement on wages and hours. Meantime the strike has created repercussions on several fronts:

SAG and CLC Clash

1. A threatened break between the Screen Actors Guild and the AFL's Central Labor Council loomed when the SAG informed the CLC that, while it will support the Central Casting strike, it will not "jeopardize its hard-won working conditions" at the studios and will cross CCC picket lines if such lines are thrown around any film factory. The SAG further warned that any extra accepting a studio call, then refusing to cross a picket line, would be liable to suspension or expulsion because no studio is on the SAG's unfair list. The Conference of Studio unions and the painters, however, have already pledged they will not cross any picket lines.

2. Central's "blacklist" of 119 extras whom it claims have drawn more than their share of work calls during the first five months of 1940 met with a scathing denunciation by the SAG when the Guild board issued a statement declaring it will not countenance any unfair discrimination, and asserted the SAG had no part in preparing the list. It reiterated its belief that the only sound method of equalizing work calls must await the report and recommendations of the Guild-producer standing committee, which has been making a detailed study of the situation for more than a year. The aforementioned 119 players have asked the SAG to guarantee that their future work will not be jeopardized despite the CCC's "blacklist."

Meet With SWG

Meantime producers and the Screen Writers Guild held another meeting to frame a closed-shop agreement, with no concrete results yet announced. One parley had been postponed because of the absence of Y. Frank Freeman, who enforced the delay by making a hurried trip to New York.

Moving Picture Painters Local 644 has re-elected Herbert Sorrell its business representative, with Jack Warnock elected president. Studio Plasterers re-elected Ben Martinez its business representative and chose Victor H. Heal for the presidency. Studio Costumers Local 705 is scheduled to hold its annual election July 18. The Screen Directors Guild has named B. Reeves Eason, Felix Feist, Irving Pichel and Lesley Selander as alternates on its new board of directors.

After months of negotiation, the Screen Readers Guild has signed a working agreement with producers calling for an 80 per cent Guild shop and a $45 weekly minimum. National Screen Service has signed the Screen Publicists Guild's basic agreement, giving NSS publicity men a 10 per cent wage boost and a 90 per cent Guild shop.

Film editors met to discuss progress being made in its negotiations for a 10 per cent wage increase for "on call" editors. The Art Directors Guild has renewed negotiations for a new contract calling for substantial wage increases.

The unanimous expression of gratification herein depicted comes as a direct result of Metro's "Edison, the Man" having been chosen the best picture released during May by the National Screen Council. Admiring the BOXOFFICE *Blue Ribbons which were presented to them as the result of the NSC decision are: Left, Producer John W. Considine jr. Center, Associate Producer Orville O. Dull. Europe's Relief Need Usurps All Hollywood Attention

Charity and war relief work as extra-curricular activities have, apparently, completely usurped Hollywood's attention, eliminating among other things virtually all interest in the various liberal movements which, until a few months ago, seemed firmly entrenched as filmdom's number one social by-product. And, as a result, Hollywood is taking in stride the precedental demand being placed upon its time, talent and pocketbook by the many agencies now engaged in raising funds and needed supplies to care for Europe's war refugees.

Biggest effort to date is, of course, the charity show staged here June 22 and broadcast not only through the nation but in many parts of the world. Millions of dollars worth of talent was donated to the causes of securing money for the Red Cross, the two-hour airer featuring such names as Edward Arnold, Mickey Rooney, Shirley Temple, Gloria Jean, Pat O'Brien, James Cagney, Arthur Lake, Penny Singleton, Mary Martin, Edward G. Robinson, Joe Penner, Paul Muni, Jackie Cooper and scores of other showfolk. Simultaneously the Red Cross announced Samuel Goldwyn has been appointed chairman for the motion picture industry to coordinate Hollywood's fund-raising endeavors, with Dr. A. H. Giannini accepting an appointment as chairman of the Citizens Emergency Campaign committee, embracing all industries, church groups and organizations in Southern California.

Staples for France

A continued flow of staple articles, with less emphasis on large cash donations, is being requested by the recently formed International Committee for Refugees in France, which has Constance Bennett as its chairman, Mrs. Jack L. Warner as vice-chairman and Gladys Young as treasurer. Included on the committee, in addition to the above officers, are Mrs. Darryl Zanuck, Mrs. Edwin Earle, Mrs. Milton Bren, Mr. and Mrs. Rob Wagner, Helen Ferguson, Dr. Joel Pressman and Claudette Colbert, Mrs. Ida Koverman, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Paley, Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn, Mrs. Charles Feldman, Mrs. Lewis D. Beaumont, Mrs. Lucien Brunswig, and the French consul, Georges Achard. Also actively participating are Barbara Stanwyck, Jeanette MacDonald, Gene Raymond, Dolores Del Rio, Jackie Cooper, Simone Simon, Otto Kruger, Guy Kibbee, Anita Louise, Ida Lupino, Louis Hayward and Tom Rutherford. Headquarters have been established at 8745 Sunset Blvd.

The ICRF is seeking sewing machines, shoes, refrigerators, bicycles, babies' scales and buggies, blankets, clothing, wool and knitting needles, dried milk, unrefined brown sugar, cod liver oil, halibut oil, dried fruits, cereals, hospital supplies, surgical dressings and gasoline. At present hospitals are being equipped at Montbron, Chateauneuf, Cape Breton, and Poitiers. Space to pack articles for shipment has been donated by Jack Warner at the Warner Sunset studio.

For the combined benefit of the Red Cross and Ann Lehr's Hollywood Guild, Mrs. Edward G. Robinson was hostess at a charity party at the home of her screen-star husband, for which both film and civic notables turned out and dipped liberally into their pockets and purses for donations. In still another affair, screen stars served as models and Ken Murray was the m. c. at a benefit luncheon and fashion show staged by the Beverly Hills Auxiliary. Proceeds were divided between the Red Cross and Friendship House, a refugee assistance organization. Patronesses included Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn, Mrs. Louis B. Mayer, Mrs. Sam Briskin, Benita Hume, Pat Paterson, Annabella, Norma Shearer, Barbara Stanwyck, Irene Dunne, Binnie Barnes, Claudette Colbert, Alice Faye, Gracie Allen and Billie Burke.

A benefit show staged by the American Field Service, June 27, found a number of screen players making appearances, including Anita Louise, Alan Mowbray, Dick Powell, Edward Arnold, Leo Carrillo, George Murphy, Mischa Auer, Billy Gilbert and Nigel Bruce. Proceeds will be used to purchase ambulances.

Plans to centralize charity work, as far as possible through the formation of road units headed by screen names and managed by the producers association and the Screen Actors Guild are being discussed by both organizations. Volunteers for the units would be drawn from the SAG ranks and all proceeds would go to the Red Cross.

Indicative of the far-flung character of the relief work for which Hollywood's cooperation is being secured is the announcement that Louis B. Mayer, himself born in Canada, has accepted the chairmanship of a trans-Canadian campaign under which, it is planned, benefit shows in every theatre in the Dominion will be staged simultaneously. The goal is a $1,000,000 fund to be turned over to the government for use in its war effort. Hollywood personnel by the score will be asked to donate their services by appearing in one of the hundreds of special shows. Handling the affair in addition to Mayer are executives of Canada's motion picture industry.

HARDLY a day passes that fan writers fail to chronicle items of which the following from the Parsons column is typical:

" . . . Ellen Schwannecke, who had one of the top spots in the 1932 UFA sensation, "Maedchen in Uniform," arrived in Hollywood a few days ago to talk to David Loew and Albert Lewin about an important character role in "Flotsam" . . . another interesting refugee arrival is Emmrich Kalman, Viennese composer of "Countess Maritza" fame. He's talking to Metro about doing an original musical."

Which may well cause some heavy and unhealthy thinking on the parts of the many competent American producers, directors, writers and actors who are having their employment and incomes impaired because "foreign revenues for American films have vanished."

A welcome and wise innovation in the way of preview announcements was Warner's invitation to the debut of "My Love Came Back." Simply mimeographed on inexpensive stock, it probably represents a saving of several hundreds of dollars as compared with the elaborately embossed or engraved pronouncements normally issued to inform a comparatively few persons that a feature is to be previewed. This is enforcing economy in a sensible fashion, and if more of a similar ilk were practiced, it wouldn't be necessary for the studio generalissimos to fire so many stenographers, janitors and publicity men when the need for wielding the axe presents itself.

And the charitable Easterner who laid down the precedental price had better shy clear of independent producers looking for angels.

BALLYHOODLUMS: Helen Ferguson is setting a splendid example for other members of the freelance fraternity by devoting so much of her time—and without remuneration—to publicizing the International Committee for Refugees in France, formed recently by a number of Hollywood screen folk with Constance Bennett as its chairman, and which will devote its energies to raising cash and needed supplies, such as food, clothing, surgical supplies, etc. to aid the war's victims. And a first-class job Miss Ferguson is delivering . . . Another femme whose future among the unaffiliated orchid-cultivators will bear watching is Roses Joseph, who is garnering more local space for her two accounts, Leon Schlesinger and the Florentine Gardens, than many of the more seasoned male blurbers with long and impressive client lists . . . It might be infectious or it might be larceny, but those stories about RKO Producer Gene Towne making a play to secure the World's Fair prize cow, Elsie, for his forthcoming "Little Men" are strongly reminiscent of the buildup given the bovine Gertrude by the Paramount praisery next door. In fact, the Marathon Streeters have heretofore had more or less exclusive rights to the zoological publicity approach, what with trained fleas, polar bears, lion cubs, cows and mules furnishing the motif for campaigns . . . United Artists' ball of fire, Monroe Greenthal, must take the rap for the wan look that is creeping into the faces of the UA unit publicity chiefs. The speed at which the visitor works and gets things done is so unusual in this timeless land of manana that it has his local associates groggy.

Seven Simple Sagas

A cavalcade of the commonplace best describes the array of seven features paraded before Hollywood's regiment of film critics during the past week. With none of them rising above the program average, their individual and aggregate quality can best be judged by the fact that what, under other circumstances, would be classified as a standard entry in the sagebrush field, Harry Sherman's "Stagecoach War," was a strong contender for top honors in the point of honest entertainment delivered. Showmen whose patrons demand western fare that pays off in chills, thrills and chuckles, and at the same time does not resort to the obvious in its unreeling, can book this one with every assurance of satisfaction. As usual, the Sherman-Paramount "Hopalong Cassidy" opus benefits by eye-filling scenic backgrounds, a crisply developed script by Norman Houston and Harry F. Olmsted and nicely-paced direction by Lesley Selander.

For general audience consumption the nod should probably go to Warner's "My Love Came Back," a frail comedy, told in the continental manner and enlivened by some delightful and welcome musical interludes. Getting away to a slow and involved beginning, it gradually picks up speed and winds up in a maze of humorous situations that should send the customers home satisfied, albeit not overly enthusiastic about it all. Given an original by Walter Reisch which contained a meagre and, at times, implausible story line, Scripters Ivan Goff, Robert Buckner and Earl Baldwin did their best to make something of it; in which they were aided by Producer Wolfgang Reinhardt, who mounted the vehicle substantially, and Kurt Bernhardt, who exhibited the influence of his European background in his direction.

RKO Radio established some sort of a record for the seven-day period by unfurling no less than three films—each modestly budgeted and all delivering their quota of entertainment. A fresh viewpoint concerning the perennial penitentiary plot is the outstanding element of "Millionaires in Prison," which, despite its locale, contains a wealth of humorous touches to offset the grimness customarily associated with such fare. Credit for this airy approach must be divided among Martin Mooney, who wrote the original; Lynn Root and Frank Fenton, who scripted, and Director Ray McCarey. Howard Benedict was the producer.

Light, diverting entertainment, "Cross Country Romance" should be found pleasant enough amusement by most audiences, particularly if they do not object too strongly to the fact that it patterns itself closely after the now historic "It Happened One Night." The script by Jerry Cady and Bert Granet, from Eleanor Brown's original, has its quota of laughs, moves along rapidly and provides Gene

T. R. Williams Treasurer For Century Pictures

Century Pictures, recently organized by Frank Melford, and which will produce "The Silver Queen," starring Claire Trevor, for Paramount release, has appointed T. R. Williams treasurer of the company. Immediately after the appointment Williams checked out for New York to confer with Paramount executives on production plans for the picture.

Williams, former treasurer of Educational and more recently a producer for Monogram, also holds the post of president of the newly-formed Panam Productions, which he incorporated in association with Ted Richmond. Spokesmen for Williams declare there is no indication he will relinquish the latter post despite his new tieup with Century.

The Southern California sky was literally filled with golf balls June 24 when 20th Century-Fox, M-G-M and United Artists all held their annual tournaments. Walter Scharf, music arranger, bagged first honors in the 20th Century-Fox tourney, run off on the Rancho course. Red Crawford grabbed UA's Alfred Hitchcock trophy, the competition being held at the Altadena Country Club. M-G-M required two courses because of the heavy turnout, with Milo Platt coming in ahead of the field.

SPEARHEADS

Raymond with a neat comeback vehicle. Frank Woodruff directed for Producer Cliff Reid.

Although sophisticated patrons may brand it as innocuous and revolt against the somewhat namby-pamby characterization which Jean Hersholt imparts in the title role, "Dr. Christian Meets the Women" is, nevertheless, clean and wholesome. Bolstered by the exploitation value of a popular transcontinental radio show, it will probably hit the mark, especially in small towns and neighborhood showings. The William Stephens production is smoothly made and competently directed by William McGann. Marion Orth wrote the original screenplay—emphasizing too strongly, perhaps, Dr. Christian's forthright honesty and disturbing habit of never making a mistake.

Did it not contain some vast and impressive scenic backgrounds of the Canadian north woods, superbly captured by Technicolor cameras, Paramount's "Untamed" would now be wallowing in hopeless mediocrity. As is, a hard-working cast copes unsuccessfully with a screenplay by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan and Frank Butler—from a novel by Sinclair Lewis—which specializes in the obvious. George Archainbaud's sluggish, heavy-handed direction does nothing to remedy the situation. Paul Jones is credited with the production guidance.

A bit far-fetched as to story, but on the whole achieving its goal as a melodramatic tear-jerker, is 20th Century-Fox's "Street of Memories." It undoubtedly will serve nicely as supporting material. Lucien Hubbard's first production for this company, the film was directed by Shepard Traube from an original screenplay by Frederic I. Rinaldo and Robert Lees.

Hersholt Heads Relief Fund Third Time

Jean Hersholt has been re-elected president of the Motion Picture Relief Fund for his third consecutive term. Other officers named include Ralph Block, first vice-president; Ralph Morgan, second vice-president; Walter Wanger, third vice-president; Lucile Gleason, fourth vice-president; George Bagnall, treasurer; Ewell D. Moore, counsel, and Wilma Bashor, executive secretary.

Elected as trustees were Charles Brackett, Lucile Gleason, Lucie Ward, Charles Rosher, John Balderston, Sol Lesser, Morgan, Conrad Nagel, Basil Rathbone and Morgan Wallace.

Frank Lloyd Transferring Quarters to Universal

Frank Lloyd plans to transfer his production headquarters to Universal within the next ten days, where he will operate for the next two years. Under the move he washes up Frank Lloyd Pictures, Inc., and reincorporates as Frank Lloyd Productions. As the latter company he will turn out six pictures for Universal release. His sole effort for Columbia, "The Howards of Virginia," is now in the cutting room.

"Sea Hawk" to Trail "All This" as WB Roadshow

Warner has decided to roadshow its Errol Flynn starrer, "The Sea Hawk," with present plans calling for it to follow "All This, and Heaven Too" into the Carthay Circle late in August. The film will also have a two-a-day New York engagement in August.

John Steinbeck's "Tortilla Flats," which Sam Zimbalist will produce for Metro, is being scripted by Benjamin Glazer.

S' FRANCISCO

MORE than a million and a half persons visited the 1940 Golden Gate International Exposition during its first full month of operation. With schools in and about California just closing and the vacation and tourist season just opening up, there is every reason to believe the crowds pushing through the turnstiles will increase . . . The Fox, largest of the Fox West Coast chain, celebrates its 11th anniversary this week . . . J. A. Haas, recently appointed west coast supervisor of National Screen Accessories, is in town watching the work on the new building . . . The Eastman in Oakland will reopen July 6.

Most of the neighborhood's younger set may be found at the Coliseum Theatre on Friday afternoons when the house presents its Tiny Tots Matinee. The show is under the auspices of the Motion Picture Council of the PTA and offers children's entertainment in the form of cartoons and comedies. A matron is in charge of unattended children . . . The Rivoli and Diamond in Oakland are the first to handle the new Pacific Premium five-volume dictionary giveaway . . . Don Condon, formerly with Sterling Theatres, Seattle, is now a resident of this city and expects to be located on the Row . . . M-G-M previewed "New Moon."

The Orpheum is drawing good audiences with its "News Quizz," the headline sweepstakes radio program broadcast directly from its stage each Friday night . . . Warner salesmen were plenty happy to get back to the pleasant climes of California after a torrid session in Chicago . . . The Bay area was taken over by veterans this weekend. The American Legion held its state meeting here, the Veterans of Foreign Wars convened in Oakland.

"All This, and Heaven Too" opened its roadshow engagement at the Palace, Thursday to a near capacity house. Sam Clark and Marty Weiser put on an extensive exploitation campaign finishing off with the bringing in of Rachel Field, authoress, for a one-day whirl. She met the press at a luncheon and cocktail party, then attended the opening show. In between interviews, she appeared at the largest local book stores to autograph copies of her famous novel. Arthur Petersen, the authoress' husband, accompanied Miss Field but remained in the background.

Elsa Maxwell held a benefit party at the Clay in conjunction with the premiere of "The Baker's Wife." One of the most colorful gatherings of the year turned out. Kleig lights, autograph hunters and all the fixings were in evidence . . . Holdovers: "My Favorite Wife," finishing its third week; "Ghost Breakers" and "Brother Orchid,' also doing a third week before moving on . . . Phil Sonovich, manager of the Harding, is vacationing at Lake Tahoe . . . Nate Blumenfeld has opened his Larkspur in Larkspur on a four-nights-a-week basis.

Joan Blondell's return to the legitimate stage won no raves from local critics, but their criticism was not directed entirely at the screen star. "Goodbye to Love" was soundly blasted as a poor vehicle.

PCCITO Reaction to Tax Is Sympathetic

LOS ANGELES—The Pacific Coast Conference of Theatre Owners is "wholeheartedly convinced that it is not only a privilege but an honor" for theatres to be used as the medium for additional taxation, in the form of an increased levy on admissions, to aid in national defense measures, according to R. H. Poole, executive secretary.

Nevertheless, Poole feels that the new tax, effective July 1, constitutes a "very vital problem" to producer, distributor and exhibitor in that the public's cooperation must be secured without "detrimental reaction to the boxoffices of the United States." For this reason he has addressed a letter to the general sales managers of all distributing companies offering suggestions as to how the tax may be passed on to film patrons in a manner designed to offset any adverse criticism.

"We do not believe that this presentation to the public should come from the motion picture industry," Poole's letter declares, in part. "We believe that it should be presented to them as a matter of news, coming from our government through every news weekly, the result of which would naturally create in their minds a real desire to serve their government and automatically attach no blame to the theatre."

Moore Adds Two

SEATTLE—Lloyd Moore, exhibitor of Hermiston, Ore., announces he has taken over theatres in Dayton and Waitsburg, Wash. Charles Laidlaw owned the Dayton spot, Denzil Piercy the one in Waitsburg.

LOS ANGELES

MRS. TULA ANDREWS, one of the few women film exchange managers, was a guest at the Paramount studio. In charge of Paramount distribution in Guatemala, San Salvador and Nicaragua, Mrs. Andrews is a native of the first-named country and is making her first visit to the United States. She is en route home after conferences with Paramount executives in New York . . . Ben Fish, United Artists western district manager, checked in after a jaunt around his territory.

The suit brought by Regina L. Umann against Hymie Breen, involving ownership of the Regina in Beverly Hills, has been postponed in superior court until July 2. The wrangle was precipitated following the death of Emil Umann, who managed the theatre, several months ago.

Mike Levinson's "White Zombie" has been booked by Consolidated Theatres, Ltd., of Honolulu, opening at the Liberty July 27 . . . Bess Emanuel, Filmrow's only woman distributor, left for Heraldsburg for a two-week vacation. Pinch-hitting for her will be Charles Emanuel.

Betty Boss, secretary at United Artists, in from her annual holiday . . . On the Row: Dic Sims, San-Val Drive-In, Burbank; Bob Leonard, El Moro, Gallup, New Mexico; Jack Berman of the Eastland Circuit . . . Fred Gage pulled out for Imperial Valley on a United Artists selling trip.

Accompanying Fred Stein, Fox West Coast buyer, on his recent motor trip east were Leon Cordroy, poster clerk at United Artists, and Jim Lundig, former publicist at the UA exchange. Cordroy and Lundig, who have neighboring plantations in Virginia, disembarked at that point, leaving Stein to go on to New York alone . . . Mike Newman, Columbia exploiteer, checked in from Ventura, where he attended the opening of Jenne Dodge's new Mayfair.

Clayton Lynch, Metro branch manager, and Jack Dillon, who holds a similar post at 20th Century-Fox, have been added to the Los Angeles Motion Picture Club's executive committee, joining Al O'Keefe and Francis Bateman . . . Rose Reding, secretary-booker at Republic, has left that office to become a housewife. She will be married July 3 to Emil Dopyera and, after a honeymoon at Boulder Dam, will move to Kerby, Ore. Rose will be replaced at Republic by Betty Wertman.

Lou Maren, formerly with RKO in Seattle, has checked in as advertising-exploitation representative at the United Artists exchange . . . In town were Jenne Dodge, Mission and Mayfair, Ventura, and Phil Greenbaum of the Castle and Mecca.

Harry Welch, manager of the Glen in Glenburnie, Maryland, was the guest of his father, Eddie Welch, Paramount writer, in a tour of the studio recently. The younger Welch was accompanied by Paul J. Patterson jr., newspaper publisher from Baltimore.

Bill Lyris, who handles Fox West Coast's candy concessions, has returned from Chicago, winding up a tour of National Theatres operating divisions on which he accompanied FWC's president, Charles P. Skouras.

Benny Sachey, Universal booker, and his wife Lynn have returned from their vacation trip to Benton Harbor, Mich. . . . Marjorie Riley and Janet Torgerson have taken over as temporary secretaries at M-G-M . . . Banks Hudson, booker for M-G-M in St. Louis, is holidaying here.

More Booking Visitors: Art Brick, Palace, Las Vegas; Neil Hamecher, Victory, San Diego; C. A. Siler and son, Mason, Newport Beach; Fred Siegel, Palomar and Margo theatres, Oceanside; Harry Goldfarb, National, National City; Tommy Huntington, Seville, Chula Vista; Harry Hoffman, Soboba, San Jacinto; Al Rice, of the new Admiral in Hollywood; Art LaShelle, Riviera and Avalon, Catalina Island.

Helen Koche is the new switchboard operator at M-G-M, replacing Dorothy Benson . . . Gus Acosta, assistant manager of the Azteca exchange, in from his El Paso, Tex., vacation . . . Back at the Congress exchange after a business jaunt to New York is Sam Blowitz . . . Al O'Keefe, Universal's western district manager, checked in from San Francisco.

George Alderman, district manager for Constance Bennett, Inc., the cosmetics giveaway outfit, visiting the Row; Harry Taylor, his sales manager, has returned from a selling junket to Dallas . . . Ken Kaiser of Altec is back from his holiday which took him as far north as Vancouver. He spent most of his time in Seattle where he visited Barclay Ardell, branch supervisor for Altec there. Ed Seeley, one of Altec's chief engineers, came in from New York for conferences with S. M. Periseau.

The height in giveaways was achieved at Fox West Coast's Boulevard Theatre when the holder of the lucky ticket received a television set—so he could stay home and get his entertainment free . . . William C. Kohler is handling distribution here on four American Red Cross films —"Mobilized for Mercy," "Footsteps," "Why Not Live?" and "Behind Flood Headlines."

Sid Weider has resigned as manager of the Colony Theatre on Hollywood Blvd., with no successor yet named . . . Holidaying here are Mr. and Mrs. William McCurdy and their son, William jr., who was just graduated from Stanford. McCurdy sr. operates the Mayfair in Portland . . . After a vacation in Washington and Oregon, Harry Langman, Fox West Coast auditor, is back on the job . . . First prize for the western district in the Abe Montague 15th Anniversary drive for Columbia went to Wayne Ball, manager of the local Columbia exchange. Ball placed third in the national competition.

Mike Levinson off to points north, handling bookings on his "White Zombie" . . . Jack Valpey, head booker at M-G-M, nursing a bad cold . . . Johnny DeCosta, Columbia booker, celebrated 14 years of marriage (to the same wife) June 26.

REVIEW FLASHES

STAGECOACH WAR (Para)—Standard entry in the Hopalong Cassidy series, which is to say that it is virtually as good as money from home for exhibitors catering to enthusiasts of western fare replete with an abundance of thrills, chills and chuckles. With a framework of magnificent scenic backgrounds, William Boyd turns in his usual excellent performance as "Hoppy," aided and abetted by an action-packed script. Harry Sherman produced; Lesley Selander directed.

STREET OF MEMORIES (20th-Fox)—Another melodramatic tear-jerker which will serve its purpose as supporting fare, enacted by a cast of adequate but unseasoned troupers. Story is a bit far-fetched but will pass muster as program material. Lucien Hubbard produced; Shepard Traube directed.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

LOS ANGELES—Mrs. Frank Valuskis has sold her Valuskis to Barry Sparks and George Elsner, who took over operation of the house immediately.

"Untamed" Will Premiere In Three Coast Cities

HOLLYWOOD—Next link in the chain of premieres which has been rating number one in the affections of the industry's ballyhoo artists for more than a year will be forged July 2, 3 and 4 when Paramount's press department stages a triple debut of "Untamed" in Portland, Seattle and Spokane respectively. Handling arrangements for the affair is Ralph Ravenscroft, Pacific Coast field exploiteer for the company.

The "Untamed" premiere apparently will climax to date the spring and early-summer series of these events, as the next one definitely scheduled does not come along until September, when Frank Lloyd's "The Howards of Virginia," for Columbia release, makes its formal bow in Richmond.

Republic staged a gala opening in Nashville, Tenn., for "Grand Ole Opry," featuring the Weaver Brothers and Elviry, with the stars of the picture on hand for the premiere. The film made its debut at the Paramount.

Making appearances at the triple premiere of "Untamed" will be Patricia Morison, star of the picture; Ellen Drew, John Howard and Susan Hayward. They will be accompanied by R. C. Moriarty of the Paramount studio advertising department.

Monogram Offices to West Coast in Year

HOLLYWOOD—Denying he will replace Scott R. Dunlap as production head, W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram, states the company's home office, with the exception of the foreign department, will be moved to the coast in the course of the next year.

Johnston has been in favor of moving the company's main offices to Hollywood for some time. On his recent trip from New York, he indicated he was about to fulfill that desire.

Dunlap's contract, the Monogram chief points out, was renewed in February to run until March, 1945. The agreement continues him as top man at the studio in addition to supervising units producing for the company outside.

Additional space has been taken at the Ralph Like studios and other production quarters are being sought for the completion of the Monogram program. There will be no curtailment of production, Johnston insists.

Returning to Libby

LIBBY, MONT.—W. F. "Bill" Kienitz and his wife are returning here from Honolulu to take over operation of the Kootenai. Their daughter, Jean, who has been operating the theatre, will go to Honolulu to temporarily operate her parents' popcorn (Burch) business there.

ANY showhouse advertising "20 degrees cooler inside" and able to make good on it, has a real selling point in Portland these days. A solar blitzkrieg is underway and previous records for early and sustained heat here may fall . . . Oregon beaches remain cool (C. of C. plug) and are getting a play . . . Johnny Harvey, Universal booker, is down there somewhere as this is written, grabbing half of his vacation in a well-timed move.

If a layman can venture a guess, war and double features are a poor mixture from the theatre standpoint. Because, to the naked eye, citizens are staying away from the showhouses in droves right now. If a man whose ear is tuned to the newscasts hibernates in a three-to-four-hour show, he might come out to find half of Europe gone and Mr. Whiskers waiting on his doorstep with his draft papers . . . Free suggestion: Why don't they announce, or flash on the screen, play-by-play bulletins from Europe?

The chamber of commerce is asking $15,000 from contributors for a survey of the city's ability to swing its industrial resources into the defense program . . . The Oregon Artists' exhibit of 289 paintings and 34 pieces of sculpture by 260 Webfoot artists ends at the Art Museum this week, with many sales reported . . . More than 200 youthful musicians played a concert of popular melodies on the Liberty stage Wednesday. Karl Stiska, former director for the Ballet Russe, came in from Los Angeles to conduct.

Word from Stage 9 at the San Francisco Fair says Charlie White's collection of motion picture stills ranks as a "must" attraction, with many film personalities among his visitors . . . Bella Ralston, inspector, and Bessie Pancake, biller, are vacationing from 20th-Fox . . . The Orpheum switched its change-of-show day from Wednesday to Thursday, beginning last week.

Ralph Ravenscroft of Paramount studios was here handling arrangements for the scheduled world premiere of "Untamed," with Ray Milland, Patricia Morison and Akim Tamiroff, at the Paramount, July 2. The Hollywood delegation coming for the occasion was to include Miss Morison, Betty Field, Susan Hayward, Ellen Drew, John Howard, J. Carrol Naish and William Frawley.

Unaccustomed horseback riding, said to include lusty leaps over the barriers, indulged in Sunday, caused Al Finke and Herb Sobottka to walk with less than their usual agility this week . . . Other exhibitors calling on the Row included Eddie Callahan of Seaside, Cleo Brenner of Seaside, Don Watrous of Forest Grove and Oscar Phelps.

Believe Public Must Pay Admission Tax

ST. LOUIS—The customer must pay the new federal tax to be imposed on theatre admissions in excess of 20 cents under the terms of the new revenue raising bill signed Tuesday by President Roosevelt. That is the general decision of exhibitors served out of the local exchanges.

In only a few instances have exhibitors in this territory indicated that they will absorb the tax themselves. The majority feel that under present conditions they cannot afford to pay the new tax out of gross receipts.

Chicago Public Will Meet Federal Admission Tax

CHICAGO—Windy City exhibitors are going to have use for a lot more pennies beginning Monday of next week (July 1) when the new federal admission tax on all admissions over 21 cents goes into effect.

Consensus of opinion, as BOXOFFICE goes to press, is that exhibitors will pass the tax to the public. Both B&K and Great States executives said they would do this, while Allied and Warner heads intimated they would do the same. The other remaining exhibitors probably will follow their example.

It thus appears that 25-cent admissions will become 28 cents; 30 cents up to 33 cents; and 35 cents up to 39 cents. Admissions over 40 cents will be unaffected.

An Intermission Policy Finds Reaction Mixed

MILWAUKEE—Following a certain amount of success with the use of intermissions in the showing of "Gone With the Wind" at its Palace, Fox has instituted the policy in other of its neighborhood and downtown houses.

The intermissions last about five minutes and during the pause, ushers make their way down the aisles with refreshments, including soft drinks and candy bars. Reaction to the policy has been mixed.

Lower Afternoon Scale Planned by Deluxer

CHICAGO—The Oriental was planning to change its afternoon admission scale this week while retaining its night top of 65 cents. The new afternoon scale will be 30 cents to 1 p. m. and 40 cents to 6:30 p. m., whereas before it was 35 and 55 cents.

Unions Intend to Service Slot-Machine Pictures

CHICAGO—Local union operator heads this week said that when five-cent slot machine films come into use in Chicago, they intend to see that union operators are employed to service the machines.

Projectionists Win Victory After St. Louis Walkout

ST. LOUIS—The projectionist strike at the Ambassador, Fox and Missouri, Fanchon & Marco first runs here, as well as at 24 neighborhood and suburban houses of the F&M-affiliated St. Louis Amusement Co., was settled June 21, only a day after it had been called, with terms clearly indicating a victory for the union. The strike was called by Local 143 in an effort to gain the dismissal of two damage suits against it by the theatre interests totaling $275,000.

In accordance with the peace pact, attorneys for Fanchon & Marco filed stipulations in the St. Louis county circuit court at Clayton, Mo., dismissing the suits, and steps also were taken to cancel the company's plan to appeal from a ruling by Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley barring a damage action against the union.

When these legal stipulations were filed, union officials affixed their signatures to new wage contracts with the Fanchon & Marco Service Corp., operators of the first run houses, and the St. Louis Amusement Co. The contracts were signed for the theatres by Harry C. Arthur jr., managing director for Fanchon & Marco in St. Louis, and Harry Barco, president, and H. O. Loughlin, secretary, for Local 143 and Frank Stickling, representing the international union.

The new contracts extend to June 21, 1943, and provide that the projectionists shall be granted an immediate wage increase of 5 per cent, a 2½ per cent increase the second year, and an additional increase of 2½ per cent the third year. The present wage scale for the first run operators is $100 per week, while second run and neighborhood projectionists get from $50 to $80 per week. Two operators work on each shift. The big houses have two shifts.

Immediately upon the signing of the new contracts, projectionists returned to their booths in the Missouri and St. Louis theatres. The Ambassador and Fox reopened on June 22, while all St. Louis Amusement houses resumed operations the night of June 21.

That Fanchon & Marco is not entirely satisfied with the peace pact was emphasized by C. B. Nelson, director of personnel for the theatres.

"Frequently when contracts are signed after a dispute," Nelson's statement read, "both parties say they are thoroughly satisfied with the contract. Such is decidedly not the case with Fanchon & Marco.

"We have been forced to give up our legal rights because of an obligation we feel toward the St. Louis Amusement Co. whose theatres were closed by the operators union even though the St. Louis Amusement Co. was not a party in any way, shape or form to these suits. George White's 'Scandals,' one of the most expensive stage shows ever produced and ever brought to St. Louis, stood to lose several thousands of dollars if we did not accede to the demands of the union and forsake our right to be heard in court.

"As a result, the St. Louis Theatre, the Missouri and all St. Louis Amusement Co. houses will open on schedule today (June 21). It will be impossible to open the Fox and Ambassador theatres until Saturday."

The new contract with the St. Louis Amusement Co. is expected to set the pace for a new wage agreement which the union officials will shortly offer to the owners of other second run, neighborhood and suburban houses in St. Louis and St. Louis county.

Answer Wehrenberg

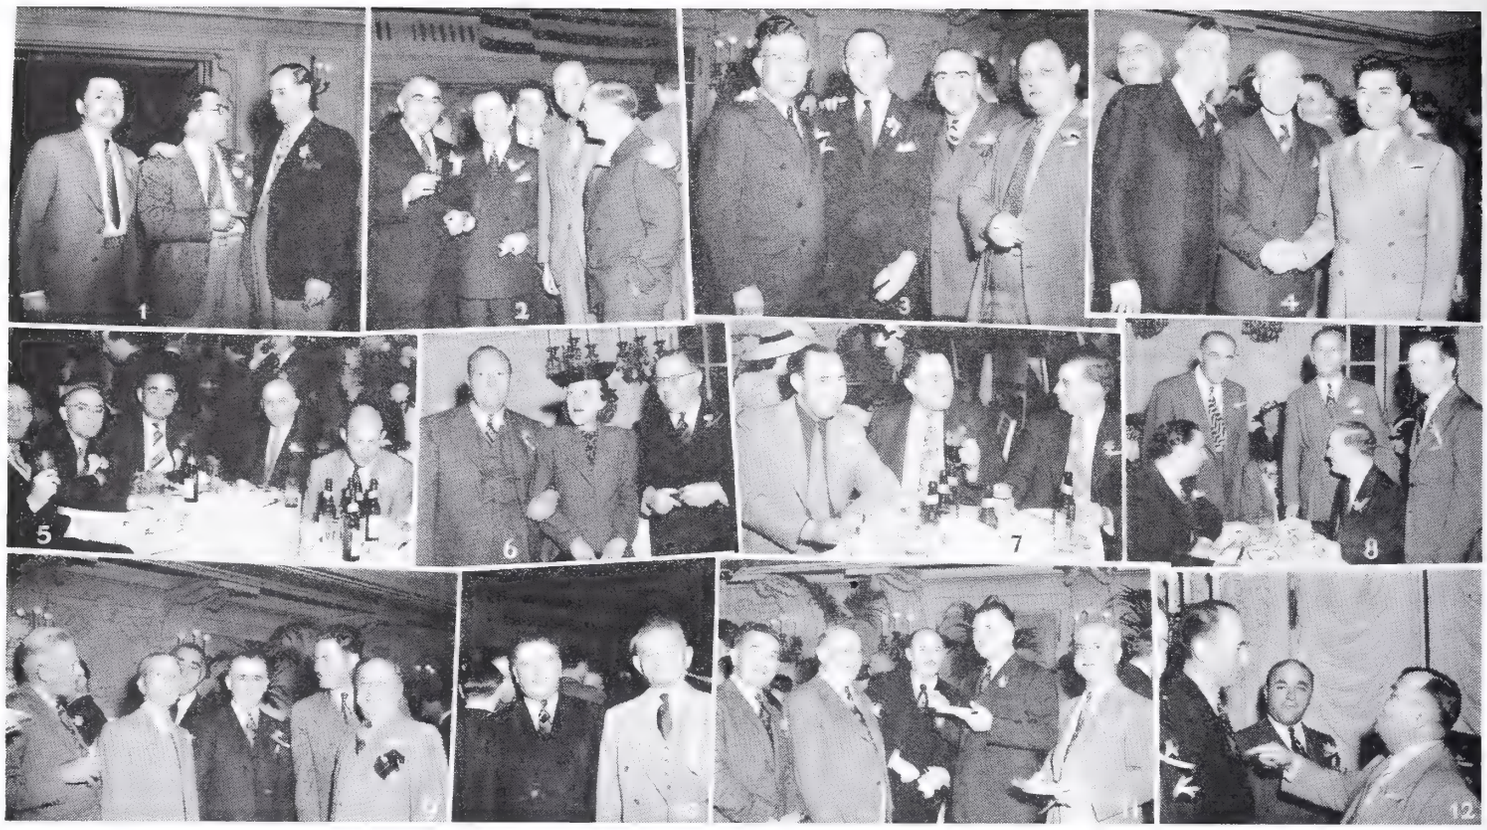
While the strike was still in progress, Fred Wehrenberg, MPTO president, and interested with Clarence Kaimann in a group of 25 neighborhood theatres, said that many of the independent theatres would be forced to close if the projectionist impose wage increases. The wage contract with the independent theatres does not expire until August 31.

In commenting on a statement by Wehrenberg that many houses may be forced to close between now and July 7, union officials said it was "an act of cooperation" with Fanchon & Marco and the St. Louis Amusement Co. to force a wage cut on the projectionists.

The suits by Fanchon & Marco against the union and its members followed the picketing of the Fox and several units in the St. Louis Amusement fleet. One sought $200,000 damages from 54 members of Local 143, while another filed by the Eden Theatre Co., owners of the Fox, sought $75,000. The latter suit was in the form of an appeal to the Missouri supreme court from the refusal of Circuit Judge Oakley to permit the corporation to file a claim against the union in connection with the receivership action then pending in his court. The St. Louis Amusement Co. had sought an injunction against picketing of several of its houses.

Attendance Urged After Settlement

St. Louis—Following the settlement of the projectionist strike at 27 Fanchon & Marco and affiliated theatres, the following advertisement appeared in the St. Louis "Globe-Democrat:"



"Motion Picture Operators Union No. 143 wishes to thank its friends and sympathizers for their moral support.

"We are happy to announce the settlement of our recent controversy with Fanchon & Marco and St. Louis Amusement Co.

"Your goodwill and future patronage will be appreciated by both management and employes.

"A good movie will contribute to your peace of mind and happiness.

When Warner Played Host to Allied and Chicago Exhibitors—

1. Ben Bartlestein smiles, as his brother, Al, tells off Alex Halperin, Warner theatre head booker.

2. Jules Rubens of Great States, Morton Van Praag of National Screen, Jack Rose of Indiana-Illinois Theatres; George Dembow, National Screen, New York, and Eddie Silverman, Essaness executive.

3. Judge Eugene Holland, associate of Coston; Herb Wheeler, Warner district manager; Charlie Ryan, Warner assistant zone manager; Harry Turrell, Warner district manager.

4. Walter Immerman of B&K looks over the shoulder of John Burhorn, Indiana-Illinois district manager, who looks on as Norman Moray, Warner short subjects sales head, congratulates Al Raymer, I-I booker, for using the most shorts for any circuit its size in the midwest.

5. The two Auerbach brothers, then Morris Kaplan of the Amo, followed by Max Roth, Chicago Warner salesman, with Charlie Einfeld, Warner head of advertising and publicity, studying a few notes, behind a barrage of bottles.

6. Dave Balaban, B&K; Florence Blum, Lou Reinheimer Theatres booker, pose with Dave Palfreymen, of the Hays office.

7. Kurt Laemmle, Ritz, Lowell, Ind., who has since returned to the west coast, where he has two other theatres; Al Teplitz, A. J. Balaban Theatres, and "Doc" Rafalski, Bland Brothers Theatres.

8. Seated at the table are Dave Wallerstein, B&K, and John Dromy, Great States head booker, and standing are Jack Sampson and Abe Kaufman, B&K, with J. Arthur Haley, Notre Dame University business manager.

9. A happy group were Verne Young, Gary, Ind.; Simon Simansky; Jules Rubens; Jimmy Coston, the genial host; Grad Sears, Warner sales head, and Julius Goodman.

10. Lester Retchen, now managing the Howard, which he formerly operated, for B&K, poses with Abe Gumbiner.

11. Sam Halper, Jack Miller, Warner assistant Chicago Branch Manager Bill Bill Brumberg, and Alex Manta and Jim Chrissis of I-I.

12. Carl Leserman, Warner assistant sales head, stands by as Steve Bennis of Lincoln, Ill., (right) tells him off.

The Dakota Closed; Normandy Is Next

ST. LOUIS—Greater Independent Theatres, new company formed out of the consolidation of the Wehrenberg-Kaimann circuits, has closed the Dakota in South St. Louis for the summer, and it will shutter the Normandy in St. Louis county, June 30.

Fanchon & Marco interests plan to close either the Ambassador, Fox or Missouri in the first run field. Union employes have been given the customary two weeks' notice in all three houses. Last summer the Fox was closed for several weeks.

A scarcity of good available product, and the usual summer slump, accentuated this year by the radio war news, are the reasons for the decision to close at least one of the first runs.

It has been revealed that independent houses, including the Wehrenberg-Kaimann chain, have asked officials of Local 143 to approve a $10 a week per operator wage reduction during the summer months. Robert Thomsen, business agent for Local 143, says the union is willing to take a 10 per cent reduction during the summer if the wage increases provided for in the new contract with the St. Louis Amusement Co. are accepted by the independents. They call for a 5 per cent increase to take effect September 1, a 2½ per cent raise next year, and a second 2½ per cent hike the following year.

Bioff Habeas Corpus Writ Application to Be Heard

CHICAGO—Set for hearing Friday was another writ of habeas corpus application for freedom of William Bioff, Hollywood labor boss now serving a six-month misdemeanor sentence in Cook County. The hearing, set before Chief Justice John Prystalski in criminal court, was filed by Walker Butler, attorney for Bioff.

Butler alleged that the original information on which the conviction was based in 1922 was void because of varied legal technicalities. Bioff has been confined since April. His term ends September 20.

Messages to Allied

CHICAGO—Imploring exhibitors, as well as those in other industries to help the U. S. in these distressing times, Mayor Edward J. Kelly in welcoming the Allied convention to Chicago, said, in part:

". . . What you men lack in numbers, you make up in potency, and you are in a position to do more for this country than the average industry . . . You can help generally in ridding the country of 'againsters' and be for those who are for the U. S., regardless of race, creed, or party."

President Roosevelt sent the following greetings to the convention: "My hearty greetings and best wishes to all who attend the 11th annual national convention of the Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors in Chicago. I trust that the convention will be a successful one, fruitful of wise counsels and constructive action to promote alike the closely allied interests of the exhibitors and the patrons."

Einfeld Presents WB Lineup in Chicago

Hometown Film Sponsor Queried by Publisher

MILWAUKEE—Robert Allen, one of the sponsors of newsreels shown in theatres in a number of Wisconsin towns under the title of "Life in . . ." was to be examined here this week under the discovery statutes in connection with his use of the word and phrase "Life Newsreels."

Time, Inc., publishers of Life magazine, has asked that Allen be examined on points in connection with his film project as follows: "The character of the title used by the defendant on motion picture screens and of oral or written matter presented simultaneously and in conjunction with sound motion pictures. The character of theatre, poster, newspaper and other advertising used in connection with his motion picture depicting life in various communities."

Allied Poscripts

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—The Allied conventioneers were full of good, clean fun, and the confab was one of the quietest in years.

Van A. Nomikos, vice-president of Illinois Allied, celebrated his birthday anniversary at the Chez Paree party.

Jimmy Walker, former mayor of New York City, and onetime general counsel for MPTOA, was toastmaster at the closing banquet in the Morrison Terrace Room.

Willard Rutzen, publicity director and assistant manager to Leonard Hicks, at the Morrison, did a swell job of cooperating with Jack Kirsch and his convention staff. Rutzen had everything possible available for use by the conventioneers. Welcome signs were in evidence all over the hotel.

Postal Telegraph had the registrants listed by states alphabetically on a telegraph blank blowup in the hotel lobby.

We found Sinuel Roberts of the California opening day of the convention practicing putting and swinging shots with an imaginary golf club, while Jack Rose and Sam Halper looking on with interest.

The three popcorn machine companies who had exhibits—Advance, Cretors and Burch—kept the trade press well supplied with popcorn during the business sessions.

J. Don Alexander, head of Alexander Film Co., presided over his company's unusual "oasis" suite, with plenty of exhibitors dropping in for thirst quenchers.

Dick Sachsel, of Original Re-Nu Screen Surface, had his hands full trying to satisfy all of the equipment dealers who had exhibits. But, he's so expert at it now, he's figuring on opening a convention bureau.

United Artists' U. P. news wire, as a tieup for "Foreign Correspondent," had clusters of conventioneers about it all the time.

Dave Palfreyman, the Hays office "delegate" to the convention from New York, was renewing old acquaintances . . . Sidney Samuelson of New Jersey, who is still active in Allied, though without theatres, said it felt funny signing a registration card this year and not putting down a theatre name.

Mrs. Aaron Saperstein, widow of the founder of Allied of Illinois, took an active interest in this year's convention. Squiring her about was her oldest son, Henry, who is active now in the theatre business.

Seymour Gumbiner, one of the younger Chicago Allied members, had his new bride at the convention . . . Another newlywed couple was Mr. and Mrs. George Kerasotes of Springfield.

The closed "film buyers' convention" session the opening day found General Counsel Abram Myers having to leave. Reason: He doesn't own any theatres . . . H. M. Richey, RKO's exhibitor contact from New York, and until a few years ago one of Allied's stalwarts, was ribbed by Colonel Cole when the Allied national prexy referred to him as "being here, but not present."

Lillian Gish, star of "Life With Father," current at the Blackstone, was guest of honor at the women's luncheon Friday at the Palmer House. She is writing a history of the motion picture industry, she said.

John Semadalis and his wife were the winners of the cup for the best rhumba dancers at the Colony Club party. The waltz contest cup winners were Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Schwartz. Cleveland.

L. T. Rockenstein of the L. T. Rockenstein Co., St. Louis theatre supply firm, was a convention visitor. He spent a lot of time with Eddie Klein, Chicago RCA manager. Rockenstein's supply store is the RCA sound outlet in St. Louis.

Colonel Cole left for the Minnesota woods after the convention was over to visit with Al Steffes, who has been seriously ill.

We noticed John Smith and Neal Bishop of the Chicago operators' union visiting equipment dealers at the convention.

Barney Ross, Chicago boxer, was introduced at the second day's business session.

Winners of the dart-throwing contests at the American Ticket Co. booth, daily, were: Wednesday—Bennie Berger, Minneapolis; Mrs. M. D. Zimmerman, Eagle, Chicago, and Jack Rose, Chicago. Thursday—Jack Rose, Chicago; Bill Pearl, Highland Park, and Sam Traynor, Bailey Circuit, Princeton, Ill., tied for second. Friday—Mrs. Al Rosecan, Princess, St. Louis; Mrs. Ernest Schwartz, Cleveland; Charlie Auerbach, Strand, Chicago; Abe Gumbiner and Elmer Benesch, Chicago, all tied for second. First place awards were $5.00, second $3.00, and third $1.00.

When Jimmy Walker heard that the plane reservation made for him by George Dembow to return to New York was on a line that flew over the mountains, he had to nix it and take the train. It seems his wife, Betty Compson, forbids him to fly over the mountains.

The award—a portable radio—to the woman who traveled the farthest to the convention, went to a Mrs. Gill of Montpelier, Vt.

Monroe Is Redecorated

MONROEVILLE, IND.—Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Davis, new owners of the Monroe, have redecorated the house.

"Heart of Show Business" Active—

As the Indianapolis Variety Club presented checks to the Indiana University Medical Center and the Indianapolis school board, proceeds from the club's charity program. Left to right: Col. Kenneth Collings, manager of the Indiana Theatre; Dr. Leon Levi, Dr. Sidney A. Kauffman, both of the Medical Center; A. B. Good, business director of the local schools, and Marc J. Wolf, Variety's chief barker.

RCA Committee Inspects New Indiana Plants

INDIANAPOLIS—Inspection visits to new manufacturing units in Indianapolis and Bloomington were made last week by the management committee of the RCA Manufacturing Co. of Camden, N. J.

J. M. Smith, vice-president of the Indianapolis division, was host to the visitors, who praised the new record plant, which is considered the largest and most modernly equipped of its kind in the world. Also manufactured in the Indianapolis plant are radio tubes, motion picture theatre sound equipment and broadcasting equipment.

Members of the inspection party were Robert Shannon, executive vice-president; F. H. Corregan, vice-president and secretary; F. R. Deakins, H. C. Bonfig and V. C. Woodcox, vice-presidents, sales; H. L. Sommerer, manufacturing manager; T. F. Joyce, vice-president, advertising; N. A. Mears, vice-president, purchasing; E. W. Ritter, manager of research and engineering and Frank B. Walker, vice-president, record sales.

The Bloomington plant, purchased recently from Showers Bros. Furniture Co. opened this week with one assembly line. Shannon said three more lines will be added soon.

G. K. Throckmorton, a former Indiana man, is president of the manufacturing company.

Milwaukee Film Council Elects New Officers

MILWAUKEE—Mrs. B. F. Reed has been elected chairman of the Milwaukee County Better Films council. Other officers named are Mrs. Allen Martin, vice-chairman; Mrs. Carl Ludwig, recording secretary; Miss Ida Marie Martin, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. William Juneau, treasurer.

Committee chairmen have been named as follows: Mrs. L. B. Porter, advisory; Mrs. David Andrews, visual education; Mrs. Ovid B. Blix, publicity; Mrs. Cyril Colnik, study; Mrs. H. W. Bain, program; Mrs. Bruno Heinrich, ways and means, and Mrs. Howard Thwaits, preview.

Indianapolis Variety Aids School Board

INDIANAPOLIS—Officials of the local Variety club handed the Indiana University Medical Center and the Indianapolis school board sizeable checks as a part of the organization's charity movement recently launched.

The club decided to raise funds for a "blood bank" for the medical center to enable it to provide a constant supply of blood to be used in emergency cases.

The club promised the school board assistance in providing equipment for a department of psychiatry.

The presentation of the two checks was made at noon luncheon at the club's headquarters in the Lyric Theatre Building. The checks were presented to Dr. Leon Levi and Dr. S. A. Kaufman for the medical center and to A. B. Good for the school authorities. Col. Collings is treasurer of the fund.

The club raised the money at a benefit performance at the Lyric the night before the 500-mile Speedway race.

FCC Permit Spurs B&K's Television Studio Plan

CHICAGO—B&K will proceed immediately with plans toward constructing a television station under the permit granted it by the Federal Communications Commission recently, John Balaban said this week. It will be some time before actual construction work begins.

Besides B&K, NBC and Zenith Radio Corp. were granted permits for the Chicago area. These are on an experimental basis only.

Build in Lacon

LACON, ILL.—Construction on the new theatre being built here by B. F. Shafer, who also operates the Lyric, is under way. The house is expected to be in operation by the end of the summer.

Business in Indiana Is on the Upgrade

INDIANAPOLIS—Business conditions in Indiana during May showed definite improvement over April, 1940, and May, 1939, according to data compiled by the unemployment compensation division.

Factory employment and pay rolls made contra-seasonal advances from mid-April to mid-May, following four straight months of losses, two of which were contra-seasonal.

There were an estimated 281,263 wage earners employed in Indiana manufacturing industries in mid-May. This was 2,782 or 1.0 per cent higher than the corresponding estimate for mid-April and 28,091 or 11.1 per cent above the estimate for May, 1939. Seasonal indexes show that a decrease of 2.0 per cent is normal from April to May.

Factory pay rolls advanced 1.5 per cent from mid-April to an estimated weekly total of $7,432,614 in mid-May. This aggregate was $1,050,000 or 16.5 per cent greater than the estimated value for May, 1939.

Aggregate employment and pay roll estimates for the seven groups of non-manufacturing industries studied reached new highs for 1940 in May.

This business acceleration was reflected in the placement activities of the various agencies, employers using the facilities of 25 field officers in filling 8,795 jobs in private industry in May. This number was 10.3 per cent and 14.9 per cent more, respectively, than the placements made in private employment in April, 1940, and May, 1939. It also established a new record for May and was the third highest month since the employment service was established in 1933.

The 11,194 new claims for unemployment insurance benefits filed in May were 44.5 per cent under the number filed in April and 5.5 per cent less than the number filed in May, 1939. However, the number of claims filed in the first month of a quarter is always lower because of the establishment of a new base period for individual claimants. Therefore, not all reductions in new claims from April to May should be attributed to a decline in the rate of job terminations.

The Division issued 106,015 benefit checks for total and partial unemployment in May. This was 27.4 per cent greater than the number issued in April and 26.2 per cent more than the number issued in May, 1939. The May checks had a total value of $1,049,949.53 or slightly more than a third greater than the value of the checks issued in either April, 1940 or May, 1939.

Although these increases in the number and amount of benefit payments might be considered indicative of lower business levels in May than in the other two months used in the comparison, it should be noted that benefit payment data are more valuable as indicators of trends during a preceding three or four months period than as an index of conditions during the current period.

The employment and pay roll expansion was quite general among manufacturing industries from April to May. Among the 14 major groups of manufacturing industries studied, 10 groups expanded both employment and pay rolls, three groups decreased employment and pay rolls and one group had fewer employes with no change in pay rolls from April to May. Employment and pay roll increases were even more general among the non-manufacturing industries studied.

All of the seven major groups, for which it was possible to prepare estimates, increased employment from mid-April to mid-May and only coal mining reduced pay rolls. The expansion in retail employment was considered contra-seasonal.

Quarrying and non-metallic mining firms failed to expand employment as much as seasonally expected from April to May. The other nonmanufacturing industries closely followed the usual seasonal pattern.

Wage-rate increases affecting 1,226 workers were reported in May by 10 firms.

The averages of weekly earnings, hourly earnings and hours worked per week all advanced for factory workers.

F&M Switch Policy Of St. Louis Units

ST. LOUIS—Fanchon & Marco has switched the policy for the St. Louis and Missouri theatres. In the new lineup the St. Louis will replace the Missouri as the subsequent run house to follow the 5,000-seat Fox and the Ambassador, the downtown deluxer of the Fanchon & Marco interests.

Opening at 5 p. m. on week days the St. Louis will charge 20 cents for adults between 5 and 6 p. m. and 25 cents at night. The Saturday and Sunday scale will be 20 cents to 2 p. m.; 25 cents between 2 and 6 p. m., and 35 cents at night.

The Missouri, which is to play slough pix will have a scale of 20 cents to 2 p. m.; 25 cents between 2 and 6 p. m. and 35 cents at nights.

In film circles the rearrangement in schedules is regarded as the Fanchon & Marco answer to the recent consolidation of the houses operated by Fred Wehrenberg and Clarence Kaimann. The new Greater Independents Circuit has 25 units. Wehrenberg and Kaimann are huddling with the owners of some 35 other independent houses in an effort to bring them into their combination.

"Knute Rockne" Slated To Bow in Milwaukee

CHICAGO—It appears Warner's "The Life of Knute Rockne" is going to be world-premiered sometime in September or October in Milwaukee, where Pat O'Brien, star of the picture, attended Marquette University. That's the latest word from Charles Einfeld, imparted during the Warner convention here.

Adapts Roy Rogers Starrer

HOLLYWOOD—Norton S. Parker is adapting "Young Bill Hickok" for Republic as a Roy Rogers starrer. Joe Kane will produce and direct.

Receivership Costly For IATSE Local

ST. LOUIS—Receiverships come high—even for labor unions. This was indicated in the acceptance by Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley of the final report of the receivers for IATSE local No. 143.

The report revealed that Robert A. Roessel, attorney for the group of members of the union that threw it into receivership in their move to oust John P. Nick, former IATSE first vice-president, and Clyde A. Weston, former business agent for 143, received a fee of $30,000 from the union.

The union also paid Frank P. Aschemeyer, counsel for the receivers, a fee of $12,000, while James A. McKeown, one of the co-receivers, was awarded $5,000 instead of the $14,000 he had sought.

William M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union, the other co-receiver, declined to accept any fee for his award, but apparently could have had $5,000 if he had said the word.

Judge Oakley virtually terminated the receivership when he directed McKeown and Brandt to turn the property of the union back to its duly elected officers. Representatives of the union went at once to the Manchester Bank to claim the remaining assets.

The final report revealed that as of June 19 the receivers had in their custody $12,025 in cash and, in addition, bonds and stocks valued at about $61,000.

$43,639 in Fees

There was a decided shrinkage in the cash assets of the union through the receivership. When the receivership began the union had cash amounting to $50,658, while other assets included $35,000 in U. S. bonds and $14,500 in other bonds and stocks.

Expenditures during the receivership amounted to $93,175 and included these items: purchase of bonds, $22,058; salaries of officers, $11,276; benefit payment to unemployed operators, $8,965; picketing expenses, $1,620.

Receipts in the same period amounted to $66,845, including $39,389 from the weekly dues of union members based on their salaries, and $6,195 in nominal dues.

Judge Oakley, in terminating the receivership, complimented the union membership, the co-receivers and counsel for plaintiffs and receivers for their part in the reorganization of the union.

McKeown took charge of the union's affairs by appointment of Judge Oakley on April 21, 1939. The following June 9 Brandt became co-receiver.

Nick, acting on orders of IATSE President George E. Browne, took over the union in the summer of 1935. His resignation as first vice-president of the international was announced in April.

Early this month at the IA convention in Louisville, Weston was defeated for reelection as secretary of the ninth district. This district embraces Missouri and eight other midwestern states.

The total amount paid to Roessel was $31,639 and to Aschemeyer, $12,000, making the total legal fees for attorneys $43,639.

CHICAGO

B&K executive offices are now closed all day Saturday during summer months . . . Here's a double-feature passed along by Joe Stout of B&K, playing this week at the Pantheon: "Two Girls on Broadway" and "And One Was Beautiful."

Joe Coffey Will Manage Jack Finklestein House

INDIANAPOLIS—Jack Finklestein, operator of the Paramount, has appointed Joe Coffey, who has been in the theatre business six years, as manager. Coffey joined the Paramount organization the first of the year. His experience with stage shows will tie in well with the new policy of the Paramount of presenting stage shows with films.

Coffey started as a part-time usher with the Strand and was assistant manager during the last four years. Finklestein, who has been managing the theatre, will devote his full time to his liquor business.

Fletcher, Hartington, Neb., has a new car . . . Okey Goodman of Villisca, Ia., was here to book pictures for his theatres at Villisca and Rockwell City, Ia.

Mort Troxell of Wilber, Neb., one of our best looking exhibitors, and Carl Reese of Republic have identical autos.

An Ex-Metro Salesman Forms Buying Group

MINNEAPOLIS—Stealing a march on Northwest Allied which has been threatening to form a film buying group in a move to force down film rentals from 25 to 33⅓ per cent and to eliminate percentage, Allen Clatworthy, former M-G-M salesman for many years, is reported to have lined up 18 theatres in such a body of his own with more in prospect.

Whether, in the face of such a development, Northwest Allied will still go ahead with plans for its own buying association will be decided at the convention here June 10 and 11, according to Ben Ashe, secretary. Incidentally, Ashe points out, all independent exhibitors in the territory are invited to attend the convention, regardless of their affiliation or lack of it.

In connection with the Northwest Allied fight for lower film rentals and against percentage, Ashe still insists that "there has been less film buying so far this year, in protest against film prices, than ever before." Ashe scoffs at the local exchange managers' claims that "buying is proceeding normally."

It is certain plans to outlaw double features in the territory will receive much consideration at the convention, said Ashe. Probable effects of the new admission tax also will be discussed and a decision will be reached as to whether theatres can absorb it and what changes will be demanded in clearance in consequence of the new levy, according to Ashe.

Metro Continuing Policy Of 4 Percentage Films

MINNEAPOLIS—Defying the Twin City independents again this year, M-G-M is continuing with its established policy of four percentage pictures in new-season deals. What's more, it apparently is not experiencing any difficulty in obtaining contracts.

The Twin City independents demand flat deals and M-G-M has been the only company for which an exception has been made. This season, it was declared, there would be no M-G-M exception. However, M-G-M is disregarding the ultimatum.

Allied Men From Midwest At Chicago Convention

CHICAGO—Registered from Minnesota, Nebraska and South Dakota at the national Allied convention held June 19-21, were the following:

Bitter Fight Looms For Steffes' Post

MINNEAPOLIS—A bitter fight looms on the floor over the selection of an executive secretary to take over the organization's reins from President W. A. Steffes when Northwest Allied holds its convention here July 10 and 11.

Ben Ashe, who has resigned as general manager of the Bennie Berger circuit, is believed to be the choice of a special nominating committee and is willing to take the post. However, Sol Lebedoff, an opponent of the Steffes-Berger regime and who resigned from the body and threatened to form a rival organization of the territory's independent exhibitors, has made it plain that he'll battle to the last ditch to prevent Ashe's election.

Lebedoff's objections to Ashe are based on the belief that he would be Steffes' and Berger's man and to the fact that the proposed executive secretary is a theatre owner. Lebedoff and some of the other Northwest Allied members feel that the man chosen should have no theatre affiliation whatsoever.

When Ashe's name is presented to the convention for confirmation the fireworks will start, according to present indications. It is believed certain that Lebedoff will present another name in nomination. He claims to have enlisted a considerable force in opposition to Ashe and it is thought likely that he and his followers will pull out of Northwest Allied and form an organization of their own if their program is voted down. However, the anti-Lebedoff crowd scoff at the idea that Lebedoff can swing any large following. They charge that he wants to run the organization himself, that he eschews democratic processes in the handling of it and that he won't play ball unless he can be the king-pin and dictate the policies.

Propose Coalition

As far as Lebedoff himself is concerned, he insists that the organization should concern itself mainly with such matters close to home as film prices, clearance, etc., and devote itself almost entirely to obtaining relief from alleged trade practice evils. He does not believe that it should "meddle" much in national affairs or stress its hookup with national Allied States. On the other hand, Steffes, Berger and Ashe are strong for national Allied and have been determined that the local body should cooperate with and support the national organization to the fullest extent possible.

In a move to restore and preserve harmony, some of the local leaders are proposing a "coalition cabinet" to run Northwest Allied, with both factions represented. They hope that various "differences" can be adjusted.

Ashe virtually has been running Northwest Allied since Steffes became incapacitated by illness and many of the exhibitors feel he has been doing a good job. At a convention a few months ago, however, he incurred the disfavor of Lebedoff by failing to rule one of the latter's motions in order. At that time Lebedoff walked out on the meeting.

No War Film Policy Tried by Gopher

MINNEAPOLIS—The trade here is watching with much interest the experiment of the Gopher (Minnesota Amusement Co. loop first-run 25-cent house) in banning from its screen everything pertaining to war. The experiment is scheduled to continue for four weeks and may be made a permanent policy.

All war shots will be eliminated from newsreels and no shorts or features having anything to do with war will be shown.

Roy Slentz, Gopher manager, has different ideas on this subject from many independent exhibitors who feel that war shots in newsreel particularly are real boxoffice and actually attract patrons.

"We feel that many people attend a show to enjoy themselves and to relax," says Slentz. "They are hearing and reading and talking about the war so much that they want a place to go where they can forget it."

John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement Co. president, revealed that he had been considering an advertising campaign to urge the public to attend theatres to escape war atmosphere, but called it off because of the many war shots in the newsreels. The Gopher experiment was approved as an alternative.

The Tribune ran a front page story telling about the Gopher policy and it has occasioned much comment otherwise.

When he flew in from Hollywood for a brief visit, Henry King, prominent 20th-Fox director, had something to say to reporters about war pictures. King says he hasn't any films dealing with war subjects planned.

"We'll soon come out of these war jitters," asserted King. "Radio seems to be the cause of them, with people hearing about war all day. What we need right now is humor, home interest and Americana."

Jules Steel, St. Paul Pioneer Press-Dispatch critic, declared in a radio broadcast that he believes theatres are making a mistake by "throwing the blackest pages in history in the faces of their patrons."

Gil Nathanson Promises "Finest" Golf Tourney

MINNEAPOLIS—The Twin City Variety Club golf tournament July 12 will be the "finest ever held" by the organization, promises Gilbert Nathanson, chairman of the arrangements committee. The date was chosen to permit exhibitors attending the Northwest Allied convention to participate. A blanket invitation is extended to all exhibitors and their friends in the territory to be present and take part in the tournament.

For the first time the tournament is being held at a course other than Oak Ridge. The Minnesota Valley Country Club will be the scene of this meet.

An open-house Calcutta is scheduled for the clubrooms in the Hotel Nicollet Thursday evening, July 11.

Reconstruction Boom For Neb. Theatres

LINCOLN—This is a summer of hammer and saw for Nebraska theatres, approximately $200,000 worth of construction and remodeling being carried on at the present time, and with at least two new theatres to open in July.

One of the major houses is the Empress in Kearney, being built by George O. Monroe on the ashes of the old one which burned last winter and another is the Empress in Fremont, being completely gone over within the original shell, to soon join the Central States (Harry Warren) string in Nebraska. These two theatres alone account for $75,000 of the reconstruction money.

Rapidly shaping up, too, is the Liberty here—ally of the L. L. Dent-Westland Theatres, Inc., a $70,000 job which will expand the seating of the old house from 900 to 1,100 chairs, and completely modernize the theatre interior of the old Liberty office building.

To repair $5,000 damage done by a wind and rain, which ripped off the roof of the Bonham and flooded the house, Ted Kempkes, in Fairbury, is now working a crew daily. Wally Johnson hasn't made up his mind yet whether to build on the site of the Plaza which burned recently in Friend.

Barry Burke to Go Into Business for Himself

MINNEAPOLIS—In order to go into a business to be announced later, Barry Burke, Twin City district manager for the Minnesota Amusement Co. the past seven years, has resigned.

He is the second top official to step out in recent months, the other having been L. J. Ludwig, assistant to President John J. Friedl, who quit to enter the film trailer business. Another vacancy was created by the death of Mike Mayan, Twin City suburban district manager. In the interests of economy the Ludwig and Mayan posts have been left vacant, their duties having been apportioned to other executives.

Charles B. Stiff, who has been South Dakota district manager, takes Burke's place. Al Anson and Harry French, managers of the northern and southern Minnesota districts, respectively, will divide up the South Dakota territory.

As a further economy move, the Minnesota Amusement Co. is pruning its advertising department. The latest to go are Ralph Stitt and Everett Olson.

Hayden to Des Moines

KANSAS CITY — Ralph Hayden, in the Paramount exchange's accounting department here for several years, has gone to Des Moines as chief accountant for Paramount there. Margaret Levy is filling in here.

DES MOINES

BOXOFFICE & CO. were so busy arguing with each other (& Co. thinks BOXOFFICE runs the business of being late for everything in the ground) that they almost missed the Eddie Dunn-Harry Gottlieb-DD trio out front at the Paramount . . . And they almost missed the beginning of the last show, but Eddie ran interference so that there was no moaning at the boxoffice and we made it.

Frank Greenland insisted on continuing with his work and refused to give us a bit of attention the other evening . . . Guess he's sore because we took down his hair and washed it for him here a coupla weeks ago . . . We peeked in at Columbia, but all we could see was the back of Evelyn Rosen's pretty head and hear her going to town on the typewriter.

Now Art Anderson's gonna have to put up with another Mrs. Clayton . . . Vitagraph's Mary Rose Smith sold that two-can-live-as-cheap-as-one gag to Bob Clayton who works his stint at Manbeck Motor (we thought there were a few too many Mrs. Clayton's around already, but there's always room for one more, it seems). Next time we meet you for lunch, Madge Ward, remind us to ask you about that tall tale we've been hearing about you . . . We always forget when we see you.

There may be a bit of string in town that Charlie Curran and Emil Franke didn't pull in the direction of a full house opening for "All This, and Heaven Too" at the Orpheum, but don't count on doing any (w)rapping with it . . . The American Institute of Business summer school lined up for a theatre party with 300 tickets on tap and the R&T hands purchased two tickets for the price of one to help the cause along . . . We hear that Curran even had the Lutheran Ladies Aid working, for the show and if Cuthbert Smith had his clientele there, you shouldn't have been surprised . . . Seed Merchant Henry Field in Toby Stewart's Shenandoah was even "discovered" to be a cousin (distant) of the Henry Field in the picture and invited to the opening.

Word that Henry King was flying into Des Moines last week caught Stan Mayer way down to here (see map) . . . Resourceful Stan whipped his 105 nags over the highway at a pace that put him back in DM 40 minutes ahead of King . . . By the time the Fox director taxied up to the hangar, Stan (all of him) was there with reporter plus photographer, and he posed prettily to help out the publicity for "Maryland," King's latest (watch your newspaper for playing date at your local theatre).

We've just discovered that Harry Lloyd, the shipper, piloted that airplane lighter over to the Greenland desk at National Screen, etc. . . . Shirley Temple's retirement gets a page spread in this Sunday's Register . . . Those chickens at the Beaumeister ranch should be ripe now . . . Monroe Rubinger crossed up his ham-and-egg-hunting pals here by getting up in time to catch that 7:17 a. m. parlor car for Kaycee.

Sign which might be hung on the Monogram door: "Opie doesn't work here any more, either." Opal says she joined the

C. by J. Club Tuesday noon, June 18 . . . She and D. Lohman (Walt says the D doesn't stand for "Dimples" some of the time) stopped by the other evening to admire those two quarts of Johnny Walker and one quart of Haig & Haig . . . Monogram's new staff as of this writing is Fred Nesbit, Tom Burke and Maxine Bolling.

Kicking the wedge heels of his new brogans together with glee, Joe Rogatnik announced that Des Moines is first in Universal's bookers' drive which started June 2 and will end August 31 . . . DM salesmen also occupy an uppity place in the sales drive. Joe Smith says Loretta Dieling is in earnest about the BF in Rock Island, but Loretta says Joe doesn't know what he's talking about (no one else knows what you're talking about, either, Joe). If you thought Loretta was cute before, you ought to see her now with that little pile of curls up here.

Cuthbert D. Smith says if he has to be called "Cussbert" he won't book the "Mikado" . . . Everybody wants to lick the envelopes at Lou Levy's joint now since that last batch with the sweet stickum arrived . . . We hadn't seen Morris Smith for so long that we almost forgot what pretty black curly hair he has.

Betty Olson has the most enchanting smile we've encountered for a long time, and if that hadn't won our heart instantaneously, that little bow of white ribbon in her hair would . . . Mighty sweet gal, Ralph . . . Wouldn't surprise us if worrying about hanging on to her isn't what's making you so thin lately.

The story goes that Larry Hensler, Universal's new salesman from Omaha, now owns a white stallion because he bought a ranch in western Nebraska . . . The stallion was sort of thrown in as a premium or something . . . Larry says when the Nebraska exhibs find out where he is, he's afraid they'll be writing him for reductions.

That not-so-tall, but plenty dark and plenty handsome young gent strolling down the Row, Friday evening, was Woody Sherrill, Jack Kennedy's new booker over at Metro . . . Since Paul Walsh started hawking Warner film, we never see him . . . But Joe Ancher, we never miss him . . . Joe's putting the noose around his sturdy neck July 14.

Does everybody who's talking about them really know anything about those tassels Gilly Wells brought back from the Chicago convention with him? . . . We stopped in at Iowa Film and discovered that Mitzi had been there more times and knew more people than we did . . . We also discovered that Sy Harlan (Sy was a vision in sky-blue trousers, tie and suspenders . . . And a cream-colored shirt) is getting pleasingly plump—but plump!

Stop the presses! Chuck Iles is vacationing—without McKinney! The Iles family is twiddling its toes in the Detroit Lakes, while the stalwart McKinney is keeping the Iowa home fires delivering . . . Francis Kappler is among the Detroit toe-twiddlers too. Kennie Myers manipulated a saving of two bucks via telephone while we listened in, but he pooh-poohed our suggestion that he really save it by plopping it in the bank.

Temporary Closing Talk Stirs in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS—Because business is considerably off and much of the product current and coming up in the near future is not regarded as sufficiently strong to overcome the handicap of present adverse conditions, there may be many temporary closings of theatres in the territory. A number of Twin City houses in particular are believed to be on the brink of shuttering.

Even the Minnesota Amusement Co. may shut down some of its loop and neighborhood houses to "consolidate" operations. Considering the amount of available business now, there are far too many seats in Minneapolis and hereabouts, it's felt.

The independents favoring closing feel they'd be better off to suspend operations "until conditions improve." While admitting that grosses are far under par, exchange heads claim, however, that "the vast majority" of neighborhood houses still are covering their operating "nut" or better.

What is deterring some of the independent neighborhood exhibitors from following their inclination to close, is fear that many of their customers might be weaned away from them by opposition theatres remaining open. It also is felt that there might be some criticism from the public which believes that film entertainment is a necessity in these trying times.

The Lyric in Plattsburg To Mrs. Ruth Hannon

PLATTSBURG, Mo.—The Lyric, which was built here three years ago by Tom Wilhoit, has been taken over by Mrs. Ruth Hannon. Wilhoit will devote his time to other interests and to theatre interests of the Wilhoits of Springfield, Mo.

Eben Hays Will Remodel Majestic, Memphis, Mo.

MEMPHIS, Mo.—The Majestic, former opera house which Eben Hays has operated for several years as a theatre here, is to be remodeled at a cost of some $20,000. Al Hauetter of Kansas City will handle the remodeling and redecoration of the theatre, which will be renamed the Time.

KAYCEE

JOHN HARDGROVE, formerly assistant manager of the Midland here, was a visitor the past week. John McManus' former right hand man now is with Loew's in Columbus, Ohio . . . The Paramount Pep Club (headed by Walter Clark) held its annual picnic at Swope Park last Friday. About 25 employes and executives of the company attended.

On the Row: Charles Fisk, Fisk, Butler, Mo.; Bob Gorham, Liberty, Horton, Kas.; F. L. Lisbona, Maitland, Maitland, Mo.; C. E. "Doc" Cook, Tivoli, Maryville, Mo.; Lee Sproule, Newton, Chanute, Marysville, and other Kansas spots; Paul Taylor, Farris, Richmond, Mo.; Elmer Bills, Roxy at Huntsville, and theatres at Glasgow, Brunswick, Salisbury and Boonville, Mo.; Hugh Gardner, Orpheum, Neosho, Mo.; Floyd "Breezy" Hill, Drexel, Mo.

Jesse Shlyen of BOXOFFICE and his bride of five weeks have returned from their California honeymoon. Mrs. Shlyen was Miss Bertha Francis Solomon of St. Joseph, Mo. The wedding took place in St. Joseph, Mo., May 26.

Several from Filmrow attended the opening June 27 of the new Griffith theatre, the Osage, at Bartlesville, Okla. From the offices of H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., were H. J. Griffith, Ray Higdon, W. G. McKinney, Harold Harris; from Filmrow: Joe Manfre, Ward Scott, Homer Blackwell, Jack Gregory, Charley Gregory, Tommy Thompson and L. J. Kimbriel were among those who were scheduled to make the trip.

J. J. CLARK, formerly of Chicago, temporarily in North Dakota territory as member of RKO sales force . . . Paul Lundquist, 20th-Fox head booker, spending his vacation touring the various golf courses in and about the Twin Cities. Paul is a near-champion with the clubs and would rather be on the links than anywhere else . . . That was quite a trick the boys played on Bill Scholl, RKO exploiteer. Bill had his car parked in front of the exchange and when he went to start it there was a terrific explosion that nearly scared him to death. He jumped out and ran as fast as his legs would carry him. They had attached torpedoes to his spark plugs and when he turned on the starter the darn things went off.

Joe Podoloff, 20th-Fox branch manager, visited northern Minnesota accounts . . . Universal exchange plastered with banners advertising the Summer Business Drive which continues to August 31. The local branch is up in second place in the western territory . . . L. E. Goldhammer and Fay Dressel, RKO district and branch manager, respectively, making the territory key towns together in a clean-up drive . . . Frank Eisenberg, United Artists northern Minnesota salesman, driving a new car.

A. Selby Carr, Paramount office manager, back from a fortnight vacation, most of which was spent taking in the New York World's Fair . . . Columbia office staff and salesmen had an enjoyable steak fry at Kelly's Farm . . . Kenny Adams, RKO head booker, fishing in northern Minnesota . . . Mrs. Mannie Sgutt, wife of the Columbia South Dakota salesman, who formerly worked on Filmrow herself, is recovering from an appendectomy.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included: Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; Charles Connought, Olivia, Minn., and Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis. . . . Bill Shartin and Art Gollofon, branch manager and salesman, respectively, with Warner Bros. in Seattle, stopped over briefly en route home from the Warner convention in Chicago. Shartin is a Minneapolitan and formerly was a Warner salesman here.

Ma, that valance man is here again—the genial Mannie Goodman . . . Cress Smith, RKO western division manager in town, conferring with "Nickey" Goldhammer, district manager . . . 'Tis said one of the principal reasons for the stopover here of Henry King, 20th-Fox director, was to line up Tommy Charack, Warner Los Angeles city salesman, for a juicy role in a forthcoming picture. Tommy happened to be in the Twin Cities, visiting with old buddies, before continuing his trip from the Chicago Warner confab to Los Angeles.

Al Allard, onetime F&R theatres' press agent and now Fawcett Publications art director, in town with the wife and son for a brief respite from the New York pavements hurly burly . . . Frank Woolen, Orpheum advertising artist, out of commission for a few days with an injured hand caused by a tumble in his home . . . Eddie Swanson, manager of the Metro, Red Wing, Minn., was in town.

LINCOLN

ALTHOUGH the only soundly established fact on the Row this week about moves of various key position men was M. E. Lofgren's resignation at the Nebraska, other changes are being blown about in conversation. Lofgren goes to the Sun and York, in York, Neb., replacing Carl Rose, who trunks and expresses himself to unknown Iowa destination, still with Harry Warren and Central States, however. Major change may involve Bob Huffman, who is said to be about to set compass for Oklahoma City and similar position for J. H. Cooper down there. In that event, it appears Ed Vaughan would have an inside track on No. 1 job for Cooper here. E. A. Patchen, former publicity man here, then for Cooper in Oklahoma City, resigned.

Sid Rose note: There's no truth to the rumor that guest chairs in Howard Fedderer's new office will be teasingly tacked at the seat to discourage long discussions . . . Sol Francis has a way with him. Chuck Miller, the program director for KFAB, needed a projection machine in connection with the CBS broadcast of Glenn Miller from the Coliseum, July 2, and rented one from Sol. Although Sol jacked the prices a couple of times, Miller confided that he was "so nice about it," he was gladder to get the machine at the higher price than he was for the lower.

Speaking of storming the Maginot line, consider the plight of new Mrs. Don (Alice Trumble) Costello, cashier at the Stuart. A "panzer" division consisting of City Manager Bob Huffman, Stuart Manager Harvey Traylor, and his assistant, Jerry Shanahan, tried to storm the cage and kiss the bride, but she held 'em off with a door chain, ten sharp fingernails, and threats to throw every piece of hard money in the till at them.

IATSE items: Harry "Dusty" Miller is in Colorado trying to yank out a trout or two . . . Buzz Dewey will have charge of the stage and projection machine for the running of the Chesterfield free 18-minute show, in connection with Glenn Miller's broadcast . . . Bill Matschullat and his brother, Ed, are both making a strong bid for further military training, and may even give up the booth at the Colonial if there's enough security in this proposed army expansion to include them . . . Jimmy McCauley's kids, all four of them, put on an act called McCauley's Hill Billies. Because there is no place for him in the act, the kids say "paw" is in the backyard shanty looking out through the crescent in the door.

A Luncheon Is Scheduled By Variety for July 22

KANSAS CITY—The next business meeting of Variety will be held July 22 as a luncheon meeting rather than the former evening dinners, it was announced following the session June 24. Ben Marcus, Columbia manager, was named chairman of a committee to boost interest.

At the session Monday the special charity committee headed by Arthur Cole was empowered by the membership to work out its plans with the board of directors.

200 at Testimonial For Jules Lapidus

PITTSBURGH—More than 200 friends in the industry honored Jules Lapidus at a testimonial dinner Monday evening in the William Penn Hotel. The occasion marked the promotion of the local Universal branch manager to eastern district manager.

Among speakers at the testimonial were Fred J. Herrington, AMPTO secretary; John J. Maloney, M-G-M district manager; John H. Harris, Harris Amusement Companies; Harry M. Kalmine and C. J. Latta, Warner Bros. Theatres; Ira H. Cohn, 20th-Fox branch manager; James H. Alexander, Republic Pictures; F. J. A. McCarthy, Universal eastern sales manager; Dave Miller, Universal mideast district manager; Peter Dana, newly appointed Pittsburgh manager for the company, who has succeeded Lapidus, and M. A. Rosenberg, president of the AMPTO, who made the presentation speech in honor of the guest, the gift being fine matched traveling cases.

Other Universal representatives present were Joseph R. Kauffman, former local branch manager and now managing the company's Cleveland office, and Peter Rosian, and Harry Young of the Cincinnati branch. Toastmaster was Albert K. (Rowsy) Rowswell. A special gag was pulled by Luke Barnett, the famous ribber, which turned the banquet hall into considerable confusion for ten minutes.

During the evening a check for over $2,000, proceeds of the recent "Diamond Jim Brady Dinner," was turned over to the Variety Club to be used this summer at Camp O'Connell for upwards of 750 underprivileged children.

Proceeds of the Lapidus banquet will be given to the widow and children of William D. Davis, local showman who died several weeks ago. This fund was increased additionally by a drawing for a Crosley console radio. Winner was Davis' old friend and partner, Bennett Amdur.

Chakeres Aids Red Cross Fund in Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO—A drive for American Red Cross funds has been organized by Phil Chakeres, general manager of the Chakeres-Warner Theatres, in the Springfield houses.

The drive was announced with a special Red Cross trailer, joined with a trailer of the theatres' inviting the audience to contribute to the local chapter.

The gesture met with general approval and received good newspaper coverage.

Damages to Ascap

DETROIT—Performance of musical numbers in a picture by a theatre without a license from Ascap resulted in a verdict for $500 damages, according to Grosner and Burak, attorneys for Ascap. The suit was heard in federal district court at Grand Rapids against the Stocking Theatre there, which is operated by W. W. Brown.

"News Extra" Sells Like Hot Cakes

Detroit—"Paramount News Extra," a 38-minute compilation of war views from recent newsreels, is proving one of the most attractive short subjects the company has had in this territory in years. With only two prints originally set for the territory, seven additional ones were ordered the first week to handle a total of 65 bookings.

Accord Clark Farewell Party in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—Exhibitors, exchangemen and newspapermen to the number of 125 paid tribute to M. R. (Duke) Clark at the Variety Club at a stag dinner arranged as a farewell party prior to his transfer as Paramount branch manager in Los Angeles.

Harry H. Goldstein, Paramount branch manager, as master of ceremonies, presented Clark with a luggage set.

In addition to Clevelanders attending, there were many from out-of-town including Dave Kimmelman, Paramount branch manager in Pittsburgh and his sales crew, consisting of Guy Peterson, Ed Stuve and Bob Caskey; Sam Reichblum, owner of the Columbia, East Liverpool; Ray Wallace, owner of the Columbia, Morrison, the Strand, Alliance, and the Uptown, Youngstown; Wally Schwartz, Youngstown; Fred Ostreicher, Loew publicity director in Columbus; Harry Young, of the Universal Cincinnati exchange; Tod Raper of the Columbus, Ohio Dispatch and William Cunningham of the Columbus Citizen.

Clark and his family leave here the end of the week.

Single Feature Program Inadequate in Detroit

DETROIT—A straight single feature bill proved inadequate at the Fox this week. The film was "The Lone Wolf Meets a Lady." It was played alone two days after opening with a triple-feature stage attraction including Frankie Masters, Rochester, and Betty Hutton.

The picture was bolstered by seven short subjects, but it drew little patronage after customers had had a chance to see the stage show as well for the same price.

Manager David M. Idzal has booked stage shows for the next three weeks. They include Sammy Kaye, Cab Calloway and George White's "Scandals."

Questo Quiz Bows

DETROIT—Questo Quiz, making its bow here, has been booked by Associated Theatres at Wyandotte and by Midwest Theatres at the Colonial. Ray Schreiber's Colonial is using it every Wednesday night. Idea is a cash giveaway, using a 30-minute quiz program and bringing radio's quiz idea direct to the neighborhood theatre.

Says Ohio to Pass Tax on to Public

COLUMBUS—"Ohio theatres, now paying a tax of three per cent of their gross receipts to the state of Ohio, must of necessity pass on to the public the federal tax which becomes effective July 1 on the basis of one cent for each ten cents upon all admissions in excess of 20 cents."

Thus did P. J. Wood, secretary of the ITO of Ohio, advise his members in a special bulletin.

Wood pointed out that on a 25-cent admission this federal tax amounts to 12 per cent and contended that no exhibitor can afford to absorb a tax of this magnitude.

According to Wood, theatres now charging 25 and 30 cents will add three cents to cover the tax; those charging 35 and 40 cents will add four cents, and five cents will be added by those charging 45 and 50 cents.

Theatre patrons are to be reminded that this tax, which will produce about $85,000,000 annually, has been imposed by the federal government to help defray part of the cost of the national defense program and is of no profit to the theatre owner.

AMPTO to Take Up New Federal Tax

PITTSBURGH—Full details of the new federal amusement tax, effective July 1, will be outlined at a meeting of AMPTO members at exhibitor headquarters that day, M. A. Rosenberg, president, announced early this week.

A buffet luncheon will be served for an hour prior to the meeting which has been scheduled for 1 o'clock.

Secretary Fred J. Herrington will make a report on the national Allied convention during the afternoon. Latest and complete information on the Neely bill, the government's anti-trust suit and industry problems of various classifications will be outlined by several of the delegates to the Chicago convention.

All local area theatres will automatically advance admission prices July 1, Herrington stated this week. No theatre can afford to absorb this tax which was enacted by Congress last week, Allied directors stated. All theatre patrons should be reminded that the tax has been imposed to help defray part of the cost of our national defense program, Rosenberg pointed out.

AMPTO members only will be admitted to the July 1 meeting. Luncheon is scheduled for 12 o'clock, noon, and the business session will be started promptly at 1 o'clock, Pittsburgh daylight saving time.

Bank Night Legality Issue Before Ohio High Court

COLUMBUS, OHIO—The Ohio supreme court will decide next fall whether Bank Night is legal.

The court decided to hear the appeal of the Troy Amusement Co., from Miami county court decisions holding the concern subject to prosecution under gambling laws for conducting the cash game.

At the Warner Cocktail Party—

Trailing the Warner convention in Chicago and coincident with the Allied national convention in the windy city. Top: Pete Schram, Kalamazoo, Mich., Mrs. Schram, and Ray Branch, Hastings, Mich., president of Michigan Allied, listen attentively to Carl Leserman, Warner assistant general sales manager. Bottom: From Pittsburgh came, here in left to right order, Robert F. Klingensmith, BOXOFFICE; M. A. Rosenberg, Frank Panoplos and Thomas Gilbert. The last-named trio were Allied delegates.

Five Mideast States Are Represented at Parley

CHICAGO—Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and West Virginia provided the following registrants at the Allied national convention recently concluded here:

From Pennsylvania—Lula L. Antonoplos, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Antonoplos, P. J. Alderman, T. A. Gilbert, Fred J. Herrington, Mathilda Kiel, M. A. Rosenberg, all of Pittsburgh.

R. Allison, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Cussen, Cresson; J. G. Carruthers, Mrs. M. Guthrie, Grove City; Paul G. Ayers, E. T. Beedle, Cannonsburg; Harry Rachiele, Harry W. Walker, Sharpsburg; William R. Wheat jr., Sewickley; William J. Walker, Crafton; Max M. Korr, Allentown; J. T. Birocco, Clarion; Andrew Battiston, Manor; Bart Dattola, New Kensington; S. M. Rodnenok, Oakmont, and Dr. C. E. Herman, Carneigie.

From West Virginia—Tom Anas of Weirton.

From Michigan—Wayne Breichert, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ackerman, William C. Guensche, Bernard Hoyt, Alex Schreiber, Max Schreiber, all of Detroit. H. S. Gallup, G. E. Moyle, Marquette; E. J. Pennell, Bronson; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Pennell, Decatur; Jesse Phillips, Grand Ledge; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cassidy, Midland; S. E. Heller, Grand Rapids; Ray Branch, Hastings; M. W. Dennis, Paw Paw; L. J. Jacobs, Escanaba; Harold Kortes, Plainwell; Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Schram, Kalamazoo.

From Ohio—G. W. Erdmann, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Fine, Harry Greenberger, John D. Kalafat, W L Kunzmann, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Vermes, Jack Fine, Frank Gross, M. B. Horwitz, all of Cleveland; Frank W. Huss jr., Louis Wiethe, Cincinnati; Martin G. Smith, Toledo; Peter M. Wellman, Girard; H. H. Shulman, Fairport; Jerry Stul, Oberlin; L. F. Eick, Martins Ferry.

From Kentucky came Lee W. Moffitt of Owensboro.

May Return to Fold Of Michigan Allied

Chicago—There is a possibility Allied of Michigan may soon take back into its fold several score former members now in Cooperative Theatres, buying group in Detroit. Resurrection of an old by-law forced them to leave. Several months ago this by-law was erased from the constitution of Cooperative, and now each side is said to be awaiting overtures from the other.

Adapting Own Novel

HOLLYWOOD—Evelyn Eaton is scripting "Quietly My Captain Waits" for Warner from the novel she sold to the studio for $40,000.

PITTSBURGH

FILMROW and local industry friends of Joseph Lefko were grieved to learn of his death in Cleveland last Saturday. He was a veteran of many years as a film sales representative for various companies, having served his last duties in this area with RKO, under George Lefko, who was not related. It was under George Lefko that Joseph Lefko worked at the Cleveland RKO branch until illness forced his retirement.

V. F. Scott, circuit exhibitor, reports that Mrs. Scott is much improved in health and has returned to her home from a Johnstown hospital . . . Jack Schmitzer, RKO traveling auditor, is busy checking the local branch books . . . Shirley Brown, daughter of the Ben Browns (he's chief projectionist for the Warner circuit), is playing ingenue and character roles at the Fox Chapel Playhouse. She is a senior in Carnegie Tech's drama school . . . Mrs. George Brinkman of Grafton, W. Va., is vacationing in Atlantic City.

With stage shows discontinued at the Stanley, Max Adkins and his orchestra are playing local night club engagements . . . Julie Apel of National Theatre Supply Co. is vacationing in the wild and woolly west . . . Variety members are invited to be guests of the club at a special dinner July 1 at 6:30 p. m., at the Yacht Club. There they will meet "La Conga," according to Ira H. Cohn . . . A number of friends in the industry were in attendance Tuesday morning at Webster Hall for the marriage of Martin Seed and Eleanor Wolken. The son of the Harry Seeds and his bride are honeymooning in the east and south. Part of the wedding cake was distributed at the Warner exchange.

Notes From Allied Convention:

As usual, Pittsburgh had the largest delegation represented at the national Allied convention held in Chicago last week. The home state, Illinois, may have had more in attendance, but that is to be expected. Registration showed the local group was the largest visiting delegation . . . Allied's publicity described M. A. Rosenberg, president of the AMPTO of W. Pa., as "having earned a place in the higher councils of Allied the hard way—by unremitting effort in its behalf. Apparently a fixture as president of Western Pennsylvania, his fellow directors look forward to years of pleasant association with him on the National Board."

Dr. C. E. Herman killed two birds with one stone. He attended the Allied sessions and also was present at the Dr. Winters Post Graduate Course, both of which were held in the Morrison Hotel. Additionally, "Doc" found time for a little fun . . . Ray Allison more or less "stole" the convention, according to the remarks and comments of many exhibitors from all over the country. Ray told 'em, and no foolin' . . . Eddie Beedle was the local delegation chairman and he contributed to the good humor of the three-day confab . . . An accident suffered by one of the Pittsburghers could easily have ruined the whole affair. Tom Gilbert had six stitches taken in the back of his head as the result of an accidental fall in his hotel shower room Thursday morning. The unfortunate occurrence did not prevent him from participating in the business meetings. Gilbert will be one of the first witnesses in the government's anti-trust suit, if the reported consent decree fails to materialize . . . Frank Panoplos was a busy convention worker whose services have been recognized for many years by Allied.

Bart Dattola was everybody's favorite at the convention and the song leader of "The Gang From Penn-Syl-VAN-Ia" . . . Mrs. Martha Guthrie, who hasn't missed a convention in recent years, and whose name did not appear in our listing of those present in last week's issue, was on hand. She motored to the Windy City from Grove City . . . Steve Rodnenok was in the city but a few hours when he acquired an appetite for Russian food, and Sam Navari, Andy Battiston, Bart Dattola, Tom Gilbert, Ray Allison, Miss Mathilda Kiel and this reporter looked up a spaghetti "Village" and went to work. Peter Alderman voted with Rodnenok for the vodka dinner . . . Mr. and Mrs. Peter Antonoplos and daughter, Lula, were seen here, there and everywhere. And young Tom Anas was usually not far away . . . William R. Wheat jr., the "Little Colonel" himself, cut up a little in his innocent way. "Billy" is one of western Pensylvania's finest exhibitors.

Bill and Harry Walker "did the town" with Paul (Squee) Ayres and other of the boys . . . Harry Rachiele went on to Milwaukee on business following the Chicago convention . . . J. G. (Glenn) Carruthers has developed into one of Allied's faithful although he confesses he'd rather read Commissioner Myers' addresses than listen to them delivered personally . . . A surprise delegate was Joseph T. Birocco, who motored over from Clarion. He was made very welcome.

Dean of the conventioneers was Fred J. Herrington, secretary of the AMPTO of W. Pa. He attended the first national convention of independent exhibitors 29 years ago and he has been present and kicking at all such affairs since that time. Fred favors the new system of naming the convention city for the next year at the annual convention instead of at the January meeting of the board of directors at Washington. The 1941 convention will be staged at Philadelphia and the AMPTO secretary states that the western Pennsylvania gang will again account for the largest visiting delegation. (Note: Although a year in the future, we suggest that the Philadelphia organization and national Allied plan a special event in honor of Herrington, who at that time will have completed three score years as an independent leader).

Many of the Pittsburgh delegates attended the Blackstone Hotel cocktail party and buffet in honor of Gradwell L. Sears which the Warner gang staged last Wednesday afternoon as a finale to the western and southern sales convention. They greeted Ben Kalmenson, former local branch manager, and now the sales figure head for the entire area covered by the convention. The Crystal Ballroom party was a grand success. Here we greeted many former Pittsburghers, including Roy H. Haines, eastern and Canadian sales manager for Warner; Henry Herbel who was promoted from his Universal post here 16 years ago and is now west coast district manager for Warner ,and Clyde W. Eckhardt, now at Chicago with 20th-Fox.

Other former Pittsburghers greeted at the Allied convention at the Morrison were Peter Wellman, formerly of Farrell, Pa., now in exhibition at Girard, Ohio; William Kunzmann, with National Carbons, now at Cleveland; A. E. "Addie" Klein, with RCA at Chicago; Bill Trunick, with RCA, covering St. Louis and Indianapolis; Charlie Schwerin, veteran film man, now with M-G-M at Chicago.

Pittsburgher Andrew Battiston represented Alexander Film Co. of Colorado Springs, as usual at conventions, J. Don Alexander's "Oasis of Good Cheer" was a popular suite. Peter J. Alderman represented Arcus Ticket Co. . . . The Peter Wellman referred to above told us that he is staging the second annual film party and golf tournament at his 127 acre Mahoning Country Club, Girard, Ohio, Wednesday, July 17. Tickets are only $2.50 for the golfing, dinner and door prizes. He hopes a flock of exhibitors and film men of the local area will attend to join the Ohio boys on this occasion.

Bob Hope's P. A. Sets a Record

Cleveland—Bob Hope, local boy who made good in a big way, shattered all established attendance records at the RKO Palace, according to Manager Kenneth Means. Crowds lined up in the morning an hour before opening time and stood six deep in the foyer trying to get into the auditorium.

Variety Golf Tourney Is Scheduled for July 22

PITTSBURGH—Variety Club's annual golf tournament has been announced for Monday, July 22, at the South Hills Country Club. Art England is general chairman.

Cost of participation has been cut in half this year, with tickets being offered at $5 each. The ticket entitles the golfer to an evening dinner and pays the cost of green fees.

All golfers are invited to make early reservations. Tickets are available at the club or from Filmrow members.

Personnel Shifts Follow Resignation of Graham

PITTSBURGH—With the resignation of Jack Graham as city sales representative for RKO, a number of shifts and promotions in the branch sales setup are announced by Herbert H. Greenblatt, resident manager.

David Silverman, office manager under the old Pathe regime and through the succeeding years with RKO, was recently named northern area salesman for the company, succeeding Ed Lebby, who resigned to enter a private business at Erie, Pa., with Bob Lynch, ex-Warner salesman.

Richard Lange, RKO's West Virginia representative, has succeeded Graham as city representative for RKO.

I. T. Sweeney has been named to the West Virginia area. He is another oldtimer in the local industry, and until recently had represented Monarch Pictures.

Carl Peppercorn, a newcomer, has been appointed office manager to replace Silverman. He arrived here the other day from Oklahoma City where he had served with RKO.

Graham will make his home with his mother in Brooklyn, N. Y.

16mm Film Shelves Are Well Stocked

PITTSBURGH — Enough features and serials are available in 16mm width to last narrow-gauge exhibitors for the next seven years, according to a leading distributor.

A bulletin of this company, addressed to 16mm circuit operators and prospects, declared:

"We are constantly buying more sound equipments and more films every month. We are putting up the money as an investment for your business. Every one of you men who operate a circuit requires an original investment on our part of $1,000 or more and we certainly wouldn't offer to do this for you or anyone else if the business wasn't successful. We have no stockholders—all the money in this business came from the success of the business itself and it represents thousands upon thousands of dollars."

This distributing company now operates exchanges at Memphis, Chicago, Kansas City and Pittsburgh, the home office. It continues to advertise: "$7.50 Starts You in the Talkie Business." This week the company states that from April 16 to May 16, 49 new circuit accounts were opened.

New six-, seven- and eight-reel prints are announced as follows: "Juggernaut," "The Big Chance," "Radio Follies," "Drag Net," "Prison Train," "Adventures of the Masked Phantom," "The Man in the Mirror,' "Falling in Love," "Convicts at Large," "Ghost Walks," "Speed Limited," "She Goes to War," "Dark Sands," "Waterfront Lady," "Ferocious Pal,' "Condemned to Live," "Ring Around the Moon," "Streamline Express," "Port of Lost Dreams," "Confidential" and "Ladies Crave Excitement," all independent and British pictures.

Castelli's New House in Library Named "Park"

PITTSBURGH—Jerry Castelli says the name of his new theatre under construction at Library will be the Park. The new 450-seater will be ready for opening before the first of August. Castelli is identified in exhibition at Hills Station, Lawrence P. O., and he operates an auto agency at Clairton.

Scott Circuit Transfers The Vernon to Szewczyk

BOSWELL, PA.—Transfer of the Vernon was made this week from the V. F. Scott circuit to Charles Szewczyk. The Vernon was opened several years ago following the opening of the Mary Lee by Szewczyk, and the two houses had been highly competitive.

New Cooling at Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO—The Paramount here has completed rebuilding and modernizing its cooling plant, one of the largest in the city.

Building Demands Halt Woodsfield Operation

WOODSFIELD, OHIO—The Monroe here has been ordered to suspend operations until building requirements are met, George Strain, industrial relations director at Columbus, has announced. The house was completed in the last six months and has been operating only a short time.

Uphold Marshal's Ruling Against Pomeroy House

POMEROY, OHIO—The Ohio supreme court has affirmed a decision of the Meigs county court upholding an order of the state fire marshal which ruled that John E. Lyons, owner of the Opera House here, demolish the building because of its unsafe condition.

Construction to Begin on Theatre in Coudersport

COUDERSPORT, PA.—Construction of a new theatre was scheduled to be under way here this week for J. A. Angros. The new theatre, unnamed at present, will have a seating capacity of 400.

Angros is a former exhibitor, having sold his interests at Leechburg a decade ago to the Oglietti brothers. Recently he reentered exhibition for a short period at Slickville. His new Coudersport theatre will be ready for opening by the first of October.

Ochs Forms a Company to Handle Film Alliance

CLEVELAND—Herbert Ochs, former local Vitagraph branch manager, announces the formation of Real Art Pictures, Inc., for distribution through the midwest of pictures released by Film Alliance.

The new company has Herbert Ochs as president and general manager; Nate Gerson as vice-president, and Dick Deutsch as secretary and treasurer.

Real Art has secured the Ohio and Kentucky franchise to Film Alliance pictures, but plans shortly to expand its scope to the central states.

The State in Kittanning Closes for Remodeling

KITTANNING, PA.—The State will be closed July 6 for modernization and enlargement of the building. The rear wall will be extended and the seating capacity increased from 430 to 650 seats, according to Andrew Gibson, executive manager. The house will get new seats, equipments and fixtures, and a new front and marquee. The job will require three months.

Three Buy UA Lineup

CLEVELAND — A. M. Goodman, United Artists branch manager, reports that 1940-41 all-product deals have been closed with Ray Wallace for Alliance, Sam Reichblum for East Liverpool, and F. H. Hathaway for his houses in Campbell, Struthers, Hubbard and Canfield.

Detroit May Become Production Center

DETROIT—Detroit, in the not too distant future, may become an important production center of entertainment as well as of commercial pictures.

The possibility hinges on unconfirmed reports heard here that British production interests, now under threat of total attack by Germany, may move to Windsor, Ont., just across the river from Detroit.

Detroit fits into the picture because of its nearness to Windsor and the excellent production and technical facilities of its three producers of commercial and industrial films, Jam Handy, Wilding and Industrial Pictures, that would be available to any British interests making the reported move.

In Toronto last week, Arthur Lee, former general manager for Gaumont British in the United States, ridiculed the idea that British producers were thinking of moving to Canada because of the war, as intimated by R. G. Sherriff, Hollywood scenarist who recently returned from England.

"When they stop producing pictures at the London studios, they will stop production in Hollywood," Lee told a BOXOFFICE reporter.

Some years ago in more peaceful times, the transfer of some British production activity to Canada was contemplated, and while for a time a deal appeared likely, it eventually fell through.—H. F. R.

A Gala Opening for the New Lee in Fairmont

FAIRMONT, W. VA.—The new Lee here was accepted by the city in a gala inaugural, with Mayor Wilson doing the honors. Columbus Harr and associates had as guests many members of the industry.

Among those present were E. B. Morton and Newt Williams, National Theatre Supply Co.; Lew Lefton, Monarch Pictures; Charles Dortic, Warner Bros.; Sidney Goldberg, Columbia; Richard Lange, RKO; William Satori, Universal; Burtus Bishop jr., M-G-M; Max Shulgold, Crown; Harry Gans, Dennis Games; and exhibitors George Sallows and George Comuntzis, Morgantown, and John Urse, Fairmont.

Promote Nat Mervis

STEUBENVILE, OHIO—Nat Mervis, assistant manager at the Warner Capitol here, has been upped to the managership. House continues to play units forced to lay off Sundays, at the Stanley in Pittsburgh, every Sunday to record patronage, Mervis reports.

Remodel Regent

BEAVER FALLS, PA.—The Regent here will undergo extensive remodeling and will be closed from August 3 to 17, Hymen Goldberg says. The project will include interior remodeling, complete redecorating, new lighting systems, frames, etc.

THEATRICAL POST INSTALLS OFFICERS

At a well-attended party at the American Legion Home, the Theatrical Post held formal installation of its new officers. Dancing started early and the installation was at midnight, in accordance with tradition of the post. For the record, it's Russell Johnson Theatrical Post No. 371. Russell Johnson, one-time operator of the Pasadena, was the only Detroit showman known to have been killed in the World War.

Here are the new officers: W. J. Stolz, commander; Arthur (Buddy) Fields, vice-commander; Sam Comella, junior vice-commander; Harry R. Berns, adjutant; Owen Blough, finance officer; N. J. Rickens, chaplain; Bill Marley, sergeant-at-arms; Lee Crowell, historian.

Judge John J. Maher and Mrs. Maher were among the guests . . . Milt P. Christa conducted the installation; Rollin Becker, district commander, was a visitor . . . Ray Gorrell and his band up for the occasion and learning new trumpet signals.

Bill Marley, National Theatre Engineering, back at his old post at the portals . . . Gil Light of the Michigan taking things easy as senior past commander; Bud Cusick, another past, much in evidence . . . Jack Ferentz, musicians' president, too peppy to be called "past." Max Kolin busy in his last minutes as retiring commander.

Pop Stolz drinking a long plain glass of water to celebrate his installation. He's shed his cognomen of Fulla-Vice as vice-commander.

Buddy Fields got stuck when his wife ordered a round, sent him the bill . . . Harry Berns of the Bijou settled up a little business with BOXOFFICE on the spot . . . Heinie Shurmur of News Photo Service was official stenographer.

Gerritt Lamb, operator at the Columbia, seen with an empty glass . . . Walter Aller of the Del-The seen with a party and laryngitis . . . Jerry Gudenau, manager of the Maxine, made up for him with his big voice . . . Nat Haase, Metro Premiums, must have got lost in the crowd.

Roger M. Kennedy, IA vice-prexy, strolled in looking cool . . . Editor Jack R. Cann of "Legion News" helped fill the press gallery . . . Jacob Gross of American Attractions was "just a guest."

Jack Davis of the Bryden Booking Office made a brief visit . . . Jim Murtagh a late and welcome visitor . . . We heard why Max Kolin had to join Theatrical Post. He does a strip-tease when he takes off his hat.

Pop Stolz was thrilled to heights over his public appearance—or was it stage fright? . . . Clyde Adler, state IA president and from the Michigan stage, seen in several spots . . . Joseph Sullivan, Variety charity show operator, dropped in.

The Post is doing its own charity, sending three boys currently to the Wolverine Boys' State at Michigan State College . . . Herb Straub, veteran theatre orchestra leader, and Les Clark, musicians' business agent, among those present . . . Chuck Burns, former booking agent, out of Grell Hospital after several months for heart trouble, looking much better.

FILM BOWLING LEAGUE OUTING

Thursday afternoon and evening Filmrow was literally deserted and the boys foregathered across the river in hospitable Cabada at the Lakewood Golf Club north of Tecumseh. Occasion was the annual golf tournament sponsored by the Film Bowling League. Here's the low-down.

Wade Allen of the Fine Arts and George McArthur, film supply man, played a twosome, with Cliff White of the Beechwood acting as instructor. Wade and Mac tied on several . . . Ollie Brooks, Butterfield head booker, treating in a grey summer suit . . . McArthur drinking lemonade, and in a big hurry for dinner.

Harry Levinson, RKO, playing table tennis . . . Dave Kaplan, Theatrical Advertising, in sailor costume, shifted to tweeds later . . . Jack Saxe very efficient and cool as general boss and our host.

Jim Olson of Clare flew in for the event . . . Mitchell Victor of the Astor rushing off to telephone and getting acquainted with that youngster . . . Cully Buermele, Co-op chief, an interested bystander.

Dave Flayer of the Amo and Alvin thought he wasn't seen . . . Charlie Perry of the Adams and Dave Newman of the Pasadena, very concentrated on hearts or something . . . Claire Townsend of Columbia with a brand new suntan.

We hear Max Blumenthal struck the jackpot . . . Dave Kaplan and Richard Flemion of Excellent shared the honors of the baseball game . . . Charlie Snyder, censor, and his kibitzing were missed.

Art Knapp of 20th-Fox seen in a quiet game with Al Rupert of the Rupert . . . Milt Cohen, RKO salesman, claimed eights on five holes. We wouldn't brag . . . Vic Valcaterra of Typocraft wrenched his back playing.

Gene Alexander, secretary, busy checking on the tickets for dinner . . . Sam

Jerome Jackson Opens Suburban Deluxer

CINCINNATI—The opening by Jerome M. Jackson of the new Mt. Lookout Theatre in an exclusive suburban section of Cincinnati was made a civic event what with the mayor, superintendent of schools, Parent-Teacher Ass'n officials and trade leaders participating in the dedication exercises.

Jerome Jackson, who is managing director of the new 750-seat house, also directs the Jackson at East End, another suburban house. The theatre provides ample space for parking and represents an investment of $125,000.

Akron Stagehands' Local Plans Reunion Dinner

AKRON, OHIO—The stagehands employes union is making plans for a get-together party and dinner at Young's Hotel, late this month. It will be the first reunion in several years.

John Motz, "Giddy" Gruber, Frank (King) Motz, Dan McGowan, Charles Herman, Joe Gallagher, Hal Claflin, Tom Parker and others who wrestled scenery in the days when stage shows were regular diet for the amusement loving public, will be among those present. The dinner will be held at midnight.

Joe Lefko, RKO Salesman, Dies After Brief Illness

CLEVELAND—Joe Lefko, RKO salesman, died at Charity Hospital where he had been under treatment two weeks for tuberculosis of the spine. He is survived by his wife and two brothers, neither of whom is connected with the industry.

Lefko attended the RKO convention in New York last month and was apparently in good health. He was stricken a few days after his return from the convention.

Maurice Brown's Chances Good in Political Race

LORAIN, OHIO—Maurice Brown, manager of the theatres owned by Mrs. Nazera Zegiob, ran 1,400 votes ahead of his nearest competitor for state senator for the 27-29 district. With this lead he stands a good chance for election in November.

Picnic by Columbians at Greensburg on July 20

PITTSBURGH—The Columbians, comprised of members of the branch exchange staff of Columbia, will hold a picnic on Saturday, July 20, at the Mountain View Hotel, Greensburg. Eva Reiff is president of the Columbians and a "rip-snorting" time is promised.

Osborne jr. Weds

WHEELING, W. VA.—Announcement has been made of the recent marriage here of John Griswold Osborne, son of J. R. Osborne, general manager of the five theatres here operated by the West Virginia Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., to Ann Louise Laupp, also of Wheeling.

A Bowling Alley Chain by General Motors Founder

DETROIT—Bowling, rapidly becoming one of the most popular of American sports, may receive a big stimulus as a result of the entry into the field of William C. Durant, who has opened the first of a series at Flint, Mich. Durant, who founded General Motors and was once reputed to be worth $120,000,000, is apparently staking his financial comeback upon the bowling alley project.

His plans call for a series of bowling alleys to be erected on a nationwide scale.

Greater Seating Capacity For Coyle in Charleroi

CHARLEROI, PA.—Seating capacity will be increased under extensive remodeling plans for the Coyle here. Orchestra pit will be removed and the auditorium modernized. New glass front and marquee will be among improvements. Plastering, painting and decorating are other remodeling features and new equipments and fixtures will be installed, according to Robert S. Coyle, owner and manager. Walter S. Rockwell of North Charleroi is the general contractor.

Showmen Plan Red Cross Mardi Gras

HARTFORD—The theatrical division of the Red Cross announces completion of plans for a large outdoor Mardi Gras in Hartford, July 3. It is estimated between 50,000 and 75,000 people will participate. Mayor Spellacy has promised fullest cooperation.

Chairman Henry Needles announces appointment of the following general committee to handle the Mardi Gras:

Walter B. Lloyd, Allyn manager; Reuben Lewis, stage manager, Palace; Jack A. Simons, Loew-Poli manager; William Flanaghan, Lyric manager; Lou Cohen, Palace manager; David Sugarman, Colonial manager; Thomas Maller, manager of the Lenox; George E. Landers, manager of E. M. Loew's; James R. McMarthy, manager of the Strand. Also Charles North, Henri Sicardi, Gustave May, Linius Albee, Harry Hoff, Joseph Clements, Charles Maass and Charles Lowe.

All receipts will be turned over to the Red Cross.

Injunction Against Pickets Sought by Proven House

HARTFORD—An attempt by the Proven Pictures theatre to make permanent the temporary injunction it obtained in 1938 forbidding picketing by the local stage employes' and motion picture projectionists' union was heard here last Tuesday by Superior Court Judge Frank P. McEvoy.

The theatre, which obtained the temporary injunction from Judge John Rufus Booth, formerly used union projectionists, but refused to hire a member of the stage union as a maintenance man on the ground that he was not needed. As a result, the projectionists walked out, after which the picketing began.

The unions contend the anti-injunction statute passed by the 1939 general assembly in Hartford now applies to the situation and that the court is powerless to grant an injunction. Joseph P. Cooney, who last fortnight was successful in defeating an injunction against picketing brought by the E. M. Loew's theatre, appeared for the unions and Ernest W. McCormick for Proven Pictures.

Film Exchange Transfer Employes Gather Funds

BOSTON—The employes of the Film Exchange Transfer Co., owned by the estate of the late Harry Decker, have formed the Fetco Associates. This charitable organization is raffling off a portable radio, now on display in a show window of the Capitol Theatre Supply to aid the sick fund for film delivery drivers.

The drawing, it is planned, will be held in the Capitol show window on Monday, July 15.

See Tax Exemption Drop Undue Burden on Children and Poor

20-Cent Exemption In Ticket Tax

Washington—The President on Tuesday signed the appropriation measure carrying the federal admission tax change after a Senate-House conference had agreed upon an exemption for theatre tickets selling below 20 cents. The Senate earlier had amended the House bill and dropped the exemption to ten cents.

Bank Night Test Case Will Be Heard in Cambridge

BOSTON—Bank Night legality under Middlesex county lottery laws was tentatively scheduled for a test case this week at superior court in Cambridge. George S. Ryan, attorney for the giveaway, and District Attorney Robert Bradford were expected to handle the litigation with an agreed statement of facts as a basis.

Legality of "Lucky" was also expected to be dealt with in a separate Middlesex superior court action in which William H. McLaughlin, operator of the Stoneham in Stoneham, had been set up as test defendant.

Action Against Giveaways Gains Momentum in Mass.

BOSTON — Moves against Massachusetts giveaways under anti-lottery laws have been continued here with raids on the Paramount in North Adams where "Ten-O-Win" was playing and on the Mohawk in North Adams where "Lucky" was being staged. Francis J. Faille is manager of the Paramount for Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., in North Adams. Bernard Payne handles the Mohawk for the E. M. Loew circuit.

Fishman May Build New Theatre in Fairfield

NEW HAVEN—It is learned upon good authority that Fishman Theatres, Inc., operators of a circuit of theatres in Connecticut, including the Community, at Fairfield, have contracted for the purchase of a large plot of land on Post Road in Fairfield. The property has a frontage of 350 feet on Post Road, and is about 600 feet deep. It is said to be the intention of the Fishmans to erect a theatre embodying all the advance ideas for the presentation of stage plays and photoplays; also a number of stores, together with a parking space for about 500 cars.

No further details were available, except that the Fishmans reportedly would continue to operate the Community in addition to the new Fairfield house.

NEW HAVEN—Reduction in the federal admission tax exemption from 40 cents to ten cents would have imposed unduly on children and on those least able to afford any increase.

That was the consensus as gathered at meetings of the MPTO of Connecticut and of Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut. Both organizations were agreed that the exhibitor would be unable to absorb the additional tax in view of bad business, and predicted an adverse effect upon grosses.

In the light of lowered returns, Allied members leaned heavily toward a return to the single-feature policy, although no plan for the accomplishment was outlined. The unit holds its next luncheon meeting on July 2.

The MPTO meeting reported on prizes and arrangements for the annual film golf tournament scheduled August 6 at the Racebrook Country Club. The next luncheon gathering will be on July 23.

Exhibitors to Confer Soon On New Admission Tax

NEW HAVEN—Exhibitor organizations report they will call special meetings to decide on uniform treatment of admission scales now that the new amusement tax law becomes effective July 1.

Independents objected to the taxation of low-bracket admissions, which, they told Washington, would affect children and those who could least afford it. Individual exhibitors expressed the opinion the one cent tax on the 10-cent admission would have to be absorbed, but that a five-cent rise might be indicated in admissions over ten cents to avoid an uneven amount.

To Reopen Milford Drive-In Theatre for Fourth

MILFORD, CONN.—Drive-In Theatres, Inc., of Boston and Thomas G. DiMaura, Inc., owner of the real estate, will operate the 400-car Milford Drive-In Theatre this season, after installing 300 RCA individual speakers and other improvements to lift the public nuisance injunction awarded Milford residents against the venture last fall. James Guarino is general manager.

Operation is scheduled to start before the Fourth. The same circuit also operates the drive-in theatres at Weymouth, Saugus and Shrewsbury, Mass.

Adverse Labor Ruling Fought at Dedham

BOSTON — Ralph Snider interests here challenged the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts labor relations commission to stymie the latter's petition for enforcement of recent findings of fact in regard to a projectionist union activities at the Dedham Theatre in Dedham, Mass. No hearing on merits has yet been heard.

The disputed finding, based on the state labor relations law which itself is now under fire, is held to be of primary importance to Massachusetts theatremen as a whole.

The particular situation arose when Harry Evanson and George Mills, projectionists at the Dedham, left the employ of the Ralph Snider circuit. It was claimed by Frank Cronin, manager of the Dedham, that Evanson was discharged for unsatisfactory work and that Mills left voluntarily.

The committee found, however, "upon all the evidence, based upon facts and natural and sound inferences to be drawn from those facts, the only conclusion which is consistent with those facts and inferences is that these two employes, Evanson and Mills, were discharged by the respondent for the purpose of discouraging labor organization membership."

The Commission, therefore, made the following conclusions.

1. George F. Mills and Henry Evanson were, at the time of their discharges and at all times thereafter, employes of the Dedham Theatre Corp. within the meaning of section 2 (3) of the state labor Relations law;

2. The employer, by interfering with, restraining, and coercing its employes in the exercise of the rights guaranteed in section 3 of the law, has engaged in unfair labor practices within the meaning of section 4 (1) of the law;

3. The employer, by discriminating in regard to the tenure of employment of George F. Mills and Henry Evanson and thereby discouraging membership in a labor organization; has engaged in and is engaging in unfair labor practices within the meaning of section 4 (3) of the law."

Services for Gatelee Are Held in Springfield

BOSTON—John F. Gatelee, IATSE leader, died last week Friday at 3:00 a. m. after a Moosehead Lake trip. Gatelee had been in ill health ever since the strenuous work coincidental with recent west coast labor confabs. He was in his early 50's. Burial services were held Monday in Springfield.

PORTLAND

MAINE'S light harness racing season is scheduled to open July 3. Interest centers around Gorham's Narragansett Park, where several of New England's top half-mile trainers are stepping up some famous charges for the season opener. Some 80 horses have already been entered in a five-fair event scheduled at Bangor, which gets under way July 29. Purses total $2,250.

Other exhibitor competition in the offing is the local appearance of the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey Circus which came to town June 25, and the increased number of summer theatres which are opening all over the state. Old-timers include the Ogunquit Playhouse, operated by a former film theatre exhibitor, Walter Hartwig; the Lakewood Playhouse at Skowhegan, and the Deertrees Theatre at Harrison, Me., operated by Bela Blau of New York. New theatres include one at Ogunquit and a second at Peak's Island.

Vacation time, along at last, has arrived in Portland, with numerous theatre employes ready to take advantage of the two-week rest and play period. Among them is Nathan A. Press. assistant-manager of the State, whose itinerary includes a ball game in Boston, a motor trip through the state, and numerous golf games on the side. Father's Day brought Nate a new set of nifty irons, but according to his pals, nothing will improve his game . . . Harry Botwick, the State's manager, has chosen July 7 as the date, and New Haven as the place where he and his family will frolic for two weeks . . . Edwin Newman, chief usher at the State, leaves July 14; John Divney, manager of the Maine, July 21.

Fred Eugley of the Star, Westbrook, was expected back at work June 24, after a long illness . . . Joe Dondis, a partner in the M&P Strand and Park, Rockland, is ill.

Filmrow visitors: Frank Vennett, manager of the Opera House, Bath; Francis Gooch, of the Uptown, Bath, and Edward Everett Horton, film and stage star, who is playing a "return" engagement at the Civic Theatre (formerly Keith's). Horton got his first experience as a leading man in stock in this same theatre some 25 years ago.

George Blackburn has been appointed business agent of the MPMO Local 458 to serve the unexpired term of Chelsea Waldron, who resigned June 17. Blackburn will serve until January 1.

"Our Town" Author Is Hosted in New Haven

NEW HAVEN—Thornton Wilder, author of "Our Town," was guest of honor at a cocktail party at the Hotel Taft prior to the opening of the picture at the Roger Sherman. Mayor John W. Murphy proclaimed it "Our Town Day," and a distinguished group gathered to greet the author, whose home is in New Haven, and who was attending the reunion of his 1920 class at Yale. Among those present were the mayor, Dr. Henry Seidel Canby, Isabel Wilder, and Professor Amos Wilder, all literary figures; Dr. E. A. Davidson, editor of the Yale Press, Professor Stanley McCandless, theatre lighting authority, and Mrs. McCandless, Dr. and Mrs. James D. Trast, Yale Medison School; Sidney Withington, chief engineer N. Y., N. H. and Hartford R. R., and Mrs. Withington; Mrs. Jack Crawford, Jack Schaefer, editor of the Journal-Courier; George Scher, UA exploitation manager for the Boston-New Haven territory; Lou Wechsler, UA branch manager; John Hesse, Roger Sherman manager, and representatives of the press

The author praised the "courage and vision" of Sol Lesser in producing "Our Town," in spite of the play's rejection by other studios as unsuitable for filming, and praised also the "completely satisfactory" performance of the cast and the finished product. Asked whether the enlarged background had in any way destroyed the effect he had wished to create, Wilder replied that the trick camera effects helped the audience to place the story in its own town or any town, just as lack of scenery had accomplished the result in the play. As to the happy ending, Wilder explained that he himself had urged Lesser to adopt it.

"On the stage the characters, removed from the audience by even the distance of the orchestra pit, have already some quality of the general and the abstract," he said. "But in the movie, the camera, with all it shows of the specific, concrete person, puts its emphasis on the individual. In the play it was not so much that one girl died—Emily Gibbs, but a general notion of loss. In the movie, through the camera emphasis on the concrete, it looks as though Miss Martha Scott—Emily Gibbs, died. It was not that kind of grief or that kind of participation I was after, and I am perfectly willing that Emily survive in the picture so long as the dream device presents the graveyard scene and its implications."

Wilder said sooner or later he would write a "film for the movies directly." "It's not so much the changes made in your work by the experts after it's done, but the changes made while you are working. A writer is accustomed to following through an idea from beginning to end. He is willing to accept expert advice, but not while the iron is hot."

Dr. Henry Seidel Canby, who preceded Wilder in a radio interview over WELI, conducted by Carey Cronan, pointed out that "In this critical moment in the world, the most important thing for Americans is to grasp our American tradition. No American could learn more about American tradition than from 'Our Town,' which has now arrived on the screen."

May Business Rises In Hartford Area

HARTFORD—The metropolitan Hartford district enjoyed "increased industrial activity" during May, the state's labor commissioner, Cornelius J. Danaher, reports in his latest summary of industrial conditions throughout the Nutmeg state.

Improvement was also noted in Waterbury, Torrington, Thompsonville, Bridgeport and Norwalk, he said, while there was "no marked change" in New Britain, Bristol, New London, New Haven, Stamford, Ansonia, Danielson and Danbury. "Reports from the four offices at Meriden, Middletown, Norwich and Willimantic were less favorable and indicated some declines in industry," he added.

Regarding the general business outlook, Commissioner Danaher said:

"The influence of the domestic rearmament program and the foreign situation upon Connecticut is mixed. Many plants are unusually busy, while others are slow through disturbances of normal markets and non-receipt of war orders. Metal trades, in general, are busier than textiles. The latter are hopeful of government orders in the near future.

"In spite of inclement weather in May, construction, both private and public, is well under way in most areas. Agriculture was delayed by the weather, and job openings were still being filled by the end of the month with some difficulty.

"May initial claims for unemployment benefits were down 17.7 per cent from the previous month, although compensable claims and benefits paid were slightly higher. Job placements by local officers increased 16 per cent over April."

Springfield Establishments Report More Employed

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Total of 125 wholesale and retail trade establishments in Springfield have reported to the state labor department that they had on their payrolls during the midweek of April, 3,772 employes, while in the same week in May the total was 2,788, a rise of 0.4 per cent. Their aggregate weekly payroll in April was $85,137, and in the following month of May was $85,407, up 0.3 per cent.

Relief Figures Lower

HARTFORD—This city, with 11,886 persons on relief in May, led the five largest cities of the state in the number of individuals receiving aid, according to a report of State Welfare Commissioner Robert J. Smith. Obligations incurred last month for relief purposes here totaled $92,425, Smith said, which is 9.4 per cent less than for May, 1939.

Daughter to Perlsteins

BOSTON—Max Perlstein of the Modern in Brockton and Mrs. Perlstein listed a new citizen at their home last week. It's a girl.

Report Sears-Roebuck Gift Plan Will Be Extended

BOSTON—Reports that Sears, Roebuck & Co. may extend into New England their plan of profit-sharing coupons as giveaways would be neither confirmed nor denied last week at the office of Arthur Rogov, Sears, Roebuck retail sales head for this territory.

The motion picture handout is being tried out in the Philadelphia territory at present. Sears, Roebuck and Co. has been covering all advertising costs, while the exhibitors have been acquiring the one, two, and five cent coupons reportedly at face value. These coupons are, in turn, distributed among patrons who may redeem them at any Sears, Roebuck & Co. outlet in part or full payment on merchandise.

McGunnigle's Bachelor Dinner Draws Crowd

BOSTON—Over one hundred friends attended a bachelor dinner given last Wednesday at the Gardner in honor of George F. McGunnigle, assistant to Frederick Randolph Greenway III, at Loew's State. Maurice N. Wolf, Metro's New England branch manager, was toastmaster. Co-chairmen of the affair were Tom Foley and Gus Woolfall.

McGunnigle, Boston College graduate, and Miss Mary E. Curran, graduate of Boston Teachers' College, plan to be married today at St. Gregory's in Dorchester.

Sharp Cut in Admissions Made at Hub Fine Arts

BOSTON—George Kraska, operator of the Fine Arts in the Back Bay section of Boston, last week drastically cut prices which heretofore hit 75 cents and 99 cents in the evenings. Kraska cut the tariffs to all-day admission of 30 cents for adults and 15 cents for children and brought in "Pinocchio" for inauguration of the special shows.

Foreign and class fare will be continued in the fall, Kraska told this publication, and regular prices will then be resumed.

Leniency Prevails

BOSTON—"You're Not So Tough" was the theme song for the Massachusetts bureau of Sunday Censorship in regard to last week's official weekly list of approved motion pictures. The department of public safety unit okayed 32 films without an elimination. Also included were First National's "All This, and Heaven Too," and M-G-M's "The Mortal Storm."

Fear Film Shortage May Trail War

New Haven—Fear is expressed here by exhibitor association members that producers might not be able to fulfill their product schedules in view of world conditions. This fear was said to be a contributory factor along with decreasing grosses in the Allied unit's stand against continuation of double features.

"Back-to-the-Land" Move Shown in New Figures

FARMINGTON, CONN.—A 16 per cent increase in the population of this town was reported by J. F. Dutton, Hartford county census supervisor. As of April 1, he reported, the population was 5,292 as compared with 4,548 in 1930, a gain of 744 persons.

The increase came as no surprise to many localites who say that while all suburbs of Hartford will show increases in population, the city of Hartford will, in all probability, show a decrease, due to a "back-to-the-land" movement.

Hamden Census Adds 4,300

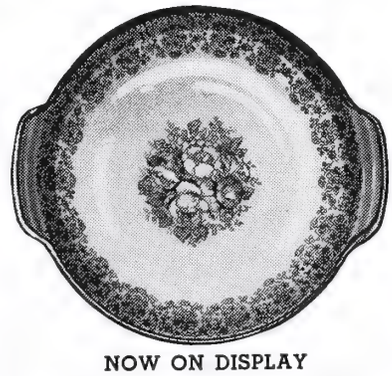
HAMDEN, CONN.—The town of Hamden, according to Edmund R. Gebhardt, district census supervisor, has a 1940 population of 23,320, which is an increase of 4,300 over 1930.

Bristol Reports Gain

BRISTOL, CONN.—The 1940 population of Bristol is 30,103, representing a gain of 1,652 since 1930, according to preliminary figures of the county supervisor of the census, J. F. Dutton. South Windsor's population is reported to be 2,821, or 286 more than in 1930.

Population Loss Seen

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. — Springfield's new population figures will be from 500 to 1,000 lower than in 1930, reports John W. Wisnowski, assistant district supervisor of the census for Hampden county.



East Hartford Gains

EAST HARTFORD, CONN.—The 1940 population of East Hartford is 18,604, as compared with 17,125 ten years ago, according to J. F. Dutton, county census supervisor. This represents a gain of 1,479, or about 8.5 per cent.

WHAT with the war, poor receipts, and the theatre tax, jovial Meadow Street curb-kibitzing of yesteryear seems gone forever. Sentiment around is in favor of a five cent admission increase to take care of the new tax . . . Strand, Hartford one-week test premiere of "ATAHT" at $1.10 roadshow top, is reported satisfactory, but policy not yet set for other houses . . . Milford Drive-In was scheduled to open by July 1, and will again be Connecticut's only ozone venture, unless Sal Adorno makes required improvements to operate the 900-seat open air show in Middletown. The Hanover Park, Meriden, proposed venture has been dropped . . . John Glackin was to have opened the Strand, Sound View summer theatre, by July 1 . . . Report is that Conrose of Hartford will again operate the Cinema, Sound View.

Thornton Wilder, distinguished Yale alumnus returned for reunion, and a resident of New Haven, was tendered a cocktail party at the Taft by UA and the Roger Sherman, with George Scher, Lou Wechsler, and John Hesse as hosts. NEW HAMPSHIRE

THE Rex, Globe and Empire theatres and the State Operating Co., which controls the State, Palace, Strand and Crown in Manchester, joined other business establishments in sponsoring a full page Flag Day advertisement in Manchester newspapers.

Peter M. Gagne, operator of the Somersworth, was among prominent business men interviewed by the Rochester Courier for their attitude on President Roosevelt's denunciation of Italy's entrance into the European war. Gagne is also collector of internal revenue for New Hampshire.

The Keene summer theatre was threatened by fire when an inn was damaged only a few yards away. A general alarm was sounded, but there was only a few hundred dollars damage.

HARTFORD

New Films Trade "Glamor" For "Artistic" Qualities

HARTFORD—"Motion pictures have been undergoing a quiet revolution from the strictly glamorous to the more sanely artistic," declare Julian B. Tuthill, theatre and motion picture critic and columnist for the Hartford Times.

Continuing, Tuthill says, "During this period, it is small wonder that there have been difficulties that may have made it appear as if, as has been said, 'people are staying away from the pictures in droves.'

"From all this department can discern through conversation and observations hereabouts, people are not angry, but rather they are pleased by the turn of events. Some people, it is true, are not yet as accustomed to the finer films of today as they were to the hokus-pokus of a few years ago. Others, who would enjoy and appreciate the new order in a large way, are not entirely aware of what has been happening.

"Pictures like 'Gone With the Wind' and 'All This, and Heaven Too' are going to do a good deal to focus the attention of people who have previously been dissatisfied by the cinema on the improvements that have been accomplished.

"Even the most slapstick comedies of today compare with their predecessors in about the same ratio as 'The New Yorker' to 'College Humor.' This casts no aspersions, mind you, on what went before. It was all very serviceable, and built up a movie audience that could never have been moulded if the pictures started out as they are today. Even a baby has to toddle before it can walk."

He Has His Joke

NEW HAVEN—If the burglars who removed the safe from the Lyric office will forward Zelig Fishman the sum of $1.00 and no other valuable considerations, he will furnish them with the combination and save them the trouble of drilling, dynamiting, or otherwise smashing this nice safe. Some eight years ago, Zelig found the safe had been moved from its regular place in the office and tampered with. Since that time he has kept it empty, but carefully locked, in the office, and waited patiently to play his little joke on the burglars. He estimated that it must have taken four men to lift the safe into a truck, and hardly thinks it was worth while.

Trotti Completes Script

HOLLYWOOD—Lamar Trotti has completed the script of "Hudson's Bay Company." Kenneth Macgowan will produce for 20th Century-Fox.

Summer Stock Was Once Popular in Hartford

HARTFORD—While summer stock in the past few years has taken to the suburbs, Hartford for many years was once a popular spot for such units, according to Billy S. Garvie, writer for the Hartford Times and somewhat of a local film and theatre historian.

There was, according to Garvie, a real stock company "war" in Hartford in 1909 when three companies fought during the summer for the patronage of drama fans.

The Hunter-Bradford Players appeared at the now defunct Parsons' Theatre with Edmund Elton, Eugene O'Brien (later a screen star), Josephine Victor and Marion Lorne and featured players, while at the Hartford Theatre were the Cook Players with Bob Haines and Clara Blandick playing the leads, and at the Poli's (later Loew-Poli's) were Art Maine and Blanche Shirley.

At the Scenic, silent films, forerunners of the present day motion picture industry, fortified by four vaudeville acts, made their bid for patronage.

"All This" Held at Hartford

HARTFORD—"All This, and Heaven Too" was held over for an extra day at the main stem Strand this week, thus postponing the local opening of "Our Town" from Tuesday until Wednesday.

Assigned to "Colorado"

HOLLYWOOD—Republic has assigned Harrison Jacobs to script "Colorado."

Linked Travelogue Clips an Idea

Boston—Movie Tours, a new film idea, has been copyrighted by George Kraska, national independent distributor and operator of the Fine Arts Theatre in Boston. The first of Kraska's new productions is made up of clippings from FitzPatrick Travelogues, pieced together in a connected series by Kraska and given continuity of a complete cruise. Tag line of the present two-hour program is that patrons may take for 30 cents a trip costing $3,000.

Closes for Summer

BOSTON—A. Viola Berlin plans to close the Exeter Street in Boston on July 8 for the summer season. It's an annual custom at the Back Bay house. Miss Berlin plans to get going again in September.

Summer Schedule at Guilford

GUILFORD, CONN.—Leo Shapiro puts his Guilford on the summer schedule of daily matinees June 30.

M&P Returns "Hell's Angels"

NEW HAVEN — M&P houses in the state are featuring return engagement of "Hell's Angels."

Maibaum Adapts "Wings"

HOLLYWOOD—Richard Maibaum is scripting "I Wanted Wings" for Paramount.

War Topic Films Make Headway Currently

NEW YORK—Nazi Germany, which was considered "verboten" as screen material by some major distributors, now forms the spearhead of a number of war pictures which will be launched in keeping with the martial times.

On the current lineup, 20th-Fox has released "Four Sons" and Darryl F. Zanuck is preparing "I Married a Nazi." Another early release is M-G-M's "The Mortal Storm," based on the novel by Phyllis Bottome. The studio is now shooting "Escape" featuring Norma Shearer. It is said the theme of Robert Montgomery's British production, "Busman's Holiday," concerns itself with the Nazi dogma.

For the immediate present, Warner has completed a new ending for "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" to bring up its chronicle to date. Columbia has "Mad Men of Europe" ready for release.

It is understood UA will reissue Alexander Korda's "Things to Come" and is planning to push "The Lion Has Wings" along with it as a companion feature. There is some talk that RKO will dust off "Nurse Edith Cavell" now that the time is propitious. Universal may do likewise with "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Road Back." Meanwhile the company has "Ski Patrol," dealing with the Finnish-Soviet war.

Republic is releasing "Women in War" and Monogram has "Torpedo Raider," a GB revival. Producers Distributing Corp. is plugging "Beast of Berlin."

Chain Tax Gets La. Committee Frown

BATON ROUGE—A Louisiana senate committee has reported unfavorably a theatre chain tax bill introduced by A. D. Flowers of Jena in the lower house and passed by that body. The sole supporter of the measure in the committee was John W. James, Columbia.

The bill, identical with the one passed by the house in 1938 and killed by the senate, calls for a tax of $50 per house up to five houses; $75 for each up to ten; $100 for each up to 20; $125 each up to 30; $150 each up to 40; $175 each up to 50, and $200 for each over 50. The measure, which would primarily affect the Saengers, Southern Amusement Co., and the Joy Houck interests, is estimated as being able to net the state approximately $250,000 annually.

Another measure directed at chain theatres is one introduced by Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc which would prohibit chains from operating more than one house in cities of less than 20,000 population. Embodied in this measure is a clause compelling places of amusement affected to post a bond to ensure the collection of the tax, and empowering the collector of this revenue to promulgate rules, examine all records of business; examine witnesses under oath; and introduce the use of stamps or tickets to facilitate accurate collections. A censorship feature of the bill calls for an assessment of $4.00 per thousand feet, to be paid by the distributor.

Another house bill, HB 796, calls for the department of public education to have charge of the censor boards.

Still another bill calls for a three-man board of censors, each serving six years at $5.00 per day plus 25 cents for each thousand feet of film examined. HB 577 calls for repeal of the original censorship law in its entirety.

Ben Hill Continues as Paramount Publicist

DALLAS—Ben Hill, a ranking publicity man and exploiteer in the Southwest, continues with Paramount in his present capacity, according to confirmation coming from District Manager Hugh Braly. An erroneous report concerning Hill came out as Jack Dailey of the studio publicity staff was transferred to Dallas headquarters. Both these experts will work together in covering the Southwest.

Underwood, Ezell Meet Drive-In Patentee

DALLAS—W. W. Smith, owner of patents on Park-In Theatres, was expected Monday from New Jersey to meet W. G. Underwood and C. C. Ezell in San Antonio where a drive-in of that type is to get underway soon.

Ezell said the deal for real estate probably was closed Tuesday and that construction would start immediately. Location is on the Fredericksburg Road.

Golf Notice!

Jacksonville, Fla.—SETOA golfers wishing to limber up on the San Jose course a day before the tournament to be held in conjunction with the organization's convention, July 21-23, may do so for a fee of $1.50, the SETOA golf committee announces.

Name F. R. Moran Republic Manager in Des Moines

OKLAHOMA CITY—F. R. "Buddy" Moran, for the past four years office manager and booker for the local Republic exchange, July 1 becomes manager of the Des Moines Republic exchange which recently was changed from a franchise situation to a company-operated exchange. He was succeeded here by Fred Lawrence, for the past seven years booker for Bader Busby, Little Rock, Ark., Republic franchise holder. The Little Rock franchise was recently taken over by the Arthur Bromberg interests.

Moran, besides being office manager and booker for Republic, has been booker and salesman for Universal and has been associated with 20th-Fox and the Paramount exchanges here. He has been in the film business here for the past 12 years.

Variety Sponsors Benefit Show for the Red Cross

ATLANTA—Variety staged an elaborate flesh-film show at the Fox June 28 to raise funds for the Red Cross. All talent was donated.

Prior to the show, members, bedecked in their colorful ten-gallon hats received at the organization's recent convention in Dallas, staged a parade downtown to whip up interest in the charitable undertaking.

Similar benefit shows were also presented in all Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee towns in which Variety members live or own theatres.

Admission Tax Levy Commanding Study

DALLAS—While big and small theatre interests viewed the ten per cent admission tax as a necessary item toward national defense, the levy nevertheless caused prolonged huddles in circuit headquarters and much discussion among the independents.

Taxes are to be collected starting Monday, July 1. There are no levies on 10 and 20 cent tickets. The tax starts at 21 cents. The 25 cent ticket takes a three cent tax, total 28 cents. A 35 cent ticket requires a four cent tax, or total of 39 cents.

Interstate officials were in conference Tuesday morning and came out with a decision to add the tax onto present admissions. A spokesman there told BOXOFFICE that the tax could not be absorbed by the theatres but would be passed along to the ticket purchaser.

R&R May Compromise

At the Robb & Rowley-United general office a spokesman said that no general policy had been set up at the moment because the circuit had a great many partners who were to be consulted on the issue. It was said, however, that the circuit will very likely absorb the taxes where higher admissions are charged, 35 cents being mentioned, but that the question had to be worked out further in the lower boxoffice scale.

S. L. Oakley, manager of Jefferson Amusement's Dallas office, said officials had been in conference but that nothing definite had been determined at this time. Speaking individually, he said he thought theatres should collect the tax as a patriotic gesture rather than to cut down to 20 cents.

Several independents who did not know at the moment that 20 cent tickets were exempt, and who were charging 25, planned to raise to 30 cents and absorb the three cents tax in that price. On learning that the 20 cent admission was clear they talked later of lowering to 20 cents.

Filmrow opinion was that exhibitors should keep a very definite record of ticket sales starting Monday. There was also argument as to whether or not it would be economically wise for theatres to reduce 25 cent tickets to 20 cents. A possible loss of revenue in that event might be greater than if the exhibitor absorbed three cents on each 25 cent ducat and certainly the loss might be greater on the reduction if the exhibitor maintained his 25 cents and passed the three cents along to the consumer, according to these opinions.

So far the score seems to be that the great majority of theatres will maintain prices and either absorb or pass the tax along rather than cut down to 20 cents.

Tie With Merchants

WINCHESTER, TENN.—A local merchants "Trade at Home" campaign, of a kind that has proved successful in several Tennessee towns, is being inaugurated by the Rivoli, and $350 in prizes will be given away from the theatre stage at the close of the campaign. The same plan tried elsewhere has helped attendance very much.

NEW ORLEANS

NEIGHBORHOOD houses are anticipating an increase in business during July. Approximately 10,000 will be placed on the WPA rolls, with an assured increase of at least 5,000 in New Orleans alone . . . T. O. Tuttle, a former franchise holder for Buck Night in Louisiana, was seen on the Row looking for offices for a new proposition which is supposed to be introduced in this section the coming fall. He plans to enlarge his premium business.

The Orpheum and Liberty are showing the Louis-Godoy fight pictures. Monogram has distribution rights for the territory . . . "Ecstasy" has been booked into the Liberty Theatre "suppressed but uncensored." This is the name of a film that allegedly caused Harry McLeod to lose his job as manager of the Strand some time ago, and Henry Lazarus is said to have lost a pretty penny trying to put it over. Superintendent of Police Reyer said at the time that the film never could be shown in New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Brunet of the Imperial celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last week by treating their patrons with cakes, candies and other favors.

The state legislature has passed a bill allowing the parish welfare organization to expend the city amusement tax proceeds for unemployables rather than allow the state welfare commissioner to handle the money . . . Francis Lederer, screen star, halted in New Orleans en route from Hollywood to New York via Mexico where he visited his wife, who is ill. In New York, he will discuss plans for the forthcoming stage play, "The Emperor Wants a Son."

Seeking ten million dollars in new revenue, the state legislature has partially consented to allow dog racing in Louisiana, subject to a $25 license fee and a three per cent tax. It is estimated the measure will bring in $300,000 annually. The races will be held at night.

Returned from vacations: W. H. Castay, his wife and baby, from West Terra Haute, Ind.; Mrs. Celia Randolph (Columbia), from Alabama; Alvin Angel, assistant booker for Columbia . . . W. A. Prewitt made a business trip through Florida and Alabama.

Visitors on the Row: O. J. Gaudet, Magic Theatre, Port Allen, La.; Morris Melz, Arcade, Ferriday, La.; Claude Darce, Opera House, Morgan City, La.; Ernest and Paul Drake, who operate the Ideal and Pic at Ponchatoula, La.; Vincent Currier, Amite, Amite, La.; W. H. "Bill" Hendrix, Montecello, Montecello, Ala.

W. H. Cobb, now lessee of the Isis, shook hands with Filmrowites and looked over open time for features. The Isis is an independent house in the uptown section . . . Republic and Atlantic Films are the only ground floor exchanges in the city . . . Exhibitors are urged by exchanges to get their orders in for July 4, which falls on a Thursday, as early as possible. There is liable to be nobody home on that date.

Over 1,000 Turtles To Race in Dallas

DALLAS—More than 1,000 terrapins will face the barrier in what promises to be the biggest turtle derby ever staged anywhere. Dallas Variety is sponsoring the national turtle race. Exact date of the event has not yet been set, but will probably be in early August, possibly in conjunction with the club's summer picnic.

Prominent film stars and industry bigwigs from Hollywood and New York will be represented by shelled racers. Practically every theatreman in the state will also enter one of the crawling speedsters. Many already have been entered by showmen of Texas. The turtles, to be furnished by the Variety Club, are of the dry land variety.

The derby will be staged in ten heats, according to Ben Ferguson, Texas exhibitor who is in charge of the race. More than a hundred will be entered in each heat and the winners of the preliminary jousts will line up for the final race.

R. J. O'Donnell, chief barker of the Dallas tent, will be official starter. The committee in charge includes R. E. Griffith, Harold Robb, Ed Rowley, Julius Gordon, S. L. Oakley, R. I. Payne, John Adams and Lynn Stocker.

The club's pet charity—the Freeman Memorial Clinic—as well as the new free swimming pool being built in Sullivan Park and Hope Cottage, will share in the proceeds of the turtle tournament.

It is the club's first big event of the year in which charitable pledges totaling $75,000 will be distributed.

Projectionist Marries

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—Frank Hamill, operator at the Grand, was recently married to Miss Eulala Brown, of Red Bank. Hamill is a graduate of the University of Chattanooga.

Exhibitor's Daughter Able Projectionist

Royse City, Tex.—Miss Alera Otts, 18-year-old daughter of C. J. and Mrs. Otts of the Palace, finished high school and became interested in doing something. The idea struck that projection machines were interesting and that she was just the type to run them. The operator wouldn't teach her, so along with perseverance she persuaded her father to begin demonstrating what he knew about it.

Alera is now doing all the operating in the Palace booth. She has mastered the situation even to handling a fire, one of which she had under control before help came from below. Her initiative fitted well into a situation which otherwise might have been worse, for while C. J. is now in a hospital at Muskogee, the Royse City booth is in capable hands. Mrs. Otts handles the tickets and manages the theatre.

SANTONE

VITAL STATISTICS: A daughter, named Pamela and weighing nine pounds and three ounces, was born to the wife of William "Buster" Bryan, KTSA program manager and local actor . . . Wedding bells tolled out June 21 for Tommy P. Leigh jr., Majestic chief of service, and Miss Joyce Bennett, cashier at the Broadway. The happily married couple is now on a vacation-honeymoon.

"The Fighting Rookie," a sound picture dealing with the trials and tribulations of a youthful copper, was exhibited here at the Boys' Club headquarters as part of a cooperation with the police program . . . Walton "Wally" Blanton is now the new "Interstate Movie Reporter" on the Alamo Broadcasting Co. (KABC) here.

Marie and Peggy O'Donnell of New York, sisters of Robert and William O'Donnell, Dallas Interstate executives, were royally entertained during their visit here by the theatremen and their wives. Marie is with RKO, while Peggy is secretary to the president of the Ritz-Carleton Hotel in the metropolitan city.

Speaking of vacations, Miss Helen Jones, titian-haired cashier at the Empire, is spending a portion of her vacation in Dallas and Fort Worth . . . Empire played the Louis-Godoy fight pictures last week in conjunction with "Women in War," a Republic release . . . New scale of prices at the Cameo, Negro theatre, is 15 cents for adults, 5 cents for children . . . R. W. Barron of Independent Film exchange, is sporting a new model sedan.

ARKANSAS

TED WILSON, who has managed the Rex at Carlisle the past year, has moved to Hayti, Mo., and Garland Bain, manager of G. W. Jones' house at Sheridan, has moved to Carlisle to take charge of the Rex. Mrs. Elwyn Hackney will be retained as assistant manager, and Austel Pinson will continue as projectionist . . . The new theatre at McCrory opened under the management of C. N. Jenkins of Hot Springs.

Employes of the Ritz, Malvern, and guests enjoyed an outing at Fountain Lake, near Hot Springs. A picnic lunch was served and swimming was enjoyed throughout the day. Some of those who attended are Mr. and Mrs. W J. Sims, Mrs. Lelas Baker and son Milton, Misses Anna Boyd Marshall, Joyce Haltom, Ann McCormack, Leah Jane Watson, Carolyn Murray, and Bill Manning, Lee Kemp, Orville Crutchfield, Sanford Fields, Bill Hensley and Morris Ashcraft.

Carl Presley, manager of the Madison, Huntsville, announces the installation of a new air-conditioning system . . . A. E. Crowder jr., manager of the Hoo-Hoo, Gurdon, states a new air conditioning system has been installed.

The Little Rock office of Republic has been moved to Memphis. Fred Lawrence, assistant to Manager B. F. Busby, has been transferred to Oklahoma City.

OKLA. CITY

MARIE "KITTY" HUCKABY, State cashier, is vacationing in California for two weeks. Louise Murfin, formerly State cashier, is working in her place during Marie's absence . . . Gladys Hale, secretary to A. L. Smith, assistant treasurer of Standard, has returned from a two-week vacation.

This column erroneously stated recently that William George Slepka of Okemah, Okla., was a manager for Griffith Amusement Co. in Okemah, in a story on his marriage to Miss Virginia Louise Atchison of Okemah. Slepka is operator of the Jewel and Crystal in Okemah and has no connection with the Griffith circuit.

B. L. Smith, Liberty, Quinton, recently installed an air conditioning unit in his house . . . Thomas Higgins, Ritz, Shattuck, also purchased one for his theatre . . . Lynn Pontius and George Underwood are new ushers at the State here. Both were formerly with the Criterion on Main Street.

The Folly is getting nearer reopening which will be in the next few weeks . . . The old Empress has been leased for two store spaces. Standard Theatres now holds the lease on this property from the Midwest Enterprises which formerly operated the house.

Tom Boland, formerly owner and operator of the Empress and one-time franchise holder for First National pictures here, has left an Oklahoma City hospital for Beverly Hills, Calif., his present home. Mr. Boland is a stockholder in Midwest Enterprises, theatre company of Oklahoma City.

Morris Loewenstein, Majestic, is a member of the program committee for the patriotic meeting which will be held July 4 in Oklahoma City under the auspices of the Variety Club, the American Legion and local civic clubs. Plans are to include several speeches by prominent speakers and free fireworks.

Harry Lawrence, Majestic, Madill, recently purchased an air-conditioning unit and new seats for his theatre . . . Pete Crown, operator of theatres in Pampa and Borger, Tex., was in town during the past week. He is looking for another location in Texas . . . The Victoria here, operated by Standard Theatres in the north Oklahoma City residential section, which was closed about a month ago for remodeling, will be reopened soon, according to Walter B. Shuttee, general manager.

A party of Griffith circuit managers and officials left last Thursday for a two-week fishing trip to the "Lake of the Woods" on the Rainy River, Ontario, Canada. They were to join L. C. Griffith, who had preceded them there by two weeks. Those in the party who left by motor June 27 after attending the premiere opening of the new 1,100-seat Osage in Bartlesville, Okla., that night there, are C. O. Fulgham, Oklahoma City; Foster McSwain, Ada; Jimmy Zartaludes, Sapulpa; Jack Wilhelm, Duncan; Dr. A. E. Bowers, Oklahoma City; Ralph Leachman, Blackwell, and Adam Hornback, Shawnee.

National Screen Accessories will move into its new local quarters at 611 West Grand on July 1, according to Gilbert Clark, manager . . . Buddy Benjamin, formerly film salesman for Monogram, now operating a filling station with Tommy Weinberg, also a former film salesman, is taking a two-week vacation.

Horace Falls, film buyer and head of the booking department of Griffith Amusement, Mrs. Falls and their daughter, Dorothy Jeanne, and H. O. Stark, booker, Mrs. Stark and their daughter, Gloria, went to the Ozarks in Missouri last week.

Remodeling began June 25 on the Rialto, "C" house operated by Griffith Amusement in Seminole, Okla. The 400-seat house was partially destroyed by fire recently when struck by lightning. The house will open about July 25.

Builds in Millington

MILLINGTON, TENN.—G. W. Haynes, of Strand Enterprises, Inc., Memphis, has secured a permit to build a $30,000 theatre in Millington, in anticipation of the large increase in population due to the construction and operation of the big British-DuPont powder manufacturing plant. The theatre will seat 900 and will be managed by Ed Gibbons.

WAR and theatre taxes have not taken all the joy out of life for Filmrow's fishermen. The latest episode, way past good luck, took place for several nights near Jack K. Adams home on the cliffs of Eagle Mountain Lake. He and Jack jr., with other members of both households motored out about 300 yards from the dam, let their lines reel down 60 feet, pulled them up to around 30 feet and in a couple of hours took in 102 pounds of sand bass. Next night in less time they weighed in 60 pounds. The Adams house and method is going to be too popular if that keeps up.

Monday's regular luncheon in Variety's club rooms was announced as the last until the summer season is over. They will start again about the second week in September . . . A. H. Truitt of the Star, Amarillo, was here along with his newly employed assistant, Roy DeVinney, and called on the exchanges. Until recently DeVinney had been manager of the new Palace in Jacksboro.

Leaman Marshall, owner of the Iris and Lyric in Terrell, affiliated with R&R, drove around Filmrow in his car alighting a minimum number of times due to a lame walk, that now is mending . . . The Row's stationary war generals have a little more convenience and comfort established in their communications, with Herb Shoemaker putting in a couple of ceiling fans around at Jackson street's favorite barbecue and cold drink stand.

Oskar Korn's new theatre out at Lisbon, bearing the same name, is in the completion stage and the opening, as yet unannounced, cannot be far off.

B. W. (Wick) Johnson, known in the trade as a technical cooling man of other years, later operating skating rinks, had business on the Row along with the other exhibitors. He now is operating the Community Theatre at Comfort.

Howard Bland and Howard Hoke were here furthering their new $20,000 theatre building now under way at Taylor and conferred with officials of the R&R circuit, their partners.

G. H. Williams and Mrs. Williams of the Capitol at Meridian, drove up Tuesday to book and shop. This couple makes an interesting short saga in show business. For years he was a manufacturer of chicken brooders and incubators in Illinois. After selling out he came to Texas to learn how to operate a theatre, and chose Meridian for the experiment.

Another closely matched and hotly contested golf game was played off Tuesday at Lakewood. It took 27 holes to decide the differences between Architects Pettigrew & Worley on one side and Ed Spear, Texas Power & Light executive and S. G. Fry, Tyler exhibitor, on the other. Spear and Pettigrew were low and the architects won by a hole. There were several birdies.

C. J. Otts, owner of the Palace at Royse City, is in a government hospital at Muskogee under treatment for neuritis with probability he will remain there through the summer. Mrs. Otts, assisted by their daughter, Miss Alera Otts, is operating the Palace.

Roy Fuller, who operates the Texas at Cleburne, was up Tuesday for booking. Roy and Mrs. Fuller took time off over the weekend for a fishing expedition into east Texas with luck nothing to brag on, he said.

Carl Lybrand, Wills Point, and his young bride of just a few days, were on the Row, Tuesday . . . Henry Sparks, Mrs. Sparks and two sons, Bryan and Herman, were in town working on additional buys for their new 800-seat theatre now well under way at Cooper. Plans for utilizing four walls of a large building recently purchased by the senior Sparks were drawn and the work supervised by Bryan.

V. E. Hamm, the Wichita Falls independent, and his manager at the Roxy in Electra, Homer Gimlin, were along the Row, Wednesday. V. E. is getting ready for an extended vacation, he says.

Julius Gordon, chairman of the board of Jefferson Amusement Co., was here several days this week headquartering in the circuit's Dallas office . . . Harry Fulgham, owner of the Ideal in Ft. Worth, was over Monday, visiting exchanges.

Jack K. Adams, owner of the Adams Film exchanges, was on the Row and at the office Wednesday. He corroborated all Jack Adams jr. said about the big catches at Eagle Mountain Lake.

Men of Alexander Film and Alexander Prevues left this week for Colorado Springs where J. Don Alexander, president, will conduct the annual sales convention on July 1-2-3. From Dallas went J. A. McInaney, district manager; W. G. Kirksey, Claude Alexander, George and Ruth Likens, Joe Froehling. From Oklahoma went J. J. Devine, Ed January, C. L. Clark. S. M. Perrin attended from Arkansas.

A. W. "Jack" Lilly, the well known exhibitor from Greenville, is winding up his term as president of the chamber of commerce there . . . O. B. Bridges and Mrs. Bridges were brief visitors here and in Houston from New Orleans. He is manager of the Joy for Joy Houck. The trip to Texas was partly in connection with the $100,000 federal court suit filed by Bridges against Interstate and the majors. Bridges said there has been talk among attorneys about a possible settlement but that the issue as far as he now knows will be determined in court.

The elevator entrance to the Film Exchange Building is being camouflaged in the streamlined manner. The walls are lighted up and fluorescent lighting goes into the ceiling. The elevator too was given an inside coat of paint . . . Roy Howell arrived Wednesday for a two-day booking visit . . . Lloyd Rust, Republic manager, took his portfolio into south Texas this week to call on a number of exhibitors.

Gregg Remodels in Caney

CANEY, KAS.—Charley Gregg is remodeling his Liberty here and will rename it the Gregg.

Anna Neagle at Opening Of Bartlesville House

BARTLESVILLE, OKLA.—Hollywood's glory was Bartlesville's for a one-day stopover Thursday, June 27, when Oklahoma's newest and most modern theatre, the Osage, opened officially.

Anna Neagle, the British actress, and her producer-director, Herbert Wilcox, were the stars of a gala celebration staged by the Griffith Amusement Co., operators of the new theatre, in which the Bartlesville Chamber of Commerce and the Phillips Petroleum Co. are cooperating.

Miss Neagle was scheduled for a series of personal appearances in the theatre, in connection with the showing of her latest picture, "Irene." This is the first time that a star of this magnitude appeared here.

Latest trends in theatre design are emphasized in the new house. It has 1,100 seats, making it among the largest theatres in the state. Activities in connection with the opening were broadcast from stations KTUL in Tulsa and KGGF, Coffeyville, Kas., which is about 20 miles from Bartlesville.

L. C. Griffith, president of the circuit which built the theatre, and Horace Falls, general manager, were in charge of opening day activities.

Other Griffith officials who attended are C. O. Fulgham, division manager, Oklahoma City; Foster McSwain, Ada; Jimmy Zartaludes, Sapulpa; Jack Wilhelm, Duncan; Ralph Leachman, Blackwell; Adam Hornbeck, Shawnee, and Dr. A. E. Bowers.

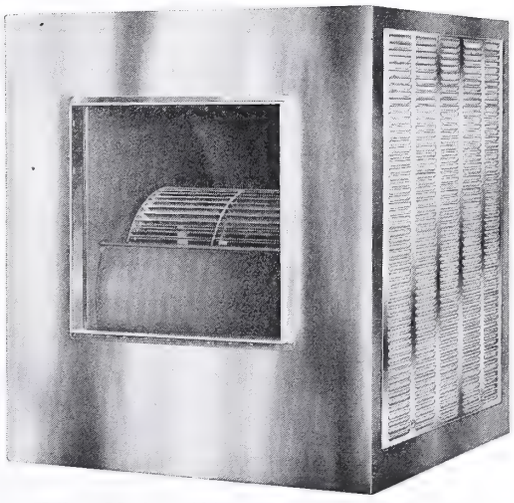
Back From East

DALLAS—L. E. Beavers, manager of the Knox, has returned from an eastern vacation. Joe Jackson, assistant manager, Varsity, took over during Beavers' absence.

Theatre for Stamford Is Planned by Three

DALLAS—Three men with unconnected interests, two of them being established exhibitors, were simultaneously in action to open a new and competitive theatre in Stamford, it was learned along the Row. First was G. A. Cole, who recently sold out at Ft. Stockton. He has completed a lease and has made film deals for available product, according to the report. The second was L. C. Dennis, a Stamford business man without theatre experience, who owns a building which he planned to remodel into a theatre.

The third was a west Texas exhibitor now operating in the Panhandle, who made some negotiations for product, but no one approached here could recall the third party's name.



Opinion is, of course, that all three will not open in Stamford. From one source it was gathered that Cole will very likely carry through, he having the jump.

The H. T. Hodge circuit owns the Grand and Ritz in Stamford in affiliation with the R. E. Griffith Theatres. Last year this combination bought out J. D. McCollum jr., who was operating the Palace.

Scott Opens Remodeled Varsity on SMU Campus

DALLAS—The renewed Varsity at SMU reopened Thursday night after a 60-day shutdown for general remodeling.

Paul Scott, who opened the house originally, later selling to Interstate, and later taking the circuit to court with a settlement worked out just before trial, is again managing the Varsity along with five other north and east Dallas Interstate houses.

Variety Convention Rodeo Performer to Monogram

DALLAS—Rex Felker, stunt rider and trick roper of rodeo fame and a star in the Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band, is on his way to Hollywood for Monogram, stopping here for a day along with a friend of long standing, J. C. Horton, operating the Palace at Whitewright.

Felker, experienced on the prairies and in the arena, rode and performed in that memorable parade of the Cowboy Band during the Variety convention. He met George Weeks, Monogram producer who told him to report in Hollywood, July 1, for a western assignment.

West Texas exhibitors are really behind Felker, and a few already have signed next year's Monogram contracts because this Texas cowboy is going to furnish some of the playing time.

Variety Club Plans Guest Clubroom in New York

DALLAS—A special club room in the Hotel Astor, New York, will be made available by September for out-of-town members by the National Variety Clubs, according to R. J. O'Donnell, local chief barker, on returning from the east. He just toured nine cities with John Harris, national Variety prexy.

New tents may be organized soon in Los Angeles and New Orleans, O'Donnell said. Oklahoma City is the baby tent, No. 22.

Sudekum to Increase Size Of Court in Huntingdon

HUNTINGDON, TENN.—Contract has been awarded for rebuilding the Court Theatre, according to Manager W. L. Banniza. Seating capacity will be increased from 400 to 600 with new seats installed.

Rockwood Amusement Co., of which Tony Sudekum is president, purchased the theatre recently from Mrs. Linnie M. Carter.

Interstate Will Build Ft. Worth Suburban

FORT WORTH—Interstate circuit has announced early construction of a new neighborhood theatre on Camp Bowie Boulevard. This new house is a substitution for a previously announced theatre in the same vicinity where zoning restrictions complicated the situation, BOXOFFICE learns.

Sternheimer to Wed

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Harry Sternheimer, head booker for the Bijou Amusement Co., will be married June 30 to Miss Anna Simon, also of Nashville.

Montgomery Drive-In Opens

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—The new Drive-In, located in front of the municipal airport on the Wetumpka Highway, opened this week.

Cigars for the Men, Flowers for Women

Dallas—For the first time as far as is known an exhibitor handed out cigars to men on opening night. That happened at the Lamar in LaMarque, near Galveston, a new situation recently opened by M. K. McDaniel, who, incidentally, is an exhibitor for the first time. A flower was passed out to each woman at the opening.

Interstate Engineers Get Boost in Scale

DALLAS—A brief three-day strike ended Monday night as stationary engineers of cooling plants returned to their posts at Interstate theatres after an amicable settlement of differences. There was some picketing for a very short time in front of Elm Street theatres.

The engineers won a six-day week at the same scale they were paid for seven, and were successful in creating employment for a swing man. The union has about 150 members, not all working in theatres, of course.

$20,000 Remodeling Job On Rivoli, Winchester

WINCHESTER, TENN.—Architects have been employed by the Cumberland Amusement Co., according to Manager George Oldham, for remodeling the Rivoli here at an estimated cost of $20,000. Seating capacity will be increased from 500 to 700 by the construction of two balconies.

Sorenson Enlarges Modern Theatre Supply Quarters

DALLAS—Henry Sorenson, owner of Modern Theatre Equipment Co., this week was enlarging his quarters, taking in the extra space for a stock of projection and other parts and to display equipment. The work was to be completed and the larger place made ready within the next few days.

Aid Hardin's Race

DALLAS—Film and theatre men this week started a move to get behind the race being made by Ross Hardin for railroad commissioner. It was brought out that Hardin had been a friend of the industry for several years and worked with the late Jeff Strickland in warding off censorship and taxes as these issues cropped up at Austin. Hardin has been a state representative for several terms. His home is in Prairie Hill.

Doyle Opens House

OKLAHOMA CITY—A new neighborhood theatre, the Penn, has been opened on Pennsylvania avenue here by Jimmy Doyle.

Larger Quarters Taken By Roy C. Lee Company

DALLAS—The Roy C. Lee Co. has moved from McKinney Avenue into a large two-story brick building on Lancaster Avenue in Oak Cliff. There, elaborate plans of modernization and expansion have been in progress for some days. A grand opening of the place will come in January.

Lee caters to and serves theatres all over the country with his Hollywood display lighting equipment. He recently went to Pittsburgh, Pa., to add lights for a world premiere. Recently he added a big balloon advertising service for theatres.

Fry Starts Remodeling Program in Tyler

TYLER, TEX.—S. G. Fry will start immediately on a $4,000 remodeling program at the Joy, engaging W. B. King, of King Scenic at Dallas, to do the job. The theatre will remain in operation throughout the entire face lifting process, Fry said.

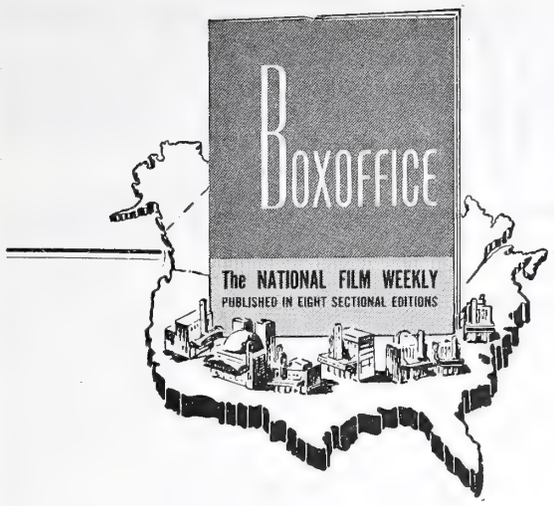
Four Texas Theatres Are Closed for the Summer

SAN ANTONIO—Four Texas houses have closed for the summer. They include: The Rex, New Braunfels; Allen's Tent Show, Mathis; Roma, Roma, and the Dreamland, Rio Grande City, Tex.

Present Radio Performers

DALLAS—Station KRLD's "Blue Ridge Mountain Folks" have given Bob Hooks and the Select at Mineola a lot of publicity over the air because of a personal appearance these performers were to make this week on the stage of that theatre. After Mineola, these radio personalities were booked in John Stewart's Plaza in Kaufman and in Major Cole's American at Bonham.

Scale for Summer



SAN ANTONIO—Interstate City Manager Edward E. Collins announces new bargain prices at the Texas for the summer. The new price policy will be 15 cents until 1 p. m. daily for adults; 15 cents and 25 cents from 1 to 5 p. m., and 20 and 30 cents from 5 p. m. until closing. Children will be 10 cents at all times.

Industry's Patriotic Campaign Aims to Raise $1,000,000

By MILTON GALBRAITH

TORONTO—A Dominion-wide patriotic campaign of the Canadian motion picture industry under the auspices of the Canadian Picture Pioneers was launched at a stirring rally of film executives, theatre owners and managers representing more than 300 theatres in Ontario, which was held in the Victoria Theatre here, when plans were put into action for a War Savings Stamps selling drive which will culminate with the staging of nationally sponsored performances in all cinemas from the Atlantic to the Pacific Monday evening, July 15. The immediate objective is the raising of $1,000,000 for the Dominion Government for its war effort through the sale of the stamps in exchange for coupons providing admission to the shows which are being staged by circuits, exhibitors and exchanges absolutely without cost to the government. The adopted plan further called for an assessment against every theatre to the extent of two cents per seat which the owner will pay for campaign purposes, in addition to donating the use of the theatre, all employes also giving their services without charge. At the conclusion of the meeting announcement was made that 95 per cent of all theatres in Toronto had already contributed their financial quota, and telegrams were pouring in from all parts of the country to the campaign headquarters offering assurance of complete cooperation in what was called the greatest single undertaking of the entire business in Canada.

Occupying places on the stage were N. L. Nathanson, chairman of the national campaign committee, Leo M. Devaney who presided as chairman of the rally after he had been introduced by Clair Hague, president of the Canadian Picture Pioneers, J. J. Fitzgibbons, James P. O'Loghlin, N. A. Taylor, Harry Alexander, Col. John A. Cooper, Oscar R. Hanson, R. W. Bolstad, Ray Lewis and C. J. Snyder, the latter representing the Ontario government as deputy attorney-general of the province. These officials represented the whole industry, including the circuits and independent exhibitors, thus indicating that the theatre front is united for the cause. Several speakers, notably Harry Alexander and Nat Taylor, president and vice-president of the Independent Theatres Ass'n of Ontario, stressed that "petty grievances are being laid aside in this crucial hour" in order to cooperate in providing financial aid for the federal government.

Mr. N. L. Nathanson declared, in a rousing speech: "We believe there are a million people in Canada who will be glad to take advantage of this opportunity. I was tremendously enthused while in New York when I knew what the plans were. I told them at the Hays office and every producer agreed to supply films without charge and to do everything possible to help the cause.

"If we fail we will go down in history as the wrong kind of people. If we do not have a full house at every theatre, we will have failed. I want to be able to say on the morning of July 11 we have reached the objective of one million dollars."

O. R. Hanson made a fiery plea for immediate action, declaring that Hitler was not waiting for any tomorrow and that "one way we can fight is to raise money for the Government—get on your feet, do it now and nothing will lick us." Nat Taylor urged: "If you do not win this war, you will not have a theatre to worry about," in making a plea for united action and the burying of differences. J. J. Fitzgibbons explained various details of the drive, emphasizing the point that the theatres were not charging an admission for the patriotic shows and that the people were buying something that they would keep with eventual profit in purchasing the war stamps, that the Government of Canada would be getting the money when they were needing it the most and the patrons would be enjoying a real show while helping the government. The motion picture industry was paying the whole cost through the voluntary seat tax and contributions and the Government would receive every cent of proceeds.

R. W. Bolstad announced that Southam Press, Ltd., had agreed to the printing of 650,000 tickets for the free shows without charge and these would be distributed by the campaign manager through appointed film exchange branches in all key cities. His announcement that consent had been secured for the appearance of Maureen O'Sullivan and her baby, now residing in Ottawa, in the special war stamp trailer, and prints would be released July 1 when the drive would be officially opened. Arrangements had also been made for radio programs. Mr. Bolstad and Chairman Devaney announced the appointment of W. M. Gladish as manager of the campaign headquarters in charge of offices at 277 Victoria St., Toronto, to whom all exhibitors and managers were requested to send all possible information and where facilities had been installed for the distribution of printed matter and other material. C. F. Mavety told the meeting that his fleet of film delivery trucks would handle all films for the national shows without cost and that application had been made to the Express Association for the free transportation of reels both ways for every theatre in Canada.

Many wires were received from all parts of the Dominion. Typical was the telegram from North Bay, Ont., offering all support and cooperation to the campaign and to Manager Jack Nelson of the Capitol. This was signed by the mayor, councillors, presidents of the Lions, Kiwanis and Kinsmen service clubs, president of the Board of Trade and the publisher of the North Bay Nugget.

National Shows Start 10 P. M. Monday

Toronto—Theatres participating in the Dominion-wide War Savings Stamps sales drive backed by the Canadian Picture Pioneers will close their regular Monday performances on July 15 at 9:30 p. m., the patriotic shows to start at 10:00 o'clock.

Theatres Carry Heavy Share Of the Second War Budget

TORONTO—Canada's second wartime budget provides increased taxes that hit the theatre business, with circuits called upon to pay 40 per cent of gross profits to the federal government, in addition to provincial levies.

The new Dominion profits tax is an increase from 50 to 75 per cent on profits in excess of the basic rate from the average income over a four-year period prior to the war. This increase applies to individual theatre companies, whether chain or unaffiliated.

Film exchanges and theatres also are required to pay a war tax of ten per cent on the value of imports except those under the British preferential tariff, which means a higher cost on films, accessories, equipment and supplies from the States.

Individual wage earners now pay a war defense tax of at least two per cent on incomes as low as $600 per year, which is expected to cut into spending money for amusements by the average people who form the bulk of theatre patronage.

The new taxation is taken in good part by the people in recognition of the serious aspect of the war and the need for adequate financing.

TORONTO

PRESIDENT N. L. NATHANSON of Famous Players Canadian Corp. spent several days in New York during which he attended a meeting of the Hays organization where he received enthusiastic assurances that films would be provided for the patriotic performances in Canadian theatres on Monday night, July 15.

Haskell Masters, general manager of United Artists, made a rush trip to Ottawa to consult various federal government officials. General Manager Leo Devaney of RKO went to Montreal for a day before flying to Vancouver. Col. John A. Cooper spent a quiet weekend at his summer home in Bobcaygeon and then spent most of the week in the Maritime Provinces.

Charles F. Mavety, president of the Mavety Film Delivery Service, went into the show business Thursday night, June 27, when he staged a film performance at his Circle M. Ranch at Kleinburg, Ont., the entire proceeds being turned over to the Canadian Red Cross Society of Vaughan Township. Charlie tagged everybody on Filmrow to buy tickets and soon had his pockets bulging with cash.

Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier flew to Toronto from New York for a personal visit, this being the first time that they had seen the Dominion. They were reported to be looking around for a house in which to reside after their marriage.

Formal announcement has been made of the appointment of Lieut. John Farrow, former Hollywood director and husband of Maureen O'Sullivan, as controller of naval information for the Royal Canadian Navy, in succession to Commander Eustace Brock who has been transferred to England. Lieut. and Mrs. Farrow and baby have taken up residence in Rockcliffe Village.

Manager S. McNeil of the Capitol, Smiths Falls, came to Toronto for the Exhibitors' Patriotic Rally when it came out that the theatre is owned by Bert H. Soper, newly elected member of the Canadian House of Commons for Lanark Riding. The Capitol is operated by the Allens as a unit of Premier Theatres.

Frank C. Badgley, director of the Canadian Government motion picture bureau, Ottawa, spent several days in Toronto following a visit at the New York World's Fair to arrange for the presentation of further Canadian films in the Canadian Pavilion and elsewhere.

Irving Cohen, until recently a salesman with Grand National Films, Toronto office, created a sensation when he turned up at the Film Exchange Bldg. in the kilted uniform of the Irish Regiment of Toronto, the unit having been called up for Overseas service with the Canadian Active Service Force. Cohen was one of the first to offer his services, tried repeatedly to get into the Navy but finally landed among the Irishmen.

L. W. Payne, proprietor of the Capitol, Listowel, Ont., is proudly displaying a gold ring which was presented to him by the members of the 100th Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, because of the cooperation he extended during the period they were stationed in Listowel for training. The presentation took place just prior to the departure of the unit for an eastern destination.

Manager T. R. Tubman of the Capitol, Ottawa, staged a peony show in the lobby, foyer and mezzanine floor of the theatre under the auspices of the Ottawa Horticultural Society for two days, the display being open to the public without charge, the theatre's ticket-takers being placed at the inside doors for performances . . . Harry Firestone, manager of the Esquire, and past president of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario, was a visitor to the New York World's Fair and is now busy on several committees for the Patriotic Shows on July 15.

Syd Taube, veteran Toronto film man, has been making a triple-feature trip of the Canadian West, first visiting Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur, Fort William and Kenora in Northern Ontario before going to Winnipeg. He is looking after his own business, doing some soliciting for the Canadian Picture Pioneers' memberships and finally was drafted to organize exhibitors for the War Savings Stamps campaign.

Trade's War Campaign Officers Are Named

TORONTO—Officers of the "Win the War Campaign" of the Canadian film industry, sponsored by the Canadian Picture Pioneers, which is organizing the patriotic shows in all theatres of the Dominion on Sunday, July 14, are as follows:

Chairman—N. L. Nathanson; vice-chairman, Clair Hague, president of the Canadian Picture Pioneers; secretary, Ray Lewis.

Executive—T. J. Bragg, N. A. Taylor, R. W. Bolstad, Hon. Earl Lawson, Col. John A. Cooper, Ben Geldsaler, J. J. Fitzgibbons, O. R. Hanson, Harry Alexander, Haskell Masters, Herbert Allen, Leo M. Devaney, James P. O'Loghlin, with other officers of the Pioneers including Louis Rosenfeld, Ben Cronk, Sam Sternberg, E. H. Wells, Syd Taube, Fred Pursel, J. Smith, Charlie Stephenson.

Publicity—Geo. H. K. Mitford, director; James Nairn, Jack Arthur, Ben Cronk and H. C. D. Main.

Campaign Headquarters—W. M. Gladish, manager, 277 Victoria St., Toronto.

Finance Committee—R. W. Bolstad and T. J. Bragg.

Government Committee—Mr. Bragg and Hon. Earl Lawson.

Trust Fund Establishment—Ben Geldsaler and Mr. Bolstad.

Industry Organization—Haskell Masters, L. M. Devaney, Nat Taylor, J. J. Fitzgibbons, O. R. Hanson, Col. Cooper, J. P. O'Loghlin, Harry Alexander, Clair Hague, Herb Allen and A. J. Laurie.

Hollywood Committee—Louis B. Mayer, Robert Vogel, Mr. Hanson and Mr. Fitzgibbons.

Program Committee—J. J. Fitzgibbons and Messrs. Geldsaler, Hanson and Cooper.

Traveling Delegates—Messrs. Masters, O'Loghlin, Devaney, Taylor, Cooper, Hanson and Fitzgibbons.

Toronto and Ontario divisions—Messrs. Alexander, Laurie, Herb, Allen and Hague.

Toronto sub-committee—Harry Lester, Harry Ginsler, Harry Firestone, Ben Ulster, Sam Lester and Messrs. Alexander and Laurie.

Toronto Exchanges Committee—Herb Allen, Columbia; Harry Bailey, 20th Century-Fox; M. Plottel, RKO; Joe Plottel, Warner Bros.; Harry Paynter and Frank Fisher, Empire-Universal; Henry L. Nathanson and Ted Gould, Regal; J L. Hunter, Paramount; Sam Glazer, United Artists, and Mr. Laurie, Esquire Films.

Local committees are in process of formation at Vancouver, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, Montreal, St. John and Halifax.

Regional meetings were held during the past week across the whole of Canada, at which Provincial organizations were set up for completion of details for the patriotic performances to be held in all theatres on Sunday night, July 14.

A committee comprising L. M. Devaney, general manager of RKO Distributing Corp., H. M. Masters, general manager of United Artists Corp., and N. A. Taylor, vice-president of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario, flew from Toronto to Vancouver for the series of four Western meetings, as follows: Vancouver, June 24; Calgary, June 25; Regina, June 26, and Winnipeg, June 27. Exhibitors and exchange managers were assembled at these centers for important announcements and discussions and for the purpose of securing campaign assessments from all theatres on the basis of two cents per seat.

Col. John A. Cooper, president of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada, and James P. O'Loghlin, general manager of 20th Century-Fox, proceeded meanwhile from Toronto to the eastern territories, the schedule of meetings being as follows: Montreal, June 25; St. John, N. B., June 26, and Halifax, N. S., June 27.

Local organizers, appointed by telegraph from the Toronto headquarters, quickly took hold of their respective situations, these officials including: Vancouver—L. I. Bearg and H. A. Calladine; Calgary—Frank H. Kershaw and B. Goldin; Edmonton—Walter P. Wilson and L. Friedman; Regina—Larry M. Graburn; Winnipeg—E. A. Zorn and J. Pearson; Montreal—Arthur Hirsch and Eugene Beaulac; St. John—Walter Golding and F. G. Spencer; Halifax—R. S. Roddick, H. J. McAdam and T. J. Courtney of Halifax, W. H. Cuzner of Sydney Mines and A. J. Mason, Springhill, N. S.

Another traveling representative from Toronto headquarters is Syd Taube who was responsible for organization work at Sault Ste. Marie, Fort William, Port Arthur and Kenora in northern Ontario, later proceeding to Winnipeg and other Prairie cities.

Machine-like work was carried out in all parts of the Dominion under the supervision of the headquarters in Toronto to prepare for the official opening of the drive on July 1 when trailers, posters, window cards and other accessories are scheduled for release.

Women's War Work Topic Of Third National Film

MONTREAL—As chairman of the national film board, Trade Minister McKinnon announces a new picture, "The Home Front," dealing with women's war work.

Third in the series of 12 pictures to be produced for the national film board and the department of public information, designed to take Canadians behind the scenes of their national war activity, the new commentary film will portray nursing, Red Cross work, truck driving, work in munitions, aircraft and textile factories, and maintaining the home. A French version of "The Home Front" will be issued at the same time.

: EDMONTON :

REQUEST of J. Polonuk, who is building a neighborhood theatre in the Norwood district, that the city building by-law be amended to permit him to construct a $30,000 theatre, is at present under consideration by the city council.

Under sponsorship of the 49th Battalion Association, Gus Arnheim and his band played here at the Arena. Proceeds go for war services.

The Edmonton Commercial Grads, world basketball champions, were guests at the Strand during their farewell appearance when they played against the Chicago Queen Anne Aces.

Recent visitors to Edmonton: A. Iscove, Calgary, Grand National; Sam Pearlman, Calgary, Warner Bros.; A. Feinstein, Calgary, United Artists, and Harvey Harnick, Calgary, Columbia.

Edmonton delegate to the IATSE convention held recently in Louisville, Ky., was J. D. Dear, president of the Edmonton branch.

WINNIPEG

NOTHING definite is as yet known here on the question of holding Sunday shows, admission to which would be allowed for war savings stamps, in aid of Canada's war effort. Hon. W. W. J. Major, attorney-general of this province, has confined himself to stating that as far as Manitoba was concerned the proposal was clearly against the law, but the idea was still wide open for discussion. Main opposition here is expected from the Ministerial Association. A committee of local showmen has been chosen to see what plans can be carred out. Towards this end a luncheon will be held here next Friday at which eastern theatremen, including Leo Devaney, Haskell Masters and Nat Taylor, president of the Ontario Independent Theatre Owners Ass'n, will meet with Winnipeg members of the industry to review the situation.

It has been reported that Dave Griesdorf, popular UA manager, has been appointed New York regional representative of the new film company started by James Roosevelt. Showmen of the city are paying tribute to Mr. Griesdorf at a stag to be held next Wednesday at the Fort Garry Hotel.

The slump experienced in the film industry here for a few weeks now is over, with showmen reporting business as good as it was at this time a year ago . . . "Public Opinion," the stage show which Syl Gunn has been running at the Metropolitan, has well proven its power to bolster the formerly weak Monday nights. Opening in Regina recently the same show is doing very well at that city.

Harold Bishop leaves for Los Angeles on holiday next week and will be away for two weeks. In the interval Nestor Novak, assistant manager who just returned from a vacation in Chicago, will take over the house. Bishop screened "For Freedom" for members of the Navy League, executive of the sea cadets, the visual education committee of the school board, and staff of military headquarters.

Universal and Republic Convene—

The site for both distributors' sales conventions was the Royal York Hotel in Toronto. The top scene shows the Universal assemblage at their banquet tables. Standing in the rear at the head of the table are Ben Geldsaler, supervisor of booking for F-P; A. W. Perry, general manager; W. A. Scully, general sales manager; J. J. Fitzgibbons, F-P vice-president; F. J. A. McCarthy, Universal eastern division manager; O. R. Hanson, Empire president; O. J. Silverthorne, chairman of the Ontario board of censors; N. A. Taylor, general manager of the 20th Century Theatres, and Col. John A. Cooper. MPDC president. The lower photo, standing, from left to right, shows Harry Paynter, assistant general manager of Empire; James R. Grainger, Republic president; A. W. Perry, general manager, and Paul Nathanson, vice-president. Others in the group include Frank Fisher, Toronto branch manager; Mickey Isman and Larry Druxelman of Montreal; Frank Vaughan of Winnipeg, Wolfe Blankstein of Calgary, Ben Plottel of Vancouver, Gerry Hoyt of St. John, N. B.; Walter Kennedy, exploiteer; Sam Brint, Joe Palansky, Frank Gilbert and Perry Wright of Toronto.

MONTREAL

DISTRIBUTORS and exhibitors are bitterly disappointed at the intimation that the Quebec provisional government has decided to postpone until next session introduction of the amendment to the act banning admission of juveniles.

After entertaining several groups of soldiers and sailors, George Fields left for Hollywood with her producer husband, Monty Banks, to visit her mother and sister. Gracie will be back in Montreal late in August to commence her postponed trans-Canada tour, and will also organize concerts in aid of the movement to bring refugee children to Canada.

Edison's leading assistant for many years, Albert Petit of Montreal, is now, at the age of 75, engaged on an invention the nature of which he has not disclosed. Petit lays claim to have been the first person to run a "talkie movie." It was a combination of the phonograph and the kinetophone. "I took a concession at an amusement park at East Orange, N. J., to show the public this wonder. It was a crude parent of what later became the talking picture," he recalls. Petit simply showed shots of a hula dancer, while listeners heard appropriate music through ear-phones.

Tension over the war situation is given on Filmrow as the explanation why so few out-of-town exhibitors have found their way to Monkland Avenue in recent weeks. Latest arrivals included Mr. and Mrs. Alex Chouinard, of the Princess and Imperial, Quebec; R. Vallee, Premier, Sherbrooke, and John Dydzak, of the Palace, Val d'Or and the Palace, Cadillac.

Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, English film and stage stars, visited Montreal and confirmed the report that they intend to marry "as soon as possible." They flew here from New York, and continued the flight to Toronto.

Admission tickets to amusement places are exempt from the new two per cent sales tax levied by the Quebec provincial government. Railway and transportation fares also are exempt.

Theatre managers here are looking forward to the special Sunday night performances to be arranged in aid of Canada's war effort, and for which the admission fee will be not money, but a war saving stamp or certificate.

Hold Three Stooges

HOLLYWOOD—Columbia has signed Howard, Fine and Howard (the Three Stooges) for another two years to appear in eight short subjects.

Adapts Yarn for Raft

HOLLYWOOD—"The Dealer's Name Was George," in which George Raft will star for Warner, is being adapted by Leonard Hoffman from a story by Ketti Frings.

Warner Pacts Model

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has handed Lucia Lesert, former New York model, a term acting pact.

Juvenile Admission "Stall" Is Rebuked

MONTREAL—Montreal Star's dramatic critic, who is also its editor-in-chief, S. Morgan-Powell, voices indignation at the failure of the Quebec's provincial government to make admission of juveniles to theatres legal this summer. He writes:

"It is a matter for profound regret that the provincial government has come to the conclusion that it cannot spare the comparatively few minutes that would be required to pass the law amendment permitting children under 16 and in charge of adults to attend motion pictures. It would have meant such a vast difference for the whole long summertime and would not have cost the government a nickel in actual expenditure. Why, therefore, an amendment that has not only been promised by the government but has been widely publicized and to which children have been looking forward with such eagerness should have been suddenly delayed until the next session of the provincial legislature it is difficult, indeed, to understand.

"We could understand the delay if this was a matter of burning controversy liable to split the province into some fierce political battle, but such is not the case. It seems to us rather an unkind thing, not to use any harsher term, to encourage the hopes of thousands of youngsters to expect they will be able to see films this summer, and then suddenly, without any explanation whatever, to dash those hopes to pieces. If there is any substantial justification for this sudden change of policy at least it would be a good idea to make it public in order that the children might understand that they were not being fooled.

"The Star has been the leader in this fight for films for children ever since in a moment of acute hysteria the ban was imposed many years ago. Even now we imagine it is not too late for the government to change its mind, and if there is the slightest possibility of its doing so, we would strongly urge that such action be taken. It would be no trouble to the legislative body at Quebec, and it would mean all the difference between happiness and that hope deferred "which maketh the heart sick" which the failure of the authorities to implement their promise will undoubtedly create in thousands of Quebec homes."

Lease Capitol Theatre Hall to Government

OTTAWA—Canadian government departments directly involved in the war have been in urgent need of more office space for administrative purposes in Ottawa and the situation has been relieved somewhat by Famous Players Canadian Corp. in leasing a large hall incorporated in the Capitol Theatre. The hall above the lobby and foyer, measuring 5,000 square feet, had been used for assembly purposes, dances and badminton. It has been leased to the government for $4,500 per year.

RKO Radio (——) 85 Minutes Rel. ——————

To the current entertainment taste, this will be like a thick slice of roast beef and a liberal helping of Yorkshire pudding to a hungry person. And it is just as steeped in British tradition. In picture form, the comparatively simple, although famous, story of English school life during the nineteenth century possesses the artistic appeal of a fine etching, of which many of its beautifully staged and expertly photographed sequences are reminiscent. This artistry does not detract from the feature's dramatic and interest-sustaining qualities, but, on the other hand, serves to enhance them. The cast is splendid and reveals definite juvenile starring material in youthful Jimmy Lydon in the title role. Robert Stevenson directed for Producers Gene Towne and Graham Baker.

A fresh slant on the conventional penitentiary melodrama, in which the usual grimness has been alleviated by welcome touches of humor, places this above the general average of program fodder. Audiences will undoubtedly hail it if for no other reason than it relates no story of a prison break, and because not one convict is an innocent man who has been railroaded. Among its other assets can be listed a winning performance by the perennial Lee Tracy, bobbing up again after an absence of some duration to give an excellent account of himself in a meaty role. As the title indicates, the plot deals principally with five millionaires doing time for various crimes. Among them is a young research doctor, in for manslaughter, who works with the prison surgeon to discover a cure for a rare fever. Ray McCarey directed.

The problem of girls who hitch hike the highways and hop freights on the railroads is taken up in this film, carried along familiar lines, and abruptly dropped with a fair attempt made in the dramatization to solve the sordid situation. Ann Dvorak plays the governor's daughter who runs away to get first hand information on the subject. She meets Helen Mack and proceeds to get sketchy case histories of various females and the trials and tribulations of their involuntary calling. In due time her father catches up with her and the organization of "Girls' Castles" is started to take the youngsters off the road. This is preceded by the death of a girl who was fatally injured when she jumped from a freight car. Nick Grinde directed.

Here is a snug little comedy which will do yeoman's service in the niche for which it was produced, namely, supporting fare in the deluxers and top billing in neighborhood showings. Charles Coburn, flanked by a bevy of tried and true character actresses, is featured as a salty, retired sea captain who is the only male inmate of an old ladies' home. His characterization is up to his usual high Thespic standards. When both his ship and his home are swindled away from him, Coburn has no choice but to check in at the shelter for old ladies, where he soon becomes the pampered pet of the place. Then the ship which he formerly owned is grounded on a nearby reef, and with the help of the home's inmates he floats it, collects enough salvage money to buy it, and all is well. Robert B. Sinclair directed.

Charles Coburn, Beulah Bondi, Helen Broderick, Billie Burke, Helen Westley, Marjorie Main, Clem Bevans.

Adhering to routine as a gangster melodrama in every respect, this is aimed for consumption by the action houses, where it will no doubt be accorded satisfactory reception. Production displays some measure of class, but the story, although based on material supplied by J. Edgar Hoover, holds no surprises and at times wanders over into the realm of implausibility. Attention centers around Blanche Yurka, a middle-aged woman with four grown children, three of whom she directs in a series of daring robberies and kidnapings. The fourth, not criminally bent, becomes a lawyer. The gang's rise and fall, with the FBI always on its trail, furnishes the plot, adequately enacted by the cast. Ralph Bellamy is wasted in an inconsequential assignment. James Hogan directed.

All that saves this from hopeless mediocrity are the impressive and vast scenic backgrounds of the Canadian woods, in which it finds its locale; the fact that they are expertly photographed in Technicolor; and a spectacular blizzard sequence. The screenplay, an adaptation of the Sinclair Lewis novel, "Mantrap," specializes in the obvious; the cast, although it tries hard, cannot transcend the material with which it is supplied, and direction by George Archainbaud is sluggish and heavy-handed. The plot is the familiar triangle in which Ray Milland portrays a society doctor who flees to the frozen north to sober up. There he falls in love with Patricia Morison, who is the wife of Akim Tamiroff, a Canadian woodsman. The problem is solved through the familiar expediency of sending Tamiroff to his death.

Most audiences in search of light, diverting entertainment should find this easy enough to take, although it patterns itself closely after the now historic "It Happened One Night." As a comeback vehicle for Gene Raymond, however, it serves its purpose, has its quota of laughs and moves along rapidly throughout. Strong support is lent Raymond by Wendy Barrie, and a particularly hilarious bit is contributed by Billy Gilbert. Miss Barrie has that familiar assignment, the spoiled heiress who runs away from an unwanted marriage and hides in the car trailer belonging to Raymond, struggling young doctor who is headed for San Francisco and a boat to China, where he is to join another medico. In due course they fall in love and marry, although she has concealed her true identity—whereupon the complications begin to set in. Frank Woodruff directed.

Innocuous entertainment at best, but clean and wholesome, this nevertheless has the exploitation value of a nationwide radio program to bolster its appeal and, in small towns and neighborhoods, will probably hit the mark. Jean Hersholt is inclined to suffer from too much of a goody-goody buildup giving rise to the reaction that "there just ain't no such animal" as Dr. Christian; but by and large his performance equals past efforts and the production as a whole is smoothly turned out. This time the guiding light of River's End pits his wits against Rod La Rocque, a quack diet specialist, who sets the town on its collective ear by guaranteeing to trim every woman in it down to sweet 16 again. His methods are so strenuous that Dr. Christian works himself into exhaustion trying to put some strength back into his patients. William McGann directed.

In addition to a substantially better western story, this horse opera also has a quartette of names that will definitely contribute to its pulling power. The production is one that fits into the niche between regulation westerns and the product of major companies which occasionally do an outdoor epic on the grand director-writer-actor scale. In other words it is a contribution toward solving the double bill problem. Alone it should be found acceptable. The story: Chester Morris enacts the role of twins. One is bad, the other out to save the family name. Number one is trapped and number two sets out to get the rest of the renegades his brother is associated with. In due time this is done, but not before many dramatic moments unfold with a good measure of excitement. It is a fine blend of dramatic staples. Lew Landers directed.

Interest the potential audience in the social note struck by this production. While it solves the problem in typical Hollywood fashion, it nevertheless should be credited with bringing it into the light again. For a lobby display have large tin cans fashioned into dishes and set the most primitive table imaginable. Have all this appropriately labeled. Interest social relief organizations, women's clubs, etc., in the theme.

Technicolor is as important a factor in your exploitation as are Ray Milland, Akim Tamiroff and Patricia Morison, and should be mentioned on the marquee along with the cast. Use snow and ice motifs in lobby decorations, with painted backgrounds of the north woods country as embellishments. Pile synthetic snow in the lobby and hang imitation icicles from the marquee. Dress ushers and usherettes as lumberjacks. Make tieups with bookstores and libraries on Sinclair Lewis novels, particularly "Mantrap."

Filmed in Gorgeous Technicolor . . . A Vivid, Dramatic Adventure in Canada's North Woods.

SELLING ANGLES: "Wagons Westward"

Go to town with this one on the name values. Play it up with an all-star cast ballyhoo. It will be pleasant for the audience to see Buck Jones again, even though he is here opposed to law and order. Performances are first rate. The yarn is set in a period following the Civil War. Feature in advance copy the wealth of material contributing to the story's atmosphere—stagecoaches, Indian fights, cavalry charges and the like. The pressbook for this one has a number of effective advertising and exploitation tips and is a better publication than the average selling manual.

CATCHLINES:

The Strong Conquer . . . The Weak Perish . . . In the Untamed Wilds of the Early West.

PRACTICAL IDEAS BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Persuades Patrons by The Aid of Poetry

ELDON, MO.—Tom Edwards, pilot of the Ozark here, has a way of getting across his messages without getting cross with his patrons or getting his boxoffice double-crossed in the effort. Witness:

"You have sweet children, we all do know,
And we want you to bring them to the show;
All children seem to cry at times,
But when they're six they pay me dimes.

We knew they'd cry from 1 to 3,
That's why we built a big Lobby,
So when they start to let 'er go,
For the others, please don't ruin the show.

Just take them to the Lobby for a drink,
Give them a talk and let them think
Of what a noise they make inside—
I think this will hurt their pride.

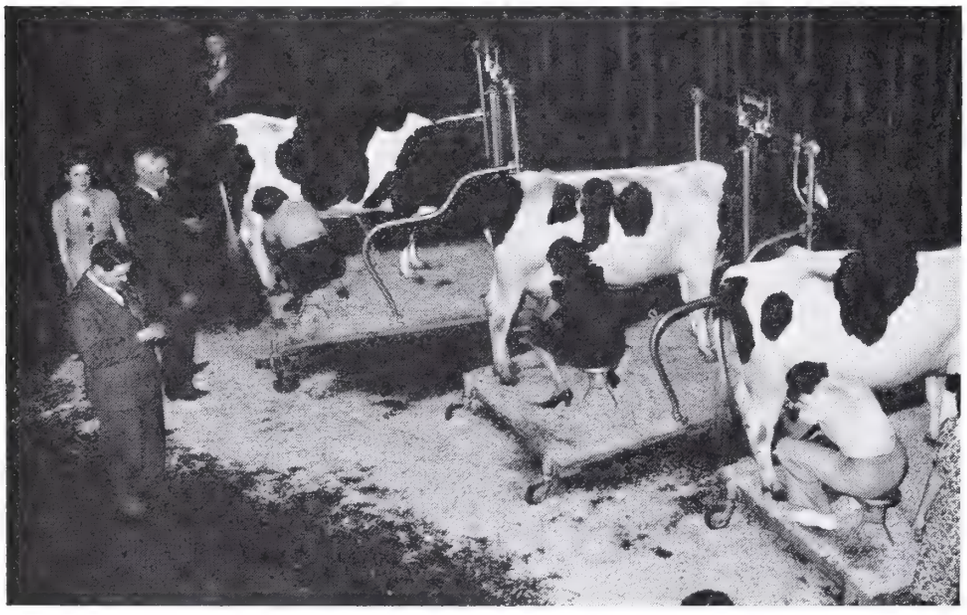
Don't fail to bring them when you come,
But do your best to keep them mum.
It doesn't bother me a bit,
But to some of my customers it gives a fit."

To which he adds: "I'd appreciate it if when they start to cry and you can't stop them that you mothers would say in a real stern voice, 'Dad, take this child out in the lobby and quiet it.' I know from experience that if you say it sternly enough, he and the baby will both be quiet."

Tom also has a poetic approach to another type of advice, viz:

"There's a time to part and
A time to meet,
There's a time to sleep and
A time to eat,
There's a time to smile and
A time to groan,
But make it a point to see
'Torrid Zone.'"

And that isn't enough to exhaust him. "I'll never forget the first pair of shoes they got on me when I was sixteen," he recollects for the amusement of his patrons. "My feet were so tough I wore the shoes out from the inside."



Apropos of nothing more than the urgency of the times, Tom declares that "Wars are fought by boys, suffered by women, paid for by the next generation, and usually started by some !*).%●=! old enough to know better."

Startled Audience Learns Of "Doctor Takes Wife"

PHILADELPHIA—"Is there a doctor in the house?" inquired a loud voice during an intermission at the Stanley. "IS there a doctor in the house?"

The startled audience then heard, "But don't worry, folks. When you come next week and see 'The Doctor Takes a Wife,' you'll all get so pepped up from laughing that nobody'll need a doctor any more."

The voice was Ed Rosenbaum's, Columbia exploiteer.

A Picture Contest Sells 'Our Town' in La Crosse

LA CROSSE, WIS.—The Hollywood secured the cooperation of the local newspaper and a group of merchants in staging a camera contest to plug "Our Town." The contest was divided into two parts, one for residents of La Crosse and another for entrants from towns in the La Crosse area.

: Came the Depression :

KANSAS CITY—Herewith a reprint of something from the current Commonwealth circuit's bulletin which, in turn, credits a bulletin put out by the Uptown at Creston, Ia.:

A Man Lived by the Road And Sold Hot Dogs

"There was a man who lived by the side of the road, and he sold hot dogs. He was hard of hearing, so he had no radio. He had trouble with his eyes, so he read no newspapers. But he sold good hot dogs. He put signs up on the highway telling how good they were.

"He stood on the side of the road and cried, 'Buy a hot dog, mister?' and people bought. He increased his meat and bun order. He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade. He finally got his son from college to help him.

"But then something happened. His son said, 'Father, haven't you been listening to the radio? Haven't you been reading the newspapers? There's a big depression on. The European situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse. Everything's going to pot.'

"Whereupon his father thought, 'Well, my son's been to college. He reads the papers and listens to the radio, so he ought to know.'

"So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his advertising signs, and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell off almost overnight. 'You're right, son,' the father said to his boy. 'We certainly are in the middle of a great depression.' "

Cooperative Ad Provides Passes for "Edison"

NEW LONDON, WIS. — The Grand here promoted a center newspaper spread in cooperation with eight local merchants to plug "Edison, the Man." Persons listed in the advertisements received two free tickets from the merchant in whose ad their names appeared. Sixteen local citizens received tickets.

One of the cooperating firms was the Edison Wood Products Co., which was acquired by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in 1917 for the manufacture of Edison Phonograph cabinets. With the passing of the phonograph, Thomas A. Edison turned the firm to furniture making so as to preserve the employment of several hundred workers. The local factory is still owned by the Thomas A. Edison Co.

Old Indian Fighter Sells "Northwest Passage"

HARRISONBURG, VA.—Enlisting the aid of Capt. Jack Lloyd, 72-year-old veteran of the Indian wars and an extra in many a western, Manager Jack W. Fretwell of the State put over a colorful campaign on "Northwest Passage."

Lloyd, who was dressed in a buckskin outfit and has long hair and a beard, attracted attention a week in advance of the opening and discussed freely his experiences with the famous figures of the wild west days.

Highlight of the campaign was when Lloyd accepted Manager Fretwell's challenge and walked 25 miles from a nearby town to Harrisonburg on the opening day of the picture. The stunt was followed by a large crowd and the local radio carried reports of Lloyd's progress as he neared the theatre. In front of the theatre, Lloyd was handed his monetary reward for accomplishing the feat.

During the week, Lloyd entertained theatre audiences with his stories of the west following the trailer of the feature.

Osa Johnson to P.A. With "I Married Adventure"

NEW YORK—Plans are now on foot for a series of personal appearance by Osa Johnson with "I Married Adventure," new Columbia release. In addition to appearing in theatres, Mrs. Johnson will stage a series of autographing parties in major department stores in key cities. The tie-up will be both ways and each benefiting through the cooperative exploitation.

This will mark the first time Mrs. Johnson has appeared with a picture since the death of her husband with whom she had appeared under a contractual arrangement with Fox theatres when the Fox company handled one of their films.

Patriotic Motif in Heralds Tried by RKO in Gotham

NEW YORK—Recommended for these hot and turbulent days, is RKO's summer campaign, planned and executed by Harry Mandel, director of advertising and publicity, in the circuit's theatres in the greater metropolitan area.

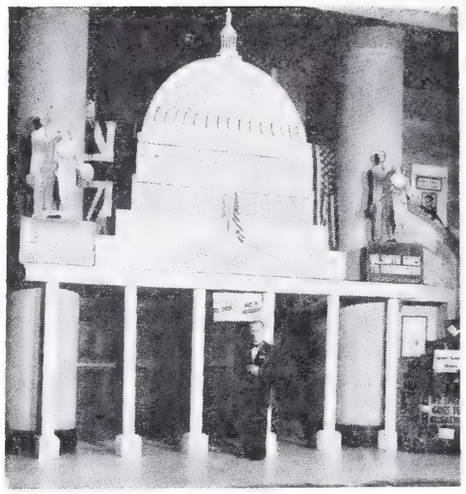
The heralds are done in a patriotic motif with blurbs emphasizing same. The copy reads as follows: "Keep Cool America at RKO. We Have Faith in America . . . and its people. And we believe that good entertainment is a strong necessity to all people at all times. The Show Must Go On. Therefore RKO is not holding back. We have gathered several of the year's biggest attractions for showing right now instead of holding them for the fall."

A special talking trailer with sequences from all the coming attractions listed in the advertising was compiled and used in the theatres.

Teaser Questionnaire for "Doctor Takes a Wife"

BOSTON—"Girls, which do you prefer: professional or non-professional men?" Al Longo of the local Loew's, Inc., publicity department made this teaser the basis of a competition exploiting "The Doctor Takes a Wife." Longo put out 3,000 flyers on the subject and handed passes to winners.

Giving "Doctor Takes a Wife" novelty publicity throughout, Longo also arranged for a contest to determine the most popular interne in the city of Boston. He worked on a radio quiz competition between teams of doctors and nurses. Ballyhoo was taken to the highways by a stooge dressed as an interne, stethoscope and all, who handed out prescription cards with the film plug on them.



Nebraska City Opening Occasions Festivities

NEBRASKA CITY, NEB.—The biggest program in the history of the trade in Nebraska City was devised here by Stanley McSwain, manager for H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., to celebrate the reopening of the modernized Booth, renamed the Arbor.

The mayor planted a tree, with appropriate ceremonies. There was a Hollywood premiere, with lights and loud speakers. Star impersonators competed for the right to appear the following night on the Arbor stage. McSwain wrote a complete show, and emceed it to a tremendously successful finish.

Pulitzer Award Sets Chicago 'Grapes' Pace

CHICAGO—Manager Robert Busch of the Shore wasted no time when the novel, "The Grapes of Wrath," received the Pulitzer Prize. He had a special three-card trailer made which was inserted in the newsreel. The copy mentioned the award and tied up with the opening of the picture a few days later. Book marks with special copy stamped on them were distributed in all neighborhood public and rental libraries.

Details were supplied in the construction by Harold Playter, American consul at Newcastle, and the librarian of the Newcastle library and philosophical society.

Photos, Kiddie Revue Sell "Forty Little Mothers"

NEW YORK—Novel contests are getting "Forty Little Mothers" good publicity results. In Oshkosh, Robert W. Brose, manager of the Oshkosh, tied in with a local shopping paper and photographers. Brose challenged residents of Oshkosh to recognize pictures of themselves as babies. Passes were offered as prizes.

A kiddie revue featuring local talent placed on the air the morning the picture opened highlighted the campaign put over by H. McMullen, Colonial, Pittsburg, Kas. The program's sponsor announced that the first 40 mothers and their children to arrive at the boxoffice would be admitted free. Tickets were paid for by the sponsor.

Piece of String Reminds Patrons of "Edison"

PLEASANT HILL, MO.—To promote "Edison, the Man" J. Mark Cadle, manager of the Peoples here, gave each lady at two special matinees preceding the picture, a piece of string as she entered. On the screen he had slides reading, "As you entered the theatre you were given a piece of string. Please remove it from your pocket or purse. Tie it around the index finger of your left hand. Now let that be a reminder not to miss 'Edison, the Man'."

Book Store Provides Heralds

HARTFORD—Manager Jack A. Simons, Loew-Poli, tied up with Witkower's, a local book store, for book-marks and heralds during the run of "The Mortal Storm."

And Enjoys More

Suggested as a good slogan for theatres these days: "He who laughs lasts."

Inexpensive Giveaways Herald "Black Friday"

CHILLICOTHE, MO.—In connection with "Black Friday," Barnes Perdue, manager of the Ritz here, promoted 500 aspirin tablets and put them up, individually in 500 2½x3½" envelopes imprinted "A Free Aspirin. Compliments of Clark's Pharmacy. Take it to steady your nerves when you see 'Black Friday' at the Ritz, etc." The envelopes were distributed in cars and to people on the streets the afternoon before the special midnight program on which the picture was shown.

In addition, Perdue had imprinted another 500 of the same size envelopes with the message, "Emergency Use (followed by first aid cross symbol) for those afraid to go home in the dark after they see 'Black Friday,' etc. Showing one time only. Blackout midnight show." Time and Date. Inside each envelope was a kitchen match.

Silences a Trailer to Intensify Its Power

CHILLICOTHE, MO.—It's pretty hard to figure out a new angle in the presentation of trailers, but Barnes Perdue of the Ritz here did just that in connection with "Slightly Honorable."

A special trailer was inserted in the regular talkie trailer with copy saying, among other things, that "Because there are children in the audience we deem it best to silence the dialogue in this trailer." And there followed the film sequences without sound. To bolster the effect of silence, the sound at the beginning was raised two points above normal; it faded out for the bulk of the trailer, and then was cut in on the last subtitles.

The reaction was terrific. Two college students attempted to bribe the Ritz operator to forget to cut the sound so they could hear the trailer dialogue.

Marathon Runners Speed To Broadway Reopening

PHILADELPHIA—A marathon heralded the opening of the renovated Broadway, with 100 star runners participating. The runners covered a five-mile course from the Uptown to the Broadway. Police stopped traffic and a cadet corps of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars entertained at the finish. Manager Jack Lexey awarded a gold wrist watch, a radio and other prizes, bought cooperatively by the theatre and local merchants.

Bridge Tryst Is Plug For "Waterloo Bridge"

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—A stunt that aroused a great deal of curiosity was put over by M. R. Berman, Orpheum manager, for "Waterloo Bridge."

On opening day, Berman ran the following personal notice in two papers: "Dear Roy: I will be at Waterloo Bridge, our bridge on South Sixth St., this afternoon at 2:30. Must see you there at that time. Do not fail me. I am desperate. This is my last request. Your own, Myra."

At the appointed hour, a crowd gathered to see what would happen. What they witnessed was a happy meeting between the chief of service and a girl employe at the theatre dressed to impersonate Robert Taylor and Vivien Leigh.

Berman also caused a petition to be addressed to the mayor and city's commissioners asking that the name of the bridge be changed to Waterloo Bridge. He placed signs on the bridge which asked: "Why shouldn't this bridge be renamed 'Waterloo Bridge'?"

Fashion Show a Key to Tieups in Detroit

DETROIT—A two-day fashion show is being arranged by Hazen Funk, manager of the Great Lakes Theatre, to further the extensive program of community tieups at this house. Event is being staged by an experienced fashion expert, connected with one of the Detroit newspapers, and professional models will be used as well as 30 girls of the neighborhood who were entered in the local.

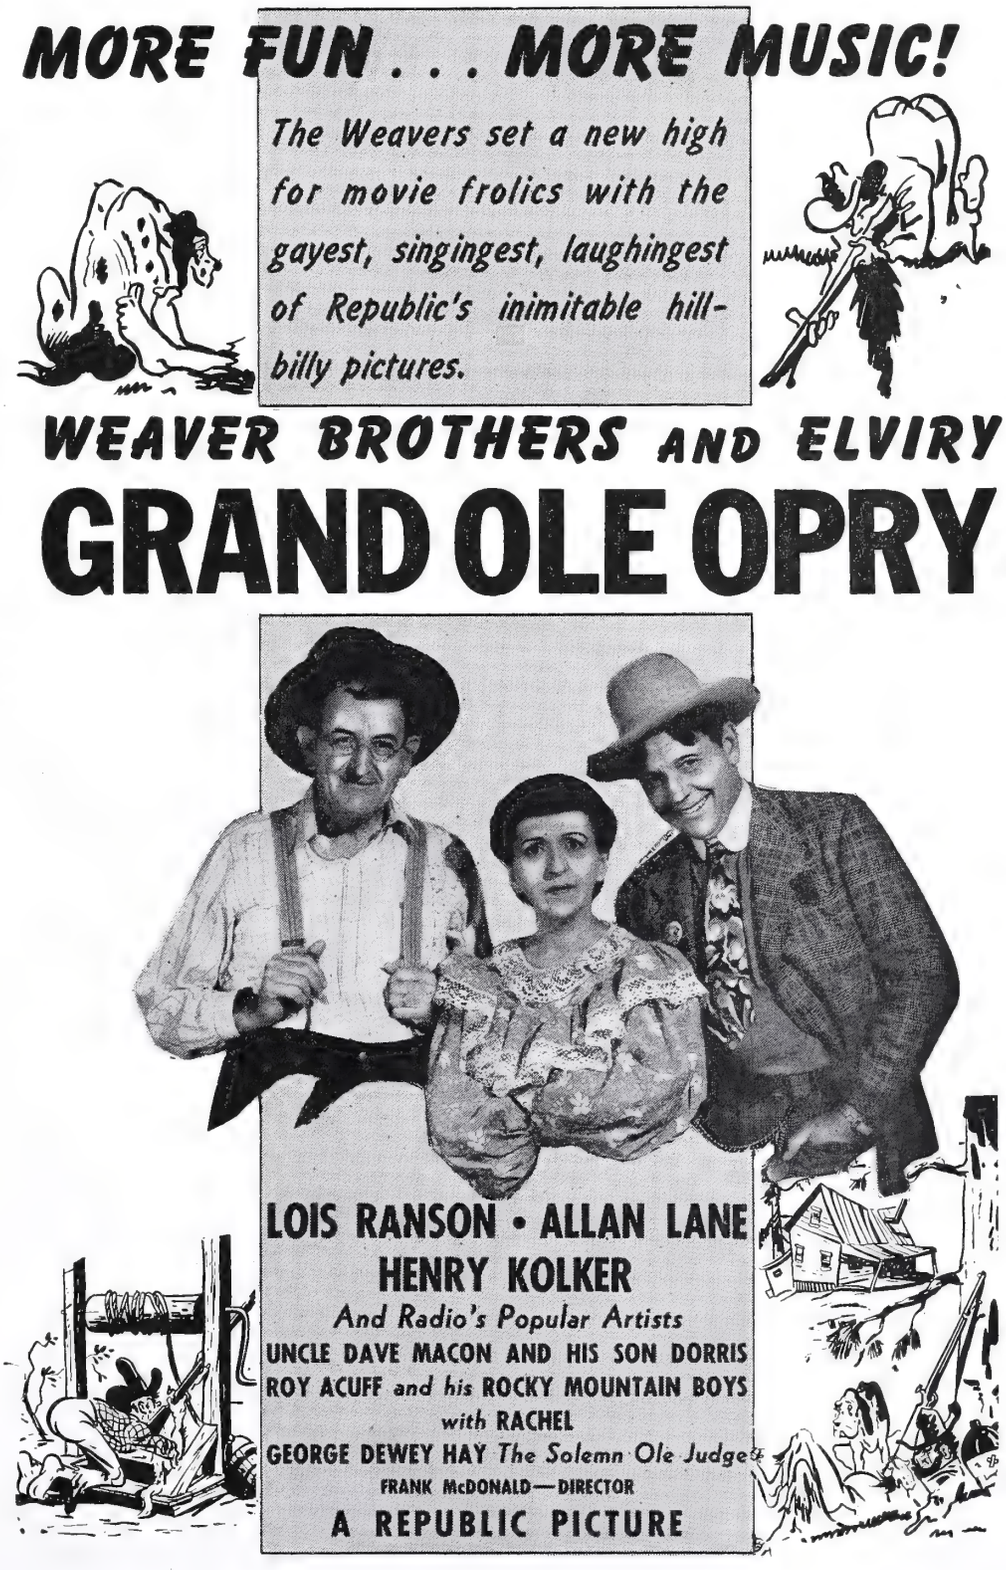
A 45-minute fashion show will be staged once each day under the direction of the fashion expert. General tieup is being arranged through the community newspaper, and wide publicity has been secured through arranging cooperative tieups with beauty shops and various merchants in the community.

Alexander Film-Allied Ad Deal Must Wait

CHICAGO—No new advertising deal was consummated between J. Don Alexander of Alexander Film Co. and Allied directors during the Allied convention here. The deal previously in force expired some months ago, and discussions toward renewing it were held here. Action, however, is being held in abeyance, it is understood, for another few months.

Manifold Campaign

PHILADELPHIA—Stanley Manager Al Reh's campaign for "The Doctor Takes a Wife" included spot announcements on three stations; a poll of female students at the University on whether they would marry a doctor (the results published in the campus paper); six window displays; a screening for 20 nurses from various hospitals; a lobby recording and a street ballyhoo of a person, dressed as an interne, distributing prescription blanks to passersby.



Make Them Fit To Be Kept

Bridgeport—Attention distributors! Joe Corwel of the Liberty says there's one place distributors should stop being super-colossal and that's in their year books to exhibitors. If companies made these library size, says Joe, exhibitors could keep them for reference all through the year and beyond. As it is, lacking out-size desks and rooms to read or keep them in, exhibitors destroy the advertising departments' beautiful brain-children as rapidly as possible.

Snapshot Enlargements Offered in Chicago

CHICAGO—Ludwig Sussman is inaugurating a new giveaway plan at his Adelphi. It is a 5x7 inch hand-colored oil enlargement, made from any snapshot of the patron, and framed in a 9x7 inch cardboard frame.

Patrons are given coupons every Wednesday and Thursday night when they purchase an adult admission ticket at the Adelphi. After they have six of these coupons, they bring them with a snapshot, and they receive the enlargement free.

AN INTERPRETATIVE ANALYSIS OF OPINIONS DEDUCED FROM THE LANGUAGE OF MOTION PICTURE TRADE PAPER REVIEWS.

Review Digest

The plus and minus signs indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the review. Where opinion is neither expressed nor possible of deduction the sign o is used. Blank spaces indicate no review. This department serves also as an Alphabetical Index to feature releases. It will be brought up to date from week to week. The meaning of the various signs and their combinations is as follows:

‡ Very Good; + Good; ± Fair; ∓ Mediocre; − Poor; = Very Poor

In the summary ‡ is rated as 2 pluses; = as 2 minuses.

First National

Castle on the Hudson
As has been said before, there's been too many of these; and also the public doesn't like sad endings. In spite of this, though, business was average and those who gave their opinion thought it was good. Tues., Wed. Small town patronage. Population: 411. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Four Wives
A fairly interesting adult picture with a lot of talk about babies, etc. The children won't find this so interesting. Business: Not so hot! Sat., Sun. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 876. Capacity: 175.—Walter J. Buchholtz, New Haven, New Haven, Mo.

Three Cheers for the Irish
I personally was disappointed because I was expecting more. But the facts are that with a baby show the first night and a nice second night crowd the next, I ended up with one of the best Tuesday-Wednesday grosses of the year. Tuesday-Wednesday is not my preferred playing time. Thursday-Friday is my best. Small town patronage. Population: 411. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Four Girls in White
Real good, did nice business. Think it was on account of Foto-Nite. Mon., Tues. Weather: Rain. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Gone With the Wind
Because so many small towns have reported a loss on showing this, I just want to report a very nice profit. The picture was shown in larger places both north and south within 16 miles of me. The 70 per cent dish-out made me sick for several days, but I got over it. Tues., Wed. Admission: Advanced scale. Small town patronage. Population: 411. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Man From Dakota, The
Not even average business on this one. Beery good as usual, but war stories are still not good boxoffice around here. Dolores Del Rio won't make a comeback on this one, and I personally don't think so on any picture. Tues., Wed. Small town patronage. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Northwest Passage
Business above average but not as much as I expected. Comments mostly favorable, but its gross was not quite half that of "Swanee River." Some difference between two films that are both supposed to be the tops. Thurs., Fri. Small town patronage. Population: 411. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Monogram

Man From Texas, The
This was my first Tex Ritter and did slightly above average business. Comments were favorable. That's all any showman is looking for. Saturday. Small town patronage. Population: 411. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Paramount

Dr. Cyclops
Just what you expect from the title and preview. Photographic effects excellent. Story just fair. Audience: Quite a few came out of curiosity, but not much enthusiasm on the way out. Boxoffice: Above average Saturday. Population: 950. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Geronimo!
A roaring, fighting film which our masculine audience liked. The ladies complained of too much killing and gruesomeness. This film didn't please everyone as the boxoffice showed, and "trouble on trouble," our best night was ruined by a heavy rain and wind storm. Thurs., Fri., Sat. Weather: Rain and wind. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 500. Capacity: 200.—John Grabenstein, Liberty, Eustis, Neb.

Star Maker, The
We picked this to be a winner but we were wrong. It did no business but we still liked it. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Republic

Heroes of the Saddle
They put out better ones than this. Old characters better. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Rain. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Jeepers Creepers
Good picture for western fans and others alike—plenty of nice comment from patrons. Give us more of the Weaver Bros. and Elviry. Fri., Sat. Weather: Rain. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,150. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

RKO Radio

Abe Lincoln in Illinois
A masterpiece of film entertainment with Raymond Massey's portrayal of Lincoln unsurpassed. However, like "Young Mr. Lincoln," it failed to do business for me. If you can sell this picture to your patrons, they'll thank you for it! Fri., Sat., Sun. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 876. Capacity: 175.—Walter J. Buchholtz, New Haven, New Haven, Mo.

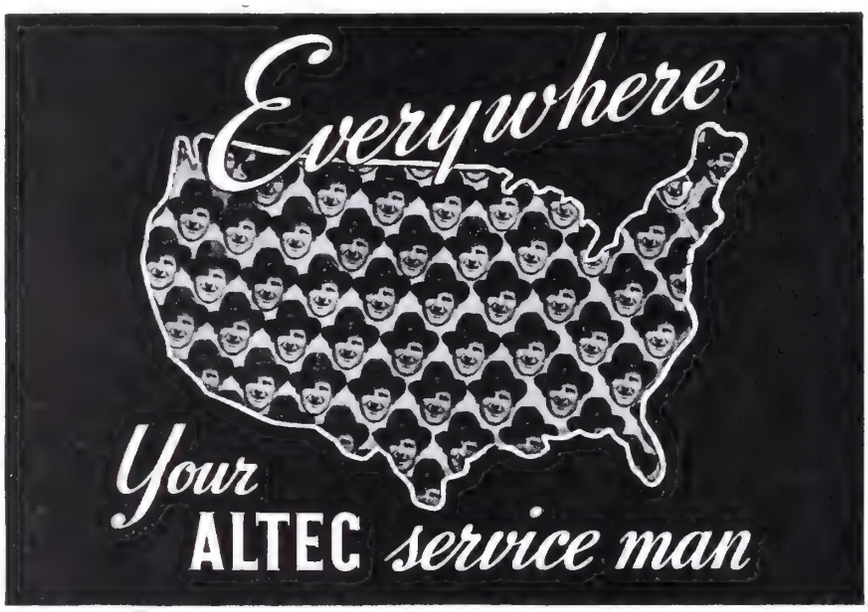
Primrose Path
Advance dope led us to except some interest in this but it played to the worst Sunday business in two months. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Capacity: 200.—Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

20th Century-Fox

Blue Bird, The
A first night crowd so small that it compares with my record low (but not quite). I heard but few comments and those I heard were not so good. I'm glad it's Shirley's last. Thurs., Fri. Small town patronage. Population. 411. Capacity: 280.—J. Foster Bailey, New, Coffeeville, Miss.

Everybody's Baby
Good for dual billing. Played it to satisfactory business. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Rain. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

United Artists



Zenobia
Couldn't get them in. Can't see why they got Laurel-Hardy back again. Tues., Wed. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Universal

Destry Rides Again
A super western that failed to draw any extra business. Very well acted and pleased all who saw it. The fight between the two girls was worth the admission. Sun., Mon. Weather: O. K. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,150. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Little Accident
Good comedy all the way—It was a Jonah too. I lost my Jackpot after 13 weeks. Enjoyed by everyone. Played to capacity crowd. Wednesday. Weather: Rain. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,150. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Rio
Played on Bank Night to fair business. Rathbone fits his part perfectly. McLaglen should have had more acting. No bad comment. Wednesday. Weather: Rain. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,150. Capacity: 388.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Al. Tec says:

AL. TEC

Scientists are constantly finding new improvements in sound, and are putting those improvements on the sound tracks, at the studios. Do you know when these improvements are made? Are you getting these improvements off the sound track in your own theatre? Are your patrons getting the benefit? There is one sure way for you to find out. Let the Altec inspector in your locality tell you.
